to themselves, would they travel a contrary | Samuel was no foorier born, but that his short way. For in the darkest night in the world, mother, according to her former vow, dedi-which if calves be removed from their dams, the cated him to God, and his fervice; to which kine will follow them through woods and she delivered him even from the dig. For where defars by the foot, till they find them. But as the first-born of all that were called Naza Estates the kine travelled directly towards Bethfhe- rites, might be redcemed till they were five put mesh: and when they came into the fields years old for five sheekles, and between five h, which there is a substitute of the second of the sec thereof, to wit, of one Fosia of the same City, years and twenty, for twenty sheekles: 10 mind they frood fill there; which when the Prin- was it not required by the Law, that any of stand the race of the Levites should be called to the Philistims vvere in view. But God being ferve about the Tabernacle, till they were moved with samuel's prayers (as he was by five and twenty years old.

velations before Samuel's time, vvere more who for a long time after did not offer any fee in this book, e. 12. clouded and obscure. The places vyherein invasion or revenge. And the better to at-

King of Roses, that affembly and preparation of War at Milfra, at once ; having the Philistims towards the when as he in the beginning of Samuel's government, West and Sea-coast, the Canaanite toward was facil gathered their Army, and marched towards the North and East, and the Idumite on the king, it watched the City: at vyhose approach the Israelites South. The estate being thus settled, Samuel him that firucken with fear, and with the memory of for the ease of the people gave audience and mining their former manginers and the victoria, fought samuel to pray to God for them, who been elsewhere said. he nothing vvas * then performing his facrifice vvhen difmaied, answered those of Moses, when Ifrael fought against Saint Peter reckons in the Alls the Pro- the Amalekites at the first entrance into Araphets from Samuel, who was the first of the bia:) it pleased him with thunder and tem-Writers of holy Scriptures, to vyhom usually pest to disperse and beat down the Army of this name of a Prophet was given, and yet the Philistims, according to the prophecie of did Moses account himself such a one; as in Hanna, Samuel's Mother, The Lords adversathe 18. of Deuteronomie, The Lord thy God ries shall be destroyed, and out of Heaven shall be millraise up unto thee a Prophet like unto me, thunder upon them, &c. Josephus affirms, that Or. But he is diffinguished from those that a part of the Philiftims were swallowed with preceded him, vvho were called Seers; as an earthquake: and that Samuel himselfled before time in Israel, when a man went to feek the Israelites in the profecution of their vian answer of God, thus he spake; Come and Ctory. After which Samuel erected a Monulet us go to the Seer: for he that is now called ment in memory of this happy fuccess, oba Prophet, was in old time called a Seer. And tained by the miraculous hand of God, although it pleased God to appear by his which Josephus called Lapidem fortem: Sa-Angels to Moses, as before to Abraham, Isaac, muel, Ebenezer, or the stone of affistance: and and Jacob; yet in the time of Eli, there was then following the opportunity and advannomanifest vision; not that God had alto- tage of the victory, the Ifraelites recovered gether withdrawn his grace from Ifrael: but divers Cities of their own formerly loft, and as the Chaldean Paraphrast hath it, those re- held long in the possession of the Philistims, Samuel judged vvere Matspa or Mitspa, seat-tend their purposes, and to withstand any of ed on a hill in Benjamin near Juda: also Gil- their attempts, the Ifraelites made peace with gal and Bethel, of vyhich vve have spoken the Amorites, or Canaanites, which lay on their backs, and to the North of them, that The Philistims taking knowledge of the they might not be assaulted from divers parts their former flaughters and servitude, be- judgment in divers places by turns, as hath

CHAP. XVI. Of SAUL.

6. I.

Of the deliberation to change the Government into a Kingdom.

affairs on his fons, Joel and Abijah, who Elders of Ifraael observed, and faw that judged the people at Beersheba, a City, the Samuel as a natural man (though a Provery utmost towards the South of Judea. phet) could not so well discern the er-And as the place was inconvenient and far rours of his own, they prayed him to away, so were themselves no less removed consent to their change of government, from the justice and vertue of their Fa- and to make them a King, by whom they

Ut when age now began to over- the more it swalloweth, the more it dritake Samuel and that he was not eth, and defireth, finding tafte in nothing able to undergo the burthen of but gain; to recover which, they fet the fo careful a government, he put off Law at a price, and fold Justice and Judgfrom himself the weight of the ment to the best Chapmen. Which when the ther: For the thirst of coveteousness, might be judged as other Nations were defend them against their enemies. For after may learn to fear the Lord his God, and to keep the ill and lamentable success which follow- all the words of this Law, and these ordinances ed the rule of Eli his fons, when those of Sa- for to do them: that he may prolong his dayer wuel by their first blossomes promised to in his Kingdom, he and his sons. But to take yield fruit no less bitter, they saw no way to away any other mans field, say they, is conput the government from out his race, trary to the Laws of God, in the fame book choice of a King. teration, Sanuel fought counfel from God: grapes more than thou canst eatout of awhich furely he did not for the establishing nother mans vineyard, but fordidden by Now as it appears by the Text, this speech nother. Neither are the words of the Text guments to dehort them: which when he rael, or make it proper unto them, to take at perceived to be over-feeble, he delivered will any thing from their vallals. For it is not unto them from Gods revelation, the incon- faid that it shall be lawful for the King, or the veniences and miscries which should befal King may do this or that: but it is written, them. And yet, all which he fore-shewed that the King will take your sons : and again, was not intolerable, but fuch as hath been This shall be the manner of the King that born, and is fo faill, by free confent of the shall raign over you. God thereby foresubjects towards their Princes. For first he shewing what power, severed from piety (bemakes them know that the King will use cause it is accountable to God onely) will their fons in his own service to make them do in the future. And hereof we find the first his Horse-men, Chariotters, and Foot-men; example in Achab, who took from Naboth Vaffals of all Kings, according to their birth the trust which God had put in him, of goand condition, defired: it being very agree- verning well his people. For God command-who might also lead them to the War , and read therein all the dayes of his life; that he put the government from one has been written. For it is faid, That which is just and whom they so much reverenced, but by the written. For it is faid, That which is just and whom they so much the thorn would be bounded. right fhalt thou follow, that thou mayft live. In a cause of so great consequence and al- Now if it be not permitted to carry away of his own Sons; who being as they were, God: it is much less lawful to take the vine-God would not have approved his election. yard it felf from the owner, and give it to a. u. or motion displeasing him, he used his best ar- (say they) such as do warrant the Kings of Is- Link. which is not onely not grievous, but by the both his Vineyard and his life, contrary to able to subjects of the best quality to com- ed, That his people should be judged with righter pents. mand for the King in his Wars; and to till ous judgment. Wherefore, though the King the ground no less proper and appertaining had offered unto Naboth composition, as a to those that are thereto bred and brought Vineyard of better value, or the worth in up: so are likewise the offices of women- money, which he refused: yet because he was fervants to dress meat, to bake bread, and falfly accused, and unjustly condemned the like. But whereas immediately it is (though by colour of laws) how grievoully threatned, He will take your Fields and your Achab was punished by God, the Scriptures Vineyards, and your best Olive trees, and give tell us. Neither was it a plea sufficient for Athem to his servants; with other oppressi- chab against the all-righteous God, to say ons: this hath given, and gives daily occasi- that it was done without his consent, and by on to fuch as would be ruled by their own the Elders of Ifrael. For God had not then discretion, to affirm that Samuel describeth left his people to the Elders, but to the King, here unto them the power of a King govern- who is called a living Law, even as David teed by his own affections, and not a King that fliffieth of himself: Posifit me in caput gentifeareth God. But others upon further exa- um: For this of S. Augustine is very true; simmmination confirme this Text far otherwise, as lata innocentia, non est innocentia: simulata teaching us what Subjects ought with pati- equitas non est equitas sed duplicatur peccatum ence to bear at their Soveraigns hand. The in quo est iniquitas & simulatio; Feigned innoformer opinion is grounded first upon that place of Deuteronomy, where God fore-shewn nor the other: but the fault or offence is there eth this change of government from Judges doubled in which there is both iniquity and difto Kings; and after he had forbidden many fimulation. Such in effect is their diputation, things unto the Kings, as many wives, coverwho think this place to contain the description. ousness, and the like, he commandeth that tion of a Tyrant. But the arguments on the the Kings which were to raign over Ifrael, contrary fide, as they are many and forcible, should write the Law of Deuteronomie, or so are they well known to all; being excelcause it to be written: and to snew how lently handled in that Princely discourse of greatly the King should honour the Law, The true Law of free Monarchies: which he addeth, It shall be with kim, and he shall Treatise I may not presume to abridge, much less here to insert. Only thus much I will fay that if practice do thew the greatness of authority, even the best Kings of Juda and Thrael were not fo tyed by any laws, but that they did whatfoever they pleafed in the greatest things; and commanded some of their own Princes, and of their own brethren to be flain without any trial of law, on of a King, till fuch time as he was therein being fometime by Prophets reprehended. fometime not. For though David confessed his offence for the death of Vriah, yet so-Jomen killing his elder brother and others, the same was not imputed to him as any

That the state of Ifrael should receive this change of government, it was not onely foretold by Moles in Deuteronomie, but perceived by Jacob in this Scripture; The Scepter Shall not depart from Juda, &c. It was also Ramath to find a Seer or Prophet, hoping promifed by God to Abraham for a blefling: from him to be told what way to take, to should in number equal the stars in heaven, God (who doth many times order the greatbut that Kings thould proceed of him: Which eft things by the simplest passages and pernot need to over-paint that which is gar-own territories, or recover some parts thereof formerly loft. The Canaanites dwelt in the best vallies of the Country. The Ammodefend them: whereunto when samuel had and of Gods graces to be bestowed on him, warrant from God to confent, he fent every man to his own City and abiding.

§. II.

Of the election of Saul.

Fter that Samuel had dismissed the affembly at Mizpal, he forbare the electidirected by God: who foretold him the day before, that he would prefent unto him a man of the Land of Benjamin, whom he commanded Samuel to anoint. So Samuel went unto Ramath Sophim, to make a feast for the entertainment of Saul (whom yet he knew not, but knew the truth of Gods promises) and Saul also having wandred divers dayes to feek his fathers Ailes, at length, by the advice of his fervant, travelled towards For it was not onely affured that his iffues find his beafts. In which journey it pleafed flate seeing it is framed from the pattern of sons to elect saul, who sought an Ass and not his fole rule, who is Lord of the Universal; a kingdom: like as formerly it had pleafed and the excellencie thereof in respect of him to call Moses, while he fed the sheep of all other governments, hath been by many fethro; and after to make choice of David judicious men handled and proved, I shall the youngest of eight sons, and by the Scri- 1 Samits: ptures called a little one, who was then nithed with better colours already, than I keeping of beafts; and changed his sheephook into a Scepter, making him of all other In the time of the Judges every man hath the most victorious King of Juda and Israel. observed what civil war Ifrael had: what So John and James were taken from casting outragious flaughters they committed upon | their nets, to become fishers of men, and hoeach other: in what miserable servitude noured with the titles of Apostles: a dignithey lived for many years: and when it fa- ty that died not in the grave, as all worldly red best with them, they did but defend their | Honours do; but permanent and everlasting in Gods everlafting Kingdom.

When Samuel was entred into Ramath, he prepared a banquet for the King, whom he nites held much of Gilead over Jordan; the expected, and flayed his arrival at the gate. Philistims the Sea-coasts; and the Jebusites Not long after came Saul, whom God shew-Hierufalem it self, till Davids time: all which ed to Samuel, and made him know that it was that King did not onely conquer and esta- the same whom he had foretold him of, that blish, but he mastered and subjected all the he should rule the people of God. Saul findneighbour Nations and Kings, and made ing Samuel in the gate, but knowing him not, them his tributaries and vallals. But whether though a Prophet and Judge of Ifrael, much it were for that the Israelites were moved less knowing the Honour which attended by those reasons, which allure the most of all him, asked Samuel in what part of the City Nations to live under a Monarch, or whe- the seer dwelt; Samuel answered, that himther by this means they fought to be cleared | felf was the man he fought, and prayed saul from the sons of samuel, they became deaf to go before him to the high place, where to all the perswasions and threats which sa- | samuel setting him according to his degree, muelused, insisting upon this point, that they above all that were invited, conferred with would have a King both to judge them and him afterwards of the affairs of the kingdom, and the morning following annointed him King of Ifrael.

After this he told him all that should happen him in the way homeward, that two men who should tell him that his Asses were not by chance, but by Gods ordinance, who found, and that his Fathers cares were gave samuel former knowledge of his elechanged from the fear of losing his beasts, to ction: from which election Saul withdrew doubt the loss of his son: that he should himself in modesty, as both Josephus conthen meet three other men in the plain of Ta- strue it, and as it may be gathered by his bor; then a company of Prophets: and that former answers to Samuel, when he acknowhe should be partaker of Gods Spirit, and ledged himself the least of the least Tribe. prophecy with them: and that thereby his But Samuel inlightened by God, found where condition and disposition should be changed saul was hidden, and brought him among from the vulgar, into that which became a the people, and he was taller than all the King elected and favoured by God.

and most reverenced number, who by divine King, and prayed for him; yet some there revelation foretold things to come, repre- were that envied his glory (as in all estates hended without fear the errors of their Kings there are fuch) who did not acknowledge and wrought miracles of which number were him by offering him prefents, as the manner Moses, Joshua, Samuel, and after them Gad, Na- was, of whom Saul, to avoyd sedition, took than, Abias, Elias, Elifaus, Esay, Jeremy, and the no notice. chryf in rest; for these Prophets, faith S. Chryfostome, Omnia tempora percurrunt, præterita, præsentia. & futura: but they were of those of whom S. Paul speaketh 1 Cor. 14. 14. who inriched with spiritual gifts, expounded the Scriptures and the Law.

yet knew nothing of his election: neither that Nahas King of the Ammonites prepared did 8 aul acquaint his own Uncle therewith, to besiege Jabes Gilead: which nation since when he asked him what had past between the great overthrow given them by Jephia, him and Samuel: for either he thought his never durst attempt any thing upon the Ifestate not yet assured, or else that it might be raelites, till the beginning of Saul his rule. dangerous for him to reveal it, till he were And although the Ammonites did alwaysattend upon the advantage of time, to recover mim in the Tribes were affembled at Mizpeth, the gene- those Territories which first the Amorite, and ornaments ral opinion is, that he was chosen by lot. then Ifrael disposses them of; which they Chimbi thinks by the answer of * Vrim and made the ground of their invasion in Jephta's Thumnim: that is, by the answer of the time, yet they never perswaded themselves Priest, wearing that mistery upon his breast of more advantage then at this present. For within the when he asked the counsel of the Lord. But first, they knew that there were many of the pedoral, the casting of lots was not only much used a Ifraelites that did not willingly submit themtherefore mong the Jews, but by many others, if not felves to this new King: fecondly, they were was du- by all nations. The Land of promise was di- remembred that the Philistims had not long pucuum: they were vided by lot: God commanded lots to be before flain 34000. of their men of Warrand placed in cast on the two Goats, which should be sacri- besides had used great care and policy that the peace ficed, and which turned off:a figure of Christs they should have no Smiths to make them against the suffering, and our deliverance, for whose swords or spears : neither was it long before, heartof garments the Jews also cast lots. Cicero, Plant that of the Bethspenesites, and places adjoyn-Prieft It is trus, Paufanius, and others, have remembred ing, there perished by the hand of God more plain that divers forts of lots, used by the Romans, Gre- than 50000, and therefore in these respects, they were cians, and other Nations: as in the division even occasion it self invited them to inlarge precious of grounds or honours; and in things to be their Dominions upon their borderers jables thousand undertaken: the two first kinds were called Gilead being one of the nearest. Besides it may any thing any thing divisiony; the Third, Divinatory, and unfurther be conjectured, that the Ammonitor the Ani to one of these three all may be reduced, all were imboldened against Jakes Gilead, in refaces. See

Exo. 38.1. which kinds, howsoever they may seem spectful of their weakness: since the Intelligence of their weakness.

should encounter him by Rahels Sepulchre, in like fort fell the Kingdom of Israel on Sant. rest by the shoulders. And Sannel made them But the Prophets here spoken of, men in- know that he was the chosen King of Israel, dued with spiritual gifts, were not of the first whereupon all the multitude saluted him

6. III.

Of the establishing of Saul by his first victory.

At Mizpeth Samuel affembled the people, that he might present Saul to them, who as O some was Saul placed in the Kingdom, but that he received knowledge constitution of the control of the c men and male children, but took from them would have flain all those Ifraelites that murphilifims, was not apt to fuccour those whom worldly accident hath thrown down. they had so deeply wounded and destroyed. After the Army removed, samuel summon- 1 samits. coasts, protesting thus: That whosever came in Micmus; and in the Hill of Bethel. not forth after Saul, and after Samuel; fol should his Oxen be served: threatning the people by their goods, and not by their lives ble an Armie, by reason that the Gileadites had obtained the respite of these seven days to give Nahas the Ammonite an answer:

their young women, and gave them to the mured against his election, had not him-Reniamites and therefore they were not like- felf forbidden and refifted their resolutions. ly to have been increased to any great num-Such is the condition of worldly men, as they bers: and if they had recovered themselves of are violent lovers of the prosperous, and base this great calamity, yet the Ammonite might Valials of the time that flourisheth; and as flatter himself with the opinion, that Israel, despightful and cruel without cause against having for long time been difarmed by the those, whom any misadventure, or other

But contrariwife, when the tidings came ed the people to meet at Gilgal, where Saul to Sanl of their danger, and that the Ammo- was now a third time acknowledged, and, nites would give them no other condition to as some Commenters assirm, anointed King: ransome themselves, but by pulling out their and here Samuel used an exhortation to all 1 sam. 12. right eyes, by which they should be utterly the assembly, consaining precepts, and a rediabled for the War, as elsewhere hath hearfal of his own Justice, during the beginbeen spoken: Saul, both to value himself in ning of his government to that day, after Saul his first years reign, and because perchance had now reigned one year before he was estahe was descended of one of those 400. Maids blished in Gilgal, or Galgala, he strengthned taken from the Gileadites, and given to the himself with a good guard of 3000, chosen Benjamites, gave order to affemble the forces men, of which he affigned 1000 to attend on of Ifrael, hewing a yoak of Oxen into pieces, Jonathan his fon at Gibeah, the City of his naand fending them by messengers over all the tivity: the rest he kept about his own person at the first. Seven days had Saul to assem- Of Sauls difference in his proceedings in the Wars with the Philistims and Amalekites, which caused his final rejection.

who, could they have obtained any rea. Tonathan with his small Army or Regiment fonable condition, were contented to have I that attended him, taking a time of adfevered themselves from Israel, and to be vantage, surprized a Garrison of Philistims: comeVaffals and Tributarics to the Heathen. the same, as some think, which Saul past by, In the mean while Saul affembled the forces when he came from Rama, when he was first which repaired unto him at Bezec, near anointed by Samuel, which they think to Jordan, that he might readily pass the river; have been Cariath-jearim: because a place which done, he might in one day with a where the Philistims had a Garrison. 1 Sam. 1 Sun 1, speedy march arrive at Jabes, under the Hills 10. is called the hill of God, which they understand of cariath-jearim: but Junius under-The army by Saul led, confifting of three stands this Garrison to have been at Gebab in hundred and thirty thousand, he returned Eenjamin near Gibha, where Jonathan abode an answer to those of Jabes, that they should with his thousand followers. Howsoever, by assure themselves of succour by the next this it appeareth that the Philistims held some day at noon. For, as it feemeth, Sanl march-ed away in the latter part of the day, & went of Sanl, within the Territory of Ifrael and on all night; for in the morning watch he now being greatly inraged by this surprize, furprized the army of Nahas the Ammonite. they affembled thirty throusand armed Cha-And to the, end that he might fer on them riots, and fix thousand Horse, wherewith they & sants. on all sides, he divided his forces into three invaded Judea, and incamped at Machinus parts, putting them to the sword untill the or Michmis, a City of Benjamin, in the direct heat of the day, and the weariness of sauls way from Samaria to Hiernfalem, and in the troop inforced them to give over the pur- middeft of the Land between the Sea and fuit. Now the Ammonites were become the Jordan. With this sudden invasion the Ifmore careless and secure, in that those of raelites were strucken in so great a fear, as Jabes promised the next morning to render some of them hid themselves in the caves of themselves and their City to their mercy. the Mountains, others sled over Jordan After this happy fuccels, the people were fo into Gad and Gilead: Saul himself with some far in love with their new King, that they 2000 men of ordinary, and many other people, staid at Galgala in Benjamin, not far some kind of arms, it is manifest, or essether from the passage of Joshua when he led Israel durst not have attempted upon the Phi. over Jordan. Here Saul by Samuels appoint- listims as they did. And it is not said in the ment was to attend the comming of Samuel Text that there was not any fword in all feven days:but when the last day was in part Ifrael, but onely that there was not any found fpent, and that Saul percieved his forces to amongst those 600. fouldiers which staydiminish greatly, he presumed (as some ex- ed with Saul after Samuels departure: and pound the place, 18am. 13.9.) to exercise it seemeth that when Samuel had sharply rethe office which appertained not unto him, and to offer a burnt offering, and a peace of look him, having but 600. remaining of his fering unto God, contrary to the Ecclefiaftical 3000. ordinary fouldiers, and of all the rest Laws of the Hebrews, and Gods Command-that repaired unto him, of which many were ments: others expound the word obtulit, in this fled from him before Samuel arrived. place, by obtulit per Sacerdotem, and so make the fin of Saul not to have been any intrusion his own City of Gibeah, as a place of more into the Priests office, but first a disobedience strength, and better assured unto him, than to Gods Commandment, in not staying ac- Gilgal was Neither is it obscure how it should cording to the appointment, 1 Sam. 10. 8. fe- come to pass that the Philistims should thus condly, a deffidence or miltrust in Gods help, and too great relying upon the strength of sover in the time of samuel much had been the people, whose departing from him he done against them. For the victories of Sacould not bear patiently: and lastly, a Con- muel were not got by sword or spear, but by tempt of the holy Prophet Samuel, and of the thunder from Heaven; and when these crasshelp which the prayers of fo godly a man men were once rooted out of the Cities of might procure him. But what foever was his Israel, no marvel if they could not in a 15am. 13, fin, not with standing his excuses, he was by Sa- short peace under Samuel be replanted amuel reprehended most sharply, in terms un- gain. For this tyranny of the Philistims is fitting his estate, had not extraordinary war- to be understood, rather of the precedent rant been given to Samuel fo to do, from times, than under Samuel: and yet under God himself; at which time also samuel fear- him is to be thought that by their crafts they ed not to let him know, that the Kingdom proceeded in the policy, not suffering their should be conferred to another (a man after Artificers to teach the Ifraelites, and so even Gods own heart) both from saul and his to the times of saul kept them from having posterity.

368

weapon to defend themselves withall, save vid himself slew the Gyant Goliah. onely in the hand of Saul and Jonathan his While the State of If ael flood in the chard any store of armour. The same policy did After this, Samuel and Saul returned to Gi- Nebuchodonofor wie after his Conquest in Jubeah, where Saul, when he had taken view dea: Dionifius in Sicily, & many other Princes of his army, found it to confift of 600. men: else-where in all ages. But these lost weapons for the most were fled from him and scat- in part the Ifraelites might repair in Gilead, tered, yea and among those that staid, there for over fordan the Philistims had not invadwas not any that had either fword or spear, ed. The rest of their desences were such as but Saul and his son Jonathan onely. For the antiquity used, and their present necessity Philistims had not left them any smith ministred unto them, to wit, clubs, bows, and in all Israel, that made weapons; besides, slings. For the Benjamites exceeded in calling they that came to Saul, came hastily, and left stones in slings: and that these were the nafuch weapons and armour as they had be- tural weapons, and the first of all nations, it is hind them in their garrisons: for if they had manifest; and so in the first of chronicles the had none at all, it might be much doubted 12. Chapter, it is written of those that came how saul should be able the year before, or to succour David against saul, while he lurk, in some part of this very year, to succour Ja- ed at siklag, That they were weaponed with bes Gilead with 300. and thirty thousand bowes, and could use the right and the left hand men, if there had not now been any iron with stones, and with a sling it was that Da-

fon. But howfoever, all the rest of the peoterms, the Philistims having parted their ple were formerly disarmed by the Piviliftims, army into three troops, that they might spoil and all those crafts-men carried out of and destroy many parts at once, Jonathan, the land that made weapons: there being strengthened by God, and followed with left unto the Israelites onely files to sharpen his Esquire only, scaled a mountain, whereon & amend such stuff as served for the Plough, a company of Philistims were lodged: the sat and for nought else : yet that they had rest of their army (as may be gathered by in the fuccess) being encamped in the plain ad- the living God. Therefore did Samuel now In which confusion, fear, and jealousie, they rant how severely it pleased God to enjoyn flaughtered one another in flead of enemies: the Ifraelites to revenge themselves upon whereupon those Hebrews which became of that Nation, he was in all unexcusable. For their party, because they feared to be spoi- God had commanded that the Ifraelites be led by them, took the advantage of their should put out the remembrance of Amalec from bers. And lastly, saul himself taking know- decessors of this sign gusted against the lifrae-ledge of the rout and disorder, together lites, especially on those which were overwith those Ifraelites that shrouded them- wearied, faint, sick, and aged people, was now tion) a most happy and glorious victory over them. Here was that prophesie in Deuterono borrowed from the innocent: himself having two of them ten thousand.

patfage: for which Saul his father would have day of his death. put him to death, had not the people delivered him from his cruelty.

The late miraculous victory of Saul and Philistims remembrance their former overthrow, likewise miraculous in the daies of joyning. And though he were discovered a second time make him know that God before he came to the hill top, and in a kind would cast him from his royal estate, to which of derifion, called up by his enemies: yet he he was raifed when he was of base condition, so behaved himself, as with the aflistance of and, as the Text hath it, little in his own eyes. God he flew 20. of the first Philistims that And though the offence was great in Saul he encountered. Whereupon the next com- for not obeying the voice of God by Samuel, panies taking the alarm, and being ignorant had there been no former precept to that of the cause, fled away amazed altogether, effect: yet seeing saul could not be ignodestruction, and slew of them in great num- under heaven. For the cruelty which the preselves in Mount Ephraim, set upon them, and to be revenged on him, and his Nation, above obtained (contrary to all hope and expecta- 400. years afterward; and now he was to my fulfilled by Jonathan, That one of those also finned in the same kind, as these words which feared God, should kill a thousand, and of Samuel witness: As thy sword hath made other women childless, so shall thy mother be This done, the small Army of Ifrael made childless among other women; at which time 1 Sam 15. retreat from the pursuit. And although samuel himself (after he had been by many 33. saul had bound the people by an oath not to bootless intreaties perswaded to stay a while take food till the evening, yet his fon Jona- with Saul) did cut Agag in pieces before the than, being infeebled with extream labour Lord in Gilgal, and foon after he departed to and emptiness, tasted a drop of honey in his Ramath, and came no more to see Saul until the

Jonathan, feems to have reduced unto the of the occurrents between the rejection of Saul and his death.

Samuel; so that for some space of time they held themselves quiet. In the mean while God commanded him to choose a King Saul being now greatly encouraged, under- for Ifrael, among the fons of Ishai: which Satook by turns all his bordering enemies; muel (doubting the violent hand of Saul) namely, the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, feared in a fort to perform, till it pleased and the Arabians of Zobah, against all which God to direct him, how he might avoid both he prevailed. He then affembled all the for- the suspition, and the danger. And if samuel ces he could make to wit 210000 men, and knew that it was no way derogating from receiving the commandement of God by sa- the providence of God, that by his cautious muel, he invaded Amalec, wasting and de- care and wisdom he sought to avoid the instroying all that part of Arabia Petrea, and conveniences or dangers of this life: then do the Defart belonging to the Amalekites, from these men mistake the nature of his divine Havilah towards Tigris unto Shur, which ordinance, who neglecting the reason that bordereth Egypt; in which war he took A- God hath given them, do no otherwise avoid gag their King prisoner. But whereas he was the perils and dangers thereof, than as men instructed by Samuel to follow this Nation stupisfied in the opinion of fate or destiny, without compassion, because they first of all neglecting either to beg counsel at Gods attempted Israel, when they left Agypt in hands by prayer, or to exercise that wildom Moses time: he notwithstanding did not on- or forelight, wherewith God hath enriched ly spare the life of Agag, but reserved the the mind of man for his preservation. Neibest of the beasts, and spoil of the Country, ther did the all-powerful God (who made with pretence to offer them in facrifice to and could destroy the world in an instant)

disdain

fury of Saul, by the accustomed cautious undertook to desie the whole Hoste of Israel.

The fecond Book of the first Part rected, made choice of David, the youngest, him hand to hand; offering condition, that having refused Eliab, the first born: who the party vanquished in Champion, should though he were a man of a comely person & hold it self as overcome in gross, and become great strength; yet unto such outward ap- vassal unto the other. This gave occasion to pearance, the Lord had no respect. For as it young David, whom Samuel by Gods ap-1 Sam. 10. is written, God feeth not as wan feeth, &c. but pointment had annointed, to make a famous the Lord beholdeth the heart. He also refu- entrance into publique notice of the people. fing the other fix brethren, made choice of For no man durst expose himself to encounone whom his father had altogether negle- ter the great strength of Goliah, until David Cted, and left in the field to attend his flock; (fent by his father of an errand to the Camp) for of him the Lord faid to Samuel, Arife and accepted the combat, and obtained the vianoint him, for this is he: which done, Samuel ctory, without other arms, offensive or defendeparted and went to Ramath. Neither was five, than a fling, wherewith he overthrew it long after this that Saul began to feek the that haughty Giant, and after with hisown life of David: in which bloody mind he con- Sword strook off his head. Hereupon the tinued till he died, overcome in battel by Philistims, who should have yielded themthe Philistims.

it feems) the increase of Saul his power pounded, fied without stay; and were pursuthrough many victories by him obtained, ed and flaughtered even to their own gates. whilst they had fitten still and forborn to By this victory the Philistims were not so give impediment to his prosperous courses, broken, that either any of their Towns were thought it good to make new trial of their lost, or their people discouraged from infestfortune, as justly fearing that the wrongs, ing the Territories of Ifrael. But David, by which they had done to Israel, might be re- whom God had wrought this victory, fell paied with advantage, if ever opportunity into the grievous indignation of his Master should serve their often injured neighbours saul, through the honour purchased by his against them, as lately it had done against well-deserving. For after such time as the spi-Moab, Ammon, and the rest of their ancient rit of God departed from Saul, and came uphad reason to think themselves equal, if not Priest Abimelech fed David in his necessity fuperiour to Ifrael. The fuccess of their for- with hallowed bread, and armed him with a mer wars had, for the most part, been agree- fword of his own conquest, taken from Goliable to their own wishes: as for late disasters, abs Saul not only by his wicked Edomite Dog they might, according to humane wisdom, murthered this Abimelech and 85. Priests of impute them to fecond causes; as to a tempest | Nob, but also he destroyed the City, and whereby their Army, possessed with a need- woman, both child and suckling, both 0x and less fear, had fallen to rout. Having therefore Ass, and Sheep. And he that had compasmustered their forces, and taken the field, fion on Agag the Amalekite, who was an eencamping so neer to the Army, which King nemy to God and his people, and also spa-Saul drew forth against them, that they could red and preserved the best of his Cattel, heaven were to be feared. Goliah of Gath, a nying David his daughter, whom he had disdain here to instruct samuel, to avoid the strong Giant, fearing neither God nor Man. provoking them with despightful words, to Of the fons of Ilhai, Samuel, by God di- appoint a Champion that might fight with felves as subjects to the Conquerour, accor-The Philistims having well considered (as ding to the covenant on their own side proenemies. Now for the quality of their Souldi- on David, he then became a cruel Tyrant, I Sanil ers, and all warlike provisions, the Philistims faithless, and irreligious. Because the High 13happing by chance, and to a militaken alarm, finote with the edge of the fivord both man and is. not easily depart without the trial of a bat- contrary to the Commandement and Orditel, each part kept their ground of advan-nance of God, both by Moses and Samuel, tage for a while, not joyning in gross, but had not now any mercy in store for the maintaining some skirmishes, as refusing both innocent, for the Lords servants, the Priests of them to pass the Valley that lay between of Israel. Yea, he would have slain his own 13. their Camps. Just causes of fear they had on son Jonathan, for pitying and pleading Daboth fides; especially the Philistims, whose wids innocency; as also once before for talate attempts had been confounded by the sting the honey, when his fainting for hunger angry hand of God. Upon this occasion per- made him forget his fathers unreasonable haps it was, that they fought to decide the commination. The companions of cruelty are matter by fingle combat, as willing to try in breach of faith towards men, and implety one mans person, whether any stroak from towards God. The former he shewed in depromised columns to Cedrenus Theophilus, and Josephus. But yet it under their obedience, calling themselves (s. Theoph. seemeth to me, that after the death of Samuel, generally by one name, and yet every seve-Nabal, and Abigail, after which the death of of her first planters. Saul quickly enfued.

had beaten the Ammonites with their neigh- for his knowledge in Aftronomy & Philosophy. and pride of the Philistims.

6. VI.

Of fuch as lived with Samuel and Saul; of Hellen, and Hercules, and of their issues: upon occasion of the Dores, with the Heraclida, entring Peloponnesus about this time.

promifed him; and again in taking her away | are who place before him Latinus Silvius, as from him to whom he had given her: also brother to Posthumus, calling him the fifth in that when as David had twice spared his from Aneas, and fourth King of Alba, wherelife in the Territory of Ziph, and Saul twice of I will not frand to dispute. In the eleventh fworn to do him no hurt, and confessed his of Samuel, Dercilas sate in the Throne of Assert errours, yet he fought still to destroy him, by ria, being the one and thirtieth King; he ruall the means he could. His impiety towards led that Empire forty years. In this age of $400 God he shewed, in that he sought counsel of muel the Dores obtained Peloponnesus, and at the Witch of Endor, which was the last pre- once with the Heraclida, who then led and parative for his destruction. For whereas commanded the Nation, possess a great part when he fought counsel from God, he had thereof,328. years before the first olympiad, been alwaies victorious: from the Oracle of according to Diodorus and Eratofthenes. For the Devil this success followed, that both all Greece was anciently possessed by three himself, and his three sons, with his nearest Tribes or Kindreds, viz. the Ionians. Dorians. and faithful fervants, were all flaughtered by and Eolians: at length it was called Hellas, the Philifims: his body with the bodies of and the people Hellenes, of Hellen the fon of his fons (as a spectacle of shame and disho- Deucation , Lord of the Country of Pthiotis nour) were hung over the vvalls of Bethfan; in Theffaly. But before the time of this Hellen, and there had remained till they had found yea, and long after, Greece had no name comburial in the bowels of ravenous birds, had monto all the Inhabitants, neither were the not the grateful Gileadites of Jabes stoln people called Hellenes, till such time as parttheir carcasses thence, and interred them. This ly by trading in all parts of the Land, partly vvasthe end of Sanl, after he had governed by the Plantation of many Colonies, and fun-Ifrael, together with Samuel, 40, years, and dry great victories obtained, the iffues of by himself after Samuel 20. years, according Hellen had reduced much of the Country Saul did not rule very long: For in the be- ral Nation after some one of the posterity of ginning of the 25. chapter, it is vvritten, that Hellen, who had raigned over it. And be-Samuel died; and in the rest of the same cause this is the farthest antiquity of Greece, chapter, the passages are written of David, it will not be amis to recount the Pedegree

Japetus (as the Poets fable) was the fon of An exceeding valiant man he was, and Heaven and Earth, so accounted, either begave a fair entrance to all those victories cause the names of his Parents had in the which David afterward obtained: for he Greek tongue fuch fignification: or perhaps bouring Nations; crusht the Syrians, and Japetus begat Prometheus, and Ephimetheus: their adherents; broken the strength of the of whom all men have read that have read Amalekites; and greatly vvafted the power Poets. Prometheus begat Deucalion; and Epimetheus, Pyrrha; Deucalion and his wife Pyrrha reigned in Thejjaly, which was then called Pyrrha (as Cretenfis Rhianus affirmeth) of Pyrrha the Queen. In Deucalions time was that great floud, of which we have spoken elsewhere. Dencalion begat Hellen: whose sons were Xuthus, Dorus, and Æolus: of Dorus and Holus the Dores and Holians had name. The Holes inhabited Beotia. The Dores ha-N the fecond year of Samuel, according to ving first inhabited fundry parts of Thessals, Euschins, was David born: after Codoman, did afterward seat themselves about Parnaslater, and in the ninth year: after Bunting, in Jus, and finally became Lords of the Counthe tenth. For David, faith he, was thirty tries about Lacedamon: Xuthus the eldeft fon years old when he began to reign: whence of Hellen, being banished by his brethren, it followeth, that he was born in the tenth for having diverted from them to his own of the forty years, which are given to Samuel use some part of their Fathers goods, came and Saul. About the eleventh year of Samuel, to Athens: where marrying the Daughter of Eneus Silvius the fon of Posthumus began King Ericiheus, he begat on her two sons, his reign over the Latines in Alba, who go- Achaus and Ion. Of these two, Achaus, for a verned that State one and thirty years. There flaughter by him committed, fled into Peloponnesus: and seating himself in Laconia, gave name to that region: from whence (as of his Grand-father in Thessalie.

Eumolous the Thracian invaded Attica, did Erymanthus in Arcadia: the fifth was the obtain a great Victory, and thereby fuch cleaning of Angias his Oxe-stall in one day. love and honour of the people, that they which he performed by turning the River committed the ordering of their State into Alphews into it: the fixt was the chafing away his hands. He divided the Citizens into of the Birds from the Lake Stymphalis the Tribes, appointing every one to some occu- seventh was the fetching a Bull from crete: pation, or good course of life. When the the eighth was the taking of the Mares which people multiplied, he planted Colonies in Sy- Diomedes King of Thrace fed with humane cionia, then called Agialos or Agialia: In flesh: the ninth was to fetch a Girdle of the which Country Solimus then reigning, Queen of the Amazons: the three last were. thought it fafer to give his Daughter Helice to fetch Gerion's Beeves from Gades; the in marriage to Ion, and make him his Heir, golden Apples of the Heferidas; and Certhan to contend with him. So Ion married berns from Hell. The Mythological interpre-Helice, and built a Town called by his Wives tation of these I purposely omit, as bothoname in Ægialia, where he and his posterity ver-long to be here set down, and no less reigned long, and (though not obliterating | perplexed than the labours themselves. For the old name) gave to that Land denomina- fome by Hercules understand Fortitude, tion. But in after times the Dores affifting Prudence, and Constancy, interpreting the the Nephews of Hercules , invaded Pelopon- Monsters, Vices. Others make Hercules the nesus, and overcomming the Acheans, pos- sun, and his travels to be the twelve signes seffed Laconia, and all those parts which the of the Zodiac. There are others who apply Achei, had formerly occupied. Hereupon his Works historically to their own conthe Achei driven to feek a new feat, came ceits; as well affured, that the exposition unto the Iones, desiring to inhabit Agialia, cannot have more unlikelihood, than the with them, and alleged in vain, that Ion and Acheus had been brethren. When this re- and other Towns, being affifted by such as quest could not be obtained, they sought by either admired his vertues, or were beholdformed; but they loft their King Tifamenes, the fon of Orestes, in that War.

Thus were the Iones driven out of Peloponnesus, and compelled to remove into Atinto Asia, and peopled the Western coast thereof; on which they built twelve Cities, least without any universal or memorable transmigration. This expedition of the Iones have written of that Age, and is commonly placed 140. years after the War of Troy, and 60. years after the descent of the Heraclida into Peloponnesus. These Heraclida were they of whom the Kings of Sparta issued; which race held that Kingdom about 700, years. Of their Father Hercules many strange things are delivered unto us by the Poets of which fome are like to have been true, others percd thefe 12. great labours.

First he slew the Nemean Lyon: secondly, he flew the ferpent Hydra, which had nine fome write) he afterwards departed; and heads, whereof one being cut off, two grew levying an Army, recovered the Kingdom in the place: the third was the overtaking a very fwift Hart: the fourth was the taking Ion being General for the Athenians when of a wild Bore alive, which hanted mount fables. That he took Elis, Pylus, O Echalia, force to expel the Ionians, which they per- | ing unto him; Also that he slew many Theeves and Tyrants, I take to be truely written, without addition of Poetical vanitv. His travels through most part of the World, are, or may feem, borrowed from tica, from whence after a while they failed | Hercules Libycus. But fure it is that many Cities of Greece were greatly bound to him: for that he (bending all his endeavours to inhabited by them, even to this day, at the the common good J delivered the Land from much oppression. But after his death, no City of Greece (Athens excepted) requiinto Asia hath been mentioned of all which ted the vertue and deserts of Hercules, with constant protection of his Children, persecuted by the King Eurystheus. This Eurystheus was Son of Sthenelus, and grand-child of Perseus; he reigned in Mycena, the mightiest City then in Greece. He it was that imposed those hard tasks upon Hercules, who was bound to obey him (as Poets report) for expiation of that Murther, which in his madness he had committed upon his haps must be allegorically understood. But own children; but as others say, because he the most approved Writers think that there was his Subject and Servant: wherefore were many called Hercules , all whose ex- there are who commend Eurystheus for emploits were by the Greeks ascribed to the ploying the strength of Hercules to so good fon of Alemena, who is said to have perform- a purpose. But it is so generally agreed by the best Writers, that Hercules was also of which appeared more and more in the dangerous services, wherein he was imployed. to that he grew great in reputation and power through all Greece; and had by many Wives and Concubines above threefcore the iffue of Pelops had reigned after the death of Eurystheus four generations.

of Homer and Hesiod, and many changes in the World, that happened about this Age.

Poet Homer lived, as many of the best name plantations, came to visit him, near 240. Chronologers affirm. He was by race of the years after Troy taken. Herodotus finds Ho-Her. in vi-Meones, descended (as Functius imagineth) mer flourishing 622; years before Xerxes en: 416.

the flock of Perseus, and holden in great of Berosus his Anamaon, who gave name to Fund jealousie by Eurystheus because of his vertue, that people. But this Functions imagineth Chro fel. Homer the Poet to have been long after these times, rashly framing his Era according to (a) Archilochus in the tract, or rather frag- (4) This ment de temporibus; and makes seven more Author of this name to have flourished in divers Ci- with Bereny Wives and Concluding above the distribution of the Children Euryfibeus would ties in Greece. Whence, perhaps, fprang farand of Children Euryfibeus would ties in Greece. Whence, perhaps, fprang farand of Children Euryfibeus the distribution of Children Euryfibeus would ties in Greece. Whence, perhaps, fprang farand of Children Euryfibeus would ties in Greece. fain have got into his power, when Hercules the diversity of opinions, both of the time, at Biffs, was dead: but they fled unto Cerx King of and of the native City of Homer. According and after Thracinia, and from him (for he durst not to this Archilochus, Functius sinds Homer a-with Fryer Amelius withstand Eurystheus) to Athens. The Athe- bout the time of Manaffe King of Juda, and his Comnians not only gave them entertainment, Numa of Rome. He was called Melefgenes ment at but lent them aid, wherewith they encounfrom the place of his birth, and at length is ment. but lent them and, whetevard they encount tred Euryfteus. Idolaus the brothers fon of Homer, because blind men follow a guide, féin.

Hercules, who had assisted him in many of which signification among others, is in the water, but the fignification among others, is in the water, but the fignification among others is in the water. his travels, was Captain of the Heraclidae. It Verb oussein: for this Homer in his later time ceth Ho is said of him, that being dead he obtained was blind. * Clemens Alexandrinus recites mer in the leave of Pluto to live again till he might re- many different opinions touching the quefti- ration in venge the injuries done by Eurystheus: whom on of the time when Homer lived. So also the time when he had flain in battel, he died again. (b) Aulus Gellius, and Tatianus Affyrius in his Servine-It feems to me, that whereas he had led Co- Oration ad gentes. Paterculus reckons that tum, t. 5. lonies into Sicily, and abode there a long Homer flourished 950. years before the Con- (b) Not. time forgotten: he came again into Greece Julfhip of Marcus Vinutius: which Mercator c. 11, item. to affift his Coufins, and afterwards returned | cafteth up in the Worlds year 3046. and af-1. 17.8.21. back. When the Peloponnessans understood ter Troy taken, about 260. years: and about that Euryscheus was slain, they took Atreus 250. years before the building of Rome; the Son of Pelops to their King: for he was making him to have slourished about the rich, mighty, and favoured of the People. time of Jehosaphat King of Juda. But Clemens Against him the Heraclida marched under Alexandrinus & Tatianus above named, men-Hyllus, the fon of Hercules. But to avoid tion Authors that make him much antienter. effusion of bloud, it was agreed, that Hyllus The difference of which Authors in this should fight with Echenics King of the Tegea- point is not unworthy the Readers considete, a people of Arcadia, who affifted Atreus; | ration, that by this one instance he may with condition, that if Hyllus were Victor, ghesse of the disticulty, and so pardon the he should peaceably enjoy what he chal- errours in the computations of ancient time: lenged as hisright: otherwise the Heracli- seeing in such diversity of opinions a man de should not enter Peloponnesus in an hun- may hardly find out what to follow. For dred years. In that combat Hyllns was flain, Crates the Grammarian (as Clemens Alexanand the Heraclide compelled to forbear drinus reports) gave being to Homer about their Country, till the third generation: at 80. years after Troy taken, near the time that which time they returned under Aristode- the Heraclidae returned into Peloponnesus : mus (as the best authority doth shew , and * Eratostenes after Troy 100. years. Theo- * As both though some have said, that they came under the conduct of his Children) and said its conduct of his Children) and said into Phryoia for the War of Troy. End of the said that they came under the conduct of his Children) and said said that they came under the conduct of his Children) and said said that they came under the conduct of his Children) and said said that they came under the conduct of his Children and said said that they came under the conduct of his Children and said said that they came under the conduct of his Children and said said that they came under the conduct of his Children and said said that they came under the conduct of his Children and said said that they came under the conduct of his Children and said said that they came under the conduct of his Children and said said that they came under the conduct of his Children and said said that they came under the conduct of his Children and said said that they came under the conduct of his Children and said said that they came under the conduct of his Children and said said that they came under the conduct of his Children and said said that they came under the conduct of his Children and said said that they came under the conduct of his Children and said said that they came under the conduct of his Children and said said that they came under the conduct of the children and said that they came under the children and said they came under the chi brought with them the Dores whom they phorion makes him contemporary with Gp-porthis oplanted in that Country, as is before shew | ges, who began to reign in the 18. Olympiad pinion Reed, having expelled the Achai, over whom (which was 45, years after Rome was built) Phil. 42. and sofibius faith, that he was 90. years be- Rof in dife. fore the first Olympiad : which he feeks to remporam. prove by the times of Charillus and his fon com, in Nicander. Philechorus placeth him 180. af- Archilog ter Troy: Aristarchus 140. in the time of the feating of the Colonies in Ionia. Apollodorus affirms that he lived while Agellaus governed Lacedamon; and that Lycurgus in his Bout this time that excellent learned | young years, about 100, years after the 10-aldus accounteth at 168. years after the Tro- rifion whereof Lucian feigning himself to jan War. Enfebius feems to make him to have been in Hell, and to have spoken with fome place him in the time of Samuel, and came in his head fo to do. others in the end of David, and others in o- It feemeth that Senyes, or, after Macrobia dry opinions touching the time when Homer ceded Vaphres, Father in law to Solomon, lived, he reckoneth many other Greek Wri- About the end of Sauls government or

sic. 1. 3. c. elder, it is also much disputed. Aulus Gelli- years before David's time) there were many imag. I. i. certain which of these learned Fablers was the Latines: in the South part of Greece, chron cass first born: but he finds that they lived toge- those of Lacedamon, Corinth, and the Achei. 1.1. annal. ther some certain years, wherein he con- In Arabia, Syria, Soba, and Damascus, the Trevit, and left by Hefiod in Helicon.

gan his Iliads with the word Menin, as per- and paid him tribute.

terprise against the Grecians: which Bero-haps containing some great mystery. In dehave been about the time of Joas King of Ju- Homer, there asked him the cause why he beda, 124. years before Rome built: though gan his book with that word: who answeelsewhere in his Chronology he notes that red, That he began in that fort, because in ther Ages. In his Evangelical Preparation, us, Senemires ruled Egypt at this time: for where out of Tatianus Alyrius he citeth fun- Tanephersobris was his Successiour, who preters more ancient than Homer; as Linus, in the beginning of Davids time, according English Philammon, Epimenides, Phemius, Ariftaus, to Caffiodorus, the Amazones with the Cym chine. Orpheus, Museus, Thamyras, Amphion, and merians invaded Asia, Latinus Sylvius then ruling in Italy. And besides the overthrow Now whether Homer or Hefiodus were the of that Famous State of Troy (which fell 102. us reports that Philochorus and Xenophanes other changes in the middle part of the affirm, that Homer preceded Hefiod: and on World, not only by reason of those Northern the contrary, that Inc. Accius the Poet, and Nations: but there fprung up somewhat Ephorus the Historian, make Hefiod of an el- nearly together, fix Kingdoms into greatder time than Homer. Varro leaves it un ness, not before erected. In Italy that of firms himself by an Epigram, written upon a Adads made themselves Princes, of which there were ten Kings, which began and end; Cornelius Nepos reports that they both ed with the Kings of Ifrael in effect: and lived 160. years before Rome built: while | somewhat before these, the State of the 15-(a) This the Silvii reigned in Alba, about (a) 140. raelites having now altered the Form of Goyears after the fall of Troy. (b) Euthymenes vernment, began to flourish under Kings, of finds them both 200. years after Troy taken, which David, in a few years, became master and reads in the time of Acastus the son of Pelias, King of all those neighbouring Nations, who by 240.for it. of Thessay. For my selt, I am not much trou-enterchange of times had subjected the Juin clr. a bled when this Poet fived; neither would deans, corrupted their Religion, and held pud. Clem. I offend the Reader with these opinions, but them under in a most abject and grievous Alex. Strom. 5. only to shew the uncertainty, and disagree- slavery; to wit, the Edumeans, Moabites, ment of Historians, aswel in this particular, Ammonites, Midianites, Ituraans, and the as in all other questions and dispute of time. rest of the Arabians, with the Philistims, Je-For , the curiofity of this mans age is no less busites, Geshurites, Macathites; all which acridiculous, than the inquifition why he be-knowledged David for their Soveraign Lord,

CHAP. XVII. Of DAVID.

9. I.

of Davids estate in the time of Saul.

HE hazzards which David ran | Goliah in the view of both Armies, whereby into while he was yet only de- he became known to saul, and so highly affigned King, and lived as a fected of Jonathan the son of Saul, that he private man, expecting the loved him as his own foul: Infomuch as when Empire, were very many. The saul fought to perswade his son that David first personal act of Fame, was his killing of would assuredly be the ruine of his house, and estate, and offered him violence when Philistim, Prince of Geth: where to obscure he pleaded his cause; fonathan could ne-himself, he was forc'd to counterseit both wearied from the care of David's life, and fured among the Philiftims, he covered himwell doing. It was not long after this fignal felf in the Cave of Adullam: and after conact of David, but that Saul became exceed- veying such of his Kinsfolks as were not fit to ing jealous of him, though he were become follow him, into Moab, he hid himself in the Armour-bearer. Saul being vexed with an di, where he cut off the lap of Sauls garment. evil spirit, was advised to procure some cun- and spared his life: as he did a second time him a place of command among the men of profecute him. War. But the jealous Tyrant soon waxed Of Achis David obtained * Siglag in Sime-* It seems times left him, and yielded unto that Musick, upon his followers mutined, but God gave which God had ordained to be a mean of him comfort, and affurance to recover all amore good to the Musician than to the King. gain: which he did.

ver be perswaded, never forc'd, nor ever simplicity and distraction. But being ill af- 1 Sem. 22. as his houshold fervant, and his Esquire, or defarts of Ziph, Maon, and the Hils of Engad- 1 Sam, 24. ning Musician to play before him upon the in the defart of Zipb, after his passage with Harp; whereby it was thought that he Nabal and Abigail. After which he repaired 1 Saus, 29 might find ease; which came to pass ac- to Achis of Geth the second time, and was cordingly. He entertained David for this kindly entertained, in regard of the hatred Jamfen, in purpose, and began to favour him, giving with which his Master Saul was known to real weary of his good affection, and fought to on, pretending to invade Judea: but he eth that kill David, being thereunto moved only bent his forces another way, and strook the verob. through envy of his Vertue. This passion, Amalekites, with other enemies of Israel, let-tained first brake forth in the midst of his raving | ting none live to complain upon him. Achie Siglag till fit, at which time he threw a spear at David supposing that David had drawn bloud of for it is that was then playing on his Harp to do his own Nation, thought himself assured of said in the him : and therefore preparing to invade c. 27. v.6. conferences remembreth one Asclepius a Israel, summoneth David to assist him, who therefore Physician, who practifed the curing of the dissembling his intent, seemeth very willing siglar per-Frenzy, by the like Musick: and tempered thereto. But the rest of the Philistim Prin-unto the thereby those diseases which grew from past- ces knowing his valour, and doubting his King of fion. That Pythagoras did also the like by disposition, liked not his company, and this day, fuch a kind of harmony, Seneca, in his third therefore he withdrew himself to Siglag. book of Anger witnesseth. But the madness At his return he found the Town burnt, his of Saul came from the cause of causes: and two Wives, with the Wives and Children of was thereby incurable, howfoever it some- his people, taken by the Amalekites: Here-

sail having failed in such open attempts, This Army of the Philistims commanded gave unto David the command over 1000. by Achis, encountred Saul at Gilbos, in which Souldiers to confront the Philistims withall. he and his three sons were slain. The newes, For he durst not trust him as before, about with saul's Crown and Bracelets, were his person, fearing his revenge. Now the brought to David at Siglag, in his return better to cover his hatred towards him, he from being victorious over Amaleck, by a 25 dm. 1. promifed him his Daughter Merab to Wife: man of the same Nation, who avowed but having married her to Adriel, he gave (though fallly) that himself at Saul's request to David his younger Daughter Michol, but had flain him. David, because he had accuwith a condition, to present him with an sed himself, made no scruple to cause him to hundred foreskins of the Philistims: hoping be flain at the instant: and the sooner, berather (in respect of the valour of that Natis cause the probabilities gave strong evidence on) that the Philistims would take David's withal. Otherwise it followeth not that evehead, than he their foreskins. This hope ry man ought to be believed of himself to his failing, when as now David's Victories be- own prejudice. For it is held in the law; Con- In F. de gat new fears and jealousies in Saul, he fessio reorum non habenda est pro explorato quast. 1. 1. practised with Jonathan, and afterwards crimine, nist approbatio alia instruit religiowith his own hands attempted his life, but nem cognoscentis. The prisoners confession his purposes were still frustrated. After all must not be taken for an evidence of the crime, this he fought to murther him in his own unless some other proof inform the conscience house, but Michol his Wife delivered him. of the Judge. For a man may confess those So David sought Samuel at Ramah, and being things of himself, that the Judge by exa-15400, 19 pursued by Saul, fled thence unto Nob in mination may know to be impossible. But Benjamin, to Abimeleck, then to Achis the because it is otherwise determined in the title de custodia reorum l. si confessus, & in membred by Herodotus, 300. being chosen of cap.de panis l. qui sententiam, therefore doth each Nation, of which number three persons the Gloss reconcile these two places in this were only lest unstain. The like tryal by a far fort: Si quis in judicio sponte de seipso consi- less number was performed by the Horatii teatur, & postea maneat in consessione, id est and Curiatii, for the Romans and Latines. The fatis. If any man in judgement do confess of same challenge Goliah the Philistim made. himself, of his own accord, and after doth per- whom David slew:a custom very antient. Edfevere in his confession, it is enough. That ward the third offered the like tryal in his David greatly bewailed Saul, it is not im- own person to the French King; and Francis probable; for death cutteth afunder all com- the French King to Charles the Emperour. petition: and the lamentable end that befel There were twelve chosen of each part in this him being a King, with whom in effect the war of David with the house of Saul, to wit, strength of Ifrael also fell, could not but stir so many of Benjamin, and as many of Juda: up forrow, and move compassion in the heart whose force and valour was so equal, as there of David.

ten, was fo great, that some Towns of the If- my of Juda prest Abner in gross, and brake raelites, even beyond the river of fordan, him. Three hundred and fixty men of Abners were abandoned by the Inhabitants, and left companions were flain, and but twenty of que unto the enemy, who took possession of them da; whereof Asabel the brother of Josh without any relistance made. Wherefore it was one: who when he would needs pursue may feem strange, that a Nation so warlike Abner, and by Abners perswasions could and ambitious as were the Philiftims, did not not be moved to quit him, he was forced to follow their fortune with all diligence, and turn upon him, wounded him to death with it feems, that the civil war immediately were an excellent foot-man, and, as it is breaking out between David and the house written in the Text as light as a wild Rocand of Saul, wherein Juda was divided from as Josephus reporteth, contended not onely the rest of Isreal, gave them hope of an easie with men, but with horses; and hoped to victory over both; and thereby caused them have gotten great same if he could have mato attempt nothing at the present, left by so steered Abner (who, as Afabel perswaded himdoing they should enforce their disogreeing self, had by being overthrown, and flying arather to permit that the one part should true, That the race is not to the swift. confirme the other, by which means both the | That this civil war lasted two years, we rest is victors, and the vanquished, would become find it written in the second of samuel, a prey to the violence of fuch as had beaten the fecond Chapter; though in the beginning them, when their forces were united.

made by Abner for Isboseth.

manded for Saul in the War, fought to grew jealousie between him and Isboseth for advance Isboseth (or Jebostus, according Sauls Concubine: neither did the death of to Josephus) though he had no right to the Isboseth instantly follow; but how long after Kingdom of Ifrael: for Mephiboseth the first the murther of Abner it happened, the same fon of Jonathan lived. Against this Abner doth not certainly appear. and Isboseth, David made a defensive war, till Abner past Jordan, and entred the border of Juda; at which time he fent Joab with fuch forces as he had, to refift Abner: Of the death of Abner flain by Joab, and of Is-Isboseth remaining in Gilead, and David in Hebron. The armies encountred each other near Gibeon, where it feemeth that Abner made the offer to try the quarrel by the hands of a few; like to that combate be- endure a companion in Davids Favour, furvived not any one to challenge the victo-The victory which the Philistims had got- ry. But the quarrel staid not here, for the Arfeek to make the Conquest entire. Most like the stronk of his spear. For though Afahel som is enemies to a necessary reconciliation; but way, lost his courage) yet here it fell out golds.

of the third it is again made probable, that this contention dured longer; and therefore the matter refteth still in dispute, and some of the Rabbines conceive that Isbo-Of the beginning of Davids reign, and the war feth had then reigned two years, when this was written, the War as yet continuing a longer time. For Abner held for the party of Fter the death of Saul, Abner, who com- Isboseth after this, and till such time as there

> 6. III. boseth by Rechab and Baanah.

A Ener, reconciled to David, was anon samin by Joab murdered; for Joab could not tween the Lacedemonians and the Argives, re- and in the commandment of his forces; by san 3. viah, be too hard for me. In this fort Da: last time anointed by general consent. wid complained after Abners death; and to make it clear that he hated this fact of Josh, he followed him with this publike imprecation; Let the blood fall on the head of Joah, and on all his fathers house : and let them be subject to ulcers, to the leprosie, to lameness, to the fword, and to poverty, &c. For could any thing have withstood the ordinance of God, this murther committed by Joab might cufing the overfight by which he might feem fo against David. to have perished, by affirming that he dyed When he had now possess himself of the venot like a fool, nor a man vanquished, But as ry heart and Center of the Kingdom, and aman falleth before wicked men, so (saith he) received congratulatory Embassadours and confusion. For all under the sun are subject in Hebron where he reigned 7. years, to worldly miseries and misadventures. How- The Philistims hearing that David was now presenting his head to David, received the he called the place Baalperazim.

which he was grown so powerfull, as David same reward that the Amalekite lately did. forbare to call him to account: for thus for pretending to have flain Saul. Isbofeth, bemuch he confesseth of himself; I am this ing dead, all the Elders of Israel repaired to day weak, and these men, the Sons of Zer- David at Hebron, where he was the third and > 6. IV. Of the flourishing time of Davids Kingdom, the taking of Jerusalem, with two overthrows given to the Philistims, and the conduction of the Ark to the City of David.

W Hen David was now established in the Kingdom, his first enterprise was greatly have indangered Davids estate, Ab- upon the Jebusites, who in derision of his ner being the mouth and trust of all the rest force, and confident in the strength of of the Tribes, not yet reconciled. This mifthe place (as is thought) manned their chance therefore David openly bewailed, fo walls with the blind and lame of their Cithat all Ifrael perceived him to be innocent ty; which David foon after entred, all of that fact. The place which Abner held, their other forces not with standing. For habeing general of the men of war, was of ving maftered the fort of zion (which was fuch importance, that the Kings themselves afterward the City of David) he became a same si were fain to give them great respect, as hath Lord of Hierusalem, without any great danbeen already shewed more at large. This ger, expelling thence the Jebusites, who had office Joah held in the army of Juda, and held it from the foundation, to the times of thought himself worthy to hold the place en- Moses and Joshua, and after them almost 400. tire if once his Lord might obtain the whole years. There are who expound this place,o-Kingdom. For he was near to David in therwise: Except thou take away the blind and kindred, and had been partaker of all his the lame, thou shalt not come in hither, For adversity; wherefore he did not think it somethink that it was meant by the Idols of meet, that an old enemy should in reward the Jebusites: others, that it had reference to of new benefits, be made his partner. In-the Covenant made long before with Isaac, deed he was by nature fo jealous of his dig-nity and place, that he afterward flew Aage, the other made lame by vyrestling viith masa his own kinsman, and the Kings, up-the Angel, and that therefore till those on the same quarrel, taking it in high disdain (that is, till that Covenant) be broken, David to see him joyned with himself as captain of ought not to molest them. But for my self, the host of Juda; much less could be brook I take it with Josephus, that they armed their a superiour; and such a one as had slain walls with certain impotent people at first, his brother, and been beaten himself, in in scorn of Davids attempt. For they that battel. But how foever Joab did hate or def- had held their City about 400. years against pife Abner, David esteemed highly of him all the children of Israel, Joshua, the Judges, as of a Prince, and a great man in Ifrael, ex- and Saul, did not doubt burto defend it al-didest thou fall. And certainly it is no error presents from Hiram King of Tyre: he enterof wit, nor want of valour and vertue in him, tained divers other concubines, and married whom a stronger hand destroyed unawares, moe wives, by whom he had ten sons in Jeor whom subtilty in free trust bringeth to rusalem, and by his former wives, he had six foever Isboseth meant to have dealt with anointed King, as well of Juda as of Ifrael, Abner, yet when he heard of his death, he they thought to try him in the beginning, bedespaired greatly of his estate, and with him fore he was fully warm in his seat. And being all Israel were possess with great fear in so encountred by David at two several times in much as two of Ishofeths own Captains, the Valley of Rephaim, or of the Giants, they 2 San. 5: Rechab and Baanah, murthered Isboseth, and were at both times overthrown. After which

Then

CHAP. XVII

Then David affembled 30000, choice 1/raelites to conduct the Ark of God from the house of Abinadab in Cibea to the City of Da- The overthrow of the Philistims and Moabites! vid; which business was interrupted by the death of Uzzah the fon of Ahinadab, Son after this David overthrew the Phi-whom the Lord flew for prefuming to Sliftims, which made them altogether touch the Ark, though it were with intent to powerless, and unable to make any invasion flay it from taking harm, when it was sha- upon Ifrael in hast. For it is written, 4efices, musick, dances, and all figns of joyful- converts in these words, And David took ness, in which David himself gladly bare a the bridle of bondage out of the hand of the Phihim in scorn, That he was uncovered as a fool Amgar was meant the strong City of Gath. in the eys of the maidens his fervants, namely, or Geth, and so the Geneva hath it in the that he forgat his regal dignity both, in ap- marginal note. This City of Gath was the parel and behaviour, and mixed himself a- same which was afterward Dio-Casarea, set mong the base multitude, dancing as fools on the frontier of Palestina, at the entrance do in the ways and ftreets: not that she dis- into Judea and Ephraim. From thence they liked Davids behaviour (as I take it) though | made their incurfions, and thereinto their refhe made it the colour of her derifion; but treat in all their invafions, which being taken rather the aboundant griefe, which this by David and demolished, there was lest no spectacle stirred up, beholding the glory of such frontier town of equal strength to the ruines she conceived that the son of Ishai had which Pliny in his first book, and chap. 13. built this his greatness: together with the This exposition is made plain, and confirmed many new wives and concubines imbraced in the first of chro. the 18. fince his possession of Ferusalem, made her break out in those despiteful tearms, for that so greatly afflicted them as the Philiwhich she remained barren to her death.

phet Nathan for the building of the Tem- against them) did not leave one Smith in ple or house of God, but was forbidden it, all their Cities and Villages of that kind, but because he was a man of vvar, and had shed inforc'd them to come down into their terblood. So greatly doth the Lord and King ritory, for all iron work whatfoever they in vain, that he would require the blood of David, were feldom free from paying tribute a man, at the hand of man and beast. The to the Philistims. wars which David had made vvere just, and the bloud therein shed was of the enemies throws: but the war of the Moabites and Aof God, and his Church: yet for this cause rabians came between. In the first of which it was not permitted that his hands should he was indangered by Ishbi-benob, the head lay the foundation of that holy temple, here- of whose spear weighed 300. shekles of brass by it appears how greatly those Princes de- which make nine pound three quarters of ceive themselves, who think by bloud-shed & our poizes: at which time Abishai succoured terror of their wars, to make themselves in David, and slew the Philistim, vvhereupon greatness like to the Almighty, which is a dam- the Counsellours and Captains of David nable pride; not caring to imitate his mercy and goodness, or feek the blessedness promised by our Saviour unto the peace-makers.

Lord to accept a Temple of Davids founding, that hereupon he received both a confirmathat should be established in his feed.

ken. But after three years it was with great cepit franum Amgaris è manu Philiftheo. 25m3 folemnity brought into the City with facri- rum; which place our English Geneva vi, part. Hereupon Michol derided him for listims. The Latin of Junius giveth another dancing before the Ark, and afterward told and a better fence; for by that bridle of her husband to whom the was delivered last- Philistims on that part. The hill whereon Geth Tankila ly by force, and remembring the miserable or Gath stood, the Hebrews call Amma, where casale end of her father and brethren, out of whose of and of the word Gar is made Amgar, of idea.

There was no nation bordering the Jews flims did, who before the time of Saul (to This done, David consulted with the Pro- the end they might not sharpen any weapon of all detest homicide; having threatned, not needed; so as the Israelites till this time of 1548,18

After this he gave them four other over-(lest the light of Israel might by his loss be quenched) vowed that he should not thence forth hazzard himself in any battell. The Now although it was not pleafing to the fecond and third encounter and overthrow of the Philiftims was at Gob, a place neer yet was his religious intent so well accepted, Gesar, and the last at Gath or Geth. And being now better affured of the Philistims by tion of the Kingdom to him and his heirs, and the taking of Geth, he invaded Moab, from that happy promise of the everlasting Throne whom notwithstanding in his adversity he fought fuccour, and left his parents with him in trust. But whether it were the same King The King of Syria, Damascena, and of Da or no, it is not known.

refer the Reader.

§. V I. The war which David made upon the Syrians.

ter his victory than before: feeing that (Ha- chains. But because Roboam made shields of dadezer being taken) he had now left no e- brassin place of these of Hadadezer, at such nemy on his back, either to pursue him, to time as Shicah the Egyptian sack'd the Temple take victuals and supplies from him, or to of Jerujalem, it may be gathered thereby that the passages of the mountains upon him at those of Hadadezer were golden shields. his return.

his border, as afore is faid.

mascus, whereof that region is so called, hea-The Rabbines feign that Moab flew those ring that Hadadezer was overthrown by the kinsfolks of David, which lived under his Ifraelites, fearing his own estate, and the loss protection in Sauls time; but questionless of his own countrey which adjoyned to Sy-David well knew how that Nation had been ria Zoba of Hadadezer, sent for an Army of Aalwaies enemies to Israel, and took all the occasions to vex them that were offered. And as it appeareth, came too late for Hadadezer, he also remembred that in the 23. of Deut. and too soon for themselves: for there pe-God commanded Ifrael, not to feek the peace rished of those supplies 22000. This King of or prosperity of the Moabites; which David Damaseus, Josephus (out of Nicholaus an anwell observed, for he destroyed two parts tient Historian) calleth Adad, who was also of of the people, leaving a third to till the the same name and family as also those other ground. This victory obtained, he led his Adads were: which now began to grow up Army by the border of Ammon towards sy- in greatness, and so continued for ren defria Zobab, the region of Hadadezer the fon of cents, till they were extinguished by the Af-Rehob King thereof. The place is fet down in Syrians, as is shewed heretofore. David having the description of the holy Land: to which I now reduced Damaseus under his obedience, left a garrison therein, as he did in Edom:having also sackt the adjoyning Cities of Betah, and Berathi, belonging to Hadadezer, of which Cities Ptolomy calleth Betah, Tauba: and Berathi he nameth Barathena, Tohu or 2 Sam, 8, Thoi, whose country of Hamath joyned to A-T is written in the Text : David smote also dadezer (as in the description of the holy Hadadezer, Oc. as he went to recover his Land the Reader may perceive) fent his fon border at the river Euphrates. Now whe- foram to congratulate this success of David: ther the words (as he ment to recover his partly, because he had war with Hadadezer. & border) be referred to David or Hadadezer, partly because he feared David now victoriit is not agreed upon. Junius thinks that the ous. He also presented David with vessels of article (he) hath relation to David, who find- | gold, filver, and bras; all which, together ing Tobu opprest by Hadadezer, overthrew with the golden shields of the Aramites, and the one, and succoured the other. But the the best of all the spoiles of other Nations, ancient and most received opinion, that this David dedicated unto God at his return. recovery hath reference to the Syrian, is Junius translated the words (Clypeas aureas) more probable. For if David had intended by Umbones, as if all the parts of the Targets any such enterprize towards Euphrates, he were not of gold, but the bosses only. The was in far better case to have proceeded af- | Septnagint call them bracelets: Aquila, golden

This done, David fent Embassadours to 2 Sam. 7. Again, seeing David was either to pass Hanum King of the Ammonites, to congrathrough a part of Arabia the defart, or by the tulate his establishment in his fathers Kingplains of Palmyrena, his Army confifting of dom: for David, in the time of his afflictifootmen, for the most, if not all: He had now on under saul, had been relieved by Naboth Horse and Chariots good store to carry | hash, the father of Hanum. But this Amhis provisions through those uncultived pla- monite being ill advised, and over jealous ces, by which he was to have marched before of his estate, used Davids Messengers so barhe could have reached Euphrates, or any part baroufly, and contemptuoufly (by curtaithereof. But we find that David returned to ling their beards, and their garments) as he Gerusalem, after he had twice overthrown thereby drew a War upon himself, which the Syrian Army, not bending his course to- neither his own strength, nor all the ayds wards the river Euphrates, but feeking to e- purchased, could put off or sustain. For stablish his purchases already made. Where- notwithstanding that he had waged three by it may appear, that it was the Syrian, and and thirty thousand Souldiers of the Anot King David, that was going to enlarge malekites, and their confederates; to wit, of the vaffals of Hadadezer twenty thousand.

Bbb 2

3. 14. Iibteb or Theb a country near Gad

280

the North (for which he difbursed a thousand talents) State. Pattor of filver) yet all these great Armies, togewere by Joab and his brother Abifbai easily federacy of Ammon: He sent out Joab the broken and put to ruine: and that without Lievtenant of his Armies to forrage and deany great loss or flaughter at that time. And stroy their territory, and to befiege Rabbab. it is written, that when the Aramites fled, the afterward Philadelphia, which after a while near Gad under the Ammonites also retraited into their Cities, the Israelites mastered and possess. The the one holding themselves within the walls, Kings Crown which weighed a talent of Arnou. Som. 10, the other in their defarts adjoyning, till gold, garnished with precious stones, David Joab was returned to Hierusalem.

fed his Army, affembled his forces again, and City. And though David stayed at Jerusafent all the Companies that he could levy lem, following the war of Vriah his wife, till out of Mesopotamia; who under the com- such time as the City was brought to extremand of Shobach passed Euphrates, and in-mity, and ready to be entred: yet Joab in camped at Helam, on the South fide thereof. honour of David forbare the last assault, and David hearing of this new preparation, af entrance thereof, till his masters arrival. To which Pro- fembled all the ablest men of Ifrael, and the people he used extream rigour (if we tomy calleth Ale marched toward the Syrian Army in Palmy- may to call it being exercised against heamasha near rena, not yet entred into Arabia; to wit, at then Idolaters,) for some of them he tare the toords of Euphys-Helam, a place no less distant from Damascus, with harrows, some he sawed assunder, others towards the North-east, than Jerusalem was he cast into burning kills, in which he baked 2 Sam. 1c. towards the South-west. Now David (speak- tyle and brick. ing humanely) might with the more confidence go on towards Euphrates (which was the farthest off journey that ever he had) because he was now Lord of Damaseus, which lay in the midway. He also possest of Davids troubles in his reign, and of his * See c. 18. himself of * Thadmor or Palmyrena, which Salomon afterward ftrongly fortified; and this City was but one dayes journey from Helam, and the river Euphrates. So had he two sase retraits, the one to Thadmor, and the of our former miseries, and many times of next from thence to Daniascus. In this en- God himself the giver of all goodness; so counter between David and the Sprians, did these changes, in the fortune and state of they lost 40000. horsemen, and 700 chari- this good King, change also the zealous care ots, together with shobach General of their which formerly he had to please God in the Army. The Chronicles call these 40000 precise observation of his Laws and Com-Souldiers, footmen, and fo Junius converts it, mandements: For having now no dangerhave flaughtered 40000. horsemen, except began to be advised by his own humane afthey quitted their horse and sought on soot, sections and vain desires: For he was not So are the chariots taken in this battel, num- onely satisfied to take Vriah's wise from bred at 7000, in the first of Chronicles the him, and touse her by stealth; but he im-

Meanth and of Maachah and Ishtob thirteen thousand poverished, even to the last end of that fet on his own head, and carried away with Hadadezer hearing that Joab had dismif- him the rest of the riches and spoil of the forces.

s. VII.

and fo is it very probable. For the Army of ous apparent enemy (against whom he was Ifrael confifting of footmen, could hardly wont to ask counsel from the Lord) he ninth; in which number, as I conceive, all brodered his adultery with Uriah's flaugh-15m. the Souldiers that ferved in them, with the ter, giving order to his trufty fervant Joab to conductors, are included: so as there dyed marshal him in the front or point of those of the Syrians in this war against David, be- Israelites, which gave an assault upon the fore he forc't them to tribute, 100000. foot-fuburbs of Rabba, when there was not as yet men, befides all their horfemen and waggon- any possibility of prevailing. And that which ers, and besides all those that Joab slew, could no less displease God than the rest, he when they fled at the first encounter, was content that many others of his best sertogether with the Ammonites before Rab- vants and fouldiers should perish together bah. Notwithstanding all which, the A- with Oriah, hoping thereby to cover his pardads in following ages gathered strength ticular ill intent against him. After which he again, and afflicted the Kings of Juda began by degrees to fall from the highest of often but the Kings of Ifrael they im- happiness, and his dayes then to come were filled with joyes and woes interchangeable, ned by the Lord as a punishment of Davids his troden-down forrows began again to fin. foring, and those perils which he had pulled The company which Absalom gathered at 2 Sam, 15 up by the roots (as he hoped) gave him an the first were but 200 men: which he car-

after harvest of many cares and discontent- ried with him from Jerusalem to Hebron, prements. And if it had pleafed GOD to tending, though impioufly the performance take the witness of Davids own mouth a- of a vow to God. There when Achitophelregainst him, as David himself did against the paired unto him, and many troops of people Amalekite, which pretended to have flain from all places, he proclaimed himself King Saul he had then appeared as worthy of re- and was by the people (whose hearts God prehension as the other was of the death he had turned from their lawful Prince) acfufficed. For when Nathan the Prophet cepted foreadily, that David doubting to propounded unto him his own errour in the be fet upon on the fudden, durst not trust person of another, to wit, of him that took himself in his own City of Jerusalem, nor in the poor mans sheep that had none else, the any other walled town for fear of surprise: bereaver being Lord of many; He then but incamped in the fields and defarts with rewed it to the living Lord, that fuch a one some 600, of his guard, and few else. The should die the death. And hereof, although Priests he left in Jerusalem with the Ark of it pleased God to pardon David for his life, God, from whom he defired to be advertiwhich remission the Prophet Nathan pro- sed of those things that chanced; to whom nounced; yet he delivered him Gods ju- he directed Hushai his trusty friend, and serflice together with his mercy in the tenour vant, praying him to make himself in all his following; Now therefore the fword shall ne- outward actions and counsels of Absaloms ver depart from thy house, &c. because thou hast party and confederacy, thereby the better taken his wife to be thy wife, and hast slain to discover unto him the purpoles of Achi-Uriah with the sword of the children of Am- tophel, a revolting Counsellour, whose pramon. Soon after this , David loft the child ctices he greatly doubted. And now when of adultery which he begot on Bersheba. Se- treason was in fashion, Ziba also sought to becondly, his own fon Ammon, being in love tray his mafter Mephibofeth the fon of Jonawith his half fifter Thamar, by the advice of than: And Shimei of the house of saul (the his confin-german the fon of Shimeah Davids fire of whose hatred Davids prosperity had brother, possess there by force: which when smothered, but his adversity illightned) 2 Sam. 16. he had performed, he thrust her from him in holding himself upon the advantage of a a careless and despiteful manner. Two years mountain side, cast stones at David, and most after which foul and incestuous act, Absalom despightfully cursed him to his face: but caused him to be murthered at the feast of David attending no private revenges, forbad his sheep-shearing: not perchance in re- Abishai to pursue him for the present, yet venge of Thamars ravishment alone; but left him among others in the roll of his rehaving it in his heart to usurp the Kingdom, venge, to his fon Salomon. Absalom being now in which, because he could not in any fort be possess of Jerusalem, was advised by Achitoaffured of Ammon, he thought his affairs phel to use his fathers concubines in some greatly advanced by his deftruction. So the fuch publick place, as all Ifrael might affine one brother having ravifhed his own fifter, themselves, that he was irreconcilable to his and then despised her; the other after a long father: whereof being perswaded, they diffembled malice first made his own brother would then resolvedly adhere to Absalom . Sam. 17. drunken, and then flaughtered him, which and his cause, without fear of being given up done, he fled away, and lived under the safe- upon a reconciliation between them. This guard of Talmai King of Geffur, near Da falvage and impious (though crafty counmaseus, who was his grandsather by the mo- sel Achitophel indeed urged for his own rether but a heathen King. Thirdly, when Ab- | spect, as fearing that this rebellion might Jalom by the invention of Joab (but chiefly take end to his destruction, who most of all because of the great affection of David to- other inflamed Absalom against his father. wards his fon) was brought again, first to the And now was it fulfilled that Nathan had di-15cm 14. Kings favour, and then to his presence; he rectly foretold David: I will raise up evill a 2 Scm c. 12. began instantly to practise against David his gainst thee out of thine own house, and will take ". 11. father, feeking by the pretence of common thy wives before thine eyes, and give them unto justice, and by lowly and familiar manner to thy neighbour , and he shall the with thy mives all men, and by detracting from his fathers e- in the fight of the Sun: for thou diddeft it quity, to win unto himself a popular reputa- secretly, but I will do this thing before all Israel, tion. Here began the great affliction threat- and before the Sun. He also gave advice to Absalow, that himself with an Army of peared also by the sequel that Joab affected is so. 2 Sam 17, 12000. men might be employed at the in- Adonijah whom he afterward acknowledge. flant for the surprizing of David; which ed, David yet living; and fearing the diffuohad not Husbai Davids faithful servant given advantage offered. counter-advice, and swayed it: perswading Hereof, together with news of the victofalom, and of his own life.

against him, marched away all night, and past him that he had discountenanced his faith-Jordan, possessing himself of Mahanaim in ful servants, who had that day preserved his the Tribe of Gad: the same wherein I/bo- life; inferring that nothing could be more feth himself in the war against David after dangerous to a King, than not onely not to Sauls death feated himself. To which place acknowledge so great a love and constancy there repaired unto him shobi the fon of in his people, who being but few in number, Nabash the Ammonite, whom David loved, did yet resolvedly expose themselves to the same which Josephus calleth shiphar. great perils for his sake: but on the con-And though it be greatly disputed, what this trary, grieve and lament at their good success. For, no doubt, they might all have verthrow: in thankfulness whereof he re. hated his friends; and that he witnessed by lieved David in this his extremity. There this his mourning, that he had not any rephiboseth, and among others Barzillai the Gi- had all perished, and Absalom lived, than in company. low prepared to fight; Absalow made Ama- That if the King came not out and shewed sa Commander of the Army of Israel, the himself publickly to his men of war, that fame place which Joab held with David; an they would all that very night abandon office next the King himself, like unto that him, and return: concluding with this fearful France. David, perswaded by his company, than all the evil that fell on thee from thy stayed in Mahanaim, and disposed the forces youth hitherto. By these over-bold and arrohe had to Joab, Abishai, and Ittai, giving them gant speeches (though perchance uttered charge in the hearing of all that issued out with a good intent) Joab raised David from of the port of Mahanaim, that they should his bed of sorrow, and brought him to the spare the life of Absalom. But Joab, besides gates of the City among the people, whom that he was very cruel by nature, remem- he affured of his love and affection, especialbred that Absalom had lately disposed of his ly Amasa, who commanded the Army of Abctory being obtained, and news brought him | Lievtenantship; the same which Absalom that Absalom hung by the hair of his head had given him, and which Joab now enjoy-

had willingly been imbraced by Abfalom, fition of Abfalom, he imbraced the prefent

Absalom that it was fitter and more fafe for ry, when knowledge was brought to David. him with all the strength of Israel to pursue he mourned and sorrowed, not onely as a his father, than by such a troop, which Da- man that had lost a son, but as one that had vids valour and those of his attendants out-lived all his worldly joys, and seen evemight either indanger or relift. This delay ry delight of life interred. For he fo hid in Absalom, and advantage of time gained himself from his people, as those which hoby David, was indeed, after God, the loss of ped for honour and reward after so great a the one, and delivery of the other. Whereupon Achitophel rightly fearing (by the ocas if they had committed the greatest offencasion fore-shewed) the success which fol- ces, and had rather deserved death than relowed, disposed of his own estate, and then compence. Whereupon Joab presenting forfook both the party and the care of Ab- himself before David, perswaded him to disfemble his forrow for the prefent, and to David being advertised of this enterprize shew himself to the Army. For first, he told ble opinion makes him a second brother to bought their peace of Absalom at an easie Hamm, whom David for his fathers fake e- rate. Secondly, he urged, that it was genestablished in the Kingdom, after Hanums o- rally believed, that he loved his enemies, and came also to Davids affistance Machir of spect of his Princes, and others his faithful Lodobar, Guardian in former times to Me- fervants, but would more have joyed if they leadite, who willingly fed David and all his the victory by their faithfulness and approved valour gotten.

In the mean time both the King and Absa- Lastly, he used this prevalent argument, of the Maiors of the Palace anciently in threatning, And that will be morfe unto thee : Sen. 15 government to Amasa, and therefore the vi- salom, to whom he promised the office of on a tree, when he could not perswade the ed. For David doubted, that if Amasa were messenger to return and kill him, he himself not satisfied he might draw from him a great with his own servants dispatcht him. It ap- part of the strength of Israel, now under his commandment.

Jones Gordan homeward, vvhere in his paffage he by whom he and his might, aswell in the preba had fallly accused and betrayed.

CHAP. XVII.

da, bare still a good affection to the issues of to God. diers, whom also Joab accompanied: and | ing formerly slain. Hoast of Ifrael.

This done, the King marched towards judge humanely, to rid himself of sauls line. pardoned shimei, who had lately reviled fent as in the future, be greatly molefted him to his face: but this remission vvas but and indangered; onely he spared Miphiboexternal, as appeared afterward. He also ac- sheth the son of Jonathan, both for the love cepted of Mephibosheth his excuse, whom Zi- he bare to his father, and for his oath and vow to God.

He also intreated Barzillai the Gileadite,

Now whereas it is written in the Text,

15.65. 15 his late liberal hoft, to follow him to Jerufa- The King took the two sons of Rispah, whom 2.54m. 21; lem, that he might reward his service done she bare unto Saul, and the five sons of Michol him; who excusing himself by his age, ap- the daughter of Saul, whom she bare to Adriel, pointed his fon Chimham to attend the King. and delivered them to the Gibeonites: Junius At Gilgal on this fide Jordan, all the calls this Michol the fifter of her that was Tribes aftembled, and after some contention Davids wife, she whom Saul married to Phalwhich of them ought to have most interest tiel: but Michol here named, had Adriel in David, the Army brake, and David return- to her husband; the same which is named ed to Jerusalem. But shebathe son of Bichri, Merab in the first of Samuel the eighteenth. a Benjamite, of the faction of the house of who was first promised to David when he Saul; finding some discontent among the slew Goliab in the Valley Raphain : and Ifraelites, withdrew them from David, as because it is written that Micholloved Dafrom a stranger in whom they had no inte- vid, which perchance Merab did not, wherest, and it seemeth that many of the people ther David had any humane respect in the of the out Tribes, and in effect of all but Ju- delivery of her children, it is onely known their first King. David imployed his recon- Now where the Geneva nameth Michel ciled Captain Amasa, to give him content- for Merab the wife of Adriel: the better tranment, and to witness his trust, as also because flation were out of the Hebrew word here he conceived that Amafa had interest in used having an eclipsis or defect, and signifithose revolts of Israel more than Joab had. eth, as I am informed, one of the same kin-He received commandement from David dred, as in the 19. verse of the same one and to assemble the Army within three dayes, twentieth chapter it is said of Goliah, whose which he foreflowed: but being onward fear was weighty as a Weavers beam, when as on his way, Abilhai, Joabs brother, was fent by the same eclipsis it must be understood after him, with Davids guard and best Soul- by the brother of Goliab; Goliab himself beovertaking Amasa near Gibeon, pretend- As by the death of Sauls children God ing to imbrace him, gave him a wound, secured the house of David, leaving no head whereof he fell dead, being no less jealous unto rebellion: fo did he strengthen both of Amasa than he was of Abner, whom he the King and Nation against forreign enemurdered in the fame manner, and out of mies by the valour of many brave Commanthe fame impatient ambition. This done, ders, the like of whom, for number and quahe purfued sheba; and finding him inclosed lity, that people of Ifrael is not known to in Abel, affaulted the City with that fury, have had at any time before or after. Thirthat the Citizens by the perswasions of a ty Captains of thousands there were, all men wife woman there inhabiting, cut off Sheba of mark, and great reputation in war. his head, and flung it to Joab over the walls: Over these vvere fix Collonels, vvhose vawhich done, he retreated his Army to Jeru- lour vvas fo extraordinary, that it might be which done, he retreated his Army to jeru-in, falem, and commanded, as before, all the veil held as miraculous. These Collonels had some difference of place and honour, The next act of David, was the delivery vyhich feemeth to have been given upon of Sauls sons or kinsmen to the Gibeonites, meer consideration of their vertue. For Abiwhom those Citizens hung up in revenge of fai the brother of foab, vvho in the vvar atheir fathers cruelty. David had know- gainst the Ammonites and Aramites was Lievledge from the Oracle of God, that a famine tenant, and commanded half the army, could which had continued on the land three not attain to the honour of the first rank, but years, came by reason of Saul and his house, was fain to rest contented with being printo wit, for the flaughter of the Gibeonites : cipal of the three Collonels of the fecond and therefore he willingly yielded to give order, notwithstanding his nearness of blood them this satisfaction, both because he had unto the King, the flourishing estate of his warrant from God himself, as also, if we may own house; and his well approved services.

Companies belonging to them, may feem to respect of persons of which there perished 70. have been such as were continually retain- thousand. And hereby he hath taught all ed, or at the least kept in readiness for any that live, that it is better to fall into the hands occasion, considering that the numbers of God than of men; whereof he giveth this which were mustered and drawn out, if need divine reason, For his mercies are great. required, into the field, very far exceeded thirty thousand, yea, or thirty times as many. They were most of them such as had followed the King in Saul's time, and been of the last acts of David; Adonijahs faction: hardned with his adversities. Others there were very many, and principal men in their feveral Tribes, that repaired unto him after T Aftly, when he grew weak and feeble. the death of Saul; but these Captains and , and past the acts and knowledge of Wo-Collonels (who with Joab, that was Gene-men, he was yet advised to lie in the arms of ral of all the Kings Forces, make up the a young and well-complexioned Maiden. number of 37.) were the special men of to keep him warm. In this his weak estate War, and reckoned as David's Worthies. of body, when he was in a manner bed-rid. The long reign of David, as it is known to Adonijah his eldeft son (Ammon and Absalom have confumed many of these excellent men being now dead) having drawn unto his of War, so may it probably be ghessed to party that invincible, renowned and seared have wasted the most of those whose deaths Joab, with Abiathar the Priest, began maniwe find no where mentioned. For the fons feftly to prepare for his establishment in the of Zervia, who had been too hard for Da- Kingdom after his Father. For being the vid, were worn away, and only Joab left in eldeft now living of David's fons, and a man the beginning of Salomon, who wanted his of goodly personage, Salomon yet young,

David, it is gathered, that he had reigned Thomas, and others suppose) he presumed to now 33. years or thereabouts, when the policarry the matter without reliftance. Heresterity of Saul was rooted out, so that he'en- of when David had knowledge by Bersabe joyed about seven years of entire quiet and the Mother of Salomon, who did put him in fecurity, wherein it pleased God to remove mind of his faithful promise, that Salomon, all impediments that might have troubled her fon should reign after him (Nathan the the fuccession of salomon in his Fathers Prophet affirming the same thing unto the blished all things in Juda and Israel, and the his presumption) the King calling unto him power: in which he employed Joab, with charge and commission to anoint salomon, with the account and register of all the peo- done, Salomon attended, and strongly guard-3 Sam. 14. of in Juda and the Cities thereof, five hun-ported to Adonijah, he presently abandoned extremity.

All these Collonels and Captains, with the cruel disease, which hath no compassion or the revenge upon Joab and Shimei.

brother Abilhai to stand by his side in his last and born of a Mother formerly attainted with adultery, for which her name was o-By the actions forepassed in the time of mitted by Saint Matthew (as Beda, Hugo, Throne. In this time also David having esta- King, and seconding her report of Adonijah borders thereof, he again displeased God by Zadoc the Priest, Nathan the Prophet, and numbring the people, as in oftentation of his Benajah the Captain of his Guard, gave other Captains of his Army, who after nine and to fet him on the Mule whereon himfelf moneths and twenty dayes travel, returned used to ride in his greatest state: which ple, able and fit to bear Arms, and they a- ed by the ordinary and choice men of War, mounted to the number of thirteen hundred the Cherethites, and Pelethites, shewed himthousand, besides Levi and Benjamin, where- self to the people. These tidings being redred thousand, and in Israel eight hundred his affistants, and for the safety of his life, he held by the horns of the Altar, whom for the For this, when by the Prophet Gad he present Salomon pardoned. After this, Da-1 1895 was offered from God the choice of three vid had remaining two especial cares, wherepunishments, whereof he might submit him- of he was desirous to discharge his thoughts; felf to which he pleased; to wit, seven years the one concerning the peace of the Land, Famine; three moneths War, wherein he which might be diffurbed by some Reflould be unprosperous in all attempts, and bellion against salomon; the other combined to the salomon in the salomon is the other combined to the salomon in the salomon is the other combined to the salomon in the salomon is the salomon in the salo be chased by his enemies; or a general pe-cerning the building of the Temple, which fillence to last three dayes: David made he sought by all means to advance, and choice to bow himself under the hand of make the business publick. To bring these God only, and left himself subject to that intentions to good effect, he summoned a Parliament,

Parliament, confilting of all the Princes of from the first affault of Jerusalem to the last Ifrael, the Princes of the several Tribes, all of his Wars, with incomparable valour and the Captains and Officers, with all the migh- fidelity, faving that he faftened himfelf to Aty, and men of power; who did repair un- donijah (his master yet living) and thereby luntary contribution.

Feast with great sacrifice was made at which of Absalom, contrary to the Kings desire, or his judgments, and his testimonies, as it is deserving great honour and respect. written in the Law of Moses, &c. to the per- He also gave order to Salomon to rid him-King 1. done (faith GOD himself) Thou shalt not And albeit by reason of his oath and pro-

vexed him in his feeble age. But as God hath In this Assembly the King stood up, and never left cruelty unrevenged, so was it his fignified his purpose of building the Temple, will that Joab should drink of the same cup, shewing how the Lord had approved the whereof he hath enforced other men to tafte. motion. Herein he took occasion to lay open and suffer the same violence which himself his own title to the Crown, shewing that the had unjustly strooken others withal. Qui ela-Kingdom was by Gods ordinance due to the dio percutit, gladio peribit: for he had bereav-Tribe of Juda (as Jacob in his bleffing pro- cd Abner and Amasa of their lives, having aphetically bequeathed it) and that God gainst the one the pretence only of his brohimself was pleased to make choice of him a- thers slaughter, whom Abner had slain in the mong all his Fathers fons. In like manner he time of War, and could not avoid him: afaid that God himself had appointed salo- gainst the other but a meer jealousie of his mon by name to be his Successour; where- growing great in the favour of David. And upon he earnestly charged both the people though Joab assured himself that Abner and and his fon to conform themselves unto all Amasa being dead, there was none left either that God had commanded, and particular- to equal him, or supplant him, yet God (dely to go forward in this Work of the Lords riding the policies of wicked men) raised up house, which salomon was chosen to build. Benhajah the son of Jehojadah, to pull him Then produced he the pattern of the Work, from the Sanctuary, and to cut him in peeces. according to the form which God himself For David giveth this cause to Salomon ahad appointed; and so laying open his own gainst Joab, that he slew the Captains of the King. preparations, he exhorted all others to a vo- Hoast of Israel, and shed bloud of battel in peace; and to this apparent and just cause, it The Kings proposition was so well ap- is not improbable but that David remembred proved by the Princes and people, that the ill affection of Joab towards Salomon, whereas he himself had given three thousand which Joab made manifest by the untimely talents of gold, and feven thousand of filver, fetting up of Adonijah, David vet living. they added unto it seven thousand of gold, Some other offence Joab had committed aand ten thousand of silver, besides brass, iron, gainst David, of which in these words he put and Jewels, heartily rejoycing in the ad- his fon Salomon in mind; Thon knowest also vancement of fo religious a Work. This bu- what Joab the fon of Serviah did to me, &c. 1 King. 2. finess being so well dispatched, a solemn Now whether this were meant by the killing time Salomon was again anointed King, and by the proud words used to him when he received fealty of all the Princes and people mourned in Mahanaim for Absalom; or wheof the Land, and of all the Princes his bre- ther it were the publishing of Davids letter, thren, the fons of King David. Salomon be- unto him for the killing of Vriab, thereby to ing thus established King, his Father David disgrace Salomon as descended of such a mofinding himself even in the hands of death, ther, the Scriptures are silent. True it is, that first exhorted his son to exercise the same those great men of War do oftentimes becourage and strength of mind, which him- have themselves exceeding insolently toself had done in all his attempts: and to the wards their Princes, both in respect of their end that a happy end might follow the be- fervice done, as also because they flatter ginning of all his enterprizes, he uttered themselves with an opinion, that either their these mighty words; Take heed to the charge | masters cannot miss them, or that they dare of the Lord thy God, to walk in his wayes, and not offend them. But this kind of pride hath keep his statutes, and his commandements, and overthrown many a worthy man otherwise formance of which GOD faltned the succes- self of shimei, who not long before had cast fion, and prosperity of his issues. For this stones at David, and cursed him to his face. want one of thy Posterity to sit upon the Throne mile David spared Shimei all the time him- 1 King 2. felf lived, yet being dust and in the grave, Secondly, he advised him concerning Jo- he slew him by the hand of salomon his son. ab; who out of doubt had served David Hence it seemeth that King Henry the se-violent hands to be laid upon him.

yeeld unto Salomon any fuch great profit or others, this opinion (faith he) Foce Evangeliassurance as he hoped for. For he found a casalvatoris ipsius resutatur, ubi ait quòd inse young Adad of Idumea, and Resin of Damas- David in spiritu Christum dixerit esse sum cus to vex him: who, as the Scriptures wit- Dominum, quoniam Pfalmus 109. sie incipit. ness, were emboldened to enterprize upon Dixit Dominus Dominu meo, Sede à dextris 1 King 11 Salomon, hearing that David slept with his meis, &c. The voyce of the Gospel refutes Fathers, and that Joab the Captain of the this opinion, where it faith, that David him-Hoaft was dead. Now when David had felf in the spirit called Christ his Lord; bereigned in all forty years, to wit, in Hebron | cause the 109. Psalm begins thus: The Lord 7. years , and in Jerusalem three and thirty, Said unto my Lord , Sit thou at my right hand. he died.

exceeding strong. For his internal gifts and | pattern to all the Kings and Princes that sucgraces, he so far exceeded all other men, as ceeded him. putting his humane frailty apart, he was His Story, and all his particular actions, faid by God himself to be a man according were written by the Prophets, Samuel, Nato his own heart. The Pfalms which he than, and Gad, as it is in the first of chron.29. wrote, witness his piety, and his excellent verf. 19. For the several parts of the books learning: of whom Hierome to Paulinus: of Samuel which intreat chiefly of David, David Simonides noster, Pindarus, & Alca- were, as it seems, written by these three hous , Flaccus , quoque Catullus , & Serenus, ly men. Christum lyra personat, & in dechachordo Psalthan all the reft.

The book of the Pfalms, faith Glycas, was the year 2991. divided, ordered and diffinguished by Ezekias: but whether all the Pfalms were written by David, it is diverfly disputed. For Athanin Athanasius, Cyprian, Lyranus, and others con-Synop.
Hier Epift. ceive divers Authors answering the titles of 134 Lyran the feveral Pfalms, as Mofes, Salomon, and in exp. 1. the reft hereafter named; and that only 73. It is written in the 22. of the first of Psalms were composed by David himself, Chronicles, that he left Salomon for the buildnamely, those which are intituled ipfius Da- ing of the Temple a hundred thousand taventh of England had his pattern, when he singers) Asaph, Ethan-Eziachi, Eman-Eziaira, vius, gave order to Henry the Eighth to execute Idithum, and the three fons of Chore. But S. Stants Pool as foon as himself was buried, having chrysoftome makes David the sole Author of feet made promise to the King of Spain, when he all the Pfalms, and so doth S. Augustine, readelivered Pool unto him, that while he lived forning in this manner: Although (faith he) he would never put him to death, nor fuffer fome there are that ascribe those Pfalms on-14. ly to David, which are over-written infins And yet did not the execution of Joab | David, and the rest intituled instituted in David, to &c. Laftly, his Testimonies are used both For his person, he was of small stature, but | by Christ and the Apostles, and he was as a

Constantine Manaffes hath an opinion, that terio ab inferis suscitat resurgentem; David the Trojans during the time of the siege? In (faith he) our Simonides, Pindarus, Alcæus, fought for fuccour from David, and that he Annals Horace, Catullus and Serenus, he playeth stayed Neuter in that War. But it feemeth out of Christ on his Harp, and on a ten-stringed Psal- that Manasses did miscast the time 'twixt Da-Guek ter he raiseth him up rising from the dead. And vid and the Trojan War. For it is generally by file being both a King and a Prophet, he fore- received that Troy fell between the times of an last telleth Christ more lightformly and lively Abdon and Sampson Judges of Israel, about list. the Worlds year 2848, and David died in

§. IX. of the treasures of David and Salomon.

Is treasures were exceeding great. For yay, is it is written in the 22. of the first of vid, For the 50. and the 72. with the ten lents of gold, and a thousand thousand tathat follow, are bestowed on Asaph the son lents of silver, and of brass and iron passing of Barachia, eleven other on the fons of Ko. all weight, which is more than any King in rath; and eleven are ascribed to Moses, to the World possest besides himself, and his wit, the 89. and the ten following, and so son, to whom he left it. For it amounteth to they are intituled in the old Hebrew Copies, three thousand three hundred thirty and though the Vulgar and Septuagint (three three cart-load, and a third of a cart-load of excepted) file them otherwise. The suppo- silver, allowing two thousand weight of silfed nine Authors of these Psalms which Da- ver, or fix thousand pound sterling to every vid wrote not, Sixt. Senensis nameth as fol- cart-load, besides threescore and seventeen loweth; Salomon, N ofes, (whom Aben Ezra, millions of French Crowns, or of our mocentrry to Hierome, maketh one of David's ny twenty three millions and a thousand pound: a matter, but for the testimony of held, both before and after Davids time. For terpart possess by his enemies.

mony of Eupolemus: and yet certainly David have been perpetual (which opinion of had many other ways to gather riches. Much theirs nevertheless they confess is against land doubtless he gained by conquest from the Hebrew expositions) yet David upon the Canaanites and Philistims, besides those this occasion is not unlikely to have put it in fruitful vallies near Jordan in Trachonitis and practife. And by these means might hee be the Scriptures, exceeding all beliefe. For we read of Pharaoh, that he spake to Toleph Gen. 47. that any riches were left him, it doth not to appoint some of his brethren, or of their 2 chro. 16. appear, feeing that the Judges had not any fervants, to be rulers over his cattel. We realise, nor any foveraign power to make read of Ozzia, that he loved husbandry, hevics: but when they went to the wars they had much cattel, and plough-men, and drefwere followed by fuch voluntaries as the fers of Vines: likewife we read it in all feveral tribes by turns gave them: feeing alfo Greek Poets, that the wealth of the ancient that Saul who was of a mean parentage, and Kings did specially consist in their Herds perpetually vexed and invaded by the Phi- and Flocks; whereof it were needless to liftims, could not in all likelihood gather cite Augeas and Admetus, or any other for great riches (if any at all)his Territories be- examples, the rule holding true in all. Now ing exceeding narrow, and thereof the bet- concerning David it is not unlikely, but that those captives which were not imploy-Therefore it were not amis to consider ed in husbandry, were many of them used how David within the space of not very ma- by him in all forts of gainful professions, as ny years, might amass up such mighty trea- the ancient Romans in like manner used their fures. For though parlimony be it felf a flaves. great revenue, yet needs there must have been some other great means. It seems that impositions, which doubtless were great, he made the uttermost profit of all that he and besides the innumerable presents which had, that was profitable. Enfebius in his 9. yearly were brought him, or extraordinabook and last chapter de Praparatione Evan- rily sent him, by Tohu and others) we may gelica, citeth the words of Eupolemus, who add the great spoiles which hee found reporteth that David, among other prepara- in the Cities and Countries which he contions for the Temple, built a Navy in Mela-quered: also the head money which was nis (or, as Villalpandus corrects it, Achanis) a gathered per legem capitationis; By the law city of Arabia, and from thence fent men to of capitation, or head money, every man rich dig for gold in the Hand Urphe, which Orte- or poor paying half a ficle of the Sanctuahus thinks was Ophir, though Eupolemus in ry, which is about as much as fourteen this place of Enfebius (crring perhaps in this pence, and so in all it amounted to a won-circumstance) saith that this sland was in the drous sum in that Kingdom: wherein one red Sea: from whence, faith this Eupolemus, thousand thousand five hundred and seventhey brought gold into Jury, Pineda La. de Re-bus Salomonis, c. 1. thinks that David did this Joah. Now although this law of capitation way also enrich himself, and circth this testi-be thought by some very learned, not to Bafan, and the best of Spria, and other coun- able to leave those huge treasures to Salotries bordering the Ifraelites. These demains mon. Yet it may seem that of this great belike he kept in his own hands, and with mass of gold and filver left by David, the least his infinite number of captives, which he part was his own in private; and fo will it took in his wars, which were not able to re- appear the less wonderfull that he lest so deem themselves, husbanded those grounds much. Of his own liberality we find, that for his greatest advantage. For it is written hee gave to the building of the Temple I Chro. 17. that Jahonathan was over his treathere thousand talents of gold, and seven fures in the field, in the villages, in the cities, thousand talents of silver: a great sum, but in the towns; that Ezri was over the labour holding a very small proportion to the other. ers that tilled his ground, Simei over the Wherefore we are to confider, that the vineyards, and sabdi over the store of the treasures of the Sanctuary it self were exwine; Baal Hanan over the olive trees, and ceeding great, as needs they must have been Joalh over the store of the oyle: also that he having received continual encrease, withhad herds-men that had charge over his cat- out any loss or diminution ever since the time tel, both in the high lands and in the plains, of Moses and Joshuah. The revenues of the over his Sheep, Camels and Asses. And this Sanctuary (besides all manner of tithes and custom of enriching themselves by husband-oblations, which defrayed the dayly ex-

dry and cattel the ancient Kings every where pences, & maintained the Priests & Levites) Ccc 2

fore mentioned; partly out of the spoils the Lord: the like whereof may be well pre-Numb, 31. gotten in War. For all the booty was di-fumed of the former Judges and Captains of vided into two parts, whereof the Souldiers other Ages. Certain it is, that the Conquest had one, and the people which remained at of David brought into the Land far greater home, had the other half; whereby all the abundance of riches, than any former Vi-Country received benefit of the Victory, ctorics had purchased, those of Joshua peryet so, that the Souldiers had a far greater haps excepted: but these vast summes of an proportion than the rest, as being fewer, hundred thousand Talents of silver, may and therefore receiving more for every fin-feem rather to have been made up, by the gle share.

which the people received, and one in five industry. hundred, of that which was given to the Now concerning the riches of Salomon, it Alens thousand of them for flaves, and the Conturns from the East India, which greatly ingregation had other fixteen thousand; but creased his store. For his ships performed out of the fixteen thousand given to the Ar- that Voyage every three years, and he began my, were exempted two and thirty for the that trade in the two and twentieth year of Lords tribute; Out of the peoples number his reign, and ruled forty years. Besides were taken three hundred and twenty. By this, all Judea and Ifrael were now mastered this means, the leffer that the Army was to his hands; all the Arabians his borderers, which had exposed it self to danger, the the syrians of Zobah, of Damascena, of Paling at home were fain to undergo more than Hittites, who with the Perizites, Hivites, Jeordinary travel in domestical affairs, did linsites, and other races of the Canaanites, receive by so much the greater portion. But were not as yet extinguished though subthe Lordstribute was alwayes certain, yea jected. many times it was increased, either by some Into this flourishing estate was the King-1 China were partly raised out of the head mony be- obtained in War, to mainfain the house of addition of his winnings and liberality, to Out of this purchase was deducted the the treasures laid up in many former Ages. Lords tribute, which was one in fifty, of that than to have been the nicer fruits of his own

fered up, as voluntary presents.

Souldiers; namely, one hundred and one is more manifest how he gathered them; for 77% thousand part of the whole booty. So in the he received of yearly revenues with his tri- French thouland part of the whole booty. So in the he received of yearly fold, besides the Cu-town spoil of Midian, thirty two thousand Wo-butes 666. Talents of gold, besides the Cu-town spoil of Midian. men being taken, the Army had fixteen flomes of Spices. He had also fix rich Re-14 greater profit had every Souldier, but when myrena, of Innea; all of Idunea, Moab, and with the greater profit had every Souldier, but when it consisted of many hands, they who remain- Ammon, paid him tribute; as likewise did the to ass special commandement, as when all the gold, dom of Israel reduced by David, who after is. and filver, and other mettals found in Ferico, 40. years reign, and 70. years of life, dyed were confecrated unto God; or by thank- in a good age, full of dayes, riches, and hofulness of the Rulers and people, as when nour, and was buried in the City of David. It after the Victory obtained against the Midi- is written by Josephus that there was hid in anites without the loss of one man, all Jewels, David's Tomb a marvellous quantity of trea-Bracelets, Earerings, and the like, were of- fures, infomuch as Hyreanns (who first of the red up, as voluntary prefents.

Chasmanai, or race of Macchabees, called Joseph himself King) one thousand and three hun-shalled times oppressed, and trodden down by other dred years after, drew thence three thou-Nations, yet were not these treasures robbed sand Talents, to rid himself of Antiochus then or spoiled; for the enemies never gat post-besieging Jerusalem; and afterward Herod fession of the Tabernacle that was in shilo. opening another Cell, had also an exceed-Wherefore it cannot otherwise be, than that ing mals of gold and silver therein. And it the wealth of the Sanctuary must have been was an antient custome to bury treasure exceeding great; as containing above one with the dead. So the Peruvians and other hundredth part of all the mony and other Americans did the like, which being discogoods found by the Ifraelites in the whole vered by the Spaniards, they inriched them-Land of Canaan; and of all that was purcha- felves by nothing fo much in their first Con-26. v. 27. fed by fo many Victories, as they obtained quest. That Salomon did bury so much treaagainst the bordering Nations. For that this sure in his Fathers grave, it would hardly be treasury was not desrauded of the due por- believed, in regard of the great exactions tion, it is evident; seeing that before the time with which he was fain to burthen the peoof David and his Lievtenant Joab, it is re- ple, notwithstanding all the riches which he corded that Saul and Abner, and before them got otherwise, or which were left unto him: Samuel, had used to dedicate of the spoils were it notwithal considered that his want ployments. Particularly of the Sepulchre of of the Silvii King of Alba, called Latinus Silvionly the Sepulchres of the Kings of Juda, as ly fifty years. And about his fourteenth year of an honourable place of burial. Yet the Codrus the last King of the Athenians died to of an instantiate place of outland. Let the be the state of the place of the first prince of the figure of the place of th are able to make report credible of the cost their life. bestowed upon them.

of the Philistims, whom David absolutely mastered: and of sundry other contemporaries with David.

here may be spoken.

ing to Ilider and Josephus, was one of the fons formed of this answer, withdrew himself from of Mifraim, and was furnamed Philistim, as his own Forces, and putting on the habit of a cipalities, namely, Azotus or Afdod, Gaza or was himself forthwith cut in pieces. ther hand, the Canaanites and the Egyptians, held it 38. years.

lech which loved Sara, Abraham's Wife.

was turned into Ariftocratical. For they are were after called Helots. and to whom David neu, and who and similar gave him Siklag to inhabit in Saul's time.

lars in this place.

of mony grew from fuch magnificent im- | There lived at once with David, the third David the Scriptures have no mention, but w, who is faid to have ruled that part of Ita-

The reasons which moved the Athenians to change their government, were not drawn from any inconvenience found in the rule of loveraignty, but in honour of Codrus only. For when the Gracians of Doris, a region between Phocis, and the mountain of Octa, fought counsel from the Oracle, for their fuecess in the Wars against the Athenians, it was F the Philiftims, whose pride David was answered, that then undoubtedly theyshould the first that absolutely mastered, in prevail and become Lords of that State, when this conclusion of David's time somewhat they could obtain any Victory against the Nation, and yet preferve the Athenian King They descended of Cassoim, who, accord- living. Codrus by some intelligence being in-Elan was furnamed Edom, and Jacob Ifrael, common fouldier, entred the Camp of the There were of them five Cities or petty Prin- | Dorians, and killing the first he encountred,

Aczaph, Ascalon, Geth or Gath, and Accaron, Eupales the 31. King of Assyria, which o-It feemeth that Calloin was the first founder there account but the 30, began to rule that of this Nation, because of his kindred on ei- Empire, about the 13. year of David, and

The first King of these Philistims, which Near the same time began Ixion the sethe Scriptures have named, was that Abime- cond King of the Heraclida, the fon of Eurifthenes in Corinth; and Agis the second of the The fecond Abimelech lived at once with Heraclide in Lacedamon: in honour of which Isaac, to whom Isaac repaired in the time of Agis, his successours were called Agida, for Famine, Abimilech then residing at Gerar, in many years after. He restored the Laconithe border of Idumea; which Abimelech ans to their former liberty: he overcame fancied Isaac his Wife, as his Father had done the Citizens of Helos in Laconia, who had refused to pay him tribute: he condemned After Abimelech the fecond, the Philistims them and theirs to perpetual flavery; where-Kings are not remembred in the Scriptures, of it came, that all the Meffenians, whom at till David's time: perhaps the government length they brought into the like bondage, afterwards named Princes of the Philiftims, In like fort from the Sclavi came the howfoever Achie be named King of Gath, the Word Slave. For when that Nation iffuing same to whom David fled, and who again out of Sarmatia, now called Ruffia, had seized upon the Country of Illyria, and made it their After him we read of another Achis vvho own by conquest their victory pleased them lived vviih salomon, to whom sbime travel- fo highly, that thereupon they called them-led to fetch back his fugitive fervant, vvhat felves by a new name, slavos, which is in their time the feeking of his fervant vvas the lofs language Glorious. But in after times (that of his life. Jeremy the Prophet speaketh of warmer Climate having thawed their Northe Kings of Palastin or Philistim. Amos thern hardiness, and not ripened their Wits) nameth the King of Ascalon: Zacharias, a when they were trodden down, and made King of Gaza. The rest of the Wars of the servants with their neighbours, the Italians Philistims are remembred in the Catalogue which kept many of them in bondage, began of the Judges, of Saul and David, and there- to call all their bondmen slaves, using the fore I shall not need to collect the particu- word as a name of reproach: in which sence it is now current through many Countries.

Other Chronologers make this Agis, the are remembred by Eusebius out of Polemon. fets him in the 13. year of Salomon.

390

Ephefus

the third fon of Codrus, affifted by the Iones, built Ephesus in Caria, who after the adjoy- Et Magnetis equis, Minya gens cognita remis. ning of the Ille of Samos to his Territory, was flain by the Carians, whose Country he usurped. He was buried (faith Pausanias) in was built by the Inhabitants of Chalcis in the Ionians (the next Province to Fphefus on ment was given, with condition that the othe feacoast of Asia the less) he enlarged his ther should give name to the City. Of this Dominions upon the Zoles, which joy- luma was Ephores the famous scholar of 1/6neth to Ionia: and that his posterity govern- crates. ed the Cities of Ephefus and Erythra by the Eusebius and Cassioder find the building of name of Balilida in Strabo his own time. Of Carthage at this time, to wit, in the 31. year the expedition of the Iones how they came of David, but much mistaken. For the father police. the expedition of the Iones how they came of Dido was Metinos the fon of Badego, "See the hither out of Peloponnefus, I have "fpoken of Dido was Metinos the fon of Badego, "See the hither out of Peloponnefus, I have "fpoken of Badego," who married Achab King in this tr. already upon occasion of the return of the brother to Jezabel, who married Achab King pof medi Heraclida into Peloponnesus, wherein, with of Israel; and between the death of Favid, the Dores, they expelled the Achai, and in- and the first of Achab, there were wasted ahabited their places in that Land: though bout 45, years. clida 100, years.

built, which had in length 425, foot, and 220, years. Some writers make it probable, that in breadth, fustained with 127 pillars of mar-the #olians, led by Grans, the grand nephew ble, of 70, foot high: whereof 27, were most of Orestes, possess the City and Island of Therenowned by being one of the first that re- mon began the work of the Temple. But it ceived the Christian faith, of which Timothy is a familiar errour in Josephus, to misreckon was Bishop; to whom, and to the Ephesians, times, which in this point he doth so strange-Saint Paul wrote his Epistle so entituled. The ly, as if he knew not how at all to to cast any God the Saviour.

whose Epistles to Salomon, and his to Vaphres, Scriptures make it plainly manifest.

third King of Sparta, and somewhat later a- In the 21. of David, was the City of Magnessa bout the 23. year of David, and say that A- in Asia the less founded, the same which is cheffratus was the fourth King of this race, feated upon the river Meander, where Scibio the same whom Ensebins calls Labotes, and gave the great overthrow to Antiockus. In this Territory are the best horses of the lesser In the tenth year of Achestratus, Androclus Asia bred, whereof Lucan:

About the same time Cuma in Campania one of the gates of Ephefus called Magnetes, Eubea, according to Servius, with whom his armed Statua being fet over him. Strabo Strabo joyneth the Cumeans of Holis, faying Strabo reports that after Androclus had fubdued that to the one of these people the govern-studies.

this of the Iones succeeded that of the Hera- In this time also Acastus lived, the second of the Athenian Princes after Codrus, of the He The City of Ephefus became exceeding fa- which there were thirteen in descent before rolling 58. of 1.7. mous: first for the Temple of Diana therein the State changed into a Magistracy of ten Smaller curioufly graven, and all the rest of choice bes about this time. In the 32. 3ear of David, Ans o marble polisht, the work being first set out Hiram began to reign in Tyre, according to and by Ctesiphon of Gnossos. Secondly, it became Josephus, who saith in his twelfth year Solo-11. other City possess by Androclus in Holis, was accompt. For it is manifest, that Hiram sent also universally spoken of by reason of sy-Messengers, and Cedars unto David, soon afbilla, surnamed Erythraa, who lived 740 years ter his taking of Jerusalem, which was in the before Christ was born. S. Augustine avoweth beginning of David's reign over Israel, when that a Roman Proconful shewed him in an as yet he had reigeed onely seven years in ancient Greek copy certain verses of this Pro- Hebron over the house of Juda. Wherefore phetes, which began (as S. Augustine changed it must neees be that Hiram had reigthem into Latine) in these words: Jesus Chri- ned above 30. years before Salomon; unless . sans stus Dei Filins, Salvator; Jesus Christ son of more credit should be given to those Tyrian records which are cited by Josephus, than to About the time that Joab befieged Rabba the plain words of Scripture contradicting in Moab, Vaphres began to govern in Agypt, them. For, that it was the same Hiram which the same that was father in law to salomon lived both with David and with Salomon, the of the establishing of Salomon: of birth-right, and the cause of Adonijah's death, and of Salomons wildom.

CHAP. XVIII. Of SALOMON.

Salomon by the appointment of God: Kingdom to Salomon. There may be divers he was also called Jediadia, or Theophilus by further occasions; as either that he would Nathan because the Lord loved him.

congratulating his establishment: a custom about David's last Testament, or any thing between Princes very ancient. Whence we else that might prejudice the title of Saloread that David did in like fort falute Ha. mon. num King of the Ammonites, after his obtaining the Kingdom.

though his reign were peaceable. For foon with the customs of the Jews: yet the Kings after David's death, he caused his brother of the Jews were so absolute, as they did dom of Salomon, this motion of Adonijahs, ceffary to confirm, or that the refusal of the was a demonstration of a new treason. For people had authority to frustrate the elder they which had been Concubines to a King, brothers right to the Kingdom, it no where fathers Concubines as a part of the Royaltie. | Galgal: that is, they acknowledged and esta-And David after that wrong determining to blished him. For that he was King long be-touch them no more, did not give them to fore, no man can doubt. In like manner elseany other, but shut them up, and they remained widowed until their death. And this it their King, is to be expounded: as where in seems was the depth of Isbosheths quarrel a- the prohibition, that they should not make bine. And some fignification of this custom bim King whom the Lord shall chuse. may feem too in the words of God by Nathan But to proceed with the acts of Salomon: to David; I have given thee thy Masters house, at the same time that he put Adonijah to fen David to the shame of the nakedness of him: he displaced also the Priest Abiathar, ALOMON, who was brought up unference to this purpose of Adonijab, to marry der the Prophet Nathan, began to with her that was alwaies present with Daa reign over Juda and Ifrael, in the year vid in his later daies, and who belike knew of the world 2991. He was called all that was past, for the conveying of the learn fuch things by her as might be for the Hiram King of Tyre, after Salomons anoin- advantage of his ambition, or that he would ting, dispatched Embassadors towards him, perswade her to forge some strange tale

As for the right of an elder brother which is Kingra. Adonijah pretended, though generally it The beginning of Salomon was in blood, agreed both with the law of Nations, and Adonijah to be flain by Benaiah the fon of therein, & in all else what they pleased. Some Dem. 21. Jehojada, taking occasion from Adonijah his examples also they had (though not of Kings) 15. desiring by Bersheba, that the young maid which taught them to use this paternal au-txose ag-Abifhag (which lay in David's bosome in his thority in transferring the birth-right to a noscito, dando et later daies, to keep him warm) might be gi- younger fon: namely, of Jacobs disheriting portionem ven to him. Whatsoever he pretended, it was Reuben, and giving the birth-right (which duoram: enough that Adonijah was his elder brother, was twice as much as any portion of the o- $\frac{n_{min}}{e\beta}$ just price and found in the Nand fought the Kingdom contrary to the ther brethren) to Joseph: of whom he made mogenitowill of David, whom God inclined towards two Tribes. And that it was generally ac-rum. Salomon. And yet it is faid that a word is e-knowledged that this power was in David, 1885, 1.75. nough to the wife, and he that fees but the it appeareth by the words of Berfabe and Na- 34. claw may know whether it be a Lion or no: than to David, and of Jonathan to Adonijah. I Kingit. fo it may feem that to the quick-fighted wif- For, as for popular election, that it was ne- & 270 might not after be touched but by a King; appears in the ftories of the fews. It is faid 15 and 16, whence Achitophel wished Abfolom to take his indeed that the people made Saul King at 15 and 14. gainst Abner, for having his fathers Concu- themselves a King, it is said, Thou shalt make Dem. 17.

and thy Masters wives. And in the words of death, he rid himself also of Joab, and three Saul upbraiding Jonathan, that he had cho- years after of Shimei, as David had advised Sam to, his Mother. Hereupon perhaps was some re- who took part with Adonijah against him.

CHAP

1 Kings: but in respect of his office, and that he followed David in all his affiictions, and because give the force of a divine precept to these in the ther he spared his life. And thus being esta- shall build an house for my Name. felves cannot but proceed of felf-love, which to whom I refer the Reader. is the root of all impiety: the defire of pri- For the cutting and fquaring of the Ce-obey God, and to rule men, it pleased God ful in hewing timber than the Ifraelites, may to give him vvithall that vvhich he defired (as I think) be included. For Hiram caused not. And I have also given thee (faith God) his fervants to bring down the Cedars and that which thou hast not asked both riches and Firres from Libanon to the sea, and thence honour. This gift of Wisdom our Commen- sent them in raffs to Joppe, or the next port but that it comprehended the knowledge the fecond Chapter, it is plain, that all but of the nature of plants and living creatures, the thirty thousand Carpenters, and the othe Scripture testifieth; though no doubt ver-seers, were strangers, and as it seemeth 1 Kings 4, the chief excellency of Salomons wisdom, the vastals of Hiram, and of Vaphres King of yvas in the knowledge of governing his Egypt. In recompense of this Timber and two harlots.

§. II.
Of Salomons building and glory.

of his materials for the Kings Palace and the Scias me à Deo magno David patris mei reg-Temple of God: for the building whereof num accepisse, cumque mihi pater pracepit temhe had received a double charge, one from plum Dev, qui terram creavit, condere, ut etiam his father David, and another from God. For ad te scriberem pracepit : Scribo igitur, & peto like as it is written of David, that He called a te ut artifices atque fabros ad adificandum Salomon his fon, and charged him to build a Templum Dei mittere velis.

he had born the Ark of God before his Fa- words, Behold, a fon is born unto thee, &c. He bliffied in his Kingdom, he took the daughter He began the work of the Temple in the 1 Ningdom of Vaphres King of Egypt to Wife: for fo Eu- beginning of the fourth year of his reign, at febius out of Eupolemus calls him. He offe- which time also he prepared his fleet at Estona red a thousand facrifices at Gibeon, where gabar to trade for gold in the East Indies. God appearing unto him in a dream, bad him that nothing might be wanting to supply ask what he would at his hands: Salomon the charge of fo great a work. For, that the chooserh Wildom, which pleased God. And Cod Temple was in building, while his fleets faid unto him Because thou hast asked this were passing to and fro, it is manifest. For thing, and half not asked for thy self long life, the pillars of the Temple were made of the neither half thou asked riches for the felf, nor Almaggim trees brought from ophir. Of this half asked the life of thine enemies, behold, I most glorious building of all the particulars have done according to thy words: by which (whereof the form and example was given we may inform our felves, what defires are by God himself) many learned men have most pleasing to God, and what not. For written; as Salmeron, Montanus, Ribera, Bar-19, the coveting after long life in respect of our radas, Azorius, Villalpandus, Pinedas others, vate riches is an affection of covetousness, dars which served that building, salomon which God abhorreth; to affect revenge, is employed 30. thousand Carpenters, to thouas much as to take the fword out of Gods fand every month by course: he also used 80. hand, and to distrust his justice. And in that thousand Masons in the Mountain, and 70. it pleased God to make Salomon know that thousand labourers that bare burdens, which it liked him, that he had not asked the life of it is conceived, he felected out of the Profe-1 (in the his enemies, it could not but put him in mind lites, befides three thousand three hundred of his brothers flaughter, for which he had mafters of his work; fo as he paid and emnot any warrant either from David, or from ployed in all one hundred eighty three thouthe Law of God; but because Salomon defired fand and three hundred men; in which num-Wildom onely, vvhich taught him both to ber the Sidonians, which were far more skilrators stretch to almost all kinds of learning: to Jernfalem. For in the second of Chronicles 1809 14 Kingdom: vvhence as it vvere for an exam- Stone, Salomon gave Hiram twenty thou- 1 Kington King 3,9 ple of his vviidom, the Scripture telleth how fand measures of Wheat, & twenty measures 11. foon he judged the controversie between the of pure Oyl yearly. Enfebius out of Eupalemus in the ninth book of his preparation, the last Chapter, hath left us a Copy of Salomons Letter to Suron (which was the same as Haram and Hiram) King of Tyre, in these words:

E then entred into league with Hiram REX Salomon Suroni, Tyri, Sydonis, atque King of Tyre, from whom he had much Phanicia regi, Amico paterno falutem.

TI Ing Salomon to King Suron, of Tyre, Sy-ninth book; neither is it in Josephus in the don, and Phanicia King, and my fathers eighth book and second chapter of the Fens friend, sendeth greeting. You may understand Antiquities: it being a vain title used by that I have received of the great God of my some of the Affirian and Persian Kings, and father David, the Kingdom: and when my fa- used likewise by the Parthians, and many ther commanded me to build a Temple to God Other after them, infomuch as in latet times which created heaven and earth, he command- it grew common, and was usurped by mean ed also that I should write to you: I write there- persons in respect of the great Hermes the fore to you, and befeech you, that you would be first, which was honoured by that name pleased to send me Artificers and Carpenters to for his noble qualities, as much or more than build the Temple of God.

CHAP. XVIII.

quoniam feribis fabros, ministrosq; ad conden- built Berothon, Gerar, and the Millo or muniad nos redeant.

Cliron of Tyre, Sydon and Phanicia King, was then busied in his magnificent buildyour Letters . I gave God thanks who hath in- entreated his father in law to rid him of stalled you in your fathers kingdom. And be- these neighbours, which Pharaoh performed. der, a Tyrian, born of ad ewish wowan, aman mans successor did sack Jerusalem it self. 15 on admirable in building. Tou will be careful that this fide Jordan, and Balah in Dan: also which may be either Ptolomies Thaadmirable in building. Tou will be careful that Salomon also built Megiddo in Manaffe, on of mentage or by writing, it is ionic what of salomon, the operans as yet call it. Intermediate, therwise delivered in the Scriptures, than ei- in his book of Hebrew places, calls it Thermone nothes, ther Eupolemus or Josephus set it down, but meth. In after-times, when it was rebuilt by between the one and the other.

and was answered as from Hiram.

mus in Eusebius, in the last chapter of that called Chabul.

for his mightiness.

After the finishing and dedication of the To which the King Suron made this answer. Temple and house of the Lord, Salomon fortified Jerusalem with a treble wall, and re-Suron Tyri, Sydonis, & Phanicia Rex, Salomoni Regis falutem. Lectis literis, gratias Mctropolis of the Canaanites, before Jospha segi Deo, qui tibi regnum patris tradicit: & time: so did he Gaza of the Philistims: he 1.8.6.1. dum Templum esse tibi mittendos, mist ad te tion of Jerusalem. For Pharaoh(as it seemeth milia hominum octaginta, & Architectum Ty- in favour of Salomon) came up into the edge rium hominem ex matre fudea, virum in re- of Ephraim, and took Gerar, which place the bus architectura mirabilem. Curabis igitur ut | Canaanites yet held, and put them to the necessariis non egeant, & Templo Dei condito, sword, and burnt their City. The place and Territory he gave salomons Wife for a dowry. And it is probable, that because Salomon to King Salomon greeting: When I read ings, and could not attend the war, that he canse you write that Carpenters and Workmen But he thereby taught the Egyptians to visit may be fent to build Goe Temple, I have fent those parts again before they were fent for; you four foor thou land ien, and a Master-buil- and in his fon Rehoboams time sheshack this the Temple of God is built, that they come home Thadmor, which may be either Ptolomies Thamoron in the defart of Juda, or (as Josephus 30.1. 2. thinks) Palmira in the defart of Syria; which and c. 2. The Copies of these Letters were extant Palmyra, because it stood on the utmost borin Josephus time, as himself affirmeth, and to der of Salomons dominion to the Northeast be seen (saith he) Tam in nostris quam in Ty- of Libanus, and was of Davids conquest riorum annalibus, as well in our own, as in the when he wan Damascus, it may seem that sa-Tyrian annals. But he delivereth them some- lomon therefore bestowed thereon the most what in different terms, as the Reader may cost, and fortified it with the best Art that find in his Antiquities. But were this inter-that age had. Josephus calls this place Thá-Jos. 1. 6. course between Salomon and Hiram either damora, by which name (saith he) given by by message or by writing, it is somewhat o- Salomon, the Syrians as yet call it. Hierom fo, that in substance there is little difference Adrian the Emperour, it was honoured with his name, and called Adrianopolis. In respect The like Letter in effect salomon is faid of this great charge of building, salomon to have written to Vaphres King of Egypt, raifed tribute through all his Dominions, befides an hundred and twenty talents of But whereas some Commenters upon Sa- gold received from Hirams servants; Salolomon, find that Hiram King of Tyre, and Va- mon offered Hiram twenty towns in or near phres King of Egipt, gave Salomon the title the upper Galilee, but because they stood in of Rex magnus, and cite Enpolemon in Euse- an unfruitful and marish ground, Hiram rebius, I do not find any such addition of mag- sused them, and therefore was the territory were, it is true that Salomon in the 21 year and that Tharsis in Scripture is divers times fortified those places which Hiram refused, taken for the Ocean, hath been already de-Further, he made a journey into Spria Zobah, clared in the first book. and established his tributes; the first and last Only it remaineth that I should speak war(if in that expedition he were driven to somewhat of Pineda his strange conceits. fight) that he made in person in all his life. who being a Spaniard of Bætica, would sain He then visited the border of all his Domi- have Gades or Calis-malis, in old times calnions, passing from Thadmor to the North led Tartesus, which is the Southwest corner of Palmprena, and so to the Desarts of Idu- of that Province, to be the Tharses from mea, from whence he visited Eziongaber and whence Salomon fetcht his gold; for no o-Eloth the uttermost place of the South of all ther reason, as it seems, but for love of his his Territories, bordering to the Red sea: own Countrey, and because of some affinity which Cities I have described in the Story of of sound between Tharsis and Turtesjus. For

Ddd

Thefe

GHAP. XVIII.

passages about Affrick.

that voyage, and furnished him with Mari- out of their way to Gades, round about all ners and Pilots, the Tyrians being of all o- Africk, that so they saight be long a coming ther the most expert seamen. From this part home. of Arabia which at this time belonged to | For the direct way to Gades (which if Sa-Edom, and was conquered by David, did the lomon and the Ifraelites knew not, the Tyri-Fleet pass to the East-India, which was not ans which went with them could not have far off, namely, to ophir, one of the Illands been ignorant of) was along the Mediterof the Molucca's, a place exceeding rich ran fea, and so (besides many wonderful inin gold: witness the Spaniards, who not-conveniences, and terrible navigation in withstanding all the abundance which they rounding Africa) they should have escaped gather in Peru, do yet plant in those Islands the troublesome land-carriage between Jeof the East at Manilia, and recover a great rusalem and the Red sea, through dry, desart, quantity from thence, and with less labour and the thievish Countreys: and within 30. than they do in any one part of Peru, or new miles of Jerusalem at Joppe, or some other ha-

The return which was made by these and unladen their ships. Ships amounted to four hundred and twenty talents, but in the second of Chronicles the (saith Pineda) because the huge Island of Ateighth, it is written 450. talents: whereof lantis, in largeness greater than all Africk 30. talents went in expence for the charge and Asia, being swallowed up in the Atlanof the Fleet, and wages of men; and 420. ta- tick Ocean, hindred Salomons ships from lents, which makes five and twenty hundred paffing through the straits of Gibraltar: for and twenty thousand Crowns, came clear. this he alledgeth Plato in Timeo. But that And thus must those two places be reconcithis calamity happened about Salomons led. As for the place 1 Reg. 10. 14. which time, or that thereby the straits of Gades speaketh of six hundred sixty and six talents were filled with mud, and made unpassable, of gold; that fum, as I take it, is of other that there could be no coming to Gade by receipts of Salomon, which were yearly, and the Mediterran sea; or that this indragent which came to him, befides those profits from where the sea runneth most violently, and Ophir,

These towns, as it is supposed, lay in Gali- | My opinion of the land of Ophir, that it is lee of the Gentiles, Non quod Gentes ibi habi-not Pern in America (as divers have thought) c.s. in tarent: sed quia sub ditione regis Gentilis but a Countrey in the East-Indies; with 10.13. erat. Not that it was possest by the Gentiles (faith some reason why at those times they could have Nauclerus) but because it was under the rule not make more speedy return to Jerusalem monics. of a King that was a Gentile. Howfoever it from the Eaft-Indies, than in three years; 615.

whereas it may feem strange that it should be three years ere they that took ship in the Red fea, should return from the East-Indies to Jerusalem, this hath been in part answered of Salomons sending to ophir, and of some already. And further the intelligent may feeming contradictions about Salomons ri- conceive of fundry lets, in the digging and ches, and of Pineda's conceit of two flrange refining of the metal, and in their other traffick, and in their land-carriages between Jerusalem and the Redsea, and perhapsalso Fre Salomon prepared his Fleet of ships elsewhere: so that we have no need to make for India, with whom Hiram joy ned in Salomons men to go many thousand miles ven in Salomons own Country, have laden

But this direct course they could not hold most easily scoureth his channel, should be fmall territory which he there possesseth of Juda. confidered) than in Peru.

sall+10 passage round about all Africa, which else- twelve thousand horsemen; that he spent the state of the s heroka nas failing to Tharsis the City of Cilicia, was slower, threescore measures of wheat, one lines for the cast out in the Mediterran sea, and taken up hundred sheep, besides stags and fallow mann, there by a Whale, that this Whale in three Deer, bugles and fowl; four thousand stalls proceed with our flory of Salomon. Salomon (as feems, from Arabia Felix, and his people should accompany the daughnotices some think, from Ethiopia) and her ters of Idolaters) he took Wives out of rich presents, and Salomons reciprocal mag. Egypt, Edom, Moab, Ammon, Zidon and Heth: nificence, and his refolving of her difficult and when he fell a doting, his Wivesturngratis danda, nec pro arbitrio nova fingenda.

Miracles are not to be multiplied without neat pleasure. Therefore we leave this man in filled with mud, and not also the great Ocean | the Text. But herein Josephus is greatly miin like manner, where this huge Iland is sup- staken, who calls this Queen of Saba Nicau- Jef. an. 8, posed to have stood; or that salomons les, the successor (saith he out of Herodotus) 1, 3, thins being in the Red sea, should neglect the of those thirty and eight Egyptian Kings golden Mines in the East Indies (which were which succeeded Meneus the Founder of infinitely better and nearer to the Red fea, Memphis; adding, that after this Egyptian. than any in Spain) to feek gold at Cadyz by and the father in law of Salomon, the name the way of compaffing Africa; it is most ri- of Pharaoh was left off in Egypt. For as it is diculous to imagine. For the Spaniard him- elsewhere proved that the Queen was of A-1 King, fell that halfo the rich Peru in the West; rabia, not of Egypt and Elbiopia; fo were 6.23 fortifieth in the East-Indies, and inhabites there other Pharaobs after the father in law 15. fome part thereof, as in Manilia, finding in of Salomon. Yea, above three hundred years Jer. 6.46. those parts no less quantity of gold (the after Salomon, Pharaob Necho flew Josias King v. 2.

It is also written of Salomon, that he kept The same Pineda hath another strange in garrisons sourteen thousand Chariots, and dayes swimming above twelve thousand of horses he had for his Chariots and other English miles along the Mediterran seas, and luses, and for the twelve thousand horsemen so through the straights of Gades, and along of his guard. For, the ten thousand stalls in all the huge feas round about Africa, cast up the first of Kings the fourth, are to be taken Jonas upon the shore of the Red sea, that so but for so many horses, whence in the second i King. 43 he might have perhaps some fix miles the of chronicles the ninth, it is written but four 34. fhorter (though much the worse) way to thousand stalls or teems, and in every teem Ninive. This conceit he grounds onely up- ten horses, as Junius and the Geneva underon the ambiguity of the word suph, which stand it. He was said to be wifer than any oftentimes is an Epitheton of the Red sea (as man, yea than were Ethan the Ezrabite, if we should call it mare algojum, the sea full than Heman, Chalcal, or than Darda; to of weeds) for the Red sea. But in Jonas which Junius addeth a fift, to wir, Ezrack. c. 2. 5. it is generally taken in the proper For the Geneva maketh Ethan an Ezrahite by fignification for weeds, and not as Pineda Nation. Josephus writes them, Athan, Æ-would have it, who in this place against his man, Chalceus and Donan the sons of Hemon. own rule (which elsewhere he giveth us) He spake three thousand Proverbs, and his supposeth strange miracles without any Songs were one thousand and five, whereof need. For this long voyage of the Whale, fi- either the most part perished in the Captinished in three dayes, is a greater miracle, vity of Babylon, or else because many acts of than the very preferation of Jones in the Salomons were written and kept among the belly of the Whale: and therefore feeing publick Records of Civil causes, and not there is no necessity of this miracle, we send Ecclesiastical, therefore they were not it back unto him, keeping his own rule, which thought necessary to be inserted into Gods in this place he forgets; Miracula non funt Book. multiplicanda. And again, Non funt miracula cessity, nor delivered without cause, nor feigned of the fall of Salomon, and how long he lived.

9. IV.

his dreams, which (were he not otherwise very learned and judicious) might be to had he no fearcity of women. For the history of the had planty of all other things, thought unworthy the mentioning. But to besides his seven hundred Wives, he kept three hundred Concubines, and (forgetting The Queen of Saba's coming from far to that God had commanded that none of questions; those are set down at large in ed his heart after other gods, as Afteroth of the Zidonians, Milcom or Molech of the | gainst the Aramites, wherein he brought all Ammonites and Chemosh of Moab.

Idumea, Rezin of Damascus, and by Jerobe- the next years work, wherein he did cut off am his own fervant, and one of the mafters all means of succour from the Ammonites; of his works, who by the ordinance of God all Syria, Moab, and Iduma being now at his tare from his fon Roboam, ten of the twelve own devotion. By this reckoning it must parts of all the territory he had. Dews dum have been the 20. year of Davids reign, and in peccatores animadvertit, aliorum peccatis about the fiftieth of his life, in which he utitur que ipse non fecit: God punishing sin- sent forth Joab to besiege Rabba, and sinishners, ufeth the fins of others, which he himself ed the war of Ammon: wherein also sell wrought not. long peace) were few memorable actions by other half he felt great forrow, by the expehim performed, excepting his buildings with ctation, execution, and fad remembrance of other works of magnificence, and that great that heavy judgment laid upon him by God Indian voyage already mentioned. Forty for his foul and bloody offence. vearshe reigned; how many he lived, it is Now very manifest it is, that in the year not written, and must therefore be found after the death of that child which was beonly by conjecture. The most likely way to gotten in adultery, Salomon was born, who ghess at the truth in this case is, by consider must needs therefore have been nineteen ing the actions of David before and after years old or thereabout when he began to Salomons birth, whereby we may best make reign at the decease of his father, as being estimation of the years which they consu- begotten in the 21. year of his fathers reign, med, and consequently learn the true, or who reigned in all forty. most likely year of his nativity. Sevenyears This account hath also good coherence David reigned in Hebron: in his eighth year with the following times of David, as may he took Jerusalem, and warred with the Phi- be collected out of ensuing Actions: for listims, who also troubled him in the year fol- two years passed ere Absalom slew his brother 2 King, 7. lowing. The bringing home of the Ark Ammon; three years ere his father pardonfeems to have been in the tenth year of ed him, and two years more ere he came into David, and his intention to build the Temple in the year enfuing, at which time he had horses and men, and laid the foundation of fufficient leifure, living in rest. After this he his rebellion, which seems to have been one had wars with the Philistims, Moabites, A- years work. So the rebellion it self, with all ramites, and Edomites, which must needs that happened thereupon, as the Commotion have held him five years, confidering the made by Sheba, the death of Amafa, and the Aramites of Damasco raised war against him, rest, may well seem to have been in the 30. 2 Same II, after such time as he had beaten Hadadezer; year of Davids reign. and that in every of these wars, he had the Whether the three years of famine should entire victory. Neither is it likely, that be reckoned apart from the last years of these services occupied any longer time, be- war with the Philistims, or confounded with cause in those dayes and places there were them, it were more hard than needful to no wintering camps in use, but at convenient | conjecture. Plain enough it is, that in the ten feafons of the year Kings went forth to war, remaining years of David there was time dispatching all with violence, rather than sufficient, and to spare, both for the three with temporizing; as maintaining their years of famine, for four years of war, and Armies, partly upon the spoil of the enemies for numbring the people, with the peffilence country, partly upon the private provision ensuing; as also for his own last infirmity, which every fouldier made for himself. The and disposing of the Kingdom. Yet indeed 17. year of David, in which he took Mephi- it feems that the war with the Philiftims was besheth the son of Jonathan into his Court, but one years work, and ended in three or appeareth to have passed away in quiet; four fights, of which the two or three former and the year following to have begun the were at Gob or Nob near unto Gezer, and the war with Ammon ; but somewhat late in the last at Gath. This war the Philistims under-the tributaries of Hadadezer under his own These things God punished by Adad of allegeance, appears manifestly to have been out the matter of Vriahr wife. So one half In the reign of Salomon (as in times of of Davids reign was very prosperous : in the end of Summer perhaps, it came to tryal of took, as it seemeth, upon confidence gathera battel (for Joab after the victory, return- ed out of the tumults in Ifrael, and perhaps ed immediately to Jerusalem) the causes and emboldened by Davids old age: for he preparations for that war, taking up all the fainted now in the battel, and was after-Summer. Davids personal expedition a- wards hindered by his men from exposing himself unto danger any more. So David had | vanity of humane nature; in the third, he Zervia.

CHAP: XVIII.

with either of these two speeches.

tion. Some indeed have in favour of this lecting help from God by prayer, repaired opinion, conftrued the words of Tolephus, as thither for their recoveries. if they included all the years of Salomon's is a manifest untruth. Wherefore the 40. years | port, than truly. remembred in Absaloms rebellion, may either edness, or perhaps be read (according to stand to examine. Josephus, Theodoret, and the Latine translation) four years; which passed between the return of Absalom to Jerusalem, and his breaking out.

§. V.

Of Salomons Writings.

"Here remain of Salomons Works, the and correcteth manners; in the second, the which he was more liberal to this King, than fix or feven years of rest, in which time it is singeth as it were the Epithalamion of likely that many of his great men of War Christ and his Church. For the Book intidved (being of his own age) whereby the tuled, The Wildom of Salomon (which firring spirit of Adonijah found little suc- some give unto Salomon, and some make the cour in the broken party of Joab the fon of elder Philo the Author thereof) Hierome and many others of the best learned make At this time it might both truly be faid by us think it was not Salomon that wrote it. 1 Eg .: David to Salomon, Theu art a wife man; and Stylus libri sapientie (saith Hierome) qui libre at 25 FT by salaman to God Lambut a wayng child. Saloman is the salaman to God Lambut a wayng child. Saloman is the salaman to God Lambut a wayng child. Saloman is the salaman to God Lambut a wayng child. by Salomon to God, I ambut a young child; Salomonis inscribitur, Gracam redolet elofor nineteen years of age might well agree quentiam; The Stile of the Book of wildom, which is ascribed to Salomon, savoureth of the Nevertheless there are some that gather Gracian eloquence; and of the same opinion out of Salomons profeshing himself a child, was S. Augustine, and yet he confesseth in the that he was but eleven years old when he nineteenth Book, and twentieth Chapter of began to reign. Of these Rabbi Salomon the City of God, that the Author of that feems the first Author, whom other of great Book hath a direct foretelling of the passion learning and judgment have herein follow- of Christ in these words: Circumveniamus ed: grounding themselves perhaps upon justum, quoniam insuavis est nobis. Oc. Let us $20.25 that which is said of Absaloms rebellion, that circumvent the righteous, for he is unpleasing it was after forty years, which they under- to us, he is contrary to our doings, he checketh stood as years of Davids reign. But whereas us for offending against the Law, he makes his Rehoboam the fon of Salomon was 41. years boaft to have the knowledge of God, and he old when he began to reign it would follow calleth himself the son of the Lord, &c. and hereby that his father had begotten him, fo doth the course of all the following words being himself but a child of nine or ten point directly at Christ. The Books of Ecyears old; the difference between their clefiaftes, Proverbs and Cantica Canticorum, ages being no greater, if Salomon (who Rabbi Moses Kimchi ascribeth to Hay the s. Seu. fol. reigned 40. years) were but eleven years Prophet. Suidas and Cedrenus report, that 61. old when his reign began. To avoid this in- Salomon wrote of the remedies of all difeaconvenience, Josephus allows 80. years of fes, and graved the same on the sides of the Reinecc. in reign to Salomon; a report so disagreeing Porch of the Temple, which (they say) Exe-Jul. His. with the Scriptures, that it needs no confuta- chias pulled down, because the people, neg-

397

Of Salomons Books of Invocations, and life. But by fuch reckoning he should have Inchantments to cure diseases, and expel ebeen 40. years old at his Fathers death; and vil spirits, Josephus hath written at large, consequently should have been born long though (as I conceive) rather out of his before his Father had won Terusalem; which own invention, or from some uncertain re-

He also speaketh of one Eliazarus, who feem to have reference to the space between by the root in salomon's ring dispossest di-Davids first anointment, and the trouble vers persons of evil spirits in the presence of which God brought upon him for his wick- Vefpafran, and many others, which I will not

Certainly, fo strange an example of humane frailty hath never been read of as this King: who having received Wisdom from God himfelf, in honour of whom, and for his onely fervice, he built the first and most glorious Temple of the world: he that was made King of Ifrael and Judaa, not by the law of Nature, but by the love of God, and became the wifest, richest, and happiest of all Kings, did in the end, by the perfwasion of a few weak and wretched Idolatrous Proverbs, the Preacher, and the Song of Women, forget and forfake the Lord of all Salomon. In the first he teacheth good life, the world, and the giver of all goodness, of

CHAP. XIX.

to any that ever the world had. Of whom of Hiram and the reign of Bozorius. Stracides writeth in this manner: Salomon Vaphres being dead, about the twentieth reigned in a peaceable time, and was glorious, of Salomon, Sefac or Shifhak (as our English for God made all quiet round about, that he Geneva terms him) began to govern in Egypt. might build a house to his Name, and prepare being the same with him whom Diodorus the Santhuary for ever; How wife wast thou calleth Sosachis; Josephus, Susac; Cedrenus in thy youth, and wast filled with understand- Susessinus; Eusebius in the colume of the ing, as with a floud? Thy mind covered the Egyptian Kings, Smendes; and in that of the whole earth, and hath filled it with grave and Hebrews, Sufac. Josephus in the eighth of his dark sentences. Thy name went abroad in the Antiquities, reproveth it as an errour in He-Iles, and for thy peace thou wast beloved, &c. rodotus, that he ascribeth the Acts of susac but thus he concludeth: Thou didft bow thy to Sefofiris, which perchance Herodotus lorns to Women, and wast overcome by thy bo- might have done by comparison, accounting dy; thou didft stain thine honour, and hast de- sesac another sesoftris, for the great things filed thy posterity, and hast brought wrath upon he did. thy children, and felt forrow for thy folly, Of the great acts and vertues of King cap. 27.

of the Contemporaries of Salomon.

Ear the beginning of Salomons reign, time as Selostris was carried out to take the Agesslans the third of the Heraclidae in air, cast his head continually back upon the Corinth; Labotes in Lacedamon; and foon two foremost wheels next him; which seafter Silvius Alba, the fourth of the Silvii, fostris perceiving, asked him what he found fwaved those Kingdoms: Laosthenes then worthy the admiration in that motion: to governing Affyria, Agastus and Archippus the whom the captive King answered, That in fecond and third Princes after Codrus, ruling those he beheld the instability of all world-

reign, Hiram of Tyre dyed, to whom Balia- became the highest, and the upmost part was firm fucceeded, and reigned feventeen years, as suddenly turned downward, and under Antiochenus against Antolicus finds Bozo- Of this Sesofris, and that he could not be tarius the next after Hiram, if there be not ken for sefac, I have spoken at large in that some Kings omitted between the death part of the Egyptian Kings preceding.

Sefostris, I have spoken already in the story of the Egyptian Princes: onely in this he was reproved, that he caused four of his captive Kings to draw his Caroch, when he was difposed to be seen, and to ride in triumph: one of which four, faith Eutropius, at such ly things; for that both the lowest part of In the fix and twentieth of Salomons the wheel was fuddenly carried about, and after Mercators account; who reckons the all: which when Sefoftris had judiciously millionially time of his rule by the age of his fons. Iofe-weighed, he difmissed those Princes, and all the phus gives him sewer years. Theophilus other from the like servitude in the suture.

CHAP. XIX.

Of Salomons Successors until the end of Jehosaphat.

9. I.

of Rehoboam his beginnings; the defection of the ten Tribes, and Jeroboams Idolatry.

lomon. After his arrival the people pre- therefore it could not be faid as of David,

Ekoboam the Son of Salomon by fented a Petition to Rekoboam, to be ea-Nahama an Ammonitess, now sed of those great Tributes laid on them forty years old , succeeded his by his Father. Sic enim firmius ei fore Im-Father Salomon , and was an- perium , si amari mallet quam metui ; so Ant. L. nointed at Sichem, where the Should his Empire (faith Josephus) be more 23. ten Tribes of Ifrael were assembled: who assigned, if he desired rather to be beloved attended a while the return of Jeroboam as than feared: whereof he took three dayes yet in Egypt, fince he fled thither, fearing Sa- to deliberate before his answer; of whom that he was wifer than all his Teachers. For time Jeroboam the new King fortified Sechem as of himself he knew not how to resolve, on this side, and Pennel on the other side of so had he not the judgement to discern of Jordan; and fearing that the Union and ex-

Counfels; which is the very test of wisdom ercise of one Religion would also joyn the in Princes, and in all men else. But not- peoples hearts again to the House of Dawithstanding that he had consulted with vid, and having in all likelihood also prothose grave and advised men, that served his mised the Egyptians to follow their Idolatry, Father, who perswaded him by all means he set up two Calves of gold for the chilto satisfie the multitude: he was transpor- dren of Ifrael to worship, impiously perswated by his familiars and favourites, not ding them that those were the Gods, or at onely to continue on the backs of his subjects least by these he represented those Gods those burdens which greatly crusht them; which delivered them out of Egypt, and rebut (vaunting falfly of greatness exceeding fusing the service of the Levites, he made his fathers) he threatned in sharp, or ra- Priests fit for such gods. It must need be ther in terrible terms, to lay yet heavier, and that by banishing the Levites which served more unsupportable loads on them. But as David and Solomon through all Ifrael, Jeroit appeared in the fuccefs, those younger boam greatly enriched himself: as taking into advifers greatly miftook the nature of fe- his hands all those Cities which were given verity, which without the temper of clemen-them by Moses and Joshua, for as it is written, ev is no other than cruelty it self: they alfo were ignorant that it ought to be used for Session, and came to Juda. &c. This irreligious the help, and not for the harm of subjects, policy of Jeroboam (which was the founda-For what is the strength of a King left by tion of an Idolatry that never could be roohis people? and what cords or fetters have ted out, untill Israel for it was rooted out of ever lasted long, but those which have been the Land) was by Prophecy and Miracles twifted and forged by love onely? His wir-less parafites could well judge of the Kings but the affections maintaining it, were fo disposition: and being well learned therein strong, that neither Prophecy nor Miracle though ignorant in all things else, it suf- could make them yeild. Jeroboam could not King 13 ficed and enabled them sufficiently for the be moved now by the Authority of Ahia, places they held. But this answer of Rehobo- who from the Lord had first promised unto am did not a little advance Jeroboams de- him the Kingdom; nor by the withering of figns. For being foretold by the Prophet A- his own hand as he stretched it over the chiah of his future advancement, these the Altar, which also clave afunder according Kings threats (changing the peoples love to the fign, which the man of God had into fury) confirmed and gave courage to his given him by the commandment of God, hopes, For he was no fooner arrived, than clected King of Ifrael: the people cryed out, What portion have we in David? wee an Idolater as before, for he held it the fafeft People at Modaler as before, for he held it the fafeft People as the people of the held it the fafeft People as the portion have we in David? wee have no inheritance in the Son of Ishai. Now course in policy to proceed as he had begun. though themselves, even all the Tribes This impious invention of Jeroboam, who of Israel, had confented to Davids anoint- for fook God, and the Religion of his foreing at Hebron the second time, acknowledge- fathers, by God and his Ministers taught ing that they were his bones and his flesh yet them, was by a modern Historian compared now after the manner of rebels, they for- with the policies of late Ages; observing gat both the bands of nature, and their du-well the practice of his Nation, being an ty to God; and, as all alienate resolved hearts Italian born. sic qui hodie (saith he) politice do, they served themselves for the present, vocantur, & propria commoda prasentesq; utiwith impudent excuses. And now over-late, litates sibi tanquam ultimum sinem constituunt, and after-time, Rehoboam fent Adoram, one causam quam vocant status in capite omnium of the Taxers of the people, a man most ponunt: pro ipsa tuenda, promovenda, conserhateful to all his Subjects, to pacify them: vanda, amplianda, nihil non faciendum putant. whom they instantly beat to death with simjuria proximo irroganda sijustita honestastones. Whereupon the King affrighted, tisques subvertenda si religio ipsa pessiundanda got him from Sichem with all fpeed, and re- & denig omnia jura divina & humana violancovered Jerusalem, where preparing to in- da, nihil intentatum, nil per fas nefasq; relinvade Ifrael, with an hundred and fourscore quendum censent; cuncta ruant, omnia pereant, thousand chosen men, Shimei in the per- nihil ad ipsos, modo id, quod è re sua esse sibi perfon of God commanding to the contrary, all fundent obtineant, ac finullus fit qui talia curet; was stayed for the present. In the mean castigareve possit Deus: So they who are now called Polititians, propounding to themselves, as come enemies to the Judeans. So as by those their utmost end and scope, their own commodi- two waies (of late years often trodden) to they image enterancy ope, then our to alledge the eafe of flate for forth, as the principal point to be regarded: for the good of the state, for advanting the flate, for the good of the state, for advanting the state of strate, whom yet the cing, preserving, or encreasing of the state, they powerful God for his Idolatry in few years of justice and lonesty, if Religion is self must go places, astered his citate, for fook the law of to wrack, yea if all rights of God and man must the living God, and made high Places, and be violated, they mill try all courses, be it right, be Images, and Groves, on every high Hill, and it wrong they will do any thing let all go to ruine under every green Tree. what care they, so long as they may have what And therefore in the fifth year of his reign, 1 chan they would; as who should say, there were no God seefac or shishac before spoken of, being now that would offer to meddle in such matters, or King of Egypt, and with whom, as well added had power to correct them.

try of the ten Tribes. Upon this ground Ama- bers at four hundred thousand. This Army 2 King to 2 in the Priest of Bethel counselled the Pro- was compounded of four Nations: Egyptiphet Amos not to prophelie at Bethel; For ans, Lubanns, Succeans, and Culites. The (faith he) it is the Kings Court. Upon this Lubeans were Lybeans the next bordering ground even Jehn that had maffacred the Region to Egypt, on the Westfide. The Lu-Priests of Baal, in zeal for the Lord, yet beans were of Petrea, and of the defart Awould not in any wife depart from that poli- rabia which afterwards followed Zera against murdered him. So strongly doth the painted the red Sea, in 22. degrees from the line vizor of wife proceeding delude even those Northward, about fix hundred Englishmiles that know the foul face of impiety lurking from the best & Maritimate part of Egypt and under it: and behold the wretched ends that therefore I do not think that the Succims or very great examples.

of Rehoboam his impiety; for which he was punished by Sesac: of his end, and Contemrecover the Provinces lost, strengthened made, in imitation of those which David rethe principal places remaining with all en- covered from Adadezer, in the Syrian war: deavour; for he fortified and victualled fif- these Reboboam supplyed with Targets of teen Cities of Juda and Benjamin: not that brass, which were fit enough to guard a King he feared Jeroboam alone, but the Egyptians, of his quality, whom Syracides calleth, The to whom Jeroboam had not only fastned him-foolishness of the people. felf, but withall invited them to invade Indaa: laying perchance before them the uncountable Riches of David and Salomon, the Jews as their Tributaries: Sefac, as it which might now be easily had, seeing ten seems, rendring up to Rehoboam his places think that they may do any thing. If they mean after rooted out, with all his. Rehoboam ha-1800 to oppress their neighbour, to overturn all laws ving also, as he thought, by fortifying divers is of Idumea, as Jeroboam, were familiar, and his Indeed this allegation of raggione del sta- instruments; entred Judga with twelve to, did serve as well to uphold, as at the thousand Chariots, and threescore thousand Michael Amos 7, 13 first it had done to bring in this vile Idola- Horse, besides Foot-men, which Tosephus mm. 86.4. tique fin of Jeroboam the fon of Nebat, which Afa King of Juda. The Succeans according : close made Israel to fin. It was reason of state to Junius his opinion, were of succoth, which : West that perswaded the last French King Hen- signifieth Tents: he doth suppose that they is the ry the fourth to change his Religion, yet the were the Troglodita, mentioned often in Pli-Plania Proteflants whom he forfook, obeyed him, ny, Ptolemy, and other Authors. The Tra- (13) but fome of the Papifts whom he followed, glodites inhabited not far from the banks of files. have ever followed it, whereof Jehn, and all Succei were those Troglodite, but rather those ca.41 the Kings of Ifrael had, and were themselves Arabians which Ptolemy calls Arabes Agyptii, Ichthyophagy, which possess that part of Egypt behind the mountains called Alabastrini, and the red Sea, far nearer Egypt and readier to be levied than those removed Savages of the Troglodita.

With this great and powerful Army, Sefac invaded Judea, and (besides many other ftrong Cities) wan Jerusalem it self, of which Hile Jeroboam was occupied in fetting up his new Religion, Rehoboam and of the Temple, and Kings house, he took the spoyle, carrying away (besides other treafures) the golden shields which Salomon had

From this time forward the King of Egypt of the twelve Tribes were revolted, and be- on that condition, So much may be gathered out of the word of God, where premifing three years, and then died : the particulars the deliverance of Juda after their humilia- of his acts were written by Iddo the Prophet tion,he doth notwithstanding leave them as some part of his Fathers were. under the yoke of Egypt, in these words, Nebis servants, that is, the servants of Sefac.

hoboam reigned twelve years, and his loffes tinued the war against Jeroboam all his life rael four years, rished with that of Nathan, and the rest.

Athens. Abdastrartus, or Abstrartus, in Tyrethe fourth and the fift of the Silvii.

About the 12. of Rehoboam, Abdastrartus usurped the Kingdom twelve years.

Toward his latter times Periciades, or Pyrithiades, began to govern Affyria, the 34. the fon of Balcastartus, recovered the Kingdom of Tyre from the Ufurpers.

of the great battel between Jeroboam and Abia, with a Corollarie of the examples of Gods judgments.

Here we see how it pleased God to punish vertheless they (to wit, the Judeans) shall be the fins of Salomon in his fon Rehoboam? first, by an Idolator and Traytor: and then After this overthrow and dishonour, Re- by the successor of that Egyptian, whose daughter Salomon had married, thereby the received by sefac, notwithstanding, he con- better to assure his estate, which while he served God, was by God affured against all and time. After his death Jeroboam governed If the greatest neighbouring Kings, and when elfour years, Rehoboam lived 58.years, and reigned 17. he forfook him, it was tern afunder by his neanest Vassals. Not that the Father wanhis flory was written at large by Shemejah ted flrength to defend him from the Egyptiand Hiddon the Prophets, but the same pe- an Sesac 3 For the son Abijah was able to leavy four hundred thousand men and with With Rehoboam, Archippus, and Terfip- the same number he overthrew eight hunpus, the third and fourth Archontes or Go- dred thousand Ifraelites, and flew of them five vernours for life after Codrus, governed in hundred thousand; God giving spirit, courage, and invention, when and where it Dorifthus the fift of the Heraclida in Sparta, pleafeth him. And as in those times the cauaccording to Eufebius (others make him the les were exprest, why it pleased God to pufixt and Priminas the fourth in Corinth Over piff both Kings and their people; the fame the Latines reigned silvius Alba Silvius Atys, being both before, and at the inftant delivered by Prophets: fo the same just God, vvho liveth and governeth all things for e-King of Tire was murthered by his Nurfes ver, doth in these our times give victory, fons, or foster-brethren, the elder of which courage, and discourage, raise, and throw down Kings, Estates, Cities, and Nations, for the same offences which were committed of old, and are committed in the present: for King thereof: and not long after Aftartus, which reason, in these and other the afflictions of Ifrael, alwaies the causes are set down, that they might be as prefidents to fucceeding ages. They were punished with famine in David's time for three years, For Saul and his bloody house, &c. And David 15am. 12. towards his latter end fuffered all forts of afflictions, and forrows in effect, for Vriah. Salomon had ten Tribes of twelve torn from his fon for his Idolatry. Rehoboum was Bijah the fon of Rehoboam, inherited spoiled of his Riches and Honour by Sesac A his Fathers Kingdom, and his vices. of Egypt, because the people of Juda made He raifed an Army of four hundred thou- Images, High places, and Groves, oc. and fand, with which he invaded Jeroboam, because they suffered sodomites in the who encountered him with a double num- Land. Jeroboam was punished in himself ber of eight hundred thousand: Both Ar- and his posterity, for the golden Calves mics joyned near to the Mount Ephraim, that he erected. Joram had all his sons slain where Jeroboam was utterly overthrown, by the Philistims, and his very bowelstorn and the strength of Ifrael broken: for there out of his body by an excoriating flix fell of that side five hundred thousand; the for murthering his brethren. Ahab and greatest overthrow that ever was given or Jezabel were slain, the blood of one, the received of those Nations. Abijah being now body of the other eaten with dogs, for math, and Ephron. Soon after which discom- So also hath God punished the same, and fiture, Jeroboam died: who reigned in all 22. the like fins in all after times, and in these years, Abijah, the better to strengthen him- our daies by the same famine, plagues, vvar, lelf, entred into league with Heson, the loss, vexation, death, sickness and calamitims, third of the Adads of Syria, as may be gaties; howsoever the wise men of the World thered out of the 2. of Chron. he reigned but raise these effects no higher than to second causes, and such other accidents, which, as not unknown Æthiopians. And if it be obto work every alteration that happeneth.

CHAP. XIX

6. IV. of Ala and his Contemporaries.

I chro 15, down their groves, and taking away their twelve Princes, Se. high places. He also spared not his own mo- Baasha a King of Israel began to reign in ther, who was an Idolatres, but deposing her the third of Aja, and fearing the greatness of Kings do) for the troubles of war in the leato block him up, he fortified Rama, which fure of peace. For not long after he was in- lieth in the way from Jerufalem toward 84vaded by Zerah, who then commanded all the maria. Arabians bordering Judea, and with such a This war began according to the letter 2 chro. 14. For it is written, that there came against the of Asa; therefore could not Baasha beginthis Camps. have * proved already, and were it but the Zerah, being yet fresh in mind, which book 4. the strong flourishing Regions of Egypt in Juda, and assuch disheartened the enemies. i em c 8. terjacent (who would not suffer a million of Questionless there were some important 2 chro 14 ding on the uttermost South-border of all Asa from adventuring himself with the least being next their eyes and eares, feem to them jected that these desart countries can hardly veild a million of men fit for the wars. Ianfiver, that it is as like that Arabia Petraa. and the Defart, which compais two parts of the holy Land, should yeild ten hundred thou. fand as that two Tribes of the twelve should arm five hundred and fourfcore thousand O Abijah succeeded Asa, who enjoyed Besides, it answered to the promise of God peace for his first ten years, in which to Abraham, that these Nations should extime he established the Church of God, ceed in number; for God spake it of Ismael, breaking down the alters dedicated to that he would make him fruitful, and multiftrange gods, with their images, cutting ply him exceedingly, that he should beget from her regency, brake her Idol, stampt it, Asa after his great victory, entertained Benand burn it. He alfo fortified many Ciries, badad King of syria of the race of Adadeser, will and other places, providing (as provident to joyn with him against Afa; and to the end multitude entred the territory of Asa, as (for of the Scriptures in the 36. year of Asa his any thing that I have read) were never affem- reign: but because in the first of Kings the bled of that Nation, either before or fince: 16. it is faid that Baafha died in the 26. year Judaans, Zerah of Athiopia, with an hoft of, war in the 35. of Afa his reign, but in the 35. ten hundred thousand, and three hundred year of the division of Juda and Israel, for so Chariots, which Asa encountered with an many years it was from the first of Rehobo-Army of five hundred and fourfcore thou- am, who reigned 17. years, to the 16. of Afa. fand levyed out of those two Tribes of Juda It may feem strange, that Asa being able and Benjamin, which obeyed him, and with to bring into the field an Army of five hunwhich he overthrew this fearful multitude, dred and fourfcore thousand good Souldiand had she fooyle both of their Cities and ers, did not cafily drive away Baasha, and defeat him of his purposes, the victories of Abia That this Zerah was not an Æthiopian, I against Jeroboam, and of Asa himself against length between Athiopia and Judau, and might well have emboldened the men of strangers to pass through them) it were suf- Circumstances, omitted in the Text, which ficient to make it appear how foolish the o- caused Asa to fight at this time with money. pinion is, that these invaders were Athiopi- It may be that the imployment of somany ans, But in that the Scriptures acknowledge hundred thousands of hands, in the late serthat Gerar was belonging to Zerah, and the vice against Zerah, had caused many mens Cities thereabouts were spoyled by the Ju- private businesses to lye undispatched, where deans, in following their victory, as places be by the people being now intentive to the longing to Zerah, and that all men know that culture of their lands and other trades, might Gerar standeth upon the torrent of Befor, be unwilling to stir against the Ifraelites, which David past over when he surprized the choosing rather to wink at apparent incon-Amalekites or Arabians; this proveth fuf-venience, which the building of Rama would ficiently, that Zerah was leader of the Arabi- bring upon them in after-times. Such backans, and that Gerar was a frontier town stan- wardness of the people might have deterred Judaa, from all parts of Athiopia fix hun-part of his forces, and committing the success dred miles. Also the spoyles which Asa took into the hands of God. Howsoever it were, as the cattel, camels, and flicep, where- he took the treasures remaining in the temof he facrificed five thousand, shew them to ple, with which he waged Benhadad the Sfbe Arabians adjoyning, and not far off, and rian against Baasha, whose employments Benfederacy with Baasha. For the Israelites were end; an honourable testimony of the peohis borderers and next neighbours, whom ples love, by their general mourning and laneither himself (after his invalion) nor his mentation at his death, and (wherein he was had made themselves masters of that King- God himself. dom. So Benhadad being now entred into After the loss of this good son, the ungodly Nepthalim, without refiftance, he spoiled di- father was soon taken away: a miserable vers principal Cities thereof, and inforced creature, so conscious of his vile unthankful-Baalha to quit Rama, and to leave the same to ness to God, that he durst not suffer his own Ala, with all the materials which he had name to be used in consulting with an holv brought thither, to fortifie the same : which Prophet, affured of the ruine hanging over done, Benhadad, who loved neither party, him and his, yea of Gods extream hatred; being loden with the spoiles of Ifrael, and the yet forbearing to destroy those accursed Itreasures of Juda, returned to Damaseus. dols that wrought his considion. So loath he After this, when Hanani the Prophet repre- was to for fake his worldly wildom, when the

the favour and affiftance of God, he not only ted. caused Hanani to be imprisoned, but he be-16/10 16, ter he had been two years continually tor- along (how far is uncertain) with the fecond reigned 41. years.

Of the great alteration falling out in the ten Tribes during the reign of Afa.

fifty fix years, even to the 16. of foas.

N the reign of Asa the Kingdom of Israel felt great and violent commotions, which might have reduced the ten Tribes unto their former allegeance to the house of David, if the wisdom of God had not otherwife determined. The wickedness of Jero-hadad readily accepted, and brake off con- Family) it procured unto him a peaceable fuccessors after him ever gave over, till they most happy) the favourable approbation of hended Asa, in that he now relyed on the world was ready to forsake him, and all bestrength of Syria, and did not rest himself on longing to him, his hateful memory excep-

Nadab the fon of Jeroboam reigned in the gan to burden and oppress his people, and second and third years of Asa, which are recwas therefore strucken with the grievous koned as two years, though indeed his fapaines of the gout in his feet, wherewith af- thers last year of two and twenty did run mented, he gave up the ghost when he had of Asa, whose third year was the first of Baa- 1 King 152 Tha, fo that perhaps this Nadab enjoyed not 25.

There lived with Afa, Agefilaus the fixt of his Kingdom one whole year. He did not the Heraclidae, and Bacis the fift King of the latter his fathers courses, neither did God alfame race in Corinth, of whom his fuccessors ter his sentence. It seems that he little seared were afterward called Bacida. Aftartus, and the judgements denounced against his fa-Assumes were Kings in Tyre. Assumes there shoule: for as a Prince that was secure took revenge on his brother Phelletes, for of his own estate, he armed all Israel against the murther of Ithobalus Priest of the god- the Philistims, and besieged one of their, des Astarta, whom salomon in dotage wor- Towns. There (whether it were so, that the shipped. Atys and Capys ruled the Latines: people were offended with his ill success, Pirithiades and Ophrateus the Affirians : and recalled to mind their grievous loss of Tersippus and Phorbas the Athenians: Chemmis five hundred thousand under Jeroboam, reigned in Egypt; who dying in the 36. year counting it an unlucky family to the Nation; of Asa, left cheops his successiour, that reigned or whether by some particular indiscretion, he exasperated them)slain he was by Baasha, whom the Army did willingly accept for King in his ftead. Baasha was no sooner proclaimed King, than he began to take order with the house of Jeroboam, that none of them might molest him, putting all of them, without mercy, to the fword. That he did this for private respects, and not in regard of Gods will to have it fo it is evident by his continuing in the fame form of Idolatry which Jeroboam had begun. Wherefore he received the same sentence from God that had been laid upon Feroboam; which was boam had, in his later daies, the fentence of executed upon him also in the same fort: heavy vengeance laid upon it, by the mouth He began to infest Asa, by fortifying Raof Ahia, the same Prophet which had fore- mah; but was diverted from thence by the told the division of Ifrael, for the sin of Salo- Sprian Benhadad, who did wast his Counmon, and his reign over the ten Tribes. One try, destroying all the Land of Nepthalim: fon Jeroboam had among others, in whom Four and twenty years he reigned, and then only God found fo much piety, as (though it dying, left the Crown to Ela his fon, who enfufficed not to with-hold his wrath from that joyed it, as Nadab the fon of Jeroboam had done, two years current, perhaps not one compleat.

CHAP. XIX.

Ela was as much an Idolater as his father: and withall a riotous person. He sent an Army against Gibbethon, the same town of A conjecture of the causes hindering the re-uthe Philistims, before which Nadab the fon of Feroboam perished; but he sate at home the whilft, feafting and drinking with his concurrent.

§. VI.

nion of Ifrael with Juda, which might have been effected by these troubles.

Minions, whereby he gave such advantage against himself, as was not neglected. Zimri, Ifrael in those times, may justly wonder an ambitious man, remaining with the King how it came to pass, that either the whole at Tirza, finding his Master so dissolute, Nation, wearied with the calamities already and his behaviour so contemptible, con- suffered under these unfortunate Princes. ceived hope of the like fortune as Baasha had and with the present civil wars, did not refound, by doing as Baasha had done. Where-turn to their ancient Kings, and re-unite fore he did fet upon Ela in his drunkennes, themselves with the mighty Tribes of Juda and flew him. Prefently upon which fact, and Benjamin, or that Zimri and Tibni, with he stiled himself King of Israel: and began their oppressed factions, did not call in Asa, his reign with maffacring all the house of Ba- but rather chose the one to endure a defasha; extending his cruelty not onely to his perate necessity of yeilding, or burning children, and kinsfolk, but unto all his friends himself, the other to languish away as a in Terza. These news were quickly blown man forsaken; than to have recourse unto to the Camp at Gibbethon, where they were a remedy, fo fure, fo ready, and fo honot welcommed according to Zimri his ex- nourable. To fay that GOD was pleapectation. For the Souldiers in stead of sed to have it so, were a true, but an idle proclaiming him King, proclaimed him Trai- answer (for his secret will is the cause of all tor: and being led by Omri, whom they fa-things) unless it could be proved; thathe luted King, they (quitting the fiege of Gib- | had forbidden Asa to deal in that business, bethon) presented themselves before Tirza; as he forbad Rehoboam to force the rebelwhich in thort space they may seem to have lious people to obedience. That the reforced. Zimri wanting strength to defend straint laid by God upon Rehoboam, did only the City, not courage to keep himself from bind his hands from attempting the suppresfalling alive into his enemies hands, did fet fion of that present insurrection, it appears fire on the Palace, confuming it and himself by the War continued between Israel and together to ashes. Seven daies he is said to Juda, so many years following: wherein have reigned: accounting (as is most like- Abia so far prevailed, that he wan a great ly) to the time that Omri was proclaimed in battail, and recovered some Towns belongthe Camp. For Zimri was also an Idolater, ling to the other Tribes, which he annexed Walking in the way of Jeroboam; and there- to his own Dominion. Wherefore we may fore is likely to have had more time where- boldly look into the fecond causes moin to declare himself, than the reign of se-ven daies, and those consumed partly in Tribes, to suffer any thing under new upmurthering the friends of Baasha, partly in starts, rather than to cast their eyes upon feeking to have defended his own life. After that Royal house of David, from which the death of Ela, there arose another King the succession of five Kings in lineal deto oppose the faction of Omri; whereby it scent, had taken away all imputation, that may feem, that Zimri had made his party might formerly have been laid upon the ftrong, as being able to fet up a new head, who doubtless would never have appeared, if there had not been ready to his hand, fome ftrength, not unlikely to refift and more bold than probable. For Omri was a more bold than probable. vanquish the Army which maintained Omri. not onely an Idolater, but did worse than all 1 King the How long this Tibni, the new competitor of that were before him; which as it might ferve 35 Omri, held out, I do not find; onely it appears that his fide was decayed, and so he King, would not adhere to him, so the course died, leaving no other Successor than his which he professed to take at the very first, of revenging the massacre committed upon the famly and friends of Baasha (Asa his mortal enemy) gives manifest reason, why Zimri, who had wrought that great execution, mediatly choose Teroboam in his stead, as a any. man likely to afford that liberty unto them, ced to a more temperate method than Jero- to God it could not. boam ever meant to do. And furely he that The murther of the Prophets is continual-should more justly than he have expected which are extant of the different courses; the friendship of Juda in that quarrel, held by the Kings of Israel and Juda. in ad-Wherefore in fearthing out the reason of ministration of justice, will find it most prothis backwardness in the ten Tribes (which bable, that upon this ground it was that the was fuch, that they may feem to have never | ten Tribes continued so averse from the line thought upon the matter) to submit them- of David; as to think all adversity more toselves to their true Princes; it were not a- lerable, than the weighty Scepter of that mils to examine the causes moving the peo- house. For the death of foab and Shimei was ple to revenge the death of Ela, an idle indeed by them deferved; yet in that they drunkard rather than of Nadab the fon of suffered it without form of judgment, they Jeroboam, who followed the Wars in person, suffered like unto men innocent. The death as a man of spirit and courage. Surely it is of Adonijah was both without judgment, and apparent, that the very first desection of the without any crime objected, other than the ten Tribes, was (if we look upon humane Kings jealousie: out of which by the same reason)occasioned by desire of breaking that rule of arbitrary justice (under which it may heavy yoke of bondage wherewith salomon be supposed that many were cast away) he had galled their necks. Their defire was to would have flain Jeroboam (if he could have have a King that should not oppress them; caught him) before he had yet committed not to have no King at all. And therefore any offence; as appears by his confident rewhen the arrogant folly of Reholoam had turn out of Egypt, like one that was known caused them to renounce him, they did im- to have endured wrong, having not offered

The like and much more barbarous exefor which he had contended in their behalf, cution, to wit, without law, Jehoram did up-Neither were they (as it feems) herein alto- on his brethren, and upon fundry of his gether deceived. For his affectation of po-greatest men; as also Joash did so put to pularity appears in his building of decayed death Zachariah the fon of fehojada, who had Towers, and in the institution of his new de- made him King, even in the court of the house a chro.24 vised Idolatry; where he told the people, of the Lord: and Manasses did shed innocent 21. that it was too much for them to travel fo far | blond exceeding much, till he replenished Jeruas to Jerusalem. But whether it were so, that salem from corner to corner: and this was his moderation, being voluntary, began to imputed to him as another fault; besides his a King ate cease, towards the latter end of his reign, fin, wherewith he made Juda to fin. Contrari- 16. and in the reign of his fon, when long time wife, among the Kings of Ifrael we find no of possession had confirmed his title, which monument of such arbitrary proceeding, unat the first was only good by courtese of the less perhaps the words of Jehoram the son of people: or whether the people (as often Ahab (which were but words) may be taken happens in such cases) were more offended for an instance, when he said, God do so to me, 310 by some prerogatives of a King, that he still and more also, if the head of Elisha the son of retained in his own hands, than pleased with Shaphat shall stand on him this day: whereby his remission of other burdens, it is clearly it is not plain whether he meant to kill him apparent, that the whole Army of all Israel without more ado, or to have him condemjoyned with Baasha, taking in good part the ned as a false Prophet, that had made them death of Nadab, and eradication of ferobo- hold out against the Aramites, till they were fain to eat their own children; which he Now the reign of Baalha himself, was (for chought a sufficient argument to prove, that ought that remaineth in writing of it) eve- it was not Gods purpose to deliver them. ry way unfortunate; his labour and coft at The death of Naboth sheweth rather the li-Rama was cast away; the other side of his berry which the Israelites enjoyed, than any Kingdom harried by the Syrians; neither peremptory execution of the Kings will. For did he win that one Town of Gibbelhon Naboth did not fear to stand upon his own from the Philistims, but left that business to right, though Ahab were even sick for anger; his fon, who likewise appears an unprofita- neither was he for that cause put to death, as ble fluggard. Wherefore it must needs be, upon commandement, but made away by that the favour of the people toward the conspiracy, the matter being handled after a house of Baasha grew from his good form of judicial form, which might give satisfaction Civil Government, which happily he redu- to the people, ignorant of the device, though shall take pains to look into those examples ly ascribed to Jezabel, an impudent Woman, and not unto the King her husband. Neither their quarrel. And certainly (howfoeverall is it certain, that there was no Law made that the Law cale treason, be interpreted, as whereby their lives were taken from them; tending finally to the Kings destruction) in but certain it is, that the people being Ido- those treasonable insurrections of the vulgar. laters, were both pleased with their death, which have here most prevailed, the sury of and laboured in the execution. So that the the multitude hath quenched it felf with the doings of the Kings of Juda (fuch as are regibloud of some great Officers; no such rea ftred)prove them to use a more absolute ma-bellions, howsoever wicked and barbarous ner of command, than the Kings of the ten otherwise, thirsting after the ruine of their Tribes. Neither do their fufferings witness natural Soveraign, but rather forbearing the the contrary. For of those which reigned o- advantages gotten upon his Royal person; ver Juda, from the division of the Kingdom, which if any man impute unto gross ignoto the captivity of the ten Tribes, three rance, another may more charitably, and I were flain by the people, and two were de-think, more truely, ascribe to a reverent afnied a burial amongst their Ancestors. Yea, fection. Wherefore that Fable of Briarens. the death of Ahazia and his brethren, flain who, being loofened by Pallas, did with his by Jehu, with the destruction of all that 100 hands give affishance to Jupiter, when Royal feed of Athalia, did not (for ought all the rest of the gods conspired against that we can read) fiir up in the people any him, is very fitly expounded by Sir Francis fuch thirst of revenge, as might by the sud-Bacon, as signifying that Monarchies need denness and uniformity testifie the affection not to fear any curbing of their absoluteness to be general, and proceeding from a loving by mighty subjects, as long as by wiscdom remembrance of their Princes: unless we they keep the hearts of the people, who will should think that the death of Athalia, after be fure to come in on their side. Though feven years reign, were occasioned rather by indeed the Story might very well have born the memory of her ill purchasing, than by the same interpretation, as it is rehearsed by the present sense of her tyrannical abusing Homer, who tels us that Pallas was one of the the government, whereon the had feifed. On conspiracy, and that Thetis alone did marre the other fide, such of the Kings of Israel as all their practice, by loofening Eriareus. For perished by treason (which were seven of a good Form of Government sufficeth by it the twenty) were all flain by conspiracy of self to retain the people, not only without the great men, who aspired by treason to the affistance of a laborious Wit, but even a-Crown: the people being fo far from em- gainft all devices of the greatest and shrewdbruing their hands in the bloud of their So- est Politicians: every Sheriffe and Constaveraigns, that (after Nadab) they did never ble, being fooner able to arme the multitude, forbear to revenge the death of their Kings, in the Kings behalf, than any over-weening when it lay in their power; nor approve Rebel, how mighty foever, can against him. the good fuccess of treason, unless fear compelled them. So that the death of two Kings, ing feldome found in Juda, makes it very being throughly revenged upon other two, likely, that the rule it self of government namely the death of Ela and Zacharia, upon there was fuch, as neither gave occasion of Zimri and Shallum, who traiteroufly got and contentment unto the subjects, nor of constusurped, for a little while, their places; on- dence in their good affection to the Kings. ly three of the seven remain, whose ends Upon which reasons it may seem that the how the people took, it may be doubtful. multitude was kept usually disarmed. For o-* King to him that did it, because they were exceeding- only authority of a Queen-mother have de-

CHAP. XIX.

426

This declaration of the peoples love, be-Though indeed it is precifely faid of the therwise it would have been almost impossiflaughter committed on Ahab's children by ble, that Athalia the fifter of Ahab, a stranger Jehu, that the people durst not fight with to the Royal bloud of Juda, should by the ly affraid: and the same sear might be in stroyed all the seed of David, and usurped them at the death of Peka, whose History the Kingdome very near 7. years, without (as others of that time) is curforily passed finding any resistance. Yea when Jehojada over. The like may be pronounced, and the high Priest had agreed with the Captains more absolutely, of the Kings of England, and principal men of the Land to set up Jothat never any of them perished by fury of ash their lawful King, whereunto the whole the people, but by treason of such as did Nation were generally well affected, he succeed them; neither was there any mo- was fain to give to these Captains and their tive urging so forcibly the death of King Ed- men, the spears and the shields that were King ward and King Richard when they were in Davids, and were in the house of the Lord. prison, as fear lest the people should stir in But we need not enter into such particulais. holding the Crown by a more uncertain many, he feared (to wit) the multitude, it tenure.

CHAP. XIX.

And this, in my opinion, was the reason, heavy yoke.

eighth King over the ten Tribes.

6. VII.

of Jehosaphat and his contemporaries.

TEhofaphat, who fucceeded Afa, was a Prince religious and happy, he destroyed all the Groves, Altars, and high places dedicahad tilver, from the other sheep and goats to marry Athalia, this Achab's Daughter. to the number of fifteen thousand and four fourfcore thousand, and Amassa of two hunthese in Benjamin, of those that bare shields, which we call Targetiers, and of Archers under Eliada, two hundred thousand, and under the commandement of Jehozabad a hundred and fourfcore thousand: which numwaited upon the King, befides his Garrisons.

That Juda and Benjamin, a Territory not muster eleven hundred and fixty thousand fighting men, it is very strange, and the num-

Questionless, the Tribes which thought obe- they amounted to three hundred thousand. dience to their Princes to be a part of their Surely, whereas it is written that when news duty toward God, would endure much was brought to Jehosaphat that Mosh and more with patience, than they which had Ammon were entred his Territory to the Kings of their own choice or admission, West of Jordan, and that their numbers were is not likely that he would have feared even the Army of Xerxes, if he could have brought why the ten Tribes did never feek to return into the field 11. hundred and 60, thousand to their ancient Lords: but after the destru- fighting men, leaving all his strong Cities ction of their fix first Kings, which died in manned. I am therefore of opinion (referthe reign of Asa, admitted a seventh of a new ring my self to better judgment) that these Family, rather than they would confubject numbers specified in the second of Chronicles themselves with those of Juda and Benja- the 17. distributed to several Leaders, were min. under a more honourable, but more not all at one time, but that the 300, thoufand under Adnah, and the 200, and four-So Asa having seen the death of 7. Kings score thousand under Jehohanam, were afterof Ifrael, died himself after one and forty ward commanded and mustered by Amasiah, years reign, leaving Jehosaphat his fon to Eliad, and Jehosabad: for the gross and total deal with Ahab the fon of Omri, who was the is not in that place fet down, as it was under the other Kings formerly named. Again, as the aids which Jehofaphat brought to Ahab did not flew that he was a Prince of extraordinary power, fo the Moabites and Ammonites which he feared, could never make the one half of those numbers, which he that commanded least among 'Jehosaphat's Leaders had under him.

This mighty Prince, notwithstanding his ted to Idolatry, and fent Teachers to all greatness, yet he joyned in friendship with places and people wanting instruction; he Ahab King of Israel, who had married that recovered the tribute due unto him by the wicked Woman Jezabel. Him Jehosaphat Arabians and Philistims: from the one he visited at Samaria, and caused his son Jorans

Ahab perswaded Jehosaphat to affist him hundred. The numbers of men of War were in the War against the Syrians, who held more than admirable; for it is written that the City of Ramoth Gilead from him, and Adnah had the command of three hundred called together four hundred of his Prothousand, Jehohanam of two hundred and phets, or Baalites, to fore-tel the success: who promifed him Victory. But Jehosaphat dred thousand; also that he had, besides believed nothing at all in those diviners, but refolved first of all to conferre with some one Prophet of the Lord God of Ifrael. Hereupon Achab made answer that he had one called Michaiah, but he hated that Prophet, because he alwayes fore-told of evil. bred together make eleven hundred and and never of any good towards him. Yet fixty thousand, all which are said to have Michaiah was sent for to the King; but by the way the messenger prayed him to confent with the rest of the Prophets and to promuch exceeding the County of Kent, should mife Victory unto them, as they did. But Michaiah spake the truth, and repeated his Vision to both the Kings, which was, that ber far greater than it was found upon any God asked who shall perswade Ahab, that he other view. Joab in David's time found may go up and fall at Ramoth Gilead? to five hundred thousand: Rehoboam found whom a spirit that stood before the Lord but an hundred and fourfcore thousand: A- answered, that he would enter into his Probia four hundred and eight thousand: Asa phets, and be in them a false spirit to defive hundred and fourfcore thousand: Ama- lude. For as it is said by Christ: Non enim zia inrolled all that could bear arms, and vos estis qui loquimini, sed spiritus patris ve-

CHAP.XX.

but the Spirit of your Father speaks in you: him his ships perished, and were broken in Prophets of Baal, or Satan, incourage Achab prize was overthrown. to his destruction. And as P. Martyr upon this place well observeth, these evil spirits there of Ochazios, against the Mabites, with are ministers of Gods vengeance, and are which Kings of Juda and Ifrael, the Edomites used as the hangmen and tormentors, which joyn their Forces, not forgetting, it seems, Princes fometime imploy, For as it pleafeth that the Moabites, affifted by the Ammonites. God by his good Angels, to fave and deliver had not long before destroyed their Army. from destruction, of which the Scriptures | The Moabites, subjects to David and Salohave many examples: to on the contrary, it | mon, forfaking the Kings of Juda, gave themis by the evil that he punisheth and destroy- selves for vassals to Jeroboam, and so they eth; both which are faid to perform the continued to his successors till the death of As Will of their Creator, licet non eodem animo. chab:but jehofaphar, notwit tanding the Ido-Ecclesiasticus remembreth a second fort of latry of his Colleague, yet as it seemeth he malignant natures, but they are every- was drawn into this War, both to be evenged where visible. There are spirits, saith he, of the Moabites for their desection from uda created for vengeance, which in their rigour to Ifrael as also because they had lately joynlay on fure strokes. In the time of destructi- ed themselves with the Syrians against Josaon they shew forth their power, and accom- phat, and thirdly, to punish their double replish the wrath of him that made them.

Now Michaias having by this his revelation greatly displeased the King, and the Pro- Idumaa, thereby the better to assure that Naphets, whose spirit he discovered, was stroken tion; for we find that both Moab, Ammon and by Zidkiah one of Baal's Prophets, and by Edom were all in the field together at Engad-Achab himself committed to prison : where di against Jehosaphat : But whether they had he appointed him to be referved and fed then declared themselves against Jehosaphat, with bread of affiiction till he returned in it is not certain; for in the 2, of Chron. 11. peace. But Michaiah, not fearing to reply, verf. 8. it is written, that in the time of Jehoanswered, If thou return in peace the Lord ram the son of Jehosaphat, Edom rebelled: and hath not hoken by me. Nevertheless Achab therefore it feemeth to me that the Edomites, went on in that War, and was wounded to when they were flain by Moab and Ammon, death. Jebosaphar returned to Jerusalem, not finding themselves satisfied in such conwhere he was reprehended by Jebu the Proditions as they required, offered to return

2 Chro 18. one that hated God. joyned with the Moabites, Ammonites and I- in the 2. of Chron. the 20. and as plain c. 21. dumeans to invade Judea: who pass Jordan v. 8. that they were not declared, nor had and encamp at Engaddi; and when Jehofa- made them a King, till Jehofaphat's death. phat gathered his Army, the Prophet Jaha- Now in the passage of these Kings towards ziel fore-told him of the Victory, which Moab, whether it were by the extraordinary should be obtained without any bloud-shed heat of the year, or whether the Idumeans of his part: and so when Jehosaphat approach- having a purpose to rebel, misled the Army and Moabites, disagreeing with the Idume. them for want of Water; true it is, that they 2 Chro. 20. on the Idumeans, and brake them utterly: their Parthian expeditions; and had in all firi lognitur in volis. It is not you that speak, shad : but as Eleizer the Prophet fore-told fo in a contrary kind did the devil in the the port of Ezion Gaber, and so that enter- 10his bellion who first forsook juda, and now Ifrael, Both Kings resolved to pass by the way of phet for affifting an idolatrous Prince; and from them, and to joyn themselves with the Army of Juda. For that they were numbred After this the Aramites or Damascens, among the enemies of Jekosaphat, it is plain ed, this Assembly of Nations, the Ammonites of Juda and Ifrael, with intent to inseeble ans, and quarrelling for some causes among suffered the same, if not a greater thirst than themselves, those of Ammon and Moab set up- the Armies of Crassus and M. Antonius did in which done, they also invaded each other; likelihood utterly perished, had not Elisha in which broil Jehosaphat arriving, took the taught them to cut trenches whereinto the spoil of them all without any loss of his part, water sprang, by which not only Jehosaphat as it was fore-told and promifed by God. and his Army, but Jehoram King of Ifrael an Notwithstanding this Victory, Jehosaphat, Idolater was relieved: the great mercy and forgeting that he was formerly reprehended goodness of God having ever been prone to for affilting an idolatrous King, did not with- fave the evil for the good, whereas he never flanding joyn with Ochazias, the fon of A- destroyed the good for the evil. The miferable iffue of this War, and how chab, in preparing a Fleet to fend to Ophir, hoping of the like return which Salomon Moal burnt his son, or the son of the King of Edom, for facrifice, on the rampire of his Affgria, Capetus, and Tiberinus Kings of the own City, I have already written in the life Albans in Italy; of the latter the river Tiof Jehoram among the Kings of Ifrael. Jehosa- ber (tormerly Albila) took name. phut reigned 25. years and died; he was bu- In Jehosaphats time also ruled Mecades or ried in the valley of Jehosaphat, and a part of Mezades in Athens: Agelas or Agesilans in Co-16ha.10. the Pyramis fet over his grave is yet to be rinth; and Archilans of the same race of the mile ter leen, faith Brochard. His acts are written at Heraclida the feventh in Lacedamon. Bade-There lived with Jehosaphat, Ophratenes in Jehoram the Ifraclites. Sorus ruled the Tyrians; Achab, Ochazias and

△△♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦

CHAP. XX.

Of Jehoram the son of Jehosaphat, and Ahazia.

That Jehoram was made King Sundry times.

years old, being eight years a King: others, with whom they did begin and end. but of these eight years, which Jeho- It were perhaps a thing less needful than nings, which are given in Scripture to the any of his progenitors, or having once (in two Jehorams Kings of Israel and Juda, and the 17. of his reign) vouchfased unto him to Ahazia the eldest son of Ahab. For Ahazia that honor, to resume it to himself, or at least is said to have begun his reign, in the seven- wise to defer the confirmation of it, until four teenth year of Jehosaphat. Jehoram the bro- or five years were passed. Yet forasmuch as that is, in the next year after that Jeboram of whereby we may more clearly discover the 1 King 3 Juda was defigned King by his father 3 it be- causes of much extraordinary business ensuing (as we find elsewhere) the eighteenth year ing, I hold it not amiss to make such conjeof Jehosaphat himself, who went with the If ture, as the circumstances of the story briefly raelites against Moab, Hereby it appears that handled in the Scriptures may seem to apthe full power and execution of the royal prove. office was retained still by Jehosaphat, who We are therefore to consider, that this governed absolutely by himself not commu-King Jehosaphat was the first of Rehoboams nicating the rule with his son. But in the fifth issue that ever entred into any streight league 1808, 8, year of Jehoram King of Ifrael, which was the with the Kings of the ten Tribes. All that two and twentieth of Jehosaphat, the old reigned in Juda before him, had with much King took unto him, as partner in the go- labour and long war, tired themselves in vernment, this his eldest son, who was at that vain, making small profit of the greatest adtime 32. years old, his father being 57. Now vantages that could be wished. Wherefore forasmuch as Jehosaphat reigned 25. years, it Jehosaphat thought it the wisest way, to make is evident that his fon did not reign alone a league offentive and defensive between till the eighth of Joram King of Ifrael. The Ifrael and Juda, whereby each might enjoy like regard is to be had in accounting the their own in quiet.

times of other Kings of Juda and If ael, who This confederacy made by a religious King, chross, Eboram the son of Jehosaphat King of consounded with the years of their successors Juda began to reign at thirty two years or foregoers, and must therefore be found by of age, and lived until he was forty comparing their times with the years of those ram is faid to have reigned, four are to be curious, to enquire into the reasons moving reckoned in the life of his father, who going Jehofaphat either to assume unto him his son to the Syrian vear with Ahab, left this Jeho- as partner in the Kingdom, whilft he was ram King in his stead, as Ahab did his son A- lable himself to command both in peace and hazia. This appears by the several begin- in war, the like having never been done by ther of Ahazia succeeded him in the 2. year to enter into the examination of these pas-

did not alwaies reign precifely folong as the with one that did hate the Lord, could not bare letter of the Text may seem at first to long prosper, as not filling from the true root affirm: but their years were sometimes comand fountain of all wisdom: yet as a piece of search seems. pleat, sometimes onely current, sometimes sound policy, doubtless it wanted not fair pretences

Снар. ХХ.

by likely to arife, with mutual fortification mean and unworthy personsin comparison of of both those Kingdoms, against the uncircumcifed Nations their ancient enemies, ten upon the daughter and fifter of two great This apparent benefit, being so inestimable a kings, not upon base women, and meer subjects, that it might not easily be lost, but jects. The Court of Abab, and his samous vicontinue as hereditary from father to fon, it ctories obtained against the Sgrian Benhadad was thought a very good course to have it were matter sufficient to make an insolent confirmed by some fure bond of affinity, and man think highly of himself, as being allied thereupon was Athalia the daughter of Omri, fo honourably, who could otherwise have and fifter of Ahab King of Ifrael, given in found in his heart well enough, to despite all marriage to Jehoram, who was fon and heir his brethren, as being the eldest, and heir apapparent to the King of Juda. This Lady parent to the Crown, whereof already he was of a masculine spirit, and had learned so had, in a manner, the possession. much of Queen Jezabel her brothers wife, How foon his vices brake out, or how that fhe durft undertake, and could through- long he dissembled them and his idolatrous ly perform a great deal more in Jerusalem, religion, it cannot certainly be known. Like than the other knew how to compass in Sa- enough it is, that some smoke, out of the maria. She was indeed a fire-brand ordai- hidden fire, did very soon make his fathers ned by God to confume a great part of the eyes to water; who thereupon caused the noblest houses in Juda, and perhaps of those young man to know himself better, by makmen or their children, whose worldly wis- ing him fall back into rank among his dom, regardless of Gods pleasure, had younger brethren. And surely the doings of brought her in-the syrian war at Ramoth Gilead, wherein the milgovernment of his ungodly son. For Juda and Ifrael did adventure equally, but the good King was fain to make his progress the profit of the victory should have redoun- round about the Land, reclaiming the ded wholly to Ahab: as godly Princes very people unto the service of God, and appointcannot be well affected to his fervants. Be- tained by Asa, and by himself, had not suffered fore their fetting forth, Ahab defigned, as alteration, and the course of Justice been per-King, his fon Abaziab; not so much perhaps werted, by the power of such as had bornatin regard of the uncertain events of war thority. But the necessity that then was offection none of his predecessors had ever done formation, appears by the charge which the the like, upon the like occasions) nor as fear- King did give to the Judges; and by his coming the threatnings of the prophet Michaia mission given to one of the Priests in spi-(for he despised them) as inviting Jehosaphat ritual causes, and to the Steward of his by his own example, to take the same course, house in temporal matters, to be generall wherein he prevailed.

often, in making his fon Jehoram King.

led by his wife, especially for his forfaking reigned alone, as the best Chronologers and the religion of his godly Ancestors, and fol- Expositors of the holy Text agree. So he conlowing the abominable superstitions of the tinued in private estate, until the two and house of Achab.

pride, and abhorring to live a private life, the tion to former dignity are not fet down, yet whole course of her actions witnesseth at we may not think, that motives thereto, large. Much vain matter she was able to pro- appearing substantial, were wanting. Jeho.

pretences of much common good there- that his brethren and kindred were bur

Tehosaphat about the same time, argue no smal The first fruits of this great league, was distemper of the whole country, through feldom thrive by matching with Idolaters, ing Judges throughout all the strong Cities of but rather serve the turns of those false Juda City by City. This had been a needless a through the friends, who being ill affected to God himself bour, if the religion taught & strongly main-

This was not till after the death of Ahazia the fon of Abab; but how long after it is uncertain For Jehoram the brother of Ahazia Probable conjectures of the motives inducing began his reign (as hath been already nothe old king Jehosaphat to change his purpose ted) in the eighteenth of Jehosaphat, which was then accounted the second of Jehoram, Jehosaphat's son, though afterward this Jeho-Any arguments do very ftrongly prove ram of Juda had another first and second Jehoram to have been wholly over-ru- year, even in his fathers time, before he twentieth of his fathers reign, at which time, That she was a woman of intollerable though the occasions inducing his restituduce, whereby to make her husband think ram of Ifrael held the same correspondency with Jekosaphat that his father had done; and they were all taken and slain, and with them that the young Prince of Juda was again or when the Tyrant fought their lives, or had the daily negotiations between the two durft fay the contrary? Kings of Juda and Israel, and the affinity be- After this Jehoram took upon him, as between them contracted in the person of Je- ing now Lord alone to make invasions in horam, might offer some good occasions there. Religion, wherein he vvas not contented, as unto. Neither isit certain how the behaviour other Idolatrous Princes, to give way and of the younger fons, in their elder brothers fafe conduct unto Superstition and Idolatry differace, might cause their father to put him nor to provoke and encourage the people in possession for fear of tumult after his to that fin, whereto it is wonderful that death, or the deep diffimulation of Jehoram they were so much addicted, having such himself might win the good opinion both of knowledge of God, and of his detelling that his Father and Brethen; it being a thing above all other fins; but he used compulusual in mischievous fell natures, to be as ab- sion, and was (if not the very first) the first iect and servile in time of adversity, as inso- that is registred, to have set up Irreligion by lent and bloody upon advantage. This is force. manifest, that being repossessed of his former Whilst he was thus busied at home, in doestate, he demeaned himself in such wise to- ing what he listed, the Edomites his Tributaward his brethren, as caused their father to ries rebelled against him abroad; and haenable them, not only with store of silver and ving hitherto since David's time, been govergold, and of precious things, (which kind of ned by a Vice-Roy, did now make unto liberality other Kings doubtless had used themselves a King. Against these Jehoram in unto their younger fons) but with the cu- person made an expedition, taking along flody of flrong Cities in Juda, to affure them, with him his Princes, and all his Chariots; if it might have been, by unwonted means, with which he obtained victory in the field, against unwonted perils.

§. III.

The doings of Jehoram when he reigned alone and the rebellion of Edom and Libna.

If they came in upon the summons of a King decrepit age of Ifrael, and reigned as Kings, their brother, then had he them without even in Jerusalem it felf. any more adoe; if they flood upon their The freedom of the Edomites, though pure guard, then were they Traytors, and so un- chased somewhat dearly, encouraged Libable to hold out against him, who besides na, a great City within juda, which in the his own power, was able to bring the forces time of Jospua had a peculiar King, to rebel of the Ifraelitish Kingdom against them; so against jehorum, and set it sels in liberty. that the apparent likelihood of their final Libra ftood in the confines of Benjamin and made use of it. He drew the Judeans into the for company many great men of the Land. war of Mah, at which time it might well be, such belike as either had taken their part, dained King by his father, as in the Syrian been appointed Rulers of the Country, expedition he had been. Or if we ought ra- when Jekoram was depoted from his governther to think, that the preparations for the ment; in which office they, without forbeaenterprize against Moab did not occupy so much time, as from the eighteenth of Jehosa doing of many things derogatory to their phat, in which year that Nation rebelled a- young Master; which if he would now call gainst Ifrael unto his two and twentieth; yet treason, saying that he was then King, who compelling the Rebels to fly into their places of advantage, whereof he forced no one, but went away contented with the honour that he had gotten in beating and killing some of those whom he should have subdued, and kept his fervants. Now began the prophecy of Isaac to take effect, wherein he foretold, that Efan in process of time should break the yoke of Jacob. For after this the Edo-Dut all this providence availed nothing; mites could never be reclaimed by any of Bior an higher providence had otherwife the Kings of Juda, but held their own fo determined of the sequel. When once the well, that when, after many civil and forrein good old man, their Father, was dead, the wars, the Jews by fundry Nations had been younger fons of Jehosaphat found ftrong Ci- brought low; Antipater the Edomite, with ties, a weak defence, against the power of Herod his son, and others of that race followhim unto whom the Citizens were obedient ing them, became Lords of the Jews, in the Overthrow, sufficed to make all forfake them of Dan, far from the affistance of any borders in the very beginning. Howsoever it was, ing enemies to Inda, and therefore so unlikely it was to have maintained it felf in liber- But it feems that of those great numbers ty, that it may feem ftrange how it could e- which his father could have levied, there scape from utter destruction, or at the least were not many which 'Jehoram could well from some terrible vengeance, most likely trust; and therefore perhaps he thought it an to have been taken, by their powerful, cruel, eafier loss, to let one Town goe, then to put and throughly incenfed Lord. The Ifrae- weapons into their hands, who were more lite held such good intelligence at that time likely to follow the example of Libna, than with Juda, that he would not have accepted to punish it. So desperate is the condition of the Town, had it offered it felf unto him: Tyrants, who thinking it a greater happiness neither do we read that it fought how to to be feared than to be loved, are fain themcast it self into a new subjection, but conti- selves to stand in fear of those, by whom they nued a free state. The rebellion of it against might have been dreadful unto others. Jehoram, was, Because he had forsaken the Lord God of his Fathers; which I take to have not only been the first and remote cause, but even the next and immediate reason, moving of the miseries falling upon Jehoram, and of the inhabitants to do as they did: for it was a Town of the Levites; who must needs be driven into great extremities, when a religidriven into great extremities, when a religion, contrary to Gods Law, had not onely any impression of Gods displeasure in it all that were unwilling. As for the use of threatned both his people, his children, his the Temple at Jerusalem (which, being de- wives, and his own body. Hereby likewiseit ten revolted Tribes by any of the Religious durft not reprove him to his face, as they had Kings, who rather invited the Ifraelites thidone many of his predecessors, both good ther, and gave them kind entertainment: un- and evil Kings; but were fain to denounce der Idolaters they must have been without Gods judgements against him by letters,keeit, whether they lived free, or in subjection. ping themselves close and far from him. This Yet it feems that private reasons were not Epistle is said to have been sent unto him membred, wherein Jehosaphat reformed his phat. Wherefore it may be that Elias left this (according to the trust reposed in them) neg- | heaven to St. Giles. lect in discharging their duties, likely it is that he meant to be even with them, & make threatning Epistle, the accomplishment of the

his death.

THese afflictions not sufficing to make fome allowance to countenance it by the the mind of the wicked Prince; a Prophecy King, but compulfive authority to force unto in writing was delivered to him, which vout men, they might fear to lofe by this re-bellion) it was never denied to those of the Gods servants; in as much as the Prophets wanting, which might move them rather to from Elias the Prophet. But Elias was tran- 1 close do than suffer that which was unwarranta-slated, and Elizeus prophesied in his stead is ble. For in the general visitation before re- before this time, even in the daies of Jehofa - 1849.11. kingdom, the good old King appointing new prophecy in writing behind him, or that (as Governours, and giving them especial some conjecture) the errour of one letter in charge to do justice without respect of per-writing, was the occasion that we read Elias fons, used these words; The Levites shall be for Elizeus. Indeed any thing may rather be officers before you; Be of good courage, and do believed than the Tradition held by some it, and the Lord shall be with the good, By these of the Jewish Rabbins, that Elias from heaven phrases, it seems, that he encouraged them did send this Epistle; a tale somewhat like against the more powerful, than just procee- to the sable of our Ladies letters, devised by dings of his fon; whom if the Levites did | Erasmus, or of the Verse that was sent from

But whofoever was the Authour of this them now to feel, as many Princes of the prophecy was as terrible as the fentence. land had done, his heavy indignation. How For the Philistims and Arabians brake into it happened that Libna was not hereupon Judaa, and took the Kingshouse, wherein destroyed, yea, that it was not (for ought that they found all, or many of his children, and we can read) so much as besieged or mole- wives, all which they slew, or carried away, sted, may justly seem very strange. And the with great part of his goods. These Philimore strange it is in regard of the mighty stims had not presumed since the time of Da-Armies which Jehosaphat was able to raise, vid, to make any offensive warre till now; being sufficient to have over-whelmed any one Town, and buried it under the earth, had lost the best of their Towns, mainwhich they might well in one moneth have taining themselves in the rest of their small cast into it with shovels, by ordinary approal territories, by defensive arms, to which they were constrained at Gibbethon by the Ifrae- | was so large and populous: and therefore horsemen, and ill appointed; their Country were able safely to conveigh away. affording no other furniture, than fuch as The flaughter committed by Jehn on the might make them fitter to rob and spoil in two and forty brethren of Ahazia, or (as they the open fields, than to offend ftrong Cities, are called eliewhere) so many of his brothers such as were thick fet in Juda. True it is, that sons, and the cruel massacre wherein all the in ages long after following, they conquered Royal feed perified (only Joss excepted) all the South parts of the world then known, under the tyranny of Athalia, following in a very short space of time, destroying within two years after this invasion of the fome, and building other some very stately Philistims and Arabians, make it seem proba-Cities. But it must be considered, that this ble, that the sons of Jeboran were not all was when they had learned of the Romans claim at once, but that rather the first murthe Art of War; and that the provisions ther began in his own time, and was seconwhich they found, together with the Arts ded by many other heavy blows, wherewith which they learned, in one subdued Pro- his house was incessantly striken, until it was vince, did make them able and skilful in pur- in a manner quite hewed down. fuing their conquest, and going on into Regions far removed from them. At this day ha- was extended against the body of this wieving lost in effect all that they had gotten, ked King, smiting him with a grievous dis-such of them as live in Arabia it self are good case in his bowels, which lest him not until horsemen, but ill appointed; very danger- his guts fell out, and his wretched soul deous to passengers, but unable to deal with parted from his miserable carkass. The good Souldiers, as riding stark naked, and people of the Land, as they had small cause rather trusting in the swiftness of their horses of comfort in his life, so had they not the spoiled Judea in the time of Jehoram. For Juda, though his own son succeeded him fart, wanting manual Arts whereby to supply same spirits that had been his Fathers evil the naturals with furniture: neither are their Angels. Athalia had other matters to trouther adherents of the Philistims. Out of this a dead husband. She was thinking how we may infer, that one half, yea, or one quar- to provide for the future, to maintain her ter of the numbers found in the least muster own greatness, to retain her favourites in of Juda and Benjamin under Jehosaphat their authority, and to place about her nough to have driven away far greater for- she thought it unseasonable to make much ces than these enemies are likely to have a-decabout a thing of nothing, and offend brought into the field, had not the people the peoples eyes, with a flately funeral of been unable to deal with them, for lack of a man by them detefted: but rather chose weapons, which were now kept from them to let the blame of things passed be laid upby their Princes jealousie, as in Saul's time on the dead, than to procure an ill opinion by the policy of the Philiftims.

which these invaders took, was not his Palace vvicked Instigators, having made greedy in Jerusalem, but rather some other house of use of bad imployments, to charge, not only his abroad in the Country, where his wives with his own vices, but with their faults aland children at that time lay for their recre- to, the man vyhose evil inclinations their siniation: because we read not that they did ster counsels have made worse, vvhen once fack the City, or spoil the Temple, which he is gone, and can profit them no longer. would have invited them as a more commo- The death of Jehoram fell out indeed in a budious booty, had they got possession thereof. sie time; when his friend and cousin the Isra-Yet perhaps they took Jerusalem it self by elite, who had the same name, was entangled furprize, the people being disarmed, and the in a dissicult War against the Aramite; and Kings guard too weak to keep them out; yet therefore could have no better leafure to lites. The Arabians were likely to have been having done what spoil they could, withthen, as they are now, a naked people, all drew themselves with such purchase as they

After these calamities, the hand of God than in any other means of refiftance, where good manners to pretend forrow for his they are well opposed. And such, or little death; wherefore he was denied a place of better, may they feem to have been, that burial among his Ancestors the Kings of their Country was alwayes barren and de- in the Kingdom, who was guided by the bands named as chief in that action, but ra- ble her head, than the pompous interring of (wherein were inrolled three hundred and son fuch Counfellours of the boule of Ahab : 16/100/16 eighty thousand fighting men) had been e- as vvere tittelt for her turn. Wherefore 44 + of her felf and hers, which it now did con-It may feem that the house of the King cern her to avoid. Such is the quality of had not the courage to hold it, because it help Athalia, in setting of things according through the same hinderance) to help her which they wan, but not without blows: for husband, when he was diffrested by the Phi- the Aramites sought so well, that the King of listims; Yea, rather he needed and craved Ifrael was fain to adventure his own perion. the affiftance of the men of Juda, for the ta- which escaped not unwounded. king in of Ramoth Gilead, where they had not feed fo well the last time, that they strengly, in expectation of some attempt should willingly run thither again, unless likely to be made by Hazael King of Aram: they were very fairly intreated.

CHAP: XIX.

thought good to handle the more particu- with more quiet he might attend the curing larly purfuing the examination of all occur- of his wounds; and Ahazia returned to Terences, as far as the circumstances remembred rusalem. It seems that he was but newly come in holy Scripture would guide me by their home (for he reigned in all feantly one year, directions) to the end that it might more whereof the former expedition, with the plainly appear, how the corrupted affections preparations for it, had taken up a great of men, impugning the revealed will of God, [part] when he did make a new journey, as it accomplish nevertheless his hidden purpose, were for good manners sake to visit the King and without miraculous means, confound of Ifrael, who lay fore of his wounds. Belike themselves in the seeming-wife devices of Athalia was browing some new plots, which their ownfolly: as likewise to the end that his presence would have hindered, and all men might learn to submit their judge- therefore sought every occasion to thrust ments to the ordinance of God, rather than him abroad: for otherwise it was but a vain to think, that they may fafely dispense with piece of work so to leave his kingdom, hahis commandements, and follow the prudent ving no other business than by way of comconceits which worldly wifdom dictateth plement to go fee one whom he had feen veunto them. For in fuch kind of unhappy fub- fterday. Certain it is that the Lord had refoltilties, it is manifest that Athalia was able to ved at this time to put in execution that heafurnish both her Husband and her Son; but vy judgement, which he had laid by the the issue of them partly hath appeared al- mouth of Elias the Prophet upon the house ready, and partly will appear, in that which of Ahab. And hereupon at this time had he immediatly followeth.

the King of Israel.

in the twelfth year of Jehoram the fon of der and examine. Abab King of Ifracl, and reigned but one year. Touching his age, it is a point of much more difficulty than importance to know it: yet hath it bred much disputation, whereof How Ahazia perished with the house of Ahab: I fee no more probable conclusion than that of Torniellus, alledging the Edition of the Septuagint at Rome, Anno Domini 1588. which faith that he was twenty years old in the beginning of his kingdom; and the An- lead, a Disciple of Elizeus the Prophet came notations thereupon, which cite other Co- in among the Captains that were fitting topies, that do give him two years more. Like gether; who calling out among them Jehn, chough he is to have been young: for he was a principal man, took him apart, and anointgoverned by his Mother, and her Ministers, ed him King over Ifrael, rehearing unto him who gave him counfel, by which he perished. the Prophecy of Elias against the house of In matter of Religion he altered none of his Ahab, and letting him understand that it was fathers courses. In matter of State he like- the pleasure of God to make him executiowife upheld the league made with the house ner of that sentence. The fashion of the Mefof Abab. He was much busied in doing little, senger was such as bred in the Captains a deand that with ill success He accompanied his sire to know the errand, which Jehn thought to her own mind, than he had (perhaps Coufin the Ifraelite against Ramoth Gilead

The Town being won, was manned ey were very fairly intreated. | which done, Jehoram King of Islaed with-The acts of this wicked man I have drew himself to the City of Jezrael, where disposed not onely the concurrence of all othe hings, which in mans eyes might feem to have been accidental, but the very thoughts and affections of such persons, as intended of the reign of Ahazia, and his business with nothing less than the fulfilling of his high pleasure. Of these Athalia doubtless was one; whose mischievous purposes it will Chazias, or Akazia, the son of Jehoram shortly be needful, for explanation of some and Athalia, began his reign over Juda, difficulties arifing, that we diligently confi-

and how that Family was destroyed by Jehu.

"He whole Army of Ifrael, with all the He whole Army of Israel, with all the principal Captains, lying in Ramoth Gimeet to let them know, as doubting vvhe-tidings were brought in, that the watchman perform it.

put himself in possession of it, but used the all were well, was retained by him, who infirst heat of their affections, vvho joyned tended to give the King as little warning as with him, in fetting on foot the butiness might be. The feeming negligence of this vyhich nearly concerned him, and vvas not fellow in not returning vvith an answer, to be fore flowed, being no more his own might argue the matter to be of small importhan Gods.

ten, or no otherwise remembred, than as an held him till death did seize upon him. unlikely tale by them that beheld the majeand forty Princes of his blood expected.

tents, first against the Aramites, and then a- when she least expected it. But she, full of ingainst Moab, Edom, and other rebels and ene- dignation and proud thoughts, made her felf mies: or else were triumphing in joy of that ready in all hafte, and painted her face, howhich was already atchieved, and the ping with her stately and imperious looks to Queen-mother dreffing her felf in the bra- daunt the Traitor, or at least to utter some vest manner to come down amongst them; Apophthegme that should express her brave ther they had over-heard all the talk or no. had from a Tower discovered a company When he had acquainted them vvirh the coming. These news were not very troublevyhole matter, they made no delay, but some for the Army that lay in Ramoth Gileforthwith proclaimed him King. For the ad, to be ready against all attempts of the Prophecy of Elias vvas vvell known among Aramites, was likely enough to be discharthem, neither durst any one oppose himself ged upon some notice taken that the enemy against him, that was by God ordained to would not, or could not stir. Onely the King fent out an Horfe-man to know what the Jehu, vvho had upon the sudden this great matter was, and to bring him word. The mefhonour thrown upon him, vvas not flow to fenger coming to Jehu, and asking whether tance: yet the King to be fatisfied fent out The first care was that no news of the re- another that should bring him word how volt might be carried to Jezreel, vvhereby all vvent; and he vvas likewise detained by the King might have had vvarning either to Jehu. These dumb shews bred some suspicion fight or flee: this being foreseen, he marched in Jehoram, vvhom the Watchman certified fwiftly away, to take the Court vvhile it vvas of all that happened. And now the company yet secure. King Jehoram vvas now so vvell drew so near, that they might, though not recovered of his Wounds, that he could en- perfectly, be discerned, and notice taken of dure to ride abroad, for which cause it Jehn himself by the furious manner of his feems that there was much feafting, and joy marching. Wherefore the King that was made, especially by Queen Jezabel, who kept | loth to discover any vveakness, caused his her state so well, that the brethren of Abazia | Chariot to be made ready, and issued forth coming thither at this time, did make it as with Abazia King of Juda in his company, well their errand to falute the Queen, as to whose presence added majesty to his train, when strength to resist, or expedition to flee, Certain it is, that fince the rebellion of had been more needful. This could not be Moab against Ifrael, the house of Ahab did done so hastily, but that Jehn was come even never so much flourish as at this time. Seventy to the towns end, and there they met each Princes of the bloud Royal there were that other in the field of Naboth. Jehoram began lived in Samaria; Jehoram the fon of Queen to falute Jehn with terms of peace, but re-Jezabel had won Ramoth Gilead, which his ceiving a bitter answer, his heart failed him, Father had attempted in vain, with loss of so that crying out upon the treason to his his life; and he won it by valiant fight, where | fellow King, he turned away to have fled. in he received wounds, of which the danger But Jehn foon overtook him with an arrow, was now past, but the honour likely to con- wherewith he struck him dead, and threw tinue. The amity was so great between Ifrael his carkass into that field, which, purchased and Juda, that it might suffice to daunt all with the bloud of the rightful owner, was to their common enemies, leaving no hope of be watered with the bloud of the unjust fuccess to any rebellious enterprizer: so that possession. Neither did Ahazia escape so well, now the prophecy of Elias might be forgot- but that he was arrested by a Wound, which

The Kings Palace was joyning to the flical face of the Court, wherein fo great a wall, by the gate of the City, where Jezabel triend as the King of Juda was entertained, might foon be advertised of this calamity, if fhe did not with her own eyes behold it. In the middest of this security, whilest Now it was high time for her to call to God these great Estates were (perhaps) either for mercy, whose judgment, pronounced aconsulting about prosecution of their in- gainst her long before, had overtaken her,

CHAP. XXI.

1 Chean

22, 4.

might make him odious for ever. Little did in the eyes of men; of men that confidered the think upon the hungry dogs that were not the judgments of God that had been deordained to devour her, whose paunches the nounced against her. (tibium, with which she besmeared her eyes, So perished this accursed woman by the would more offend, than the scolding lan-rude hands of her own servants, at the comguage wherewith the armed her tongue mandment of her greatest enemy, that was could trouble the ears of him that had her yesterday her subject, but now her Lord; and in his power. As Jehn drew near, the opened the perished miserably, strugling in vain with her window, and looking out upon him, be-base grooms, who contumeliously did hale gan to put him in mind of Zimri, that had not | and thrust her, whilest her insulting enemy long enjoyed the fruits of his treason, and sate on horse-back, adding indignity to her murther of the King his Mafter. This was in grief by fcornful beholding the shameful meer humane valuation froutly spoken, but manner of her fall, and trampling her body was indeed a part of miferable folly; as are under foot. Her dead carkass that was less all things, howfoever laudable, if they have without the Walls, vvas devoured by dogs, an ill relation to God the Lord of all. Her own and her very memory vvas odious. Thus the Eunuchs that flood by and heard her, were vengeance of God rewarded her Idolatry, not affected so much as with any compassion murther, and oppression, with slow, but sure of her fortune; much less was her enemy payment, and full interest. daunted with her proud spirit. When jehn Ahazia King of Juda fleeing a-pace from faw that she did use the little remainder of Jehn, was overtaken by the way where he her life in feeking to vex him, he made her lurked; and receiving his deadly Wound presently to understand her own estate, by in the Kingdom of Samaria, was suffered to deeds and not by words. He only called to get him gone (which he did in all hafte) and her fervants to know which of them would feek his burial in his own Kingdom: and this be on his fide, and foon found them ready to favour he obtained for his Grand-fathers offer their fervice before the very face of fake, not for his Fathers nor his own, He died their proud Lady. Hereupon he commanded at Megiddo, and was thence carried to Jernthem to cast her down head-long: which im- | falem, where he was enterred with his Ancemediately they performed, without all re- ftors, having reigned about one year. gard of her greatness and estate, wherein she foirit, and brand him with such a reproach as had a few hours before shined so gloriously

CHAP. XXI.

Of Athalia; and whose son he was that succeeded her.

5. I.

Of Athalia's usurping the Kingdom, and what pretences she might forge.

Athalia upon the death of her they faw or heard. fon have given occasion to divers opinions Yet ambition, how violent soever it be, is concerning the Pedigree of Joas, who reign-feldom or never fo shameless as to resule the ed shortly after. For Athalia being thus dif-commodity of goodly pretences offering poiled of her for under whose name she had themselves; but rather scrapes together all ruled at her pleasure, did forthwith lay hold that will any way serve to colour her proupon all the Princes of the blood, and flew ceedings. Wherefore it were not abfurd for them, that so she might occupy the Royal us to think, that Athalia, when she saw the Throne her felf, and reign as Queen, rather Princes of the Royal bloud, all of them in a than live a Subject. She had before-hand put manner, flain by her husband, and afterwards into great place, and made Counsellors unto his own children destroyed by the Philistims, her fon, such as were fittest for her purpose, began even then to play her own game, reand ready at all times to execute her will: ducing by artificial practice, into fair likeli-

Fter the death of Abazia, it is very likely; and as likely it is that the great faid that his house was not able execution done by Jehoram, upon the Printo retain the Kingdom: which ces, and many of the Nobility, had made the Note, and the proceedings of people tame, and fearful to ftir, whatfoever bands bad fortune had prefented her. Not vyomen was young and unable to relift. We could not retain it.

as gaped after a change, was to make her heir follow examples that please them, will negthe last and youngest of his house, whom it lest the reasons of those examples, if they most concerned, as being the QueenMother, please them not, and rest contented with the to uphold the first and eldest.

Title; yet could she afterwards feign some sed afterwards, in declaring the title of Joash. her affairs before hand. For though the tain that the had thereunto no right at all, had no reason to suspect or fear the sudden but only got it by treachery, murder, and death of her son, yet it was the wisest vvay open violence, and so she held it six whole to provide betimes against all that might years, and a part of the seventh, in good happen, whilest her husbands iffue by other feeming security.

without great shew of reason, either by her plainly find that the Brethren or Nephews own mouth, or by some trusty creature of hers of Abazia, to the number of two and forty might she give him to understand, how need- vvere sent to the Court of Ifrael, only to saful it were to take the best order whilst as yet lute the children of the King, and the chilhe might, for fear of the worst that might dren of the Queen, The Hender occasion happen. If the iffue of David, which now re- of vyhich long journey, confidered togemained only in his family should by any acci- ther with the quality of these persons (bedent fail (as wofull experience had already ing in effect all the stock of Jehoram that thewed what might after come to pais) the could be grown to any strength) makes it people of Juda were not unlikely to choose a very suspicious, that their entertainment King of some new stock, a popular seditions in jezabels house would onely have been man peradventure, one that to countenance more formall, but little differing in subhis own unworthiness, would not care what stance, from that which they found at the afrersions he laid upon that Royal house, hand of Jehn. He that looks into the courwhich was fallen down. And who could affure fes held both before and after by these two him, that some ambitious spirit, fore-seeing Queens, will find cause enough to think what might be gotten thereby, did not alread no less. Of such as have aspired unto Lorddy contrive the destruction of him, and all his ships not belonging to them, and thrust feed? Wherefore it were the wifest way to out the right Heirs by pretence of Testadefign by his authority, not only his successfor, ments, that had no other validity than the but also the reversioner, and so to provide, sword of such as claimed by them could give, that the Crown might never be subject to any Histories of late, yea of many Ages, afford riffing, but remain in the disposition of them plentiful examples: and the rule of Salothat loved him best, if the worst that might mon is true: Is there any thing whereof one be feared comming to pass, his own posterity may say, Behold, this is new? It hath been al- Ecules 10 ready in the old time that was before us. That Such perswasions being urged, and car- a King might shed his brothers blood, was neltly followed, by the importunate follicita- proved by Salomon upon Adonia; that he tion of her that governed his affections, were might alien the Crown from his natural able to make the jealous Tyrant think, that Heirs, David had given proof; but these had the onely way to frustrate all devices of such, good ground of their doings. They which practice, as more willing by shewing what If Athalia took no such course as this in her they may doe, than acknowledging why Sahusbands time, yet might she do it in her sons. lomon slew his brother that had begun one . com. 1. For Ahazia (befides that he was wholly ruled rebellion, and was entring into another. Je-134 by his mother) vvas not likely to take much horam flew all his brethren, which were better care for the security of his half-brethren, or than he: David purchased the Kingdom, and their children; as accounting his Fathers o- might the more freely dispose of it, yet he difther wives, in respect of his own-born-Mo- posed of it as the Lord appointed: if Jehrther, little better than Concubines, and their ram, who had lost much and gotten nothing, children basely begotten. But if this mischie- thought that he might alien the remainder vous woman forgat her self so far in her wick- at his pleasure ; or if Ahazia sought to cut off ed policy, that the lost all opportunity which the succession of his brethren, or of their the weakness of her husband and son did af-issue; either of these was to be answered ford, of procuring unto her self some seeming with the words which Jehojada the Priest ufuch matter, as boldly the might: being fure Echold, the Kings fon must reign; as the Lord that none would ask to see her evidence, bath said of the son of David. Wherefore for fear of being fent to learn the certainty though I hold it very probable, that Athalia of her son or husband in another World. did pretend some title, whatsoever it might But I rather think that she took order for be, to the Crown of Juda; yet it is most cer-

that she kept a strong guard about her, it is hoods, those possibilities wherewith her hus-

CHAP. XXI.

could not molest Athalia.

to difturb her; which in reason he was it, than could at any time after be found in likely to defire, being an enemy to her whole the means of holding it. House. But he was occupied at the first in This ingratitude of Jehn drew terrible venestablishing himself, rooting out the poste- geance of God upon Israel, whereof Hazael rity of Abab, and reforming somewhat in King of Damascus was the executioner. The Religion: afterwards in wars against the cruelty of this barbarous Prince we may find Aramites, wherein he was fo far overcharg- in the Prophecy of Elizeus, who fore-toldit. ed, that hardly he could retain his own, faying: Their strong Cities shalt thou set on wings much less attempt upon others. Of the line fire; and their young men shalt thou slay with u. of Abab there were seventy living in Sama-, the sword, and shalt dash their Infants against ria, out of which number Jehn by letter ad- the flones, and rend in pieces their women with vised the Citizens to set up some one as child. So did not only the wickedness of A-King, and to prepare themselves to fight in hab cause the ruine of his whole house, but his defence. Hereby might they gather how the obstinate Idolatry of the people bring a confident he was; which they well under-lamentable mifery upon all the Land. For stood to proceed from greater power about the fury of Hazaels victory was not quenchhim, than they could gather to refift him. ed with the destruction of a few towns, nor Wherefore they took example by the two wearied with one invalion; but he smote Kings whom he had flain, and being excee- them in all the coast of Israel, and wastedall dingly afraid of him, they offered him their the Country beyond the River of Jordan. : Kingson fervice; wherein they fo readily shewed Notwithstanding all these calamities, it seems 31 themselves obedient, that in less than one that the people repented not of their Idodaies warning, they fent him the heads of all latry; (For in those daies the Lord began to those Princes, as they were enjoyned by a loath Ifrael;) but rather it is likely, that they fecond letter from him. After this he surpri- bemoaned the noble house of Ahab, under means he drew them all together into one ly fought for the conquest of syria, where monuments of that impiety.

ferveshe would needs help to piece out Gods reposed all their confidence. providence with his own circumspection; doing therein like a foolish greedy gamester, vyho by stealing a needless Card to assure himself of vvinning a stake, forfeits his whole test. He had questionless displeased many, by that which he did against Baal; and many more he should offend by taking from them was that Idolatry of Jeroboam. Yet all these. how many foever they were, had never How Jehu fent his time in Ifrael, fo that he once thought upon making him King, if God. whom (to retain them) he now forfook. had not given him the Crown, when more IN all this time Jehn did never goe about difficulties appeared in the way of getting zed all the Priefts of Baal by a fubrilty, feig-ning a great facrifice to their god, by which whom they were now a prey, & had brave-Temple, vwhere he flew them: and in the they had enlarged their border, by winning fame zeal to God utterly demolished all the Ramoth Gilead, and compelled Benhadad to restore the Cities which his Father had won: Concerning the Idolatry devised by Je- whereas now they were fain to make woful roboam, no King of Ifrael had ever greater shifts, living under a Lord that had better reason than Jehn to destroy it. For he needed fortune and courage in murdering his master not to fear lest the people should be allured that had put him in trust, than in defending unto the house of David; it vvas (in appea- his people from their cruel enemies. Thus it rance) quite rooted up, and the Crown of commonly falls out, that they who can find juda in the possession of a cruel Tyranness: all manner of difficulties in serving him, to he had received his kingdom by the unex- whom nothing is difficult, are, in flead of the pected grace of God; and further in regard case & the pleasure to themselves propounof his zeal expressed in destroying Baal out ded by contrary courses, overwhelmed with of Israel, he was promised not with standing the troubles which they sought to avoid; his following the fin of Jeroboam, that the and therein by God, whom they first forsook, kingdom should remain in his Family to the forsaken, and left unto the wretched labours fourth Generation. But all this vould not of their own blind wisdom, wherein they had

6. III. of Athaliah's Government.

"Hese calamities falling upon Ifrael,kept Athalia sase on that side, giving her leithe use of superstition, so long practifed as sure to look to things at home: as having little to do abroad, unless it were so that she | her to be such as she was. By her care fosts held some correspondency with Hazael, pre- the young Prince that reigned soon after, tending therein to imitate her Husbands was conveighed out of the nursery, when 4-Grand-father King Asa, who had done the like. And some probability that she did so, may be gathered out of that which is recor- as fecretly he was brought up. How it came ded of her doings. For we find, that this to pass that this young child was not hunted school wicked Athalia and her children brake up the out, when his body was miffing; nor any likely to want some fair pretext of necessity and so be the less conformable to their preof the State so requiring: in which case o- sent government. So Joss was delivered out thers before her had made bold with that of that flaughter, he and his nurse being holy place, and her next succession was fain gone no man could tell whither, and might to do the like, being thereunto forced by be thought peradventure to be cast away. Hazael, who perhaps was delighted with the as having no other guard than a poor Wotafte of that which was formerly thence ex- man that gave him fuck, who foolifhly tracted for his fake.

For the poverty of that facred Tribe of Levi the thanks due to their joyful tidings, must needs have been exceeding great at this time, all their lands and possessions in the ten Tribes being utterly loft, the oblations and other perquifites, by which they lived, being now very few and fmall; and the store, laid up in better times under godly Kings, being all taken away by shameful robbery. Yet God, and the daily facrifice keeping daily their courses, and performing obedience to the high Priest, no less than in those dayes wherein their entertainment was far better.

§. IV. Of the preservation of Joas.

Ebojada then occupied the high Priesthood, an honourable, wife, and religious man. To his carefulness it may be afcribed, that the state of the Church was in some slender fort up-held in those unhappy daughter of King Jehoram, and fifter to Ahather, though her access to the Court argue called his son, but was the next of his kindmight more easily procure her welcome to in the inheritance of his Father. And hereher own Fathers house, than the education unto the murder committed by Athalia;

thalia destroyed all the Kings children, and was carried fecretly into the Temple, where koule of God, and all things that were dedicate great reckoning (for ought that we find) for the honse of the Lord did they bestow upon made of his escape, I will not stand to exam-Baalim. Such a facriledge, though it pro- ine: for it was not good in policy, that the ceeded from a desire to set out her own Ido- people should hear say, that one of the childlatry, with such pomp as might make it the ren had avoyded that cruel blow; it might more glorious in the peoples eyes, was not have made them hearken after innovations. doubting that she her self should have been Under this impious government of Athalia, slain, was fled away with him into some dethe devotion of the Priests and Levites was folate place, where it was like enough that very notable, and served (no doubt) very she and he should perish. In such cases flattemuch to retain the people in the Religion rers, or men desirous of reward, easily coin taught by God himself, howsoever the such tales, and rather swear them to be true Queens proceedings advanced the contrary. in their own knowledge, than they will lose

§. V. Whose Son Joas was.

they up-held in all this mifery the service of Whether Joas may be thought likely to have been the Son of Ahazia.

Ow concerning this Joafh, whose fon he was, it is a thing of much difficulty to affirm, and hath caused much controversie among Writers. The places of Scripture, which call him the fon of Ahazia, feem plain 2 King 11 enough. How any figure of the Hebrem through language might give title of Son unto him, in regard that he was his Successiour, I neither by my felf can find, nor can by any help of Authors learn how to answer the difficulties appearing in the contrary opinions of them, that think him to have been. times. His Wife was Jehoshabeth, who was or not, the natural son of Abaziah. For whereas it is faid, that the house of Ahazia 2 chro. 22, zia, a godly Lady and vertuous, whose piety was not able to retain the Kingdome; some makes it feem that Athalia was not her Mo- do inferre that this Joash was not properly the contrary: but her discreet carriage red, and therefore succeeded him, as son under such a Mother could have permitted doth very well agree. For she perceiving that the Kingdom was to fall into their hands, in Gregory Nazianzen (as I find him cited by whom the had no interest, might easily find Peter Martyr) and after him Erasmus, and cause to sear, that the tyranny exercised by Faber Stapulensis, have likewise held the same her husband at her infligation upon fo many of Josfb, deriving him from Nathan. But Nanoble Houses, would now be revenged upon than and those other brethren of Salomon by her self. The ruine of her Idolatrous Religion the same Mother, are thought, upongood might in this case terrifie both her and her likelihoods to have been the children of V-Minions; the fentence of the Law rewarding right the Hittite: and fo are they accounted that offence with death; and the Tragedy by fundry of the Fathers, and by Lyra, and of Texabel teaching her what might happen Abulensis, who follow the Hebrew Expositors to another Queen. All this had little con- of that place in the first of Chronicles. The cerned her if her own grand-child had been words of Salomon calling himself the only heir to the Crown; for the that had power begotten of his mother, do approve this exenough to make her felf Queen, could with polition: for vve read of no more than two more ease, and lesse envy, have taken upon soms which Bathsua or Bathsheba did bear unher the office of a Protector, by which au- to David, whereof the one begotten in adulthority the might have done her pleafure, tery, died an Infant, and Salomon only ofher and been the more both obeyed by others, children by the King did live. So that the and secure of her own estate, as not wanting rest must needs have been the children of an heir. Wherefore it was not needful, that | Vriah, and are thought to have been Davids the should be so unnatural, as to destroy the only by adoption. Wherefore if Joss had not Child of her own Son, of whose life she might been the son of Ahazia, then must that pedihave made greater use than she could of his gree have been false, wherein S. Matthew derideath: whereas indeed, the love of Grand- veth him lineally from Salomon: yea, then had mothers to their Nephews, is little less than not our bleffed Saviour iffued from the loins the Mothers to their Children.

feem incredible, that all natural affection on, and form of law, as any other might have should be cast aside, when as neither necessis, been. As for the authority of Philo, which ty urgeth, nor any commodity thereby got- hath drawn many late Writers into the opiten requireth it, yea, when all humane poli- nion that Foalh was not of the posterity of cy doth teach one the same, which nature Salomon, it is enough to say, that this was without reason would have perswaded.

||. II. That loss did not descend from Nathan.

in that which is related, than to shew how it might have otherwise been) the pedigree of this Joalh is, by them which think him not the fon of Abazia, fet down in fuch fort, that it may very justly be suspected. thought upon, me thinks it were not amiss They fay, that he descended from Nathan to open at once, and peruse together two the fon of David, and not from Salomon: to places of Scripture, whereof the one telling which purpose they bring a History (I know | the wickedness of Jehoram the son of Jeho 19. whence) of two Families of the race of Da- faphat King of Juda, for which he and his wid, faying, that the line of Salomon held the children perished, rehearseth it as one of Kingdom with this condition, that if at any Gods mercies towards the house of David, time it failed, the Family of Nathan should that according to his promise he would give fucceed it. Concerning this Nathan the fon him a light, and to his children for ever: the of David, there are that would have him to other doth fay, that for the offences of the be Nathan the Prophet, who, as they think, fame Jehoram, there was not a son left him, was by David adopted. And of this opinion fave Jehoahas the youngest of his sons. Now was Origen, as also S. Augustine sometime was, if it were in regard of Gods promise to Dabut afterward he revoked it, as was meet; vid, that after those massacres of Jehoram for this Nathan is reckoned among the sons upon all his brethren, and of the Philistims retion. 3. of David, by Bathsua the daughter of Ammes, and Arabians upon the children of Jehoram, and therefore could not be the Prophet. one of the feed of David escaped; why may of David, according to the flesh, but had on-This argument is very ftrong. For it may ly been of his line by courtefie of the Nati-Frier Annius his Philo: for no other edition of Philo, hath any fuch matter; but Annius can make Authors to fpeak what he lift.

|| III. || || Ut (as it is more easie to find a difficulty | That Joas may probably be thought to have been the fon of Jehoram.

> IN fo doubtful a case, if it seem lawful to hold an opinion that no man hathyet

Jehoram and all his children, onely Jehoahas der of this point. his youngest son was exempted; whom therefore if I should affirm to be the same with Joas, which is called the fon of Ahazia, I should not want good probability. Some further appearance of necessity there is, which Upon what reasons Athalia might seek to dedoth argue that it could no otherwise have been. For it was the youngest son of Jehoram in whom the race was preserved; which &F therefore we shall follow that vyhich is could not in any likelihood be Ahazia, seeing commonly received, and interpret the that he was twenty years old at the least (as text according to the letter, it may be said, is already noted) when he began to reign, that Athalia vvas not only blinded by the and confequently, was born in the eigh- passions of ambition and zeal to her Idolateenth or twentieth year of his Fathers age. trous vvorship of Baalim, but pursued the ac-Now I know not whether of the two is more complishment of some unnatural defires, in it not be thought that he was faid to have teen years old, or that having (ashe had) escaped, in whom the line of David was pre- many wives and children, he should upon the terved? for had all the race of Salomon been studden, at his eighteenth year, become unrooted up in these woful Tragedies, and the struitful, and beget no more in twenty years progeny of Nathan fucceeded in place there- following: each of which must have bin true, of ; like enough it is that some remembrance if this were true that Ahazia was the same more particular would have been extant, of Jehoahas which was his youngest fon. But an event so memorable. That the race of Na- this inconvenience is taken away, and those than was not extinguished, it is indeed appa- other doubts arising from the causless cruelrent by the Genealogie of our Lord, as it is ty of Athalia, in feeling the life of Joss are recounted by S. Luke: but the prefervation eafily cleared, if Joas and Jehoahas were one. of the house of David, mentioned in the Neither doth his age withstand this opinion; Books of Kings and Chronicles, was perform- For he was feven years old when he began to 2 Chron. 13. ed in the perion of Jehoahas, in whom the reign; which if we understand of years com-1. Royal branch of Salomon, the natural, and pleat, he might have been a year old at the not only legal iffue remaining of David, was death of Jehoram, being begotten somewhat kept alive. Wherefore it may be thought after the beginning of his fickness. Neither that this Joals, who followed Athalia in the is it more abfurd to fay that he was the na-Kingdom, was the youngest son of Jehoram, tural son of Jehoram, though called the son whose life Athalia, as a step-dame, was not of Ahazia, than it were to say, as great Aulikely to purfue. For it were not eafily un-thors have done, this difficulty notwithftandderstood, why the preservation of Davids ing, that he was of the posterity of Nathan. line, by Godselpecial mercy, in regard of One thing indeed I know not how to anhis promife made, should pertain rather to wer; which had it concurred with the rest, that time, when befides Abazia himself, there in which have ferved as the foundation of this were two and forty of his brethren, or (as opinion. The name of Jeboahas, that foundation another place they are called) fons of his eth much more near to Joss, than to Abaziah, brethren remaining alive, which afterwards in an English car, doth in the Hebrew (as I were all flain by Jebu; than have reference am informed by fome, skilful in that lantothe lamentable destruction and little less guage) through the diversity of certain letthan extirpation of that progeny, wherein ters, differ much from that which it most reone onely did escape. Certainly that inhu sembleth in our Western manner of writing, mane murther which Jehoram committed and little from the other. Now, although upon his brethren, if it were (as appeareth it be fo that Ahazia himself be also called in the History) revenged upon his own chil- Azaria, and must have had three names, if dren; then was not this vengeance of God he were the same with Jehoahas; in which 2 chron 24 accomplished by the Philistims and Arabi- manner Joas might also have had several 5. ans, but being only begun by them, was after- names; yet, because I find no other warrant wards profecuted by Jehn, and finally took hereof than a bare possibility, I will not effect by the hands of that same wicked wo- presume to build an opinion upon the weak man, at whose instigation he had committed foundation of mine own conjecture, but fuch barbarous outrage. And from this exe- leave all to the confideration of fuch as have cution of Gods heavy judgment laid upon more ability to judge, and leifure to confi-

firoy loas, if he were her own Grandchild.

unlikely, either that Jehoram should have seeking the destruction of her grand-child; begotten many children before he was eigh- and the rest of the bloud Royal. For whe-imitated the liberty of Jezabel her fifter in indeedGod abhorred the performance as velaw, whose Whoredoms were upbraided by hemently, as they thought him to be highly Jehn to her fon; or whether she had child-offended with the omission. Hereat wee may ren by some former husband, before she was the less vvonder, if we consider the answer o married unto Jehoram (which is not unlike- made by the Jewes in Egypt unto Jeremy the ly, in regard of her age, who was daughter Prophet reprehending their Idolatry. For of Omri, and fifter to Ahab) certain it is that how foever the veritten Law of God veas fhe had fons of her own, and those old e- known unto the people, and his punishments nough to be employed, as they were, in rob- laid upon them for contempt thereof vvere bing of the Temple. So it is not greatly to be very terrible, and even then but newly exewondred at, that to fettle the Crown upon cuted; yet vvere they so obstinately bent unher own children, she did seek to cut off, by to their Wils, that they would not by any wicked policy, all other claims. As for joss, means be drawn to acknowledge the true if the were his Grand-mother, yet the might cause of their affliction, But they told the mistrust the interest which his mother would Prophet roundly, that they would worship have in him, lest when he came to years, it the Queen of heaven, as they and their Famight draw him from her devotion. And thers, their Kings and their Princes had used in the reign of her fon; for the made him them, fince they left off that fervice of the fpend all his time in idle journeys, to no other apparent end, than that she might rule man, in looking into the counsel of God, at home; and he living abroad be estranged which to find out, there is no better norofrom his Wife, and entertain some new fan- ther guide than his own written Will not cies, wherein Jezabel had cunning enough perverted by vain additions. to be his Tutoress. But when the sword of Jeku had rudely cut in sunder all these sime Juda hath herein a singular prerogative a devices, then was Athalia fain to go round- bove all that have been written by the most ly to work, and do as she did, whereby she sufficient of meerly humane Authors: it setthought to make all fure. otherwise, if (as I teth down expresly the true, and first causes could rather think) she were only stepdame of all that happened; not in imputing the to Joas, we need not feek into the reasons death of Ahab to his over-frowardness in moving her to take away his life; her own battel; the ruine of his Family, to the secuhatred was cause enough to dispatch him a- rity of Jehoram in Jezreel; not the Victories mong the first.

of ujing conjecture in Histories.

ther it were so that Athalia (as proud and cribe the ill success of great undertakings to cruel Women are not alwayes chaft) had the neglect of some impious Rites, vvhereof hereof (besides that Women do commonly to do: For then (said they) had we plenty of better love their daughters Husbands, than victuals, and were well, and felt no evil: ad-In. 41. their ions Wives) there is some appearance ding, that all manner of miseries were befal in 17,18.

of Hazael, to the great commotions raised in Israel by the comming of Jehn; but referring all unto the Will of God, I mean, to his revealed Will, from which that his hidden A digression, wherein is maintained the liberty purposes do not vary, this Story, by many great examples, gives most notable proof. True it is, that the concurrence of fecond Hus much concerning the person of causes with their effects, is in these Books Joas, from vyhom, as from a new root, nothing largely described; nor perhaps exthe tree of David was propagated into many actly in any of those Histories that are in branches. In handling of which matter, the these points most copious. For it was well more I consider the nature of this History, noted by that worthy Gentleman, Sir Phiand the diversity between it and others, the lip sidny, that Historians do borrow of Solinian less me thinks I need to suspect mine our Post of the lip sidny. less me thinks I need to suspect mine own presumption, as deserving blame, for curio-but somewhat of their substance. Information in the suspection of their substance. fity in matter of doubt, or boldness in liberty tions are often false, records not always true, of conjecture. For all Histories do give us in- and notorious actions commonly insufficiformation of humane counsels and events, as ent to discover the passions which do set far forth as the knowledge and faith of them first on foot. Wherefore they are fain the Writers can afford; but of Gods Will, by (I speak of the best, and in that which is alwhich all things are ordered, they speak only at random, and many times fally. This cumstance of Claudius his journey against the company of the company of the cumstance of Claudius his journey against the cumstance of the cu we often find in profane Writers, vvho af- Afdrubol in Italy, fitting all to another buffwhich have governed their affections, or fearch out. the instruments by which they wrought; Therefore it was a good answer that six-or obliquity in proceeding.

CHAP. XXI.

to give assurance, howsoever it may give ia- for his Holiness, whom he rather took for a ristaction. For the heart of man is unlearch- direct honest man, than any cunning Politiable: and Princes, howfoever their intents tian, to attain unto the Papacy; in compafbe seldom hidden from some of those many sing of which, all the subtilty (said he) of eyes which pry both into them, and into such the most crafty brains, find work enough: as live about them; yet fometimes either and therefore the more I think upon the by their own close temper, or by some sub- Art of the Conclave, and your unaptness til mifts, they conceal the truth from all re- thereto, the more I needs must wonder. Pope ports. Yea, many times the affections sixtus to satisfie the plain dealing Frier, ftry of an Historian, having so many things wouldest wonder at nothing. to weary it, may well be excused, when finding apparent cause enough of things done, orbitant Engines, by which the course of it forbeareth to make further fearch; affairs is moved, the Pope faid true. For though it often fall out, where fundry oc- the wifest of men are not without their casions work to the same end, that one small vanities, which requiring and finding mumatter in a weak mind is more effectual, tual toleration, work more closely, and than many that feem far greater, So comes earnestly, than right reason either needs or it many times to pass, that great fires, which can. But if we lift up our thoughts to consume whole houses or towns, begin with that supreme Governour, of whose Empire a few straws, that are wasted or not feen; all that is true, which by the Poet was said when the flame is discovered, having fasten- of Jupiter. ed upon some Wood-pile, that catcheth all about it. Questionless it is, that the War commenced by Darius, and purfued by Xerxes against the Greeks, proceeded from desire of the Persians to inlarge their Empire: howfoever the enterprize of the Athenians upon sardes, was noised abroad as the ground of that quarrel; yet Herodotus telleth us, that the wanton defire of Queen Atossa, to have the Grecian dames her bond-women, did first move Darius to prepare for this War before he had received any injury, and when he did not yet so much defire to get more, as to enjoy what was already gotten.

Herodotus be more justly reprehended by feth to his own honour; He neither deceifome, or defended by others, for alledging veth nor can be deceived, but continuing the vain appetite, and fecret speech of the one and the same for ever, doth constantly Queen in bed with her Husband, as the governall creatures by that Law, which he cause of those great evils following; this I hath prescribed, and will never alter. The may boldly affirm (having, I think, in every vanities of men beguile their vain contriestate some sufficient witness) that matters vers, and the prosperity of the wicked, is the ness, or any practice of that kind, is neither ing upon substantial reasons, have issued in-Historical, nor Poetical) to search into the deed from such petty trilles, as no Historian particular humour of Princes, and of those would either think upon, or could well from whence they do collect the most like tus Quintus the Pope, made to a certain ly motives or impediments of every busi- Frier, coming to visit him in his Popedom, as ness; and so figuring as near to the life as having long before in his meaner estate, been they can imagine, the matter in hand, they his familiar friend. This poor Frier, being judiciously consider the defects in counsel, emboldened by the Pope to use his old liberty of speech, adventured to tell him, that Yet all this for the most part, is not enough he very much wondred how it was possible themselves lye dead, and buried in oblivion, dealt with him again as plainly, saying, Hadst when the preparations which they begat, thou lived abroad as I have done, and feen are converted to another use. The indu- by what folly this world is governed, thou

Surely, if this be referred unto those ex-

Qui terram inertem, qui mare temperat Ventosum, & urbes, regnaque tristia, Divosque mortalesque turmas, Imperio regit unus equo.

Who rules the duller Earth, the Windfwoln ftreams,

The civil Cities, and th' infernal Realms, Who th' Host of Heaven, and the mortal Band,

Alone doth govern by his just command,

Then shall we find the quite contrary. In him there is no uncertainty nor change; I will not here stand to argue whether he foreseeth all things, and all things dispoof much consequence; founded in all seem- way leading to their destruction: yea, this broad and headlong passage to hell is not so strate and make good in humane reason. delightful as it feems at the first entrance, those things which authority alone, with but hath growing init, befides the poyfons out further circumstance, ought to have which infect the foul, many cruel thorns confirmed in every mans belief. And this deeply wounding the body; all which if may fuffice in defence of the liberty which any few escape, they have onely this misera- I have used in conjectures, and may hereble advantage of others, that their descent after use when occasion shall require, as was the more fwift and expedite. But the neither unlawful, nor mif-befeeming an Hifervice of God is the path guiding us to per- storian. fect happiness, and hath in it a true, though not compleat felicity, yeilding fuch abundance of joy to the confcience, as doth eafily countervail all afflictions what foevers though indeed those brambles that sometimes tear the skin of such as walk in this blesled way. do commonly lay hold upon them at fuch time as they fie down to take their eafe, and longer worn the Crown of Juda, make them wish themselves at their journeys and had found neither any forreign eneend, in the presence of their Lord whom my, nor domestical adversary to disturb they faithfully ferve, in whose presence is the her possession, suddenly the period of her fulness of joy, and at whose right hand are plea- glory, and reward of her wickedness meet-

CHAP, XXI.

fures for ever. all History, to teach by example of times For the growth of the young Prince bepast, such Wisdom as may guide our desires gan to be such, as permitted him no longer and actions, we should not marvel though to be concealed, and it had been very the Chronicles of the Kings of Juda and Isra- unfitting that his education should be simel, being written by men inspired with the ple, to make him seem the child of some Spirit of God, instruct us chiefly, in that poor man (as for his safety it was requiwhich is most requisite for us to know; as litte) when his capacity required to have the means to attain unto true felicity, both been indued with the fromack and qualities here, and hereafter, propounding examples meet for a King. All this Jehojada the Priest which illustrate this infallible rule, The fear confidered, and withall, the great increase of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. Had of impiety, which taking deep root in the the expedition of Xerxes (as it was fore- Court, was likely to spread it self overall told by Daniel) been written by some Pro- the Country, if care were not used to weed phet after the captivity: we may well be it up very speedily. Wherefore he associalieve that the counsel of God therein, and ted unto himself five of the Captains, in the executioners of his righteous Will, whose fidelity he had best assurance; and thould have occupied either the whole or having taken an oath of them, and shewed the principal room in that narration. Yet them the Kings fon, he made a Covehad not the purpose of Darius, the defire nant with them, to advance him to the Kingof his Wife, and the business at Sardes, with dom. These drew in others of the principal other occurrents been the less true, though men, to countenance the action, procuring at they might have been omitted, as the less the first onely that they should repair to jematerial: but these things it had been law- rusalem, where they were surther acquainted ful for any man to gather out of prophane with the whole matter. There needed not Histories, or out of circumstances other- many perswasions to win them to the busiwife appearing, wherein he should not have ness: the promise of the Lord unto the house done injury to the Sacred Writings, as long of David, was enough to affure them that ashe had forborn to derogate from the first the action was both lawful, and likely to causes, by ascribing to the second more than succeed as they desired.

that I have now in hand: wherein I cannot ped, that with open force they should bring believe that any man of judgment will tax their purpose to good iffue; neither were me, as either fabulous or prefumptuous, the Captains, and other affociates of Jehojada For he doth not feign, that rehearseth pro- able by close working, to draw together so babilities as bare conjectures; neither doth many trusty and serviceable hands as would ing together, took her away without any Wherefore it being the end and scope of warning, by a violent and shameful death.

6. VII.

The conspiracy against Athalia.

But in compassing their intent, some diffi-Such, or little different, is the business culties appeared: For it was not to be hohe deprave the Text, that feeketh to illu- fuffice to manage the bufinefs. To help in this case, the Priest gave order to such of the Le- hereof the unaccustomed number of Levites as had finished their courses in waiting vites, and of other devout men, about the on the Divine service at the Temple, and town, might give some presumption. were now relieved by others that succeeded Many things argue that she little thought of inevitable mischief.

and ordering all as the occasion might hap- defence: pen to require. It may be, that she thought it some especial solemnity used in the Divine fervice, which caused this much adoe; and in their turns, that they should not depart upon her own Tragedy; although Tosephus until they knew his further pleasure. So by would make it seem otherwise. For we find admitting the new comers, and not dischar- in the Text, She came to the people into the a Chron. ging the old, he had, without any noise, made house of the Lord (which was near to her Pa-23,12. upfuch a number, as would be able to deal lace) and that when the looked and faw the ! King! with the Queens ordinary Guard, and that King stand by his pillar, as the manner was 11.7. was enough: for if the Tyranness did not with the Princes, or great men of the Land prevail against them at the first brunt, the fa- by him, and the Trumpeters proclaiming your of the People was like to shew it self him, she rent her cloaths, and cryed Treason, on their fide, who made head against her. Treason. Hereby it appears that she was qui-These Levites were placed in the inner crip going, without any missrust or fear, to Court of the Temple; about the person of take her place; which when she found octhe King, who as yet was kept close; the fol- cupied by another, then she began to afflice lowers of the Captains, and other adherents, her felf, as one cast away, and cried out in were bestowed in the outer Courts: As for vain upon the Treason, whereby she shaw that Weapons, the Temple it felf had store e- she must perish. But that she came with a nough; King David had left an Armory to guard of armed men to the Temple, (as for the place, which was now employed in de- Jephus reporteth) and that her company being bearen back, she entred alone, and com-All things being in a readiness, and the day manded the people to kill the young Tyrant, come, wherein this high design was to be put I find no where in Scripture, neither do I in execution; Jehojada delivered unto the hold it credible. For had she truly known Captains, Armour for them and their adhe- how things went, she would furely have garents, appointed a guard unto the Kings per- thered her friends about her, and used those fon, produced him openly, and gave unto him forces in defence of her Crown, by which she the Crown; using all ceremonies accustom- gat it, and hitherto had held it. Certainly, if ed in such solemnities, with great applause of it were granted, that she, like a new Semirathe people. Of these doings, the Queen was mis, did march in the head of her troop, yet the last that heard any word. Which is not it had been meer madness in her, to enter fo strange as it may seem: for insolent natures, the place alone, when her affistants were by dealing outraciously with such as bring themill tidings, do commonly lose the bene-themill tidings, do commonly lose the bene-themiliants are the bene-themiliants and the bene-themiliants are t fit of hearing what is to be feared, whileft prevail to let in her guard, would nevertheyet it may be prevented, and have no infor- less take upon her to command the death of mation of danger, till their own eyes, amazed the new King, calling a child of feven years with the suddenness, behold it in the shape old a Conspirator, and bidding them to kill him, whom she saw to be armed in his de-All ferufalem was full of the rumour, and fence may we not think that the was mad in entertained it with the very good liking the most extreme degree? Certain it is that Some carried home the news, others ran forth the counsel of God would have taken effect, to see, and the common joy was so great, that in her destruction, had she used the most without apprehension of peril, under the likely means to disappoint it: yet we need windows of the Court, were the people run- not fo cut her throat with any moral imposning and praifing the King. Athalia hearing fibilities. It is enough to fay, that the godly and beholding the extraordinary concourse, zeal of Jehojada found more easie success, and noise of folks in the streets, making to-through her indiscretion, than otherwise wards the Temple, with much unufual passi- could have been expected; so that at his on in their looks, did presently conceive, that appointment, the was without more adoe; fomewhat worthy of her care was happened; carried out of the Temple and slain, yea for though, what it might be, she did not appre- that no bloud, save her own, was shed in hend. Howfoever it were, the meant to use that quarrel; her small train that she brought her own wisdom in looking into the matter, along with her, not daring to stand in her

and Jezabel.

ed the rathness of her Nephew Jehoram the friend) pretended her revenge, as any part Ifraelite, who did foolifhly cast himself into of his quarrel to Juda. Concerning children. the very throat of danger, gaping upon him, all belonging to Jezabel perished in few knowing what the matter meant: yet the behind her, it is uncertain; the had sons liher felf, by the like bait, was taken in the like ving after the was Queen, of whom, or of trap, and having lived such a life as Jezabel any other, that they were slain with her, we had done, was rewarded with a fuitable do not find. death. These two Queens were in many points much alike, each of them was Daughration, in regard of much that may depend ter, Wife, and Mother to a King; each of upon it. For if the children of Athalia had them ruled her Husband; was an Idolatress been in Jernsalem when their Mother fell, and a Murdress. The onely difference ap- their death would furely have followed hers pearing in their condition, is, that Jezabel is as nearly, and been registred, as well as the more noted as incontinent of body, Athalia death of Mattan the Priest of Baal. That Law their time in fatisfying her own affections; ungracious Imps, whom the clause following the one using tyranny, as the exercise of her would have cut off, which commands, that haughty mind; the other painting her face, every man should die for his own fin. Seeing for the ornament of her unchaste body. In therefore that they had been profesiors and the manner of their death little difference advancers of that vile and Idolatrous worthere was, or in those things which may seem ship of Baal, yea had robbed the Temple in this world to pertain unto the dead when of the Lord, and enriched the house of Baal they are gone. Each of them was taken on with the spoil of it; likely it is, that they the sudden by Conspirators, and each of should not have escaped with life, if Jehojathem exclaiming upon the Treason, recei- da the Priest could have gotten them into had lived under her subjection; in executi- requiring their death, so the security of the on whereof, Jezabel was trampled under the King and his friends, that is, of all the Land, robber. The service of Baal erested by these desolate. two Queens, was destroyed as soon as they were gone, and their Chaplains, the Priefts of that Religion, flain, Herein also it came to pass, alike, as touching them both when they The death of Athalia, with a comparison of her were dead; the Kings who slew them, were afterwards afflicted, both of them by the fame hand of Hazael the Syrian; in which Oft like it is, that Aihalia had many point Athalia had the greater honour, if the times, with great indignation, bewail-sprian (who feems to have been her good as ambitious: So that each of them furviving by which God forbad that the children should but 14 her Husband about eight years, did spend die for the fathers, could not have saved these 16. ved sentence from the mouth of one that his hands. As there was lawful cause enough feet of her enemies horses; Athalia slain at craved as much, and that very earnestly. her own horse-gate; the death of Athalia For these had been esteemed as heirs of having (though not much) the more leifure their mothers Crown, and being reckoned to vex her proud heart; that of Jezabel the as her affiltants in that particular business of more indignity, and shame of body. Touch- robbing the Temple, may be thought to ing their burial, Jezabel was devoured by have carried a great sway in other matters, Dogs, as the Lord had threatned by the Pro- as Princes, and fellows with their Mother phet Elias; what became of Athalia we do in the Kingdom. Therefore it is evident, not find. Like enough it is, that the was buri- that either they were now dead, or (perhaps ed, as having not perfecuted and flain the following Hazael in his Warsagainst Jehn) Lords Prophets, but suffered the Priests to absent from Jerusalem; whereby Jehojada exercise their function; yet of her burial might, with the more confidence, adventure there is no monument, for the was a Church- to take Armes against their Mother, that was

CHAP. XXII.

Of Joas and Amafia, with their Contemporaries; where somewhat of the building of Carthage.

of Joas his doings, whileft Jehojada the Priest lived.

and begat Sons and Daughters, repairing the heavy debt. Family of David which was almost worn out. For after the death of Jehojada, when the ons, was enriched with veffels of gold and proof of his being now King indeed, that he filver; and with all other Utenfils. The fa- regarded no longer the fowre admonitions crifices likewife were offered, as under god- of devout Priests. Hereby it appears, that his ly Kingsthey had been, and the service of former zeal was only counterfeited, wherein God was magnificently celebrated.

§. II.

The Death of Jehojada, and Apostasie of Joas.

But this endured no longer than the life The causes and times of the Syrians invading of Jehojada the Priest: who having li Juda in the dayes of Joas of Jehojada the Priest: who having lived an hundred and thirty years, dyed before his Country could have spared him. He

Y the death of Athalia, the whole well deserved, having preserved the race of Country of Juda was filled with them, and restored the true Religion, which great joy and quietness; wherein the late Princes of that house, by attempting Foas, a child of feven years old, or to eradicate, failed but a little of rooting up there-about, began his reign, themselves, and all their issue. Yet this howhich continued almost forty years. During nourable Funeral seems to have been given his minority, he lived under the protection to him, at the motion of the people; it beof that honourable man Jehojada the Priest, ing faid, They buried him in the City of David. who did as faithfully govern the Kingdom, as As for the King himfelf, who did owe to him he had before carefully preserved the Kings no less than his Crown and life he is not like. life, and reftored him unto the Throne of his ly to have been Author of it, leeing that he ancestors. When he came to mans estate, he was as easily comforted after his death, as if took by appointment of Jehojada two Wives, he had thereby been discharged of some

The first Act that he took in hand, when he Princes of Juda began to flatter their King, began to rule without a Protector, was the he foon forgat, not only the benefits receireparation of the Temple. It was a needful ved by this worthy man his old Counfellor, piece of work, in regard of the decay where- but also the good precepts which he had rein that holy place was fallen, through the ceived from him, yea and God himself, the wickedness of ungodly Tyrants; and requi- Author of all goodness. These Princes drew fite it was that he should uphold the Tem- him to the worship of Idols, wherewith Jeple, whom the Temple had upheld. This bu- horam and Athalia had so infected the Counfines he followed with so earnest a zeal, that try, in sisteen or sixteen years, that thirty not only the Levites were more flack than years, or thereabout, of the reign of Jons, he, but even Jehojada was fain to be quick- wherein the true Religion was exercised, ned by his admonition. Money was gather- were not able to clear it from that milchief, ed for the charges of the work; partly out The King himself, when once he was entred of the tax imposed by Moses, partly out of into these courses, ran on head-long, as one the liberality of the people; who gave so that thought it a token of his liberty, to defreely, that the Temple, besides all reparati- spise the service of God; and a manifest like an Actor upon the stage, he had striven to express much more lively affection, than they could shew, that were indeed religious.

§. III.

DUt God, from whom he was broken was buried among the Kings of Juda; as he Dloofe; gave him over into the hands of

CHAP.

CHAP. XXII.

zael King of Aram, having taken Gath, a gotten goods are wont. Town of the Philistims, addressed himself to- This enterprise of Hazaels, is, by some. wards Jerusalem, whither the little distance confounded with that war of the Aramites of way, and great hope of a rich booty, did upon Juda, mentioned in the fecond book invite him. He had an Army heartned by of Chronicles. But the reasons alledged by many victories, to hope for more; and for them that hold the contrary opinion, doe ground of the war (if his ambition cared for forcibly prove, that it was not all one war, pretences) it was enough that the Kings of For the former was compounded without Juda had affifted the Ifraelites, in their enter- blood-shed or fight; in the latter, Joas tried prises upon Aram, at Ramoth Gilead. Yet I the fortune of a battaile, wherein being put think he did not want some further instigation to the worst, he lost all his Princes, and tion. For if the Kingdom of Juda had mole- hardly escaped with life. In the one Hazael fted the Aramites in the time of his prede- himself was present; in the other, he was not ceffour, this was throughly recompensed, by named: but contrarywife, the King of Aram forbearing to fuccour Ifrael, and leaving the then reigning (who may feem to have ten Tribes in their extream misery, to the been the son of Hazael) vis said to have been fury of Hazael himself. Neither is it likely, at Damaseus. The first Army came to conthat Hazael should have gone about to awake quer, and was so great, that it terrified the a fleeping Dog, and ftir up against himself a King of Juda; The second was a small company powerful enemy, before he had assured the of men, which did animate Joas (in vain, for times) conquest of Israel, that lay between Jerusa- God was against him) to deal with them, as lem and his own Kingdom, if some opportu- having a very great Army. nity had not performed fuch easie and good fuccess, as might rather advance, than any invasion, I cannot perceive that God forsook way disturbe his suture proceedings against him, till he had first forsaken God. There the ten Tribes. Wherefore I hold it proba- are indeed fome, very learned, who think ble, that the fons of Athalia, mentioned be- that this expedition of Hazael was in the time fore, were with him in this action, promi- of Jekojada the Priest, because that story fing (as men expelled their Countries ufu- is joyned to the restauration of the Temple, ally doe) to draw many partakers of their This had been probable, if the death of feown to his side; and not to remain, as Joas hojada had been afterwards mentioned in did, a neutral in the war between him and that place of the second book of Kings, or Ifrael, but to joyn all their forces with his, if the Apoltafie of Joas, or any other matter as they had cause, for the rooting out of implying so much, had followed in the rela-Jehn his posterity, who like a bloody Fraition. For it is not indeed to be doubted, tor, had utterly destroyed all the kindred that the Lerd of all may dispose of all things, of the Queens, their mother, even the whole according to his own will and pleasure; neihouse of Abab, to which he was a subject. If ther was he more unjust in the afflictions of this were so, Hazael had the more apparent Job that righteous man, or the death of Jothis were to, Hazael had the more apparent reason to invade the Kingdom of Juda. How-for we find, that Joss was afraid of him, and therefore took all the hallowed things, and all the gold that was found in the treasure of the substitution of the Temperature of the substitution of the treasure of the mention of the mentions of the mentions of the mentions. the house of the Lord, or in his own house, ple, and the magnificent service of God with which present he redeemed his peace; therewithall, which are joyned together, his hand for nothing, than to hazzard the death, if not immediately upon it, that is (as assurance of this for the possibility of not some very learnedly collect) in the fixt, or much more. So Hazael departed with a rich thirty seventh year of this Joas his reign, the booty of unhappy treasure, which belong- King falling away from the God of his Faing to the living God, remained a small thers, became a foul Idolater. while in the policifion of this mighty, yet | And indeed we commonly observe; that corruptible man, but fent him quickly to the crosses which it hath pleased God somethe grave. For in the thirty feventh year of times to lay upon his fervants without any Joss, which was the fifteenth of Jehoahaz, he cause notorious in the eyes of men, have almade this purchase; but in the same or very waies tended unto the bettering of their men, that would not easily be shaken off, Ha- treasures prospered no otherwise, than ill-

Now, concerning the time of this former the syrian (questionless) thinking it a better were used in the house of the Lord continually com bargain, to get so much readily paid into all the daies of Jehojada; soon after whose u.

next year he died, leaving all that he had good in which respect, even the sufferings of unto his for Benhadad, with whom these the blessed Martyrs (the death of his saints

The state being precious in the fight of the Lord) are to as one durft tell him the plain truth, how fuch a villanous pattern unto others, as few the Kings commandment, by which he fufshould endure to imitate.

§. IV. How Zacharia was murthered by Joas.

CUndry Prophets having laboured in vain How Joas was shamefully beaten by the Amoto reclaime the people from their superstition, Zacharia the son of Jehojada the Prieft, was ftirred up at length by the Spirit of God, to admonish them of their wickedmark, and not very good condition. The do more by them, than they themselves did truth is, that the mellage of a Prophet fent | hope for. from God, should be heard with reverence, to become an absolute Commander, suppo- might have his own will. But his timorous their great advantage. But with evil and re- great soever that mans deservings were, that hellious men, God keepeth a more even and did fo, yea though Gods commandment reftrict account; permitting usually their faults quired it. So they conspired against this holy to get the start of their punishment; and ci- Prophet, and stoned him to death at the ther delaying his vengeance (as with the A- Kings appointment; but whether by any form morites) till their wickedness be full; or not of open Law, as was practised upon Naboth; working their amendment by his correction, or whether furprifing him by any close treabut suffering them to run on in their wicked chery, I do neither read, nor can conjecture. courses, to their greater misery. So hath he. The dignity of his person, considered togedealt with many; and so it appears that he ther with their treacherous conspiracy, makes dealt with Joas. For this unhappy man did it probable, that they durst not call him into not onely continue an obstinate Idolater, but publick judgement, though that the manner grew fo forgetful of God and all goodness, of his death, being such as was commonly, and as if he had stroven to exceed the wicked- by order of Law, inflicted upon malefactors. ness of all that went before him, and to leave may argue the contrary. Most likely it is that or none of the most barbarous Tyrants fered, took place in stead of Law: which exercise of meer power (as hath been already noted) was nothing strange amongst the Kings of Fuda.

> §. V. rites, and of his death.

ness, and make them understand the punish whose bosom he had been fostered, as of it ment due unto it, whereof they frood in dan- self alone it sufficed to make the wretched ger. This Zacharia was a man fo much ho- Tyrant hateful to men of his own time, and noured and fon to a man so exceedingly be- his memory detested in all ages; so had it loved in his life time, and reverenced, that the well described curse of the blessed Marif Joss had reputed him (as Ahab did Elias) tyr, to accompany it unto the Throne of God, his open enemy, yet ought he in common and to call for vengeance from thence, which honesty to have cloaked his ill affection, and fell down swiftly, and heavily upon the head have used at least some part of the respect of that ungrateful monster. It was the last that was due to fuch a person: On the other year of his reign; the end of his time comfide, the fingular affection which he and his ming then upon him, when he thought himfather had born unto the King, and the un- felf beginning to live how he lifted without recountable benefits which they had done controulment. When that year was expired unto him, from his first infancy, were such as the Aramites came into the Country, rather should have placed Zacharia in the most as may seem to get pillage, than to perform 2 chro.24. hearty and affured love of Joas, yea though any great action; for they came with a small 34. he had been otherwise a man of very small company of men: but God had intended to

That Joas naturally was a coward, his how simple soever he appeares that brings it. | bloudy malice against his best friend, is, in my But this King Joas, having already scorned judgement proof sufficient: though otherthe admonitions and protestations of such wise his base composition with Hazael, when Prophets as first were sent, did now deal with he might have levied (as his son after him Zacharia, like as the wicked husbandmen, in did muffer) three hundred thousand chothat parable of our Saviour, dealt with the fen men for the war, doth well enough heir of the Vineyard; who faid, This is the linew his temper. Yet now he would needs be heir, come let us kill bim, that the inheritance valiant, and make his people know, how may be ours. By killing Zacharia he thought stout of disposition their King was, when he fing belike that he was no free Price, as long heart was not well cloaked. For to encounvery great Army, to that wife men might Aramites found in their following wars afirongly appointed, against so weak ene- strength, was unable to drive out a small at him in fecret; confidering what adoe Ifrael, having so been trodden down by Hahe made about that, which in all apparent zael, that onely fifty Horsemen, ten Charireason was (as they say) a thing of nothing, ots, and ten thousand footmen vvere left, pre-But God, before whom the wifdom of this vailed against his Son, and recovered all world is foolifhness, did laugh not only at this from the victorious Aramites. But examples vain-glorious King, but at them that thought hereof are every-where found, and therefore their King secure, by reason of the multitude I will not insist upon this; though indeed we that he drew along with him.

whether it were by some folly of the Leaders | ports of our heavenly Fathers honour, than of or by fome amazement happening among the the noble acts performed by our fore-fathers' fouldiers, or by whatfoever means it plea- upon earth. fed God to work, fo it was, that that great Army of Inda received a notable overthrow, and saw that they were not able, being so and all the Princes were destroyed: the Prin- | few, to take any possession of the Country, ces of Juda, at whose persuasion the King they departed out of Juda loaden with spoil, had become a Rebell to the King of Kings. | vwhich they fent to Damascus, themselves be-As for Joas himself (as Abulensis and others like falling upon the ten Tribes, vvhereitis expound the frory) he was forely beaten and to be thought that they sped not half so well. hurt by them, being (as they think) taken The King of Juda being in ill case, vvas kil-

him an excellive ranfome.

frengthen this conjecture: for the Text (in | names, being strangers, are expressed) think the old translation) saith, they exercised up- to have been bondmen. Whether it were on Jous ignominious judgments; and that contempt of his fortune, or fear, left (as departing from him, they difmiffed him in Tyrants use) he should revenge disafter great languor. All which argues, that they upon them, imputing it to their fault, or them had him in their hands, and handled him ill- vvhatfoever elfe it vvere that animated them is favoredly. Now at that time Joas the son of to murder their King; the Scripture tels us Jehoahaz reigned over Ifrael, and Benhadad plainly, that, For the blond of the children of the son of Hazael over the Syrians, in Da-massims: the one a valiant undertaking Prince, pears to have been used as the pretence of raised up by God to restore the State of their conspiracy, in excuse of the fact when his miserable Country, the other inferiour it vvas done. For Amazia, the son and sucevery way to his father, of whose purcha- cessor of Joas, durst not punish them, till his fes he loft a great part, for want of skill to Kingdom vvas established: but contrariwise keep it. The difference in condition found his body was judged unworthy of burial between these two Princes, promising noother event than such as afterward follow-appears, that the death of Zacharia caused ed , might have given to the King of j_{μ} the treason, verought against the King, to da good cause to be bold, and pluck up his sind more approbation, than was requisted fpirits, which Hazael had beaten down, if among the people, though afterwards it was God had not been against him. But his fear- recompenced by his son, upon the Traytors, ful heart being likely to quake upon any ap- | which well deferved death. prehension of danger, was able to put the Syrian King in hope that by terrifying him with fome thew of yvar at his doores, it vvere eafie to make him crave any tolerable conditions of peace. The unexpected good fuccess hereof, already related, and the (per-ter with a few bands of Rovers, he took a haps as unfulpected) ill fuccess, which the well perceive, that he knew what he did, gainst the King of Israel, sheweth plainly the making thew as if he would fight for his weakness of all earthly might, resilting the Country, and expose himself to danger of power of the Almighty. For by his Orwar, when as indeed all was meer oftentation dinance, both the Kingdom of Juda, after and no peril to be feared; he going forth fo more than forty years time of gathering mies. Thus might wife men think, and laugh company of Enemies; and the Kingdom of should not, if vve be Gods children, think it When the Aramites and King Joas met, more tedious to hear long and frequent re-

When the Aramites had vvhat they lifted, and shamefully tormented, to wring out of led on his bed vvhen he came home, by the fons of an Ammonites, and of a Moabites, And furely, all circumftances do greatly vvhom some (because onely their Mothers of the Princes living in the time of Joas: of the time when Carthage was built : and of

Here lived with Jons, Mezades, and Diconetus in Athens : Eudemus and Aristomedes in Corinth: about which time Agripwere Kings of the Albans in Italy. Ocrazapes, commonly called Anacyndaraxes, the thirty feventh King succeeded unto Ophratanes, began his reign over the Affirians, about the eighteenth year of Joas, which lasted forty two years. In the fixteenth of Joas, Cepkrenes, the fourth from sefac, succeeded unto Cheops in the Kingdom of Egypt, and held it fifty Vos magis Historicis lectores credite de me

CHAP. XXII.

In this time of Joas, was likewise the reign of Piemalion in Tyre, and the foundation of Carthage by Dido; the building of which City is, by divers authors, placed in divers ages, some reporting it to be 70. years younger than Rome, others above 400. years elder, few or none of them giving any reason of their affertions, but leaving us uncertain whom to follow: Josephus, who had read As Maro feign d, incessuous and foul. the Annals of Tyre, counting one hundred Aneas never with his Trojan hoaft forty and three years and eight moneths Beheld my face, or landed on this coast. from the building of Salomons Temple, in the But flying proud Iarbas villanie, twelfth year of Hyram King of Tyre, to the Not mov d by furious love or jealousie. founding of Carthage by Dido, in the feventh I did with weapon chafte, to fave my fame, of Pigmalion. The particulars of this ac- Make way for death untimely, ere it came. compt (which is not rare in Josephus) are very | This was my end; but first I built a Town, perplexed, and serve not very well to make Reveng'd my husbands death, liv'd with recleer the totall fum. But whether it were so that Josephus did omit, or else that he did Why did it thou stir up Virgil envious Muse. mif-write some number of the years, which Falsely my name and honour to abuse? he reckoned in Fractions, as they were di- Readers, believe Historians; not those vided among the Kings of Tyre, from Hyram Which to the world Joves thefts and vice to Pigmalion, we may well enough believe, that the Tyrian writers, out of whole books Poets are lyars, and for Verses sake, he gives us the whole sum, had good means Will make the Gods of humane crimes parto know the truth, and could rightly reckon the difference of time, between two works no longer following one the other than four years current, after the building of Sa- Hiltories: but in particular we find little of lomons Temple, being the eleventh year of the Carthaginian affairs before that war, ex-Joas, was a hundred forty and three years cepting those few things that are recorded before the birth of Rome; and after the de- of their attempts of the Isle of sicil. We will struction of Troy, two hundred eighty and therefore defer the relation of matters connine: a time so long after the death of Eneas, cerning that mighty City, until such time as that we might truly conclude all to be fabu- they shall encounter with the State of Rome, lous which Virgil hath written of Dido, as by which it was finally destroyed; and pro-Ausonius noteth, who doth honour her Statua secute in the mean while the History that is with this Epigram:

Lla ego sum Dido vultu quam conspicis Auson.ep. Affimulata modis pulchraque mivificis. Talis eram, fed non Maro quam mili finxit, erat mens, Vita nec incestis lata cupidinibus: (Namque nec Aneas vidit me Troius unquam, Nec Lybiam advenit, classibus Iliacis. pa Sylvius, and after him Sylvius Alladius, Sed furius fugiens, atque arma procacis Iarbas, Servavi, fateor, morte pudicitiam; Pectore transfixo castos quod pertulit enses) Non furor, aut laso crudus amore dolor.

Sic cecidisse juvat : vixi sine vulnere fame, Ulta virum positis mænibus oppetii. Invida cur in me stimulasti Musa Maronem, Fingeret ut nostra damna pudicitia? Quam qui furta Deum concubitula; canunti Falsidici vates: temerant qui carmine verum, Humanisque deos assimulant vitiis.

Which in effect is this:

Am that Dido which thou here doft fee. Cunningly fram'd in beauteous Imag'rie; Like this I was, but had not such a soul, nown.

expose.

take.

From the time of Dido unto the first Puthe memory of three or four generations nick war, that Carthage grew and flourished might easily reach, This hundred forty and in wealth and conquests, we find in many now in hand.

CHAP. XXII.

432

King of Ifrael, and Elisha the Prophet.

Mazia, the fon of Joash, being twenty twelve or thirteen years. five years old when his Father died, took possession of the Kingdom of Juda, the commodity of a long peace, so Joas the 12 wherein he laboured so to demean himself, raelite grew as fast in power, by following the as his new beginning reign might be least war hotly against the Aramites. He was a vaoffensive. The Law of Moses he professed to liant and fortunate Prince, yet an Idolater. observe; which howsoever it had been se- as his Predecessors had been, worshipping the cretly despised since the time of Jehoram, by Calves of Jeroboam. For this sin had God 60 many great persons of the Land, yet had it plagued the house of Jehor, that the ten tribes by provision of good Princes, yea, and of wanted little of being utterly consumed by bad ones (in their best times) imitating the Hazael and Benhadad, in the time of Jehn and good, but especially by the care of holy his son Jehoahaz. But as Gods benefits to Jeha, Priests, taken such deep root in the peoples sufficed not to withdraw him from this polihearts, that no King might hope to be very tick Idolatry, so were the miseries, rewarding plausible, who did not conform himself un- that impiety, unable to reclaim Jehoahaz from to it. And at that present time, the slaugh- the same impious course : yet the mercy of ter which the Aramites had made of all the God beholding the trouble of Ifrael, did Princes, who had withdrawn the late King condescend unto the prayers of this ungodly from the service of God, being seconded by Prince, even then when he and his misethe death of the King himfelf, even whilft rable fubjects, were obstinate in following that execrable murther, committed by the their own abominable ways. Therefore in King upon Zacharia, was yet fresh in memo-temporal matters the ten Tribes recory, did ferve as a notable example of Gods vered apace; but the favour of God which justice against Idolaters, both to animate had been infinitely more worth, Ido not the better fort of the people in holding the find, nor believe that they fought: that to fuch an evil end. He therefore, having is not with Ifrael, neither with all the house learned of his father the art of diffimulati- of Ephraim. on, did not onely forbear to punish the Trai- Whether it were fo, that the great Protors that had flain King Joas, but gave way phet Elisha, who lived in those times, did foreto the time, and suffered the dead body to tell the prosperity of the Ifraelites under the be interred, as that of Jehoram formerly had reign of Joas; or whether Johoahaz, weabeen in the City of David, yet not among | ried and broken with long adverfity, thought the Sepulchres of the Kings of Juda. Ne- it the wifest way, to discharge himself in vertheless, after this, when (belike) the noise part of the heavy cares attending those unof the people having wearied it felf into happy Syrian Wars, by laying the burthen ded as the handy-work of God) had nei- the son of Jehoahaz began to reign over Israel ther any mighty partakers in their fact, nor in Samaria; which was in the 15. year of his flrong maintainers of their persons, but sathers reign, and some two or three years refred fecure, as having done well, feeing before his death. it was not ill taken : the King, who perceived his government well established, called them from the beginning of his Rule, did so well into question, at such a time, as the heat of husband that poor stock that he received mens affections being well allayed, it was from his Father, of ten Chariots, fifty Horseeasie to distinguish between their treasons men, and ten thousand Foot, that he might and Gods judgments, which, by their trea- feem likely to prove a thriver. Amongst fons, had taken plaufible effect. So they were other circumstances, the words which he fered to live: which could not but give con- spake unto him thus, O my father, my father, tentment to the people, seeing that their King the Chariots of Israel, and the hor smen of the revenging fon. This being done, and his own life better fecured, by fuch exemplary juffice. The beginning of Amazia his reign : of Joas against the like attempts, Amazia carried himself outwardly as a Prince well affected to Religion, and so continued in rest, about

As Amazia gathered strength in Juda by Religion of their fathers, and to discourage they had it not, I find in the words of the think Amazia from following the way, which led Prophet, faying plainly to Amazia, the Lord !-

filence, it was found that the Conspirators upon his hopeful son; we find that in the , good (howfoever their deed done, was applau- thirty feventh year of Joas, King of Juda, Joas 10.

It appears that this young Prince, even put to death without any tumult, and their spake to Elisha the Prophet, argue no leis. children (as the Law did require) were fuf- For Joas visiting the Prophet, who lay fick, 14 did the office of a just Prince, rather than of a fame: by which manner of speech he did acknowledge, that the prayers of this holy cruel Aramites) did not love, because they

after terrible to Samaria.

6. VIII.

of Amazia his war against Edom ; His Aposta cy and overthrow by loas.

he happy fuccess which Joas had found undertaking some expedition, wherein him and gains enough, had he not lost himself. felf might purchase the like honour. His King-Jehoram, had about fifty years been unre- ped them, and burned incense unto them. claimed, partly by reason of the troubles For this when he was rebuked by a Pro-19.6.10. ty thousand.

man had stood his kingdome in more stead vvere Idolaters. The Israelites therefore dethan all the Horses and Chariots could doe. parted in great anger, taking in ill part this This prophet who succeeded unto Elias, dismission, as an high disgrace, vehich to reabout the first year of Joram the son of Abab venge, they fell upon a piece of Juda in their King of Ifrael died (as some have probably return, and shewed their malice in the collected) about the third or fourth year of flaughter of three thousand men, and some this Jons, the Nephew of Jehn. To shew how spoil, which they carried away. But Amazia the spirit of Elias was doubled, or did rest with his own forces, knowing that God upon him, it exceedeth my faculty. This is would be affiftant to their journey, entred recorded of him, that he did not onely raise couragiously into the Edomites Country; oa dead child unto life, as Elias had done, but ver whom obtaining victory, he flew ten when he himselse was dead, it pleased God thousand and took other ten thousand prisothat his dead bones should restore life unto a ners, all which he threw from an high rock; carcass, which touched them in the grave. In holding them, it seems, rather as Traytors, fine, he bestowed as a legacie, three victories than as just enemies. This victory did not upon King Joas, who thereby did fet Israel feem to reduce Edom under the subjection in a faire way of recovering all that the Ara- of the Crown of Juda, vvhich might be the mites had usurped, and weakning the kings cause of that severity, which was used to of Damaleo in such fort, that they were never the prisoners; the Edomites that had escaped, refusing to buy the lives of their friends and kinsmen at so dear a rate, as the loss of their own liberty. Some towns in Mount Seir, Amazia took, as appears by his carrying away the Idols thence; but it is like they vvere the places most indefensible, in that he left no garrisons there, whereby he might another year the better have purfued the in his war against the Aramites, was conquest of the vyhole countrey. Howsoever fuch as might kindle in Amazia a defire of it were, he got both honour by the journey,

Among other spoyls of the Edomites, vvere dom could furnish three hundred thousand carryed away their gods; which being vanserviceable men for the Wars, and his trea- quished and taken prisoners, did deserve fures were sufficient for the payment of these, vvell to be led in triumph. But they contrariand the hire of many more. Cause of war he vvise, I know not by vvhat strange vvitchhad very just against the Edomites, who hav-craft, so besotted this unworthy King Amazia ing rebelled in the time of his grand-father that he fet them up to be his gods, and worship- 1 Chro.15.

happening in Juda, partly through the floth phet feut from God, he gave a churlish and and timerousness of his father Joas. Yet, foral- threatning answer; asking the Prophet, who much as the men of Juda had in many years made him a Counseller, and bidding him been without all exercise of War (excepting hold his peace for fear of the worst. If either that unhappy fight wherein they were bea- the coftly stuffe, whereof these Idols were ten by a few bands of the Aramites) he held made, or the curious workmanship and beauwith fouldiers waged out of Ifrael, whence cers, had ravished the Kings fancie; mehe hired for an hundred talents of lilver, an thinks, he should have rather turned them with fuch unreasonable devotion towards cost Amazia had hired out of Ifrael, he vvas the Edomites had held them, were able to it a point of wishom to increase his forces, ty, with which they were adorned by Artisfi-

com, hundred thousand valiant men, as the Scripto matter of profit, or kept them as houseture telleth us, though Josephus diminisheth hold ornaments and things of pleasure, than had the number, laying that they were but twen thereby have suffered himself to be blinded, This great Army, which with so much them. If the superstitious account wherein fain to difmis before he had imployed it, be- work much upon his imagination; much ing threatned by a Prophet vvith ill fuc- more should the bad service which they had cels, if he ffrengthened himself with the done to their old Clients, have moved him help of those men, vvhom God (though in thereupon to laugh, both at the Edomites, mercy he gave them victory against the and them. Wherefore it seems to me, that

CHAP. XXII.

moved him to talk fo roughly to the Pro- shewed himself a better man of war than any phet reprehending him. He had already o- King of Juda, fince the time of Jekoluphat, beyed the warning of God by a Prophet, and and could be well contented, that his people fent away fuch auxiliarie forces as he had should think him little inferiour to David; of 1chro.15, gathered out of Ifrael, which done, it is faid, which honour he faw no reason why the prothat he was encouraged, and led forth his pee- phets should rob him, who had made him ple, thinking belike, that God would now loofe an hundred talents, and done him no rather affift him by miracle, than let him fail-pleasure; he having prevailed by plain force of obtaining all his hearts defire. But with and good conduct, without any miracle at better reason he should have limited his deall. That he was distempered with such vain fires by the will of God, whose pleasure it was thoughts as these (besides the witness of his thoughts are the was distempered with such as the w that Esau having broken the yoak of Jacob impiety following) Josephus doth testific from his neck, according as Isaac had fore-saying, That he despiled God, and that betold, should no more become his servant. If ling pust up with his good success, of which therefore Amazia did hope to reconquer all nevertheless he would not acknowledge the countrey of Edam, he failed of his expec- God to be the Authour, he commanded Jose tation; yet so, that he brought home both King of Ifrael to become his subject, and to contended with him.

ill endure to ascribe unto God the honour of on the injury done to him by the Israelites, those actions, in which it hath pleased him to whom he dismissed in the Journey against use their own industrie, courage, or fore- Mount Seir. And likely it is, that the sense of fight. Therefore it is commonly feen, that a late wrong had more power to stirre him they, who entring into battell, are carefull up, than the remembrance of anold title, to pray for aide from heauen, with due ac- forgotten long fince, and by himfelfe negknowledgment of his power, who is the giver lected thirteen, or fourteen years. Neverof victory; when the field is won, doe vaunt theleffe it might so be, that when he was of there own ex-ploits; one telling how he thus provoked, he thought it not enough to got such a ground of advantage; another, require new wrongs, but would also callold how he gave check to such a battalion; a matters into question; that so the Kings of Ifthird, how he feized on the enemies Canon; rael might, at the least, learn to keep their every one striving to magnifie himself, whil- subjects from offending Juda, for fear of enpresent in the action. To ascribe to fortune defired onely recompence for the injury he did, or in reason might expect, is deeply with him. But the answer which Joan returnture of fuch thanksgiving, that it may well of less Nobility than vertue. be called the height of magnanimity; no It is by sophocles reported of Ajax, that in Affa which the spirit of man advanceth it self did bid him to be valiant, and get victory with confidence of acceptation, unto the by Gods affiltance, he made answer, That by love of God. In which sense it is a brave Gods affistance a coward could get victospeech that Evander in Virgil useth to Ane-ry, but he would get it alone without such as, none but a Christian being capable of the help: after which proud speech, though he admonition.

dignum

Finge Dee.

the same affections carried him from God , | With this Philosophy Amazia (as appears by unto the service of Idols, which asterwards his carriage)troubled not his head; he had profit and honour, which might have well let the ten Tribes acknowledge him their Soveraign, as they had done his Ancestours But there is a foolish and a wretched King David and Salomon. Some think that pride, wherewith men being transported, can his quarrel to Joas was rather grounded upest all forget God, as one that had not been dangering their own Crowns. Had Amazia the effects of another mans vertue, is, I con-done to him, it is not improbable that he fesse, an argument of malice. Yet this is true, should have had some reasonable answer that as he which findeth better successe, than from Joas, who was not desirous to fight bound to acknowledge God the Authour of ed, likening himself to a Cedar, and Amazia his happinesse; so he whose meer wisdome in respect of him to no better than a thissle, and labour hath brought things to a prospe-shewes that the challenge was made in insorous iffue, is doubly bound to fliew himself | lent terms, stuft perhaps with such proud thankful both for the victory, and for those comparison of Nobility, as might be made vertues by which the victory was gotten. (according to that which Josephus hath writ-And indeed to far from weaknesse is the nation) between a King of ancient race and one vertue being so truely heroical, as that by when going to the warre of Troy, his father Lan. did many valiant acts, he had small thanks, Aude bospes contemnere opes, & te quoque and finally, killing himself in a madness, whereinto he fell upon disgrace received, was hardly allowed the honour of buriall. man had so despised, did (as Josephus reports ured in the like) having devoured in their zia, he dismissed the poor creature that was greedy hopes, the spoile of Ifrael, fully per- glad of his life, and returned to Samaria. Iwading themselves to get as much, and at as casse a rate, as in the journey of Edom; were fo far disappointed of their expectation that well they might suspect all new assu- A discourse of the reasons bindering Joas from rance of good luck, when the old had thus beguiled them. All this notwithstanding, their King that had fromack enough to challenge? the patrimony of Salomon, thought like another David to winne it by the fword. The iffue of which fool-hardiness might

That Amazia did utter fuch words, I do it) ftrike fuch terrour and amazement into Jof ant, not find, but having once entertained the the men of Juda, that without one blow givelences thoughts, which are parents of fuch words, en, they fled all away, leaving their King to he was rewarded with fuccess accordingly. shift for himself; which he did so ill, that The very first counsell wherein this war his enemy had soon caught him, and made was concluded, ferves to prove that he was him change his glorious humour into most a wife Prince indeed at Jerusalem, among abject baseness. That the Army which his Paralites, but a fool when he had to deal fled, fulfained any other loss than of honour. with his equals abroad. For it was not I neither find in the Scriptures nor in Joseall one, to fight with the Edomites, a weak phas, it being likely that the foon beginning people, trusting more in the seat of their of their flight, which made it the more sname-Countrey, than the valour of their Soul- full, made it also the more safe. But of the diers; and to encounter with Joas, who from mischief that followed this overthrow, it was fo poor beginnings had raised himself to Gods will that Amazia himself should sufuch strength, that he was able to lend his stain the whole disgrace. For Jour carried friend a hundred thousand men, and had him directly to Jerusalem, where he bad him all his Nation exercised, and trained up in a procure that the gates may be opened to let long victorious war. But as Amazia dif-him in and his Army; threatning him othercovered much want of judgment, in under- wife with prefent death. So much amazed taking such a match; so in profecuting the was the miserable captive, with these dreadbusiness, when it was set on foot, he behaved ful words, that he durst do no other than himself as a man of little experience, who perswade the Citizens, to yeild themselves to having once onely tryed his fortune, and the mercy of the Conquerour. The Town, found it to be good, thought that in War which afterwards being in weaker state held there was nothing else to do, than fend out two years against Nebuchadnezzar, vvas a defiance, fight, and win. Joss on the utterly difmaied, when the King that should contrary fide, having been accustomed to have given his life to fave it, used all his deal with a stronger enemy than the King force of command and intreaty to betray it. of Juda, used that celerity, which peradven So the gates of Jerufalem vvere opened to ture had often stood him in good stead a Joss, vvith vvhich honour (greater than any gainst the Aramite. He did not sit waiting King of Israel had ever obtained) he could till the enemies brake in & wasted his Coun- not rest contented, but the more to despise trey, but presented himself with an Army in Amazia and his people, he caused 400. cubits Juda, ready to bid battel to Amazia, and fave him the labour of a long journey. This the City in his Chariot through that breach, could not but greatly discourage those of carrying the King before him as in triumph. Juda, who (besides the impression of sear This done, he sack'd the Temple; and the which an invalion beats into people, not in- Kings Palace, and fo taking hostages of Ama-

> 9. IX. uniting Juda to the Crown of Brael, when he had won Jerusalem, and held Amazia prifoner. The end of Joas his reign.

TTTE may justly marvel how it came to pals, that Joas, being thus in easily have been fore-feen in humane rea- possession of Jernsalem, having the King in his fon; comparing together, either the two hands, his enemies forces broken, and his own Kings, or the quality of their Armies, or the entire, could be so content to depart quietfirst and ominous beginning of the War. ly with a little spoil, when he might have But meer humane wisdom, howsoever seized upon the whole Kingdom. The reign it might foresee much, could not have prog- of Athalia had given him cause to hope that nosticated all the mischief that fell upon A the issue of David might be dispossessed of mazia. For as foon as the two Armies came that Crown; his own nobility, being the in fight, God, whose help this wretched son and grand-child of Kings, together with

nough to make the people of Juda think and lay his ravenous hands upon the confehighly of him, who might also have preferred crated vessels, calling the family of obed Ehis form of government before that of their dom (whose children had hereditary charge of own Kings, especially at such a time, when a the treasure) to a strict account, as if they t const long fuccession of wicked Princes had smo- had been officers of his own exchequer; 150 thered the thanks which were due to the me- they confidered him rather as an execrable mory of a few good ones. The commodity Church-robber, than as a noble Prince. that would have ensued upon the union of all an Ifraelite, and their brother, though of a the twelve Tribes under one Prince, is so ap- nother Tribe. Thus following that course, parent, that I need not to infift on it. That a- which the most vertuous King of our age ny message from God forbade the Israelite (taxing it with the same phrase) hath wisely (as afterwards in the victory which Peka the avoyded; by stealing a few Apples, he lost fon of Romelia got upon Ahaz) to turn his pre- the inheritance of the whole Orchard. The fent advantageto the best use, we do not read, people detested him, and after the respite All this makes it the more difficult to refolve of a few days, might, by comparing themthe question, why a Prince so well exercised selves one to one, perceive his Souldiers to as Joas had been in recovering his own, and be no better than men of their own mould. winning from the enemy, should forsake the and inferiour in number to the inhabitants possession of Jerusalem, and wilfully neglect of so great a City. It is not so easy to hold the possibilities, or rather cast away the full by force a mighty town entred by capituaffurance of fo fair a conquest, as the King- lation, as to enter the gates opened by un-

dom of Juda. thers had been most material, I mean the gin to understand their first errour, they will defire of the vanquished people to accept the think upon every advantage, of place, of Israelite for their King, it is plainly seen, provisions, of multitude, yea of women arthat entring Jerusalem in triumphant manner, | med with tile-stones; and rather choose by Joas was unable to concoct his own pro- desperate resolution, to correct the evills sperity. For, the opening of the gates had grown out of their former cowardise, than been enough to have let him not onely into luffer those mischiefs to poyson the body, the City, but into the Royal Throne, and which in fuch half-conquests, are easily the peoples hearts, whom by fair intreaty tasted in the mouth. A more lively example (efpecially having fure means of compul- hereof cannot be defired, than the City of fion) he might have made his own, when Florence, which through the weakness of they saw themselves betrayed, and basely Peter de Medices, governing therein as a given away by him whose they had been Prince, was reduced into such hard tearms, before. The fair mark which this opportunity prefented, he did not aim at, be-King Charles the eighth, who not plainly cause his ambition was otherwise, and more professing himself either friend or foe to meanly busied, in levelling at the glory the State, entred the Town, with his Arof a triumphant entry through a breach. my, in triumphant manner, himself and his Yet this errour might afterwards have been horse armed, with his lance upon his thigh. corrected well enough, if entring as an ene- Many infolencies were therein committed my, and shewing what he could do, by by the French, and much argument of quarfpending his anger upon the Walls, he had rell ministred between them and the within the City done offices of a friend, and Towns-men: fo far forth that the Floren-I boured to shew good will to the inhabi- times, to preserve their liberty, were dritants. But when his pride had done, his cove- ven to prepare for fight. To conclude the rousnels began, and sought to please it self matter, charles propounds intollerable conwith that which is commonly most rea- ditions, demanding huge sums of ready dy to the spoyler, yet should be most for money, and the absolute Seigniory of the and the Philistims, men ignorant of the true City in Arms. But Peter Caponi, a princi-God and his Religion, had quenched their pal Citizen, catching these Articles from greedy thirst, ought not to have tempted the Kings Secretary, and tearing them bethe appetite of loas, who though an Idolater, fore his face, bad him found his Trumpets, yet acknowledged also and worshipped the and they would ring their Bels: which pesalem. Therefore when the people saw him themselves, and come readily to this agree-

the famous acts that he had done, were e- take his way directly to feife that holy place. advised fear. For when the Citizens, not be-But concerning that point, which of all o- ing difarmed, recover their spirits. and beborn. The Treasure wherewith sefac, Hazael, State, as conquered by him, who entred the eternal God, whose Temple was at Jeru-remptory words made the French bethink fit, who upon the uncertain hope of destroy- other sacrilegious Potentates. ing a Town, forfakes the affurance of a good of him, to take hoftages for his better fecurity his Army being upon return, and betcauses it was the more unapt to fight,

Besides these impediments, within the City and without, ferving to cool the ambition of Joas, and keep it down from aspiring to the Crown of Juda; it appears that somewhat was newly fallen out, which had reference to the anger of Elisha the Prophet; who, when this Joas had smitten the ground with his arrows thrice, told him that he should no oftner smite the Aramites. The three victories which Israel had against Aram, are by fome, and with great probabi-

ment, that for forty thousand pounds, and change of fortune and suffer losse; we must not half of that money to be paid in hand, needs conclude, That the Aramite pre-Charles should not only depart in peace, but vailed upon him this yeare, it being the last restore whatsoever he had of their Domini- of his Reign. That this was so, and that the on, and continue their affured friend. So dan- Syrians, taking advantage of Joas his absence gerous a matter did it feem for that brave gave fuch a blow to Ifrael, as the King at his Army, which in few moneths after wan the return was not able to remedie, but rather Kingdom of Naples, to fight in the streets, a- fell himself into new missfortunes which ingainst the armed multitude of that populous creased the calamitie; we may evidently per-City. It is true, that Charles had other business ceive in that which is spoken of Jeroboam his (and so perhaps had foas, as shall anon be son. For it is said, That the Lord saw the exceethewed) that called him away: but it was ding bitter affiction, of Ifrael, and that having the apprehension of imminent danger that not decreed to put out the name of Israel from made him come to reason. In such cases the under the Heaven, he preserved them by the firing of houses, usually draws every Citizen hand of Jeroboam the some of Joas. This is eto fave his own, leaving victory to the Soul- nough to prove, that the victorious Reign dier: yet where the people are prepared and of Joas was concluded with a fad catastrorefolved, women can quench, as fast as the phe; the riches of the Temple hastening his enemy, having other things to look unto, can mifery and death, as they had done with fet on fire. And indeed that Commander is Sefac, Athalia, and Hazael, and as afterwards more given to anger than regardful of pro- they wrought with Antiochus, Crassus, and Thus either through indignation conceicomposition. Diversity of circumstance ved against him, by the people of Jerusalem, may alter the case: it is enough to say, that and courage which they took to set upon it might be in ferusalem, as we know it was in him within the Walls; or through preparation of the Army that lay abroad in the How strongly soever Joas might hold Countrey to bid him battel in open field, & himself within Jerusalem, he could not easily recover by a new charge the honour which depart from thence, with his booty safe, if was lost at the former encounter; or through the Army of Juda, which had been more ter- the miseries daily brought upon his own rified than weakned in the late encounter, Countrey, by the syrian in his absence (if should re-enforce itself, and give him a check not by all of these) Joas was driven to lay aupon the way. Wherefore it was wifely done lide all thought of winning the Kingdom of Juda; and taking hoftages for his quiet paffage, made all hafte homewards, where he ter loaden than when it came forth; for which found a fad wel-come, and being utterly forfakeirof his wonted prosperity, forfook also his life in few moneths after, leaving his Kingdom to Jerobeam the second, his fortunate and valiant fon.

X.
 The end of Amazia his Reign and life.

Ny man is able to ghess how Amazia Looked, when the enemy had left him. He that had vaunted fo much of his own lity referred unto the fifth, fixth, and seventh great prowels and skill in Arms, threatyeares of Joas: after which time, if any losses ning to work wonders, and set up a-new ensuing had blemished the former good suc- the glorious Empire of David, was now uncess, ill might the King of Ifrael have likened cased of his Lions hide, and appeared nohimself to a stately Cedar, and worse could thing so terrible a beast as he had bin painhe have either lent the Judaan one hundred ted. Much argument of scoffing at him he had thousand men, or meet him in battell, who ministred unto such as held him in diswas able to bring into the feild three hun- like; which at this time doubtless were very dred thouland of his own. Seeing therefore it many: for the shame that falls upon an inis made plain by the words of Elista, that solent man, seldom fails of meeting with aafter three victories Jouff should find some bundance of reproach. As for Amazia,

CHAP. XXII.

was feared. Which is a thing of dangerous confequence; especially when an unable fpirit, being over-perted with fo high au-

(besides that the multitude are alwayes have been kept out; why did their Anceprone to lay the blame upon their Gover- ftors let Sefac in? Ala was reputed a verturours, even of those calamities which hap- ous Prince, yet with his own hands he empen by their own default) there was no pried the Temple, and was not blamed, but child in all Jerusalem, but knew him to be held excusable by necessity of the State. the root of all this mischief. He had not only Belike these traducers would commend no challenged a good man of War, being him- Actions but of dead Princes: if so, he should felf a Dastard; but when he was beaten and rather live to punish them, than die to please taken by him, had basely pleaded for the them. Though wherein had he given them common enemy, to have him let into the Ci- any cause of displeasure? It was he indeed ty, that with his own eyes he might fee what that commanded to fet open the gates to spoil there was, and not make a bad bargain Joas; but it was the people that did it. Good by hear-fay. The father of this Amazia was a fervants ought not to have obeyed their beaftly man; yet when the Aramites took Masters Commandments to his disadvanhim and tormented him, he did not offer to tage, when they faw him not mafter of his buy his own life at so dear a rate, as the City own Person. As his captivity did acquithin and Temple of Jerusalem. Had he offered, from blame of all things that he did or fufshould they have made his promise good? fered in that condition; so was that missorfurely the hafte which they had made in tune it felf, in true estimation, as highly to condescending to this hard match, was very his honour, as deeply to his loss. For had he unfortunate: for by keeping out the Ifrae-been as hafty to fly as others were, he might lites (which was easie enough) any little have escaped as well as others did. But while they should soon have been rid of him, seeking to teach the base multitude courage feeing that the Aramites would have made by his Royal example he was flamefully behim run home, with greater fpeed than he trayed by those in whom he trusted. Unworcame forth. Then also, when having truffed thy creatures, that could readily obey him, up his baggage, he was ready to be gone, a when speaking another mans words, being little courage would have served to per-prisoner, he commanded them to yeild; hafwade him to leave his load behind; had ving neglected his charge, when leading not their good King delivered up hoftages, them into the field, he bad them fland to it to fecure his return, as loath to defraud him and fight like men. The best was, that they heart of this unhappy King; it had been well were faved; the enemy having wifely prefor him, if they had made him acknowledge ferred the furprise of a Lion that was Caphis fault unto God, that had punished him by tain, before the chase and flaughter of an all this dishonour. But we find no mention of Army of Stags that followed him. his amendment. Rather it appears, that he Thefe or the like words comforting Amacontinued an Idolater to the very last. For zia, were able to perswade him, that it was it is faid of him, that after his turning away even fo indeed. And fuch excufes might have from the Lord, they prought treason against served well enough to please the people, if bim in jerufalem: a manitest proof that he the King had first studied how to please was not reclaimed unto his lives end. And God. But he that was unwilling to afcribe certainly, they which tell a man in his adver- unto God the good fuccess foretold by a fity of his faults passed, shall sooner be Prophet; could easily find how to impute thought to upbraid him with his fortune, this late disafter unto fortune, and the fault of the recompence due to his pains taken. must needs acknowledge his mischance, as Such exprobations could not but vex the the occasion whereby many thousand lives than to feek his reformation. Wherefore it is of others. Now concerning fortune it feems no marvel, that Priests and Prophets were that he meant to keep himself safe from her less welcome to him, than ever they had by sitting still; for in fifteen years following; been. On the other fide, flatterers, and fuch (fo long he out-lived his honour) we find as were defirous to put a heart into him, not that he stirred. As for his subjects, though whereof themselves might alwayes be ma- nothing henceforth be recorded of his gosters, wanted not plantible matter to revive vernment, yet we may fee by his end, that the him. For he was not the first, nor second of middle time was ill spent among them, inthe Kings of Juda, that had been overcome creating their hatred to his own ruine. He in battel. David himself had abandoned the that suspecteth his own worth or other mens City, leaving it before the enemy was in opinions, thinking the less regard is had of fight, unto Absalom his rebellious Son. Many his person than he believeth to be due to besides him had received losses, wherein the his place, will commonly spend all the force Temple bare a part. If Joss might so easily of his authority in purchasing the name of a levere man. For the affected sowreness of a Kingdom of Ifrael. Therefore it may seem vain fellow, doth many times resemble the that he was detained there, where certain it gravity of one that is wife: and the fear is that he found no kind of favour: for had wherein they live, which are subject unto not the people of this Town added their oppression, carries a shew of reverence to own treason to the general insurrection; him that does the wrong; at least it serves the murderers could not at so good leisure to dazle the eyes of underlings, keeping as they did, have carried away his body to them from prying into the weakeness of Jerusalem, where they gave him burial with fuch as have jurisdiction over them. Thus his fathers. the time, wherein, by well using it, men might attain to be such as they ought, they do usually mil-spend, in seeking to appear such as §. XI. they are not. This is a vain and deceiveable course; procuring, in stead of the respect of the Inter-regnum, or vacancy, that was in that was hoped for, more indignation than the Kingdom of Juda, after the death of

TT hath already been shewed, that the thority, is too passionate in the execution Reigns of the Kings of Juda and Israel of fuch an office, as cannot be checked but were sometimes to be measured by compleat by violence. If therefore Amazia thought years, otherwhiles, by years current: and by extreme rigour to hold up his reputation, that the time of one King is now and then what did he else than strive to make the confounded with the last years of his fathers people think he hated them, vvhen of them- Reign, or the foremost of his sons. But we felves they were apt enough to believe that are now arrived at a meer vacation, wherein he did not love them? the best vvas, that the Crown of Juda lay void eleven whole he had, by revenging his fathers death, pro- | years : a thing not plainly fet down in Scrivided well enough for his own security : but | ptures, nor yet remembred by Josephus, and who should take vengeance (or upon therefore hard to be believed, were it not vyhom?) of such a murther, wherein every proved by necessary consequence.

one had a part? Surely God himself, who Twice we find it written, that Amazia, 2 chron. had not given commandment or leave unto King of Juda, lived after the death of Joas 1. 2. the people, to take his office out of his hand, King of Israel, fifteen years; whereupon it King. 14. in shedding the bloud of his Annointed. Yet | follows that the death of Amazia, was about as Amazia careless of God, was carried head- the end of fifteen years compleat, which Jelong by his own affections; fo his fubjects, roboam the second (who in the fifteenth year & King 14. following the same ill example, without re- of Amazia was made King over Israel) had 23. quiring what belonged unto their duties, reigned in Samaria. But the fuccession of rose up against him, with such headlong su- Vzzia, who is also called Azaria, unto his fary, that being unable to defend himself in ther in the Kingdom of Juda, was eleven Jerusalem, he was driven to forsake the City, years later than the sixteenth of Jeroboam: and fly to Lachis, for fafeguard of his life. for it is expressed, that Azaria began to reign 2 King 15. 8 But so extream was the hatred conceived a- in the seven and twentieth year of Jeroboam: gainst him, and so general, that neither his the sixteenth year of his life, being joyned absence could allay the rage of it in the Ca- with the first of two and fifty that he reignpital City, nor his presence in the Country ed. So the Inter regnum of eleven years canabroad procure friends to defend his life. not be divided, without some hard means

Questionless he chose the Town of Lachis | used, of interpreting the Text otherwise for his refuge, as a place of all other best af- than the letter founds. Yet some conjectures there are made,

fected to him; yet found he there none other favour, than that the people did not kill which tend to keep all even, without achim with their own hands; for when the knowledging any void time. For it is thought Conspirators (who troubled not themselves that in the place last of all cited, by the seabout raifing an Army for the matter) fent ven and twentieth year of Jeroboam, we pursuers after, he was abandoned to death. should perhaps understand the seven and Lachie was the utmost City of his Dominion twentieth year of his life; or else (because Westward, standing somewhat without the the like words are no where else interpreted border of Juda; so that he might have in the like sense) that Azaria was eleven made an easie escape (if he durst adventure) | years under age, that is, five years old, when into the Territory of the Philiftims, or the his father died, and so his fixteenth year might concur with the feven and twentieth, reign fingle in the fifteenth of Amazia; did of Teroboam; or that the Text it felf might it not swallow up almost the whole reign of have suffered some verong, by miswriting Joss, and extending the years of those which twenty feven for feventeen years; and fo, reigned in Ifrael (by making such of them by making the seventeenth year of Jero- compleat as were onely current and take at boam to be newly begun, all may be falved. the shortest the reigns of Princes ruling in These are the conjectures of that worthy other Nations. But I will not stand to dispute man Gerard Mercator: concerning the first further of this: every man may follow his of which, it may suffice, that the Author own opinion, and see mine more plainly in himself doth easily let it pass, as improba- the Chronological Table, drawn for these ble; the last is followed by none that I purposes. know neither is it fit, that upon every doubt, vve flould call the text in question; vvhich could not be falfified in all copies, if perhaps it were in one: as for the second, it may be held with some qualification, that Azaria Of Princes Contemporary with Amazia, and began his Reign being five years old; but then must vve add those eleven years which passed in his minority, to the two and fifty He Princes living with Amazia, and in that followed his fixteenth year, which is all one in a manner, with allowing an Inter- death, were Joas and Jeroboam in Ifrael; void an Inter-regnum in Juda, seeing that memnon in Corinth; Diognetus Pheredus, and the like necessity hath inforced all good Ariphron in Athens; in Lacedamon Thelettus. Writers to acknowledge the like vacancy, in whose time the Spartans wan from the Atwice happening within few years, in the chaians, Gerautha, Amyela, and some other Kingdom of Ifrael? The space of time be- Towns. tween feroboam's death, and the beginning But more notable than all these, was Assof Zachariah's reign, and fuch another gap rian Sardanapalus, who in the one and twenfound between the death of Peka, and the tieth year of Amazia, succeeding his father beginning of Hosea, have made it easily to be Ocrazapes or Anacyndaraxes, reigned twenadmitted into Samaria; vyhich the consi- ty years, and was llain the last of the eleven deration of things as they stood in Juda, void years which fore-went the reign of when Amazia was flain, doth make more Azaria. In him ended (as most agree) probable to have happened there, yea, al- the line of Ninus, which had held that Emthough the necessity of computation vvere pire one thousand two hundred and forty not fo apparent.

2 Chron

440

ed it felf, as unto the destruction of the strumpers, whom he imitated both in apparel Kings own person, was not likely to be ap- and behaviour. pealed without order taken for obtaining In these voluptuous courses he lived an some redress of those matters, which had unhappy life, knowing himself to be sovile, extremity. We need not therefore wonder him; yet feen he was at length, and the how it came to pass, that they which already light of him was so odious, that it procured had thrown themselves into such an horri- his ruine. For Arbaces, who governed Meble treason, should afterwards dare to with- dia under him, finding means to behold the hold the Crown from a Prince of that age, person of his King, was so incensed with which being invested in all ornaments of that beastly spectacle, of a man disguised in Regality, is nevertheless exposed to many womans attire, and striving to counterfeit an injuries, proceeding from head-strong, and harlot, that he thought it a great shame to forgetful fubjects.

6. XII.

more particularly of Sardanapalus.

the eleven years that followed his Cepbrenes and Mycerinus in Egypt ; Sylvius Al-But vvhy should vve be so careful to a- ladius, and Sylvius Aventinus in Alba; Aga-vears. A most luxurious and esteminate Pal-For the publick fury having fo far extend- liard he was, passing away his time among caused it at the first to break forth into such that he durst not let any man have a sight of live under the command of so unworthy a As for their conjecture, who make Azaria creature. Purposing therefore to free himto have been King but one and forty years felf and others from fo base subjection, he after he came out of his non-age; I dare was much encouraged by the prediction of not allow it, because it agrees too harshly Belesis or Belosus a Chaldean, who told him with the Text. The best opinion were that plainly, that the Kingdom of Sardanapalus which gives unto Jeroboam eleven years of should fall into his hands. Arbaces well reign with his Father, before he began to pleased with the Prophecy, did promise unthering such forces as the could out of other breach for Arbaces to enter. ing to be a flight, caused Sardanapalus to seeming a Prince. feast his Army, triumphing before victory. But the Rebels being strengthened with wife of his end; saying that Arbaces, when this new supply, came upon him by night, he first found him among his Concubines, Itance.

menus to keep the field, he withdrew himself where the truth might best be known. into the City of Nineve; which, till new Concerning the Princes which reigned ving in two battels overthrown the Kings because they did nothing worthy of memo- c. 6. Army, and slain Salamenus) was fain to lye ry. What soever they did, that which Theo-Theophilus ance. It feems that he wanted Engines and them.

to Belofus himself the government of Baby- skill to force those walls, which were an lon; and fo concluding how to handle the hundred foot high, and thick enough for business, one of them stirred up the Medes, three Chariots in front to pass upon the and allured the Persians into the quarrel, the rampire. But that which he could not do in other perswaded the Babylonians and Ara- two years, the River of Tigris did in the hians to venture themselves in the same third: for being high swoln with rains, it cause. These four Nations armed forty thou-not onely drowned a part of the City fand men against Sardanapalus, who in this through which it ran, but threw down twendanger was not wanting to himself, but ga- ty furlongs of the wall, and made a fair

Nations, encountred the rebels, as one that Sardanapalus, either terrified with the acwould by deeds refute the tales that they compliftment of the old Oracle, or feeing had told of him. Neither did his carriage in no means of refiftance left, shutting up himthe beginning of that War, answer to the self into his Palace, with his Wives, Eumanner of his retiredness. For in three bat- nuchs, and all his Treasures, did set the house tels he carried away the better, driving Ar- on fire, wherewith he and they were togebaces and his followers into such fearful ther consumed. Strabe speaks of a Monuterms, that had not Belosus promised them ment of his, that was in Anchiale, a City of Strab.l.g. constantly some unexpected succours, they Cilicia, whereon was found an inscription. would forthwith have broken up their shewing that he built that City and Thar-Camp. About the same time, an Army out supon one day: but the addition hereto. of Battria was coming to affift the King; bidding men eat and drink, and make merbut Arbaces encountring it upon the way, ry, encouraged others with verses well perswaded so strongly by promise of liberty, known, to a voluptuous life, by his own exthat those forces joyned themselves with his lample testified that his nature was more The sudden departure of the enemy seem- prone to sensuality, than to any vertue be-

There are some that faintly report otherand forced his Camp, which through over- was so enraged, that suddenly he slew him great fecurity was unprepared for refi- with a dagger. But the more general confent of Writers agrees with this relation of Dio- Diod, Sic. This overthrow did so weaken the Kings dorus siculus, who citeth Ctessas a Greek 1. c. 78 heart, that leaving his Wives brother Sala- Writer, that lived in the Court of Persia, aids that he fent for should come he thought in Affyria, from the time of Semiramis, unto eafily to defend; it having been prophefied, Sardanapalus, though I believe that they that Nineve should never be taken, till the were sometimes (yet not, as Orosius hath it, River were enemy to the Town. Of the inceffantly) bufied in offenfive, or elfe defengreatness and strength of Nineve, enough sive arms; yet for the most part of them I hath been spoken in our discourse of Ninus | do better trust Diodorus Siculus, who saith It was so well victualled, that Arbaces (ha- that their names were overpassed by Ctessas, Died. I. E.

two whole years before it, in hope to win it philus Antiochenus hath faid of them is very Antioches by famine; whereof yet he faw no appear-true; Silence and Oblivion hath oppressed was L zi.

CHAP. XXIII.

CHAP. XXIII. Of UZZIA.

9. I.

The prosperity of Uzzia, and of Jeroboam the second, who reigned with him in Ifrael. Of the Anarchythat was in the ten Tribes after the death of Jeroboam. Of Zacharia, Sallum Menahem, and Pekahia.

fon of Joss King of Ifrael. He served the God in the most likely places. if by these Towers of his father David, and had therefore good he fo commanded the water, that none could fuccess in all his enterprises. He built Eloth, a without his consent, relieve themselves Town that stood near to the Red Sea, and therewith, questionless he took the onerestored it to Juda. He overcame the Philistims, of whose Towns he dismantled some, and built others in fundry parts of their Territories. Also he got the mastery over some tream drought, when the sew Springs thereparts of Arabia, and brought the Ammonites in found, are left free to the use of Travelto pay him tribute. Such were the fruits of lers. his prosperous Wars, wherein (as Josephus rehearseth his acts) he began with the Phili- of Eloth by the Red Sea, and of sundry stims, and then proceeded unto the Arabians Towns among the Philistims; he repaired and Ammonites. His Army confifted of three the wall of Ferufalem, which Joss had brohundred and seven thousand men of War, ken down, and fortified it with Towers, over which were appointed two thousand whereof some were an hundred and fifty and fix hundred Captains. For all this multi- Cubits high. tude the King prepared shields, and spears, Princes, and all the Chariots.

interest, he had the skill to use, as well as David. the happiness to get. He turned his lands to But it was not for the piety of Jeroboam, the best use, keeping Ploughmen and Dreft that he thrived so well, for he was an Idolafers of Vines, in grounds convenient for fuch ter: it was only the compassion which the husbandry. In other places he had Cattel Lord had on Israel, seeing the exceeding bitteeding; whereof he might well keep great ter affliction whereinto the Aramites had ftore, having won fo much from the Ammo brought his people, which caufed him to alter nites and Arabians, that had abundance of the succession of war, and to throw the victowaste ground serving for pasturage. For de- rious Aramites under the feet of those whom Zzia, who is called Ahazia, the I fence of his Cattel and Heardsmen, he built fon of Jotham, was made King Towers in the Wilderness. He also digged of Juda, when he was fixteen many Cifterns or Ponds. Josephus calls them years old, in the feven and Water-courses; but in such dry grounds, it twentieth year of Jeroboam the was enough that he found water, by digging ly course, by which he might securely hold the Lordship over all the Wilderness; it being hardly paffable, by reason of the ex-

Besides all this cost, and the building both

The state of Israel did never so flourish, as and helmets, and other Arms requisite; fol- at this time, fince the division of the twelve lowing therein happily a course quite oppo- Tribes into two Kingdoms. For as Vizzie fite unto that which some of his late prede- prevailed in the South, so (if not more) Jeroceffors had held, who thought it better poli- boam the fon of Joas, King of the ten Tribes, cy to use the service of the Nobility, than of enlarged his border on the North; where the multitude; carrying forth to war the obtaining many victories against the Syrians, he wan the Royal City of Damascus, and he , King,14 As the victories of Vzzia were far more wan Hamath, with all the country therea s. 18. important, than the atchievments of all that bout from the entring of Hamath, unto the had reigned in Juda, fince the time of Da- Sea of the Wilderness, that is (as the most exvid; fo were his riches and magnificent pound it) unto the vast defarts of Arabia, works, equal, if not superiour to any of theirs the end whereof was undiscovered. So the that had been Kings between him and salo- bounds of Ifrael in those parts, were in time mon. For, besides that great conquests are of this Jeroboam, the same (or not much narwon to repay the charges of War with triple rower) which they had been in the reign of victorious reign of one and forty years, had life than he did his fervant David. ended his life; it feems in all reason that Zaare likely not to have been wanting upon for the eradication of Ahabs house.

they had so cruelly oppressed. The line of of Uzzia, which was the last of Jeroboans They had to which God had promifed the King- his one and fortieth (his feven and twentieth dom of Ifrael unto the fourth generation, was concurring with the first of Uzzia) and the now not far from the end; and now again eight and thirtieth of the same Uzzia, in the it was invited unto repentance by new bene- last fix moneths whereof Zacharia reigned fits, as it hath been at the beginning. But the in Samaria. There are some indeed that by fin of Jeroboam the son of Nebat was held so supposing Jeroboam to have reigned with his pretious, that neither the Kingdom it felf gi- father eleven years, do cut off the interregvento him by God, was able to draw Jehu num in Juda (before mentioned) and by the from that politick Idolatry; nor the mifery fame reason abridge this Anarchy that was falling upon him and his posterity, to bring before the reign of Zacharia in Ifrael. Yet them to a better course of Religion; nor yet, they leave it twelve years long: which is at the last, this great prosperity of Jeroboam time sufficient to prove that the Kingdom of the fon of Joas, to make him render the ho- the ten Tribes was no less distempered than nour that was due to the onely giver of vi- as is already noted. But I choose rather to ctory. Wherefore the promise of God made follow the more common opinion, as conunto Jehu, that his fons, unto the fourth gene- curring more exactly with the times of other ration, should fit on the throne of Ifrael, was Princes reigning abroad in the World, than not enlarged; but being almost expired, this doubtful conjecture, that gives to ferogave warning of the approaching end, by an boam two and fifty years, by adding three accident (fo strange, that we who find no par- quarters of his fathers reign unto his own; ticulars recorded, can hardly ghess at the which was it felf indeed so long, that he may occasions) foregoing the last accomplish- well seem to have begun it very young; for I do not think that God bleffed this Idolater When Jeroboam the fon of Joas, after a both with a longer reign, and with a longer

Thus much being spoken of the time charia his son should forthwith have been ad- wherein the Throne of Israel was void, before mitted to reign in his flead; the Nobility of the reign of Zacharia; little may suffice to that race having gotten fuch a lustre by the be said of his reign it self, which lasted but a immediate succession of four Kings, that any little while Six months only was he King; in Competitor, had the Crown passed by electi- which time he declared himself a worshipper on, must needs have appeared base; and the of the golden Calves; which was enough to vertue of the last King having been so great, justifie the judgment of God; whereby he as might well ferve to lay the foundation of a was flain. He was the last of Jehu's house, benew house, much more to establish the alrea- ing(inclusively) the first of that line; which dy confirmed right of a family so rooted in may have been some cause of the troubles possession. All this notwithstanding, two or impeaching his orderly succession: the prothree and twenty years did pass before Za- phesie having determined that race in the charia the fon of Jeroboam was, by uniform fourth generation. But (belidesthat Gods proconfent, received as King. The true original mife was extended unto the utmost) there causes hereof were to be found at Dan and was no warrant given to Sallum, or to any o-Bethel, where the golden Calves did stand; ther, for the death of Zacharia, as had been giyet second instruments of this disturbance ven to Jehn for the saughter of Jehoram and which the wisdom of man was ready to cast Zacharia having been fix moneths a King, 2 King, 15 an eye. Probable it is, that the Captains of the was then flain by salium, who reigned af-13 army (who afterwards flew one another fo ter him, the space of a moneth in Samaria. falt, that in fourteen years there reigned five What this salium was, I do not find; fave Kings) did now byhead-strong violence, rend onely that he was a Traytor, and the son the Kingdom afunder, holding each what he of one Jabesh, whereby his father got no could, and either despising or hating some honour. It seems that he was one of those, qualities in Zacharia; untill, after many years, who in time of faction had laboured for wearied with diffention, and the principal himself, and now when all other Competiof them perhaps, being taken out of the way tors were fitten down, thought eafily to by death, for want of any other eminent man, prevail against that King, in whose person the they consented to yeild all quietly to the son of Jeroboam. That this Anarchy lasted all that Sallum had a strong party: for Tipbsab most three and twenty years, we find by the or Thapfa, and the coast thereof even from difference of time between the fifteenth year Tirzah, where Menahem his enemy and sup-planter then lay, refused to admit, as King in his flead, the man that murdered him. Yet at the end of one moneth, Sallum received the reward of his treason, and vvas flain by Menahem who reigned in his place.

442

Sallum ten years. In opposition to Sallum, David in the person of Joas, so it appears; that his hatred was deadly, and inhumane, for the care of holy men was not wanting to he not onely destroyed Tiphsah, and all that Uzzia, to bring him up and advance him to vvere therein, or thereabouts, but he ript up the Crown of Juda vvhen the hatred born to all their women with child, because they did his Father Amazia had endangered his surnot open their gates and let him in. Had this ceffion. For it is faid of Uzzia, That he fought earnest, in procuring unto him his Fathers Lord, God made him prosper. Crown when it was first due. But in performing that office, there was used such long de- up to his destruction : for he transgressed against bition, Difdain, and other private passions, to the Lord to burn incense upon the Altar of inhave been the causes of this beastly outrage. cense. Thus he thought to enlarge his own

Affyria, came against the Land of Ifrael, whom so helpful to the Kings of Juda, that meer this new King appealed, with a thouland ta- gratitude and civil policy, thould have held lents of filver levied upon all the fubftantial back Vzzia from incroaching thereupon; yea, men in his Countrey. With this money the II- though the Law of God had been filent in raelite purchased, not onely the peace of his this case, and not forbidding it. Howsever, Kingdom; but his own establishment therein: the King forgot his duty, the Priests rememfome factious man (belike) having either in- bred theirs, & God forgat not to affift them. vited Pul thither, or (if he came uncalled) Azaria the high Priest interrupted the Kings fought to use his help, in deposing this ill-be-loved King, Josephus reports of this Menahem, little to his honour it would prove, that he that his reign was no milder than his en- took upon him the office of the fons of Aaron. trance. But after ten years, his tyranny ended There vvere vvith Azaria fourscore other

his room.

reigned onely two years; at the end whereof, ded the Kings prefumption. This was enough he was flain by Peka the son of Ramalia, whose the rest God himself performed. We find in treason was rewarded with the Crown of If Josephus, that the King had apparelled himrael, as, in time comming, another mans Trea- self in Priestly habit, and that he threatned fon against himself shall be. There needs no Azaria and his Companions, to punish them King, who first opened unto those Northern till it rested against another Hill, stopping Nations the way into Palastina; it will shortly up the high-ways, and spoiling the Kings follow in order of the Story, to deliver our o- Garden in the passage. With this Earth-quake pinion: whether he were that Belosus (called he faith, that the roof of the Temple did also Beleses, and by some Phul Belochus) who cleave, and that a Sun-beam did light upon joyned with Arbaces the Median, against Sar- the Kings face, vvhich vvas presently infectthe happiness wherein we left him.

II.
 The end of Uzzia his Reign and Life.

S the zeal of Jehojada that godly Priest them who reigned in his place.

Menahem the son of Gadi reigned after Novas the mean to preserve the linage of cruelty been used in revenge of Zacharia's God in the days of Zacharia (which understood s. death, it is like that he would have been as the visions of God and when as he sought the

But, when he was strong, his heart was lifted liberation, that we may plainly discover Am- the Lord his God, and went into the Temple of Volent In the time of Menahem, and (as it feems) authority, by medling in the Priests office. in the beginning of his Reign, Pul, King of vvhose power had in every extremity been with his life:and Pekahia his Son occupied Priests, valiant men, but their valour was shewed onely in affisting the high Priest, Of this Pekahia the story is short: for he vvhen (according to his duty) he reprehenmore to be fail of Menahem and his fon, fave vith death, unless they would be quiet that they were both of them Idolaters, and Josephus indeed inlargeth the Story, by in light the fon (as we find in Josephus) like to his fallering a great Earth-quake, which did tear ther in cruelty. Concerning Pulthe Alfgrian down half an Hill, that rowled four furlogs. danapalus, or whether he were some other ed with leprosie. All this may have been man. At the present it is more fit that we re- true; and some there are vvho think that this late the end of Uzzia's life, who out-lived Earth-quake is the same, which is mentioned by the Prophet Amos; wherein they do much mif-reckon the times. For the Earthquake spoken of by Amos, was in the days of Jeroboam King of Ifrael, vvho dyed feven and thirty years before Vazia, fo that Jotham the four of Uzzia, vehich supplied his Fa- Esay, the first of the four great prophets, bethere place in government of the Land, gan to fee his visions. This difference of great should, by this accompt, have been then un- and leffer prophets, is taken from the Voborn: for he vvas but five and twenty years lumes which they have left written (as S. old, when he began ro reign as King There- Augustine gives reason of the distinction) because he was a Leper.

CHAP. XXIII.

§. III.

of the Prophets which lived in the time of Uzzia; and of Princes then ruling in Egypt, and in some other Countries.

TN the time of Uzzia were the first of the the Kingdom of Judalesser Prophets, Hosea, Joel, Amos, Obadia and Jonas. It is not indeed set down, lowed in the Kingdom of Egypt: unto him sucwhen feel or Obadia did prophecy but if the ceeded Anylis, and these two occupied that Prophets, whose times are not expressed, Crown fix years. Then Sabacus, an Athiopian, ought to be ranged (according to Saint Hie- became King of Egypt, and held it fifty years, rome's rule) with the next before them; then | whereof the ten first ran along with the last must these two be judged contemporary of Uzzia his Reign and Life. Of these and owith Hosea and Amos, who lived under King ther Egyptian Kings, more shall be spoken, Vzzia. To enquire which of these five was when their affairs shall come to be interthe most ancient, it may perhaps be thought, | medled with the business of Juda. at least, a superfluous labour; yet if the age thus, victories of Jeroboam King of Ifrael, and with the three and twenty of Silvius Procas, 240,25 therefore is like to have prophefied in the and two and twenty the first of Silvius Amuby his sufferings, than by his writings, now ex- not likely to forget it. tant:in all the rest are found express promises of the Messias.

In the reign of Vzzia likewise it was, that, fore, thus far onely vve have affurance; that cause the greater have written larger Books. tore, the Uzzia was wroth with the Priests, the leprose rose up in his fore head, before the Priests. ly in regard of his much writing, or of his Lis. c. 19. Hereupon he vvas caused, in all haste, to de- Nobilitie, (for their opinion is rejected, who part the place, Et to live in a house by himself think him to have been the son of Amos the untill he dyed, the rule over the Kings house, Prophet) and the high account wherein he and over all the Land, being committed to lived; but for the excellencie both of his file Jotham, his Son and Successiour. Jotham took and argument, wherein he so plainly foretelnot upon himself the stile of a King, till his eth the Birth, Miracles, Passion, and whole Father vvas dead; vvhom they buried in the History of our Saviour, with the calling of fame field wherein his Ancestors lay interred; the Gentiles, that he might as well be called yet in a Monument apart from the rest, be- an Evangelist, as a Prophet; having written in such wife, That (as Hierome, faith) Hier. in one would think he did not foretell of wings to ref. super come but compile an History of matters already paft.

Bocchoris was King of Egypt, and the ninth year of his reign, by our computation (whereof in due place we will give reason) was current, when Ozzia took possession of

After the death of Bocchoris, Afchis fol-

In Athens, the two last years of Ariphron wherein Homer lived, hath so plentifully been his twenty, the seven and twentieth of Thefought, without reprehension, how can he be spains, the twentieth of Agamnestor, and the taxed, which offers to fearch out the anti- three first of Æschilus his three and twenty, quity of these holy Prophets? It seems to me, made even with the two and fifty of Uzzia: that the first of these, in order of time, was as likewise did in Alba the last seven of silthe Prophet Jonas; who foretold the great vius Aventinus his seven and thirty, together days of Joas, whilest the afflictions of Ifrael lius. In Media Arbaces began his new Kingwas exceeding bitter; the Text it self intima- dom in the first of Uzzia, wherein, after ting no less: by which consequence he was eight and twenty years, his son sofarmus sucelder than the other Prophets, whose works ceeded him, and reigned thirty years. Of are now extant. But his prophecies that con- this Arbaces, and the division of the Assgrian cerned the Kingdom of Israel are now lost. Empire, between him and others, when they That which remaineth of him, seems, not had oppressed Sardanapalus, I hold it conwithout reason unto some very learned, to venient to use more particular discourse, that have belonged unto the time of sardana- we may not wander in too great uncertain-Palus, in whose days Nineve was first of all de- ty in the story of the Assyrian Kings, who have stroyed. This Prophet rather taught Christ already found the way into Palestina, and are reigned a part in Nineve and Babylon.

CHAP. XXIII.

rent, that the chief therein was Arbaces the Affprians under their subjection, when the Medyan; to vvhom the reft of the Confede- reft of the Provinces were fet at liberty; but rates did not onely submit themselves in in consideration of the Kings themselves. that War, but vvere contented afterwards who reigning afterwards in Babylon and Nito be judged by him, receiving by his au- neve are confounded by some, and distinguithority sentence of death, or pardon of their shed by others; whereby their History is forfeited lives. The first example of his pow-made uncertain. er, was shewn upon Belosus the Babylonian, I will first therefore deliver the opinion by whose special advice and help, Arbaces generally received, and the grounds wherehimself vvas become so great: Yet vvas not upon it stands: then, producing the objectithis power of Arbaces exercised in so tyran- ons made against it, I will compare together nical a manner, as might give offence in that the determination of that worthy man Joseph great alteration of things, either to the Prin- Scaliger, with those learned that subscribe ces that had affifted him, or to the genera- thereunto, and the judgement of others that lity of the people. For in the condemnation were more ancient Writers, or have followof Belssus, he used the counsel of his other ed the Ancients in this doubtfull case. Nei-Captains, and then pardoned him of his own ther shall it be needfull to set down a-part grace; allowing him to hold not onely the the severall authorities and arguments of City and Province of Babylon, but also those sundry men, adding somewhat of weight, or treasures, for embezelling vvhereof his life of clearnesse one to another: it will be had been endangered.

rest of his partakers, and made them Rulers and without fear to be taxed of partialitie, of Provinces; retaining (as it appears) onely as being no more addicted to the one opinithe Soveraignty to himself, which to use on than to the other, by any fancic of mine immoderately he did naturally abhor. He own, but meerly led by those reasons, which is faid, indeed, to have excited the Medes a- upon examination of each part, seemed to gainst Sardanapalus, by propounding unto me most forceable, though to others they them hope of transferring the Empire to may perhaps appear weak. their Nation. And to make good this his promife, he destroyed the City of Nineve, permite, the destroyed the City of Nineve, permite, the state of t mitting the Citizens nevertheless to take and who, first of the Assirians, entred Palasina carry away every one his own goods. The with an Armie; being called Pul, or Plul, in other Nations that joyned with him, as the the Scriptures, and by Annius his authors Persians and Battrians, he drew to his side, with such as follow them, Phul Belochus. Of by the allurement of liberty; which he him-this man it is faid, that he was a skilfull Afelf fo greatly loved, that by flacking too ftrologer, fubtile, and ambitious; that much the reins of his own Soveraignty, he he got Babylon by composition made with did more harm to the general estate of Me- Arbaces; and that not therewith content, he dia, than the pleasure of the freedom, which got into his hand part of Assyria: finally that it enjoyed, could recompence. For both the he reigned eight and fortie years, and then Territory of that Countrey was pared nar-dying, left the Kingdome to Teglat phalaffar rower by Salmanassar, (or perhaps by some his son in whose Posterity it continued some of his Progenitors) vvhom vve find in the few descents, till the house of Meroduch Scriptures to have held some Towns of the prevailed. The truth of this, if Annius his Medes; and the civil administration was fo Metasthenes were sufficient proof, could not disorderly, that the people themselves were be gainfaid; for that Author (such as he is) is glad to see that reformation, which Deinces peremptoric herein. But, howsoever Annithe fift of Arbaces his Line, did make in that us his Authors deserve to be suspected, it government, by reducing them into firicter | frands with no reason, that wee should conterms of obedience,

How the force of the Asyrians grew to be fuch as might in fourfcore years, if not foo. of the Asiyrian Kings, descending from Phul: ner, both extend it self unto the conquest of and whether Phul and Belolus were one Ifrael, and tear away some part of Media, it is person, or heads of fundry Families, that a question hardly to be answered; not onely in regard of the destruction of Nineve, and Subversion of the Assyrian Kingdom, whereof BY that which hath formerly been show the Meder, under Arbaces, had the honour, who may seem at that time to have kept the

enough to relate the whole substance of each In like manner, he gave rewards to the discourse which I will doe as briefly as I can, clude all to be false which they affirme.

They, who maintaine this Tradition, justi- enterprise fit for none to take in hand, except Authors, and repugnant unto no historie at all. For it is manifest by the relation of *Dio*as of right, unto the Seat of the Empire.

Tallamore both. This being to, how can it be thought friendship of these Arabians was a thing of Rullamor, that the Assyrians in three or foure years had main importance, to those that were to pass fie it by divers good Allegations, as a mat- he had fuch means as Felofus had, which Pul. ter confirmed by circumstances found in all if he were not Belosus, is likely to have want-

Besides all this had Pul been a distinct perdorus (which is indeed the foundation fon from Belosus, and Lord of Asserta, which whereupon all have built) that Arbaces and lay beyond the Countries of Babylon and Belofus were partners in the action against Mesopotamia, it would not have been an easie Sardanapalus; and that the Bactrians, who matter for him, to pass quite through anojoyned with them, were thought well re- ther mans Kingdom with an Army, seeking warded with libertie, as likewife other Captains were with governments: but that any third person was so eminent, as to haue Assiration in the state of the state ria it selfe, the cheife Countrey of the Em- Pul or Fhul, was the same whom prophane pire bestowed upon him, it is a thing where- writers have called Belosus, Beleses, and Be-1,105,120 bliftorie. And certainly it flood with little eth, that he, whom the Scriptures called nereason, that the Assyrians should be commit- ver otherwise than Darius the Mede, was the ted unto a peculiar King, at fuch time as it fon of Afriages, and called of the Greeks by was not meet to trust them in their own another name, that is, Cyaxeres) then is this walls and houses. Rather it is apparent, that scruple utterly removed. For Babylon and the destruction of Nineve by Arbaces, and the Mesopotamia did border upon Syria and Patransplantation of the Citizens, was held a lestina: so that Belosus having settled his afneedfull policy, because thereby the people fairs in Assyria towards the East and North, of that Nation might be kept down from af- might with good leifure encroach upon the piring to recover the Soveraignty, which Countries that lay on the other fide of his else they would have thought to belong, Kingdom, to the South and West. He that looks into all particulars, may find every Upon such considerations did the Romans, one circumstance concurring, to prove that in ages long after following, deftroy Carthage | Phul, who invaded Ifrael, was none other and diffolive the Corporation, or Body politick, of the Citizens of Capua; because those who joyned with Arbaees, and brought no two Towns were capable of the Empire: a small part of the forces wherewith Sardanamatter esteemed over-dangerous, even to palus was overthrown, did enter into that Rome it selfe, that was Mistresse of them action, meerly for the love of Belosus. The erected their Kingdome a new under one over Euphrates with an Army into Syria. Pul? or what must this Pul have been (of Wherefore Belosus, that held good correswhose deservings or entermedling, or in-pondence with them, and whose most fruitdeed of whose very name, we find no men-full Province, adjoyning to their barren tion in the Warre against Sardanapalus) to quarters, might yearly do them inestimable whom the principall parts of the Empire fell | pleasures, was not only likely to have quiet either by generall confent in division of the passage through their borders, but their ut-Provinces, or by his owne power and pur- most affistance: yea, it stands with good reachase very soon after? Surely he was none son, that they who loved not Israel, should other than Belosus; whose neer neighbour- for their own behoose have given him intellihood gave him opportunity (as he was wife gence of the destructions and civil broyles aenough to play his own game) both to get mong the ten Tribes; whereby as this Pul Allgria to himself, and to empeach any other got a thousand talents, so it seems that the syman that should have attempted to seize rians and Arabians, that had felt an heavy upon it. The Province of Babylon, which Be- neighbour of Jeroboam, recovered their own, losus held, being (as Herodotus reports) in setting up a new King in Damasco, and clearriches and power as good as the third part of ing the coast of Arabia, (from the Sea of the the Persian Empire, was able to furnish him Wilderness to Hamath) of the Hebrew Garriwith all that was requifite for such a business: sons. Neither was it any new acquaintance, if that were not enough, he had gotten into that made the Nations, divided by Euphrates, his own hands all the gold and filver that had hold together in fo good terms of friendbeen in the Palace of Nineve. And question- ship: it was ancient consanguinity, the meless, to restore such a City as Nineve, was an mory whereof was availeable to the Syrians, beyond the river came over willingly, to of Affiria, and fettling of that Countrey, was the succour of Hadadezer, and the Aramites work enough to hold Belosus occupyed about Damasco. So Belosus had good rea- besides the restauration of Nineue, which fon to look into those parts: what a King alone was able to take up all the time remaireigning fo far off as Nineve, should have to ning of his reign, if perhaps he lived to fee do in Spria, if the other end of his Kingdom it finished in his own days. So that this had not reached to Euphrates, it were hard to argument may rather ferve to prove that business which might allure the Chaldeans made until Belosus could find leisure; and the into Palæstina, it may be doubted, lest it time of advantage which Belosus did let slip, should feem to have ill coherence with that argued his business in some other quarter, which hath been faid of the long Anarchy namely, in that Province of which Phul is that was in the ten Tribes. For if the called King. Briefly, it may be faid, that he Crown of Ifrael were worn by no man in who conquered Affria, and performed somethree and twenty years, then is it likely that what upon a Country fo far diffant as Fala-Belosus was either unwilling to stir, or un-sting, was likely to have been, at least, named able to take the advantage when it was fair- in some History, or, if not himself, yet his est and first discovered. This might have com- Country to have been spoken of for those vipelled those, who alone were not strong ctories: but we neither hear of Phul, in any enough to feek after help from some Prince prophane Author; neither doth any Writer, that lay further off; and fothe opinion of facred or prophane, once mention the vithole that diftinguish Phul from Belosus, Ctories or acts whatsoever of the Allgrians, would be somewhat confirmed. On the other done in those times; whereas of Belosus, and fide, if we fay, that Belosus did pass the river the power of the Chaldeans, we find good of Euphrates, as soon as he found likelihood Record. of making a prosperous journey, then may | Surely, that great slaughter of so many it feem that the inter-regnum in Ifrael was thousand Affyrians, in the quarrel of Sardananot fo long as we have made it: for three palus, together with other calamities of that and twenty years leifure would have afford-long and unfortunate war, which overed better opportunity, which ought not to whelmed the whole Country, ending but have been loft.

448

what Orofius and Enfebius have written con- of Affyria, that it could not in thirty years cerning the Chaldees: the one, that after the space be able to invade Palastina, which the departure of Arbaces into Media, they layd ancient Kings, reigning in Nineve, had, in all hold on a part of the Empire: the other, that their greatness, forborn to attempt. Yet they prevailed and grew mighty, between these afflictions, disabling that Countrey, did the times of Arbaces and Deioces the Medes. help to enable Belosus to subdue it; who has Now, though it be held an errour of Orosi- ving once extended his Dominion to the w, where he supposeth that the occupying of borders of Media, and being (especially if Babylonia by the Chaldeans was in a manner he had compounded with the Medes) by the of a rebellion from the Medes; yet herein he interposition of that Countrey, secure of the in the time of David, when the Aramites his Reign; manifest it is, that the conquest Phul and Belofus were one person, forasmuch But concerning this last argument of the as the journey of Phul against Israel was not with the ruine and utter desolation of Ni-For answer, hereunto we are to consider, | neve, must needs have so weakened the state and Eusebius do concur, that the autho- scythians, and other warlike Nations on that riry of Arbaces did restrain the ambition, side, might very well turn Southward, and which by his absence grew bold, and by his try his fortune in those Kingdoms, wheredeath, regardful onely of it self. Now, though into civill diffention of the inhabitants, and fome have conjectured that all Affyria the bordering envy of the Arabians and Arawas given to Belosus (as an overplus, besides mites about Damasco, Friends and Cousins the Provinces of Babyion which was his by to the Chaldrans and Mesopotamians, did inplain bargain made aforehand) in regard vite him. For these, and the other before of his high defervings; yet the opinion alledged reasons, it may be concluded, That more commonly received, is, that he did what is faid of Pulin the Scriptures, ought to onely incroach upon that Province by lit- be understood of Belosus; even as by the tle and little, whilest Arbaces lived, and af- names of Nebuchadnezzar, Darius the Mede, terwards dealing more openly, got it all Artashasht, and Ahashuerosh, with the like, himselfe. Seeing therefore, that there passare thought, or known, to be meant the fed but twelve years between the death of same whom prophane Historians, by names Arbaces, and the beginning of Menahem better known in their own Countreys, have ledge in maintenance of the opinion commonly received.

Now this being once granted, other things of more importance will of themfelves easily follow. For it is a matter of no naffar none other than Baladan King of Babel, great consequence to know the truth of this and not Salmanassar King of Assyria point (confidering it apart from that which depends thereon) Whether Pul were Belofus, or some other man: the whole race of these far, which in Greek or Latine writing hath Assyrian and Babylonian Kings, wherein are no difference, we are taught by Scaliger, that found those famous Princes, Nabonassar, Mar- in the Hebren letters there is found no affidocempadus, and Nabopollassar (famous for the nity therein. So concerning the places of Ba-Astronomicall observations recorded from bylonia, whereinto salmanassar carried captheir times) is the main ground of this con- tive some part of the ten Tribes, it may well tention. If therefore Belosus or Beleses were be granted, that in the Province of Babylon; that Phul which invaded Ifrael; if he and his Salmanassar had gotten somewhat, yet will posterity reigned both in Nineve and in Baby- it not follow that he was King of Babylon it lon; if he were father of Teglat-Phul-Afer, felfe. To conclude, Merodach began his from whom Salmanafar, Senacherib, and A- reign over Babylon in the fixt year of Hezifarhaddon descended; then it is manifest, that kia, at which time Salmanassar took Samaria; we must seek Nabonassar the Babylonian King, among those Princes; yea, and conclude him then must we say that he and Merodach, yea, This is the scope and end of all his disputa-

quence is so plain, that it needs no confir- answer. mation. To prove that Nabonassar was a diffuch arguments as would stagger the resolution of him that had fworn to hold the contrary. For first, Nabonassar was King of Babyis proper to the Allyrians.

calle d Nahopollasser, Cyaxares, and Artaxer- that Epocha, or account of times, vvas a Babyxes : especially confidering, that hereby we lonian, and no Assyrian. Thirdly, and more shall neither contradict any thing that hath strongly, it is confirmed by the successor of been written of old, or need to trouble our Nabonassar, which vvas Mardocempadus, calfelves or others with framing new conject- led in his own language Mero-dac-ken-pad, E/19 39.1. tures. This in effect is that, which they al- but more breifly in E/ay his prophecie. Merodac by the former Part of his name; or Merodach Baladan the fon of Baladan. Now if Merodach the fon of Baladan King of Babel, were the fonne of Nabonassar, then was Nabo-

What can be plainer? As for the cadence of these two names, Nabonassar and Salmanatherfore if Salmanassar were King of Babylon, to be none other than Salmanafar, who is and Nabonassar, were all one man. These are known to have reigned in those years which the arguments of that noble and learned Ptolomy the Mathematician hath affigned Writer Joseph Scaliger; who not contented to unto Nabonassar. As for Merodech, who sup- follow the common opinion founded upon planted Afar-haddon, manifest it is, that likelihood of conjectures, hath drawn his he and his fucceffors were of another house. proofes from matter of more necessary in-

Touching all that was faid before of Phul But they that maintain the contrary part, Belosus, for the proving that Phul and Belosus will not be fatisfied with such conjectures. were not fundry Kings; Joseph scaliger pities They lay hold upon the conclusion, and by their ignorance, that have spent their labour shaking that into peices, hope to overthrow to so little purpose. Honest and painfull all the premisses upon which it is inferred. men he confesseth that they were, who by For (fay they) if Nabonassar that reigned in their diligence might have won the good li-Babylon, could not be Salmanafar, or any of king of their Readers, had they not, by menthose other Assprian Kings, then it is manifest tioning Annius his Authors, given such ofthat the races were distinct, and that Phul fences that men refused thereupon to read and Belosus were severall Kings. This conse- their Bookes and Chronologies. A short

For mine own part, howfoever I beleeve tindt person from Salmanassar, are brought nothing that Annius his Berosus, Metasthenes, and others of that stamp affirm, in respect of their bare authority; yet am I not fo fqeamish, but that I can well enough digest a lon, and not of Affyria. This is proved by his good Book, though I find the names of one name, which is meerly Chaldean, vyhereas or two of these good fellows alledged in its Salman, the first part of Salmanassars name, I have (fomewhat peradventure to often) already spoken my mind of Annius his Au-It is likewise proved by the Astronomicall thors: Neverthelesse, I may say here again, observations, which proceeding from the that where other Histories are silent, or Babylonians, not from the Affyrians, do shew speak not enough, there may we without that Nabonassar, from vvhom Ptolomy draws shame borrow of these, as much as agrees with that little which elfewhere we find, and wife King Philip loft partly, and partly did ful men (as scaliger terms them, meaning, them, being me thinks none other than anif I mistake him not, good silly sellows) who swers to somewhat that is or might be alledfer down the Affrian Kings from Pul for- ged on the contrary fide) one of them which for Relosus, and Salmanassar for Nabonassar, ting of those names, Salmanassar and Nabofuch Writers as a man should be assumed or nassar in the Hebren, I hold a point about unwilling to read. For (to omit a multitude which no man will dispute; for it is not likeof others, that herein follow Annius, though ness of found, but agreement of time, and not fo flight a Chronologer, that he should be way the distinction of persons: the other likehonest meaning fellow.

CHAP: XXIII.

fifted or avoided. It will eafily be granted, Merodach the fon of Baladan; and in that hinders us from believing that one man in the handling of these objections untill I meet ral names? That Altronomy flourished a- will be when we come to the time of Hezekia, Nabonafar either an Astrologer or a chalda- that I may not leave too great a scruple in sed ca. an. So it is, that Scaliger himfelf calls them, the mind of the Reader, thus far will I here mon 13. Prophetas nescro quos, qui Nabonaslarum satisfie him; that how strong soever this arguphets I know not who, that in their fleep have retract it, ingenuously confessing, that in dreampt of Nabonaslar, that he was an Aftro- thinking Merodach to be the son of Nabonasloger.

or no, I cannot tell; it is hard to maintain fort they have fallioned their Story, who tathe negative: But as his being Lord over the king Pul to be a diffine person from Belosus Chaldeans, doth not prove him to have or Beleftis, have in like fort, as was necessabeen learned in their sciences; so doth it ry, distinguished their off-spring, making not prove him not to have been also that of Pul to fail in Ajarhaddon, which left King of Affyria. The Emperour Charles the all to Merodach the Babylonian. And here I fift, who was born in Gant, and Philip his must first confess my want of Books, if Son, King of spain, and Lords of the Ne- perhaps there be many, that have gone atherlands, had men far more learned in all bout to reduce this parration into some such Sciences, and particularly in the Mathema- order, as might prefent unto us the body of ticks, among their Subjects of the Low Coun- this Hiftory, in one view. Divers, indeed, tries, than were any that I read of then living there are, whom I have feen, that fince Join Spain, if spain at that time had any; yet feph scaliger delivered his opinion, have writ-I think, Posterity will not use this as an ar- ten in favour of some one or other point theirs. It may well be, that Salmanaffar or abridged Scaligers learned Work, De emen-Nabonassar did use the Assyrian Souldiers, and datione Temporum, hath not been careful to and his posterity, by giving themselves Pul, or Tiglat Pulassar did reign, (perhaps wholly to the more warlike Nation; loft the because he found it not expressed in Scaliger) richer, out of which they first issued, as like- but is content to set down Baladan, for the ferveth to explain or inlarge it without im- put to a dangerous hazzard all the Netherlands, by such a course. As for the two un-Neither indeed are those honest and pain- answerable arguments, (as Scaliger terms wards, as Lords also of Babylon, taking Pul is drawn from the unlike sound and wridifliking him in general) Gerard Mercator is many circumstances else, that must take alaughed out of doors with the name of an wife may be granted, which is, that salnanassar might be Lord of some places in the But I will not make comparisons between Province of Babylon, yet not King of Baby-Scaliger and Mercator; they were both of lon it felf: this indeed might be so, and it them men notably learned: let us examine might be otherwise. Hitherto there is nothe arguments of Scaliger, and fee whether thing fave conjecture. But in that which is althey be of fuch force as cannot either be re- ledged out of the Prophet Elay concerning that Nabonaffar was King of Babylon; that he which is faid of this Merodach, and Mardowas not King of Ajjyria, some men doubt kenpadus, his being the Successor of Nabonassar whether scaligers reasons be enough to and his beginning to reign in the fixt year of prove. For though Nabonassar be a Chaldwan Hezekia, I find matter of more difficulty than name, and Salmanaffar an Affirian; yet what can be answered in hast. I will therefore defer two languages might be called by two feve- with their subject in his proper place; which mong the Chaldees, is not enough to prove wherein Merodach lived, and was King. Yet Astronomum fuisse in somnis viderunt; Pro- ment may secm, Scaliger himself did live to /ar, he had been deceived.

Whether Nabonassar were an Astrologer Now therefore let us consider, in what gument, to prove that Spain was none of thereof: but Sethus Calvifius himself, who hath Babylonian Scholars; but it feems, that he give us notice, how long Belofus, Baladan, himself revoked. In this case therefore I to pass by the just judgment of God, that Phul must lay down the plot of these divided and Belosus rebelled against Arbaccs, like as Kingdoms, in fuch fort as I find it conceived Arbaces had done against Sardanapalus; and by Augustinus Torniellus; who onely of all instead of being Vice-Roys, made themselves that I have feen, fets down the fuccession, absolute Kings. And to this later opinion Torcontinuance, and acts, of those that reigned niellus himself leans, holding it much the in Affria after Sardanapalus, distinguishing more probable, as being more agreeable to them from Belofus, and his Posterity, of that which is found in prophane Histories. whom he hath the like remembrance. This Why he did make and publish theformer sup-Torniellus is a Regular Clark of the congre- pofing, refolving to hold the later. Ishall agation of S. Paul, whose Annales were prin- non, without any wrong to him, make bold to wilfully)forgetfulof thanking or mentioning manner. those Protestant Writers, by whose Books he hath received good information, and reign, and continues eight and forty years. enriched his works by inferting fomewhat Theglatphalasar (whose name, and the names of theirs. But in this business he hath of other Princes, I write diversly, accoropenly professed to follow scaliger, whose ding to the Authors whom I have in hand help, without wrong or dishonour to him- are pleased to diversifie them) succeeding felf, he hath both used and acknowledged. unto Phul, reigned three and twenty. Salma-For mine own part, I will not spare to do nassar followed him, and reigned ten. After right unto Torniellus; but confess my self him Senacherib reigned seven: and when he to have received benefit by his writing; and was flain, Afarhadden his fon ten years; in wish that his Annals had sooner come to light; whom that line failed. fed out of my hand, and been exposed to o- fession. ther mens constructions) of the four Kings cases, that invaded the Valley of siddim, and were same person with Nabonassar, which Scaliger in short space, that is, in four years, it came ted the last year; he appears to me a man ghess. Having thus devised how Phul and Beof a curious industry, found judgment, and losus might, at the first, attain to be Kings, he free Spirit; yet many times (and I take it, orders their time and their fucceffors in this for that as he hath much confirmed me The fame time that Phul took upon him as in some things, so would be have instructed, King of Assyria, or not long after (why not and imboldened me to write more fully and rather afore? for so it had been more likely) less timerously in other things, which now Belosus usurped the Kingdom of Babylon, I have no leifure to revife. Particularly in and held it three core and eight years; at that conjecture (which I had faintly deliver- the least threescore and eight years did pass, ed, and yet feared left it had over-haftily paf before Nabonaffar followed him in the pof-

how he hath ordered these last Assyrian and | Concerning the original of these Assyrian Lepidus.

Four years after Arbaces, Phul begins to

To Nabonassar, whom (with Scaliger) he thinks to be Baladan, are affigned fix and flain by Abraham, I find him adventuring twenty years: then two and fifty to Meroas I have done, to fay, that they may pro- dach, or Mardocempadus: four and twenty to bably be thought to have been some petty Ben Merodach: and lastly, one and twenty to Lords; the contrary opinion of all Writers Nabolassar the father of Nebuchodonosor; who notwithstanding. But now let us consider is like to offer matter of further disputation.

Babylonian Kings. After the destruction of and Babylonian Kingdoms, I may truly Sardanapalus, Arbaces, being the most migh- say, That the conjectures of other men, who ty, fought to get all to himself, but was op- give all to Belosus, and confound him with poled by Belofus; in which contention, one Phul, appear to me more nearly refembling Phul a powerful man in Affyria, fided with the truth. Neither do I think, that Tor-Belosus, and they two prevailed so far, that niellus would have conceived two different finally Arbaces was content to share the Em- waies, by which Phul might have gotten Afpire with them, making such a division there- fria (for how Belosus came to get Babylan, of, as vvas long after made of the Roman it is plain enough) if either of them alone Empire between Octavian, Anthony, and could have contented him. He adheres to the latter of the two, as better agreeing with Another conjecture is (for Torniellus of Diodore, and other Historians. But he perfers not this, or the rest, as matter of cer- ceived, that to make Phul on the sudden King tainty) that Arbaces made himself Soveraign of Asserto give him so noble a Province, Lord of all, and placed the feat of his as would, of it felf, invite him to accept Empire in Media, appointing Belofus his Lieu- the name and power of a King, was a thing tenant in Babylonia, and Phul in Affria. But most unlikely to have happened, unless his been proportionable to fo high a reward, without blufhing after a little, to help our And for this cause (as I take it) hath he de- own opinions, and lay the blame upon Annivised the means, whereby Phul might be us, against whom we shall be sure to find made capable of so great a share in the Em- friends that will take our part. pire. If this were a true or probable suppofition, then would a new doubt arife, Why nassar did reach, by Annius his measure, to this Phul being one of the three that divided the length of five and twenty years the all betweene them, was utterly forgotten by one, and seventeen the other; Torniellus all Historians? yea, why this division it felse, hath cut off two from the former, and seand the civil Warres that caused it, were ven from the latter of them, to fit (as I think) never heard of? Questionlesses, the enterver-his own computation; using the liberty ting of some treasures by Belosus, with his whereof I spake last: for that any Author. Judgment, Condemnation, and Pardon fol- fave our good Metasthenes, or those that borlowing, were matters of farre lefte note. rowed of him, hath gone about to tell how Therefore I doe not fee, how one of the two long each of these did reign, it is more than I inconveniences can this way be avoyded; have yet found. To Senacherib and Afarhadbut that either we must confesse the Domi don, Torniellus gives the same length of reign, nion given to Phul to have been exceeding which is found in Metasthenes, I think there his merits; or else his merits, and name with- are not many, that will arrogate so much all, to have been strangely forgotten: either unto themselves, as may very well be allowof which is enough to make us thinke, that ed unto a man fo judicious as is Torniellus; rather the conjecture, inferring such a sequel, and yet I could wish that he had sorborn is wide of the truth. As for the rebellion of to condemn the followers of Annius in this Phul and Belofus, against Arbaces, it was al- business, wherein he himself hath chosen, most impossible for the Assyrians to recover in part rather to become one of them, than such strength in foure years, as might serve to say, as else he must have done, almost noto hold out in rebellion: for Belofus it was thing. needlesse to rebell, considering, that Arbaces | The like liberty we find that he used in did not feek to molest him, but rather per- the measuring the reigns of the Chaldwans, logue of these Kings; not passing through reign somewhat later than Pkul: for threethem all (for some will require a large dis- score and eight years would seem a long course in their own times, but speaking of time for him to hold a Kingdom, that was no their order and time in generall. If it be foe young man when he took possession of it. unlawfull to think, that some of Annius his But how is any whit of his age abated by tales (let them all be counted his tales, which shortning his reign, seeing his life reacheth are not found in other Authors as well as in to the end of fuch a time, as were alone withhis) may be true, especially such as contra- out adding the time wherein he was a pridict no acknowledged truth, or apparent vate man, enough for a long liver? Indeed likelihood; why then is it faid, that Phul did eight and forty years had been somewhat of reign in Affiria eight and forty years? For the most, considering that he seems by the this hath no other ground than Annius. ftory to have been a little less at such time as It is true that painful and judicious Writers he joyned with Arbaces; and therefore the have found this number of years to agree fit- addition of twenty years, did well deserve ly with the course of things in History: yet that note (which Torniellus advisedly gives) all of them took it from Annius. Let it there- that if his reign extended not fo far, then the fore be the punishment of Annius his for- reign of such as came after him, occupied gery (as questionless he is often guilty of this the middle time, unto Nabonassar. crime) that when he tels truth, or probability, he be not believed for his own fake; Torniellus, in conjecturing, nor the modesty though for our own fakes we make use of of Scaliger and Sethus Calvisius, in forbearing his boldness, taking his words for good, to set down as warrantable, such things as whereas (nothing else being offered) we are depend onely upon likelihood. For things, unwilling our selves to be Authors of new, whereof the perfect knowledge is taken athough not unprofitable conjectures. Herein way from us by Antiquity must be described deferts (whereof we find no mention) had | we shall have this commodity, that we may

CHAP. XXIII

mitted (as being an over-great favourer of filling up all the space between the end of liberty) even the Medes that were vnder Sardanapalus and the beginning of Nabonafhis own Government, to doe what they | Jar, with the threefcore and eight years of lifted. | Belofus. In this respect it was, perhaps, that But it is now flt that we peruse the Cata- he thought Relosus might have begun his

I neither do reprehend the boldness of

feribe those Countreys, whereof as yet there Annius, may chance otherwhiles to be given is made no true discovery, that is, either by to one of those Authors whose names he preleaving some part blank, or by inserting the tendeth. Let it suffice, that in regard of au-Land of Pigmies, Rocks of Load-stone, with thority, I had rather trust Scaliger or Torni-Head-lands, Bayes, great Rivers, and other ellus, than Annius, yet him than them, of his particularities, agreeable to common report, affertion be more probable, and more agreethough many times controlled by following able to approved Histories than their conjeexperience, and found contrary to truth. Cture, as in this point it feems to me; it havfrance of place, allows not fuch liberty to a probation of many, and those not meanly Describer, as that which ariseth from the re-learned. mediless oblivion of confuming time. For it is true that the Poet faith.

- Neque fervidis Pars inclusa caloribus Mundi, nec Borea finitium latus. Duratæque sole Nines, Mercatorem abigunt; horrida callidi Vincunt equora Navita, Nor Southern heat, nor Northern Snow That freezing to the ground doth grow, The subjects Regions can fence, And keep the greedy Merchant thence: The fubtile Shipmen way to find, Storm never fo the Seas with Wind.

they cannot ferve alwayes. To which pur- for lack of better. pole I remember a pretty jest of Don Pedro de Sarmiento, a worthy Spanish gentleman, who had been imployed by his King in plantfor when I asked, him being then my Prifoner, fome questions about an Island in those ties would it be more shame to have believed Israel and Juda, where occasion requires. in the mean while, Annius or Torniellus, than These Olympian games and exercises of in Hiltory, as Geographers in their Maps de not fay, that the credit which we gave to Yet indeed the ignorance growing from di- ing moreover gotten some credit, by the ap-

To end this redious disputation; I hold it a fure course in examination of such opinions as have once gotten the credit of being general, so to deal as Pacuvius in Capua did with the multirude, finding them defirous to put all the Senators of the City to death. He lockt the Senators up within the Statehouse, and offered the lives of the Peoples mercy; obtaining thus much, that none of them should perish, untill the Commonalty had both pronounced him worthy of death, and elected a better in his place. The condemnation was halty, for as falt as every name was read, all the town cryed, Let him dye: but the execution required more leifure; for in substituting of another, some notorious Therefore the fictions (or let them be vice of the person, or baseness of his condicalled conjectures) painted in Maps, doe tion, or sufficiency of his quality, made each ferve only to mif-lead fuch discoverers as new one that was offered to be rejected: so rashly believe them; drawing upon the pub-that finding the worse and less choice, the lishers, either some angry curses or well de- further and the more that they sought, it was ferved fcorn; but to keep their owne credit, finally agreed, that the old should be kept ing a Colony upon the Streights of Megellan: Of the Olympiads, and the time when they began.

Streights, which, me thought, might have done either benefit or displeasure to his enterprise, he told me merily, that it was to be games, by Iphitus, in the reign of the same called the Painters wives Iland; faying, That King Uzzia and in his one and fiftieth year. It whilest the fellow drew that Map, his wife is, I know, the general opinion, that these fitting by, defired to put in one Countrey games were established by Iphitus, in the first for her; that she in imagination, might have of Jotham: yet is not that opinion so general; an Illand of her own. But in filling up the but that Authors, weighty enough, have giblankes of old Histories, we need not be soe ven to them a more early beginning. The ferupulous. For it is not to be feared, that truth is that in fitting those things unto the fatime shall runne backward, and by restoring cred History, which are found in prophane the things themselves to knowledge, make Authors, we should not be too careful of our conjectures appear ridiculous: What if drawing the Hebrews to those works of time, fome good Copy of any ancient Author, which had no reference to their affairs, it is ecould be found, thewing if we have it not al- nough, that fetting in due order these beginready) the perfect truth of these uncertain- nings of accounts, we joyn them to matters of

to have believed nothing? Here I will activity, were first instituted by Herenles, who foot; by which Pythagoras found out the the Ionian expedition, threescore years; flate and likely strength of Hercules his bo- from that expedition to the time of Lycur. dy. They took name, not from the Mountain gus his government in Sparta, one hundred Olympus, but from the City Olympia, other- fifty nine; and thence to the first Olympiad. wise Pifa, near unto Elis; where also Jupi-one hundred and eight years. In this account ter's Temple in Elis, famous among the Gre-the first year of the first Olympiad is not incians, and reputed among the Wonders of cluded. the World, was known by the name of the But vain labour it were to feek the begin-Temple of Jupiter Olympius. These games ning of the Olympiads by numbring the years were exercised from every fourth year com- from the taking of Troy, which is of date pleat in the plains of Elis,a City of Pelopone- far more uncertain. Let it suffice that by fus, near the River Alpheus.

CHAP. XXIII.

ings were discontinued for many years, till year current after Troy, we may reckon back Plut. out Iphitus, by advice from the Oracle of Apollo, to the taking of that City, fetting that, and re-established them, Lieurgus the Law-giver other accidents which have reference therethen living: from which time they were to, in their proper times. The certainty of continued by the Grecians, till the reign of things following the Olympiads must needs Theodosius the Emperour, according to Ce- teach us how to find when they began. drenus: others think that they were diffolved under Constantine the Great.

Grecian times and their stories to be certain: the beginning of the Olympiads to the pafbut reckoned all before, either doubtful or fage of Xerxes into Greece, two hundreth fabulous: and yet Pliny gives little credit fourfcore and seventeen years; from thence to all that is written of Greece, till the reign to the beginning of the Peloponnosian War, of Cyrus, who began in the five and fiftieth eight and forty years; forwards to the vi-Olympiad, as Enfebius out of Diodore, Caftor, Ctory of Lyfander, seven and twenty; to the Polybius, and others, hath gathered, in whose | battel of Lentera, thirty four; to the death of time the feven wife Grecians flourished. For Philip King of Macedon, five and thirty; and Solon had speech with Crassus, and Crassus was finally to the death of Alexander, twelve. overthrown and taken by Cyrus.

boured to find out the certain beginning of allowed by the most. these Olympiads, namely, to set them in the true year of the World, and the reign of hympiads in the one and fiftieth year of Uzfuch and fuch Kings: but feeing they all dif- zia, we have arguments grounded upon that fer in the first accompt, that is, of the Worlds which is certain, concerning the beginning year, they can hardly jump in particulars of Cyrus his reign, and the death of Alexanthereon depending.

Olympiads the nine and fortieth of Ofias, or which happened when Xerxes fet out of Eusebius, who is contrary to himself in this of divers other.

apud. clem. hundred and seven years after Troy, reckon- others) begin a year later, which comes all Alex. Stram L.I. ing the years that passed between to whom to one reckoning. So is the death of Alexan-Solinus, and many others adhere.

Erasofth.

measured the length of the race by his own loponnesus, were fourscore years; thence to knowing the inflauration of these games to After the death of Hercules, these meet- have been in the four hundreth and eight

To this good use we have the ensuing vears unto the death of Alexander the Great. From this institution, Varro accompted the thus divided by the same Eratosthenes. From The whole fum arifeth to 453, years; which Many patient and piercing brains have la- number he otherwise also collecteth, and it is

Now for placing the inftitution of the 0der; as also upon the Astronomical calcula-Cyril against Julian and Dydimus begin the tion of fundry Eclipses of the Sun; as of that Sardis with his Army to invade Greece; and

Freq. E reckoning, accounts with those that find Touching Cyrus, it is generally agreed that Till name that the very first Olympiad in the beginning of his reign as King before he was Lord of the holds. the four hundreth and fixth year after Troy; great Monarchy, began the first year of the Enfeld yet he telleth us that it was in the fiftieth five and fiftieth Olympiad, and that he reign page as of Uzziab, which is (as I find it) two ed thirty years: they who give him but ϵ_3, σ_4 twenty nine years of reign (following Hero-Dem. Eratofibenes placeth the first Olympiad four under and Super Version and Super Versi Dionysius, Halicarnasseus, Diodorus Siculus, der set by all good Writers in the first year of the hundreth and fourteenth Olympiad. The distance between the destruction of This latter note of Alexanders death serveth Trey and the first Olympiad, is thus collected | well to lead us back to the beginning of Cyby Eratofthenes. From the taking of Troy to rus; as many the like observations do. For the descent of Hercules his posterity into Pe- if we reckon upwards from the time of Alexthe Persian Empire.

the fixtieth Olympiad, and the two hundreth speaks of these Victors, calling them. and fortieth year from the institution of those games by Iphitus) followed the last of the seventy years of the captivity of Juda, and defolation of the Land of Ifrael: manifest it is, that we must reckon back those seventy years, and one hundred threefcore, and ten years more, the last which passed under the Kings of Juda, to find the first of these Olym-beginning of Xerxes, and from him to Cyrus, of a Province. whence we have a fair way through the fiftieth year of Uzzia.

time wherein these Olympiads began.

with what exceeding great concourse of all the Kings of Juda and leave the merry Greeks Greece, they were celebrated, I hold it a fu- at their games, whom I shall meet in more seperfluous labour. It is enough to fay that all rious imployments, when the Persian quarrels bodily exercises, or the most of them, were draw the body of the History into the coasts therein practifed; as Running, Wrestling, of tonia and Hellespont. Fighting, and the like. Neither did they only contend for the Mastery in those feats, whereof there was good use, but in running of Chariots, fighting with whorle-bats, and other the like ancient kinds of exercises that ferved only for oftentation. Thither also repaired Orators, Poets, Musicians, and all that I five and twenty years old, and in the sethought themselves excellent in any laudable cond of Pekah King of Israel, was anointed very Cryers which proclaimed the victories, built an exceeding high Gate to the Temple contended which of them should get the hoo of threescore cubits upright, and therefore nour of having plaid the best part.

ander, we shal find all to agree with the years The Eleans were presidents of those Games, of the Olympiads; wherein Cyrus began his whole justice, in pronouncing without parreign either as King, or taking the word Mo-tiality who did best, is highly commended. As narch, to fignific a Lotel of many Kingdoms) for the rewards given to the Victors, they as a great Monarch. From the beginning of Cy- were none other than Garlands of Palm, or tus in the first year of the five and fittieth o- Olive, without any other commodity follow-Impiad, unto the end of the Persian Empire, ing than the reputation. Indeed there needed which was in the thad of the hundreth and no more. For that was held so much, that twelfth Olympiad, we find two hundred and when Diagonas had feen his three fons crownthirty years compleat: from the beginning of ed for their feveral victories in those games; Crrss his Monarchy, which lasted but seven one came running to him with this gratulayears, we find compleat two hundred and tion: Morere, Diagoras, non enim in calum affeven years, which was the continuance of cenfurus es, that is, Die, Diagoras, for thou shalt not clime up to heaven as if there could be no Now therefore feeing that the first year of greater happiness on earth, than what alrea-Cyrus his Monarchy (which was the last of dy had befallen him. In the like sense Horace

> Quos Elæa domum reducit Palma Cæleftes.

Such as like heavenly wights do come With an Elwan Garland home.

Dorat. Carm.l.4

Neither was it only the voyce of the Peopiads; which by this accompt is the one and |ple, or fongs of Poets, that fo highly extolled fiftieth of Uzziah, as we have already noted. them, which had won these Olympian prizes; The Eclipses whereof we made mention, but even grave Historians thought it a matferve well to the same purpose. For exam-ter worthy of their noting. Such was (as ples fake; that which was feen when Xerxes | Tully counts it) the vanity of the Greeks, that Tall, in mustered his Army at Sardis, in the two they esteemed it almost as great an honour flates. hundred threescore and seventh year of Na- to have won the victory at Running or wrestbonassar, being the last of the threescore and ling in those games, as to have triumphed in fourteenth Olympiad, leads us back unto the Rome for fome famous victory, or conquest

That these Olympian games were celebratthreefcore and ten years, unto the destruction led at the full of the Moon; and upon the of Jerusalem; and so upwards through the fifteenth day of the Moneth Hecatombaan; reigns of the last Kings of Juda, to the one and which doth answer to our June; and what means they used to make the Moneth begin Thus much may fuffice, concerning the with the new Moon, that the fifteenth day might be the full. I have shewed in another To tell the great folemnity of them, and place. Wherefore I may now return unto

§. V I. Of Jotham and his Contemporaries.

Totham the fonne of Uzziah, when he was quality, to make tryal of their skill. Yea, the King in Jerusalem, his Father yet living. He called Ophel: befides divers. Cityes in the

CHAP. XXIII.

Palaces: he inforced the Ammonites to pay of Nicander his royal companion. him Tribute, to wit, of Silver an hundred talents, and of Wheat and Barly two thou- fore-told the destruction of the Asyrian Emfand measures: he reigned fix and twenty pire, and of the city of Nineve, which succeedyears: of whom Tolephus gives this testi- ed (faith Josephus)a hundred and fifteen years monie : Eiusmodi verò Princeps bic fuit, ut after. The Cities of Cyrene and of Aradus were nullam in eo virtutis genus desideres: ut qui built at thistime, while in Media, Sosarmus Deum adeo Pie coluerit, hominibus suis adeo and Medidus reigned, being the second and juste prefuerit, urbem ipsam tanta sibi cura esse third Kings of those parts. passus sit, & tantopere auxerit, ut universum regnum hostibus quidem minime contemnendum, domesticis autem ejus incolis atque civibus fælix, faustum & fortunatum sua virtute effecerit; This was such a Prince, as a man could find no kind of vertue wanting in him:he worshipped God so religiously, he governed his men so righteously, he was so provident for the Ci- of Remalia: the same being also the last ty, and did so greatly amplify it, that by his vertue and prowess he made his whole Kingdom not contemptible to his enemies, but to his Servants, Inhabitants and Citizens, prosperous ter, exceeding all his predecessors. He made and happy.

was not long, but as happy in all things, as he himself was devout and vertuous.

Auchomenes about this time succeeded Phelesteus in Corinth: after whom, the Corinthians erected Magistrates, which governed from of cypfelus, who drove them out.

with reigned 27. years.

nent vertues, succeeded his father, and reign- up others to be offered, that therefore 84ed 60. years, and out-lived the Messeniack turn had stirred up and strengthened their

Hills of Juda, and in the Forrest, Towers and war: which was ended by Theopompus, the son

At this time lived Nahum the Prophet, who of Achaz and his Contemporaries.

Has, or Achaz, succeeded unto Jotham in the seventeenth year of Peka, the son year of his fathers reign, who began in the fecond of the same Peka, and reigned 16.but not compleat years. This Ahaz was an Idolamolten Images for Baalim, and burnt his fon This is all that I find of Jotham: his reign for facrifice before the Idol Moloch, or Saturn, 184.16 which was represented by a man-like brazen in body, bearing the head of a Calfe, fet up not the is. far from Jerusalem, in a valley shadowed with Woods, called Gehinnom, or Tophet, from whence the word Gehenna is used for Hell. year to year. And yet Pausanias in his second The children offered, were inclosed within book with Strabo & Plutanch, in many places the carkafs of this Idol, and as the fire encreaare of opinion, That Corinth was governed fed, so the facrificers, with a noise of Cimbals, by Kings of the race of the Bacida, to the time and other Instruments, filled the air, to the end the pittifull cries of the children Teglathphalassar, or Teglathpeleser, the son of might not be heard: which unnatural, cruel, Phul the second of the Babylonians and Assyri- and divillish Oblation, Jeremy the Proans that was of this new race, about this time phet vehemently reprehendeth, and of invaded Ifrael, while Pelah (who murthered which S. Hierome upon the tenth of Matthew his master Pekeiah) was King thereof. In which hath written at large. By the prohibition expedition he took most of the Cities of Neph- in Leviticus the eighteenth, it appeareth that tali and Galilee, with those of Gilead over for- this horrible sin was ancient: in the twelsth dan, and carried the inhabitants captive. This of Deuternomy, it is called an abhomina-Tiglath reigned five and twenty years, accortion which God hateth. That it was also ding to Metasthenes. But Krentzhemius finds, practifed elsewhere, and by many Nations rethat with his fon Salmanassar he reigned yet mote from Judea, divers Authors witness; two years longer; which years I would not af- as Virgil in the second of Aneidscribe to the son, because the Aera of Nabonas- Sanguine Placastis, &c. and Silvius-Posfar begins with his fingle reign, but reckon cere cade Deos. Saturn is faid to have brought them to Tiglath Phulassar himself, who there- this custom into Italy; besides the casting of many fouls into the River of Tyber, in Æschylus, the son of Agamnestor, about the stead of which, Hercules commanded, that same time, the twelfth Archon in Athens, the waxen Images of men should be thrown ruled 25. years. Alcamenes governed Sparta: in and drowned. The Devil also taught the after whom, the Estate changed, according Carthaginians this kind of butchery, into Eusebius. But therein surely Eusebius is somuch, that when their City was besiegmistaken: for Diodore, Plutarch, Pausanias, ed, and in distress, the Priest made them and others, witness the contrary. Pausanias believe, that because they had spared their affirmeth, That Polydorus, a Prince of emi- own children, and had bought and brought Inches Enemies against them: whereupon they pre- not firmly settled at home, and the syrian research 6 fently caufed two hundred of the nobleft Kings lay directly in his way, who were yet Even lib a youths of their City to be flain, and offered strong both in men and fame. But Tiglath, pid lib. to Saturn or Satan, to appeale him who be- having now, with the treasures of Termidem. fides thefe forenamed Nations, had instructed prepared his Army, first invaded the Territhe Rhodians, the people of Grete, and Chios, tory of Damascus, wan the City, and killed of Messen, sof Galatia, with the Massagetes, and Rezin the last of the race of the Adads, who others, in these his services. Further, as if he began with David, & ended with this Achaz, Many awriteth) the Mexicans and other peo-ple of America, were brought by the Devil ab the Prieft, commanding the like to be ple of America, were brought by the Devil

God ffirred up Rezen of Damascus, and Pekah And then passing the River, he mastered the the Son of Remaliah, King of Ifrael against Cities of Galilee, invaded Ephraim, and the him, who invaded Judea, and befreged Jeru- Kingdom of Ifrael, and made them his Vaffalem, but entred it not.

dren, the Israelites lead away to Samaria: Sepulchres of the Kings of Juda. but by the counsell of the Prophet oded, again.

evermore attended the ruine of Judga, 50. years. entred upon them from the South, and took little before led him the way into Judea, invi- been hard to define. ted by Menahem, King of Ifrael. Wherefore were not content to destroy the soules of At Damaseus, Achaz met Tiglath, and taking many Nations in Europe, Afia, and Africa, (as thence a pattern of the Altar, fent it to Vriunder this fearful fervitude, in which he also burnt Sacrifice to the gods of the Syrians. holdeth the Floridans and Virginians at this In the mean while Tiglath possest all Basan, and the rest beyond Jordan, which belong-For the wickednesse of this King Ahaz, ed to the Tribes of Reuben, Gad, and Manalle, fals. And notwithstanding that he was in-The King of Syria, Rezin, possest himself vited and waged by Achaz, yet after the spoil of Elab by the Red Sea, and cast the Jewes of Ifrael, he possess himself of the greater part out of its and Pehah flaughtered in one day of Juda, and, as it feemeth, inforced Achas to an hundred and twenty thousand Judans, pay him tribute. For in the second of Kings, of the ablest of the Kingdome, at which time the eighteenth, it is written of Ezechia, that Manseigh, the Sonne of Achaz, was also flaine he revolted from Ashur, or rebelled against, by Zichri, with Azrikam the Governor of his him, and therefore was invaded by Sennachehouse, and Eleanath the second person rib. After Ahaz had beheld and born these unto the King. Belides all this, two hundred miseries, in the end of the sixteenth year of thousand prisoners of women and chil- his reign he died; but was not buried in the

Kings house.

With Ahaz lived Medidus, the third Prince they were returned and delivered back in Media, who governed 40. years, faith Eusebius: Diodorus and Ctesius find Anticar- Euseb in Chron. As Israel and Aramvexed Juda on the mus instead of this Medidus, to have been North, so the Edomites and the Philistims, who Sosarmus his successor, to whom they give

Tiglath Pilefer held the Kingdom of Affy-Bethsemes, Ajalon, Gaderoth, Shocho, Timnah, ria, all the reign of Ahaz: yet 10, that Saland Gemzo, flew many people and carried a- manaffar his Son may feem to have reigned way many prisoners. Whereupon when Achaz with him some part of the time. For we find faw himself environed on all sides, and that that Ahaz did fend unto the Kings of Ashur to his Idols and dead gods gave him no com- belp him. The Geneva note fays, that thefe fort, he sent to the Affgrian Tiglathpileser, to Kings of Ashur, were Tiglath Pileser, and those wing it defire some aid from him against the Ifraclites | Kings that were under his Dominion. But that 10. and Aramites, prefenting him with the he or his Father had hitherto made such confilver and gold both of the Temple, and quefts, as might give him the Lordship over other Kings, I do neither find any Hiftory, Tiglathpileser wanted not a good example | nor circumstance that proveth. Wherefore I to follow, in making profit of the trouble think that these Kings of Ashur, were Tiglath; that role in Palestina. His Father having and Salmanassar his Son, who reigned with lately made himself from a Provincial Leiu- his Father, as hath been said before: though tenant, King of Babylon and Affyria, had a how long he reigned with his Father, it had

At this time began the Ephori in Lacedanion, Plus och in now the Son willingly harkened to Achaz, a hundred and thirty years after Lychrgus, vita solo. and embraced the advantage. As for Belo- according to Plutarch. Euchius makes their chis himself, he was content to affign some beginning far later, namely, in the fifteenth other time for going through with this enter- Olympiad. Of these Ephori, Elalus was the prize: because (as I have said before) he was first; Theopompus and Polydorus being then joynt Kings. These Ephori, chosen every Eusebius and Halicarnasseus in the first of the without their advice and consent. For (faith rule. Cicero) they were opposed against their Kings The Kingdom of the Latines, governed their City for ten years.

CHAP. XXIV

begins in the first year of the eight Olympiad, best account.

year, were controllers, as well of their Sena- seventh Olympiad: at which time indeed, tors, as of their Kings, nothing being done Carops the first of these, began his ten years as the Roman Tribunes against the Consuls. about three hundred year by the Silvii, of In the time of Ahaz died Eschylus, who had the race of Eneas, took end in the same Ahaz ruled in Athens ever fince the fiftieth year of time: the foundation of Rome being Uzzia. Alcamenon the thirteenth of the Me- laid by Romnlus and Remus in the eighth year dontide, or Governours of the Athenians (so of the same King, Codoman builds it in the called of Medon who followed Codrus) fuc- eleventh of Achaz. Bucholzer in the eighth, as ceeded his Father Æschylus, and was the last I think he should; others somewhat laof their Governors: he ruled only two years. ter, and in the reign of Ezechias, Cicero, For the Athenians changed first from Kings Eutropius, Orosius, and others square the time (after Codrus) to Governors for life; which of the foundation to the third year of the ending in this Alcemenon, they erected a Ma- fixt Olympiad. But Halicarnasseus, Solinus gistrate, whom they termed an Archon, who Antiochenus, Clemens Alexandrinus, and Euwas a kind of Burgho-Master, or Governour of sebius, to the first year of the seventh; who feem not only to me, but to many very learn-This alteration Pausanias in his fourth Book ed Chronologers, to have kept herein the

CHAP. XXIV.

Of the Antiquity of Italy, and foundation of Rome in the time of Ahaz.

§. I. Of the Inhabitants, and the name of Italy.

Nd here to speak of the more | That by late ages of Posterity. much fabulous matter hath been mixed with are many and repugnant. But like enough the truth of those elder plantations. Italy be- it is, that the name which hath continued fore the fall of Troy, was known to the Greeks fo long upon the whole Country, and worn by divers names; as first Hosperia, then Ausonia, out all other denominations, was not at the the one name arising of the seat, the other of sirst accepted without good cause. Therethe Ausones, a people inhabiting part of it; fore to find out the original of this name, one ancient name of it was also Oenotria, and the first planters of this noble Country, which it had of the Oenotrii, whom Halicar- Reyneccius hath made a very painful search, nassaus, thinks to have been the first that and not improbable conjecture. And first of concerning which changes of names, Virgil did lead into Italy, before the name of Italy fpeaks thus:

Est locus, Hesperiam Grait cognomine dicunt, Terra antiqua, potens armis atque ubere gleba . Ocnotrii colucre viri, nunc fama, minores Italiam dixisse, ducis de nomine, gentem.

Ancient, and strong, of much fertility: Oenotrians held it, but we hear by fame, ancient times of Italy, and what Tis from a Captains name call'd Italy.

Nations possess the arir- Who this Captain or King may have bin, val of Eneas, the place may feem it is very uncertain. For Virgils speaks to invite us: the rather because no more of him, and the opinions of others brought a Colony of Arcadians into that all he grounds upon that of Halicarnassans, Halicarn Land. Afterward it was called Italy of Italus; who speaks of a Colony which the Eleans lib. 1. was given to it; Secondly, upon that of Justine, who saith, that Brundusium was a Colony of the Ætolians; Thirdly, upon that Infl. lib. of straba, who affirms the same of Temesa or 12. Tempfa, a City of the Brutii in Italy; Last- Strabeline. ly, upon the authority of Pliny, who shews c.s. that the Italians did inhabit onely one Re-There is a Land which Greeks Hesperia name, gion of the Land, whence afterward the name was derived over all. Concerning that which is faid of the Eleans and Etolians them he brings the name of Italy. For the -Nun fama minores Italiam dixisse word Italia, differs in nothing from Aitolia, ducis de nomine gentem, had that name been fave that the first Letter is cast away, which heard of ere Dardanus lest the Countrey, in the Greek words is common; and the let- But feeing that, vvhen Hercules, vvhodied a ter(0) is changed into (a) which change is few years before the War of Troy, had found in the name of Æthalia an Island near left in Italy a Colony of the Eleans (who in Italy, peopled by the Ætholians: and the like a manner vvere one and the same Nation changes are very familiar in the Holic Dia- vvith the Htolians, as Strabo, Herodotus, and lectrof which Dialect (being almost proper Pausanias teach) then the name of Italy beto the Ætolians) the accent and pronuncia- gan: and feeing Virgil makes mention of Italus rion, together with many words little alter- among the Italian Kings, it were no great ed were retained by the Latines, as Dionysius boldness to say, that Italus vvas Commander Halicarnasseus, Quintilian, and Priscian the of these Eleans. Fot though I remember not

Grammarian teach.

Apostata, who called the Greeks cousins ten in Greek Aitolus, vvas very famous among of the Greeks and Latines from Javan; son of a King of Elis, and founder of the Etoling over the Ionian Sea, that lyes between and his people vvere. Ætolia and the Western parts of Greece and Italy, planted Colonies in both. Now whereas Reineccius thinks, that the names of thereto applyes that of Berofus, who called Cethim, Italus; though it may feem strengthened by the marriage of Dardanus, whilest of Atlas, yet is it by arguments (in my valuathe name of Italy, that began after the departure of Hercules out of the Countrey, not long before the War of Troy.

Likewise Virgil, who speaks of Atlas, and hath nothing of his meeting with her in I | Aborigines (to omit other fignifications that

who (as he shews) had one original; from rehearfed, wherein he would not have said. that I have read of any fuch Greek as vvas Hereunto appertains that of Julian the named Italus; yet the name of Ætolus vvritof the Latines. Also the common Original the Ætolians, and among the Eleans, he being and the Fable of James, whose Image had lian Kingdom. Neither is it more hard to detwo faces, looking East and West, as Greece rive the name of Italus from Ætolus, than Itaand Italy lay, and was stamped on Coins, lia from Ætolia. So may Virgil's authority with a Ship on the other fide; all which stand well with the collections of Reynecciis, by interpretation, referred to Javan, fa- us; the name of Italy being taken both from a ther of the Greeks and Latines; who fay- Captain, and from the Nation, of which he

Atlas and Italus belonged both to one man, & Of the Aborigenes, and other Inhabitants of Latium, and of the reason of the names of Latini and Latium.

he abode in Italy with Electra, the daughter N Italy the Latines and Hetrurians vere of Atlas, yet is it by arguments (in my valuation) greater and stronger, easily disproved. the greatest part of it under their subjecti-For they who make mention of Atlas, place on; and the Latines by the vertue and feli-him before the time of Moles: and if Atlas city of the Romans, who were a branch of were Cethim, or Kittim, then was he the fon them, subduing all Italy, and in a few ages of Javan, and Nephew of Japheth, the eldest | whatsoever Nation was known in Europe: tofon of Noah: which antiquity far exceeds the gether with all the Western parts of Asia, and North of Africk.

The Region called Latium, was first inhabited by the Aborigines, whom Halicarnasa. us, Varro, and Regneccius (following them) of Dardanus his marriage with Electra, think to have bin Arcaians: and this name of taly, but calleth Electra and her lifter Maia are strained) imports as much as Original, or (poetically) daughters of the Mountain in Native of the place, which they possessed & Africa, naming Italus among the Kings of which title the Arcadians areknown in vaunthe Aborigenes; which he would not have ting manner to have always usurped, fetchdone, had Atlas and Italus been one person. ing their antiquity from beyond the Moon; As for the authority of Berosus in this case, because indeed, neither were the inhabitants vve need the less to regard it, for that Rey- of Peloponnesus inforced to forsake their neccius himself, vyhose conjectures are more seats so oft as other Greeks were, who did to be valued than the dreams vyherewith dwell without that halfe Ifland, neither Annius hath filled Berofus, holds it but a had the Arcadians fo unfure a dwelling as the rest of the Pelopennesians, because their That the name of Italy began long after Countrey was less fruitfull in land, mountain-Atlas, it appears by the verfes of Virgillast ous, and hard of access, and they themselves warlike men. Some of these therefore having other times men into stones:) in like manner occupied a great part of Latinm, and held it it may be, that the original of Saturns hiding long, did according to the Arcadian man-himself was some allusion to that old opininer, file themselves Aborigenes, in that langu- on of the wisest of the Heathen, that the age, which either their new Scat, or their true God was ignotus Deus, as it is noted in fomewhat farr from the Sea, and are alwaies vain, that the word Saturnus should also noted as unapt men to prove good Mariners, have this very fignification, if it be derived should have bin Authors of new discoveries, (as some think) from the Hebrew Satar, which were a question not easie to be answered, is to hide: Howbeit I deny not but that the were it not fo, that both fruitfulnesse of chil- original of this word, Latium, ought rather dren, in which those ages abounded, inforc- to be fought elsewhere. ed the superfluous company to seek another Reyneceius doth conjecture that the Cetefeat, & that fome expeditions of the Arcadi- ans, who descended of Cethim, the Son of ans, as especially that of Evander, into the Javan, were the men who gave the name to fame parts of Italy, are generally acknow- Latium. For these Ceteans are remembred ledged.

458

460

ancient Nation, who fometimes gave name calls them subjects to the Crown of Troy, to all Greece: but their antiquities are long Hereupon Reyneccius gathers, that their afince dead, for lacke of good records. Nei- bode was in Afia: viz. in agro Elaitico, in the ther was their glory such in Italy, as could Elaitian Territory, which agreeth with Strabo. long sustaine the name of their owne Tribes Of a City which the Molians held in Asia; for they were in short space accounted one called Elea, or Elaia, Pausanias makes mentipeople with the former inhabitants. The Si- on: Stephanus calls it Cidamis, or (according cani, Ausones, Arunci, Rutili, and other peo- to the Greek writing) Cidamis, which name ple, did in ages following disturbe the peace | last rehearsed hath a very neer sound to coof Latium, which by Saturne was brought | thim, Citim, or Cithim; the Greek Letter (D)

ed as a god.

or Sterculius, others term him Stercutius, and between many English words written with fay, that he taught the people to dung their the fame letters. Wherefore that these Cogrounds. That Latium took his name of teans, being descended of Cethim, Cittim, or Saturn, because he did latere, that is, lie hid- Kittim, the Son of Javan, who was Progeden there; when he fied from Jupiter, it is nitor of the Greeks, might very well take questionless a fable. For as in Heathenish su- a denomination from the City, and Region, persittion, it was great vanity to think that which they inhabited, and from thence be any thing could be hidden from God, or that called Eleites, or Elaites, it is very likely, there were many gods of whom one fled confidering that among the Arcadians, Phofrom another; so in the truth of History, it is cians, Atolians, and Eleans, who all were of well known, that no King reigning in those the Aolique Tribe, are found the names of parts was so mighty, that it should be hard the Mountain Elaus, the Haven Elaus, the to find one Countrey or another, wherein a people Elaite, the City Elaus, Elaia, and Elaman might be sase from his pursuit, And yet, teia; of which last it were somewhat harsh see lib. 1. as most fables and poeticall fictions were oc- in the Latine tongue to call the Inhabitop 6/6t. cassioned by some ancient truth, which either tants by any other name then Elatini, from they did maimedly and darkly expresse (for both the Cetai and Arcadians, had their orimentable, and painfull, therefore they nam- pronunciation of one and the same word. in found, therefore they feigned in the time latus (of which name they had a Prince that

(as in fuch places commonly are found) very of Ducalion stones converted into men, as at Neighbours thereby had taught them. How the Acts; whence also Esty of the true God Attention it might be that the Arcadians, who dwelt faies, tu Deus abdens te. For it cannot be in 8/541,44

by Homer as aiders of the Trojans in their After the Aborigenes, were the Pelasgi, an war. Strabo interpreting the place of Homer. to some civility; and he therefore cannoniz- having (as many teach)a pronunciation very like to (TH) differing onely in the strength This Saturne S. Augustine calleth Sterces or weakness of utterance, which is found by ambiguity of speech, or some allusion, whence Latini may come. Now vvhereas fo they feigned a passage over a River in ginal from Cethim, it is nothing unlikely, that Hell, because death is a passage to another agreeing in language & similitude of names, life; and because this passage is hateful, la- they might nevertheless differ in sound and ed the River styx, of hate; Cocytus of lamen- So that as he is by many called Sabinus, to tation, and Acheron, of Pain: so also because whom some (deriving the Sabines from him) men are stonie-hearted; and because the give the name of sabus: in the like manner Greek nact, people, and nace, stones, are neer might he whom the Arcadians would call E-whom Hercules begat upon Auge, the daugh- feem some other man. ter of Alens King of Arcadia) was flain by Ato take an Arcadian name, and to be called Elatus, which in the dialect and pronunciaimposed by the Arcadians, it is the more easie marriage, it self being meerly incessious. name Surto be thought, for that there were then two between these two families the succession in a Nymph called Marica. that Kingdom did pass, almost interchangeably, for many ages, till at the end of the fave onely that her aboad was about the Trojan war it fell into the hand of Hippotheus River Lyris near Minturne. of the race of Elatus, in whose Posterity it dering that it is not easy to find either an aporiginals of Latium.

6. V I.

Of the ancient Kings of the Latines untill Æneas his comming.

"He Kings which reigned in Latium before the arrival of Eneas, were Saturfounded the City Elateja) be named of the | name was not borrowed from the skill which Excited Ceteans Latinus. Reyneccius, pursuing this he taught the people, but rather the soil the rdols Ceteans Latinus Latinus that when Euripplus, Lord which they laid on their grounds had that of the of the Ceteans, (being the Son of Telephus, appellation from him) do rather make him Heathen deep fleries.

Of Picus it is faid, that he was a good hence it chilles in the Trojan War: then did Telephus, horse-man. The fable of his being changed in-that in brother to Euripylus, conduct the Ceteans, who to a Bird, which we call a Py, may well feem the Evan-(fearing what evill might befall themselves (as it is interpreted) to have grown from the golist we by the Greeks, if the affairs of Troy should go skill which he had in sooth-saying or diving- Belzebub, ill) passed into that part of Italy, whereas the tion, by the slight and chattering of Fowles, Belyebul, which is Arcadians were planted by Oenotrius. And Faunus, the Son of Picus, reigned after his Fa-interpre-Revneccius farther thinks, that Telephus being ther He gave to Evander the Arcadian (who ted Domithe more gracious among the Oenotrian Ar- having thain by mischance his father Echemus rens and cadians, by the memory of his Grand-mother King of Arcadia, fled into Italy) the wast it may be Auge, an Arcadian Lady, was well contented grounds on which Rome was afterward built, that after that Saturn Fauna, called Fatua, the fifter of Faunus, became who was also his wife, as all Historians agree, the name of an Idol, tion either of the Ceteans, or of the Oenotri- fine was held a Prophetess, and highly com- it pleased ans, was first Elatinus, and then Latinus. That mended for her chastity, which praise in her God that this name of Elatus may have bin taken or must needs have bin much blemished by her in a like

It is not mentioned that Faunus, had by cuius hould Families, the one of Iphidas, the other of E- his fifter any child, neither do we read of fick latus, who were Sons of Areas King of Area- any other Wife which he had, fave only that unto him. dia, which gave name to the Countrey: and Virgil gives unto him Latinus as his Son, by Eneid. 7,

But who this Marica was, it is not found,

Of the name Latinus, there are by Pompocontinued untill the last. Again, the name of nius Sabinus recounted four:one, the Son of Latinus, having a derivative found, agrees the Faunus, another of Hercules, a third of Olysses better with the supposition of such an acci- by Circe, the fourth of Telemachus. Suidas Suidas in dent. This is the conjecture of Reyneccius, takes notice only of the fecond, of whom he the word which if he made over-boldly, yet others faith, that his name was Telephus, and the peo-Latinia may follow it with the less reproofe, consi- ple anciently named the Cetit, were from his furname called Latini. This agrees in effect parent truth, or fair probability among these with the opinion of Regneccius, the difference disagreeing Authors, which have written the consisting almost in this only, that Suidas cals Telephus the fon of Hercules, whereas Reyneccius makes him his Nephew, by a fon of the fame name. This Latinus having obtained the fuccession in that Kingdom after Faunus, did promise his only Daughter and Heir Lavinia. to Turnus the fon of Venilia, who was fifter to Amata Latinus his Wife.

But when Eneas arrived in those parts with fifteen ships, or perhaps fewer, wherein might nus Picus, Faunus, & Latinus. Of Saturn there be imbarked, according to the rate which is nothing remembred, fave what is mention- Thucydides allows to the Veffels then used, aed already, and many Fables of the Greeks, bout one thousand & two hundred men: then which whether they be applyable to this Latinus finding that it would stand best with man, it is for him to judge, who shall be able his assurance, to make alliance, with the Troto determine, whether this were the Saturn jan, and moved with the great reputation of of the Greeks called by them 1860 , or some Eneas, which himself had heard of in the war other, stiled Saturn by the Aborigines. For the of Troy, gave his Daughter to him, breaking age wherein he lived, may very well admit off the former appointment with Turnus: who him to have bin the same: but the names of incensed herewith, sought to avenge himself Sterces, and Stercutius (for it may be, this by war: which was foon ended with his own certain, that were she an Italian, she could and thirty, and eight and thirty. After his not have born a Daughter marriageable at decease, there arose contention between sylthe arrival of Eneas; unless we should whol- wins, the son of Eneas, and Julus the son of ly follow Suidas, and rather give the conduct Ascanius, about the Kingdom: but the peoof the Cetei into Italy, to Telephus the Father, ple inclining to the fon of Lavinia, Julus than to his Son, who served in the last year was contented to hold the Priesthood, which of the Trojan War. But Reyneccius holds her he and his race enjoyed, leaving the Kingan Allatique, and thinks withall, that Lavinia dom to Sylvius Posthumus, whole posterity was born before Telephus came into Italy. were afterwards called Sylvii. That this name Amata, by which Virgit and The reign of the Alban Kings, with the Halicarnasseus call her, was not proper, but continuance of each mans reign, I find thus rather a furname, it may feem by Varro; who fet down: calleth her Palatia: which name very well might be derived from the Greek name Pallas. Amata, which fignifieth beloved, or dear, was the name by which the High Priest called every Virgin whom he took to serve as a Nun of Vesta; wherefore it is the more easie to be thought a surname, howsoever Virgil discourse of her and Venilia her fister.

CHAP. XXIV.

Lavinia, the daughter of Latinus, being given in marriage to Aneas, the Kingdom of Latium, or the greatest part of that Country, was established in that race: wherein it continued until it was overgrown by the might and greatness of the Romans.

6. IV.

of Aneas, and of the Kings and Governours

Neas himself being of the Royal bloud brance. of Troy, had the command of the Dardanians: he was a valiant man, very rich, ders of Latium: who standing much upon and highly honoured among the Trojans. By the honour of their original, grew thereby his Wife Crent, the daughter of Priamus, he to be called Prise Latini. Of Tiberinus some had a fon called Ascanius; whose surname think that the River Tiber had name, being was Julus, having before the ruine of 2roy formerly called Albula: but Virgil gives it (as Virgil notes) been furnamed Ilus. But that denomination of another called Tibris, when Aneas was dead, his Wife Lavinia, the before the coming of Aneas into Italy. The daughter of Latinus, being great with child Mountain Aventinus had name (as many by him, and fearing the power of this Asca- write) from Aventinus King of the Albanes, nins, fled into the Woods, where she was de- who was buried therein: but Virgil hath it livered of a son, called thereupon Sylvins, otherwise. Julius the brother of Aventinus, and furnamed Posthumus, because he was is named by Eusebius as father of another born after his fathers Funeral. This flight of Julius, and grandfather of Julius Proculus, Lavinia was so evil taken by the people, that who leaving Alba, dwelt with Romulus in Ascanius procured her return, entreated her Rome: Numitor, the elder fon of Procas, was honourably, and using her as a Queen, did deprived of his Kingdom by his brother Afoster her young son his half-brother Sylvius. mulius; by whom also his son Agesthus was Yet afterwards, whether to avoid all occasi- slain, and Ilia his daughter made a Nun of ons of difagreement, or delighted with the Vefta, that thereby the iffue of Numiter might situation of the place; Ascanius leaving to be cut off. But she conceived two sons, either his mother in law the City Lavinium, which by her Uncle Anulius, as some think; or by

Of Amata the Wife of Latinus, it is very years: Virgil gives him thirty; others five

Sylvius Posthumus.	29	1
Sylvius Ancas.	31
Sylvius Latinus.	50	ì
Sylvius Alba.	39
Sylvius Atis.	26
Sylvius Capys.	28
Sylvius Capetus.	13
Sylvius Tiberinus.	8	years.
Sylvius Agrippa.	41
	19	i
Sylvius Aventinus.	37
Sylvius Procas.	23
Sylvius Amulius.	44	,
vius Numitor.
called also Rhea and	Sylvia.
	-
	Sylvius Latinus. Sylvius Alba. Sylvius Alba. Sylvius Aris. Sylvius Capetus. Sylvius Tiberinus. Sylvius Agrippa. Sylvius Aventinus. Sylvius Aventinus. Sylvius Procas. Sylvius Amulius. Vous Numitor.	Sylvius Ameas. 31 Sylvius Latinus. 50 Sylvius Latinus. 39 Sylvius Alba. 39 Sylvius Alis. 26 Sylvius Caprs. 28 Sylvius Caprus. 8 Sylvius Caprius. 8 Sylvius Agrippa. 41 Sylvius Addadius. 19 Sylvius Addadius. 37 Sylvius Procas. 23 Sylvius Amulius. 44 voius Numitor. 24 called allo Rhea and Sylvia.

The most of these Kings lived in peace, and did little or nothing worthy of remem-

Latinus founded many Towns in the bor-Eneas had built and called after his new Mars, as the Poets feign; or perhaps by some Wives name, founded the City Alba Longa, man of war. Both the children, their Uncle and therein reigned. The time of his reign commanded to be drowned, and the mother was, according to some, eight and twenty buried quick, according to the law; which fo ordained, when the Vestal Virgins brake their chastity. Whether it was so, that the mother was pardoned at the entreaty of Antho, the daughter of Amulius, or punished as Of the beginning of Rome, and of Romulus the Law required (for Authors herein do vary) it is agreed by all, that the two children were preferved, who afterward revenged the cruelty of their Uncle, with the flaughter of him and all his, and reftored Nu-ginnings, which (though somewhat uncermitor their grandfather to the Kingdom: tain) depend much upon the birth and eduwherein how long he reigned, I find not, nei- cation of Romulus, the grand-child of Numither is it greatly material to know; for as tor, the last that reigned in Alba. For how much as the Estates of Alba and of Latinum not onely the bordering people, but all Nawere presently eclipsed by the swift increase tions between Euphrates and the Ocean. of Rome; upon which the computation of were broken in pieces by the iron teeth of Time following (as far as concerns the things this fourth Beast, it is not to be described in of Italy) is dependant. After the death of one place, having been the work of many Agoverned by Magistrates; of whom onely the Romans from Janus: but Herodotus, Marter this Combat, when Metius (following also worship the mother of Evander.
Tullus Hostilius with the Albane forces against Plutarch in the life of Romulus rememlour, and judgment, obtained the Soveraign- original, answered in these Verses: ty of the Roman Empire(much by him enlarged) to himself and his posterity; whereby the name of Eneas, and honour of the Trojan and Alban Race, was so revived, that seldom, if ever, any one Family hath attained to a proportionable height of glory.

birth and death,

Numitor, the Kingdom of Alba ceased; for ges; whereof I now do handle onely the Numitor left no male issue. Romulus chose ra- first, as incident unto the discourse precedther to live in Rome; and of the Line of Syl- ing. Q Fabius Pictor, Portius Cato, Calphurnivius none else remained. So the Albanes were us Pifo, Sempronius, and others, feek to derive two Dictators are mentioned, namely Caius Sylus, and many others of equal credit, give Chillius, who in the dayes of Tullus Hoftilius, the Gracians for their Ancestors; and as Stra- Strab. $1. King of the Romans, making War upon be reporteth in his fifth Book, Cæcilius re-f-159.
Rome, dyed in the Camp; and Metius Suf-rum Romanarum Scriptor, eo argumento collifetius, the fuccessor of Chilius, who furren- git, Roman à Gracis effe conditam, quod Romadred the Estate of Alba unto the Romans, ni Graco ritu, antiquo instituto, Herculi rem having committed the hazard of both Sig- facram faciunt: matrem quoque Evandri venenories to the success of three men of each rantur Romani; Cacilius (faith he) a Roman side, who decided the quarrel by Combat : Historiographer, doth by this argument gather, in which, the three brethren Horatii, the that Rome was built by the Greeks, because the Champions of the Romans, prevailed against Romans, after Greekish fashion, by ancient orthe Curiatii, Champions of the Albanes. Af- dinance, do facrifice to Hercules: the Romans the Vcientes and Fidenates) withdrew his breth many Founders of that City: as Roma-Companies out of the battel, hoping thereby | nus the fon of Ulysses and Circe; Romus the to leave the Romans to fuch an overthrow, fon of Emathion, whom Diomedes fent this as might make them weak enough for the ther from Troy; or that one Romns, a Tyrant Albanes to deal with; Tullus, who notwith- of the Latines, who drave the Tuscans out of flanding this falfhood, obtained the victory, that Countrey, built it. Solinus bestows the did reward Metius with a cruel death, cau- honour of building Rome upon Evander, fing him to be tyed to two Chariots, and fo faying, That it was beforetimes called Valentorn in pieces. Then was Alba destroyed, and tia. Heraclides gives the denomination to a the Citizens carried to Rome, where they captive Lady, brought thither by the Grecimade free Denizens, the noble Families being ans: others fay, That it was anciently called made Patricians; among which were the Febris, after the name of Februa, the mother Julii: of whom c. Julius Cafar being descen- of Mars; witness S. Augustine in his third ded, not onely gloried in his ancient, royal, Book de Civitate Dei. But Livie will have it and forgotten pedigree, in full affembly of to be the work of Romulus, even from the the Romans, then governed by a free Estate foundation: of whom and his consort, Juveof the People: but by his rare industry va- nal to a Roman Citizen, vaunting of their

> Attamen ut longè repetas longéque revolvas Majorum quisquis primus fuit ille tuorum, Aut pastor fuit, aut illud quod dicere nolo.

Yet though thou fetch thy pedegree so far; | up into heaven, or rather out of the world. Thy first Progenitor, who ere he were,

Now of Romulus begetting, of his education rehearseth the other opinion that the storm and prefervation, it is faid, That he had Rhea was the fury of the Senators, but seemeth to for his mother, and Mars supposed to be his adhere partially to this taking up; and many father; that he was nurst by a Wolf, found Authors agree, that there was an unnatural and taken away by Faustula a Shepheards darkness, both at his birth, and at his death; wife. The same unnatural nursing had Cyrus, and that he might be slain by thunder or the same incredible fostering had semiramis; lightning, it is not unlikely. For the Emperor the one by a Bitch, the other by Birds. But, as Anastasius was slain with lightning; so was Plutarch faith, it is like enough that Amulius Strabo the Father of Pompey flain with a came covered with armour to Rhea, the mo-thunder-bolt: fo Carus the Emperour (who ther of Romulus, when he begat her with succeeded Probus) whilest he lodged with child: and therein it feemeth to me that he his Army upon the River Tygris, was there might have two purposes; the one, to de- flain with lightning. But a Mars of the same ftroy her, because she was the daughter and Kind might end him that began him; for he heir of his elder brother, from whom he in- was begotten by a man of War, and by viojuriously held the Kingdom; the other, to lence destroyed. And that he died by viofatisfie his appetite, because she was fair and lence (which destiny followed most of the goodly. For the being made a Nun of the Roman Emperours) it appeareth by Tarquigoddes Vesta, it was death in her, by, the Law, nins Superbus, who was the seventh King afto break her chastity. I also find in Fauchet ter him: who when he had murthered his his Antiquitez de Gaule, that Merouee, King of Father-in-law, commanded that he should the Francs, was begotten by a Monster of the not be buried, for (faid he) Romulus himself Sea : but Fanchet fayes, Let them believe it that died and was not buried. But let Halicarnaflist; Il le croira qui voudra: Also of Alexander, seus end this dispute; whose words are these: and of Scipio African, there are poetical in-ventions. But to aniwer these imaginations in general, It is true, that in those times, when that his cruelties in punishment of offenders, the World was full of this barbarous Idola-together with his arrogancy, were the canse of try, and when there were as many gods as his stanghter. For it is reported, that both when there were Kings, or passions of the mind, or his mother was ravished, whether by some man, as there were of vices and vertues, then did or by a god, the whole body of the Snn was eclipmany. Women greatly born, cover such slips fed, and all the earth covered with darkness as they made, by protesting to be forced by like unto night, and that the same did happen at more than humane power: so did venone con- his death. fess to Paris, that the had been ravished by Such were the birth and death of Romn-Apollo. And Anchyses boasted that he had lus: whose life historified by Pintarch, doth known Venus. But Rhea was made with child contain (befides what is here already spoken by some man of War, or other, and therefore of him) the conquest of a few miles, which called Mars, the god of battel, according to had soon been forgotten, if the Roman greatthe sense of the time. Oenone was overcome ness built upon that foundation, had not giby a strong wit, and by such a one as had ven it memory in all ages following, even those properties ascribed to Apollo. The Mo- unto this day. A valiant man he was, very ther of Merouee might fancy a Sea Captain, to strong of body, patient of travel, and tempebe gotten with young by fuch a one: as the rate in diet, as for bearing the use of wine and Daughter of Inachus fancied, according to delicacies: but his raging ambition he knew Herodotus. Eneas was a bastard, and begot- not how to temper, which caused him to slay ten upon some fair Harlot, called for her his brother, and neglect to revenge the death by his father Mars, in a great from of thun-Some Shepheard was, or else, that I'll forbear. der and lightning: so was it said that Aneas meaning either a Shepheard or a Theif. vanished away by the River Numicus: but thereof Livie also speaketh modestly ; for he beauty Venus, and was therefore the child of of Tatius, his companion in the Kingdom, lust, which is Venus. Romulus was nurst by a that he himself might be Lord alone in those Wolf, which was Lupa, or Lupina; for the narrow Territories. He reigned 37. years, Curtesans in those dayes were called Wolfs, first alone, then with Tatius, and after his Quanunc (laith Halicarnasseus) honestiori vo- death, single, till he was slain, as is already cabulo amica appellantur; Which are now by an shewed: after which time, the Soveraignty honester name called friends. It is also written, fell into the hands of Numa, a man to him that Romulus was in the end of his life taken unknown, and more Priest-like than Kinglike: wherein Rome it self in her latter times ctorious to excessive magnificence, from hath somewhat resembled this King. For whence by the same degrees it fell, being drihaving long bin sole Governess, till Constant ven from luxury to defensive arms, and theretinople shared with her: afterwards, when in having bin unfortunate, at length betakes as the Greek Emperour was crushed by for- her self again to the Crosser staff. reign enemies, and the Latines dispoyled of And thus much of Rome in this place by oc-Imperial power, the fell into the subjection casion of the story of the times of King Ahaz, of a Prelate, swelling by degrees from the during whose reign in Jury, the foundations Sheep-hook to the Sword, and therewith vi- of this famous City were laid.

CHAP. XXV.

Of Ezechia, and his Contemporaries.

of the beginning of Ezechias, and of the agreeing of Ptolemy, Nabonassar, Nabopolassar and Mardocempadus, with the history of the Bible.

most part, with the first of Ezechia.

dom, when the twelfth year of Ahaz was al- Father lived, we have already faid enough most compleat, some voould find the means Of this godly King Ezechias, we find, that how to dif-joyn the first of Hezechia from the his very beginning testified his devotion fifteenth of Ahaz, placing him yet one year and zeale. For whether it were so, that his later, of which year, Ahaz may perhaps have unfortunate and ungracious father (who had lived not many days. But feeing that the out-voorn his reputation) gave vvay to his fourteenthand fifteenth years of Ezechia may Sons proceedings, which perhaps it lay not not be removed out of their places, it is vain in him to hinder; or whether (as I rather labour to alter the first year.

joyning, lost his Army by a miraculous the beginning of his sole government; vvee stroak from Heaven, fled home, and vvas plainly find it to have been his first vvork, flain. The year following it was that God that he opened the doors of the house of the added sixteen years to the life of Ezechia, Lord, which Achaz had shut up, cleansed nine and twenty: and the same year was the Priests to their offices and estates, comthat miracle feen of the Suns going back 3 manded the Sacrifices to be offered which of vehich evonder (as I hear) one Bar- had bin for many years neglected, and brake tholomem Scultet, vvho is much commended down the brasen serpent of Moses, because the

S the first year of Ahaz his reign for skill in Astronomy, hath by calculatiwas confounded with the last of on found the very day, vvhich answered unhis father Jotham, so was the later to the twenty fift of April, in the Julian year, end of his fixteen years taken up being then Thursday. I have not seen any in the three first of Exechias his voorks of seulter; but surely to find a mofon. This appears by the Reign of Hosea, oter Israel, which began in the twelsth of A-ry that he produce some record of observations. haz, and therefore the third thereof was vation made at fuch a time. Howfoever it be, concurrent with Ahaz his fourteenth. But the the fifteenth year of Ezechia agreed upon; third of Hosea was the first of Ezechia; so it and therefore vve may not alter the first. As follows, that Exechia began to reign in this for that faying, which is usual in like cases, a through Fathers fourteenth year. Like enough it is, that Ahaz flept with his Fathers, & Ezechia 17. that the third year of Hosea, the same being his son reigned in his stead, it doth no more the fourteenth of Ahaz, was almost spent prove that Ezechia reigned not with his Fawhen Ezechia began, and so the fifteenth year ther, than the like saying doth inferr the like of Ahaz may have been concurrent, for the at the death of Jehofaphat, and succession of Jehoram; vvhereof, as concerning the By supposing that Hosea began his King- beginning of the Son to reign vvhilest his think) the first year and first moneth of his In the fourteenth year of Ezechia, Sena- reign, wherein Ezechias opened the doors cherib, invaded Juda and the Countries ad- of the Temple, vvere to be understood as 2 chro 29. when he had already reigned fourteen of his the City and Kingdom of the Idols, restored schools it Nebushtan, which fignifieth a lumpe of cians. For by them it appears, that between braffe. He did also celebrate the passe-over Nabonassar and the birth of Christ, there with great magnificence, inviting thereunto passed seven hundred forty and six years: at the Ifraelites of the ten Tribes. Many there which distance of time the reign of salmawere even out of those Tribes, that came up nassar was. One great proofe hereof is this. to Jerusalem, to this feast: But the generall which the same Buckolerus alledgeth out of multitude of Ifrael did laugh the Messengers Erasmus Reinholdus, in the Prutenick Tables.

CHAP. XXV.

466

of Ezechia to scorne. folemnize the memoriall of their delive- Moon, which were in his time, doth menrance out of the Egyptian fervitude, fell into tion) was the same whom the Scriptures call a new servitude; out of which they never Merodach, who sent Embassadours to Hegewere delivered. For in the fourth of Ezechia kia King of Juda. So that if we reckon backhis reign, Salmanafar the Son of Tiglath the ward to the difference of time between Son of Belochus, hearing that Hofea King of Merodach and Salmanaffar, we shall find it Ifrael had practifed with So King of Egypt, a- the same which is between Mardocempadus gainst him, invaded Ifrael, besieged samaria, and Nabonassar. Likewise Functius doth and in the third year (after the inhabitants shew, that whereas from the destruction of had endured all forts of miseries) forced it, Samaria, to the destruction of Jerusalem, in and carried thence the ten Idolatrous Tribes the nineteenth of Nebuchadnezzer, we colinto Assiria and Media: among whom Tobias, lect out of the Scriptures, the distance of one and his Son of the same name, with Anna his hundred thirty and three years: the self-same Wife, were fent to Nineve; in whole Seats and distance of time is found in Ptolemy, be-Places the Assprians sent strangers of other tween Nabonassar and Nabopolassar. For Nations, and among them many of the anci- whereas Ptolemy feems to suffer from this ent Enemies of the Ifraelites, as those of Cutha, accompt, making Nabonasar more ancient by Ana, Hamah, and Sphernaim, befides Babylo- an hundred and forty years, than the denians: whose Places and Nations I have for- struction of Jerusalem, wee are to undermerly described in the Treatise of the Holy stand that he took Samaria in the eighth year

Land. ans, which followed them, are the first of three, make the accompt of the Scriptures whom we find mention made both in Pro- fall even with that of Ptolemy, Ptolemies phane and Sacred books. These therefore computation is that from the first of Nabonasferve most aptly to joyne the times of the far, to the fifth of Nabopolassar, there passed old World, (whereof none but the Pro- one hundred twenty and feven years. Now phets have written otherwise then fabulous-if wee add to these one hundred twenty ly) with the Ages following that were bet- feven, the thirteen ensuing of Nebuchadnezter known, and described in course of Histo-zers years, before the City and Temple ry. True it is, that of Cyrus and some other were destroyed, wee have the sum of one Persians, we find in the Bible the same names hundred and forty years. In so plain a by vehich other Authors have recorded case more proofes are needless, though mathem: but of Phul and Salmanassar, with o- ny are brought, of which this may serve ther Afgrian, Chaldean Kings, diversity of for all, that Ptolemy placeth the first of name hath bred question of the persons. Nabopolassar, one hundred twenty and two Therefore, whereas the Scriptures doe speak years after the first of Nabonasjar, which of Salmanassar, King of Assur, who reigned in agreeth exactly with the Scriptures. To the time of Ahaz and Ezechia, Kings of Juda, these notes are added the consent of all Maand of Hosea King of Israel, whom he carried thematicians: which in accompt of times I into captivity: and whereas Ptolomy makes hold more fure than the authority of any Himention of Nabonassar, speaking precisely of story; and therefore I think it folly to make the time wherein he lived; it is very pertidoubt, whereas Historians and Mathematical nent to shew, that Salmanassar and Nabonassar observations do so throughly concurr. were one and the same man. The like reason Yet for as that argument of the learalso requireth, that it be shewed of Nebuchad-ned Scaliger doth rest unanswered, wherenezzer, that he was the same whom Ptolemy, by he proved Baladan the Father of Merocalleth Nabopolassar.

collected sufficient proofe from the exact Reader satisfaction herein. It is true, that the people burnt incense before it and he called | calculations of fundry good Mathemati-Mardocempadus King of Babylon (whom It was not long ere they that scorned to Ptolemy, speaking of three Eclipses of the of his reign; so that the seven foregoing These latter Assprian Kings, and the Persi- years added to these one hundred thirty and

dach, to have been this Nabonassar, I will not Of both these points Bucholerus hath well spare to lose a word or two in giving the

which Ptolomy recorded, after the time of Nabonaffar, were in the reign of Mardocempadwithe fecond year of whose reign is according to Ptolomy, concurrent in part with the twenty feven of Nabonassar. For the fecond of three ancient Eclipses which he calculates. being in the fecond year of Mardocempadus, was from the beginning of Nabonaffar twenty feven years, feventeen dayes, and eleven hours: the accompt from Nabonassar, beginning at high-noon the first day of the Egypti- Of the danger and deliverance of Judan from an Moneth That, then answering to the twenty fixt of February; and this Eclipse being fifty minutes before mid-night, on the eighteenth day of that Moneth, when the first day thereof agreed with the nineteenth pire, in the fourteenth year of Ezechias, he of February; so that the difference of time demanded of him such Tribute as was abetween the two Kings Nabonassar and Mar- greed on, at such time as Tiglath, the Grandthe Egyptian years. But how doth this prove, naffar, invited by Ahaz, invaded Rezin King that Mardocempadus or Meradach, was the of Damaseus, and delivered him from the danwith Nabonassar, I have taken the pains to write his own conditions. fearch, as far as my leifure & diligence could go on with our account from Nabonassar, ta- condly, he altogether disabled the King of king him for Salmanassar; and not fearing, Egypt, from whom the Judaans hoped for that the Readers will be driven from our fuecour; and compared him to a broken 2 kin 18; Book, when they find something in it, agree- staffe, on which who sever leaneth, pierceth next observations of the heavenly Bodies, and Asspria, in those very times which by Diodorus and Ptolomy are afligned to Belofus, Nabonaffar, and Mardocempadus and the reft: no good History naming any others that reigned there in those ages 5 and all Aftronomical observations, fitly concurring with the years that are attributed to thele, or numbred from them.

6. II.

Senacherib.

Hen Salmanassar was dead, and his son Senacherib in possession of the Emdocempadus is noted by Ptolomy, according to father of Senacherib, and Father of Salma-Son of Nabonassar? yea, how doth it prove, gerous War which Israel had undertaken athat he was his next Successiour, or any way gainst him. This Tribute and acknowledgof his Linage? It was enough to fatisfie me, ment when Ezechias denied, Senacherib, hain this argument, that Scaliger himself did af ving (as it feems) a purpose to invade Egypt, terwards believe Mardocempadus to have sent one part of his Army to lye before Jebeen rather the Nephew than the Son of Ba- rusalem. Now though Ezechias (fearing this ladan, or Nabonassar. For if he might be ei- powerful Prince) had acknowledged his ther the Nephew, or the Son; he might per- fault, and purchased his peace, as he hoped, hapsbe neither the one, nor the other. But with thirty hundred talents of filver, and because our Country-man Lidyat hath re- thirty talents of gold, wherewith he present 2 Kin. 18. prehended scaliger for changing his opinion; ed senacherib, now set down before Lachis in and that both Torniellus, who follows Scali- Judea; yet under the colour of better affuger herein, and Sethus Calvisus, who hath rance, and to force the King of Judea to dedrawn into form of Chronology; that learned | liver hostages, the Assirian invironed Jerusa work, De Emendatione Temporum, do hold up lem with a groß Army, and having his sword the same affertion, confounding Baladan in his hand, thought it the fittest time to Exechias directed his three great Counreach, after any sentence that might prove sellers, to parly with Rabfaces over the Wall; the Kindred or Succession of these two: Yet | and to receive his demands: who used three cannot I find in the Almagest (for the Scrip- principal arguments to perswade the people tures are either filent in this point, or adverse to yeild themselves to his Master senacherib. to Scaliger; and other good authority, I know For though the Chancellour, Steward, and none, in this business) any sentence more near- Secretary, fent by Ezechias, defired Rabsaces ly proving the succession of Merodach to to speak unto them in the Syrian tongue; Nabonaffar, than the place now last rehearsed: and not in the Jewish, yet he with a louder which makes no more, to shew that the one voice directed his speech to the multitude in of these was father to the other than (that I their own language. And for the first, he may use a like example) the as near successi- made them know, That if they continued obon of William the Conqueror, declares him, stinate, and adhered to their King, that they to have been Son, or Grand-child to Edward would in a short time be inforced to eat their the Confessor. This confidered, we may fafely own dung, and drink their own urine : Seing with Annius, for a smuch as these Kings his own hand: Thirdly, that the gods who mentioned in Scriptures, reigned in Babylon should help them, Ezechias had formerly

broken

broken and defaced, meaning chiefly (asit is numerable multitude of Rars had in one thought by fome) the brasen Serpent, which night eaten in funder the Bow-strings of his had been preferved ever fince Mojes time: Archers, and spoiled the rest of their Weaand withall he bade them remember the pons in that kind, which no doubt might gods of other Nations, vvhom, notwithstand-greatly amaze him: but the approach of ing any power of theirs, his Master had con-Tarhaca, remembred by Josephus and Berofus, quered and thrown down; and for God him- was the more urgent. Saint Hierome upon the felf, in vyhom they trufted, he perfinaded feven and thirtieth of Efay, out of the fame flood that the King of Arabia was marching cherib Regem Allyriorum contra Legoptios, & on with a powerful Army, he himself lett obsedisse relusium, jamque extructis aggeribus the Affrian forces in charge to others, and urbi capienda, venife Taracham Regen Afought Senacherib at Libna to Judea, either thiopum in auxilium, o una node juxta Jeruto inform him of their resolution in Jerusa- Salem, centum olioginta quinque millia exercilem, or to confer with him concerning the tus Affrii peftilentia cornife, narrat Herodo-Army of Iurhaca the Arabian. Soon upon tus: & plenissime Berolus Chaldaice scriptor this there came letters from Senacherib to Historie, quorum sides de propriis libris peter-Exechias, whom he partly advised, and part- da eft; That Senacherib King of the Affyrily threatned to submit himself, using the ans fought against the Ægyptians, and besefame blasphemous outrage against the all- ged Pelusium, and that when his Mounts were powerful God, as before. But Ezechias built for the taking of the City, Tarhacas King fending those Counsellers to the Prophet E- of the Æthiopians came to help them, and that fay, which had lately been sent to Kabjaces, in one night near Jerusalem, one kundred eigh. received from him comfort, and assurance, ty five thousand of the Assyrian Army perified that this heathen Idolater should not pre- by pestilence; of these things (faith Hierome)

468

his Army, which was departed as it seemeth sub Rabsacis imperio reliquerat poste divinifrom the siege of Pelusium in Egypt , for sear ius immisia deletum, prima nocie post eafon of Senacherib's return from Pelusium in Rabsaces, destroyed by a pestilence sent Egypt, which he also besinged, was, that an in-from God, the sirst night that he had begin to them by no means to rely upon him; for he would deceive them. But finding the people it would deceive them. But finding the people filent (for 6 the King had commanded than his words lye; reports Senacherib's re-line is the file words. Phandle auton Senacherib's re-line is the file words. them) after a while, when he had under-trait in these words: Pugnasse autem Sena-un the vail; against whom the King also besought *Herodotus reports: and more at large Beroaid from Almighty God, repeating the most sus a writer of Chaldwan story, whose credit; in Jorit infolent and blasphemous parts of Senache- to be taken from their own Books. Out of mentions rib's letter, before the Altar of God in the Esty it is gathered, that this destruction of medical rib's letter, before the Altar of God in the Temple, confessing this part thereof to be the Affgrian Army was in this manner: Thou thing the true, That the King of Ashur had destroyed Shalt be wisted of the Lorel of Hoast's with thun- the 2 Kin. 19 the Nations and their Lands, and had fet der and shaking, and a great noise, a whirle nord; fire on their gods, for they were no gods, wind, and a tempeft, and a fame of decouring miles. but the works of mans hands, even wood and fire. But ofethus hathit more largely out of man the same Berojus, an authority (because so there The reason that moved Senacherib to de- well agreeing with the Scriptures) not to be 59394 fire to possess himself in haste of Jerusalem, omitted; Senacheribus autem ab Agyptia 19. and was, that he might thereinto have retraited co bello revertens, offendit ibi exercitum quem toch of Terbaca: and though the Scriptures are quam Orbem oppugnare coperat, abjumptis filent of that enterprise which in these Books cum Ducibus & Tribunis centum odegima of the Kings, and of the Chronicles or Parali- quinque millibus Militum; qua clade territus, pomenon, speak but of the affairs of the Jews & de reliquis copiis sollicitus, maximis iliin effect) yet the ancient Berojus, and out of neribus in regnum fuum contendit, ad regiam him Josephus and Saint Hierom, together with que Ninus dicitur. Ubi paulo post per instidias Herod La, Herodotto, remember it as followeth. Herodo Seniorum e filiis suis, Adramelechi, & Se selent tus calleth Senacherib King of Arabia and lennari, vitam amist: occisus in 1960 Tem obscure. Affria: which he might justly do, because plo quod dicitur Arasci, quem pracipuo cultu who see Tiglath his Grand-father held a great part dignabitur; quibus ob patricidium à popula himat thereof, which he wrested from Pekah King ribus pulsis, & in Armeniam sugientibus, A ing to of Ifrael: as Gilead over Jordan, and the reit faracoldas minor filius in Regnum faceelfit; were of Arabia Petrasa adjoyning: the same Hero- Senacherib (saith Josephus) returning from plants also maketh Sethon King of Egypt, to be the Ægyptian War, found there his Army, Vulcan's Prieft; and reporteth that the rea- which he had left under the command of affault the Town: one hundred four foore and froe a maffe of Figs, laid to the Botch or Sore. thousand of the Souldiers being consumed with their Chieftains and Colonels. With which de- data had told to Merodach, King of Eabylon. fruction being terrified, and withall affaid the fust of that house, he sent to Ezechias, to what might become of the rest of his Armie, he be informed of the cause at which time Exemade great marches into his Kingdome, to his chias shewed him all the Treasure he had. man great Royall Citie, which is called Ninus, where short- both in the Court and in the Kingdome: for In after by the treason of two of the eldest of his which he was reprehended by the Prophet ces, or Nesroth; Whom he especially worshiped, thy Fathers have laid up in store to this day, These his Sons being for their paracide chased shall be carried into Babel; nothing shall be is 1805.19 amon by the people, and stying into Armenia. Less soils that 168,4.1 Afaracoldas his younger son succeeded in the how Ezechia should have got any treasure five dayes after Senacherib's returne, ere he | Jerusalem. was murthered by his Sons, during which time he flew great numbers of the Israelites God: the one, that he rejoyced too much fword against his own breast.

disease seemeth to be the pestilence, by the matter to hazzard, and prevailed, the affertimedicine given him by the Prophet, to wit, on of this history is made by the same argu-

This wonder when the Wife-men of Chalsons, Adramelch and Selenner or Sharezer, Isaiah, who told him; The dayes are at hand, Esy 39-be lost his life in the Temple dedicated to Arasi that all that is in thine house, and whatsoever away by the people, and flying into Armenia, left, faith the Lord. It may seeme strange, Kingdome. Who in the beginning of his reign worth the shewing: for Senacherib had robfent new troops out of Affyria to Samaria, to bed him of all, the year before. But the spoul fortific the Colonie therein planted by his of the same Senacherib his Camp repayed all Grand-father Salmanassar. What this Nefroth with advantage, and made Ezekia richer upwas, it is uncertain: Hierome in his Hebrew on the fudden than ever he had been: which traditions hath somewhat of him, but nothing unexpected wealth was a strong temptation positively. It is certain, that Venus Vrania to boasting. After this time Ezekia had rest, was worshiped by the Assirians; and so was and spending without noise that addition Jupiter Belus, as Dion, Eusebius, and Cyrillus which God had made unto his life, he dved witnesse. Many fancies there are, what cause having reigned nine and twenty years. One his Sons had to murther him; but the most only offensive War he made, vehich veas likely it is, that he had formerly dif-inheri- against the Philistims, with good success. Ated those two, and conferred the Empire on mong his other acts (shortly remembred in Affarhaddon. Tobit tels us, that it was fiftie Ecclesiasticus) he devised to bring vvater to

In two respects they say that he offended in Nineve, till the most just God turned the at the destruction and lamentable end of his enemy: the other, that he fo much gloried in his riches, as he could not forbear to shew them to strangers. But the reason vvhich moved Ezechias (speaking humanely) to of Ezechias his sicknesse and recoverie; and of entertain the Embassiadours of Merodach in the Babylonian King that congratulated this friendly and familiar manner, vvas because he came to visit him, and brought him a present, congratulating the recovery of his A Fter this marvellous deliverie, Ezechias health; as also in that Merodach had weak-A sickned, and was told by Ifaiab that he ned the house of Senacherib, his fearfull must dye: but after he had besought God enemy. For Merodach, who was Comwith tears for his delivery, Isaiah, as he was mander and Lieutenant under Senacherib going from him, returned again, and had in Babylon, usurped that State himself, in the warrant from the Spirit of God to promife last year of that King, and held it by strong him recovery after three dayes, and a pro- hand against his son Assarbaddon; who longation of life for fifteen years. But Eze- was not onely simple, but impaired in chias somewhat doubtfull of this exceeding strength, by the molestation of his brothers. grace, prayeth for a fign to confirme him: This advantage Merodach espied, and rememwhereupon, at the prayer of Isaiah, the fla- bring that their ancestor Phil Belochus had set dow of the Sunne cast it self the contrary his own Master Sardanapalus besides the cuway, and went back ten degrees, upon the shion, thought it as lawfull for himself to Dyall of Achaz. The cause that moved Eze- take the opportunity which this Kings weakchias to lament (faith Saint Hierome) was, ness did offer, as it had been for Belochus because he had as yet no son, and then in de- to make use of the others wickedness, and so, spair that the Messias should come out of the sinding himself beloved of the Babylonians, house of David, or at least of his Seed. His and sufficiently powerful, he did put the CHAP. XXV

ments that were in maintaining the common opinion of Writers, touching Phul Belochus; which I will not here again rehearfe. So of this new race, which cut afunder the Line of Ninns, there were onely five Kings.

But forafmuch as the last year of Salmanassar was also the first of Senacherib his son, we reckon the time, wherein the house of Phul held the Affyrian Kingdom, to have been an hundred and one years, of which, the last five and twenty were spent with Ezechia, under Salmanassar, Senacherib, and As-Sarhaddon.

§. IV.

The Kings that were in Media during the reign of Ezechia: Of the difference found between fundry Authors in rehearling the Median Kings. Other contemporaries of Hezekia: of Candaules, Gyges, and the Kings descended from Hercules.

N the time of Ezekia, Medidus, and after him Cardiceas, reigned in Media. Whether gotten times, by conjectures founded upon it were fo, that variety of names, by which Ctesias and Metasthenes, I will lay the burden these Kings were called in several Histories, upon Ensebins, who lived in an age better hath caused them to seem more than indeed furnished than ours, with books of this arguthey were; or whether the fons reigning with the fathers, have caused not onely the Kings (whom I have reckoned as contemponames of Kings, but the length of Time raries with Ezekia) Medidus and Cardiceas, wherein they governed Media, to exceed the are found in Eusebius: for whether Cardicess due proportion, or whether the Copies them- were Diodorns his Arbianes, I will not flay to felves of Ciclias and Annius his Metafibenes, fearch. The Kings of Media, according to Euhave been faulty, as neither of these two sebius, reigned in this order. Authors is over-highly commended of trustiness; so it is, that the names, number, and length of reign are all very diverfly reported of these Median Kings, that follow Arbaces : therefore it need not feem strange, that I reckon Medidus and Cardiceas as contemporaries with Ezechia. For to reconcile so great a difference, as is found in those writers that vary from Eusebius, is more than I dare undertake. I will only here let down the roll of Kings that reigned in Media, accordingly as I retain; but adde unto these, Cyaxares, the fundry Authors have delivered it.

Annius his Metasthenes orders them and their reigns thus:

	Arbaces	}	[28]	·
	Mandanes	}	50
6	Sofarmon	1	30
E	Articarmin	1	50	! E
	Arbianes		22	i
	Artæus	reigned .	40	years.
	Artines	ī	22	l I
	Astybarus, with his	i -	į
	fon Apanda	ì	20
	Apanda alone		30
	Darius with Cyrus	j	l 36 .	1

Diodorus Siculus following Ctesias (as perhaps Annius made his Metasthenes follow Diedere. with fome little variation, that he might not feem a borrower)placeth them thus;

Arbaces Mandanes Sofarmus Articas Arbianes Arfæus Artines Artabanus	reigned	28 50 30 50 22 40 22 40	years.
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	---------	----------------------------------------------	--------	--

Astybara the continuance of these two he Aftyages \ doth mention.

Mercator hath laboured, with much diligence, to reconcile these Catalogues, and to make them also agree with Eusebius. But foralmuch as it feems to me an impossible matter, to attain unto the truth of his forment. Let it therefore suffice, that these two

Arbaces Sofarmus Medidus Cardiceas Deioces Phraortes Cyaxares Aftyages	reigned e	28) 30 40 15 54 24 32 38	years.
------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----------	------------------------------------------------	--------

These names, and this course of succession fon of Aftyages, according to Xenophon; and sometimes follow Herodotus, in setting down the length of a Kings reign, otherwise than Eusebius hathit: of which variations I will render my reasons in due place.

The twenty nine years of Ezekia were concurrent, CHAP. XXVI. first that were chosen Governours of Athens for ten years, that is, of Charops, Æsimedes, Elidicus, and Hippones. Touching the first of these I hear nothing, save that Rome was built in his first year ; of which perhaps himfelf did not hear. Of the second and third I find only the names. The fourth made himfelf known by a strange example of justice, or rather of cruelty, that he shewed upon his own Daughter. For he finding that the had offended in unchastity, caused her to be lockt up with an Horse, giving to neither of them any food: fo the Horse, constrained by hunger devoured the unhappy Woman.

In Rome, the first King, and founder of that City Romulus, did reign both before, and somewhat after Ezekia.

In Lydia, Candaules the last King ruled in the same age.

This Region was first called Maonia. Lydus the fon of Atys reigning in it, gave the name of Lydia, if we believe fuch authority as we find. This Kingdom was afterward, by the appointment of an Oracle, conferred upon Argon, who came of Alcaus the son of Hercules, by Fardana, a bond-woman. The race of these Heraclida continued reigning fifty five years (in which two and twenty Generations passed) the son continually succeeding the father. Candaules the fon of would needs enforce one Gyges the fon of folly of this last King Candaules.

concurrent, in part, with the rule of the four | Dafcylus to behold her naked body, and placed the unwilling man fecretly in her chamber, where he might see her preparing to bedward. This was not so closely carried, but that the Queen perceived Gyges at his going forth, and understanding the matter, took it in such high disdain, that she forced him the next day to requite the Kings folly with treafon So Gyges being brought again into the fame chamber by the Queen, flew Candaules, and was rewarded not only with his Wife, but with the Kingdom of Lydia. He reigned thirty eight years, beginning in the last of Ezekia one year before the death of Romulus.

After Gyges, his fon Ardys reigned nine and forty years; then Sadyattes twelve: Halyattes. fifty feven, and finally Crafus the fon of Halyattes, fourteen years: who loft the Kingdom, and was taken by Cyrus of Persia.

And here by the way we may note that as the Lydian Kings whom Crafus his Progenitor dispossest, are deduced from Hercules, fo of the same Hercules there sprang many other Kings, which governed feveral Countreys very long; as in Asia, the Mysians, in Greece, the Lacademonians, Messenians, Rhodians, Corinthians and Argives; and from the Argives, the Macedonians, as likewise from the Corinthians, the Syracusans: besides many great and famous, though private families.

But of the Heraclida that reigned in Lydia, Myrfus was the last of his race, who doated I have not troubled my self to take notice of so much upon the beauty of his own wife, that the time of their several reigns: for little is he could not be content to enjoy her, but found of them beside the bare names, and the

CHAP. XXVI.

Of the Kings that reigned in Egypt, between the deliverance of Israel from thence, and the reign of Ezekiah in Juda when Egypt and Juda made a league against the Assyrians.

That many names of Egyptian Kings, found in History, are like to have belonged only to Viceroys. An example proving this out of William of Tyre his History of the Holy War.

ble things in Egypt, and fetting down briefly fail in fuch conjectures. That which I have the state of that Countrey, which had con- delivered, in speaking mine opinion of the tinued long a flourishing Region, and was of Egyptian Dynasties, must here again help me. great power, when it contended with Affyria For it may truly be affirmed, That the great for the maftery. Of Cham the fon of Noah, number of Kings, which are faid to have

He emulation and quarrels ari- who first planted that Country, and of Ofris, fing in these times, between, the Orus, and other ancient Kings that reigned mighty Kingdoms of Egypt and there, untill the Israelites were thence deli-Assyrians, do require our pains, vered, more hath been said already than I in collecting the most memora- can stand to; though I hold it no shame to reigned in Egypt, were none other than Vice- his Turks, under the command of syracon roves or Stewards, such as Joseph vvas, and against the Soldan Dargan. So Dargan and fuch as vvere the Soldans in latter ages. Sanar met, and fought: The victorie was Therefore I will not onely forbear to feek Dargans; but he enjoyed it not: For in few after those, whom Herodotus and Diodorus dayes after, he was slain by treason, whereby have reckoned up from the mouths of Egyptotian Priests, delivering them by number, stall the kindred and freinds without rehearing their names; but will of Dargan, that he could find in the great fave the labour of marshalling them in order, Citie of Cairo. their reigns, and other circumstances proving gave little regard; for he thought it little them to have been Kings indeed, being not concerned him, which of them lived, and recorded.

472

lay an imaginarie ground, whereupon after his pleasure. But new troubles presently a-I may build what I lift; it were not amiffe, to rife, which (one would think) do necrly give unto the Reader such satisfaction in this touch the Caliph himselfe. Syracon with his point, as apparent reason, and truth of Histo- Turks, whom Sanar had gotten to come into rie doth afford, First therefore, we ought not Egypt, will not now be intreated there to to believe those numbers of Generations, leave him, and quietly go their way home. which the lying Preists have reckoned up to They seize upon the Town of Belbeis, which that from Abraham our Saviour Christ was re- more companie from Daviageo, for the conmoved onely forty two descents; which quest of all Egypt. The Soldan perceives makes it evident, that in farre shorter time, their intent, and finds himself not strong enamely before the Persian Empire, there nough to expell them, much lesse to expell could not have passed away twice as many the Turkish Armie that was likely to second fucceffions in Egypt: especially considering, them: He therefore sends Messengers to King that many of these, whose continuance is ex- Almarick of Jerusalem, whom with large propreffed, having reigned longer than forty miles he gets to bring him ayde, and for years. It follows that we should square the drives out the Turks: Of all this trouble number of the Egyptian Kings in some even the great Caliph hears nothing, or not so much proportion, to those which did bear rule in as should make him look to the playing of his other Countries. As for the rest whose names own game. we find feattered here and there; any man | A greater mischief ariseth, concerning the that will take the paines to read the nine- caliph Elhadech particularly in his own Title. fwade himself, that it is not hard to find was opposite to him of Egypt, each of them names enow, of such as might be thought to claiming as heir to Mahamet that false Prohave reigned in Egypt, being none other than phet, the Soveraigntie over all that were of Regents or Viceroyes. Yet will I here insert | the Saracen Law) and tels him the weakness as breifly as I can, some things making to of the Egyptian, with his own abilitie of doing that purpose, for the pleasure and informa- service in those parts; offering his best means tion of fuch as will not trouble themselves for the extirpation of the Schismaticall Cawith turning over many Authors.

of Damasco, for ayde, who sends an Armie of them all manner of content, as it behoved whose names onely are found; the years of To all these doings, the Caliph Elhaderh had the administration of the kingdome. But that I may not feem before hand to whilest he might have the profit of it, and magnifie their Antiquities. For we know, they fortifie, and there attend the arrivall of teenth book of the Holy Warr, written by Syracon, Captain of the Turks that had been William Archbishop of Tyre, may easily per- in Egypt, goes to the Caliph of Baldach (who liph, and the reduction of all Egypt, with the When Elahdech the Caliph ruled in Egypt, Western parts, under the subjection of the Baone Dargan, a powerfull and a fubtile man, bylonian. This motion is readily and joyfulmade himself Soldan by force and cunning, ly entertained; all the Eastern Provinces are chasing away Sanar an Arabian, who was up in Arms, and Syracon, with a mighty pow-Soldan before and after him. This Dargan er, descendeth into Egypt. The noyse of this ministred matter of quarrel to Amalrick King great expedition so affrighteth King Almaof Fernsalem, and sustained, with little losse, rick, that with all his forces he hasteth into an invalion, which Amalrick made upon E- Egypt, well knowing how neerly it concerngrpt. hereupon he grew so insolent and ed him and his kingdome of Jerusalem, to proud, that Sanar the former Soldan hoped keep the Saracens from joyning all under to make his partie good against him, if he one head. Sanar the Soldan perceiving the could get any forces wherewith to enter E- faithfull care of the Christians his friends, gypt. Briefly, Sanar fueth to Noradine, King welcomes them, and bestirs himselfe in giving him: for by their admirable valour, he fi- were brought into the Caliph's own lodgnally drave the enemies out of the Countrie. ings, which were yet more stately and But this victory was not fo foon gotten, as better guarded; where entring the Preit is quickly told.

CHAP. XXVI.

present purpose) that of so desperate a dan- Sword that he were about his neck, and in title onely, who meddled so little in the Presently the traverse wrought with Gold required, makes large offers to King Al- his most inward servants and Eunuches amarick, upon condition that he should abide bout him. When the Soldan had humbly his estate.

perhaps from the East Indies, which then his greatness. was undiscovered. The further they went, fence, the Soldan having twice proftrated Strange it is (which most concerns our himself, did the third time cast off his ger, the Caliph, as yet, seems to know nothing, throw himself on the ground before the May we not think him to have been King Curtain, behind which the Caliph sate. Government? The Soldan, finding that the and Pearls was opened, and the Caliph Christians (without whose help all was lost) himself discovered, fitting with great Macould not well ftay so long as his necessities jesty on a Throne of Gold, having few of by it, He promifeth a great Tribute (William kissed his Masters feet, he briefly told the of Twe calls it a Tribute; the Sarazens, per- cause of his comming, the danger wherein haps, called it a Pension) which the Kings the Land stood, and the offers that he made of Terusalem should receive out of Egypt, for unto King Almerick, desiring the Caliph this behoveful affiltance. But the Christians himself to ratific them in presence of the understanding that the Soldan (how much Embassadors. The Caliph answered, That foever he took upon him) was fubject to a he would throughly perform all which was higher Lord, would make no bargain of fuch promifed. But this contented not the Emimportance with any other than the Caliph bassadors: They would have him to give himself. Hereupon Hugh Earl of Casarea, his hand upon the bargain; which the and a Knight of the Templers, are sent unto Egyptians that stood by thought an impu-Elhadech to ratifie the covenants. Now dent request. Yet his greatness condefshall we see the greatness of the Caliph and cenced at length, after much deliberation, at the earnest request of the Soldan, to These Embassadours were conveighed by reach out his hand. When the Earl of cethe Soldan to Cairo, where arriving at the Saria faw that the Caliph gave his hand nei-Palace, they found it guarded by great ther willingly nor bare, he told him round-Troops of Souldiers. The first entrance ly thus much in effect : Sir, Truth seeks no was through dark Porches, that were kept holes to hide it felf; Princes that will hold by many armed bands of Ethiopians, which Covenant, must deal openly, nakedly, and with all diligence did reverence to the fincerely 5 Give us therefore your bare Soldan as he passed along. Through these states than the weather than the work of the state will make no bargain with your ly open Courts, of such beauty and riches, Glove. Much adoe there was about this: that they could not retain the gravity of for it seemed against the Majesty of such a Embassadours, but were inforced to ad- Prince to yield fo far. But when it would mire the things which detained their eyes. none otherwise be, with a smiling chear For there they faw goodly Marble Pillars, (though to the great grief of his Servants) gilded Beams, all wrought over with em- he vouchfafed to let the Earl take him by boffed Works, curious Pavements, Fish- the bare hand; and so rehearing the coponds of Marble with clear Waters, and venants word by word, as the Earl spake many forts of strange Birds, unknown in them, he ratified all; dismissing finally the those parts of the World, as comming Embassiadors with such rewards as testified

In this Caliph and his Sultan, we may the greater was their magnificence; for differn the Image of the ancient Pharaoh. the Caliph his Eunuches conveyed them and his Viceroy: we see a Prince of great into other Courts within these, as far ex- estate, sitting in his Palace, and not celling the former, as the former did fur- vexing himself with the great prepara-Pals ordinary houses. It were tedious per- tions made against him, which terrifie haps to rehearse how the further they en- his neighbour Countries: we see his Vicetred, the more high state they found, and roy, in the mean season, using all Royal cause of marvaile; suffice it, that the good power; making War and Peace; enter-Archbishop, who wrote these things, was taining and repelling Armies of strangers; never held a vain Author. Finally they yea, making the Land of Egypt tributary to a forrain Prince. What greater authority was given to Joseph, when Pharaoh faid unto him, Thou shalt be over mine house, and at thy word shall all my people be armed, of Acherres; whether he were Uchoreus that only in the Kings throne will I be above thee. Behold I have let thee over all the Land of ment; neither can I approve the conjecture curious. For who can hope to attain of mine Author, where he thinks that the E- to the perfect knowledge of the truth gyptians, ever fince Joseph's time, have felt the when as Diodorus varies from Herodotus, burden of that servitude which he brought Eusebius from both of them; and late Wri-Lands for Pharaoh. Herein I find his judge- out of these and others, find no one with ment good; that he affirms this manner of whom they can agree? In this case Annius the Egyptian Kings, in taking their ease, and would doe good service, if a man could ruling by a Viceroy, to be part of the anci-trust him. But it is enough to be beholding ty, whereby they might the better trust their found scattering in others. Officers with so ample commission. But of From the departure of Israel out of Egypt, this matter, I will not stand longer to dis- unto the reign of Thuoris (who is generally pute. It is enough to have shewed, that the taken to be the same that the Greeks call Progreat and almost absolute power of the Vice- teus) there is little or no disagreement about roys governing Egypt, is set down by Moses, the Egyptian Kings. Wherefore I set down the and that a lively example of the same is same which are found in Eusebius, and give to found in William of Tyre, who lived in the every one the same length of reign. fame age, was in few years after Chancellor, Acherres was the first of these, who succeeof the Kingdom of Jerusalem, and had full ded unto Chencres, that perished in the Red discourse with Hugh Earl of Casaria touch- Sea. This King seems to Reyneccius to be the ing all these matters. Wherefore it remains, same whom Diodorus calls Uchoreus, the that we be not carried away with a vain o- founder of Memphis. But whereas mention pinion, to believe that all they were Kings, is found in Diodorus of a great King named whom reports of the fabulous Egyptians have Ofymandyas, from whom Ochoreus is faid to honoured with that stile; but rest contented be the eighth; it will either hardly follow, with a Catalogue of fuch, as we find by cir-that Timaus (as Reineccius conjectures was should make inquiry.

CHAP. XXVI.

§. II.

was the eighth from Ofymandyas. of Ofv. mandyas and his Tomb.

I do not commend this form of Govern- IN this businesse I hold it vain to be too upon them, when he bought them and their ters that have fought to gather the truth ent customs practised by the Pharaohs For we to him when others do either say nothing, find, that even the Ptolemies (excepting Pto- or that which may justly be suspected. I lomans Lagi, and his fon Philadelphus, foun- will therefore hold my felf contented with der and establisher of that race) were given, the pleasure that he hath done me, in all of them wholly, to please their own appe-tites, leaving the charge of the Kingdom those antiquities removed so far out of to Women, Eunuches, and other Ministers fight: as for the Kings following the deparof their defires. The pleasures which that ture of Ifrael out of Egypt, it shall suffice Country afforded, were indeed sufficient to that Herodotus, Diodorus, and Eusebius have invite the Kings thereof unto a voluptuous not been filent, and that Reyneccius hath life, and the awful regard wherein the E- taken pains to range into some good order gyptians held their Princes, gave them fecuri- the names that are extant in these, or else

cumstance, likely to have reigned in that the great Ofymandyas; or else that this Acher-Countrey; after whom it follows that we res was Ochoreus: for the distance between them was more than eight generations. Mercator judgeth Ofymandyas to have been the husband of Ancheres, Orus the feconds daughter; thinking that Manethon (cited by Josephus) doth omit his name, and infert his wives into the Catalogue of Kings, because he was King in his wives right. As for Uchoreus, it troubles not Mercator to find him the eighth from this man; for he takes ogdons, not to fignisie in this place of Diodore (as that Greek word else doth) the eighth, but to be an the unprofitable use of this, and the like inex- conquered Egypt, and many other Countries. tricable doubts. All that Diodore hath found did build, not far from old Memphis, the of this Ofsmandyas, was wrought upon his great Citic of Cairo (corruptly to pronounmonument; the most thereof in figures, which | ced) naming it El Calira, that is, an enforcing, I thinke the Egyptians did fabuloutly ex- or an imperious Mittreffe, though he himself pound. For whereas there was portrayed a were a Dalmatian flave. great Army, with the feige of a Town, the captivity of the people, and the triumph of the Conqueror; all this the Egyptians faid to denote the conquest of Ballria made by that King : which how likely it was, let others of Cherres, Armeus, Ramefles, and Amenojudge. I hold this goodly peice of work, which Diodore fo particularly deferibes, to have been crefted for a common place of buriall to the ancient Kings and Queens of Egypt, and to their Viceroyes; whilft yet they were not fo ambitious, as every one to have his own particular monument, striving there- reigned Armeus five years, and after him Rainto exceed all others. This appears by the meffer threescore and eight. Of Armeus and many statues therein placed, by the Wars, Ramesses is that Historie understood by Eusethe judgement feate, the receiving of Tri- bins, which is common among the Greeks unbute, the offering facrifice to God, the ac- der the names of Danaus and Egyptus. For count of revenues, and plenty of all cattell it is faid that Danaus, being expelled out of and food: all which were there curioufly Egypt byhis brother, fled into Greece, where wrought, thewing the feverall Offices of a he obtained the Kingdome of Argos: that Governour. On the Tomb of Ofmandy as he had fifty Daughters, whom upon feeming of Kings; if any defire to know what I am, or brothers fiftie ions, but commanded every in the land of Canaan, and this empty monu- water; ment might King Orus, who out lived him, e- The reign of Danaus in Argos was indeed rect in honour of his high deferts, among the in this age; but that Armeus was Danaus, and royall sepulchres. To which purpose the Rameses, Egyptus, is more than Reincecius above the Great.

Egyptian name, belonging also to Ochoreus, well be that Memphis was built by some such John Leo. who might have had two names, as many of King as was Geboar, Lieutenant unto the hift Athe reft had. I will not vexe my braines in Caliph Eleams who having to his Mafters use frie. I. t.

c. III.

phis. Of Myris, and the Lake that bear's his name.

I Hen Archerres had reigned eight years, Cherres succeeded and held the kingdome fifteen years : then was this inscription. I am Osymandyas King reconciliation, he gave in marriage to his where I lye, let him exceed some of my works. one of them to kill her husband the first Let them that hope to exceed his works, la- night; that onely Hipermnestra; one of his bour to know what he was But fince by those Daughters, did fave her husband Lincens, words, Or where I live it should seem that he and suffered him to escape; finally, That lay not there interred, we may lawfully for this fact, all the bloudy fifters, when suspect that it was Joseph, whose body was they dyed, were enjoyned this foolish pupreserved among the Hebrews, to be buried nishment in Hell, to fill a leaking vessel with

The reign of Danaus in Argos was indeed plemy of Cattel and all manner of viands, believes : he rather takes Armens to have had good reference. The name of Ofyman- been Myris, or Meris, who canfed the dyas doth not hinder this conjecture; feeing great lake to be made which bears his Tofeph had one new name given him by Pha- name. For my own part, as I can earanh, for expounding the dream, and might, fily believe, that he which fled out of upon further occasions, have another to his Egypt into Greece, was a man of such increase of honour. As for that stile, King of qualitie as the Soldan Sanar, of whom we Kings, it was perhaps no more than Beglerberg, spake before; so do I not find how in so short as the Turkish Bassace are called that is, Great a reign, as five years, a work of that labour could be finished, which was required unto Now although it be forthat the reckoning the Lake of Myris, and the Monuments therefals out right, between the times of Joseph & in ; whereof his own Sepulchre and his Acherres (for Acherres was the eighth in or- wives being some part, it is manifest that he der, that reigned after the great Orus, whose was not buried in Argos. Wherefore of Viceroy Joseph was) yet will I hereby feek, Myris, and of all other Kings, whose age neither to fortifie mine own conjecture, as is uncertain, and of whose reigns we have touching Joseph, nor to infer any likelihood no affurance, I may truly fay, that their of Acherres his being Dehorens. For it might great vvorks are not enough to prove were those of Joseph, who bought all the peo- in the Countries through which he passed ple of Egypt as bondmen, and all their land had it now been performed; as any man for bread; of Gehoar, who founded Cairo; will perceive, if he look upon my Chronoloand of Sanar, who made the Country Tri- gical Table, and confider who lived with the length of their reigns whom we find to jectures to have had the same signification. have followed one another in order of fuc- wherein the old Kings of Hetruria were calceffion: but in rehearing the great acts led Lartes, (the Hetrurians being iffued our which were performed, I will not stand to of Lydia, the Lydians out of Egrpt) and to examine, whether they that did them were have fignified as much as Imperator, or Gene-Kings or no.

476

odore and Herodoius, three thousand fix hun- Ethiopians: for sure I am, that they troudred furlongs in compais, and fifty fadoms bled not the Country of Palæstina, that lay deep. It ferved to receive the waters of Nilus, next unto them on the one hand; nor is it when the overflow, being too great, was likely that they travelled over the defart harmful to the Country: and to supply the sands, on the other hand, to seek matter of defect, by letting out the waters of the lake, conquest, in the poor Countries of Africa. when the river did not rise high enough. In But these Generals (if the Larthes were such) opening the fluces of this lake, for the letting were not many. Five only had that title; in or out of waters, were spent fifty talents; and the last of these took it, perhaps, as hebut the lake it self defraied that cost; seeing reditary from the first; in such sort as the the tribute imposed upon fish taken therein Roman Emperours were proud, for a while, was every day one talent, which Myris gave to be called Antonini, till the most unsuitato his Wife to buy sweet Ointments and o- ble conditions of Heliogabalus, made his sucther Ornaments for her body. In the middest cessors forbear the name. of it was left an Iland, wherein were the Sepulchres of Myris and his Wife, and over sties (as appears by this particular) took name each of them a Pyramis, that was a furlong, from the Kings; that the Kings also did ador (according to Herodotus) fifty paces high; minister the government themselves, and having on the tops their statues, fitting in that therefore I am deceived in ascribing so Thrones. I find not the description of this much unto the Viceroys. But it is to be con-Lake in Maps, answerable to the report of sidered, that what is said of these Larther, Historians: yet it is very great. The years of depends only upon conjecture, and that the Armeus are by Manethon divided, by insert- authority of the Regents, or Viceroys, might ing one Armesis (whom Eusebius omits) that be great enough, though some few Kings should have reigned one year and odd took the conduct of Armies into their own difference worthy of examination.

Kingdom forty years. Some give him only Soveraignty to himself) had under him a nineteen years; and Mercator thinks him to Viceroy, stiled Eddaguadare, who had auhave been the King that was drowned in thority to place, or displace, any Magistrates, the Red Sea: whereof I have already spo- or Officers; and that this mans Family was ken in the first Book.

s. IV.

Larthes.

been either easily performed, or forgotten time; as many think, that the seventeenth butary; were performed by none of them. this Zethus. With this King began the Dy-It shall therefore be enough to set down nasty of the Larthes; which Reineccius conral. The Wars in which these Kings were The Lake of Myris, is, by the report of Di- Generals, I take to have been against the

Here it may be objected, that the Dynamoneths of the time : but I hold not this hands. For so we find in John Leo, that the John Leo, Soldan of Egypt (after such time as the Sol-8. After Ramesses, his son Amenophis held the dan Saladine, murdering the Caliph, got the almost as great as the Soldans own. Yet was there also the Amir Cabir, or Lord General of the Soldans forces, who had the charge of defending the Land, and might, as he thought good, spend of the Soldans Of the Kings that reigned in the Dynasty of the treasure. So might the office of the Viceroys continue, though the Kings themselves, taking the charge, or title of Generals upon CEthosis, or Zethus, reigned after his Father them, did somewhat abridge the greatness of Amenophis, fifty five years. To him are that second place. As for the names of the ascribed the famous acts of that antient se- Dynasties, it skills not whence they were fostris. But the state of the World was not drawn; whether from their Country, as those such at these times, that so great an expedi- of the Thebans and Diapolitans; or from tion as the old Sefostris made, could have some eminent men, or man, who ruled in that

Dynasty was called of the Shepheards, because Joseph governed in part thereof; or from the Kings themselves that reigned; as this was faid to be of the Larthes or Generals. The next, as Manetho (but Annius his Manetho) hath it, was without any Larthes or Generals, yet was it not without Kings, forafmuch as Vaphres, and Sefac, reigned therein, if many others did not. But let us now return to the business which we left.

CHAP. XXVI.

lour, was taken by these as hereditary.

Helen to her restitution.

other such matters, may seem to be under- sense is all one; which is this: Officers: for fuch only are like to have had their residence about Pharos, and the seacoast where Menelaus arrived.

Of Proteus, who detained Helen, it is said that he could foretell things to come, and that he could change himself into all shapes: whereby is fignified his crafty head, for which he is grown into a Proverb. The Poets feigned him a Sea-God, and keeper of Neptune's Seal-fishes, for belike he was some was faid before.

ther did reign at all.

§. V.

Of the Egyptian Kings, whose names are found scattering in Sundry Authors, their times being not recorded. The Kings of Egypt, according to Cedrenus. Of Vaphres and

Any other names of Egyptian Kings are Rameles was King after Zethus, or Setholis, V found scattered here and there; as threescore and fix years. He is mistaken for Tonephersobis, of whom Suidas delivers only that second sesoftris, of whom I have spoken the bare name and title; Senemures, or Sein the first book. I find nothing worth rehear- nepos, mentioned in Macrobius, who perhaps fal of this Rameses, or of Amenophis and An- was the same that by Suidas is called Senyes, nemenes, that followed him in order, the for- or Enenes, noted by occasion of a great Phymer of which reigned forty, the latter fix and fician that lived under him; Banchyris, retwenty years. Wherefore it may very well corded by the same suidas for his great jube, that the name which Zethus had from va- flice; and Thulis, of whom Suidas tells great matters; as that his Empire extended to the Thuoris, the last of the Larthes, reigned on- Ocean Sea; that he gave name to the Isle of ly seven years; yet is he thought to have Thule, which some take to be Iseland; and heen that Proteus, of whom Herodotus hath that he consulted with the Devil, or (which mention, faying, That he took Helena from is all one) with Seraphis, defiring to know, Paris, and after the fack of Troy, restored her who before him had been, or after him should to Menelaus. I need fay no more in refutati- be so mighty as himself. The answer or conon of this, than that the time of Thuoris his fession of the Devil was remarkable; which reign lasted not so long as from the Rape of I find Englished in the translation of Plessis his work Of the trueness of Christian Religion. This Proteus or Cetes (as he is named by The Greek Verses are somewhat otherwise, fome) together with Thon, and others menti- and much more imperfect in those Copies oned by Greek Writers in this business, or in that I have of Cedrenus and Suidas, but the

> First God, and next The Word, and then The Spirit, Which Three be One, and joyn in One all Whose force is endless. Get thee hence frail Wight. The man of Life unknown excelleth thee.

I should have thought that suidas had under-Officer to the Admiral, having charge borrowed all this of Cedrenus, had I not of the Fishing about the Isle of Pharos, as found somewhat more in Suidas than Cedrenus hath hereof; as the form of invocation Remphes the fon of Proteus is reckoned the which Thulis used, and that clause of his ginext King, by Diodore, as also by Herodotius, ving name to the Iland: though in this last who calls him Ramsinitus, and tells a long point I hold Suidas to be deceived; as also tale fit to please children, of his covetouiness, | Cedrenus is, or (at least) seems to me, in giving and how his treasure-house was robbed by to this King such profound antiquity of a cunning thief, that at last married his reign. Indeed the very name of that book, ci-Daughter. But of this a man may believe ted often by Cedrenus, which he calls Little what he lift. How long this King reigned I Genesis, is alone enough to breed suspicion of know not, nor think that either he or his fa- some imposture: but the Frierly stuffe that he alledgeth out of it, is such as would serve to discredit himself, were it not otherwise apparent that he was a man both devout, and of good judgment in matters that fell within his compass. I will here set down the list of old Egyptian Kings delivered by him, and the times of David and of Salomon. He came leave the confure to others. The first King of Egypt that he sets down, the Canaanites, and gave it to his daughter. is Mizraim the ion of Cham. After him he salomon's wife: though for her take perhaps finds many of a new race, deriving their pe- it was, that in time following either he, or degree thus: Nimrod the fon of Chus was (as I rather take it) sefac his fon did favour allo called Orion, and further took upon him the enemies of Salomon, who kept fo many the name of the Planet Saturn, had to Wife Wives and Concubines, befides this Egyptian Semiramis, who was of his own Linage, and Princefs.In the life of Reholoam all hath been by her three fons; Picus, furnamed Jupiter, written that I find of Sefac, excepting the Beius, and Ninus. Pieus chafing his Father out length of his reign, which must have been six of Affgria into Italy, reigned in his stead thir- and twenty years, if he were that Smendis ty years, and then gave up that Kingdom to with whom Eulebius begins the one and Juno his fifter and wite, and to Belus his fon: twentieth Dynafty. after which Belus, who reigned only two Now for a fruch as it would ferve to no years, Nims had the Kingdom, and married great purpose, that we knew the length of his own Mother Semiramis. But Piens went Sefac his reign, and of theirs that followed into Haly to visit his old Father Saturn; Sa- him, unless therewithall we knew the beginturn forthwith religned the Kingdom unto ning of sefac, upon which the reft have dehim. Pieus Inhiter reigned in Haly threefcore pendance; this course I take. From the fourth and two years, had threefcore and ten Wives year of Jehojakim King of Juda, in which or Concubines, and about as many children: Tharan Neco was flain, I reckon upwards the finally dyed, and lyes buried in the Isle of years of the same Nece, and of his Predecef-Crete. The Principal of Jupiter's fons were fors, unto the beginning of Sefac: by which Faunus, Perseus, and Apollo. Faunus was cal- accompt, the fust year of Sesac is found conled by the name of the Planet Mercury: he current with the twentieth of Salomon's reigned in Haly, after his Father, five and reign, and the twenty fixt of Sesac with the thirty years, and then (finding that all his fifth of Rehoboam, wherein Sefac spoiled the brethren conspired against him he went in-Temple, and dyed, enjoying the fruits of his to Egypt, with abundance of Treasure, where, Sacriledge no longer than Joas the Israelite, after the death of Mifraim, he got the King and Craffus the Roman did; who after him dom, and held it nine and thirty years. After spoiled the Temple of Jerusalem. Mercury Julean reigned in Egypt, four years To fill up the time between Sefac and Neand a half. Then sol, the ion of Vulcan, co, I have rather taken those Kings that I find reigned twenty years and a half. There fol- in the Greek Historians, than them which are lowed in order sofis, Ofiris, Orus and Thules, in Eufebius his Catalogue. For of those that of whom we spake before: the length of are delivered by Eusebius, we find no Name their several reigns is not set down. After nor Act recorded elsewhere, save only of Thules , was the great Sefoftris King twenty Bocchoris , who is remembred by Diodore, years. His fucceffor was Pharaoh, called Nare- Plutarch, and others, much being spoken of cho, that held the Crown fifty years, with him, that makes him appear to have been a Pharaoh, to a very long potterity.

CHAP. XXVI.

CHAP. XXVI

478

credit rest upon the Author.

into Palestina with an Army took Gezar from which there passed from him the surname of King Hercunto I may add, that the succession is often interrupted in Enfebius by Æthiopi-These reports of Cedrenus I hold it e- ans, which got the Kingdom often, and held nough to set down as I find them: let their it long: whereas contrariwise it appears by the Prophet Esay, that the Counsellors of Others yet we find, that are faid to have Pharaoh did vaunt of the long and flourishreigned in Egypt, without any certain note, ing continuance of that house, infomuch that when, or how long : about whom I will not they faid of Pharaoh, I am the son of the wife, Egg 14 labour, as scaring more to be reprehended I am the son of the ancient King. But that of vain curiofity, in the fearch made after which overthrows the reckoning of Eulebithese already rehearsed, than of negligence, us, is the good agreement of it with his miin omitting such as might have been added. | staken times of the Kings of Juda. For though Vaphres, the father in law to Salomon, and it please him well to see how the reigns of sefac, the afflicter of Rekoboam, lead us again Jolias and Neco meet by his computation, yet way, i. 9. into fair way, but not far. The name of Va- this indeed mars all, the reign of Jossa being phres is not found in the Scriptures; but we mifplaced. This errour grows from his omitare beholding to Clemens Alexandrinus and ting to compare the reigns of the Kings of 11. 2.18 Eufebins for it. These give us not the length Juda with theirs of Israel: by which occasion of his reign; but we know that he lived in Joran King of If acl is made to reign three by salmanassar before Hezechia was King: be, that they, who had not power to avoid and in a word, all, or most of the Kingshave the like slavery laid upon them by the yountheir beginnings placed in some other year ger brother or son, should have power or leiof their collaterals than the Scriptures have fure to take such revenge upon his Predecefdetermined.

Rehoboam and Ezechia.

ans, I place Chemnis, or (according to Di- Monument with the superfluity of her Faodore) Chembis, first in the rank of those that thers provisions. were Kings after sefac. He reigned fifty years, Mycerinas the fon of cephrenes reigned them yet standing.

Bund. Lin Succeeded. Herodotus hath Cheops (who might who knows whether Chemnis did not learn years after Abazia of Juda; Samaria istaken otherwise it is hard to conceive how it might for. To the like malice may be ascribed the tale devised against Cheops his Daughter; That her Father wanting money, did proftitute her, and that she getting of every of Chemnis, Cheops, Cephrenes, and other man that accompanied her, one stone, did Kings recited by Herodotus and Diodorus build with them a fourth Pyramis, that stood Siculus, which reigned between the times of in the midft of the other three. Belike the was an infolent Lady, and made them follow their drudgery for her fake, longer a while Ollowing therefore the Greek Histori- than they thought to have done, in raising a and built the greatest of the three Pyra- after his Father six years. He would have mides, which was accounted one of this built as his fore-goers did, but prevented by Worlds Wonders. The Pyramis hath his death, finished not what he had begun. The name from the shape, in that it resembleth people thought him a good King, for that he a flame of fire, growing from the bottom up- did fet open the Temples, which Cheops and wards narrower and narrower to the top. Cephrenes had kept shut. But an Oracle threat-This of chemnis being four-square, had a ned him with a short life of six years only, Base of seven acres every way, and was a- because of this his devotion; For (faid the bout fix acres high. It was of a very hard and Oracle) Egypt should have been afflitted an durable stone, which had lasted, when Dio-dore saw it, about a thousand years, without knew, and performed for their parts; but thou complaining of any injury that it had fuffer- haft released it, therefore shalt thou live but his ed by weather in so long space. From the years. It is very strange, that the gods should reign of Chemmis, unto the age of Augustus be offended with a King for his piety; or Cefar, wherein Diodore lived, are indeed a that they should decree to make a Country thousand years; which doth give the better impious, when the people were desirous to likelihood unto this time wherein Chemnis scree them; or that they having so decreed, is placed. As for this and other Pyramides, it should lye in the power of a King to alter late Writers do testifie, that they have seen destiny, and make the ordinance of the gods. to fail in taking full effect. But these were After Chemnis, Diodore placeth Cephrenes Egyptian gods. The true god was doubtless his Brother; but doubtfully, and enclining more offended with the inftitution of fuch rather to the opinion, that his ion Chabreus Idolatry, than with the interruption. And be Chabreas) and Cephrenes after him. These somewhat at Jerusalem in the last year of his are faid to have been brethren; but the Father sefac, that made him perceive, and length of their reigns may argue the latter deliver to those that followed him, the vato have been fon to the former: for Cheops nity of his Egyptian superstition? Most sure reigned fifty years; Cephrenes fifty fix. Thefe it is, that his reign, and the reigns of Cheops were, as Chemmis had been, builders of Py- and Cephrenes were more long and more ramides, whereby they purchased great ha- happy than that of Mycerinas, who, to detred of their people, who already had over- lude the Oracle, revelled away both dayes laboured themselves in erecting the first, and nights, as if by keeping candles lighted, These Pyramides were ordained to be he had changed his nights into dayes, and so Tombs for those that raised them; but the doubled the time appointed: a service more malice of the Egyptians is said to have cast pleasing to the Devil, than the restitution of out their bodies, and to have called their Idolatry durst then seem, when it could Monuments by the name of an Heardsman speed no better. I find in Reineceius fifty that kept his Beafts thereabouts. It may be, years affigned to this King; which I verily that the robbing them of their honour, and believe to have been some errour of the entituling a poor fellow to their works, was print, though I find it not corrected among held to be the casting out of their bodies 5 other such overlights; For I know no Author

threatned Mycerinus with a short life, as is the years of Rehoboam. before shewed.

by Diodore, who speaks no more of him than most, that he reigned fifty years. He was a this, that he was a strong man of body, and merciful Prince, not punishing all capital excelling his predecessions in wit. He is spoken offences with death, but imposing bondage of by divers Authors, as one that loved ju- and bodily labour upon malefactors; by flice; and may be taken for that Banchyris whose toil he both got much wealth into his whom Surdas commends in that kind: Euse- own hands, letting out their service to hire. bius reckons 44. years of his reign.

follows in the Catalogue of Diodore; but trey. Zonoras calls this King Sua; the Scricertain ages after him. Herodotus quite omit- ptures call him So. Hofea, the last Kino of ting Bocchorus, hath Affichis; who made a Ifrael, made a league with him against Salmasharplaw (asit was then held) against bad nassar, little to his good: for the Egyptian debtors, that their dead bodies should be in was more rich than warlike, and therefore his the creditors disposition, till the debt were friendship could not preserve the Israelite paid. This Asychis made a Pyramis of brick, from destruction. more costly and fair, in his own judgment, It feems, that the encroaching power of than any of those that the former Kings the Affyrian grew terrible to Egypt about had raised. Besides this Asyckis, Herodetus these times; the victories of Tiglath Pholas placeth one Anysis, a blind man, before the sar and Salmanassar having eaten so far into Æthiopian. The reigns of these two are per- Syria, in the reign of this one King So or Sahaps those many ages which the Egyptians, bacus. Yea, perhaps it was in his dayes (for to magnifie their antiquities, accounted be- his reign began in the fourth of Menahem) tween Bocchorus and him that followed that Phul himself did make the first entrance them. But all this could make but fix years; into Palastina. This caused so to animate the and so long doth Fundins, so long doth Rei- half-subdued people against their Conqueneccius hold, that these two Kings between rors; but the help which he and his Succesthem both did govern. If any man would for gave them was so faint, that Sennacherib's lengthen this time, holding it unprobable Embassador compared the Egyptian succour fo foon spent; he may do it by taking some had Hosea found it, and such Ezechia might years from sethon or Psammiticus, and ad- have found it had he not been supported by ding them to either of these. To add unto the strong staffe of him that ruleth all Natithese without subtracting from some other, ons with a rod of iron. It appeareth by the would breed a manifest inconvenience : for- words of Rabsake, that the opinion was great asmuch as part of sesac his reign, must have in Juda, of the Egyptian forces, for Charioti been in the fifth of Rehoboam, as also the last and Horse-men; but this power, whatsoever of Pharao Neco was the fourth of Jehojakim, it was, grew needful, within a little while, and the first of Nebuchadnezzar. For mine for the defence of Egypt it felf, which so left own part, I like it better to allow fix years unto sethon his Successor, having now fulfilonly to these two Kings, than to lose the led the fifty years of his reign. Herodotus witness of Herodotus, who, concurring here- and Diodorus have both one tale, from the rein with the Scriptures, doth speak of Senna- lation of Egyptian Priests, concerning the decherib's War, at which time Sethon was King parture of this King; faying, that he left the of Egypt. I will not therefore add years Country, and willingly retired into Ethiounto these men three years, we shall thrust his dreams, by the god which was worship-that gives him so many years, and Reineccius further or more (if the like abridgment shall himself takes notice of the Oracle, that be required of Pfammiticus his reign) into

Of Sabacus the Athiopian, who took the Bocchorus is placed next unto Mycerinus, Kingdom from Anglis, it is agreed by the and performed many works of more use than After Bocchorus, one Sabacus an Ethiopian pomp, to the fingular benefit of the Coun-

that the reigns of two Kings should have been to a broken staffe of Reed. Such indeed to a broken staffe of Reed. unto these obscure names; for by adding pia, because it was often signified unto him in the beginning of Sethon out of place, and ped at Thebes, that his reign should be neimake it later than the death of Sennacherib. ther long nor prosperous, unless he slew all In regard of this agreement of Herodotus the Priests in Egypt; which rather than to with the Scriptures, I am the more willing to do, he refigned his Kingdom. Surely, these hold with him in his Egyptian Kings. Other- Egyptian gods were of a strange quality, that wife it were a matter of no great envy to fo ill rewarded their fervants, and invited leave both Affichis and Anylis out of the Kings to do them wrong. Well might the roll, which were easily done by placing sefac Egyptians (as they likewise did) worthin lower,, and extending his life yet fix years Dogs as gods, when their chief gods had the property the better for beating them. Yet to vvhat his especial confidence in God, held that cannot tell; and therefore I think that it likely to turn to the benefit of his Country; might be some device of the fearful old man, the multitude of Judan looking into the fair who feeing his Realm in danger of an inva- hopes which this Egyptian league promifed, from, fought an honest excuse for his depar- were pussed up with vain conceits, thinking ture out of it, and withdrawing himself into that all was safe, and that now they should named for his education, and because issuing strength is to sit still. from thence, he got the Kingdom from Any- According to the Prophets words it came (is, who was his opposite. The quiet and to pass. For in the treaty of Confederacy mild form of his government, his holding that was held at Zoan, all manner of contentwe leave him, and speak of Sethon his next yet is wifest. Succeffor who is omitted by Diodore, but rehis having been King.

Of Sethon who reigned with Ezechia, and sided with him against Sennacherib.

fift of sennacherib. It was a troublesome age, and full of danger; the two great Kingdoms of Afgria and Egypt, being then inga-ple 5 who knowing how much it concerned where he was flain. Pharao, to protect them against his own great Enemy, preferred the friendship of so rib, Herodotus takes this notice of it: That it near and mighty a Neighbour, before the fer- was purposed against Egypt, where the men of vice of a terrible, yet far removed King. But War, being offended with sethon their King, property of Dogs, vvhich love their Masters | and his Subjects: For the good King fixing end the Priefts should have feigned this tale, course of policy, which he thought most Æthiopia, vvhere he had been bred in his not need to fear any more of those injuries Elbiopia, vonere ne nato occur brea in insport need to rear any more of those injuries youth. What if I should say, that the Æthiopia which they had suffered by the Assertion into which he event, vous none other than and so became forgetful of God, taking comparabia, whereof Tirbaka the King (perhaps selbut not of him. The Prophet Esay complains at the instigation of this man) raised an Army ed much of this presumption; giving the against sennacherib, vvhen he meant to in- people of Juda to understand, That the Evade Egypt within two or three years after? gyptians were men, and not God, and their E/49 31.2. but I will not trouble my felf with much Horses sless, and not spirit; that God himself 3. and 8. enquiry. This I hold, that So, or Sabacus vvas should defend Ifrael upon repentance, and not indeed an Ethiopian (for in his time li- that Asiur should fall by the sword, but not of Esay 30.7. yed the Prophet Esay, who mentioneth the man. As for the Egyptians (faid the Prophet) antiquity of Pharaohs house) but only so sur- they are vanity, and they shall help in vain, their

the Kingdom fo long without an Army, and ment and affurance was given to the Jews by many other circumstances argue no less. But Sethon, or his Agents, who filled them with whether finally he betook a private life, or such reports, of Horses and Chariots, that whether he fore-went his life and Kingdom they did not look (as Esay faith) unto the holy Esay 31.7.2 at once, being now very old, it is time that | One of Ifrael, nor feek unto the Lord. But he

After a while came Sennacherib with his membred by Herodotus, by a fure token of Army, and wakened them out of these dreams; for sethon their good Neighbour as near as he was, did feem far off, being unready, when his help was most needful. It may feem that he purposed rather to make Palastina, than Egypt, the stage whereon this great Warshould be acted, and was not without hope, that the Affgrians and Jews, weakning He first year of sethon's reign falls into one another, should yeild unto him a fair adthe twelfth of Ezechia, which was the vantage over both. Yet he fought with mony; for he fent Horses and Camels laden with treasure, to hirethe Arabians, whom Esay calleth a people that cannot profit. These Esay 30.63 ged in a War, the issue whereof was to de- Arabians did not profit indeed; for (besides termine whether of them should rule or that it seems by the same place of Esay; that ferve. The Affrian had the better men of the rich treasures miscarried, and fell into the War; the Egyptian better provision of nel enemies hands before any help appeared cessaries: the Assyrian more Subjects; the from Tirhaca) all the strong Cities of Juda Egoptian more Friends: and among the new were taken by Sennackerib, except Libna, Laconquered half Subjects of Affur, many that chis, and Jerusalem it self, which were in sore were Egyptian in heart, though Afgrian in distress, till the sword of God and not of Man, defeated the Assyrian, who did go, for Of this last fort were Ezechia and his peo fear, to his Tower, that is, he fled to Nineve, Elay 31. 9.

Concerning this expedition of Sennacheherein was great difference between Ezechia who had taken away their allowance, re-Ppp

483

their Country; that sethon being Vulcan's erected) might give occasion to such a fa-Priest bemoaned himself to his god, who by ble; the Divel helping to change the truth dream promifed to fend him helpers; that into a lie, that God might be robbed of his hereupon Sethon, with fuch as would follow honour. Yet that vve may not belie the him, (which were craftf-men, shop-keepers, Devil, I hold it very likely, that Sethon finand the like)marched towards Pelufium; and ding himself in danger, did call upon his that a great multitude of field-mice entring gods, that is, upon Vulcan, Serapis, or any to the Camp of Senacherib by night, did so whom he had most devotion. But so had gnaw the bows, quivers, and straps of his other of his predecessors done in the like mens armour, that they were fain the next need: yet which of them had obtained fucday to fly away in all haste, finding them- cour by the like miracle? Surely the Jews felves disarmed. In memory hereof (faith He- (even such of them as were most given to Irodotus) the statue of this King is set up in the dolatry) would have been ashamed of the Temple of Vulcan, holding a Mouse in his confidence which they reposed in the Charihand, with this inscription, Les kim that holds ots of Egypt, because they were many, and in the 1934. me ferve God. Such was the relation of the Horsemen, because they were very strong; had it Egyptian Priests, wherein how far they swar- been told them, that sethon, instead of sendved from the truth, being defirous to magni- ing those Hors-men and Chariots, was befie their own King, it may eafily be percei-leeching Vulcan to fend him and them good ved. It feems that this Image of sethon was luck; or elfe (for these also were Egyptian fallen down, and the tale forgotten in Diodo- gods)addreffing their prayers to some Onyrus his time, or else perhaps, the Priests did on or Cat. Howsoever it was, doubtless the forbear to tell it him (which caused him to Prophecy of Esay took effect, which said, They omit it) for that the nation of the Jews was shall be all ashamed of the people that cannot then well known to the world, whereof eve- profit them, nor help, nor do them good, but shall ty child could have told how much falshood be a shame & also a reproach. Such is commonhad been mingled with the truth.

Scriptures, thus far forth; That Senacherib made, it will no longer feem to ftand in need King of the Affrians and Arabians, (so He- of God. rodotus calleth him: the Syrians, or peradventure fome borderersupon Syria, being been fet down by Eusebius under the name of meant by the name of Arabians) lived in this Tarachus the Æthiopian; and therefore the age, made War upon Egypt, and was miracu- twenty years which are given to Tarachus, loufly driven home. As for that exploit of they allow to the reign of sethon. These have the Mice, and the great pleasure that Vulcan well observed that Tarachus the Æthiopian did unto his Prieft, happy it was (if Sethon is mentioned in the Scriptures, not as a King were a Priest) that he took his god now in of Egypt, but as a friend to that Country, or fo good a mood : For within three or four at least an enemy to Sennacherib, in the war years before this, all the Priests in Egypt last spoken of; the Ethiopians (as they are should have been slain, if the merciful King englished) over which he reigned, being inhad not spared their lives, as it were half a deed Chushites or Arabians. Hereuponthey gainst the gods will. Therefore this last good suppose aright, that Eusebius hath mistaken turn was not enough to serve as an example, one King for another. But whereas they that might stir up the Egyptians to piety, see- think that this Tarachus or Tirhaka is placed ing that their devotion, which had lasted so in the room of sethon, and therefore give to long before, did bring all the Priests into sethon the twenty years of Tarachus, I hold danger of fuch a bad reward. Rather I think, them to have erred on the other hand. For that this Image did represent Senacherth this Ethiopian (as he is called) began his himself, and that the Mouse in his hand, signi- reign over Egypt, by Eusebius his accompt, affied Hieroglyphically (as was the Egyptian ter the death of Sennacherib and of Ezechia, manner of expressing things) the shameful in the first year of Manasses King of Juda. issue of his terrible expedition, or the de- Therefore he or his years have no reference struction of his Army, by means which came to Sethon. no man knew from whence. For the venge- Herodotus forgets to tell how long Sethon ance of God, shewed upon this ungodly reigned; Functius peremptorily citing no King, was indeed a very good motive to Author, nor alledging reason for it, sets him piety. But the Embleme, together with the down thirty three years; many omit him Temple of Vulcan (being perhaps the chief quite; and they that name him are not care-

fused to bear arms in defence of him and Temple in that Town vvhere this Image was ly the iffue of humane vviidom, when rest-We find this hiftory agreeable to the ing fecure upon provision that it felf hath my felf at the first, for measuring the reigns fore I conform my own reckoning to his. of these Egyptian Kings. The years which though I could be content to have it one passed from the fifth of Rehoboam, unto the year less. The reason of this computation I fourth of Jehojakim, I so divide among the shall render more at large, when I arrive at Egyptians, that giving to every one the proportion allowed unto him by the Author in much dependance, and whereinto the course whom he is found, the rest is to be conferred of this History will shortly bring me, the Eupon him whose length of reign is uncertain; gyptian affairs growing now to be interlaced that is, upon this sethon. By this accompt I with the matters of Juda, to which it is meet find the thirty three years that are fet down that I return.

CHAP, XXVI

ful to examine his continuance. In this case, I by Functius, to agree very nearly, if not prefollow that rule which I propounded unto cifely, with the time of sethon's reign; there-

CHAP. XXVII.

Of Manasses, and bis Contemporaries.

The wickedness of Manasses. His imprisonment, repentance, and death.

the Moon, and the Stars, with all the Hoast ved the Assyrians heart to deliver him: of heaven, as gods, and worshipped them: It is also likely that Merodach, because he the fire of Sacrifice to the Devils.

phet Esay (who was also of the Kings race, the Assyrians: and therein sed with bread of we say, and as the Jews affirm, the Father-in-law of bran and water, which men may believe as strength the King) he caused the Prophet near unto it shall please their fancies. illide Par, the Fountain of Silve, to be fawn in funder With a wodden Saw, in the eightieth year of his life: a cruelty more barbarous and monstrous than hath been heard of. The Scrip- of troubles in Egypt following the death of tures indeed are filent hereof, yet the same is confirmed by Epiphanius, Isidore, Eusebius, and others, too many to rehearse, and too Hat the wickedness of King Manages good to be suspected. Therefore the Lord

Anase the Son of Ezechias, brought upon them the Captains of the Hoast of forgetting the piety of his Fa- the Kings of Ashur, which took Manasse, and ther, and the prosperity which put him in fetters, and bound him in chains, 33, 11. followed him, fet up, repair- and carried him to Babel: Where, after he ed, adorned and furnished had lyen twenty years as a captive, and disall the Altars, Temples and high Places, in poiled of all honour and hope; yet to his which the Devil was by the Heathen wor- hearty repentance and continual prayer, the shipped Besides he himself esteemed the Sun, God of infinite mercy had respect, and mo-and of all his acts the most abominable was, loved his father Ezechias, was the easilier that he burnt his fons for a Sacrifice to the perswaded to restore Manasse to his liberty Devil Moloch or Melchor, in the Valley of and estate. After which, and when he was Hinnon, or Benhinnon: wherein was kindled again established, remembring the miseries which followed his wickedness, and Gods He also gave himself to all kind of Witch- great mercies toward him, he changed form, craft and Sorcery, accompanied and main-detefted his former foolish and devillish Idotained those that had familiar Spirits, and all latry, and cast down the Idols of his own eforts of Enchanters: befides he flied fo much recting, prepared the Altar of God, and fainnocent bloud, as Jerusalem was replenished crificed thereon. He repaired a great part of therewith, from corner to corner. For all Jerusalem: and dyed after the long reign of his vices and abominations, when he was re- lifty five years. Glycas and suidas report, prehended by that aged and reverent Pro- that Manasse was held in a cage of iron by

Sethon. The reign of Pfammiticus...

was the cause of the evil which fell up-Ppp2 must needs believe: for it is affirmed in the dalus took the pattern of that which he made Scriptures. Yet was the state of things in for Mines in Crete. Who this Marus, or those parts of the World such, at that time, Menides was, I cannot tell. Resneccine takes as would have invited any Prince (and did him to have bin Annemenes, which reigned perhaps invite Merodach, who fulfilled Gods immediately before Thuoris. But this agrees pleasure, upon respect born to his own ends, not with Diodore, for Dedalus & Minos were desirous to enlarge his Empire) to make at- both dead long before Annemenes was King. tempt upon Juda. For the kingdom of E- Belike Reyneccius, desiring to accommodate gypt, which was become the pillar whereon the fabulous relations of Manethon, Charemon the state of Juda leaned, about these times and others, that are found in Jesephus, touwas miserably distracted with civill dissenti- ching Amenophis and his children to the story on, and after two years ill amended by a of Amasis and Attisanes the Athiopian mendivision of the government between twelve tioned by Diodore; held it confequent, after Princes. After some good agreement be- he had conjectured Manethon's Amonophia Milan. tween these, eleven of them fell out with to be Diodorus his Amasis; that Sethon should in the twelfth of their collegues, and were all be Adifanes, and that Annemenes should finally subdued by him, who made himself be Marus. If in this case I might intrude a absolute King of all. This Inter-regnum, or conjecture, the times which we now handle meer Anarchie that was in Egypt, with the are shofe about which Reyneccius hath erred division of the Kingdome following it, is in making search Amasis was Anysis, Alliplaced by Diodore who omitteth Sethon, Janes was Sabacus; and Marus was one ofthese between the reign of Sabacus and Pfammi- twelve Princes to whom Heredotus gives ticus: but Herodotus doth fet the Ariffocratie, the honour of building this famous Labyor twelve Governours immediatly before rinth. For Adifanes the Ethiopian deposed Pfammiticus, who was one of them, and af- Amasis; Sabacus the Ethiopian depoled A-

The second Book of the first Part have bin the uncertainty of title to that bacus; Marus the next King after Adjanes Kingdom (for that the crown of Egypt passed built this Labyrinth; and the next (saving by fuccession of bloud, I have often thewed) Sethen, whom Diedere omits, as having not which ended for a while, by the partition of heard of him) that ruled after Sabacus, all among twelve, though things were not performed the fame work, according to Hefettled untill one had obtained the Sove- redotus, who was more likely to hear the

rainty. years in good seeming agreement, which to difference of times wherein Diodore believed preserve, they made strait covenant and alli- the Priests, might be a part of the Egyptian vaances one with another, being jealous of their nity, which was familiar with them in multiestate, because an Oracle had foretold, that plying their Kings, and boasting of their antione of them should depose all the rest, no- quities. Here I might add, that the twelve ting him by this token, that he should make great Halls, Parlours, and other circumstances a drink-offering in Vulcan's Temple, out of a remembred by Herodotus, in speaking of this Copper goblet. Whilest this unity lasted, building, do help to prove that it was the they joyned together in raising a Monument | work of these twelve Princes, But I hasten to of their Dominion; which was a Labyrinth, their end. built near unto the Lake of Meris; a work fo admirable, that (as Herodotus, vvho be- they were to make their drink-offerings, holding it, affirms) no vvords could give it the Priest, forgetting himself, brought forth commendation answerable to the statelinesse no more than eleven Cups, Hereupon, Pfame of the vvork it felf, I vvill not here set down miticus, who standing last, had not a Cup, that unperfect description vvhich Herodotus took off his brazen Helmet; and therewith makes of it, but think enough to say that he supplyed the want, This caused all the rest prefers it far before the Pyramides, one of to remember the Oracle, and to suspect him before Protess, that is before the Warr of the event is held by Diodore as a fable, which on his Kingdome and person, any Christian Troy, and from this Labyrinth (saith he) Denylis; Actisanes governed well, and was mild The occasion of this diffention feems to in punishing offenders; so likewise was 84truth, as living nearer to the Age wherein it These twelve Rulers governed fifteen was performed. The variety of names, and

At a solemn feast in Vulcan's Temple, when which (as he faith) excelled the Temple as a Traytor, yet, when they found that it was of Diana at Ephesus, or any of the fairest done by him upon set purpose or ill intent, vvorks in Greece. Diodorns reports this Laby- they forbear to kill-him, but being jealous of rinth to have bin the work of Marus or Me- their estate, they banished him into the marish nider, a King which lived five generations Countries by the Sea fide. This Oracle, and nions, and made himself sole King.

Governours, must be thought to have lived Children. unto extream age, if he ruled partly with government.

CHAP. XXVII.

with the truth) we must confound the last sion of this consusion; for that there they beyear of one reign with the first of another. gan to babble and talk one knew not what. Such a supposition were not insolent. For no man can suppose, that all the Kings, or any of Ffammiticus. The most regardable of his great part of them, which are set down in acts was the siege of Azotus in Palestina, about Pfammiticus; who furely did not fall out made it hold out so well. with his Companions, fight with them, and make himfelf Lord alone all in one day. Concerning this King, it is recorded, that he was the first in Egypt who entertained What reference these Egyptian matters might any strait amity with the Greeks; that he retained in pay his Mercenaries of Caria, Ionia, and Arabia, to whom he gave large rewards and possessions; and that he greatly offended his Egyptian Souldiers, by bestowing them in the left wing of his Army, whilest

I believe to have bin none other: In the rest, his Mercenaries held the right wing (which Herodotus and Diodore agree, faying that was the more honourable place) in an expe-Planmiticus hired Souldiers out of Caria and dition that he made in Syria. Upon this dif-number of two hundred thousand, for sook The years of his reign, according to Hero-their natural Country of Egypt, and went dotus, were fifty four; according to Euje- into Athiopia, to dwell there : neither could bins forty four; Mercator, to reconcile these they be revoked by kind Messages, nor two, gives forty four years to his single reign, by the King himself, who over-took them and ten to his ruling joyntly with the Princes on the way; but when he told them of before spoken of. Indeed, he that was admit- their Countrey, their Wives and Chilted, being a man grown (for he cannot in dren, they answered, that their weapons reason be supposed to have been then a should get them a Countrey, and that nature young fellow) into the number of the twelve had enabled them to get other Wives and

It is also reported of him, That he caused others, partly alone, threescore and nine two Infants to be brought up in such fort; years. I therefore yield rather to Enfebins; but as they might not hear any word fooken; by will not adventure to cut five years from the which means, he hoped to find out what Arifforraty: though peradventure Pfammi- Nation or Language was most ancient; forafticus was not at first one of the twelve, but much as it seemed likely, that nature would succeeded (either by election, or as next of teach the children to speak that Language blood) into the place of some Prince that which men spake at the first. The iffue heredyed, and was ten years companion in that of was, that the children cryed, Beccus, Beccus, which word being found to fignifie Bread Another scruple there is, though not great, in the Phrygian tongue, served greatly to which troubles this reekoning. The years magnify the Phrygian antiquity, Goropius, Beof the Egyptians, as we find them fet down, canus makes no small matter of this, for the are more by one, than ferve to fill up the honour of his Low-Dutch; in which the word time between the fift of Rehoboam and the Becker fignifies (as Baker in English) a maker fourth of Jebojakim. This may not be: Where- of bread. He that will turn over any part fore either we must abate one year from se- of Goropius his works, may find enough of thou's reign, that was of uncertain length, this kind, to perswade a willing man, that Aor else (which I had rather do, because dam and all the Patriarks used none other Funding may have followed better authority tongue than the Low-Dutch, before the confuthan I know, or than himself alledgeth, in sion of languages at Babel, the name it self of giving to Sethon a time so nearly agreeing Babel being also Dutch, and given by occa-

Chronologicall tables, reigned precifely so which he spent nine and twenty years. Never many years as are ascribed unto them, have we heard (saith Herodotus) that any Ciwithout any fractions: it is enough to think ty endured fo long a fiege as this; yet Plamthat the surplusage of one mans times supply- miticus carryed it at the last. This Town of ed the defect of anothers. Wherefore I con- Azotus had been won by Tartan a Captain of found the last year of those fifteen, wherein sennacherib, and was now, as it seemeth, rethe twelve Princes ruled, with the first of lieved, but in vain, by the Babylonian, which have to the imprisonment and enlargement of Manaffes. In what part of his reign Manuffes was taken prisoner.

§. III.

Were it certainly known, in what year of his reign Manasses was taken pri-

C H A P. XXVII.

486

ned liberty, I think we should find these dissent from him) than to have used his ac-Egyptian troubles to have been no small oc- customed diligence in examining the matter. cation both of his captivity and enlarge-ment: God fo difpoing of humane actions, ments he brings to maintain the opinion of that even they, who intended onely their Bellarmine: the one, that Ammon the fon of own business, fulfilled onely his high plea- Manasses, is said by Josephus to have solfure. For either the civil Wars of Egypt lowed the works of his fathers youth; the that followed upon the death of sethon, or other, that had Manafies grown old in his the renting of the Kingdom, as it were, into fins, it is like that he should have continued. twelve pieces, or the War between Pfalm- as he did, in his amendment unto the end miticus and his Collegues, or the expedi- of his life. Touching the former of these tion of Psalmmiticus into Syria, and the arguments, I see no reason why the sins of fiege of Azotus, might minister unto the Ba- Manasses might not be distinguished from bylonian, either such cause of hope to enlarge his repentance in his old age, by calling them his Dominion in the South parts, or fuch works of his youth, which appeared when he necessity of fending an Army into those was twelve years old; though it were granparts, to defend his own, as would greatly ted that he continued in them (according tempt him to make fure work with the King to that of Rabbi Kimki) untill he was but fifof Juda. The same occasion sufficed also to teen years from death. Touching the seconds procure the delivery of Manasses, after he howsoever it be a fearfull thing, to cast was taken. For he was taken (as Josephus hath off unto the last those good motions unto it) by fubtilty, not by open force, neither repentance, which we know not whether did they that apprehended him, win his ever God will offer unto us again; yet were Countrey, but onely wast it. So that the Jews, it a terrible hearing, That the sins which having learned wit by the ill success of their are not for saken before the age of two and folly, in redeeming Amazia, were like to be fifty years, shall be punished with finall immore circumspect, in making their bargain penitencie. But against these two collections upon such another accident: and the Babylo- of Torniellus, I will lay two places of Scripnian (to whom the Egyptian matters presented ture, whence it may be inferred, as not unmore weighty argument of hope and fear, likely, That Manasses continued longer in his than the little Kingdom of Juda could af- wickednesse than Bellarmine hath intimated, ford) had no reason to spend his forces in pur- if not as long as Rabbi Kimki hath affirmed. fuing a small conquest, but as full of difficulty In the second book of Kings, the evill which as a greater, whereby he should compell his Manasses did, is remembred at large, and mightiest enemies to come to some good a- his repentance utterly omitted; so that his greement; when by quiting his present ad- amendment may seem to have taken up no vantage over the Jews, he might make his great part of his life? the storie of him being way the fairer into Egypt.

lasted, the Scriptures are filent, and Josephus the Chronicles of the Kings of Juda? the other gives no information. Yet I find cited by Tor- place is in the four and twentieth Chapter niellus three opinions: the one of Bellar- of the same Book, where, in rehearing the mine, who thinks that Manasses was taken in calamities with which that Nation was punthe fifteenth year of his reign; the other lished in the time of Jehojakim, the great of the Author of the greater Hebrew Chrono- Grand-child of this Manaffes, it is faid; Surety seventh year; the third of Rabbi Kimki upon Juda, that he might put them out of his upon Ezechiel, who faith, that he was for- fight, for the fins of Manasses, according to all ty years an Idolater, and lived fifteen that he did, and for the innocent blond that he years after his repentance. The first of shed (for he filled Jerusalem with innocent rejects the fecond, as more unprobable, Who so considers well these places, may favour the Cardinal as far as he may, (for he was twenty seven years old, he repented, foner, and how long it was before he obtai- where need requires, he doth freely thus concluded in the one and twentieth Now concerning the year of Manasses his Chapter: Concerning the rest of the Acts of reign, wherein he was taken prisoner; or Manasses, and all that he did, and his sin that a King till concerning his captivity it felf, how long it he sinned, are they not written in the book of in. logy, who affirms, that it was in his twen- ly by the commandement of the Lord came this a Kingshi their conjectures is upheld by Torniellus, who blond) therefore the Lord would not pardon it. and condemns the third as most false. Yet find small cause to pronounce it most false, the reasons alledged by Torniellus in de- That the repentance and amendment of Mafence of the first, and refutation of the o- nasses was no earlier than fifteen years before pinion, are fuch, as may rather prove him to his death; or most probable, That when and becomming a new man, lived in the fear of God forty years after. I will no longer dispute about this matter, seeing that the Of the first and second Messenian Wars. truth cannot be discovered. It sufficeth to which were in the reigns of Ezechia and fay, that two years of civill diffentions in Egypt fourteen or fifteen years following, wherein that Kingdome was weakened by partition of the Soveraigntie: the war of performed abroad in the world, about Planmiticus against his Affociates: and four these times of Manasses, the most remarkable and twenty years of the nine and twenty, were the Meffenian Wars; which happenwherein the fiege of Azotus continued, be- ed in this age, and being the greatest action ing all within the time of Manasses, did leave performed in Greece, between the Trojan no one part of his reign (after the first fif- and Persian Wars, deserve not to be passed teen years) free from the danger of being over with filence. oppressed by the Babylonian, whose men of war had continuall occasions of visiting his in the daies of Ezechia; the second in the ther any other, I forbear to shew mine whereof these Messenian were the greatest. opinion, left I should thereby seem to draw The pretended grounds of the Messenian computation.

doores and pillars of the Temple. more in convenient place.

Manasles, Kings of Juda.

Countrey. All which I will adde hereto, reign of Manasses: but to avoyd the trouble is this; that the fifteenth of Manasses was of interrupting our Historie, I have thought the last year of sethen in Egypt, and the one it best to rehearse them both in this place. and thirtieth of Merodach his reign, or (ac- Other introduction is needlesse, than to say, counting from the death of Afarhaddon) the that the posteritie of Hercules, driving the twentieth: The seven and twentieth of Ma- issue of Pelops and the Achaans out of their nalles was the tenth of the twelve Princes, feats, divided their lands between themand the three and fortieth of Merodach: his selves, and erected the kingdomes of Lacedafortieth, was the twenty third of Psammi-mon, Argos, Messen, and Corinth; all which aticus, and the fifth of Nabulassar, the son of greeing well together a vvhile, did after-Merodach, in Babylon: but which of these wards forget the bond of kindred, and was the year of his imprisonment, or whe- sought one anothers ruine with bloody wars;

all matters over-violently to mine own war are scarce worth remembrance, they were fo flight. Ambition was the true cause This was the first great masterie that the of it: vvherewith the Lacedamonians were so Babylonians had of the kingdome of Juda, transported, that any thing served them as a For though Achaz promised Tribute to Sal-colour to accomplish their greedy desires. manassar, yet Exechias never payed it. True Yet other matter was alledged; namely, that it is, that he hoped to stay Senacherib's en- one Polychares a Messenian had flain many terprise against him, by presenting him with Lacedamonians, for which the Magistrates of three hundred talents of filver, and thirty Sparta defiring to have him yeilded inof gold, befides the plate which covered the to their hands, could not obtain it. The Mefs fenians on the other fide, excused Polychares, But Manaffes being pressed with great for that he was grown frantick, through injunecessitie, could refuse no tolerable condi- ries received from Euxphnes a Lacedemonitions, that the Babylonian would impose up- an. This Enephnes had bargained to give paon him; among which it feems, that this was fture to the Cattel of Polychares, and was one, (which was indeed a point of fervi-therefore to receive part of the increase: but tude) that he might not hold peace with the not contented with the gain appointed, he Egyptians, whilest they were enemies to Baby- sold the Cattel, and slaves that keep them, to lon. This appears not only by his fortifiing Merchants; which done, he came with a with men of war all the strong Cities of Juda fair tale to his friend, saying, that they were after his return (which was rather against stollen. Whilst the lye was yet scarce out of Psammiticus, whose party he had forsaken his mouth, one of the slaves that had escaped than against the Babylonian, with whom he from the Merchants came in with a true had thenceforth no more controversie) but report of all. The Lacedamonian being thus likewise by that opposition, which Josias deprehended, confessed all, and promised made afterwards to Pharao Neco, in favour large amends; which to receive he carried of Nabulassar, which had been against all the son of Polychares home with him, but reason and policie, if it had not been his having him at home, he villamoully sew hims dutie by covenant. Of this I will speak Wherefore the Lacedemonians having refused, after long sute made by the wretched and Murderer, ought not to pick matter of word, that their City would grow unpeoquarrel out of those things which he did pled, by reason that no children had been in that madness, whereinto they themselves born them in all that time: Whereupon they had cast him. So said the Meffenians, and fur- sent back all their ablest young men, promitther offered to put the matter to compre- cuoully to accompany the young women, mife, or stand unto the judgement of the who got so many of them with child, as they Amphielyones, who were as the general Coun- became a great part of their Nation, and cil of Greece, or to any other fair course. were called Parthenians. Diodorus refers the fire to occupie the fair Country of Messene, time. But in process of this Messenian War, that lay close by them, were not content when the Devil in an Oracle had advised with such allegations. They thought it e- the Messenians to facrifice a Virgin of the nough to have some shew for their doings; stock of * Egyptus, that so they might be vifew escaped.

Camp, returned home. This War began in his innocent Daughters belly to disprove piad, having lasted twenty years. The two superstitions, into dispair of prevailing 12nians lost Euphaes their King, in whose stead such as had followed the Spartans in this they chose Aristodemus.

Many years were spent ere all this blood money to entertain Souldiers, caused the thirty years it continued (the Messenians not war to linger. And for the same reasons, did sinding how to help themselves) and then the Messenians for sake all their inland towns, brake out into a new and more furious War excepting Ithome, vvhich was a Mountain than the former. The able young men, that with a Town upon it, able to endure more vvere grown up in the room of those Mofthan the enemies were likely to do. But, as Jenians whom the former War had confufome Authors tell us, the Lacedemonians med, began to confider their own firength vvere so obstinate in this War, because of and multitude, thinking themselves equal to

Father, to do him right against this Theife ten years from Sparta, their wives sent them Cit of Greece, of to any other hand a great de- begetting of these Parthenians to a sormer Bud Line which the better to colour, they reckoned up ctorious against the Lacedamonians; the lot "lin in many old injuries, and so without sending salling upon the Daughter of one Lycsca, self-sugar many defiance, secretly took an oath to hold Epibolus the Priest, willing to save her, said, set so a War with Messen till they had mastered it: she was only a softened child, and not born by Mense, which done, they seized upon Amphia, a fron- of the wife of Lycifcus: which answer giving the dough. which done done in the theorem they delay to the execution of the Maid, Lycifus wood put all to the Sword without mercy, very fecterly fled away with her into Sparta. Then done Aristodemus, which afterwards was King, dia: of Weicaped. Hereupon the Messenians took Arms, and voluntarily offered his own Daughter: but Credition were met by the Enemy. A furious battel a young Nobleman, being in love with the the third were met by the Enemy. A Maid, when otherwise he could not prevail, Nothing was fought between them, which ended not Maid, when otherwise he could not prevail, of the until dark night, with uncertain victory. The faid openly that she was no Virgin, but that Mellening Meffenians did ftrongly encamp themselves; he had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child! " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her; & got her with child: " He had defloured her with The Lacedamonians, unable to force their whereupon the Father in a rage ripped up pagnet. the second year of the ninth olympiad, and the Lovers slander: at the grave of which ended in the first of the fourteenth Olym- Daughter of his, afterwards falling, by other enemy Nations tried the matter, for a while, gainft the Lacedamonians, he flew himself, with their proper forces, the Lacedamonians to the great hurt of his Countrey, which he wasting the inland parts of Messene; and the loved most dearly. For after his death the Messenians, the Sea-coast of Laconia. But it Messenians lost their courage, and finding was not long ere friends, on both fides, were themselves distressed by many wants, especalled in to help. The Arcadians, Argives, and cially of victuals, they craved peace, which Sicyonians, took part with Meffene; the Spar- they obtained with most rigorous contans had, befides many Subjects of their own, ditions. Half the yearly fruits of their aid from Corinth, and hired Souldiers out of Land they were bound to fend unto Spar-Crete. So a second, third, and fourth battel ta; and they, with their Wives, to make were fought, with as great obstinacy as the solemn lamentations at the death of every first; saving that in the fourth battel the Spartan King; they were also sworn to live Lacedamonians were enforced to turn their in true subjection to the Lacedamonians; backs; in the other fights, the victory was still and part of their Territory was taken from uncertain, though in one of them the Messe- them, which was given to the Asmai, and War.

This peace being made upon fo uneven was shed; for pestilent diseases, and want of terms, was not like to hold long. Yet nine and their vow, that having ablented themselves the Lacedamonians, and therefore scorned Within one year another battel was fought, likelihood of taking Era. the booty.

that could not be fafe abroad, was convey- untill the way was too strait for him; and to serve such Masters as had against all right, ed into a place of safety. Here the Lacedamaoppressed their Fathers. The chief of these mians found a tedious work, that held them was Aristomenes, a Noble Gentleman of the eleven years. For besides that Era it self houle of Egyptus; who perceiving the uniform was a strong piece, Aristomenes with three defires of his Country-men, adventured to hundred front Souldiers, did many incredibecome their Leader. He therefore found- ble exploits, that wearied them, and hindred ing the affections of the Argives and Arcadi- their attendance on the fiege. He wasted all ans, which he found throughly answerable to the fields of Meffene, that were in the enehis purpose, began open war upon the State mies power, and brake into Laconia, taking of Lacedamon. This was in the fourth year of away Corn, Wine, Cattel, and all provithe three and twentieth Olympiad; when the lions, necessary for his own people, the Lacedamonians hasted to quench the fire be- Slaves and houshold stuffe he changed into for it should grow too hot, with such forces money, suffering the owners to redeem them. as they could raise of their own without trou- To remedy this mischief, the Lacedamobling their friends, meaning to deal with their mians made an Edict, that neither Meffe enemies, ere any fuccour were lent them. ne, nor the adjoyning parts of their own So a ftrong battel was fought between them, Countrey, should be tilled or husbanded; and a doubtfull; fave that the Meffenians which bred a great tumult among private were pleased with the issue, forasmuch as men, that were almost undone by it. Yet they had thereby taught their late proud the Poet Tyrteus appealed this uprore with Lords to think them their equalls. Particu- pleasing Songs. But Aristomenes grew so bold, larly; the valour of Aristomenes appeared that he not onely ranged over all the fields; fuch in this fight, that his people would but adventured upon the Towns, furprifed, have made him their King : but he, refu- and fackt Amyele, and finally caused the enefing the honour of that name, accepted of mies to encrease and strengthen their Comthe burthen, and became their Generall panies; which done, there yet appeared no whereunto each part came better provid- In performing these and other services, ed. The Lacedamonians brought with thrice Aristomenes was taken prisoner; yet them the Corinthians, and some other friends still he escaped. One escape of his descrives to help; the Messenians had the Argives, to be remembred, as a thing very strange Arcadians, and Sicyonians. This also was and marvellous. He had with too much coua long and bloudy fight; but Aristome- rage adventured to set upon both the Kings nes did so behave himself, that finally he of Sparta; and being in that fight wounded, made the Enemies run for their lives. Of and felled to the ground, was taken up sensefuch importance was this victory, that lefs, and carried away prisoner, with fifty of the Lacedamonians began to bethink them- his Companions. There was a deep naselves of making some good agreement. tural Cave into which the Spartans used to But one Tyrtaus an Athenian Poet, whom by cast head-long such as were condemned to appointment of an Oracle they had gotten dye for the greatest offences. To this puto direct them, re-inforced their spirits with nishment were Aristomenes and his companihis Verses. After this, Aristomenes took by one adjudged. All the rest of these poor men furprise a Town in Laconia, and vanquish- dyed with their falls; Aristomenes (howsoed in fight Anaxander King of Sparta, who ever it came to pass) took no harm. Yet did fet upon him in hope to have recovered was it harm enough to be imprisoned in a deep Dungeon, among dead carkaffes, where But all those victories of Aristomenes pe- he was like to perish through hunger and rished, in the loss of one battell, whereof stench. But after a while he perceived by the honour (if it were honour) or furely the some small glimmering of light (which perprofit, fell upon the Lacedemonians, through haps came in at the top) a Fox that was gnawthe treason of Aristocrates, King of Arcadia, ing upon a dead body. Hereupon he bewho being corrupted by the enemies with thought himfelf, that this beaft must needs money, fled away, and left the Meffenians know fome way to enter the place and get exposed to a cruel butchery. The loss was out. For which cause he made shift to lay fo great, that together with Andania their hold upon it, and catching it by the fail with principal City, all the Towns of Meffene, one hand, faved himself from biting with the standing too far from the Sea, were abandon-lother hand, by thrusting his coat into the ed for lack of men to defend them, and the mouth of it. So letting it creep whither it Mount Era fortified, whither the multitude, would, he followed, holding it as his guide, CHAP.XXVII through a hole at which came in a little light; ry fellows with fresh Companions. Ariand there did Aristomenes delve so long with stomenes therefore, perceiving that his men his nails, that at last he clawed out his passage. for vvant of relief vvere no longer able to When fome fugitives of Messene brought hold out, (as having been three days word to Sparta, that Ariftomenes was returned had faid, that a dead man was received. But when the Corinthian forces that came to help gathered together all the weaker fort. the Lacedamonians in the fiege of Era, were whom he compafied round with armed men. cut in pieces, their Captains slain, and their and so attempted to break out through the Camp taken; then was it easily beleived, that midst of the Enemies. Emperanus Ge-

491

Aristomenes was alive indeed. mies hovering abour Era, saw no likelihood his Souldiers to give an open way, leaving a of getting it; and Aristomenes with small fair passage to these desperate mad-men. forces did them greater hurt than they knew So they issued forth, and arrived safe in Arhow to requite. But at the last, a slave that had cadia, where they were most lovingly enfled from sparta, betrayed the place. This tertained. fellow had enticed to lewdness the vvife of Upon the first bruit of the taking of Era. a Messenian, and vvas entertained by her, the Arcadians had prepared themselves to vyhen her husband vvent forth to vvatch. the rescue: but Aristocrates their fall-heart-It happened in a rainy-winter-night, that the ed King, faid it was too late, for that all was husband came home unlooked for, vvhilst already lost. When Aristomenes had placed the Adulterer vvas vvithin. The Woman hid his followers in safety, he chose out five hunher Paramour, and made good countenance dred the luftiest of his men, with whom he to her husband, asking him by vvhat good refolved to march in all fecret hast into fortune hee vvas returned fo foon. He told sparta, hoping to find the Town fecure, her, that the form of foul vveather vvas and ill manned, the people being run forth fuch, as had made all his fellows leave their to the spoyl of Messene. In this enterprise, Stations, and that himself had done as the if he sped well, it was not doubted, that rest did; as for Aristomenes, he vvas vvound- the Lacedamonians would be glad to recover ed of late in fight, and could not look abroad their own, by restitution of that which neither was it to be feared, that the enemies they had taken from others; if all failed, an vould flir in such a dark rainy night as honourable death was the worst that could this was. This flave that heard thefe tidings, happen. There were three hundred Arrose up secretly out of his lurking hole, and cadians that offered to joyn with him; but got him to the Lacedamonian Camp with the Aristocrates marred all, by sending speedy news. There he found Emperamus his advertisement thereof to Anaxander King of Master commanding in the Kings absence. Sparta. The Epistle which Anaxander sent To him he uttered all; and obtaining par-back to Ariftocrates was intercepted by some don for his running away, guided the Ar- that mistrusted him to whom it was directed. my into the town. Little or nothing was done Therein was found all his falshood, which that night. For the Allarm was presently being published in open assembly, the Arcataken; and the extream darkness, together dians stoned him to death, and casting forth with the noise of wind and rain, hindred all his body unburied, erected a monument of directions. All the next day was spent in most his treachery, with a note, That the Perjurer cruel fight; one part being incited by meer cannot deceive God. hope ending a long work, the other enraged Of Aristomenes no more is remaining to be by meer desperation. The great advantage said, than that committing his people, to the that the Spartans had in numbers, was recom- charge of his fon Gorgus and other sufficient penced partly by the affiftance which women Governours, who should plant them in some and children (to whom the hatred of fervi- new feat abroad, he resolved himself to make tude had taught contempt of death) gave to aboad in those parts, hoping to find the their husbands and fathers; partly by the nar- Lacedemonians work at home. His daughters rowness of the streets and other passages, he bestowed honourably in marriage. One which admitted not many to fight at once. of them Demagetus, who reigned in the lle But the Messenians were in continual toyl; of Rhodes, took to wife, being willed by an

then dismissed it. The Fox being loose, ran turning supplyed the place of their weaneral of the Lacedamonians was glad of Thus eleven years passed whilest the ene-this; and to further their departure, caused their Enemies fought in course, refreshing Oracle, to marry the daughter of the best themselves with meat and sleep, and then re- man in Greece. Finally Aristomenes went with where he was honourably buried.

(whole great Grandfather vvas a Meffenian, part of Asia, which was not freed from them and event into Italy after the former war)be- before the time of Alyattes this mans Granding Lord of the Rhegians in Italy, to take his child, by whom they were driven out. They part against the Zancleans in Sicily, on the o- had not onely broken into Lydia, but wan ther fide of the Streights. They did so; and the City of Sardes; though the Castle or Civyinning the Town of Zancle, called it Mef- tadel thereof was defended against them sene, which name it keeps to this day.

first year of the twenty eighth olympiad. Storm, to effect much. Long after which time, the rest of that Na- Phraortes was not King until the third year tion, who staying at home served the Lace- of the nine and twentieth Olympiad, which damonians, found means to rebell; but was fix years after the Messenian war ended; were foon vanquished, and being driven to the same being the last years of Manasses his forfake Peloponnesus, they vvent into Acarna- reign over Juda. nia; vvhence likewise, after sew ages, they Deioces the father of this Phraortes, vvas were expelled by the Lacedamonians, and King of Media, three & fifty of these five and then followed their ancient Country-men fifty years in which Manaffes reigned. This into Italy and Sicily; some of them went into Deioces was the first that ruled the Medes Africa, where they chose unto themselves a in a strict form, commanding more absolute-and fourfcore years, this banished Nation re- given to the people fo much licence, as forlaken Country; with a delire to return un- Deioces answered their desires to the full. For from thenceforth frood in fear.

ftory of Judith.

father, who encroached upon the Ionians work wonders upon Thil and Lud, and I his daughter to Rhodes, when he purposed to in Asia, had taken Colophon by force, and have travelled unto Ardys the Son of Gyges attempted Miletus and Smyrna. In like maner King of Lydia, and to Phraortes King of Me- Ardys wan Priene, and affailed Miletus; but dia: but death prevented him at Rhodes, went away without it. In his reign, the Cimmerians, being expelled out of their own The Mellenians vvere invited by Anaxilas country by the Scythians, over-ran a great and held still for King Ardys; whose long This fecond Messenian vvar ended in the reign was unable, by reason of this great ly than his Predecessours had done. For It is very strange, that during two hundred they, following the example of Arbaces, had tained their name, their ancient customs, caused every one to desire the wholesome language hatred of Sparta, and love of their severity of a more Lordly King. Herein to it. In the third year of the hundred and fe- he caused them to build for him a stately cond Olympiad, the great Epaminondas, having Palace; he took unto him a Guard; for detamed the pride of the Lacedamonians, revo- fence of his person; he seldom gave preked the Messenians home, who came flocking sence; which also when he did, it was out of all quarters, where they dwelt abroad, with fuch aufterity, that no man durft preinto Peloponnesus. There did Epaminondas sume to spit or cough in his sight. By these and reftore unto them their old possession, and the like ceremonies he bred in the people an help them in building a fair City; which by awfull regard, and highly upheld the Mathe name of the Province, was called Messene, jesty which his predecessours had almost and was held by them ever after, in despight letten fall, through neglect of due comportof the Lacedamonians, of whom they never ments. In execution of his Royal Office, he did uprightly and feverely administer justice, keeping secret spies to inform him of all that yvas done in the Kingdom. He cared not to enlarge the bounds of his Domini-Of the Kings that were in Lydia and Media, on by encroaching upon others, but studied while Manasses reigned. Whether Deioces how to govern well his own. The difference the Mede were that Arphaxad which is found between this King, and fuch as were mentioned in the Book of Judith. Of the Hi- before him, seems to have bred that opinion which Herodotus delivers, that Detoces was Herod to: the first who reigned in Media.

Rdys King of Lydia, and Phraortes of This was he that built the great City of The Medes, are spoken of by Pausanias, Echatane, which now is called Tauris; and as reigning shortly after the Meffenian war, therefore he should be that king Arphaxad, Ardys succeeding unto his father Gyges, mentioned in the story of Judith, as also Ben began his reign of nine and forty years, Merodach, by the same account, should be in the second of the five and twentieth Nabuchodonosor the Assiran, by whom Ar-Olympiad. He followed the steps of his phaxad was slain, and Holoseries sent to kon the last year of Deioces to have been the nor after the captivity of the Jems, and denineteenth of Ben Merodach; though others folation of the City. Wherefore the brief place it otherwise, some earlier, in the time decision of this controversie is, That the book of Merodach Baladan, some later, in the reign of Judith is not Canonical. Yet hath Torn-of Nabulassar, who is also called Nabucho-ellus done as much in fitting all to the time of donosor.

time, there hath been much labour spent were other Kings, among which Arphaxad with ill success. The reigns of camby ses, Da- might be one (who perhaps restored and rerius Hystaspis, Xerxes, and Ochus, have been edified the City of Echatane, that had forfought into, but afford no great matter of merly been built by Deioces) and Nabuchodolikelyhood and now of late, the times fore- nofor might be another. This granted; he going the destruction of Jerusalem, have been adds, that from the twelfth year to the eighthought upon, and this age that we have in teenth of Nabuchodonofor, that is, five or fix hand, chosen by Bellarmine, as agreeing best years, the absence and ill fortune of Xerxes with the flory; though others herein can- in his Grecian expedition (which he supponot(I fpeak of fuch as fain would) agree with feth to have been fo long) might give occahim. Whilst Cambyses reigned, the Tem-sion unto Arphaxad, of rebelling: and ple was not re-built, which in the ftory of that Nabuchodonesor, having vanquished and Judith is found standing and dedicated. The slain Arphaxad, might then seek to make other two Persian Kings, Darius and Xerxes, himself Lord of all, by the Army which are acknowled ged to have been very fa- he fent forth unto Holofernes. So should the vourable to the Jews; therefore neither of Jews have done their duty, in adhering to them could be Nabuchodonofor, whose part | Xerxes their Sovereign Lord, and resisting they refused to take, and who sent to de- one that rebelled against him; as also the stroy them. Yet the time of Xerxes hath some other circumstances rehearsed before, be conveniences, aptly fitting this History; and well applyed to the argument. For in these above all, the opinion of a few ancient times, the affairs of Jury were agreeable Writers (without whose judgment the autho- to the History of Judith, and such a King as rity of this Book were of no value) having this supposed Nabuchodonosor, might well eplaced this argument in the Persian Monar- nough be ignorant of the Jews, and as proud chy, inclines the matter to the reign of this as we shall need to think him: But the filence vain-glorious King. As for Ochus, very few, of all Hiltories, takes away belief from and they faintly, entitle him to the business, this conjecture: and the supposition it self is Manifest it is, and granted, that in the time very hard, that a Rebell, whose King was of this History, there must be a return from abroad, with an Army confisting of sevencaptivity lately foregoing; the Temple re- teen hundred thousand men, should prebuilt; Joachim High Priest; and a long peace sume so far, upon the stength of twelve of threescore and ten years, or thereabout, hundred thousand foot, and twelve thou enfuing. All these were to be among the sand Archers on horse back, as to think that Jews. Likewise on the other side, we must he might do what he list, yea that there find a King that reigned in Nineve, eighteen was none other God than himself. It is years at the least; that vanquished and slew indeed easie to find enough that might be a King of the Medes; one whom the Jews faid against this device of Torniellus: yet refused to affilt; one that sought generally to if there were any necessity of holding the be adored as God, and that therefore com- book of Judith to be Canonical, I would manded all temples, of such as were accoun-rather choose to lay aside all regard of proted gods, to be destroyed; one whose Vice- phane Histories, and build some desence uproy or Captain General knew not the Jewish on this ground; than, by following the opi-Nation, but was fain to learn what they nion of any other, to violate, as they all do, were of the bordering people.

of Joachim, with a return from captivity, works I have not read, but find him cited by are found concurring, with either the time Torniellus)hath proved by many arguments. of Manasses before the destruction of Jerusa- That she lived not in the Reign of Ma-know not what other Countries. For I rec- | are to be found all together, neither before Xerxes, as was possible in so desperate a case. In fitting this book of Judith to a certain For he supposeth, that under Xerxes there the text it felf. That Judith lived under none Of all these circumstances; the Priesthood of the Persian Kings, Bellarmine (whose lem, or of Xerxes afterward: the re-building naffes, Torniellus hath proved very substantiof the Temple a while before, and the long ally, thewing how the Cardinal is driven, as peace following, agree with the reign of Xer- it were to break through a wall, in faying xes; the rest of circumstances requisite, that the text was corrupted, where it spake of time, that the Kings Arphaxad and Nabu- Coffins or Chefts of stone were in it, with time, time to a doubly Torniellus, are the an inscription in Greek and Latine letters, children of meer fantafie, it is so plain that which faid, that Numa Pompilius, the son of it needs no proof at all. Wherefore we may Pompo, King of the Romans, lay there. In truly fay, that they, which have contentue one Coffin was nothing found; his boded about the time of this Hiftory, being dy being utterly confumed. In the other well furnished of matter, wherewith to con- were his Books, wrapped up in two bunfute each other, but wanting wherewith to dles of wax; of his own constitutions sedefend themselves (like naked men in a sto- ven, and other seven of Philosophy. They

Thinking which were towards the South, and over a were against the Religion then in use. Heregainst Arabia; or the Countries of Phuland upon the Senate, without more adoe, comthe former question hath done Chronologers. But I will not busie my self herehis Reign.

Romulus; after whose death, one year terate. the Romans wanted a King. Then was Numa reigned three and forty years in con-Numa Pompilius a Sabyne cholen, a peaceable tinual peace. After him Tullus Hoftilius the man, and feeming very religious in his kind. third King was chosen, in the fix and fortieth He brought the rude people, which Romulus of Manasses, and reigned two and thirty had employed only in Wars, to some good years, busied, for the most part, in War. He civility, and a more orderly fashion of life. quarrelled with the Albanes, who met him This he effected by filling their heads with in the field; but in regard of the danger, fuperstition; as perswading them, that he had which both parts had cause to sear, that might familiarity with a Nymph called Egeria, who grow unto them from the Thusanes, caused taught him a many of Ceremonies which he them to bethink themselves of a course, delivered unto the Romans as things of great | whereby without effusion of so much bloud, importance. But all these devices of Numa as might make them too weak for a common were in his own judgement, no better than enemy, it might be decided, who should commeer delusions, that served only as rudiments mand, and who obey. to bring the favage multitude of theeves and There were in each Camp three Brethren, out-laws, gathered into one body by Romn- Twins, born at one birth (Dionysus says his, to some form of milder discipline, than that they were Cousin Germans) of equal their boysterous and wild natures were o- years and strength, who were appointed to therwise apt to entertain. This appeared by light for their several Countries. The end the Books that were found in his grave, al- was, that the Horatii, Companions for the most six hundred years after his death, where- Romans, got the victory, though two of them in the Superstition taught by himself was first lost their lives. The three Curatii condemned as vain. His grave was opened by that fought for Alba (as Livy tels it) were all chance, in digging a piece of ground that alive, and able to fight, yet wounded, when the destruction of the Temple foregoing her | belonged to one L. Petilius a Scribe. Two ny field) have chased Holofernes out of all were not onely uncorrupted, but in a manparts of time, and left him and his great expense fresh and new. The Pretour of the Cidition, Extra anni solisque vias, in an age ty desiring to have a sight of these Books, that never was, and in places that were never when he perceived whereunto they tended, refused to deliver them back to the owner, Surely, to find out the borders of Japheth, and offered to take a folemn oath that they Lud, that lay in Holofernes his way; I think manded them to be openly burnt. It feems it would as much trouble Cosmographers, as that Numa did mean to acquit himself unto wifer ages, which he thought would follow, as one that had not been fo foolish as to with; having already so far digressed, in believe the Doctrine wherein he instructed shewing who lived not with Manaffes, that his own barbarous times. But the poyfor I think it high time to return unto mine wherewith he had infected Rome, when he own work, and rehearle what others I find, fate in his Throne, had not left working, to have had their part, in the long time of when he ministred the Antidote out of his grave. Had these Books not come to light untill the days of Tully and Casar, when the mist of ignorance was somewhat better discussed: likely it is that they had not on-Of other Princes and actions that were in these ly escaped the fire, but wrought some good and peradvenure general) effect. Being as it was, they ferved as a confutation, He first year of Manasses was the last without remedy, of Idolatry that was invefon of their hurts, could not follow him with ance of this History. Whereas therefore he equal speed, to follow him at such distance placeth the building of Rome, in the first one from another, that returning upon them, year of the seventh Olympiad, and affirms, that he flew them, as it had been in fingle fight, the same was the first year of Charops goman after man, ere they could joyn together vernment of Athens; I hope I shall not need and set upon him at once. Dionysius reports excuse, for varying from Pansanias, who sets it somewhat otherwise, telling very parti- the beginning of these Athenians somewhat cularly, what wounds were given and ta- fooner. ken, and faying, that first one of the Horatii was flain, then one of the Curatii, then a whom the Poets feigned to have had Affes fecond Horatius, and lastly the two Curatii, ears, held the Kingdom of Phrygia. Many whom the third Horatius did cunningly fe- fables were devised of him; especially that ver the one from the other, as is shewed be- he obtained of Bacchus, as a great gift, that in the old Roman History, both in regard of means he had like to have been starved the action it felf, wherein Rome was laid, as (his meat and drink being subject to the it were in a wager, against Alba; and in re-same transformation) had not Bacchus despect of the great increase which thereby the livered him from this miserable faculty, by Roman State obtained. For the City of Alba caufing him to vvash himself in the River did immediately become subject unto her Pactolius, the stream vvhereof hath ever own Colony, and was shortly after, upon since, forsooth, abounded in that precious some treacherous dealing of their Gover-metall. Finally, it is said he dyed by drinknour utterly razed, the people being remoling Bulls blood; being invaded by the ved unto Rome where they were made Citi- Scythians. zens. The ftrong Nation of the Latines, whereof Alba, as the mother City, had been chief, who (faith Plutarch in the life of Romulus) became ere long dependent upon Rome, observed the Moons Eclipse at the soundathough not subject unto it and divers petty tion of Rome. States adjacent, were by little and little taken in : which additions, that were small, yet Athenians having obtained some power by many, I will forbear to rehearse (as being the Sea, founded Macieratis a City on the East works of fundry ages, and few of them re- of Egypt. Psammiticus herein seems to have markable confidered apart by themselves) affifted them, who used all means of drawing until fuch time as the fourth Empire, that is the Greeks into Egypt, accounting them his Subject of this History.

The feventh year of Hippomenes in Athens, was current with the first of Manasses. Also followed Hippomenes, were in the same Kings | ded Syracusa in Sicily, a City in after times time. Of these I find only names, Leocrates, exceeding famous. Absander, and Erizias. After Erizias yearly Rulers were elected.

time of rule was shortned, and from term of this time. life reduced unto ten years, it being thought About these times also was Croton founded where the when they knew that they were afterwards companion of Archias that built syracusa. applying their times unto those years of the Olympiads, wherein the Chropological To he not only professeth himself to have taken is said they sounded Tarentum: but Justine two of their opposites were flain; but the times; but hath noted alwaies the years of Diese by third Horatius, pretending fear, did run away, the Greeks, how they did answer unto the lie la file and thereby drew the others, who by rea- things of Rome, throughout all the continu-

In the reign of Manasses it was, that Midas. all things which he should touch might im-This is one of the most memorable things mediately be changed into Gold: by which

In this age flourished that Antimachus,

The Milesians, or, (as Eusebius hath it) the now in the infancy, shall grow to be the main | furest strength. For neither Miletus nor Athens were now of power fufficient to plant a Colony in Egypt by force.

About this time Archias and his compa-Plut & the three last Governours for ten years, who nion Miscellus, and other Corinthians, foun-

The City of Nicodemia, sometime * Aftacus, * Whence was enlarged and beautified in this age by there is These Governours for ten years were also | Zipartes native of Thrace. Sybilla of Samus, fines Ale of the race of Medon and Codrus, but their according to Pansanias, lived much about come a likely that they would govern the better, upon the Bay of Tarentum by Mifcellus, the deh. to live private men under the command of Strabo makes it somewhat more ancient, and pagles.

Olympiads, wherein the Chronological Ta- ing of age, and banished Lacedamon, were Paul. 100 ble, following this work, doth fet them. For conducted by Phalantus into Italy; where it great care in ordering the reckoning of and Pansanias find it built before, and by them conquered and amplified: and about ther fide of Boffborns it were a long work to ded as bind, because they chose not the o- them.

CHAP. XXVIII.

the same time, Manasse yet living, the City rehearse all that is said to have been done in Phalelis was founded in Pamphylia, Gela in the five and fifty years of Manaffes: that sicily, Interanne in the Region of the Um- which already hath been told is enough; britinow Orbin in Italy. About which time the rest being not greatly worth rememalso Chalcedon in Asia, over against Byzan- brance, may well be omitted, reserving only tium (now Constantinople) was founded by Ben Merodach, and Nabulassar, to the business the Megarenses, who therefore were upbrai- that will shortly require more mention of

CHAP. XXVIII.

Of the times from the death of Manasses to the destruction of Jerusalem.

of Ammon and Joffas.

ten years, following the Septuagint.

caused all the Images, as well those which should inherit his grave in peace. were graven, as molten, to be stampt to powthe Sun to be burnt. Of Josias it was prophetained.

Mmon the fon of Manasse, a man | in written, the prosperity promised to those no less wicked than was his Fa- that observe them, and the forrow and exther before his conversion, resto- tirpation to the rest, he rent his garments, red the exercise of all forts of I- and commanded Helkiah, and others, to ask dolatry: for which God hardned counsel of the Prophetess Huldah, or, olda, the hearts of his own fervants against him, concerning the Book; who answered the who slew him after he had reigned two messengers in these words: Thus saith the combination years. Philo, Eufebius, and Nicephorus give him Lord, Behold, I will bring evil upon the place. and upon the inhabitants thereof, even all the Tofas fucceeded unto Ammon, being but a curfes that are written in the Book which they child of 8. years old, he began to feek after | have read before the King of Juda, because they the God of David his Father; and in his have forfaken me, and burnt Incense to other 2 kg 1 Kin 22 twelfth year he purged Juda and Jerusalem gods. Only for the King himself, because he 2 thro.34 from the high places, and the groves, and the was a lover of God and his Laws, it was pro- 2 Chro.36 carved and molten Images: and they brake mised that this evil should not fall on Juda down in his fight the Altars of Baalim : He and Jerusalem in his daies, but that he himfelf

Jolias affembled the Elders, caused the der, and strewed on their graves that had Book to be read unto them, made a coveerected them; and this he commanded to be nant with the Lord, and caused all that were done throughout all his Dominions. He found in Jerusalem and Benjamin to do the also slew those that facrificed to the Sun and like; promising thereby to observe the Moon, and caused the Chariots and Horses of Laws and Commandements in the Book confied in the time of Jeroboam the first, when The execution done by Josias upon the he erected the Golden Calf at Bethel, that a Altar, Idols, Monuments, and bones of the child should be born unto the house of Da- false Prophets at Bethel, argueth his Domivid, Josias by name, and upon thee (faid the nion to have extended unto those Countries,) Prophet, speaking to the Altar) shall he that had been part of the Kingdom of the facrifice the Priests of the high places, that ten Tribes. Yet I do not think, that any victoburn Incense upon thee : a prophecy very ry of Josias in war got possession of these places; but rather that Ezechias, after the flight In the eighteenth year of his reign, he re- and death of Schacherib, when Merbdach opbuilt and repaired the Temple, at which poled himself against Afarhaddon, did use time Helkiah the Priest found the Book of the advantage which the faction in the North Moses, called Dentronomy, or, of the Law, presented unto him, and laid hold upon so which he fent to the King: which when he much of the Kingdom of Ifraet, as he was had caused to be read before him, and confi- able to people. Otherwise also it is not indered of the severe commandements there- probable, that the Babylonian finding himria (as wanting power to raise the fiege that were far better Souldiers than Egypt of of Azotus, though the Town held out nine it felf could afford; and the danger wherein and twenty years) did give unto Manasses, Assyria stood, by the force of the Medes. together with his liberty, as much in Ifrael as which under the command of more absolute himself could not easily defend. This was a Princes, began to feel it self better, and to good way to break the amity that the Kings shew what it could do. These were great of Juda had fo long held with those of E-helps, but of shorter endurance than was the ent, by casting a bone between them, and war; as in place more convenient shall be withall by this benefit of enlarging their noted. At the prefent it feems, that either Territories with addition of more than they some preparation of the Chaldwans to reconcould challenge, to redeem the friendship of quer, did enforce, or some disability of theirs the Jews, which had been loft by injuries to make refiftance, did invite the King of done, in feeking to bereave them of their Egypt into the Countries bordering upon Euown. When it is faid, that Manasses did after phrates; whither Pharao Necho ascended with his deliverance from imprisonment, put Cap a mighty Army.

tains of War in all the strong Cities of Juda;

These two great Monarchs, having their it may be that some such business is intima- Swords drawn, and contending for the Emted, as the taking polleffion and fortifying pire of that part of the World, Tofias adviof places delivered into his hands. For fed with himself to which of thele he might though it be manifest that he took much adhere, having his Territory set in the midpains, in making Jerusalem it felf more de- way between both, so as the one could not fensible; yet I should rather believe, that he, invade the other, but that they must of nehaving already compounded with the Baby- ceffity tread upon the very face and body of lonian, did fortifie himself against the Egyp- his Country. Now though it were so that tians, whose side he had forsaken, than that Necho himself desired, by his Embassadours, he travelled in making such provisions only leave to pass along by Judea, protesting that fiar in the King of Babel his quarrel, doth without all harmful purpose against Jostan; argue, that the composition which Manasses yet all sufficed not, but the King of Israel had made with that King or his Ancestor, would needs fight with him. was upon fuch friendly terms, as required Many examples there were, which taught, not only a faithful observation, but a thank-what little good the friendship of Egypt full requital. For no perswassions could tuf- could bring to those that had affiance therefice to make Jossas fit still, and hold himself in : as that of Hosea the last King of Israel, who quiet in good neutrality, when Pharao Ne- when he fell from the dependance of the cho King of Egypt passed along by him, to Affgrian, and wholy trusted to Sabacus or war upon the Countries about the River of Sous King of Egypt, was utterly disappointed Euphrates.

with a powerful Army towards the border be gathered together or replanted. The of Judaa, determining to pass that way, be- calamities also that fell upon Juda in the ing the nearest toward Euphrates , either to thirteenth and fourteenth years of Ezechia, 2 chrs. 35 frengthen the passages of that River about whilst that good King and his people relied Carchemish, or Cercusium, for the defence of upon sethon; and more lately, the imprison-Syria (as long after this, Dioclosian is said by ment of Manasses, were documents of suffiunto the Adades Kings of Damasco.

greatly have availed the Egyptians, and ad- the countenance of fuch an Army, as did, vanced their affairs and hopes: the extra- foon after this, out-face Nabulaflar upon his felf unable to deal with Pfammiticus in 8y- ordinary valour of the mercenary Greeks.

CHAP.XXVIII

for his minds fake. The earnestness of Jo- he directed himself against the Assyrians only, tolars, of his hopes, and in conclusion lost both his The last year of Jossas his reign it was, life and estate, which the Assyrian so rooted when as Necho the fon of Pfammiticus, came up and tare in pieces, as it could never after Ammianus Marcellinus to have done,) or cient proof, to shew the ill assurance that was perhaps to invade Syria it felf. For it fee- in the help of the Egyptians, who (near neighmeth that the travail of Psammiticus had not bours though they vvere) vvere alwaies unbeen idlely confumed about that one Town ready, when the necessities of their friends of Azotus, but had put the Egyptians in post-required their affistance. The remembrance fession of no small part of Syria, especially in hereof might be the reason why Neco did not those quarters that had formerly belonged feek to have the Jews renew their ancient league with him, but only craved that they Neither was the industry of Necko less than would be contented to fit still, and behold his Fathers had been, in pursuing the war at the passime between him and the Assertions. gainst Babel. In which war, two things may This was an easte thing to grant ; seeing that own borders, left unto the Jews, a lawful excuse of fear, had they forborn to give it any check upon the way. Wherefore I believe that this religious and of Pharao Neco that fought with Iolias: vertuous Prince Josias, was not stirred up only by politick respects, to stop the way of Neco; but thought himself bound in Faith and Honour, to do his best in defence of the Eabylonian Crown; where Victory, Herodoius hath mention a-

from among them, and that in such fort, phus witnesseth.

mentations.

9. II.

of Jehoahaz and Jehojakim Kings of If-

unto his Kingdome was obliged, either mong the Acts of Neco. He tells us of this by Covenant made at the enlargement King, that he went about to make a Chanof Manaffes, or by the gift of fuch part nel, whereby Ships might pass out of Nilva as he held in the Kingdome of the ten into the Red Sea. It should have reached Tribes. As for the Princes and people above an hundred miles in length, and of Juda, they had now a good occasion been wide enough for two Galliesto row to shew, both unto the Babylonians, of in front. But in the middest of the work. what importance their friendship was, and an Oracle foretold that the Barbarians to the Egyptians, what a valiant Nation they should have the benefit of it, which cauhad abandoned, and thereby made their e- fed Neco to defift when half was done. There were confumed in this toylfome Some think that this Action of Josias business twelve hundred thousand Egyptiwas contrary to the advice of Jeremy the ans; a loss great enough to make the Prophet; which I do not find in the King forfake his enterprize, without trou-Prophecie of Jeremy, nor can find reason bling the Oracle for admonition. Howto believe. Others hold opinion that he soever it were, he was not a man to be forgat to ask the Counsel of God: and idle; therefore he built a Fleet, and lethis is very likely; feeing he might be- vied a great Army, wherewith he marched lieve that an enterprise grounded upon fi- against the King of Babel. In this Expedidelity and thankfulness due to the King tion, he used the service, as well of his Naof Babel, could not but be displeasing vy, as of his Land-forces; but no particular unto the Lord. But the wickedness of exploits of his therein are found recorded. the people (in whom the corruptions of fave only this victory against Josias, where former times had taken such root, as all Herodotus calls the place Magdolus, and the the care of Jolias in reforming the Land, Jews Syrians; which is a small error, seeing could not pluck up) was questionless far that Judea was a Province of Syria, and from hearkening how the matter would Magdolus or Magdala is taken to have been ftand with Gods pleasure, and much far- the same place (though diversly named) in ther from enquiring into his fecret Will, which this battel was fought. After this, Newherein it was determined that their good | cres took the City of Cadytis, which was per-King, whose life stood between them and haps Carchemish, by Euphrates, and made him- Tol. Ant. their punishment, should now be taken self Lord, in a manner, of all Syria, as Joses Jud lib.

as his death should give an entrance to Particularly we find, that the Phenicians the miseries ensuing. So Josias levying all one of the most powerful Nations in Syria, the strength he could make, near unto were his Subjects, and that by his command Megiddo, in the half Tribe of Manasses, they surrounded all Africa, setting fail from encountred Néco: and there he received the Gulf of Arabia, and so passing along all the froke of death, which lingring about the coast, whereon they both landed, as need him till he came to Jerusalem, brought him required, and sowed Corn for their susteto the Sepulchres of his Ancestors. His nance in that long voyage, which lasted three loss was greatly bewailed of all the peo-years. This was the first Navigation about ple and Princes of Juda, especially of Je- Africa, wherein that great Cape, now called 4.10. remy the Prophet, who inserted a forrow- of good hope, was discovered; which after ful remembrance thereof in his Book of La- was forgotten, until Vafco de Gama the Portingal found it out, following a centrary course to that which the Phanicians held: for they beginning in the East, ran the way of the Sun, South and then Westward, after which they returned home by the pillars and streights of Hercales (as the name was then) called now the fireights of Gibraltar, bear to make a conquest of the Land, perhaving Africk still on the right hand; but haps upon the same reason, which had made the Portingals, beginning their voyage not him so earnest in seeking to hold peace with far from the same streights, leave Africk on it. For the jews had suffered much in the #the Larboord, and bend their course unto grptians quarrel, and being left by these their the East. That report of the Phanicians, friends, in time of need, unto all extremities, which Herodotus durft not believe, how the were driven of necessity to forsake that par-Sun in this journey was on their right hand, ty, and to joyn with the enemies; to whom that is, on the North fide of them, is a matter if they shewed themselves faithful, who of necessary truth; and the observation then | could blame them? It was therefore enough made hereof, makes me the better to believe, to reclaim them; feeing they were such a that fuch a veyage was indeed performed. people as would not upon every occasion But leaving these discourses of Neco his mag- lihist side, but endure more than Pharao, in the nificence, let us tell what he did, in matters pride of his victories, thought that any more importing his estate. The people of J_n henceforth should lay upon them: fo good da, while the Egyptians were busie at Char- a Patron did he mean to be unto them. Nechemish, had made Jehoahaz their King, in the vertheless, he laid upon them a Tribute, of room of his father Josias. The Prophet Je- an hundred Talents of filver, and one Ta-Jeras 32 remy calls this new King shallum, by the lent of gold; that so he might both reap at name of his younger brother ; alluding per- the present some fruit of his pains taken, and haps to the short reign of shallum King of leave unto them some document in the suthe ten Tribes: for Shallum of Ifrael reign- ture, of greater punishment than verbal aned but one moneth; Jehoahaz no more than ger, due to them, if they should rebel. So he three. He was not the eldeft fon of Josias departed, carrying along with him into E. Wherefore it may feem that he was fet up as |gypt the unfortunate King Johoahaz, who dithe best affected unto the King of Babel; ed in his Captivity. the rest of his house being more inclined to The reign of Jehoahaz was included in the Egyptian, as appears by the sequel. An I- the end of his Fathers last year; otherwise dolater he was, and thrived accordingly, it would hardly be found, that Jehojakim his For when as Neco had dispatched his business | successor did reign ten whole years; wherein the North parts of syria, then did he take as the Scriptures give him eleven, that are order for the affairs of Judea. This Coun-current and incomplete. If any man will try was now fo far from making any resi- rather cast the three moneths of this short france, that the King himself came from Rib- | 1 eign, into the first year of the brother, than lab in the land of Hamath, where the matter into the fathers last, the same arguments that went fo ill on his fide, that Neco did cast him | shall maintain his opinion, will also prove the into bonds, and carry him prisoner into Fg,pt, matter to be unworthy of disputation; and giving away his Kingdom to Eliakim his el- fo I leave it. der brother, to whom of right it did belong. what should please himself. Yet he did for- it, which made him insolent and cruel;

Rrr

498

Jehojakim in impiety was like his brother, The City of Riblah, in after times called An- in faction he was altogether Egyptian, as tiochia, was a place unhappy to the Kings having received his Crown at the hand of and Princes of Juda, as may be observed in Pharao. The wickedness of these last Kings divers examples. Yet here Jehojakim, toge- being expressed in Scriptures none otherther with his new name, got his Kingdom; an wife, than by general words, with reference ill gain, since he could no better use it. But to all the evil that their Fathers had done, however Jehojakim thrived by the bargain, makes it apparent, that the poyfon where-Pharao sped well, making that Kingdom Tri- with Ahaz and Manasses had insected the butary, without any stroke stricken; which Land, was not so expelled by the zealous three moneths before was too front to give goodness of Jossas, but that it still cleaved unhim peace, when he defired it. Certain it is, to the chief of the people, Tea, unto the Priefts a channel that in his march outward, Neco had a grea- alfo; and therefore it was not frange, that the 36.14. ter task lying upon his hands, than would Kings had their parts therein. The Royal permit him to wast his forces upon Judea: authority was much abased by the dangers but now the reputation or his good fuccess wherein the Countrey stood, in this troubleat Megiddo, and Charchemish, together with some age: the Princes did in a manner what the diffention of the Princes Josias his sons they listed; neither would the Kings for-(of whom the eldest is probably thought to bear to profess, that they could deny them have formed at the preferment of his youn-nothing. Yet the beginning of Jehojakim ger brother) gave him power to do even had the countenance of the Egyptian to grace with Uria the Prophet: though herein also that he had work enough at home, either in the Princes do appear to have been instigated feeding or establishing that which he had tors. This holy man denounced Gods judge- gotten. Josephus gives him the honour of haments against the City and Temple, in like ving won Nineve it self, which we may befort as other Prophets had formerly done, lieve; but furely he did not hold it long. and did in the same age. The King with all the For in the times soon following, that great men of power, and all the Princes, hearing of City was free, and vanquished Phraortes the this, determined to put him to death. Here- Median. Perhaps it yielded upon some capiupon the poor man fled into Egypt: but such tulation: and refused afterwards to consiregard was had unto Jehojakim, that Oria nue subject, when the Kings, being of the was delivered unto his Embassadour and sent | Chaldwan race, preserred Babylon before it. back to the death; contrary to the custom Some think that this was the Assprian King. used, both in those dayes, and since, among all whose Captains took Manasses prisoner, but I civil Nations, of giving refuge unto ftran- rather believe those that hold the contrary, gers, that are not held guilty of such inhu- for which I have given my reasons in due man crimes, as for the general good of man-place. To fay truth, I find little cause why kind should be exempted from all privi- Merodach should have looked into those ledge.

ment possible to 'jehojakim: for the Assirian thern Empire, held themselves quiet at home, Lyon, that had not stirred in many years, be- which was until the time of Pfammiticus, agan about these times to roar so loud upon bout the end of this Kings Reign, or the bethe banks of Euphrates, that his voice was ginning of his fon. heard unto Nilus, threatning to make himself!

Lord of all the Forrest. The causes that hithis King, is not mentioned in the Scriptures; therto had withdrawn the house of Mero- yet is he named by good consent of Authors. dach from opposing the Egyptian in his con- and that speak little of his doings. The them together at Carchemish, where shortly much remaineth of the time that passed beafter this the glory of Egypt is to fall.

6. III.

miladventure and death, together with the cumstances alledged before. diffention between his children, prefented, Mabulaßar that reigned in Babylon after made himself King of Babylon, was eleven his Father Ben Merodach, had greater business years troubled with a powerful Enemy, A-in his own Kingdom, than would permit him as we find by that example of his dealing medling in matters of Syria, make it plain, parts, as long as the Jews were his friends, It concerned Pharao to give all content- and the Egyptians, that maligned the Nor-quest of syria, require our consideration in length of his Reign is gathered by inference this place, before we proceed to commit to have been one and twenty years; for fo tween the beginning of his Fathers and his Nephews Reigns (which is a known fum) deducting the years of his Father, and of his fon Nabulassar. This (as I take it) was he that of the Kings of Babylon and Media. How it had Manaffes Prisoner, and released him. He came to pass that the Kings of Babel could spedill in Syria; where Psammiticus, by the not give attendance on their business in Sy- vertue of his Mercenary Greeks, did much ria; which caused them to lose that Province. prevail. This may have been some cause that he released Manasses, and did put into his Merodach the son of Baladan, who ta-king the advantage that Sennacherib's Samaria: which is made probable by cirlarhaddon the fon of Sennacherib, reigning to look abroad: infomuch as it may be over the Assyrians in Nineve; from whom thought to have been a great negligence or whilest he could not any other way divert over-fight of Psammiticus and Necho, that his cares, he was fain to omit all business in they did not occupy some good part of his Syria, and (as hath been formerly fliewed) to Dominions beyond Euphrates. For it was in make over unto Exechia some part of the his time, that Thraortes King of the Medes Kingdom of the ten Tribes. From this mole-invaded Assertion, and besieged Nineve; from ftation, the death of Alarhaddon did not on- whence he was not repelled by any force of ly fet him free, but gave unto him some part Nabulassa, but constrained to remove by the of Assira, if not (as is commonly, but less coming of the Scytkians, who in these ages probably thought) the whole Kingdom. did overflow those parts of the world, laying. How greatly this was to the liking of the hold upon all that they could mafter by Myrians, I will not here stand to enquire: his strong hand. Of these scythians, and the Lording reign following, and his little inter-sinp that they held in Asia, it is convenient 500 fore-hand, how the Medes; upon whom they agree both with the condition of fuch busifirst fell, were busied in the same times with ness as that Scythian expedition brought into hopes of conquering Affria.

the Medes, having by many victories enlar- The destruction of this great City is both ged his Dominions, conceived at length a foretold in the Book of Tobit, and there fet fair possibility of making himself Lord of down as happening about these times; of Nineve.

Herod lib. been a Soveraign Lady was not for faken of those ages, and hath committed no such error case, that of her self she was well enough.

feat, and made it subject as was the rest of the effect, in the final destruction of Nineve by Country, yet it found the means to fet it felf Nabuchodonofor, according to the common oat liberty: as after this again it did, when pinion. For the Prophet hath mention of a Grand-child.

den violence, use to dismay any State or med Churches yield, to the book of Tobit, Country, not inured to the like: but custom, are careful, as in a matter of necessity, to of danger hardeneth even those that are un- affirm, that about these times. Nineve wastawarlike. Nineve had been the Palace of ma- ken; but they attribute (conjecturally)the ny valiant Kings lately reigning therein; it victory over it to Ben Merodach: a needless had suffered, and resisted, all the surv, where- conjecture, if the place of Eusebius be well with either Domestical tumults between the confidered. Yet I hold it probable, that Mafons of Sennacherib, or forreign war of the bulassar the son of Ben Merodach did seize Babylonians, could afflict it: and therefore it upon it, and place a King or Viceroy therein, is the less wonderful, that Phraortes did about such time as the Country of Affria speed so ill in his journey against it. He and was abandoned by Cyaxares, when the segdition whereof I find no particular circum- was the Conquest wrought out ready to his stances (perhaps they undervalued their for hand; the swelling spirits of the Ninewites ces, and brought a less power than was need- were allayed, and their malice to Babylon so ful.)It is enough, that herein we may believe much affwaged, that it might be thought a Herodotus.

man of Warthan his Father, wan as much of protection: though afterwards to their con-Affa the less, as lay Eastward, from the River Itusion, this unthankful People and their King of Halys; he fought revenge upon the Affy- rebelled again, as shall be shewed in the rians for the death of his father, and besieged Reign of Nabuchodonosor. Nineve it felf, having a purpose to destroy it. I rather believe Eusebius, That he took the City, and fulfilled his diffleasure upon it, than Herodotus, That the Scythian Army came upon him whilest he lay before it. For where equal authorities are contradictory (as Eusebius, though far later than Herodotus, yet having feen other Authors that are now loft, it is to be valued according to his great reading) there do I hold it best, to yield unto the best likelihoods.

to accuse him of greater improvidence than the Medes, to the Babylonians, who thereby ought to be suspected in one commended as were much disabled to perform any action a good Souldier. But to suppose that he was of worth upon the Egyptians in Syria; it is that I speak in this place; shewing briefly a- | gerous fell upon his own Country, doth well those parts, and with the State of the Chal-Phraortes, the fon of Deioces, King of dean and Affgrian affairs ensuing.

which Book whofoever was the Author, he That City(as Herodotus reports it) having vvas ancient enough to know the flory of all her dependants; yet remained in fuch in reckoning of times, as should cause us to distrust him in this. As for the Prophecy of This makes it plain, that howfoever Mero- Nahum, though it be not limited unto any dach had gotten possession of this imperial certain term, yet it appears to have taken it had been regained by Nabulassar his conquest of Egypt, foregoing this calamity. vyhereof vve vvill fpeak in due place.Some Sharp war, and the very novelty of fud- that ascribe more authority than thereforthe most of his Army perished in that expe- thian War overwhelmed Media. Forthen great favour, if Nabulassar, appointing unto Cyaxares the fon of Phraortes, a braver them a peculiar King, took him and them in

§. IV.

The great expedition of the Scythians, who ruled in Asia eight and twenty years.

> | I. The time of his expedition.

To think that the Scythians came upon Cyaxares, whilest he lay before Nineve, were ment was given by the Affricans and fain to leave the Town, when a War so dan- time that I speak of that great Scythian exwith the Countries adjacent, in such wise, thing near to uniformity. that part of the trouble redounded evento I have noted before, that in the reign of the Egyptians themselves. Of the Scythian Ardys King of Lydia, the Cimmerians overpeople in general, Herodotus makes very ran that Kingdom, and were not expelled. large discourse, but interlaced, as of matter until Halyattes the Nephew of Ardys got the ill known, with many Fables; of this expe-upper hand of them. In these times therefore dition he tells many particulars, but ill agree- of Ardys, Sardiatics, and Halyattes, are we to ing with consent of time. Concerning his fa- find the eight and twenty years, wherein the bulous reports, it will be needless to recite Scythians reigned over Asia. Now for a smuch them; for they are far enough distant from as Pfammiticus the Egyptian had some dealthe business in hand. The computation of ings with the Scythians, even in the height of times which by inference out of his relati- their prosperity, we must needs allow more ons may feem very strange, needeth some another one or two of his last years unto this fwer in this place: lest otherwise I should their Dominion. But the beginning of Halyeither seem to make my self too bold with attes his Reign in Lydia, being three and an Author, in citing him after a manner diffe- twenty years compleat after the death of rent from his own tale; or else to be too Psammiticus, leaves the space very scant, eiforgetful of my felf, in bringing to act upon ther for the great victories of the Scythians, the Stage, those persons, which I had already necessarily supposed before they could meet buried. Eight and twenty years, he faith, that the Egyptian in Syria, or for those many losthe Scrthians reigned in Asia, before Cyaxa- ses, which they must have received ere they res delivered the Country from them. Yet could be driven quite away. To increase this he reports a War between Cyaxares and Ha- difficulty, the victorious Reign of Nabucholiattes the Lydian, as foregoing the fiege of donosor in Babylon, is of no small moment. Nineve; the fiege of Nineve being ere the For how may we think it possible, that he lived with both Cyaxares and Halyattes. But ed the violence of their oppressors. Eusebius himself refers all that business of the Scythian irruption into Palæstina to Psammiticus the Father of Necho, whom he leaves dead before the Reign of Halyattes. Therefore I dare not rely upon Herodotus , in this What Nations they were that brake into Asia 5 matter, otherwise than to believe him, that fuch things were in these ages, though not in fuch order as he fets them down.

It remains, that I collect as well as I can, those memorials which I find of this expedi-driven out of their Country by the Scythition scattered in divers places: a work ne- ans, invaded and wasted some part of Asia; ceffary, for that the greatness of this action and that the Scythians, not contented with

pedition, which grievoully afflicted not only | neral Hiftory; yet not easie, the consent of the Babylonians, but the Medes and Lydians, those that have written thereof, being no-

Scythians came. And further he tells, how should have adventured the strength of the the Scythians, having vanquished the Medes, Kingdom against the Egyptians and Jews, did pass into Syria, and were encountred in had he stood in daily fear of losing his own, Ralestina by Psammiticus King of Egypt, who to a more mighty Nation, that lay upon his by gifts and entreaty procured them to de- neck? To speak simply as it appears to me, part from him. These narrations of Herodotus the victories ascribed to Cyaxares and Halymay, every one of them, be true; though attes over these warlike people, were not not in such order of time, as he hath mar- obtained against the whole body of their shalled them. For Psammiticus was dead be- Army, but were the defeatures of some fore Cyaxares began to reign: and Cyaxares troops that infested their several Kingdoms; had spent half of his forty years, ere Halyat- other Princes, and among these Nabulassar tes was King of Lydia, fo that he could not, having the like success, when the pleasures of after those Lydian Wars, reign eight and Asia had mollified the courages of these hartwenty years together with the Scythians. dy Northern Lads. Wherefore we may pro-It is true, that Eusebius doth also call Psammis bably annex the eight and twenty years of the son of Pharao Neco, by the name of Pfam- the Scythians rule, to as many almost the last miticus; and this King Psammis may, by of Nabulassar's Reign, in compass whereof some strained conjecture, be thought to have their power was at the greatest. This is all been he that met with the Scythians: for he that I can fay of the time, wherein Asia suffer-with the cause of their Journey.

| II.

Ouching the expedition it felf, Herodotus tells us, that the Cimmerians being was such; as ought not to be omitted in ge- having won the land of the Cimmerians, removed quarters of the World, to (as it the Cimmerii (who in after times were calwere by chance) falling upon Media and E- led Cimbri) did often break into Greece and gypt, in this pursuit of men that were gone Asia; which though it be not in express another way into Lydia. Hereby we may ga-terms written, that they did with joynt-for-ther that the Cimmerians were an odious and ces, yet feeing they invaded the felf-fame base people; the Scythians, as mischievous places, it may well be gathered, that they and foolish; or else Herodotus, and some o- were companions. One journey of the Amather of his Country-men, great flanderers of zons into Greece, mentioned also by Eusebius. those, by whom their Nation had been bea- was by the streights of the Cimmerians, as we ans or Cimbrians is so well known, and their The same Author, before his entry into those of divers Nations, that the malice of the acknowledgeth to be fabulous, doth report Greeks is infufficient to stain them with the them to have been Wives of the Scythians, howfoever diffinguished in name, by reason they were near alies. of their divers tribes, professions, or perhaps | Now as concerning the expulsion of the North, as being far from the Sun, and cover- a new feat, and establishing the Plantation. ed with eternal darkness; certain it is that The Sarmatians also were companions he would have them near neighbours to in this journey. For the City of Novogradin Hell: for he had the same quarrel to them Russia (which Country is the same that was which Herodotus had, and therefore belike called Sarmatia) stood in their way homewould have made them seem a kind of Gob- wards, as shall anon be further shewed. So lins. It was the manner of this great Poet (as that all the North was up in Arms: and Herodotus writing his life affirms) to insert therefore it is no marvel though many Couninto his Works the names of such as lived in tries felt the weight of this great inundatihis own time, making fuch mention of them, on Such another voyage was that, which the as the good or ill done by them to himself same people made five hundred years and deserved. And for this reason it is proved by more after this, when they were encountred Eustathius, that the Cimmerians were so dis- by the Romans. For they issued from the graced by him, because they had wasted his parts about the Lake Meotis; they were was the very fame, which Eufebius noteth to above three hundred thousand fighting men, have happened somewhat before the age of besides a huge multitude of women and Homer, at what time the Cimmerians with the children; they wandred over many Coun-Amazons, together invaded Alia.

did follow them, I know not why, into far; This is certain, that both the Amazons and ten, and Ionia, more than once, grievously find in Diodore, who further telleth us, that Diodillo. ransackt. The great valour of the Cimmeri- the Scythians therein gave them affisince on many Conquests so well testified in Histories discourses of the Amazons, which himself our note of Cowards. These were the posterity and no less War-like than their Husbands; of Gomer, who peopled the greatest part of alledging the example of that Queen who our Western World; and whose re-flow is said to have slain the great Persian Cyrus. did overwhelm no small portion of Greece | That it was the manner of the Cimbri to carand Assa well before and after, as in the age whereof we do now entreat. He that would and how desperate the courage was of those more largely inform himself of their origi- Women; the terrible descent of them into nal and actions, may peruse Goropius Becanus Italy, when Marius the Roman overthrew his Amazonica, of many things in which them, gives proof sufficient. I will not here Book, that may be verified, which the learn- enter into a discourse of the Amazons; anoed Ortelius is faid to have spoken of all Go-ther place will give me better leisure to ropius his works, that it is easie to laugh at speak of them: but seeing that they are nothem, but hard to confute them: There we ted by divers Historians to have belonged find it proved, by such arguments and au- unto the cimmerians, to the Scythians, and thorites as are not lightly to be regarded, to the Sarmatians, we may therefore the betthat the Cimmerians, Scythians and Sarma- ter approve Goropius his conclusion, That tians, were all of one Linage and Nation; these three Nations were one, at least that dialect of speech. Homer indeed hath menti- cimmerians by the Scythians, it appears to on of the Cimmerians; whose Country whe- have been none other than the sending of a ther he placeth in the West, as near unto the Colony of them forth into Asia, with an Ar-Ocean and bounds of the Earth, or in the my of Scythians to help them, in purchasing

Country. Perhaps that invasion of Phrygia by then likewise affisted (saith Plutarch in the plutarch in the Amazons, whereof Homer puts a remem-most likely report of them) by the Scythians the life of brance into Priamus his discourse with Helen, their neighbours; they had in their Army Marinitries, beating all down before them; and

CHAP. XXVIII. finally, thinking to have fetled themselves in ladg of Mountains, or any deep Rivers at all to stay their march: for Iris and Halys they more easie passage thither, and were confu- had already passed. med in three terrible battels by the Roman What battels were fought between these Confuls. Meer necessity enforced these poor Invaders and the Lydians, and with what va-Nations to trouble the World, in following riable fuccess the one or other part wan and fuch hard adventures. For their Country be- loft, I find not written, nor am able to conieing more fruitful of men than of fustenance, crure. This I find, that in the time of Ardys, and flut up on the North fide with intolle- the Cimmerians got possession of Sardes the rable cold, which denied iffue that way to capital City of Lydia; only the Castle holdtheir over-swelling multitudes; they were ing out against them. Further I observe, that compelled to discharge upon the South, and whereas Herodotus tells of the acts performby right or wrong to drive others out of ed by Gyges and Ardys Kings of Lydia, before possession, as having title to all that they had this invasion, and by Halyattes and Crassus in power to get, because they wanted all, that the times following, all that Ardys did a-weaker, but more civil, people had. Their gainst the Cimmerians, and all, save burning hardness, gave them great advantage over twelve years by Sadyattes his son (who permight the sooner be rid of them; others gi- enough that they did lose all. ving them, befides paffage, victuals and . Certainly the miferies of War are never places; others hiring them to depart with or great part of it, forfaking their own feats, the more effeminate people.

> (l. III. of the Cimmerians War in Lydia.

the way of the Euxine Seas, which they had their Lands and Cattel, their houses and ftill on the right hand; leaving on the other their goods, even to the cradles of the fuckside, and behind them, the great Mountains ing Infants. The merciless terms of this conof Cancasus. These having passed through the troverse, arm both sides with desperate reso-Hand, 1.4. ry, whereon Synope, a famous Haven Town on. Most of the Countries in Europe have and open to the Cimmerians, without any memorial of the ancient inhabitants through furdy bodies, patient of hunger, cold, and all the Milesians Corn fields, that was done in fuch as were accustomed unto a more deli- haps had his hands so full of this business; cate life, and could not be without a thou- that he could turn them to nothing elfe) is fand superfluities. Wherefore most common-quite omitted: whereby it may seem, that ly they prevailed very far; their next neigh- neither of the two did any thing worthy of bours giving them free passage, that they remembrance in those Wars, but were glad guides to conduct them to more wealthy fo bitter and many, as when a whole Nation, great prefents; fo as the farther they went labour to root out the established possessors on the more pleasant Lands they found, and of another Land; making room for themfelves, their wives and children. They that fight for the maftery, are pacified with tribute, or with some other services and acknowledgements; which had they been yielded at the first, all had been quiet, and no fword bloudied. But in these migrations, He first Company of these, consisting the assailants bring so little with them, that for the most part of cimmerians, held they need all which the defendants have; Land of Colchie, that is now called Mengrelli, lution: feeing the one part must either wing entred the Country of Pontus, and being ar- or perish by famine; the other defend their rived in Paphlagonia, fortified the Promonto- goods, or lose their lives without redemptiof the Greeks, was after built. Here it feems felt examples thereof; and the mighty Emthat they bestowed the weakest and most pire of Rome was overthrown by such invaunserviceable of their train, together with sions. But our Isle of Britain can best witness the heaviest part of their carriages, under the diversity of Conquests; having by the fome good guard: as drawing near to those happy victory of the Romans, gotten the Regions, in conquest whereof they were to knowledge of all Civil Arts, in exchange of try the utmost hazzard. For in like fort after- liberty, that was but slenderly instructed wards did the Cimbri (of whom I spake even therein before; whereas the iffue of the now) dispose of their impediments, leaving Saxon and Danish Wars, was, as were the cauthem in a place of strength, where Antwerp ses, quite contrary. For these did not seek now stands, when they drew near unto Gaul, after the Dominion onely, but the entire upon which they determined to adventure possession of the Country, which the saxons themselves in the purchaser. From sinop, the obtained, but with horrible cruelty, eradicaway unto Phrygia, Lydia, and Ionia, was fair ting all of the British Race, and defacing all CHAP: XXVIII

the greater part of the Land. But the Danes | Herodotus relates, I find it of little weight, Herod little (who are also of the Cimmerian bloud) and less probability. He tells of Septinans. found fuch end of their enterprize, as it may that being chased out of their Country by feem that the Cimmerians in Lydia, and Scythians in the higher Asia, did arrive unto. unto them certain Boys, to be instructed in So that by considering the process of the the Scythian tongue, and feat of Archery, one, we shall the better conceive the fortune Now it so fell out (faith he) that these serof the other. Many battels the Danes won, thians using much to hunt, and commonly yet none of fuch importance, as sufficed to bringing home somewhat with them, did nemake them absolute Conquerours: Many vertheless other-whiles miss of their game. the Saxons won upon the Danes, yet not so and came home as they went. Hereupon the great, as could drive them quite away, and King being froward and cholerick, bitterly back from hence, after they had gotten firm reviled them; and they, as impatient as he, footing. But in course of time, the long con- killed one of the Boys that was under their tinuance even of utter enmity, had bred fuch charge, whom, drefling like Venison, they acquaintance between them, as bowing the presented unto him; which done, they fled natures of both these people, made the one unto Halyattes. This Herodotus delivers, as more pliant unto the other. So their difa- the ground of a War that lasted six years greeable qualities, both ill and good, being between the Medes and Lydians; the one reduced in one mild temper, no small number of the Danes became peaceable cohabitants with the Saxons in England, where betray such men as were become his suppligreat flaughter had made large room; o- ants. To this I will say no more, than that I thers returning home, found their own see no cause that might induce the Seythians Country wide enough to receive them, as to betake themselves to either of these having diffourthened it felf of many thou- Kings unto whom their Nation had wrought fands, that were fent to feek their graves a- fo much displeasure. Particularly, they broad. And such (as I think) was the end had reason to distrust Cyaxares, for the of the Cimmerian War in Lydia; whereunto treachery that he shewed in the massacring though some victory of Halpattes may have of their Country-men that were in his Kinghastened the conclusion, yet the wearisome dom, of whom it is now meet that we should length of time feems to have done most, in speak. compelling them to defire of reft. I know not why I should fear to add hereunto my further conjecture, which is, that the matter was so compounded between the Cimmerians and Halyattes, that the River of Halys The War of the Scythians in the higher should divide their Territories. For Halys was henceforth the border of the Lydians, and on the Eastern side of the River was the Country of the Amazons, that is indeed, of the Cimmerians, and other Scythian people; sea, so the Scythians and Sarmatians took the whose wives and daughters these warlike other way, and having the Caspian sea on women are supposed to have been.

faction, came unto Cyaxares, who committed King demanding these Fugitives to be delivered into his hand, the other refusing to

6. IV.

A S the Cimmerians held their course Westerly, along the shores of the Euxine their left hand, passed between it and Cauca-And hereunto the quarrel ensuing be- firs, through Albania, Colthene, and other obtween Halyattes and Cyaxares the Mede, hath scure Nations, where now are the Countries very good reference. For Halyattes (as is of Servan and Georgia, and so they entred infaid) fought in defence of certain Scythians, to Media. The Medes encountred them in upon whom the Median fought revenge. Arms, but were beaten, and thereupon glad And it stands with reason, that the Lydians to come to any agreement with them. This and Cimmerians, being much weakened with was in the time of Phraortes, whilest Pfammimutual slaughters, should have joyned in a tiem reigned in Egypt. If it were in the fixt league of mutual defence for their common year of Nabulasar's Reign over Babylon (supfafety: though otherwife it had been dan- poling him to have reigned five and thirty gerous to Halyattes, if he had permitted the otherwise we must allow to Ben Merodach Median to extend his Kingdom fo far West- what we take from him) then do the eight ward, what soever the pretences might be, of and twenty years of their Dominion end, taking revenge upon such as had spoiled one year before the great Nabuchodonosor each of their Countries. As for that occasion of the War between these two Kings, which provide securely for the invasion of Syria 3 which expedition he began while his Father | much the better, by how much the worfe vet lived, as Josephus out of Berosus relates they were pleased with the heat of a Climate the laftory.

as well as they might, from this terrible | fcorching fands whereof, the Scythians more nation, which when they had no lust to a fecond trial of the fword, refused not to undergo the burthen of a Tribute, but thought fue him through unknown ways, had they nothing dishonourable, that would serve to fought with him and prevailed, especially remove these troublesome guests into some the Kingdom of Egypt being ready to enother lodging. On the other part, the sey- tertain him vvith relief, and them with thians finding still the Countries pleasanter nevv trouble at the end of their vyeary jourand better, the further that they marched in- ney. Wherefore they were content to be into the South, did fuffer themselves to be per- treated, & taking in good part his courteous fwaded, that a little more travail would add offers, returned back to visit their acquaina great deal more to their content. For they tance in the high Countries. The Egyptian relyed so much upon their own valour, that King (besides that hee preserved his own they feared no relistance, and being the bra- Estate from a dangerous adventure, by hyrvest men, they thought it reason that they ing this great Army to depart from him) should dwell in the best Region. That Phra- found all his Coast evell repayed in the proortes perswaded them into Egypt, I do not cess of his wars in Syria, where the Nations think; Babylon was near enough; whither if beyond Euphrates had no power to molest he could fend these Locusts to graze, then him, being more than ever troubled themshould not his unfriendly Neighbours have felves with the return of their oppressors. cause to laugh at his misfortune. What shift | For the Scythians, resolving novy to seek no Nabulassar made with them, or that at all he further, began to demand more than the trihad any dealings with them, I do not read. bute formerly imposed. And not conten-But it is well known that his Dominions lay | ted to fleece the Naturals with grievous exin the middest between Media and Egypt; actions, they presumed to live at discretion them provender.

care that they might not look upon Egypt. lest the fight thereof should more easily people, that in so large a space of ground, Southermost border of Palastina: whence he ken from them. never advanced to meet with the Scythians, fo far different from their own. Plammiticus Now the Medes, defirous to fave themselves had at his back a vast wilderness, over the patient of cold and wet, than of the contrary diftempers, could ill have endured to purasalfo, that they made all those parts of Asia upon the Country, taking what they lifted Tributary; wherefore we may very well from the owners; and many times (as it believe, that they watered their horses in his vvere to save the labour of taking often) ta-Rivers, and that he also was content to give king all at once. This tyrannous Dominion they long used over the higher Asia, that is, Psammiticus hearing of their progress(like over the Country lying between the Caspithe jealous Husband of a fair Wife) took an and Red Seas: and between India and Asia the less. Happy it was for the poor detain them there, than any force or per- there was room enough for these new comers fwafion that he could use would fend them otherwise the calamity that fell, as it vvere going. Therefore he met them in Syria, pre- by chance, upon those private men, to whose fuming more on the great gifts which he wealth any Scythian did bear a fancy, would meant to bestow upon them, than on his Ar- have lighted in general upon all at one my that should keep them back. Egypt was clap, leaving few alive, and none able to rich; and half the riches had not been ill spent relieve their fellowes. Yet it seems that the in faving all. Yet Psammiticus took the most heaviest burthen lay upon Media; for it was likely course, whereby to make his part good a fruitfull Countrey, not far from their against them by strong hand, in case they had own home, and lay under a Climate well abeen so obstinate as to refuse all indifferent greeing with the constitution of their bodies composition. For he lay close upon the edge there also it was that they had the fatal of the Wilderness in Gaza (as I take it) the blow, by which their insolent Rule was ta-

Cyaxares King of the Medes, vvho in this Herod. but gave them leave to feel as much of the extremity was no better than a Rent-gathe-lib.1. scalding Sun-beams, ill agreeing with their rer for the Scythians, perceiving that his temper, as all the length of Syria could beat Land lay unmanured and waste, through the upon them. When they were come as far as negligence of his people, that were out of Ascalon, the next City to Gaza, then did he heart by daily oppressions, and that the affay them with goodly words, accompanied matter could not be remedied by open force with gifts, which were likely to work fo refolved to prove what might be done by thus delivered in brief; That he, and his projethat they meant to come again. The Medes, seasted the better part of the Seythi- segithian women, to comfort themselves in ans, made them drunk, and flew them; reco their husbands absence, became bed-fellows vering hereby the possession of all that they their flaves. These got a lusty brood of had loft.

upon the Danes in England; but it was reven- fight with them at their return. If they were ged by their Countrymen, with greater cru- onely the children of flaves, which comelty than ever they had practifed before. pounded an Army (as Herodotus would have That the Scythians which escaped this it, who tels us, that the Scythians were wont bloody feast made any stir in Media, I do not to pull out all their bond-mens eyes) it must find, neither do I read that either in revenge needs be that they were very boys, or else hereof, or upon other pretence, the Medes that the Women did very little while conwere troubled by invasion from Scythia in tinue chast. Wherefore I rather believe that time following. my returning home out of Media, was very Histories, make that report of their Anceftrong,& encountred with opposition(as He- stors returning homewards, which I will set vice of Cyaxares to free his Countrey, took mealth. They understood by the way, that their good effect, with less blood-shed than hath Chrolopey, or Bond-slaves, whom they left at been supposed. For if he surprised all the home, had in their absence possessed their towns, chief of them, it was no hard matter to make lands, houses, wives, and all, At which news bea good composition. Many of them doubtless ing somewhat amazed, and yet disdaining the in eight and twenty years had so well setled Villany of their servants, they made the more themselves, that they were desirous of rest, & Speed home, and so not far from Novograd met might be permitted, without any danger, to them in warlike manner marching against remain in the Country; many (of whom I them. Whereupon advising what was best to be shall speak anon) having done what they done, they agreed also to set upon them with no could in the business, for which they came other shew of weapon but with their horse-whips forth, were willing to return home with which as their manner is, every man rideth what they had gotten; fuch as were not withal) to put them in remembrance of their ferpleased with either of these two courses, vile condition, thereby to terrific them, & abate might go joyn with the Cimmerians in Lydia, their courage. And so marching on, and lastor feek their fortunes in other Provinces a- ing all together with their whips in their hands, mong their own Companions. Whereas all they gave the onset; which seemed so terrible the Families of the North are faid to have in the ears of their Villains, and firook fuch a been with Nebuchadnezzar, it may be under- | sense into them of the smart of the whip, which flood, that a great part of the Scythians, they had felt before, that they fled altogether like upon hope of gain, or defire to keep what Sheep before the Drivers, In memory of this they had already gained, were content to victory, the Novogradians ever since have become subject unto Nabulassar; mens love stamped their Coin (which they call a Dingoe of their wealth being most effectual, in tam- | Novogradskoy, currant through all Russia) Ju. 35.9. berty. This is certain, that Nebuchadnezzer, loft in his hand. It may feem, that all the

this of new forces.

stratagem. The managing of the business is wives behind them; a good argument to youths, that were loth to be troubled with Such another flaughter was committed Fathers-in-law, and therefore prepared to tale as it is told by the Ruffes themselves. This is the more strange, for that the Ar- who agreeing in the rest with the consent of rodotus reports it) no less than it had found down, as I find it in Master Doctor Fletcher fist conabroad. Wherefore it may be that the de- his exact discourse of the Russ Common. ing the more unquiet love of inordinate li- with the figure of a Horseman shaking a whip aas ever after, so in his first beginning of war, women of that Country have fared the worse did beat the Egyptians, who in ages forego- ever fince, in regard of the universal fault: ing had been accustomed to deal with the For such a Pudkey or whip, as terrified those Babylonians after another fashion: and this slaves, curiously wrought by her self, is the new fuccess of that King may be imputed, in first present that the Muscovian wife, even regard of human means, to fuch addition as in time of wooing, fends to him that shall be her husband, in token of subjection, being Of the Scylbian Army returning out of Me- well affured to feel it often on her own loins. dia, divers authors report a Story, which But this was a Document unto the Scythians, confirms me in the opinion, that this Compa- or rather Samarians (for Novograd Stands in ny went forth to affift their kindred and the Country that was called Sarmatia) to befriends, in acquiring a new feat, and establish- ware of absenting themselves any more so ing their plantation. For these had lest their long from their wives, which after this, I find not that they did.

CHAP. XXVIII. of the Seythian expedition; not only because with death. Wherefore his Constitutions the center of our discourse.

of Princes living in divers Countries in these

Aving thus far digressed from the mat-Medes and Lydians, I have spoken as much as utter blindness. I thought needful. In Rome, Tullus Hostilius held the Kingdom until the one and twen- der, as hitherto I often have done, in purtieth year of Joss ; at which time Ancus suing of actions collateral to the History; Martius succeeding, reigned four and twenty for inserting them in their order of time. years, After him L. Tarquinius Priscus, a new- The Chaldeans will soon fall under the Percome stranger, but very rich, prevailed so sians; ere long, encounter with the Greeks; far by his graciousness among the people, the Greeks, with the Romans; the Romans, lus expelling the race of the Bacida, made that in these many ages were erected and himself Lord of corinth about these times, thrown down; as likewise many memoraand governed it in peace thirty years; lea- | ble acts were performed in Greece and elseving for successiour his son Periander, one of where, though not following one another at the feven Sages, but a cruel Tyrant: who a- any near distance; all which must have been mong other vile acts, flew his own wife, and quite omitted, or else reserved unto a very the Corinthian women stark naked, burning disposed in this method, whereof he that will their apparel, as an acceptable offering to not allow the conveniency, may pardon the her Ghost. Hereby we may perceive, that necessity. the wildom of the Greeks was not excellent in those days, when such a one as this could be admired as excelling all the Coun-

In these times also were Zaleucus and Draco famous lawgivers, the one among the Locrians in Italy, the other in the City of Athens. The Laws of Draco were fo rigorous, I whence we have fo far digreffed. In

Thus much I thought good to fet down blood : for he rewarded every small offence or me or memorable act performed a- were soon abrogated, and power given to broad by that Nation, famous in Hiltories, & Solon by the Athenians, to make new in their terrible to many Countries; but for that it stead. But the Laws of Zalencus were very appears to have been a great cause of the mild. He forbad any Gentlewoman to walk Egyptians prevailing hitherto in Syria, and abroad with more than one Bond-woman about Judea, which continues yet a while attending on her unless it were when she was drunk; or to go forth of the Town by night, unless it were to some sweet-hearts bed; or to dress her self up in immodest bravery unless it were to inveigle a lover. By which pleafant ordinances he effected his defire:for none would feem, in breaking the Statutes, to be in such case as challenged the dispensation. It is noted in this man as a fingular ex-Aving thus far ungrended from the Aving thus far under the fore to the ters of Juda, to avoyd all further occa- ample of justice, that when his own fon had fion of doing the like, I will here insert a committed adultery, and was therefore to note of fuch Kings, and men of mark, as were lose both his eyes, he did not cause him to be between the death of Manasses, and the ruin pardoned, but gave one eye of his own to of Terusalem. Of the Egyptians, Babylouians, save the young man (who also lost one) from that he got the Kingdom to himself, disap- with many Nations. Concerning all these, as pointing the fons of Ancus, over whom he they shall successively present themselves, in was Tutor. He began in the fourth year of their flourishing Estate, it will be enough Zedekia, and reigned eight and thirty years. to recapitulate the most memorable acci-In this time it was, namely, in the second dents, that befell them in their Minority. year of the thirtieth Olympiad, that the La- But in the long space of more than thirteen cedamonians bethinking them how to be a- hundred years, which passed between venged of the Arcadians, who gave fuccour the calling of Abraham, and the destruction to the Messenians against them in the former of Jerusalem, we find little matter, wherewar, entred their Territory, took the City in the History of Israel had any dealing with of Phigalia or Phialia, from whence their other Nations, than the very nearest bor-Garrisons were soon after beaten out, eypse- derers. Yet read we of many Kingdoms, afterwards, as in her honour, stripped all unseasonable rehearfal, had they not been

Ishall not therefore need fo far to wan-

5. VI. The oppression of Judæa, and destruction of Jerufalem by the Chaldwans.

that he was faid to have written them with the third year of Jehojakim, Nabilchodonofer

the second, his Father yet living, entred Ju- before, in the second year of his own Reign. dea with a great Army, who belieging and when the Boy was but eight years old. As for forcing ferusalem, made Jehojakim his vasial this rumour of Jehoahaz his return, the Proin despight of Necho, that had established phet Jeremy foretold, that it should prove the Church treasures; but stayed not to The Egyptians indeed, having spent all their fearch them throughly; for Necho hasted to Mercenary forces, and received that heavy the succour of Jehojakim, hoping to find Na- blow at Carchemish, had not remaining such buchodonosor in Judea: wherein this great proportion of sharp steel, as of fair gold. Babylonian had no disposition to hazard which without other help, is of little effect. himself and his Army, it being a Country of The valour of Necho was not in Pfammis A. an evil affection towards him, as also far off pres, who reigning after Pfammis, did once from any succour or sure place of retrait. If adventure to shew his face in Syria; but after he had, as may be supposed, any great a big look, he was glad to retire, without ftrength of Scythian horse-men in his Army, it adventuring the hazard of a battel. Wherewas the more wifely done of him, to fall fore this decaying Nation fought only with back, out of the rough, mountainous, and o- brave words, telling fuch frivolous tales, as ver-hot Country, into places that were more men that mean to do nothing, use, of their even and temperate. But besides all these glorious acts fore-passed, against Jossa and reasons, the death of his father happening at Jeboahaz. In this case it was easie for Jebo the same time, gave him just occasion to re- jakim to give them satisfaction, by letting turn home, and take possession of his own them understand the sincerity of his affecti-Kingdom, before he proceeded further in on towards them, which appeared in time This he did at reasonable good leisure: for more roundly. He sent a peremptory mesthe Egyptian was not ready to follow him so fage to Jehojakim, willing him not to stand him King, and took with him for pledges idle, faying: He shall not return thither, but June Daniel, being as yet a child, with Ananias, he shall die in the place whither they had led "in Missel, and Azarias. Also he took a part of him captive, and shall see this Land no more. the second care, of adding more unto it. following. But Nabuchodonofor went to work far, and to bid him battel, until the new upon any nice points, but acknowledge himyear came in; which was the fourth of Je- felf a Subject, and pay him Tribute: adding hojakim, the first of Nabuchodonosor, and the hereunto such fearful threats, as made the 1000 Me last of Necho. In this year the Babylonian ly- poor Judaan lay aside all thoughts of Pha-in-line ing upon the Bank Euphrates (his own terri- raoh, and yield to do, as the more mighty tory bounding it on the North-side) attend- would have him. So he continued in the oed the arrival of Necho. There, after a re- bedience of Nabuchodonofor three years. At folved contention for victory, Necho was this time Jeremy the Prophet cried out aflain, and his Army remaining forced to fave gainst the Jews, putting them in mind that it self; which full ill it did, by a violent re- he had now three and twenty years exhortrait. This victory Nabuchodonofor so well ted them to repentance, but because they purfued, as he recovered all Syria, and what- had ftopt their ears against him, and the rest foever the Egyptians held out of their pro- of the Prophets, he now pronounced their per Territory towards the North. The E- captivity at hand, and that they should engyptians being in this conflict beaten, and dure the yoke of bondage full seventy years. altogether for the present discouraged, Je- The same calamity he threatned to all the hojakim held himself quiet, as being friend neighbouring Nations, to the Egyptians, Moain heart unto the Egyptians, yet having bites, Ammonites, Idumaans, and the rest; made his peace with the Chaldean the year foretelling that they should all drink out of before; who contented with such profit as the Babylonian Pitcher, the wine of his fury, he could then readily make, had forborn to whom they had forfaken; and after the felay any Tribute upon Juda. But this cool venty years expired, that the Babylonians reservedness of Jehojakim, was, on both themselves should taste of the same Cup, and sides, taken in ill part. The Egyptian King be utterly subverted by the Medes, and the Journal Pfammis, who succeeded unto Necho, began Judeans permitted to return again into their to think upon restoring Jeboahaz, taken pri- own Fields and Cities. The first imprisonfoner by his Father, and fetting him up as ment of the Prophet Jeremy feems to have a Domestical Enemy, against his ungrateful been in the fourth year of this Jehojakim, at brother. Against all such accidents, the Ju- which time Barueb the Scribe wrought all dean had prepared the usual remedy pra- his Prophecies out of his mouth, whom he crifed by his forefathers: for he had made fent to read them unto the People, and afterhis own fon Jechonia King with him long wards to the Princes, who offered them to the King: but fearing the Kings fury, they him and Baruch to hide themselves.

508

CHAP.XXVIII.

Throne of David.

Egyptian; the mighty City of Tyre opposed a vast peice of work, even to fill up the Sea

teen years. the comming of Christ. I will not stand to dispute about this, which is the best conclu-

The City of Tyre covered all the ground had first set Jeremy at liberty, and advised of an Island, that was divided from the main, by a deep and broad channell of the Jehojakim, after he heard a part of it, and Sea. The Chaldwans had no Fleet, and were perceived the ill newes therein delivered, no Sea-men; the Tyrians, in multitude of made no more adoe, but did cut the Book goodly Ships, and skill to use them, excelled in peices and cast it into the fire. All which all other Nations; and every wind, from one Teremy caused to be new written with this part or other, brought needfull provisions addition; that the dead body of Jehojakim into the City. Wherefore neither force, nor fhould be cast out, exposed in the day to famine could greatly hurt the place; wherethe heat, and in the night to the frost, and the heat, and in the night to the frost, and of neverthelesse the judgments of God (dethere should be none of his seed to fit on the nounced against it by Esay, Jeremy, Ezechiel) rested secure of all danger, as Tributary to determined to performe it. This high-mind-

had threatned the destruction; & the obsti- #fay 22. Time thus running on, while Jehojakim nate resolution of Nabuchodonosor had fully Exch. 16. the Babylonian, yet well thought of by the ed King, impatient of refistance, undertook it felf against the Chaldean forces, and upon that parted the Island from the Continent. just confidence of her own strength, despi- The City of old Tyrus, that stood opposite fed all preparation that could be made a- to the new, upon the firm Land, and the gainst her. Now forasmuch as the terme of mountain of Lybanus neer adjoyning that feventy years was prescribed unto the de- was loaden with Cedars, and abundance of folation, as well of Tyre, as of Ferufalem, and other trees, might furnish him with materiother towns and countries; it is apparent, als. Thirteen years were spent in this labothat they which referre the expugnation of rious, and almost hopelesse businesse. Which this City unto the nineteenth year of Nabu- needeth not feem strange: for Alexander chodonofor, have fure authority for their war- working upon that foundation which was rant. Whereupon likewise it followes of remaining of Nabuchodonosor's Peere, and beneceffity, that the fiege thereof began in the | ing withall affifted by a strong Fleet, was feventh of his Reign, as having lasted thir- | yet seven moneths ere he could make way into the City. Wherefore, if the raging of Here I will take leave to intrude a brief the Sea was able to carry away that wherenote, concerning the feveral beginnings that | with Alexander laboured to cover a shelve; are reckoned of this great Prince his Rule, with much more violence could it overturn, whereupon hath rifen much disputation, and as it were consume, the work of Nabu-The third year of Jehojakim, was the last of chodonofor, who laid his foundations in the Nabulassar, who being delivered from other bottom of the deep; striving as it were, to cares, took notice of fuch as had revolted fill the empty belly of this Cormorant from him unto Pharao Necho, and fent this whereas the Macedonian did only stop the Noble Prince his fon, with an Army into throat of it. Every man knows, God could Syria, to reclaim them. In this expedition have furthered the accomplishment of his was Daniel carried away, who therefore own threats against this place (though it had makes mention of the same year. The year | not pleased him to use, either Miracle, or next following, being the fourth of Jehoja- such of his more immediate weapons, as are kim, was the first of Nebuchadnezzar; which Earthquakes, and the like) by making at Jeremy affirmeth in expresse words; and least the Seas calm, and adding the favorafrom this we reckon all his time and actions | ble concurrance of all fecond helps. But fo that follow. In his three and twentieth year it pleafeth him oftentimes, in chaftifing the he conquered Egypt; & then began ro reign pride of man, to use the hand of man; even as a great Monarch, finding none that durst the hand of man striving, as may seem, against offend him. The fecond from this year it all relistance of nature and fortune. So in was, wherein he faw that vision, of the I- this excessive labour of the Chaldwans, Every mage confifting of fundry Metals, which did head was made bald, and every shoulder was Exek 29. prefigurate the succession of great King made bare. Yet Nabuchodonosor would not domes, that should rule the Earth, before give over till he was master of the Town.

When he was entred upon this desperate fervice; whether it were fo, that some losses fion that I find, of long disputations: but re- received, some mutiny in his Army, or (which Joseph. the feventh of his Reign. the feventh of his Reign.

courage

510

courage to his evill willers, Jehojakim re- deans that were carried away captive, the nounced his subjection, and began to hope other those that stayed and were destroyed. for the contrary of that which quickly fell out. For Nabuckodonosor gave him no leisure in a book all the evill that should fall upon to doe much burt: but with part of his Army Babylon, which book or scrole he gave to marched directly into Judea, where the a- Sheraiah, when he went with the King Zedemazed King made fo little refiftance (the E- chias to Babylon, to visit Nabuchodonosor, wilgyptians having left him, as it were, in a ling him first to read it to the Captive Jemes: dream) that he entred Jerusalem, and layed and then to bind it to a stone, and cast it into hands on Jehojakim, whom he first bound Euphrates, pronouncing these words: Thus and determined to fend to Babylon, but Bable be drowned, and shall not rife from changing counsell, he caused him to be slain the evill that I will bring upon her. This in the place, and gave him the sepulchre of journey of Zedechias to Babel is probably an Affe, to be devoured by beafts and rave- thought to have been in a way of visitation, nous birds,according to the former Prophe- carrying some presents. But I further think. cies: leaving in his place Jehojakim or Jecho- that he had fome fute there to make, which nias his fon, whom, after three moneths and his Lordly Mafter refused to grant, and sent ten dayes Nabuchodonofor removed, and fent him away discontented. For at his return prisoner to Babylon, with Ezekiel, Mardocheus all the bordering Princes sent Messengers and Josedech, the high Priest. The mother of to him, inciting him (as it seems) to those un-Jechonias, together with his fervants Eunu- quiet courses, from which Jeremy dehorted ches, and all the ablest men, and best Artisi- both him and them. The prophet, by Gods cers of the land, were also then carried away appointment, made bonds and yokes, one of Captives. This Jechonias, following the which he wore about his own neck, others counsell of Jeremy the Prophet, made no re- he fent unto the five Kings, of Edom, Moab, fistance; but submitted himself to the Kings Ammon, Tyre and Zidon, by those Messengers will: wherein he both pleased God, and which came to visit Zedechias: making them did that which was best for himself; know, that if they and the Kings of Juda though at the present it might seem other- abode in the obedience of Babylon, they wife, to fuch as confidered the evill that be- should then possesse and enjoy their own fell him, rather than the greater evill that he countries, if not, they should assuredly perthereby avoided. This onely particular act ish by the sword, by fire and pestilence. of his is recorded, which was good. But it feems that he was partaker, at least of his Fa- | which as yet remained in Jerusalem, should thers faults, if not an inftigator, which was also travell after the reft, and at length they the cause, that his submitting himself to Gods pleasure did not preserve his Estate: for so The same year Anania we read in generall words, that he did evill phet, took off the woodden Chain which in the fight of the Lord, according to all that his Fereng wore in fign of the Captivity of the Father had done. In his stead Nabuchodono- Jews, and brake it: Vaunting, that in like for established Mathania his Uncle in the manner, after two years God would break Kingdom of Inda, and called him Zedechias, the strength of Babel, and the yoke which which is as much to fay, as the justice of God. he laid on all Nations; restore Jechonias and For like as Neco King of Egypt had formerly all the Jewes, with the Veffels and riches displaced Iehoahaz, after his Father Josias was of the Temple, and give an end to all these flain, and fet up Jehojakim, the fon of another troubles. But Jeremy, instead of his woodden mother, so Nabuchodonosor slew Jehojakim, yoke, wore a Coller of yron: and in fign who depended on the Egyptians, and carry-ing his fon Jechonias Prisoner to Babel, gave hope to the people, he foretold the death of the Kingdom to this Zedechias, that was this cold Prophet, which seized upon him whole Brother to that Jeboahaz, whom Neco in the second Moneth. After this, when Zetook with him into Egypt. From Zedechias dechias had wavered long enough between he required an oath for his faithfull obedi- Faith and Passion, in the eighth year of his rotten Grapes, the one fignifying those Ju-lonian yoke. Hereof when Nabuchodonofor

CHAP. XXVIII.

In the fourth of Zedechias, Jeremy wrote

He also foretold them, that those Vessels

The same year Ananias, the false Proence, which Zedechias gave him, and called reign, he practifed more ferioully against the living God to witnesse in the same, that Nabuchodonosor, with his Neighbours the Ehe would remain affured to the Kings of domites, Ammonites, Moabites, Tyrians, and others that were promifed great aydes of In the first year of Zedechias, Jeremy saw the Egyptians: in considence of whose resiand expounded the Vision of the ripe and stance, he determined to shake off the Baby-and befieged it. Jeremy periwaded Zedechi-and befieged it. Jeremy periwaded Zedechi-rounded the City with moodden Tomers, to as as to render the City and himself: but being the befieged could neither fally out, nor dome of Juda fisculd be extirpate, untill the upon Mounts; from which they did fo beat comming of silo (according to the Prophe-upon the Wall with their Engines, that the 60 40.10 cy of Jacob) he despised the words of Jere defendants were compelled to forsake their 600 19.10 my, and imprisoned him. For Jeremy had Stations, Now although it were so that the told the King that the City should be taken besieged also raised Counter-buildings, like and burnt; that the King should not escape, unto these, yet the great King of Babel, who

to Babel, die his naturall death.

chaldeans removed from Jerusalem to en- dechias beholding this uncomfortable fight, counter the Egyptians, these vaunting Pa- and finding no remedy of the danger pretrons abandoned their enterprise, and taking sent, lost both his courage and his hopes at Gaza in their way homeward, returned into once; and shifted himself, together with his Egypt, as if they had already done enough, Wives, Children, Princes, and principal ferleaving the poor people of Jerusalem to vants, out of the City, by a way under

In the mean while the Jewes, who in their people to the merciless swords of their enefirst extremity had manumised their Hebren mies. Thus he, who, when Jeremy the Prophet Bond-men (as Gods law required at the perswaded him to render himself, despised year of Jubile) and made them free, there- | both the counsel of God , and the force of by the better to encourage them to fight; Nabuchodonofor, used now that remedy, did now upon the breaking up of the Chal- which Wolphius truly termeth, Trifte, turpe, &

their destined miseries.

had knowledge, he marched with his Army (as P. Martyr hath it) extruxerunt contra in the dead of Winter, toward Jerufalem, cam turrem ligneam per circuitum: They fir-but be taken priloner, and brought to the commanded all the Regions there-abouts, presence of Nabuchodonosor; that he should and had the Woods and Rivers to obey not perish by the fword, but being carried him, found means to overthrow all the Citi-(zens endeavours; and to beat down as fast Terusalem being the following year fur- from without, as they raised from within; rounded by Nabuchodonofors Armie; the the body and foundation of his own works King of Egypt, Pharao Hophra, according to being guarded by the Walls of Jerusalem lind lib Jeremy, (Herodotus calleth him Apries) interposed; and theirs within, laid open to entred the border of Juda with his Army to their enemies disturbance. Besides, both Fafuccour Zedechias, of whose revolt he had mine and Pestilence (which commonly acbeen the principall Author. But Jeremy gave company men straightly besieged) grew on the Temes faithfull counsell, willing them fast upon them, whereby, when the number, not to have any trust in the succours of E- strength, and courage of the Jews failed, the grot: for he affured them that they should re- Chaldwans made a breach, and forcing an turn again, and in no fort relieve them lentry, their Princes did feat themselves, as And it fell out accordingly. For when the Lords of the Town, in the middle gate. Ze-

ground; leaving his amazed and guideless

dean Army, repent them of their Charity: infæliz: Woful, shameful, and unfortunate. and thinking all had been at an end, held By this secret subterrane vault, Zedechias them perforce to their former flavery. But making his ftealth, recovered (by the help of the Chaldees being returned to the fiege, the the dark night) the Plains or Defarts of Je-Prophet Jeremy, when the state of Jerusalem richo: but by reason of the train that folbegan now to grow to extremity, counsel- lowed him and his (every one leading with led Zedechias to render himself unto them; him those whom they held most dear unto assuring him of his own life, and the safety them) he was easily traced and pursued How of the City, if he would so do. But his ob- great soever the company was that attenstinate heart conducted him to that wretch- ded on him, yet, as Josephus reports it, they, ed end, which his neglect of God, and his on whose fidelity he most reposed himself, infidelity and perjurie, had provided for no fooner beheld the Chaldwans approach, but they all abandoned his defence, and fhif-Three and twenty Moneths (as some do ted themselves into the Desarts, as they reckonit)or, according to Josephus, eighteen, could. For vyhom God had forsaken, no man the Babylonian Army laid before Jerusalem, followed, but the ministers of his vengeance; and held it exceeding straightly belieged, by vvhom Zedechias being made Prisoner, Ringers. For they built Forts against it round about, or with his Children and Princes, he was con-think) of Nephtalim, where Nabuchodonosor then lay, as a place indifferent between Jerusalem and Tyre, with both which at once he had to do.

512

Now after Nabuchodonofor had laid before Zedechias the many graces and benefits but gave comfort to all the other Jewes that conferred upon him, together with the notable falshood and perjury, wherewith he had requited them; he commanded his Children, Princes and Friends to be flain before his face. This being done, to the end nour of his own Nation. that so lamentable a spectacle should be the last that ever he should behold in the world, he caused his eyes to be torn out of his head, and so carried him in a slavish manner to Babel, where he confumed the rest of his being followed by ten other chosen men, wretched life in perpetual imprisonment. while Godoliah feasted them in Massha or Herein this most marvellous Prophecy of Mitspa, the C ity of hisresidence, traiterously Exechiel was performed; Adducam eum in flew him, together with divers Chaldeans and Babyloniam & ipfam non videbit: I will bring Jews that accompanied him. This done he him into Babylon, and he shall not see it.

Thus in the eleventh and last year of Zedechias, which was the eighteenth of Nabu- liah with prefents, he flew the most of them, chodonofor the Chaldeans entred the City by and spared the rest, because they promised force, where sparing no sex nor age, they to discover unto him some Treasures hidden committed all to the fword that they there- in the fields during the war. He also took in found.

General of the Army, burnt the Kings Pa- This practice and intent of Ismael had been lace, and the rest of Jerusalem: and after this formerly discovered unto Godoliah by Johafire had lasted from the seventh to the tenth nan, one of the Leaders of the sew remaining day, he also burnt the Temple of God to the Jews; but Godoliah was incredulous. ground, when it had stood four hundred thirty and one years. 2 Kin. ul., dan (not yet satiated with blood) comman- could to the Ammonites) the residue of the Priest, two Commanders of Zedechias his men readily made them answer, that if they reof War, five of his House-hold servants, and mained in Judea, God would provide for others to that number; carrying away to them, and shew them mercy; but if they Babylon the ablest of the people throughout fought to fave themselves in Egypt, that they all Judea; and leaving the poorest labour- should then undoubtedly perish. Notwithfubmit himself altogether to the Babylonian; the Sepulchre of their own Kings.

veyed to Rebla or Reblath, a City (as some) who being ordained by God to exercise his justice, was therefore reliftless. The Prophet Jeremy being left to his own choice, either to live in Chaldea, or elsewhere, he made election of Godoliah, to whom he was recommended; who not only embraced feremy, were left under his charge, promifing them favour and liberty, so long as they remained obedient subjects to Nabuchodonosor, by whom he was established Provincial Gover-

But ere that year was expired, a Prince of the late Kings house (who during the siege of Jerusalem, had kept himself out of the ftorm, with Baalis King of the Ammonites) made an escape, and in his way encountering with eighty persons, repairing towards Godowith him a Daughter of Zedechias, committed In the next year following, Nabuzaradan to the care of Godoliah by Nabuchodonofor.

Judea being now left without a Governour (for Ismael durst not take it upon him, After this, upon a second search, Nabuzara- but retired himself, or rather sled as fast as he ded seventy and two others to be slaughte- Jews, fearing the revenge of the Chaldeans, red, which had hidden themselves from the resolved to fly away into Egypt, and belought first fury, to wit, the chief, and the second Jeremy to ask counsel of God for them: who ing fouls, with some that followed the party standing this advice, the Jews held their deof Nabuchodonosor, to till the ground : over termination ; and despising the Oracle of whom he left Governour, Godoliah the Ne- God, and constraining Jeremy and Baruch to phew of that Saphan, whom Josias had for- accompany them, they travelled into Egypt, merly employed in the reformation of Re- and inhabited by the permiffion of Pharao, ligion, who is, for his justice and equity, by neer unto Taphnes: where when Jeremy often Josephus highly commended. This man, a Jew reprehended them for their Idolatry, foreby Nation, left Zedechias, as it feemeth, in the telling both the destruction of themselves, beginning of the War: and by Jeremies de- and the Egyptians, also, he was by these his fire to live with him, it appeareth that he own hard-hearted and ungrateful Countryhad embraced the same advice which the men, stoned to death; and by the Egyptians, Prophet gave unto Zedechias; which was, to who greatly reverenced him, buried neer

THE

IRSTPART OF THE

OF THE

Intreating of the Times from the destruction of Ferulalem to the time of PHILIP of MACEDON.

THE THIRD BOOK.

CHAP. I.

Of the time passing between the destruction of Jerusalem, and the fall of the Affyrian Empire.

ø. I.

Of the connexion of sacred and prophane History.

things could ill be fought in those that were tion.

HE course of Time, which ignorant of the first Creation: as likewise in prophane Histories that the affairs of Kingdoms and Empires afmight rather be discern- terwards grown up, are not to be found ed through the greatest among those that have now no state nor popart of its way hitherto licy remaining of their own. Having therepassed, in some out-worn fore pursued the history of the World unto footsteps, than in any that age, from whence the memory of sucbeaten path, having once in Greece by the ceeding accidents is with little interruption Olympiads, and in the Eastern Countries by of fabulous discourse derived unto us. I hold the accompt from Nabonassar, left furer it now convenient, briefly to shew, by what marks, and more appliable to actions con- means and circumstances the History of the current, than were the War of Troy, or any Hebrews, which of all other is the most another token of former date; begins at cient, may be conjoyned with the followlength in the ruine of Ferusalem, to disco- ing times, wherein that Image of fundry ver the connexion of antiquity fore-spent, metals, discovered by God unto Nebuchadwith the story of succeeding ages. Mani-nezzar, did reign over the earth, when iffest it is, that the original and progress of rael was either none, or an unregarded Na-

Herein

Finis Libri secundi.

Herein I do not hold it needful to infift are chiefly directed, in passing from the first upon those authorities which give as it were unto the latest years of the world through by hear-fay, a certain year of some old Af- any story, with least interruption; it is very frian King unto some action or event, where- expedient that we take some pains to inform of the time is found expressed in Scripture: our selves truly of the Seventy years during for together with the end of Ninus his line which it continued, even from Nebuchadin Sardanapalus, if not before, all fuch com- nezzar unto Cyrus. putations were blotted out; the succession of Belochus and his iffue that occupied the Kingdom afterwards, depending upon the uncertain relations of fuch as were neither Abrief rehearfal of two Opinions touching the constant in assigning the years of his beginning, nor of credit enough for others to relye upon. Let it therefore fuffice that the confent and harmony which fome have found in the years of those over-worn Monarchs, doth preserve their names, which otherwise might have been forgotten. Now concerning the latter Kings of that Nation, howsoever it be true, that we find the names | Captivity then began, when fechonias was of all, or most of them in Scriptures, which carried prisoner into Babylon; eleven years are recorded by prophane Historians, yet before the final destruction of Jerusalem unhereby could we only learn in what age der Zedechias. This they prove out of dieach of them lived, but not in what year vers places in Ezechiel, especially out of the his reign began or ended, were it not that fourteenth chapter, where he makes a plain the reign of Nebuchadnezzar is more pre-diffinction between the beginning of the cifely applied to the times of Jehojakim and Captivity, and utter destruction of Jerulaunder Nebuchadnezzar was the beginning of day of the month, in the fourteenth year after the Captivity of Juda, which ended when feventy years were expired; and these se- he beginneth the Captivity in plain terms, venty years took end at the first of cyrus, eleven years before the City was destroyed. whose time being well known, affords us Beroaldus is of opinion, that it began in the means of looking back into the ages paft, first of Nebuchodonofor, and the fourth of and forwards into the race of men succeed- Joskim; which he endeavours to prove out ing. The first year of Cyrus his reign in of the second of Chronicles, but more espe-Persta, by general consent, is joyned with cially out of Saint Matthew, and Daniel, the first year of the 55 Olympiad; where, that whose words afford matter of disputation, he reigned three and twenty years before but serve not to make good so much as Behis Monarchy, and feven years afterwards, roaldus would enforce. That place of Saint it is apparent, and almost out of controverMatthew, and the whole Book of Daniel fie. Giving therefore four hundred and have ministred occasion of scoffing and eight years unto the distance between the railing at the Christian Religion to that fall of Troy, and the inftauration of the wretched man Porphyrie, who, not under-Olympiad by Iphitus; we may eafily arrive standing how the sons of King Josias were unto those antiquities of Greece, which were called by divers names, as Epiphanius hath not meerly fabulous. As for Princes ruling shewed at large, thought that the Apoftle St. Augustine and others may be trusted in the Sons, or, according to some Translations, ved faith and industry.

reckoned unto Alexander, and from him to written against the Christians, affirming, the battel of Astrum, it were (peradventure) that these prophecies and visions, rememin this place impertinent to fet down. But bred by Daniel, were written long after his feeing that the beginning and end of the Ba- death, and at, or near the time of Antiochus

ø. II.

beginning of the Captivity: with an answer to the cavils of Porphyrie, inveighing against S. Matthew and Daniel, upon whom the latter of thefe opinions is found-

Any Commentators, and other Historians and Chronologers find, that the Zedechia. Hence have we the first light five and twentieth year of our being in Capitalian the facred and prophane Histories. For wity, in the beginning of the year, in the tenth the whilft in fundry parts of the world, had spoken he knew not what, in reckoning fetting down their times, which they had the Son, and Nephews of that good King, by Tradition from Authors of well-appro- begotten about the time of the Captivity. Upon Daniel also the same Porphyric doth From Cyrus forwards, how the times are spend the twelfth of his malicious Books bylonian Captivity, are marks whereby we Epiphanes. This fond supposition of his,

Eucebius, Apollonius, and others, have suffi- Angel, to feal up the same to the time apwards fernfalem to have destroyed it , this Daniels visions. Book of Daniel, wherein he beheld his own glory foretold, as the same was plainly expounded unto him; which not only flayed his hand from the harm of that City and people; but his assurance and resolution was fo confirmed and strengthened thereby, as despising all future peril and resistance, he conquered Darius, and the Eastern Empire, in a shorter time than Nabuchodonosor had done one City, to wit, Tyre in Phanicia. It is true indeed, that the Fews themselves

give less authority to Daniel, than to Moles Hagiographa, or holy Writings, which they compiled after their return from Babylon. But first, that the Book of Daniel (I mean so much as is found in the Hebrew) is Canonical; fecondly, that it was written by Daniel himself, and not by Esdras and the Seniors; we may affure our felves by testimony of Councils and Fathers. For in the common. Council of Landicaa, held about the year of our Lord 368. after the death of Jovinian Ruth, Lamentations, Ecclefiaftes, Hefter, Efra, return to this place.

Nehemia, and the Chronicles. And that it But it stands indeed with little reason was Daniel, and not Estras, that wrote this that we should seek the interpretation of a ciently answered. For, the Seventy Inter-pointed, is an unanswerable testimony. Yea. preters, who converted the Old Testament that which exceedeth all strength of other about an hundred years before Epiphanes, proof, our Saviour Christ, who citeth no did also turn this Book of Daniel out of Apocryphal Scripture, in Matthew and Mat. 24. Hebrew into Greek, as a part of Scripture Mark alledgeth Daniel the Prophet, to wit, Mark 13. received. And, were there no other argu- the last verse of his ninth Chapter. Further, 14 ment to confound Porphyrie, than that of in the fifth of John, Christ distributeth the Alexander Macedon, it were fufficient, who rilen from the dead, as in Daniel the Dan. 12.

Mar. 1-1 lived divers years before Antiochus Epipha- twelfth, verfe the fecond. Saint Paul denes. For faddus the High Priest shewed scribeth Antichrist, out of Daniel; and the that great Conquerour, when he came to- Revelation is wholly an interpretation of

s. III.

That the seventy years of Captivity are to be numbred from the destruction of Jerusalem; not from the migration of Jechonia.

Aving thus far digreffed in maintaining that authority which must often be cited in the present argument, it is now convenient, that we return unto the differences of opinion concerning the beginning of and the Prophets; accompting his Book these seventy years. Neither will I stand among those which they call Cetaphim, or to trouble my self and others with laying open the grounds or weakness of that fay Efdras, and the Seniors of the Synagogue | which Eufebius, and some few nameless Authors, have fometimes held in this point, which is lately revived by Beroaldus; but will forthwith enter into confideration of that opinion, which many, both ancient and late Writers, have fo earnestly maintained, that it wants not much of being

Four Kings of Juda were carried away captives to Babylon: First, Manasses; then the Emperour, and after the Nicene Coun- Jehojakim, and with him among others, cil three and forty years, this Book of Da- Daniel the Prophet: Thirdly, Jeconias, and niel was received, verified and confirmed with him Ezechiel: Lastly, Zedechias, at among the other Canonical Scriptures, as in which time the City and Temple were dethe Epitomy of the same Council it may be stroyed. To the first of these Captivities, feen; and so doth Meliton the most ancient the beginning of the seventy years is refer-Bithop of Sardis number it, witness Eusebi- red by none that I have read; to the second, ms in his Ecclefiaftical History, the fourth by few, and with weak proof; to the third, Book, and five and twentieth Chapter: fo by very many, and with much confidence. doth the same Author in the Catalogue of For besides those places of Ezechiel already Canonical Books upon Origen: fo doth Hilling in his Preface upon the Plalms, and out of ferent, which may feem to make the Epiphanius in his Book of Weights and matter plain. For the Prophet, in com-Measures, &c. To these I may add St. Hie- forting the people that were carried away rom, Gregory Nazianzene, and others. For, with Jechonias, useth these words: Thus fer. 29.10 the Hagingrapha-Books or holy Writings, faith the Lord, After seventy years be accomthe Jews and Rabbines reckon to be these, plished at Babel, I will visit you, and perform Daniel, Psalms, Proverbs, Job, Canticles, my good promise towards you, and cause you to

Book, Gods commandment unto him by his Prophecy out of circumstances, when the

Prophecy is such as doth sufficiently ex- been more exactly set down, than it was in pound it felf. Jeremy hath already, in the the place now last of all cited. If it be refourth year of Jehojakim, denounced the quifite that we bring more proof in fo evijudgment of God against the Land, for the dent a case, the ninth Chapter of Daniel fins and impenitency of that obstinate peo- yeelds testimony sufficient, unto this expo-Jerso 16 ple, in these words: Behold, I will send, and sition of Jeremia his Prophecy, that Jeru-17, 6 18 take to me all the families of the North, faith falem was to lye waste seventy years. For the Lord, and Nebuchadnezzar the King of in the first year of Darius the Mede, which Babel, my fercant; and will bring them was the last of the seventy, Daniel obtained against this Land, and against the Inhabitants of God the deliverance, that had been prothereof, and against all these Nations round mised, by prayer, which he made upon about; and I will destroy them, and make them | consideration of the time that was expired: an altonifiment, and an hilling, and a conti- as he telleth in these words: In the first year Dan sa nual defolition. Moreover, I will take from of his reign , I Daniel understood by Books them the voice of mirth, and the voice of glad- the number of the years whereof the Lord had nes; the voice of the Bridegroom, and the Spoken unto Jeremiah the Prophet, that he voice of the Bride; the noise of the mill-stones, would accomplish seventy years in the desiand the light of the candle; and this whole lation of Jerusalem. So that howsoeverthe Land shall be desolate, and an astonishment, time of Daniel his own Captivity be reckonand these Nations shall serve the King of Babel ed from the taking of Jehojakim, and that Seventy years. And when seventy years are the people carried away with Jeconia, did expired, I will oilst the King of Babel. Here accompt, as well they might, the years of we see prescribed unto the Captivity the their own Captivity; yet with the general term of seventy years: which were to com- desolation of the Country, wherein were mence, neither when the Prophecy was ut- few or none of the Israelites left remaining tered; nor when Jehojakim, who then to inhabit, began in the nineteenth year of reigned, was taken by Nebuchadnezzar; nor Nabuchodonofor the great Captivity, which yet in the time of Jechonia: but with the by Gods appointment continued unto the utter defolation of the City, whereof fere- end of feventy years. my did again give notice to those that were already in Babylon, at fuch time as he fent | the authority of Josephus and others affirmthem the comfort of deliverance before re- ing the same; for a smuch as that which alhearfed. And so did the people under- ready hath been produced, is enough to laftand this Prophecy, in those times when tissie any man that hath not fully determinthey faw it accomplished; beginning the ed to hold the contrary. feventy years at the time of the desolation, as manifestly appears in the end of the Hiftory of Juda, where it is faid thus: They burnt the House of God, and brake down the Sundry opinions of the Kings which reigned wall of Jerusalem, and burnt all the Palaces in Babylon during the seventy years. thereof with fire, and all the precious vessels thereof to destroy all: And they that were left by the sword, carried he away to Babel, and they were fervants to him, and to his sons, tivity, and how long each of them did wear until the Kingdom of the Persians had rule, to the Diademe, it is a matter of no great imfulfil the Word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremia, until the Land had her fill of her Sab- their acts were notable in the age wherein fire kept Sabbath, to fulfil seventy years. But any way helpful to the concordance of

This I will not further feek to prove, by

ø. IV.

Hat Kings reigned in Babylon, during thele seventy years of the Capportance to know; forasmuch as neither baths: for all the daies that she lay desolate, they lived, nor the length of their reigns, in the first year of Cyrus King of Persia (when times, foregoing or succeeding. The conthe Word of the Lord, Spoken by the mouth of quests, recounted by Xenophon, of Syria, Ara- Xuntu Jeremia, was finished) the Lord stirred up the bia (or rather some part of it) Hyramia, was Spirit of Cyrus. We seldem find one piece Bastria, and perhaps of some other Counof Scripture, fo precifely and plainly ex- tries, may feem fruits of the victories obpounded by another as in this Prophecy, tained by Nebnehadnezzar the Great (or by to have afterwards been the subject of al- some of his Ancestors) in the former part tercation. For one can hardly devise how of his life, before he betook himself to ease, either the Desolation could have been ex- and to the sumptuous building of his great prefied more fenfibly, than it was by the Babel, for the house of his Kingdom, and Prophet, or the event of the Prophecy have | for the honour of his Majesty, where it may stance, offered to charge them.

Now as their actions from the end of wild I. 1. Nebuchadnezzars wars, till the ruin of their cited in this case, are so repugnant one to Empire, were not worthy to be recorded; the other, and the proofs of their different fo was the distinction of their times, and reports, are so slender and unsufficient, that reign of their feveral Kings, unworthy of the fuccession of these Princes, had it not the great labour that hath in vain been ta- been thus delivered in Scriptures, but only kenin that business. For when it is granted, | fet down by some Authour of equal credit that the Captivity of Juda, ending with that | with the rest, might very well have found Empire, lasted seventy years, we may as and deserved as good belief, as any of those realonably forbear to fearch into the par- things which they have delivered in this of the ages of the Patriarchs, and their chil- from Father to Son, through five generafum.

this bufiness, upon defire (as I take it) to approve the beginning and end of the feventy to take a little pains in collecting their opinot be found.

The opinions are many, and greatly repugnant, both in recounting the Kings name only three Kings, Nebuchadnezzar, an ill-conditioned Boy, was at the end of Evilmerodach, and Balthafar ; Neither have nine menths flain by fuch as were about they only the filence of Daniel, who names him, and the Kingdom given to one Naboninone other, to be their warrant; but the dus, who held it by the election of the Prophecy of feremy precisely, and in a man- Conspirators, and left it unto Cyrus after 17

feem that he and his Heirs kept a great ner purposely teaching the very same. For ftate, and did very little. The idle beha- God, by the mouth of the Prophet, shewviour of the Affyrian Souldiers, in fuch skir- ing that he, being absolute Lord of all, would misses as afterwards they had with the dispose of all according to his own will, and Medes, doth argue no less. For, whereas making it known that he had put some under Nebuchadnezzar, they were so stout Countries here named, into the hands of and industrious, that (to omit other proofs) the King of Babel, faith thus: And all Na- fer. 27. 2 they attempted, and finished that hardy tions shall serve him, and his son, and his piece of work, of winning the strong City Sons Son, until the very time of his Land of Twe, by joyning unto it the Continent, come also; then many Nations and great filling up the deep and broad chanel of the Kings shall serve themselves of him. These Sea, dividing it from the main with a mole words, expressing the continuance of the or piece of earth, and other matter; the Chaldean Empire, and number of the Kings, reparation whereof, when the Sea had will hardly be qualified with any distinctiwashed it away, was the very greatest of on. But indeed I find no other necessity Alexanders works: in the times following, of qualification to be used herein, than such they became timorous, that they durst not as may grow out of mens defire, to reconcile approach nearer to the enemy than their the Scriptures unto prophane Authours. bows would carry, but were ready to turn And this defire were not unjust, if the contheir backs as foon as any, though inferiour fent of all Histories were on the one fide, in numbers, adventuring within the di- and the letter of the holy Text were fingle on the other fide.

But contrariwife, the Authours which are

ticular continuance of two or three flothful point. For some there are, who following Kings, as we are contented to be ignorant Josephus, derive that Empire, as by descent, Jo. 15, dren living in the Egyptians servitude; rest- tions, beginning with Nabuchodnosor the ing satisfied in both with the general assured Great, and giving to him 43 years; to Evilmerodach 18; to Niglifar the Son of Evil-Yet forafmuch as many have travelled in merodach 405 to Labofardach the Son of Niglifar o months; and lastly, to Balthafar (whom fosephus intimates to be of the race years, not only by the reigns of other Prin- of Nabuchodonofor, without naming his Faces, ruling elsewhere, but by the times of ther) 17 years. And this opinion (fave that the Affgrians themselves; I will not refuse he forbears to reckon the years, and plainly calls Balthafar the Son of Labofardach) nions, and shewing what I think may best | Saint Hierom doth follow, alleaging Berofus be held for likely, if the certain truth can- and Josephus as a fectator of Berosus, for his Authors; though Berofus, as he is cited by Josephus, report the matter far otherwise. For he tells us, that Evilmerodach the Son Jos, com; themselves, and in setting down the years of Nabuchodonosor did reign but two years, dp. 1. 1. of their several reigns. The first, and (as I take for his wickedness and lust, slain by his Siit) the furest, is theirs, who meerly follow sters Husband Niziglissoror, who occupied the authority of the Scriptures, without the Kingdom after him four years, and left borrowing any help from others. These it to his own Son Labosardach; who being josephus, and both of them as bad with the Scriptures, in the taking of Babylon, while Scriptures, in number either of years, or of the King was at his drunken feaft. generations; yet the particularities which Seeking therefore diligently into all cirthey handle, have procured unto them cumftances that might give any light in this fome authority; fo that the names which obscurity, I found manifest proof, that the they have inserted are taken as it were upon time allotted unto Balthasar by Annius his trust. There is a third opinion which makes Metasthenes, was far short of the truth, the three laft Kings Brethren, and Sons of which is enough to render all suspected that Evilmerodach; and this may well enough he hath faid in distributing what part of the

918

Accounty-value fails last King of Babylon was immediate succession, after which he was sick certain daies, four to his Father. But whereas the Author | but when he rose up, he did the Kings busof the Scholaftical Hiftery, who is founder ness: from which business, that he did afterof this opinion, placeth between him that wards withdraw himself, and live retired, to took Jerusalem, and Evilmerodach, another long, that he was forgotten in the Court, it Nabuchodonofor : plain enough it is that he appears plainly, both by the many words hath, out of any History facred or prophane, which the old Queen used to fet out his sufas little warrant to guide him, as we have ficiency, and by the Kings asking of him, reason to follow him. Ensebius, Sulpitius Nabuchodonofor. This is built on the fifth remembrance, were in my judgment a ve-Chapter of Daniel, wherein Balthasar (for of ry strange conceit; which rather than I Evilmerodach there is none that ever doubted) is often called Nabuchodonofor his Son. | think the whole ftory (thus related) a part And so common grew this explication, that St. Hierom called it the vulgar opinion. But the place of Jeremy before cited, proves that Balthafar was not the Son indeed, but the grand-child of that great Conqueror, though by the phrase very common in Scriges, he was called the Son.

the seventy years of Captivity, giving to Na-buchodonofor 45 years, to Evilmerodach 30 ing some, whose reigns might fill up the years, and to the three Sons of Evilmerodach, Nephews of Nabuchodonefor, fourteen years; that is, to Reg-Affar the eldest Son, three others, to Evilmerodach and Balthafar, joynyears; to Lab-Affar-Dach the fecond Son, fix years; and to Balthafar the third Son, five.

To this accompt agreeing with the Scriptures, both in the whole fum of years, and in the number of generations, I have him, fashion the years of Evilmerodach in fometime subscribed; as not daring to reject this fort. They say, that the 18 years given an appearance of truth, upon no greater to him by Josephus in the tenth of his Antireason, than because the Author was of quities, should be read and numbred 28 Annius his edition. Yet could I not fatisfie years; and the two years that Berosus hath my self herein; both for that none of the allowed to Evilmerodach, should be written Ancient, and few fuch of the Modern Wri- 23. In the first number the figure of (1) is ters as deserve to be regarded, have con-mistaken for the figure of (2) and in the latfented with this Metasthenes; and for that in ter there should have been added the figure making Balthasar succeed unto his Brother of (3) to that of (2): this granted (to wit) in the Kingdom, and not unto his Father, he that Evilmerodach reigned 28 years, whereis wholly against Xenophon, whose History of five together with his Father, and 23 afof the elder Cyrus in his Affrian war I can-ter his death, and the same number of 23 ad-years. This relation ill agrees with that of cially because it is very agreeable to the

agree with the Scripture: though I had ra- feventy years he pleafed among the reft. For Dag & Newborn ther believe Kenoplion, who faith, that the in the third year of Balthafar, Daniel faw a & w. when he came into his prefence, whether he Severus, and Theodoret, upon better ground were Daniel. Now to think that a man of Date, sub have supposed, that Evilmerodach and Bal-thasar were Brethren and Sons of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in two years have been worn out of the great could in the great could be g would entertain, I can well be contented to of Annius his impostures.

Out of these reports of Josephus, Berofus, and others, many new opinions are framed, by conjectures of late Writers. For, theendurance of the Captivity being 70 years, and these years extending unto the first of ptures, and familiar in those Eastern langua- Cyrus, in which course of time Nebuchadnezzar, his Son and Grand-child, must have Annius his Metasthenes hits very rightly reigned; it hath seemed needful to supply whole continuance of the Captivity; with which the time allotted by Berofus and ed unto the years following the nineteen of Nebuchadnezzar, (wherein Jerusalem was laid defolate) are nothing even.

Therefore Mercator and others following not flightly value in many respects, and espe- ded to the 25 which Nabuchodonosor lived CHAP. I. then 4 years of Niglifar, according to Bero- by God, whose commandment he had obeyfur, nine months of Labaffar dach his Son, and ed in yielding himself to Nebuchadnezzar. 17 years of Labonidus or Balthasar, make up Indeed how long fechonia did live, it canthe number of seventy years to the first of not be proved, but plain it is hereby, that Corns. But whether by errour in figures, all his remaining daies he did eat bread beor in words, the numbers be utterly mifta- fore this King. Now that he lived not fo keninall Copies extant; upon how weak a short a while after this as two years, it is foundation do they build, who having no- more than likely; for he was but 55 years thing to help them, fave only the bare when he was fet at liberty, having been 27 names of two unknown Kings, found in Au- years in the prison, whereinto he was cast at thors manifeltly corrupted, and fuch as, if the age of 18 years; after which time it they had been entirely extant, were not feems plain that he begat Salathiel, as well worthy to have the place of Feremy called into dispute, in regard of their authority?

ø. V.

A more particular examination of one opinion the Babylonian Kings.

somer, from the transportation of Jechonia. of him to pass it over with silence. But hereof enough hath been faid already.

he gives to Evilmerodach is very short, and any Author, as affected with the love of more precifely agreeing with Berosus than truth) but to shew that he himself, having in with the Scriptures. For we find in Ferent, some points disliked those Writers, whom in that this Evilmerodach in the first of his general he approveth, might with greatet reign, shewing all favour to Jechonia, did, reason have wholly reformed them by the  st.33, Portion was a continual portion given him whom Berofus calls Nabonidus, was the fame

after the destruction of Jerusalem, make 48. | this gentle Prince, enjoyed the comfort sent by the age of Zerobabel, who is faid to have been but a young man, and one of Darius his Pages, threefcore years after this, as by other circumstances of his imprisonment it

Of Belfazer, to whom Scaliger gives the touching the number, persons, and reigns of next five years, naming him also Laborosoardoch, I should wonder why he calls him Nebuchadnezzars daughter's fon, were it not Ther suppositions, little different in that herein I find him very careful to help Jubstance from this of Mercator, I pur- out Berofus, by shifting in his Niriglissorour, as polely forbear to rehearle, as falling under husband to Nebuchadnezzars daughter, and the same answer. That of Foseph Scaliger I Protector of his son four of these years; by may not forget, as deferving to be confider- | which means there remains about one year ed apart from the rest. He gives to Nebu- to Belfazer alone, agreeing nearly with the chadnezzar 44 years, to Evilmerodach two, nine months affigned by Berosus to the son to Belfazer 5. and to Nabonidus 17. So that of Niglifar. But Teremy hath told us, that it from the 19 of Nebuchadnezzar, in which was to Nebuchadnezzar, and to his fon. and Ferufalem was destroyed, unto the time of to his sons son (not to his daughters son) that Cyrus, he accounteth only 59 years; begin-the Empire was promifed: which difficulty, ning (as many do) the Captivity 11 years if scaliger could not help, it was well done

Nabonidus the last of these, whom others That which we are now to consider, is his (desirous to reconcile Berosus to the Scripdistribution of the time running between tures) have judged to be all one with Balthe 19 of Nebuchadnezzar, and the fall of thasar, is by Scaliger thought to be Darius of the Chaldean Empire: wherein if he have the Medes. But herein Scaliger is no firm Beerred, then is all further inquisition frivo- rosan: for Eerosus makes him of the same ftock or race, a Babylonian. I speak not this Concerning the length of Nebuchadnez- to difgrace the travel of that most learned zara reign, I shall hereafter upon better oc- man (for it highly commends his diligence casson deliver my opinion. The time which and judgment, that he was not so wedded to among other things, take order for him at Scriptures, wherein can be no errour. Two his table; and that he did continually eat things there are which chiefly did breed or bread before him all the daies of his life. His confirm this opinion in scaliger, that he of the King of Babel, every day a certain, all whom Daniel had called Darius of the the daies of his life until he died. The very Medes: First, the phrase of Scripture, found of these words (which is more to be which fignifies unto us, that Darius took the esteemed than the authority of Berosus, were Kingdom, not saying that he wann it by he perfectly extant) imports a farr longer force of arms: Secondly, a fragment of Metime than two years, wherein Jechonia, under gafthenes found in Eusebius, wherein this Nabonidus is called the Median. Touching the word of the Original, or of the Greek translar for judicious, industrious, and deeply learned word of the Original, or of the Greek translar for judicious, industrious, and deeply learned word of the Original, or of the Greek translar for judicious, industrious, and deeply learned word of the Original for the Original lation, which, expressing no force of arms, in setting down repugnancies. doth only fignific that Darius took or re-ceived the Kingdom; I fee no reason why we should thereupon inferr, that the next King there is no appeal. And herein it feems that entred by Election: feeing Daniel relateth Scaliger, well knowing his own fufficiency not the means and circumstances of Baltha- hath been little careful to satisfie men that nor the hearts and circumstances or many large death, but only the fwift accomplishment of his own Prophecy. Neither could it indeed have properly been faid (if Daniel the Kingdom of Balthafar was divided). had cared to use the most expressive terms) and given to the Medes and Perstans; either that Darius of the Medes, breaking into the we must think that Darius of the Medes was City, did win the Kingdom; feeing this was not Nabonidus, or elfe we must bethink our performed by Cyrus in the absence of Darius, selves what Persun it might be that shared though by his forces, and to his use. Now the Kingdom with him. For it is not more concerning the fragment of Megasthenes, true certain, that Balthasar lost his life and Kingit is, that in Eusebius his works printed at Ba- dom, than that his Kingdom was divided fil, in the year 1559. I find only thus much and given to the Medes and Perfians, Neither of Megasthenes, cited out of Alpheens; That did the Medes and Persians fall out and Nabuckodonosor was more valiant than Hercules; that he subdued all Lybia, and the rest of Asia, as far as to the Armenians; and have done; but these two Nations did that, as the Chaldwans report, being return- compound the body of that Empire, and ed into his Kingdom, and rapt with a divine were accounted as Lords over all the hybject fury, he cryed with a loud voice: O Baby- Provinces; infomuch that the Greek Hiltolonians, I foretell ye of a great calamity that rians did commonly call those wars which shall come upon you, which neither Bell, nor Darius, and after him Xerxes, made upon any of the gods shall avert: There will come Greece, The wars of the Medes. Yea, to upon you: and that, this and the like when fembles that King, with whom Alexander he had spoken, he vanished. Of all this I sought, unto a Ramm with two horns, calbelieve little or nothing, faving that Nabu- ling him the King of the Medes and Persans. chodonofor knew before-hand, that his Em- Wherefore the whole Nation of Chronologers pire should be translated, as Daniel had fore- were not to have been condemned by fortold, from the golden head, to the filver feph scaliger, for maintaining upon fuch breast. But that he wan all Africa or Lybia, good grounds, that Darius of the Medes I do hold it neither true nor probable.

520

more perfect, out of which Megasthenes tells ther was Josephus to be the less regarded, us, that Nabuchodonofor wan both Africk and for affirming that Balthafar was destroyed Spain, I believe the fragment so much the by Darius of the Medes, and his Nephew less; and am as little moved with the au- Cyrus; though herein he varied from Berothority of it, where it calls a Median, the Jus and others, whose authority elsewhere pride and confidence of the Affyrians; as he gladly citeth. For Josephus had no reawhere it tells of Nebuchadnezzar his own va- fon to believe any mans faith or knowledge nishing away. Indeed that same title (of half of those times half so well as Daniels, whom an Ass by which he calleth cyrus, makes me I believe that he understood as far as was to suspect the fable, as cunningly forged out needful in this case. Lawful it was for him of Apollo his Oracle, wherein he termeth him to alleage all Authors that had any mention, a Mule, because his parentage was more though unperfect, of the same things that noble on the Mothers fide than on the Fa- were contained in the writings of the Jews, thers; as Mules are begotten by Asses upon to whose Histories thereby he procured re-Mares. And thus much in answer of the two putation in the Roman world, where they principal foundations whereon this opinion were frangers, and might feem fabulous is built. As for the concinnity and cohe- Even so do Eusebius and other Writers wilrence which it had within it felf, I eafily all lingly embrace the teltimonies of Heathen low it. But this proves nothing; for meer books making for the truth in some partitions: neither can any man believe that one in general by the felf-same Ethnick Philoso-fight for it, as, by supposing Nabonidus to have been Darius, they should be thought to a Persian, half an Ass, that shall bring slavery clear this point, even Daniel himself re-Dassia was partner with Cyrus, in his victories, and If Scaligers Copy of Eulebius were the not a Chaldwan King by him fubdued. Neifictions have not wanted these commenda- culars; yet will they not therefore be tryed then very great.

ø. VI.

What may be held as probable of the Ferfons and Times of Nabuchodonofor his successors.

find how the seventy years of Captivity are twenty years of the Seventy, that were alto be divided among them which reigned most wholly spent when his Son began to in Babylon, though I find that the distribu- reign. tion made of them, in such wise as already is rehearfed, be ill agreeable to the holy mainder of the feventy years were divided Scriptures. Wherefore I may truly fay with between the Kings ruling in Babylon until Pererius, that we ought liberally to pardon the first of Cyrus. A question more difficult (as those whose feet have failed them in the I said before) than greatly needful: the flippery waies of Chronology, wherein both whole fumm being certain, and the diffinlearning and diligence are subject to take a ction of times affording no benefit in knowfall at one time or other, by ignorance, for- ledge of their actions, who were flothful getfulness, or heedless reckoning. Yet will I Princes. Neither can any man the more the judgment of Lyra and others (holding whole seventy years, for that the distributhose only to have reigned over the Chalda- tion of some part of them is only conjectural; ans, whose names are found in the Scri- seeing that none who gives any other terms ptures) appears more conformable to reason to their beginning or end, hath refused to no good colour be maintained) but only to truth. fhew that the Kings by him cited, are likely

a King. a. tain truth.

wanter it is, that the 19 year of seem-Research year of Jechonia his Captivity; the reign of who reigned so long, and Balthasar to have Inst.31. Zedechia occupied all the mean space, being been one. But nothing moveth me so much phers, but leave them where they are of 11 years. This is generally agreed upon. against the truth; as Josephus in this case so that it needs no further proofs: As for the hath left Berofus. And thus much I thought beginning of his successor Evilmerodach, it ramet to fay of scaligers opinion in this was in the seven and thirtieth year of Tecopoint; holding nevertheless in due regard nia his Captivity; fo that Nebnehadnezzar his learning and judgment, which if in some after his eight year (which was the first of things it had not failed, the miracle had fechonia his bondage) reigned 35 whole years, and peradventure a good part of the fix and thirtieth, forasmuch as Jechonia was inlarged with so great a favour, not until the end of the year. Subtracting therefore out of these four and forty, which Nebuchadnezzar's reign did well-neer occupy those eighteen years of his which passed TT now remains that I freely acknow- away before the Captivity of Juda, and ruin ledge mine own weakness, who cannot of the City, we have remaining fix and

It is is now to be confidered, how the readventure to deliver my opinion, wherein justly suspect the beginning or end of the and account of time, than any of the other follow both unlikely and desperate con-Sentences or Conjectures before rehearfed, | jectures in dividing them. I will therefore Not that I will take upon me to defend Ly- | be bold to do as others have done; knowing rahis Conjectures, when he supposeth by well before-hand, that whosoever shall dif-Niglifar and Labofardach to be meant the cover my error, must do me the pleasure fame persons which are called in Scriptures | (which I could rather wish in a case more Evilmerodach and Balthafar (for this can by material) of making me to understand the

Of the four and forty years remaining in to have occupied the whole time of seventy | account of Nebuchadnezzar's death, we are years. First therefore let us consider the to take away the last, which was the first of reign of Nebuchadnezzar, in whose eigh- Darius the Mede, and then having authoriteenth year Jerusalem was taken and fackt, ty good enough to warrant us from blame but in his nineteenth laid utterly desolate. of presumption in giving us seventeen years Most of Writers have given to him 43 to Balthafar, we find left in our hands to beyears of reign, following therein Berofus. | flow upon Evilmerodach fix and twenty There are who have added one year more; | years. Of the year belonging unto Darius and some have made it up 45. To dispute the Mede, I have already spoken what I about the certainty were needless: for in thought sufficient, in delivering my opinion shewing by what length of time the Scri- of the beginning and continuance of this ptures measure him, we shall shew the cer- | Captivity. That Balthafar did reign seventeen years, we have the authority of Josephus, Manifest it is, that the 19 year of Nebu- before cited in express words : We have also chiasas also that his eighth year, was the first Writers, interpreting Berosus his Nabonidus, to believe this Tradition, as first those evil ill written, if some crooked hand, or other Das. 3... dent places in Daniel, shewing that in the michance not unusual, had omitted the first 10 Bass. General parts of Ealth far he followed the stroke of the former letter, or added a dash 65. 9. 113 Kings buffines, and yet was forgotten ere the to the latter, which might cause them to end of his reign, (a proof fufficient of no feem not two different figures, but the one few years, palling under this man, especial- a correction of the other, which how it ly seeing it is no where found that Daniels | could be supposed in by standing for 23, I employments took end either that year or do not well perceive. As for the Arithmethe next.) Secondly, the confideration of tical figures now in use, they were, long after Crus his wars against the Affrians, which the time of Josephus brought in by the Arabeginning with the death of this mans Fa- | bians, and therefore do not appertain unto ther, and being alwaies prosperous, could this business; unless we should guess that hardly have occupied any longer time; his works were corrupted in that unlearned though we make large allowance to his age, which following the Saracen-conqueft, deeds in the lower Afia, which fell out in was little occupied in the studies of humathe mid-way: I have already fliewed, that | nity, but in a fort wholly given over to the there appears in the Scriptures likelihood doccrine of Aristotle. If this will serve to enough to make it credible, that the reign make Berosus our friend, so let it be; if not, of Evilmerodach was not short, and that men I will not purchase the favour of his authoof great judgment have found it most pro- rity, by forsaking Jeremy and Daniel when bable, that he was a King three and twenty | they feem to be his Opposites. years. More, I think, they would have allowed him, had not the defire of farisfying Berefus caused them to rest content with this. And furely it were greatly to be withed, that Books of fuch autiquity, as those of Berofus, were extant without corruption; a great light (no doubt) they would yield in many dark passages of Antiquity. I will yet confess, that were his works never so excellent, and in all things elfe unquestionably true, I would not therefore condescend unto him in some one point, wherein the Scripeures were his open enemy: How much it felf was, and is yet, fought to be abridgless ought I obey a broken fragment of his, ed, as not having left sufficient matter to containing only seven or eight lines, and witness the length of it. But by such an arpart even of the title corrupted, as they believe that follow him in the reft? The Scriptures have told us, that God gave the Em-Jer. 27.7 pire to Nebuchadnezzar, to his Son, and to the beginning and last end of it, hath in his Sons Son: How long each of them held fome flothful age rather dreamt away the it, we find not expressed; yet would we time, than spent it. It is therefore no margladly know it of Berofus, or of any other |vel, if the posterity of Nabuchodonosor, findthat would teach us; provided alwaies, that | ing all things ready to their hand, which not thereby the general truth. More words | themselves to their ease and pleasures, think-of the victories which Nabuchodonofor obtained between the destruction of Jerusalem, and conquest of Egypt.

VII.

Ith what actions this time of seventy years was entertained by the Babylonian Kings, few have written, or little is remaining in record. Which may peradventure have been some cause that the time gument we might as well deny to many people even their Being. For every Nation (I know not whom I should except) between helping us in a particularity, he destroyed their hearts could have desired, betook are needless. It is enough to say with ing perhaps, like the prodigal Sons of greethers, that Berosus, or Josephus who cited dy Fathers, their own wisdom greater, him, hith been wronged by the carelefness which knew how to enjoy, than that of their of Scribes; and that it was as easie for those | Ancestors, which wearied away their dates Scribes to erre in writing two for fix and in the reftless travel of purchafing: Though twenty, as for three and twenty, or perhaps indeed the reign of Nabuchodonofor was fo more casie. For the emission of the second divided, that his youthful and stronger figure, was as likely the one way as the other; and the Character 5, fignifying 6, arms, no finall part of his life was remaining hath a nearer resemblance of & that stands to be spent in establishing what was gotten, for 2, than hath 7 which is used for 3. So and gathering the fruit of his worthy lathat the numeral notes $6.5, expressing 26, bours past. The nineteenth year of his were not fafe enough from being militaken reign it was, when destroying utterly the in the true Copy, and might be altered, as great and mighty City of Jerujalem, he enjoyning Regions, which God had exposed invincible. ploying all his power to their subversion.

CHAP. I.

table, which Ezekiel condemneth as the common wholly stand at his devotion, or at least be even in the nineteenth year of Nabuchodono-mischief.

Harrist Efay, which appoint unto this defolation of followed the Chaldwan Army, to feed upon riched himself with abundance of spoil, and head was made bald, and every shoulder was terrified all that would offer to refift him, made bare, yet had be no wages, nor his Army; by that fearful example. From that time but was fain to rest contented with the Hoforward, he, until his three and twentieth nour of having destroyed that City, which year, laboured in the conquest of those ad- in all mens judgments had been held unto his fword, and commanded to wear. The destruction of these two great and his voke; namely, the Edomites, Mashites, powerful Cities, having made the name of Ammonites, Tyrians, Sydonians, and Egypti- the Chaldwans dreadful in the ears of all the ans; though some of these were already be- Nations thereabout, Nabuchodonosor used come his followers, and ferved under him, the advantage of that reputation which he when Jerusalem was beaten down and burnt. had obtained by victories already gotten. But the Tyrians, whose City was founded on to the getting of more, and more profitable, an Illand, fafe enough from any danger of a with less pain. The Kingdom of Egypt was Land-army, and whose Fleet was fo strong, the Mark at which he aimed; a Country so that they needed not to fear any enemy at abounding in all riches and pleasures, that it Sea, were neither daunted with the fall of might well have tempted any Prince, findtheir neighbour-Cities, nor with the obstilling himself strong enough, to seek occasion nate resolution of this mighty Prince, im- of quarrel against it; and so farr an enemy to the Crown of Babylon, that, had it been That the City of Tyre was rather well poorer, yet either it must have been subdupleased, than any way discouraged with ed, or the conquest of Syria could ill have the fall of ferufalem (which had held the been established. Nevertheless it was needsame course that Tyrus did, and endured all ful, that before he entred into this business. that might be in the same quarrel against the Countries adjacent should be reduced the common enemy) it appears by the words unto fuch terms, that either they should voice of Tyrus; Aha, the gate of the people is unable to work him any displeasure. And broken, it is turned unto me; for seeing sle is desolate, I shall be replenished. Yet at length, all prosperous enterprises, with reason of State. For, the people of Moab, Ammon, for, that great work of his, whereof we have Edom, Damascus, Kedar, Hazar, and other already spoken, began to appear above the adjoyning Regions, whom God for their sins waters, and threaten them with inevitable had condemned to fall under the Babylonian fwords, were fuch, as regarding only their But those Prophecies of Jeremy and of own gain, had some of them, like Ravens, Tyre the same term of seventy years, that was the karcasses that fell by the cruelty thereprescribed unto the reign of the Chaldwans, of; others taking advantage of their neighdo plainly shew, that she followed ferusalem, bours miscries, occupied the Countries the same mineteenth year of Nabuchodonosor, which were by his victories belonging to in the fame, or a very like fortune. The parti- Nabuchodonofor: all of them thinking, that cularities, which doubtless were memorable when the Affirian had satisfied his fury, he in the iffue of fo great and laborious a fiege, should be fain to forfake those desolate are in a manner utterly loft. Thus much we parts, and leave the possession to those that find, That the Citizens perceiving the could lay hand upon it. Particularly the Exchas. Town unable to hold out, embarked them- Edomites and Philiftims had shewed much 12. 5 15. solves, and fled into the Isle of Cyprus. malice to the Jews when their City was ta-Nevertheless, it seems that this evasion serv- ken. What good service they had done to ed only the principal men, who escaping the Chaldwans, I find not; if they did any, with their goods, abandoned the poorer it is likely to have been with reference to fortunto the enemies fury. For, not only their own purposes, wherein they were disfuch people of Tyre as dwelt on the Conti- appointed. The Ammonites were not connent, (who are called her Daughters in the tented to rejoyce at the fall of ferufalem, but Exek 25.3 field) were put to the fword; but the like presently they entred upon the Country of fw. 49. 1. execution was done in the streets, into Gad, and took possession, as if not the Assistance which, with excessive labour, the Assyrian rians, but they had subdued Israel. Neither made way for his Horses and Chariots. Thus can I perceive what other ground that pra-Nabuchodonofor caused his Army to serve a cice had of Baalis King of the Ammonites, great service against Tyrus, wherein every when he sent Ishmael, a Prince of the blood

King of Eabel had left Governour over diment unto his proceeding, or take advanthose that remained in Ifrael, and to carry tage of any misfortune; then did he forthcaptive into the ammonites Country the with take in hand the conquest of Egypt people that abode in Mirabab, than a defire himfelf, upon which those other Nations January of embroiling Natuchadanofor, with fo many had formerly been depending. Of this Expedition, and the victorious iffue thereof, Jo. 28. into his own Country, and abandon those the three great Prophets, Flay, Jeremy, and wasted Lands to himself and others, for whom they lay conveniently. Such or the it altogether needless to look after more aulike policy the Moabites did exercise, thority, or to cite for proof half of that whose pride and wrath were made frustrate which may be alleadged out of these. Neby God; and their diffimulation condemned, as not doing right. All these Nations had the art of ravening. which is familiar to fuch as live or border upon defarts; and now the time afforded unto fuch a fenfe, as gives to Nabuchodonofor them occasion to shew the uttermost cun-little more than the honour of having done ning of their the with wits. But Nebuchadnez- fome spoil in Egspt, omitting the conquest of zar did cut funder all their devices by that Land by the Babylonian, and referring tharp and fudden war, overwhelming them the death of Apries or Hophra to a Chance with unexpected ruin, as it were in one long after following, which had no cohe-16:36.14, night; according to the Prophecies of Efoy, rence with these times or affairs. So prelittle difference of words, the greatness and take in the means and second helps condufwiitness of the milery that should come cing to their purpose, that oftentimes they upon them. With which of them he first do preferr the Commentator before the began, I find not; it feems that Moab was Author; and, to uphold a fentence, giving

ø. VIII.

of the Land of Juda.

That Egypt was conquered, and the King thereinreigning flain by Nabuchodonofor, contrary to the opinion of most Authors: who following Herodotus and Diodorus, relate it otherwife.

bordering Arabians, in fuch wife, that no sistem Captain of the rebels, and was enemy to himself, nor friend to the Egyptian, by them chosen King. Finally, the whole of Jula to murther Gedalia, whom the was left at his back, that might give impe-Ezekiel, have written so plainly, that I hold vertheles, we find many and good Authors, who following Herodotus and Diodorus Siculus, are well contented to frrain these Prophecies with unreasonable diligence fereny, and Ezekiel, who foretold, with posterous is the delight which many men the last which felt his hand: for so do many testimony to one clause, do carelessy overgood Authors interpret the Prophecy of throw the History it felf, which thereby Efay, threatning Moab with destruction af- they fought to have maintained. The reter three years, as having reference to the ports of Herodotus and Diodorus, concerning third year following the ruin of Jerusalem; the Kings of Egypt, which reigned about the next year after it being spent in the these times, are already rehearsed in the Egyptian Expedition. This is manifest, that former Book: but that which they have all the principal Towns in these Regions spoken of Apries, was purposely reserved were burnt, and the people flain, or made unto this place. Herodotus doth affirm, that flaves, few excepted, who being preferved he was a very fortunate King, but wherein by flight, had not the courage to return to he telleth not; (unless we should under better the courage to return to he telleth not; (unless we should under better the courage to return to he telleth not; (unless we should under better the courage to return to he telleth not). their habitations over-haftily, much less to stand that he was victorious in the War, attempt any thing against Nabuchodonofor; which he is said to have made upon Tyrus but lived as miserable Out-laws, or at least and sydon); that he reigned five and twenty oppressed wretches, until the end of seven- years; and was finally taken and put to ty years, which God had prescribed unto death by his own Subjects; who did set up the desolation of their Countries, as well as Amasis, as King, which prevailed against him. The rebellion of the Egyptians he imputeth to a great loss which they received in an Expedition against the Cyrenians, by whom almost their whole Army was destroyed. This calamity the people of Egypt thought to be well pleafing to their King, who had fent them on this dangerous Expedition, with a purpose to have them confumed, that so he might with greater security reign over fuch as stayed at home. So Hen by a long course of victory, Nather who escaped, and the friends of such as were slain, rebelled against Apries, who jection all the Nations of Spria, and the fent Amalis to appeale the tumult; but Ama-

Land confented unto this new Election; all the people. Certainly, if that notable Siden, wann the other Towns of Phanicia, as is before rchearfed, when he had reignftruction of Egypt by the Babylonian, foretoldby the Prophets, which hath no coherence with these relations, hath greater traditions of Egyptian Priests (which the phonomer in the Bayerian Priefts and notably deluded Herodotis with lyes, men so unable to defend themselves.

CHAP. L.

CHAP. L.

force indeed, but by the uniform confent of death of Apries can no way be approved, as whereby Apries was driven to trust unto his place of Jeremy, wherein he foretelleth how forcin Mercenaries, the Ionians and Carians, the Jews in Egypt should see Pharaoh Hophra Je. 44.20 of whom he kept continually in readiness delivered into the hand of his enemies, as Jer. 45.10 thirty thousand good Souldiers that fought Zedekia had been, were to be referred unto valiantly for him, but were at length van- the time of that rebellion, whereof Herodoquished by the great number of the Egypti- tus hath spoken, as the general opinion hath an forces, amounting unto two hundred and over-ruled it; then was it vainly done of tiffy thousand, which were all by birth and the same Prophet (which, God forbid that education, men of War. Apries himself be- any Christian should think, seeing he did it ing taken prisoner, was gently entreated by by the appointment of God himself) to hide Amalis for a while, until the Egyptians, ex- in the clay of a Brick-hill, those very stones. claiming upon him, as an extreme enemy to upon which the Throne of Nabuchodonofor the Land, got him delivered into their should be set, and his Pavilion spread Yea hands, and strangled him, yet they gave then was that Prophecy no other than false, him honourable burial. Such is the report which expressed the end of Pharaoh thus : 301.46.25, and See of Herodotus, with whom Diodorus Siculus Behold, I will visit the common people of No. 5 26. doth nearly agree; telling us, that Apries did and Pharaoh, and Egypt, with their gods, and vanquish the Cyprians and Phanicians in their Kings, even Pharaoh, and all that trust battel at Sea, took by force and demolished in him: and I will deliver them into the hands of those that seek their lives, and into the and the Isle of Cyprus, and finally perished, hand of Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babel, and into the hands of his servants. The ed two and twenty years. This authority clearness of this Prophecy being such as were enough (yet not more than enough) could not but refute that interpretation of to inform us of Apries his hiftory, if greater | many other places, which referred all to the authority did not contradict it. But the de- rebellion of Amasis, it caused me to wonder what those Commentators would say to it, who are elsewhere so diligent in fitting all to the Greek Historians. Wherefore lookforce to compel our belief, than have the ing upon Junius, who had in another place Junius Jetaken the enemies of Pharaoh Hophra to be v. 36. Greek Historians followed) and greater Amasis and his followers, I found him here probabilities to perfwade those that look acknowledging that the Egyptian Priests cied long before of the shameful Captivity | coyned upon a vain-glorious purpose of hiof the Egyptians, whom the King of Affair ding their own difference and bondage. And should carry away naked, young and old, furely, it may well be thought, that the hiin such wise, that the fews, who fled then story of Nebuchadnezzar was better known for deliverance from the Affyrian, should be to the Jews, whom it concerned, than to ashamed of their own vain confidence in the Greeks, that scarcely at any time heard of his name. Therefore I see no cause why But Ezekiel and Feremy, as their Prophe- we should not rather believe Josephus, recies were nearer to the time of execution, fo porting that Nabuchodonofor in the three and they handled this argument more precifely. twentieth year of his reign, and the fifth For Exekiel telleth plainly, that Egypt year of the destruction of Jerusalem, did conshould be given to Nebuchadnezzar, as wages | quer Egypt, kill the King thereof, and apfor the service which he had done at Tyre: point another in his stead, than Herodotus Also he recounteth particularly all the chief or Diodore; who being meer strangers to Cities in Egypt, faying, That these by name this business, had no great reason to labour 30 should be deftroyed, and go into Captivity; in fearching out the truth, but might rest yea that Pharaoh and all his Army should be contented with any thing that the Priests flain by the fword. Wherefore it must needs would tell them. Now if setting aside all adbe a violent exposition of these Prophecies, vantage of authority, we should only consiwhich by applying the islue of such threat- der the relations of Josephus, and of the nings to an infurrection and rebellion, con- Greek Historians, as either of them might cludes all, without any other alteration in be verified of it felf by apparent circumstan-Egypt, than change of the Kings person, ces, without reflecting upon the Hebrew wherein Amasis did succeed unto Apries, by Prophets, or Egyptian Priests; methinks the

having been wrought by confent of the fuch as did more enlarge his Dominion. people, but affords great matter of fuspici- than all the former Wars had done, it may on; yea, though no man had opposed the re- easily be gathered out of Exckjel, who ports of Herodotus and Diodore. For the reckoneth up in his 30 Chapter (besides great love and honour which the Egyptians the whole Country of Egypt) Phut and Lud, did bear unto their Kings, is notorious by with other Nations, that may feem to have the uniform testimony of all others that reached out into Mauritana, as people subhave handled the matters of that Country, dued by this great Babylonian. The circumas well as by the report of Diodore himself. Stances of these Wars are in a manner utter-How then can we think it probable, that ly loft; but that the victory was easie and Apries having wonn great victories, did for fwift, any manshall find, who will take the one only loss fall into the hatred of all his pains to conferr the places, wherein the people? or, which may ferve to perswade us, that a King of Egypt would feek, or so demean himself, that he might be thought to feek the destruction of his natural subjects? As for that Army of thirty thousand fouldiers, Carians and Ionians, which the King of Egypt, whom Amasis took prisoner, is said to have kept for his defence: Doth it not argue that he was a foreiner, and one that all his friends and adherents in Syria. For, armed himself against the Egyptians, wishing as the labour of this buliness did more harthem few and weak; rather than any of the Pharaohs, who accounted the force of the Country, as affuredly their own, as the ftrength of their own bodies ? It were more tedious than any way needful, to use all Arguments that might be alleadged in this cafe. The very death of this supposed Apries. which the clamours of the people obtained of Amasts, who sought to have kept him them (as may justly be thought) in the time alive, doth intimate that he was some forein Governour, not a natural Prince; otherwise the hearts of men fail, when those helps the people would have defired to fave his fail, in which they had reposed more conlife, and Amasis to take it quickly from him. I will not labour any further to disprove the Kingdom of Egypt had flourished under that opinion, whereunto I should not have the rule of the Pharaohs, about a thouland yielded, though it had flood upon great ap- | five hundred and fourfcore years; but from pearance of truth, confidering that the this time forward it remained forty years voice of truth it self cries out against it; but without a King, under the subjection of the leave the circumstances, proving the Con- Babylonians; and then at length it began to quest of Egypt by Nabuchodonosor, to be ob- recover by little and little the former greatferved where due occasion in course of the ness; yet so, that it was never dreadful unftory following shall present them.

S. IX.

chadnezzar,

That his Victories following the Conquest ried Captives theree to Babylon the Jews of Syria, and the Neighbour-Provinces, were whom he found in that Country. Now con-

three great Prophets touch this Argument. Thus much I think worthy of more particular observation; that Pharaoh, who (as is already noted in the former Book) thought himself most safe in Egypt by the well defenced fituation of his Country, did very unwifely in fuffering his enemies to fweep the way clean unto his own doors by confuming den, than weary the Chaldaan Army; fo the confidence and vain fecurity of the Egyptians, relying upon the difficult passages which the enemy was to make thorow the Arabian defarts, and the much advantage which the great River of Nilus would afford unto themselves, did little avail them in provision for the War, and much astonish of execution: it being usually seen, that fidence, than in their own virtue. Hitherto to others; God having faid of that people, to others; God having laid of that peoples Exchin rule the Nations. For, whereas it hath been 13.1 faid of Pharaoh: I am the Son of the Wife, 11 and the How Egypt mer fubdued and held by Nebu-am the son of the Ancient Kings: And Event observers. whereas he had vaunted, The River is mine, and I have made it; the Princes of T is a great loss, that the general History Egypt now became fools, the River failed of the World hath suffered by the spoil them, the King himself was taken and slain, and waste which Time hath made of those and that ancient linage quite extinguished. Monuments that should have preserved the This came to pass in the first year after the memory of fuch famous actions as were ac- destruction of Jerusalem, and the three and complified by this mighty Prince Nabucho-twentieth of Nebuchadnezzar; at which for the donofor; wherein, whether this Virtue, or time (faith Josephus) He slew the King then, 114, Fortune were greater, it is now uncertain. reigning, placed another in his room, and cardifference is only about a name, it being with them. once granted, that the person mentioned in Scriptures, was deprived of life and Kingdom by the Assprians. Yet for any thing that I can perceive, that Apries, of whom Of the fundry accounts drawn from fundry acts the Greek Historians wrote, could not be the Deputy of Nebuchadnezzar, feeing that he was the Grand-child of Pharaoh Necho, and made war (as they report) upon the Phanicians; who were, before the Egyptians, become subject unto the Crown of Babylon.

cerning the time which Josephus gives unto and Carians, I hold them to be none other this buliness, and the buliness it felf. I have than the garrisons of mercenary souldiers already shewed, that it is warranted by all which were lest by the Assyrian for the the Prophecies which infinuate the same. As guard of his Vice-roy, and custody of the likewise the last destruction of Jerusalem, & new subdued Province: as likewise the carrying away those unto Babel; who inha- company returning from Cyrene and Barce, bited the miferable ruins of that great Ci- who, together with the friends of fuch as ty, which was in the same three and twen- were slain in that Expedition, remembred tieth year of Nebuchadnezzar, is not unpro- before out of the Greek Historians, deposed bably thought by good Authors to have and flew Apries, I take them to have been been at the return from this Egyptian Expe- the Egyptian fugitives, which then recovered dition. But whereas Josephus tells us, that their own Country. Sure it is, that this there was another King put in the room Prophecy of Ezekiel was verified; At the Ezek 30. of Apries by Nebuchadnezzar, we must un- end of forty years will I gather the Egyptians 13.3 14. derstand, that he was only a Vice-roy, and from the people where they were feattered, and not (as some have mistaken it) think that I will bring again the Captivity of Egypt, and this was Amasis. For to place the beginning mill cause them to return into the Land of Paof Amalis his reign in the three and twen- thros, into the Land of their habitation, and tieth of Nebuchadnezzar, were as well re- they shall be there a small Kingdom. If the pugnant unto the Prophecies before al- Egyptian Priests alluded hereunto in the tale leadged, as to all Chronology and History. Which they made of Amalia obtaining the Some there are, which to help this inconve- Kingdom, then are they to be helped with nience, imagine that there were two fuc- this or the like interpretation; if they deceffively bearing the name of Amalis; others, vifed matter that had no shadow of truth, that there were two Apries, the one flain only to keep the Greeks from knowledge of by Nebuchadnezzar, the other by Amalis; their Countries diffrace, then are they little a question of small importance, because the to be regarded, since we know the truth of Nebuchadnezzar, and of the destruction of Ninive, by him; the time of which action is uncertain.

ø. X.

"Hese victories brought the greatness I of the Asyrian Empire to the full, and I might add, perhaps, that he whom Nebu- from them was reckoned the time of Nebuchadnezzar left as Governour of Egypt, was chadnezzar's reign in fundry places of Scrimore likely to have had some Chaldwan or pture. To speak any more of the questions Affyrian, than Egyptian name; unless we arising about the supputation of Nebuchadshould think that he had been a Traitor to nezzar his times, might seem to be the overhis natural Prince, and so rewarded by the handling of one Argument: Yet thus much Conquerour with Lieutenantship of the I will note, that whereas Daniel was car-Country: about which it were but frivo- ried captive in the third year of Jehojakims lous to dispute. Thus much in brief we reign (which ran along with some part of ought to believe, that Nabuchodonofor made Nebuchadnezzar's first year) and was kept an absolute Conquest of Egypt; that he was in diet three years more, before he was not fo foolish as to give it away, any man brought into the Kings presence; it could may guess; that he appointed one to rule not be the second of Nebuchadnezzar's Kingthe Country, it is confequent unto the for- dom, wherein he interpreted the forgotten Dam. 1.2. mer, and hath authority of Foscobus; that dream of the great Image, fore-shewing the his Governour (or some Successiour of his) success of Monarchies, but the second of his was afterwards taken and flain by Amalis, Empire. The same or the like may be said I fee probability enough to perswade my of divers places which referr fundry matters felf, and yet can well be content that others unto their fet years; as that of Ezekiel beuse their liberty, and believe what they list. fore cited, where he fore-tells, that Egypt As for the Army which this Egyptian King should be given in reward for the service Apries is supposed to have kept of tonians done before Tyrus, dating his Prophecy in

Daniel, placing the erection of the golden bylon, wherewith he pleased himself so well. Image in the eighteenth year: for these that he brake out into those glorious of his Empire, nor yet upon any of the might of my power, and for the honour of my Captivities, but had reference to some memorable actions, omitted in Scripture, and are by Josephus rehearled of him out of Betherefore not easie to be found, nor worth rosus, and Megasthenes, he might well delight the labour of uncertain fearch.

after fuch time as he returned from the Con- faid, That he fortified Babylon with a triple quest of Egypt, I do not read: excepting wall; that, besides other stately works, he that against Nineve, the destruction whereof raised those huge Arches wherewith were was fore-told by the Prophet Nahum. Ni- born up the high Orchards, hanging as it neve had long before been taken by Mero- were in the Air, and equalling the tops of dach (as in due place hath been shewed) Mountains; which most sumptuous Frame, and together with the rest of Asyria made that out-lasted all the remainder of the As subject to Babylon. Yet was it left under a Syrian, and all the Persian Empire, is said to peculiar King, who, rebelling against the have been reared, and finished in fifteen Chaldean, as Jehojakim and Zedechias, tri- daies. butary Kings of Juda, had done, tasted likewise of the same fortune. That the destru- we find little else recorded, than that ction of Nineve followed the Conquest of (which indeed is most profitable for us to Egypt, it appeareth by the compariton which confider) his over-valuing of his own great-Nakum the Prophet made between this Ci- noss abased him unto a condition inseriour ty, that was to fall, and the City of No in to the poorest of men. And not undeserved-Egypt, that was fallen already. But, how long ly fell these judgments of God upon him. after this came to pass, it is (methinks) im- For, whereas God had honoured him, not poslible to find out. For, whereas it is found only with many victories, and much happiin an Hebrew Chronology, that it was in the ness in his own life, but with a discovery of first of Nebuchadnezzar's reign, the place of things to come after him, yea and had ap-Nahum 3.3 Nahum last cited, is enough to disprove it. proved the certainty of his dream, by the Whereas it is referred by some unto the first miraculous reducing of it into his memory, of his Monarchy, which began at the end of and interpretation thereof by Daniel the other, argueth strongly, that there was a seen and acknowledged, that he caused a longer space of time intercurrent. So that golden Image to be set up and worshipped; to enquire into the very year of this destru- ordaining a cruel death as reward unto them ction, or other circumstances of the War, that should dare to disobey his Kingly will whether managed by Nabuchodonosor in per- and pleasure, which was utterly repugnant fon, or by his Lieutenants, were somewhat to the Law of him that is the King of Kings. like unto the vain curiofity of Tiberius Ca- Hereof St. Hierom hath well noted; Velox far, enquiring who was the Mother of Hecu- oblivio veritatis, ut qui dudum ferum Dei ba; or to the like idle pains which he should quast Deum adoraverat, nunc statuamsibi siert take, who would feek to learn what woman jubeat, ut ipse quasi Deus in Statua adorarethat Huzzah Queen of Nineve was, whose Iur: A hasty forgetfulness of the truth, that he

ø. XI.

buildings, madneß, and death.

find among the Prophecies of Daniel. Among their bands; and finally called out with the feven and twentieth year; and that of these we may reckon his great works of Bayears held no dependance upon either the words: Is not this great Babel that I have beginning of Nebuchadnezzar's Kingdom, or built, for the house of the Kingdom, by the himself with the contemplation of such Of any War made by Nebuchadnezzar, goodly and magnificent buildings. Forit is

But of all this, and other his magnificence, the Egyptian Wars; the whole Prophecy of Prophet; he nevertheless became so forget-Nahum, which went between the one and the ful of God, whose wonderful power he had woful Captivity the same Prophet Nahum who so lately had worshipped (Daniel) the servant of God, as if he had been God himself, should now command a Statua to be creffed unto himself, wherein himself might be worshipped as God. From this impiety it pleased Of the latter time of Nebuchadnnezzar; his God to reclaim him, by the strange and wonderful delivery of those blessed Saints out of the fiery furnace; who being thrown F the time which this great Monarch into it bound, for refusing to commit Ido, Ifpent in quiet, I think there are no latry, were affifted by an Angel; preferved Monuments extant, fave those which we from all harm of the fire; loofened from mer honour, by the King: who amazed at them with a fullen and unfeeling difpolition. the miracle, made a decree tending to the Yet as all humane affections, wherein due the manager of God, which by erection of his reference to God is wanting, are no better Image he had violated. Yet this devotion of than obscure clouds hindring the influence Mebachadnezzar, was not fo rooted in him, of that bleffed Light, which clarifies the foul that it could bring forth fruit answerable to of man, and predisposeth it unto the brighthis halty zeal. Therefore was he forewarn- nefs of eternal felicity; fo that infolent joy, ed by God in a dream of the terrible judg- which man in the pride of his vain imaginament hanging over his head, which Daniel tion conceiveth of his own worth, doth expounding, advised him to break off his fin above all other passions blast our minds, as it by righteoufness, and his iniquity by mercy to were with lightning, and make us to reflect wards the poor, that there might be an healing our thoughts upon our feeming inherent of his errour. Hereby it feens that inju- Greatness, forgetting the whilst him, to lice and cruelty were the faults, for which whom we are indebted for our very Being. he was threatned: but this threatning fuf- Wherefore these Mala mentis gandia, The fixed not unto his information. For, that fo | eviljoyes of the minds were not unaptly, by great a Monarch flould be driven from the Prince of Latin Poets, bestowed in the among men (according to the tenor of the entrance of Hell, and placed further inward dream and interpretation) 5 yea, compelled than forrows, cares, and fears 5 not far from to dwell with the beafts of the field, and the Iron Cabbins of the Furies. And cermade to eat grass as the Oxen, was a thing tainly it is no unlikely token of vengeance foincredible in mans judgment, that easily near at hand, when these unreasonable it might be thought an idle dream; and flushes of proud and vain joy, do rage in a much more easily be forgotten at the years mind, that should have been humbled with end. One whole years leifure to repent, a just repentance, and acknowledgment of was given to this haughty Prince: which ill deferving. respite of the execution may seem to have bred in him a forgetfulness of Gods sentence. For at the end of twelve months, ampled. For he ran among beafts in the walking in the royal Palace of Babel, he was foover joyed and transported with a vain lived, not only as a falvage mau, but as a contemplation of his own feeming happiness, that, without all fear of Gods heavy ended, when a voice from Heaven, telling him that his Kingdom was departed from him, rehearfed over unto him the fentence again, which was ful filled upon him the very fame hour.

That Salomon, and many other Princes, and great ones, have taken delight in their own buildings; it cannot any way be doubted; yet I do not remember that ever I have Nebuchádnezzar.

things wherewith God hath bleffed us; but he was the Lord of Heaven and Earth, and Dan. 4.33, gracious words, and reftored to their for- a note of much unthankfulness to entertain

This was verified upon Nebuchadnezzar, whose punishment was fingular and unexfields and woods, where for leven years he salvage beast; for a beast he thought himfelf, secundum suam imaginationem, as Thomas L. z. de judgment pronounced against him, he ut- noteth, and therefore fed himself in the same Res. pri. tered those lofty words before rehearsed, in manner, and with the same food that beasts vaunting of the Majestical works which he do: Not that he was changed in figure exhad reared, as well beferming his Majestical | ternal, according to Mediana, insomuch as med 1.2.de Ferson. But his highspeeches were not fully he appeared a Beast to other menseyes, as Reda in St. Hierom in the life of Hilarius (how true c. 7. God knows) fpeaks of a woman that appeared to all other mens fight a Cow, but to Hilarius only a woman; neither was he changed as Iphigenia the daughter of Agamemnon was said to be, into a Hind; nor made a Monster, as Dorotheus and Epipha. Dor. in nius dreamed: but, according to St. Hierom's Ep. in vit. exposition of these words, At the same time Das. read of any, that were punished for re- mas my understanding restored unto me, &c. joycing in works of this kind (though it is Quando dicit (laith St. Hierom) Sensum sibi hard in joy, or any passion of the mind, to redditum, oftendit non forman se amissse, sed keep a just measure) excepting only this mentem; When he saith that his sense was restored unto him, he shewed that he had not lost The like may be faid of David: for other | his humane shape, but his understanding. Seven (and some very godly) Kings have mustred years expired, it pleased God to restore all their forces to the very last man; but few Nabuchodonofor, both to his understanding, or none have been known to have been and his estate, for which he acknowledged punished as David was. Surely I not only and praised God all the rest of his life, conhold it lawful to rejoyce in those good fessing his power, and everlasting being; that wrought 34.

in both; that his works were all truth, and mate the King of the Medes, to deal with his waies rightcous. Which gave argument Evilmerodach, as with a Prince greater in to many of the Fathers, and others, not to fame and reputation, gotten by the decayed doubt of his falvation; namely St. Augu- valour of his people, than in prefent forces: fine, Theodoret, Lyra, Carthufianus, and or, whether (as I rather think) fome foil reothers. And for that place of Efty the ceived by the Affrian invading Media, emfourteenth, out of which his perdition may boldened the Egyptians to rebel against him: be gathered, the aforenamed Authors ap- I will neither undertake, nor feek to define. ply the fame to Balthafar; because Esay, both Xenophon tells, that the first service of young Xenophon tells, the year of the in the thirteenth and fourteenth Chapters, Cyrus in war, was under Aftyages King of the speaketh of the King, and the destruction Medes, his Grand-father, in a prosperous of Babylon joyntly.

530

ø. XII. of Evilmerodach.

Aving already spoken what I could of the succession and years of Nebuchadnezzar's posterity; the most that may be faid of him, is faid of Evilmerodach, which I war began more early between these Nawill not here again rehearfe.

He lost some part of that which his Father had gotten; and left his Kingdom burning in a war that confumed it to ashes. He loft Egypt by rebellion of the people, in the nineteenth year of his reign, which was forty years after his Father had conquered it. him a troublesome neighbour, to stand up-But this agrees neither with the account of on prouder terms with the Affrians, thanin Herodotus, who allows to Amalis four and his flourishing estate they durst have used. forty years of reign; nor with that of Dio- | Howfoever the quarrel began, we find that dorus, who gives him five and filty, faying, that he died in the third year of the three fore and third Olympiad, when Cambyfes too proud to digeft the loffes which he redid conquer Egypt. There were indeed but feven and thirty years, which passed be tween the second year of the sour and sisting and all the people of the lesser Assa, with the Lydians, and all the people of the lesser Assa, with gifts and all the people of the lesser Assa, with gifts eth Olympiad which was the nineteenth of and ftrong perswasions, hoping so to over-Evilmerodach, and the first of Amasis) and the whelm his enemies with a strong Invasion, fifth of Cambifes his reign, wherein he wann whom in vain he had fought to weary out Egipt; of which feven and thirty years it with a lingring War. is credibly held, that Flammiticus, the Son of Amasis, reigned three: so that Amasis could ges, who left the world in the nineteenth be no longer King than four and thirty year of Evilmerodach, at which time Amasis reign. This is the plain answer to this objection. For to fay, either that the numfet down instead of four and thirty; or that the far more mighty Persian. Amasis did temporize a while with the Afbecame again a Kingdom) I hold it a super- feremy. fluous excuse.

wrought without refistance what he pleased | Whether these Egyptian-troubles did anifight against the Affyrian Prince, who did set upon him; at which time, Cyrus was fifteen or fixteen years old. If therefore Cyrus lived Xample, threefcore and three years (as he is faid to 100 pt. 13). have died well stricken in years) which is held to be the ordinary term of no flore life, then was this encounter in the third year of Evilmerodach his reign. Yet by the fame reckoning it should follow, that the tions, for as much as the manner of their fight in former times, with other circumstances infinuating as much, are found in the fame place of Xenophon. And it may well be, that the death or destruction of Nabuchodonofor gave courage unto those that had felt years. But seeing that these two Greek Hi- took possession of Egypt. So that the Affristorians have been abused by Egyptian an having his hands already full of business, Priests in the substance of that which was which more earnestly did affect him, seems spoken of Amasis, it is no marvel though thereby to have given the better means unthey were also deceived in the length of his to the Eyptians, of new erecting their Kingdome, which, by long distance of place, did fundry times find occasion to rebel in afterbers were mif-written, and four and forty ages, and fet up a King within it felf, against

The issue of these great preparations made Syrians, and not bear himself as absolute by Evilmerodach against the Medes, was King of Egypt, until the nineteenth of Evil- such as opened the way until the fulfilling merodach (at which time, and not before, it of those Prophecies, which were many years hath been proved out of Ezekiel, that Egipt before uttered against Babel, by Esay and For,

CHAP. I. For, the Affprians and their Confederates, the great Ones of the Kingdom, for fetling who, trufting in their numbers, thought to the Government, whilft the King was thus dihave buried the Medes and Persians under stracted, we shall find it most likely, that his their thick showers of arrows and darts, Son and Heir did occupy the Royal Throne, were encountred with an Army of front and with condition to restore it unto his Father, fight, by whom they were beaten in open In this his rule Evilmerodach being to supply battel, wherein Evilmerodach was flain. So, the utter want of understanding in his Fathat great frame of Empire which Nabucho- ther, as Protectors do the unrigeness of it donofor had raifed and upheld, being shaken in young, but reasonable Kings, might easily way of falling.

ø. XIII.

The quality, and death of Balthafar.

was the Son, and immediate Successor to Brothers mil-government, used practices to Evilmerodach, yet confidering earnestly the get the rule into her own hands, and afterconjectures of those Writers, which follow- wards, as a Mother, to leave it unto her ing Berofus, insert Niglifar, or Niriglifforoor, ungracious Son. Other time than this, Berofus divides betwixt Evilmerodach, and people. I will not here use many words to the two next Kings, agrees with the years confute that which Berofus hath further let in which Nebuchadnezzar lived wild among down of Evilmerodach, telling us that he brute beafts in the open field: Secondly, was flain by his Sifters Husband: for the that the fuddenness of this accident, which plain words of the Scripture, naming the came in one hour, could not but work year-wherein he gave liberty to fechonia, do much perturbation in that State, wherein plainly testifie that he out-lived the three doubtless the honour of so noble a Prince or four and fortieth year of his Fathers was highly regarded, his calamity pitied, reign, which was the last of his life. and his restitution hoped; the prediction of well-trained men, weightily armed for close when God should enable him to reposses it. and grievously crackt under his unfortunate cither commit the infolences, or fall into the Son, was left to be sustained by his unwor- troubles, incident to such an office. That he thy Nephew; a man more likely to have had in him very small ability of Governoverthrown it, when it was greatest and ment, it appears by his ill maintaining the ftrongest, than to repair it, when it was in Empire, when he held it in his own right, That his Sifter Nitocris (if Nitocris were his Sifter) was a woman of an high spirit; it appears by that which Herodotus reports Herodotil. of her, faying, That the was more cunning". A private conjecture of the Author; serving than Semiramis, as appeared in her magnito make good those things, which are cited ficent and useful works about the River of out of Berofus, concerning the Successors of Euphrates, and her fortification of Babylon Evilmerodach, without wrong to the truth, against the Medes, who had gotten many Towns from the Affyrians, and amongst them Nineve. Wherefore it were not unrea-Hough I have already (as it feems to fonable to think, that fuch a woman, feeing me) fufficiently proved that Balthasar how the Empire went to decay through her and his Son Labaffardach between them; as wherein Nitocris could have reigned, we do allo that which I find in Herodotus of Nito- not find; but we find in Berofus (as Josephus cris, a famous Queen of Babylon, who great- hath cited him) that Nigliffar, who got the ly adorned and fortified that City; I have Kingdom from Zvilmerodach, was his Sifters thought it not superfluous here in this place Husband; which argues this to have been to shew, by what means it was possible, that the same woman. As for Labassardach the fome errour might have crept into the Hi- | Son of Nigliffar, if at the end of nine months flory of those times, and thereby have reign he were for his lewd conditions slain brought us to a needless trouble of search-by the Nobility, as the same Berosus reporting out the truth, as it were by candle-light; eth; it feems that God prepared hereby the in the uncertain fragments of lost Authors, way for Nebuchadnezzar's restitution (whose which we might have found by day-light, term of punishment was then expired) by had we adhered only to the Scriptures. First raising such trouble, as should make him the therefore I observe, that the time which more defired, both of the Princes and the

This may fuffice to shew, that they who Daniel finding reputation in that clause are said to have succeeded Evilmerodach in which promited his recovery, as being ve- the Kingdom, might indeed have so done, rified in that which had been more incre- though not when he held it in his own right. dible. Now if we do in common reason Of Balthasar, who was his Son and Heir, judge, what course was like to be taken by we find, that he had such conditions, as

God permitted to be in a King for the ruin him in on every fide, and when death arof the people. He was from his young years rested him by the hands of those whom he of a mischievous nature; having in his Fa- had wronged in his Fathers life. So the end thers time flain a Noble young man that of him was base and miserable; for he died should have married his Sister, only for as a fool taken in unexcusable security, yet foight and envy to see him kill two wild had not that happiness, such as it is, of a death beafts in hunting, at which himself having free from apprehension of fear, but wasterthrown his Javelin had missed them. Ano- rified with a dreadful vision; which had ther great Lord he had gelded, because a shewed his ruin not in many hours before. Gentleweman commending his beauty, said, even whilst he was drinking in that wine, It were a happy woman that should be his which the swords of his insulting enemies wife. Such barbarous villanies caused many drew out of him, together with his latest which had loved his Father (as a good and | blood. It is therefore in this place enough gracious, though unfortunate Prince) to to say of him, That after a dishonourable revolt from him unto the enemy as foon as reign of seventy years, he perished like a he was King. Neither do I find that he per- beaft, and was flain as he deferved. The reft formed any thing worthy of recordabut as a that concerneth him in question of his time. coward and a fool he loft all; fitting still, hath been spoken heretofore; in matter of and not once daring to give battel to them his affairs, shall be handled among the acts that daily took somewhat from him. Yet of cyrus, to whose story, that of Balthasar is carelefly feafting when danger had hemmed but an appendix.

CHAR

CHAP. II.

CHAP. II.

Of the original and first greatness of the Persians?

That the Medes were the chief actors in the subversion of the Babylonian Empire.

far, the Empire of Babylon, occasion in due place to intreat. and of Affyria, was joyned then was governed by Cyaxares, or Darius had Kings soon after the Flood, Lastantius Medus; after whom Cyrus, became Lord and and Diodorus have found record; For La-Monarch, both of Affria, and of Media it stantius remembreth an ancient King of the ten Kings besides himself, and of Arbaces as Assyrians in the beginning of their Empire. many are found by Metasthenes. These two Provincial Governours having cut down first, that freed his Nation from the Allirithe last branch of Ninus in Sardanapalus, di- ans, I take the list and number from Eusebivided between them the Eastern Empire. us, adding Darius Medus: of whom I have Cyaxares (whom the Scriptures call Darius spoken in their proper places heretofore; and Medus) the last of the race of Arbaces, dy- they are these: ing about two years after that the Line of Belochus was ended in Balthafar; the Dominions as well of the Conqueror, as of the conquered, fell to a third Family, namely, to Cyrus of the house of Achamenes; the Princes of which blood reigning in Persia, had formerly been dependants on the Medes, and were of as little power at home, as of fame abroad in the world.

HE Line of Belochus being | Of the Family of the Achamenes, and Line now extinguished in Baltha- of the Persian Kings, we shall hereafter find

The Nation of the Medes descended from first to that of Media, which Madai the third Son of Japhet. That they Medes called Hydafyes, and Diodore speaketh Of the race of Phul Eelochus there were of Pharnus with his feven Sons, flain by the

But of these who succeeded Arbaces the £28 years. Arbaces Sorfamus 30 years. 40 years. Medidus 13 years. Cardiceas reigned 3 years. Diocles 24 years. Phraortes 32 years. Cyaxares 38 years. Aftyages Darius Medus And quest of Babylon to Cyrus alone, yet the Scri- Strabo, Plato, Aristotle, Isocrates, and before prires teach us, that Darius was not only them Caftor, Thallus, and Phlegon; who do King of Media, and had the Persians his fol- not find any such Successor. Neither do Talowers, but that the Army victorious over tianus, Theophilus Antiochenus, Julius, Afri-Balthafar was his; as the Affyrian and Ba- canus, Clemens Alexandrinus, Justin Martyr, belonian Empire also was, during his own Lastantius, Eusebius, St. Hierom, or St. Aulife. For we find in Daniel, that Darius of gustin, make report out of any faithful Authe Medes took the Kingdom being three- thor by them read, that hath given other fcore and two years old: And further, what | Son or Successor to Astyages than Cyrus. Officers it pleased him to set lover the Kingdom. And fo was it prophefied by Esay long ab authoritate negative, doth never inforce before: Behold, I will fir up the Medes confentive may be the bolder (all this great with the media for the manufacture of the bolder (all this great with them. One And by Foreme. The Lord life of bolds With against them, &c. And by Fereny; The Lord list of noble Writers by him alleadged notbath raised up the Spirit of the King of the withstanding) to affirm, that either Aswages Medes: for his purpose is against Babel to de- himself must have been Darius of the frog it; and in the eight and twentieth Medes, which cannot agree with his place Verse, Prepare against her the Nations, with in the course of time; or else to give him the King of the Medes, the Dukes thereof, the some other Successor, according to Tolephus Princes thereof, and all the Land of his Do- and Xenophon, the same whom Daniel calleth Zon. L. T. minion. These Scriptures Julius Africanus Darius. For it is manifest, and without dif for day le doth well open, who taking authority from pute, that the King of the Medes commanded 10, 113, Diodore, Caftor, Thallus, and others, delivering in chief, and was absolute Lord of that Xen, 1.8. eth that Babylon was taken before Cyrus be- Conquest; Cyrus during his life, being no gan to reign; which also agreeth with Stra- other than the Lieutenant of his Army, and bo, where he faith, That as the Medes were subject to his authority; the strength of subjugated by the Persians, so before that, both Nations, to wit, the Medes and Perboth the Babylonians and Assyrians were sians, with other the Vassals of Darius, bemastered by the Medes. And therefore the ing joyned together to compound it. reports of Justin and Herodotus are not to be received, who attribute the taking of Babylon to Cyrus alone.

ø. II.

the Medes to the Persians.

Daughter Amytis. But I find the relations of carried far off. Ctesias often cited, and seldom followed, and wilful untruth.

fonsthat Affigues had no fuch Son as Cyaxa-ters of his Prophecy, makes it plain, that res, or Darius Medus; and to confirm this himself not only lived a great Officer under

And though the Greeks ascribe the Con- opinion the more, he citeth Diodore, Justin,

Yet feeing that this manner of argument

But it is very certain, that the honour of that great victory over Babylon was wholly given to Cyrus, who was the instrument preordained and forenamed by God himself for this action, but for the delivery of his Church, a greater work not only in the By what means the Empire was translated from eyes of God, than the subversion of any State or Monarchy how powerful foever.

And it may well be thought, that the Who Kingdom of the Medes fell in-to the hands of Cyrus, it is a doubt not ther ascribe the glory to him that was the fufficiently cleared by Historians; but ra- best man of war, than to the Median, who ther their different relations of his begin- was greatest in riches and power. All which nings have bred the former opinion of those also falling upon cyrus by succession, and who give the Conquest of Babel to the Per- continuing in his posterity, did much augstans only. For some there are who deny ment the same of his vertue; which among that Aftyages had any other Successor than prophane Historians over-grew altogether Cyrus his Grand-child by Mandane. Where- the honour due to Cyaxares, both because he as Ctefius on the contrary fide affirmeth, that was old, and did nothing in person; as also Cyrus was no way descended from Astrages because he soon after quitted the world, (whom he calleth Astigas or Apania) but on- and left all to Cyrus, who was possest of ly that having vanquished him in battel, and whatsoever belonged to Darius, before the confined him to Bactria, he married his fame of any fuch King or Conqueror was

And for the Greek Historians, they took himself sometimes very justly reproved of all things from the relation of the Persians, who gave to Cyrus all the praise of a most Viginier, a diligent and learned historian excellent Prince, making none his equal. of this age, produceth many probable rea- Only Daniel in the first, fift, and fixt Chap-

estate to the first of Cyrus; which being self of a great part of the lesser Asia; at which the year of Daniel's death, could not have time it was, as I take it, that Crassus himself been distinguished from the reign of Darius, | was also made prisoner. if they had begun together and reigned joyntly: Neither can it be imagined that after, the Army lying before it being paid Darius held the Kingdom by Cyrus permif by Darius, whom Xenophon calleth Cyaxares, fion, confidering that Cyrus began after him. and led by Cyrus his Sifters Son, prevailed

o. III.

Xenophon's relation of the War with the Medes and Persians, made with joyntforces upon the Assyrians and others.

yet made more open to our understanding, by that which Xenophon hath written of these Wars: The cause whereof, according to his report, was this.

When the Affrian had enlarged his Empire with victories, and was become Lord of all syria, and many other Countries; he began to hope that if the Medes could be brought under his subjection, there should to the phrase of the speaker, or nature of not then be left any Nation adjoyning, able to make head against him. For the King of the Medes was able to bring into the field threefcore thousand foot, and ten thousand | Putting therefore apart the Moral and Pohorse, to which the forces of Persia being litick discourse, and examining but the Hijoyned, made an exceeding strong Army.

Lydia, a Prince very mighty both in men | face thereof, he hath not in any fort corand treasure, and with him other Lords of rupted the body. Asia the less, to his assistance, alledging, that those Eastern Nations were very powerful, and fo firmly conjoyned by league, and many alliances, that it would not be easie, no not possible, for any one Nation to resist them. With these incitements, and strengthned with great Presents, he drew to himfelf fo many adherents, as he compounded an Army of two hundred thousand foot and threefcore thousand horse; of which, ten thousand horse, and forty thousand foot rebellion against Sardanapalus, and that were led by Crafus, who had great cause of enmity with the Medes, in regard of the for himself the Dominion of those Coun-War made by them against his Father Alyattes: But this great Army was by Cyaxares thered forces were allo feattered by Cyrus, of, there reigned in Affria mighty Princes,

King Darius, but that he continued in that | who following his advantage, possess him-

The attempt of Babylon following foon against Balthasar, as in due time shall be set

Those Persians which followed Cyrus, and by him levied, are numbred thirty thousand foot-men, of which a thousand were armed Gentlemen, the rest of the common fort were Archers, or fuch as used the Dart or "Hese Testimonies of the Scriptures, Sling: So far Xenophon. Of whom in this arwhich need no other confirmation, are gument, as it is true, that he described in Cyrus the pattern of a most Heroical Prince. with much Poetical addition: fo it cannot be denied, but that the bulk and gross of his Narration was founded upon meer Historical truth.

Neither can it indeed be affirmed of any the like Writers, that in every speech and circumstance he hath precisely tyed himself the occasion, but borrowed in each out of his own invention, appropriating the same to the times and persons of whom he treated. story of things done, it will easily appear, The Affrian considering the strength of such a Neighbour, invited Crassus King of subject in such fort, that by beautifying the

ø. IV.

The estate of the Medes and Persians in times foregoing this great War.

Or it is commonly agreed upon, that Achamenes, the Son of Perfes, being Governour of Persia, did associate himself with Arbaces, who commanded in Media, in that each of them after the victory obtained, held tries, which he had formerly ruled for the Assyrians; as also that they conveyed over King of the Medes, and by Cyrus General of the fame honour and power to their posterithe Persian forces, utterly broken: Upon ty: which in Media was not absolutely Rewhich defeat the Affyrian King being also gal, but with some restraint limited, until flain, so many of the Affrians revolted, as luch time as Deioces took upon him the full Babylon it self could not longer be assured authority and majesty of a King. From the without the succours of Mercenaries, waged death of Sardanapalus to the reign of Deiowith great fumms of mony out of Asia the ces, are usually accounted about an hunless, Egypt, and elsewhere. Which new ga- dred and forty years in the last fixty wheredertake any offensive war against those vi- strength and eminent virtue. ctorious Kings, it being also probable, that had formerly fhared the Empire.

the first of Asyages, there past above nine- great King Kerxes in the height of his profvictories greatly enlarged their Dominions, vasials of any other King or Monarch. and commanded many parts of Asia, it had been but an unadvised enterprize of the Af-Grians and Babylonians, to have wasted themselves against the Syrians, and Egyptians, leaving so able and victorious a Nation on their backs. But that the Medes had done nothing upon the South parts of Fersia; and that the Persians themselves were not Mafters of Susiana in Nabuchodonosor's time; it is manifest in Daniel, who was then Governor chief City thereof. It it true indeed, that the by the learned Reineccius. Medians, either under Cyaxares, or Aftyages, or both, had quarrel with Halyattes the Father of Crafus, which after some fix years of Persia. dispute, was compounded.

How the affairs of Persta stood in so many Country which they then poffest, with the Daughters. confederacy which they continued with the Medes, gave them more fecurity than fame: For if their Kings, being the posterity of Achemenes, had done any memorable acts, dis, flain by his Brother Cambyfes. the greatness which they afterward obtained, would not have fuffered any forgetfulagreeable to the relation of many other Hystaspes, King. good Authors; fo it appears, that the race nophon, who affirmeth, That Cambyfes the Josephus, Elymi.

namely, salmanassar and his Successors; it was more likely, that upon such a Prowhose great atchievements in Syria and phecy his love to his Grand child should elfewhere, witness, that the Medes and Per- have encreased, and his care been the grea-Gans found it not for their advantage to un-

Yea, the same Herodotus, who is the first the league continued as yet between these Author, and, as I think, the deviser of the the fuccellors of Belochus and Arbaces, who mischief intended against Cyrus by his Grandfather, doth confess, That the line of Now from the beginning of Deioces to the Achamenida was fo renowned, that the ty years, in which, if Herodotus have written perity, did thence derive himself, and vaunt truly, that Phraortes conquered Persia, and of it: which he would never have done, had how he and other Kings of Media by many they been ighoble, or had they been the (Achamenes, CTeispeus. ZAriaramnes. ZDarius. 2 Cambyses. Carsamnes. Xerxes. Cyrus.

> For in this fort Xerxes in the feventh of Herodotus deriveth himfelf:

Of the Achemenide there were two races: of the first was Cyrus the great, whose issuemale failed in his two Sons, Cambyles and for the Babylonian in Susa, or Susan, the Smerdis. This royal family is thus set down

> Achamenes, the Son of Perfes, first King Darius.

Cyrus, the first of that name, had Cambyages. I do not find any memory. It feemeth les, and Atoffa, who, married to Pharnaces, that the roughness of the mountainous King of Cappadocia, had Artystona and other

Cambyfes had

Cyrus the Great: Cyrus had Cambyles, who fucceeded him, and Smer-

Of the fecond, were those feven great ness thereof. But as we find all Xenophon's Princes of Persia, who having overthrown reports, both of these Wars, and the state the usurped Royalty of the Magi, chose of those Countries to be very consonant and from among themselves Darius the Son of

This Kingdom of Persia was first known of Achemenes held the Principality of Persta by the name of Elam, so called after Elam from Father to Son for many descents. And the Son of sem, and the people therein intherefore we may better give credit to Ze- habiting, Elamitæ; by Elianus, Elymæ; by

Father of Cyrus was King of Persia; than to Suidas derives this Nation sometimes from those that make him a mean man, and say, Affir, sometimes from Magog, of whom that Afrages gave him his Daughter Man- they were called Magufai; which Magufai, dane in marriage, to the end that her Son according to Ensebins, are not to be taken Eng. 1. 6 %. (Whose nativity he feared) might be disabled for the Nation in general, but for those that 8.de Prap. from any great undertaking by his Fathers were afterward called the Magi, or Wile-Evang. men. So do the Greeks, among many other For, what cause of grief could it be to their sayings of them, affirm, That the Per-Asyages, that the Son of his Daughter should sans were anciently written Artei, and become Lord of the best part of Asa? No, that they called themselves cephenes. But

Ges. 10. that they were Elamite, Moses and the same which Antiochus, for the great riches 1/a11,21, Prophets, Efay, Jeremy, Ezekiel, Daniel, and thereof, twice attempted, in vain, and to his Jer 25.29. Esdras, in many places confirm: Which also great dishonour. And yet this City, now cal-Dan. 8. teth, upon Daniel the eighth, and also in Alexander, at the request of Thais the Hardman & mon Flamite Principles (Park).

Dan. 8. teth, upon Daniel the eighth, and also in Alexander, at the request of Thais the Hardman & mon Flamite Principles Parkline Flam.

Dan. 8. teth, upon Daniel the eighth, and also in Alexander, at the request of Thais the Hardman & mon Flamite Principles Parkline Flam. Ext. 35 St. Hierom upon Jeremy the five and twen-led Siras, was not the old Perfelbis; for Pant, by non-David the cighth and alfa in Alexander at the request of Their half Elam, à quo Elamite Principes Persidis; Elam, fecond Book of the Maccabees calleth Perfe- nias, and joyned with him in the war against polis, is by the Author of the first called those Arabians, who was afterward extin-Elemais, but is now called Siras, being the guilhed by the forces of Abraham.

of whom were the Elamites Princes of Per- follow the current of Authors interpreting the fourteenth Chapter of Genesis, was che-And that City which the Author of the dorlarmer, who lived with Amraphel or Ni-

සිලිසියිට ම ශිලිපි ම දිල්ලි වී ම ම ම ම පිළිති සිලිසියි සිලිසියි ම සිලිසියි ම ම ම ම ම දිල්ලියි වී ම දිල්ලිද් සිල නතුන්තන සහනානයන් නතුන් වන සිල්ලිද්රිය ම සිල්ලිද්රිය ම සිල්ලිද්රිය ම සිල්ලිද්රිය වී ම දිල්ලිද්රියි ම සිල්ලිද්රි

CHAP. III.

Of Cyrus.

Of Cyrus his Name, and first actions.

Strabil. 153

Strabo laith, That the same five and fiftieth Olympiad. was taken from a River which tuled by the people. excellent virtues he was indeed called a Fa- volt. Wherefore I like better in this partither; but that the Name of Cyrus had any cular to believe with Herodotus, whom the fuch fignification, I think it be mistaken.

wit. Artax. That Cyrus is as much to fay as the Sun, in bylon. the same Language. Howsoever it be, yet the Prophet Esay, almost two hundred years before Cyrus was born, gives him that Name, Thus faith the Lord unto Cyrus his Annoint- of Croclus the King of Lydia, who made War ed, &c.

Before the Conquest of Babylon, the victories which Cyrus obtained were many and great: among which, the Conquest of Lydia, and other Provinces thereto subject, soof those Kings which governed Lydia in together with the taking of Crass himself, more ancient times: of which the first (to are not recounted by Eusebius, Orosius, and prophane Authors known) was Lydus the others, but placed among his latter atchieve- Son of Atys: which Family extinguished, ments : whose opinion for this difference of the Kingdom was by an Oracle conferred time is founded upon two reasons; namely, upon Argon, descended from Hercules, That of the Median there is no mention in whereof there were two and twenty Genethe last war against Crass; and that the rations, Candaules being the last, who by obtaining of sardis is referred to the eight | shewing his fair wife naked to Gyges his faand ifftieth Olympiad; and the glorious vi- vourite, he was by the same Gyges (thereto

S touching the Name of Cyrus, ctory which Cyrus had over Babylon, to the

The former of which might have been watereth Persia; this great used (and was by the Greeks) to exclude the Prince having Agradatus for Medes from the honour of having won Babyhis proper Name: But the great Cyrus was lon it felf, which in due place I have answernot the first of that Name. Herodotus, other- ed. The latter seems to have reference to wife; and that Cyrus fignifieth a Father in the second War which Cyrus made upon Lythe Persian-Tongue, and therefore so inti- dia, when it rebelled; at which time he so established his former Conquest, as after It is true, that for his Justice and other that time these Nations never offered to remost of Chronologers follow, and find the Plutarch hath a third opinion, affirming, enterprize of Sardis to precede that of Ba-

ø. II.

upon Cyrus.

Have in the last Book spoke somewhat of Crassis, of his race and predecessors, as al-

Queen) the next day flain. Which done, fia, or of his own Lydia. Grees enjoyed both the Queen and the Kingdom of Lydia, and left the fame to Atys his Son, who was Father to Sadyattes, the Father of Halyattes (who thrust the Cimmerians out of Afta) and Halyattes begat Cra-Which five Kings, of a third race, enand feventy years. Halyattes the Father of Crasus was continued a War against Cyaxares the Median, a Prince very powerful, and maintained it fix years, a peace was concluded upon equal conditions between them. Astrages the Son of Cyaxares, and Grandfather to Cyrus, thought himself greatly honoured by obtaining Aryenes, Crafus Sifter, whom he married.

But Crasus so far enlarged his Dominions after his Fathers death, as he was nothing inferior in territory to any King or Monarch and the Lydian: only Nabuchodonofor, after he had joyned Phanicia, Palastina, and dily conceived. Egypt to his Empire, had thence-forward no Competitor during his own life.

Abe, Li4 rodotus witnesseth: Moreover, Athenaus that then lived.

out of Berofus (which also confirmeth) makes he performed in fourteen years.

marvellous rich gifts) what fuccess he might beginning of glory to the other. hope for against Cyrus, if he undertook him: from whom he received this riddle; merchandize of both fide alike, and might and advancement of either Nations: and as urged upon peril of his own life by the be inverted either way; to the ruin of Par-

ø. III.

Croefus his Expedition against Cyrus.

TEreupon Crassus being resolved to stop I the course of Cyrus fortunes, if he could, despised all the arguments used by an undertaking Prince, and after he had Sandanes to the contrary, who defired him to fore-think, That he urged a Nation inhabiting a barren and mountainous Region ; a people not covered with the fost filk of Worms, but with the hard skins of Beafts; not fed with such meat as they fancied, but content with what they found; drinkers of Water, not of Wine: and in a word, a Nation warlike, enduring, valiant, and profperous; over whom, if he became victorious, he could thereby enrich himfelf in nothing but fame, in which he already excelof that age: Of which, about that time there | led : and if by them beaten, and subjected, were four in effect of equal strength; to wit, | so great would his loss appear of all things the Median, the Babylonian, the Egyptian, which the world hath in account, as the fame could neither hastily be told, nor rea-

Notwithstanding this folid counsel, Crefus having prepared a powerful Army,he led But Crafus, notwithstanding the men and the same toward Media, but in his passage treasure spent in the quarrel of the Babylo- he was arrested at Pterium, a City of great nians, he yet mastered Zolis, Doris, and strength in Cappadocia; which while he Ionia, Provinces possest by the Greeks in Asia | sought by all means to surprize or to force, the less, adjoyning to Lydia; gave Law to Cyrus came on, and found the Lydians enthe Phrygians, Bithinians, Carians, Mysians, camped before it. That each was inferiour Paphlagonians, and other Nations. And to other in strength or opinion, I do not find: that he also inforc'd the Ephesians to ac- for, out of doubt, Crassus, as he excelled any knowledge him, notwithstanding they com- | Prince of that age in riches and ability; fo Bill. 1.5. passed their City with Diana's Girdle, He- | was he not under any interritory and fame

But, as Cratippus of Mitylene answered report of a Signal Victory, which Crafus | Pompey when he complained against the obtained against the Sackans, a Nation of gods, because they favoured a disturber and the Scythians, in memory whereof the Ba- usurper of the Common-weal against him bylonians his allies did yearly celebrate a who fought for the Roman-liberty, That Feast, which they called Sacaa: All which Kingdoms and Common-weals had their encrease and period from divine Ordinance: And being now confident in the continu- fo, at this time was the Winter of Crafus ance of his good fortune, and envious of cy- prosperity at hand, the leaves of his flourishrus fame, doubting also that his prosperous ing fortune ready to fall, and that of Cyrus undertakings might in the end grow peril- but in the flower and first spring. The God lous to himself, he consulted with the of all power, and not Admetis Herdman, Oracle of Apollo (whom he presented with Apollo, had given a date to the one, and a

When these two Armies were in view of each other, after the entertainment of di-Croesus passing over the River Halys, shall vers skirmishes, the Persians and Lydians bediffolve a great Dominion. For the Devil be- gan to joyn in gross troops: supplies from ing doubtful of the success, payed him with both Kings thrust on upon the falling off, day, fo when the dark vail of night had courses of their lives might well be accounthidden each Army from the others view, ed fortunate, but no man could differn him-Crafts doubting what success the rising Sun self for happy indeed, till his end. would bring with it, quitted the field to would bring with it, quite the companies, informed, remembring the changes of form in bour commanded myfeight and taking the next way into Lydia, reconting the next way in the next way in the vered Sardis his first City and Regal Seat, his Ministers of Justice to withdraw the fire shared without any pursuit made by Cyrus to retard him. Where being arrived, and nothing suspecting cyrus approach, or any other War for that Winter, he dismissed the Souldiers, and fent the troops of his fundry Nations to their own Provinces, appointing them to re-assemble at the end of five months, acquainting his Commanders with his intents for the renewing of the War at the time appointed.

Yyy

ø. IV. The Conquest of Lydia by Cyrus.

order to pursue them, yet not so hastily, and feet at. at their heels, as to be discovered. But having good intelligence of Crassus hispro- ed between that behaviour which we call ceeding, he so measured his marches, as he beneficium latronis, and gratiam Principis: presented not himself before sardis, till A thief sometime sparing the life of him fuch time as Crafus had disposed his Army which is in his power, but unjustly: A King to their wintring garrifons; which being that giveth breath, and a continuance of altogether unlooked for, and unfeared, he being, to him that was the cause and author furrounded sardis with his Army; Where- of his own evil. in Crassus having no other Companies than his Citizens and ordinary Guards, after cyrus did friendly entertain crassus at the fourteen dayes fiege the same was entred by | first fight, not mentioning that which Heroassault, and all executed that resisted. Cre- | dotus delivers, and is here already set down, In commu fus having now neither arms to fight, nor that he should have been burntalive. It may ni catami- wings to fly, Sardis being on all parts ftrong- very well be, that Xenophon pourtraying (in tate firm ly encompassed, thrust himself into the heap | Cyrus) an heroical Prince, thought an intent quique and miterable multitude of his vallals, and fo cruel, fitter to be forgotten than rehearf metus peri- his, who had been dumb all his life (by ex- of alliance might with-hold Cprus (had he mis: timos, tremity of paffion and fear enabled) cryed been otherwise vicious) from so cruel a overself out to the Souldiers to spare Crassus. Who purpose against his Grandmothers brother. tum, &c. thereupon being taken and imprisoned, de Howsoever it was, the moral part of the spoiled of all things but the expectation of Story hath given much credit and reputatideath, he was forthwith tied in fetters, and on to the report of Herodotus (as to many set on the top of a great and high heap of the like it often doth) and made it pass for wood, to be confumed to affees thereon. To currant, though the trust reposed in crassus with the Athenian Law-giver, he thrice cried the Persians had somewhat the better of the | him, That many men in the race and

CHAP. III.

Of which answer Cyrus being speedily Homoga with all diligence, to fave Crafus, and to in, of conduct him to his presence : Which done. Cyrus demanded of him, Who it was that had perfwaded him? or what felf-reason had conducted him to invade his territory, and to make him of a friend an enemy? To whom he thus answered; It was thy profperous, and my unprosperous destiny (the Grecian god flattering therewithall my ambition) that were the inventers and condu-Ctors of Crafus War against Cyrus.

Cyrus being pierc't with Crassus answer, and bewailing his estate, though victorious over it, did not only spare his life, but entertained him ever after as a King and his True in the following morning finding companion, shewing therein a true effect of the Lydians departed, put his Army in mercy indeed. Que non causam, sed fortunam

And herein is the real difference discem-

The report made by Xenophon, is, That which when the fire was fet and kindled, afterwards may feem to argue, that Cyrus remembring the discourse which he had did not use him inhumanly at the first.

For, as Herodotus himself telleth us, when out on his name, Solon, Solon, Solon: and Cyrus past with his Army over Araxes into being demanded what he meant by that in- scothia, he left Crassus to accompany and vocation, he first used silence; but urged advise his son Cambyses, Governour of the again, he told them, That he had now found | Empire in his absence, with whom he lived it true which solon had long fince told all the time of Cyrus, and did afterward folescared his tyrannous hand. What his end fame and reputation that it held, as being was, I do not find.

and cressus.

How Cyrus won Babylon.

Affyrian war, but rather to have been spent guards upon all quarters. in fetling the Estate which he had already purchased. And hereunto perhaps may be re- circuit of those walls which they were to was delivered for the other.

was fully established.

fore-hand, that nothing thould be able to Trenches. divert him, or to raise that siege, and make Now Balthasar, finding neither any want frustrate the work upon which he did set all or weakness within, nor any possibility of his rest. And great reason there was, that he approach for his enemies without, prepared should bend all his care and strength unto an exceeding sumptuous Feast, publick low Cambyles into Egypt, where he hardly the taking of that City, which beside the head of an Empire thereon depending, was But in this time the races of three of the fo strongly fenced with a treble wall of greatest Kings in that part of the world great height, and surrounded with waters rookend; to wit, of the Babylonians, Medi- unfoordable, fo plentifully victualled for ans, and Lydians ; in Balthafar, Cyanares, many years, that the inhabitants were not only free from all doubt and fear of their estate, but despised and derided all purposes and power of their beliegers.

The only hope of the Medes and Persians, who despaired of carrying by assault a City fo well fortified and man'd, was, in cutting Fter this Lydian War, enfued the great off all fupplies of victuals and other necessia-Conquest of Babylon, which gave unto rics: whereof though the Town was said to typus an Empire fo large and mighty, that be stored sufficiently for more than twenty. he was juftly reputed the greatest Monarch years, yet might it well be deemed, that in then living upon earth. How long time fuch a world of people as dwelt within those the preparations for this great action took gates, one great want or other would foon up, it is uncertain; only it feems, that ten appear, and vanquish the resolution of that whole years did pass between his taking unwarlike multitude. In expecting the sucthose two Cities of Sardis and Babylon; cess of this course, the Besiegers were likely which nevertheless I do not think to have to endure much travel, and all in vain, if been wholly occupied in provision for the they did not keep streight watch and strong

This was hard to do, in regard of the vast

ferred that which Ctessas hath in his frag | gird in, with numbers neither great enough, ments of a war made by Cyrus upon the Scy-nor of men fufficiently affured unto their thians, though related as foregoing the vi-Commander: The confideration whereof ctory obtained against Crassus. He telleth us, ministred unto the Babylonians matter of That Cyrus invaded Scythia, and being vi- good pastime, when they saw the Lydians, xemph.cy-Corious over that Nation, took Amorges Phrygians, Cappadocians, and others, quar-roped.1.7. their King prisoner: but being in a second tered about their Town to keep them in, battel overthrown by the wife of Amorges, who having been their ancient friends and Sparetha, and therein taken, the one King allies, were more likely to joyn with them, if occasion were offered, than to use much Likewise it may be thought, that no small diligence on the behalf of cyrus; who had, part of those troubles which arose in the as it were yesterday, laid upon their necks lower Afia, grew foon after the departure of the galling yoak of servitude. Whilft the the victorious Army, before the Conquest | besieged were pleasing themselves in this deceitful and vain gladness, that is the or-For after Cyrus was returned out of Asia dinary fore-runner of sudden calamity, Cythe less, many Nations, conquered formerly | rus , whom the Ordinance of God made by Crass, and now by Cyrus, revolted from strong, constant, and inventive, devised, by him; against whom he employed Pattias, so many channels and trenches as were and then Harpagus, who first reduced the sufficient and capable of Euphrates, to Phocians under their former obedience, and draw the same from the walls of Babylon, then the rest of the Greeks inhabiting Asia thereby to make his approach the more the less, as the Ionians, Carians, Edians, facile and affired: which when by the and Lycians, who relolvedly (according to labour of many hands he had performed, the strength they had) defended them- he stayed the time of his advantage for the selves. But in the attempt upon Babylon it execution: for he had left certain banks or felf, it is not to be doubted, that Cyrus em- heads un-cut, between the main river ployed all his forces, having taken order be- which furrounded the City, and his own

CHAP. III.

Playes, and other Pastimes; and thereto in- banquetting, she came in upon the bruit of vited a thousand of his Princes or Nobility, the miracle, and to comfort the King in his besides his Wives, Curtizans, and others of distraction. And whereas Daniel was forthat trade. This he did either to let the be- gotten and neglected by others both of fiegers know, that his provisions were either | younger years and times, this old Queenrefufficient, not only for all needful uses, but membred well what he had done in the even for jollity and excess; or because he daies of Nabuchodonosor, Grandfather to this hoped that his enemies, under the burthen Balthafar, and kept in mind both his Reliof many distresses, were well near broken; or gion and divine gifts. in honour of Bell his most reverenced Idol; or that it was his Birth or Coronation day; presence, who acknowledged those excellent or for many or all these respects. And he graces wherewith God had enriched him, was not contented with fuch magnificence he prayed him, together with promiles of as no Prince else could equal, but (using Da- reward and honour, to read and interpret niel's words) he lifted himself up against the those words miraculously written; to whom Lord of Heaven: for he and his Princes Daniel made answer in a far different style Wives and Concubines, made carowing cups from that he used towards his Grandfather: of the Vessels of God, in contempt of whom, for, the evil which he foretold Nabuchodomohe praifed his own Puppets, made of Silver | for, he wished that the same might befall his and Gold, of Brass, Iron, Wood, and Stone; Quanta fuit stultitia in vasibus aureis bibentes, lignees & lapideos deos landare? How great a fooliflines was it (faith St. Hierom) drinking in golden Cups, to praise gods of Wood writing anto the King, and shew him the interand Stone & While Balthafar was in this fort Pretation . Which, before he had performed, triumphing, and his brains well filled with he gave him first the cause of Gods just vapors, he beheld a hand, which by divine | judgment against him, and the reason of power wrote on the wall opposite unto him, certain words which he understood not: all his Wise men were utterly ignorant. wherewith so great a fear and amazement feifed him, as the joynts of his loyns were loofed, and his knees smote one against the other. Which pattien, when he had in some obeyed, and that for his pride and neglect part recovered, he cried out for his Chaldaans, Aftrologians, and Southfayers, promiting effact and understanding, so upon the acthem great rewards, and the third place of knowledgment of Gods infinite power he honeur in the Kingdom to him that could reftored him to both. This King, notwithread and expound the writing: but it ex- | ftanding, lifted himself up against the same ceeded their Art. In this diffurbance and God; and prefuming both to abuse those astonishment, the Queen hearing what had vessels dedicated to holy uses, and neglectpast, and of the Kings amazement, after re- | ing the Lord of all power, praised and worverence done, used this speech: There is a shipped the dead Idols of Gold, Silver, Brass, man in thy Kingdom, in whom is the spirit of Iron, Stone, and Wood : and therefore those the holy Gods, and in the daies of thy Father, words, from the Oracle of a true God delifayers, because a more excellent spirit, and his Empire was divided and given to the knowledge, and understanding, &c. were Medes and Persians. found in him, even in Daniel, &c. Now let Daniel be called, and he will declare the in- wherein Balthafar feafted and perished, Cy-

Org. on mother; Origen and Theodoret, for the Mo- fign he followed in this War, found the time ther of Balthafar; either of which may be and opportunity to invite him: and therefep. Am. true: for it appeareth, that she was not any fore while the Kings head, and the heads of of the Kings Wives, because absent from the his Nobility were no less filled with the va-

When Daniel was brought to the Kings enemies; but to this King (whose neglect of God, and vice, he hated) he answered in these words, Keep thy rewards to thy felf, and give thy gifts to another; yet will I read the this terrible lentence, whereof the King and Which being written at large in Daniel, hath D.M.S. (3) this effect, That forgetting Gods goodness 19,10. to his Father, whom all Nations feared and of those benefits, as he deprived him of his light, and understanding, and wisdom, like the vered, (to wit) Mene, Tekel, Upharsin, gave wisdom of the Gods, was found in him, whom the King knowledge, that God hath numthe King Nebuchodonofor, thy Father, the bred the time of his Kingdom, and finished King (Isay) thy Father made chief of the In- it; That he was weighed in the ballance of chanters, Aftrologians, Chaldwans, and south- Gods Justice, and found too leight; and that

The very evening or night of this day, rus, either by his espials, according to Xeno-This Queen, Joseps takes for the Grand- phon; or inspired by God himself, whose enfeast; and being past the age of dancing and pors of Wine, than their hearts with the fear Army made their entrance, finding none to fore any thing attempted. disturb them. All the Town lay buried (as cp.47.5 tion of his judgments was mixt with a rigo- an hundred Gates of Brass, with posts and thine hand: thou didft frew them no mercy, Kingdoms. but thou didft lay thy very heavy yoke upon the Tank antient. I will rife up against them, saith the Inimus. Lord of Hofts, and will cut off from Babel the dath and Name, and the Remnant, and the Son, and thi ly houses, and her whole Territory, with all Nephew. And in the thirteenth, Every one the richestherein contained, among his Soulthat is found, Mall be firicken thorow: whose diers; but bestowing the inhabitants themever joyneth himself, shall fall by the sword, their selves as bond-slaves upon those that had tachildren also shall be broken in pieces before ken possession of their goods. their eyes, their houses spoiled, and their Wives Touching the reign of Cyrus, and the

of Gods judgment, he caused all the banks | that received the report from others truly and heads of his trenches to be opened and as it was, that could better leave the fame to cut down with that diligence, as by them he posterity after it happened, than Esay hath drew the great River of Euphrates dry for done in many places of his Prophecies, the prefent, by whose chanel running, his which were written two hundred years be-

The greatuess and magnificence of Babythe Poet faith) in fleep and wine: fuch as lon, were it not by divers grave Authors fet came in the Persians way, were put to the down, might seem altogether fabulous: for. fword, unless they faved themselves by besides the reports of Sain Hierom, Solinus. flight, as some did, who ran away crying, and Orosius, Aristotle in the third of his Poand filling the streets with an uncertain tu- litticky of the second Chapter, received the report for true, That one part of the City Such Affyrian Lords as had revolted from knew not that the rest was taken three daies Died. 1.3. Balthafar, and betaken themselves to the after. Which is not impossible, if the testiparty of Cyrus, did now conduct a selected mony of Diodorus Siculus may be taken a company to the Kings Palace, which having who finds the compass thereof at three eafily forced, they rushed into the Chamber | hundred and threescore Stadia or Furlongs. where the King with his Princes were ban- which makes five and forty miles: the walls quetting, flew both him and them without whereof had so great a breadth, that fix any mercy, who strugled in vain to keep Chariots might pass in front thereon. And those lives which God had newly threatned of height, according to Ctessus and Clitracus. to take away. And now was the Prophecy three hundred threescore and five foot garof Jeremy fulfilled, and that of Esay, two nished with an hundred and fifty Towers. hundred years before this subversion; who in | Strabo in the beginning of his sixteenth his seven and fortieth Chapter, and else- Book of Geography, gives it a greater cirwhere, writeth this destruction so feelingly cuit, adding five and twenty Furlongs more and lively, as if he had been present both at to the former compals, reckoning the same the terrible flaughter there committed, and at three hundred fourfcore and five Furhad feen the great and unfeared change and longs, which make eight and forty mile and calamity of this great Empire; yea, and had one Furlong, but finds the wall far under allo heard the forrows and bewailings of that which Diodore reports: and fo doth every surviving foul thereunto subject. His Curtius measure their thickness but at two Prophecy of this place he beginneth in these and thirty foot, and their height at an hunwords; Come down, and fit in the dust, o dred cubits, which is also very much; every Virgin Daughter of Babel: fit on the ground, cubit containing a foot and a half of the there is no Throne, &c. And again, sit fit!!, and get thee into darkness, o daughter of the of the City he gives the same with siculus, Chaldwans, for thou shalt no more be called the and eight Furlongs more. Herodotus finds a Lady of Kingdoms. For though it cannot be greater content than Strabo doth, namely, doubted, that God used Nabuchodonofor, and four hundred and fourscore Furlongs circles the Chaldwans, to punish the Idolatry of the the thickness of the wall he measures at fif-Judeanszyet Esay teacheth us in this place ty cubits, and the height at two hundred of That he did not yet forget, that the execu- the same regal cubit. For entrance, it had Her. I. 1. rcus extremity. For (faith Efay) in the per- Hooks to hang them on of the same metal: fon of God, I was wroth with my people, I have and therefore did the Prophet Efay rightly polluted mine inheritance, and given them into intitle Babylon, The Princess and Glory of 1/2. 47.13.

> But when Cyrno had wonn her, he stript her out of her Princely Robes, and made her a flave; dividing not only all her good-ravished. So as there is no Historian who time which he enjoyed in rest and pleasure, was either present at this victory of Cyrus, or I can say no more of it, than that it is generally agreed by all Chronologers to have in his own City of Pafagardes, which himlasted only seven years: in which time he self shad built, and where his Epitaph was to made such Constitutions as differ little from be read in his time; which is said to have the Ordinances of all wife Kings that are de- been this: Ovir, quieunque es, & undecunfirous to establish a Royal power to them- que advenis, neque enim te adventurum ignofelves and their posterity.

The end of Cyrus.

great King Cyrus, is diverlly written. my body is covered.

Herodoius and Justin deliver, That after the This Tomb was o Massagetes, a very warlike Nation of the treasure, supposed to have been buried with Scythians, governed by Tomyris their Queen: him (or upon defire to honour his dead boand that in an incounter between the Fer- dy with certain ceremenies) in which there Gans, and these Northern Nomades, Tompris | was found an old rotten Target, two Seglost her Army, and her Son spargapises that thian Bows, and a Sword. The Cossin wherecommanded it: In revenge whereof, this in his body lay, Alexander caused to be co-Queen making new levies of men of War, vered with his own garment, and a Crown his body, and cast the same into a bowl of rogate much from Herodotus, who leaves his blood, using these words; Thou that hast all body in the hands of Tomyris. thy life time thirsted for blood, now drink thy fill, and satiate thy felf.

ing the strength and multitude of those maining forces into Egypt, so far off from that frozen Nations, was perswaded to abate quarter; the Scythian Nation then victoritheir fury by some for cible invasion and de- ous, and bordering Media: neither had population, because in the time of Cyaxarcs | Cambyses been able in such haste to have un-Father to Aftyages, those scythians invaded dertaken and performed so great a Con-Media and Asia the less, and held the same quest. Wherefore I rather believe Xenoin a fervile subjection eight and twenty phon, saying, That Cyrus died aged, and in myrique, lasted (saith he) six years, and took unto him his Nobility, with his two Sons, end at the end of Cyrus.

nier, that this Scythian War was rather the wherein he affured himfelf, and taught fame which Cyrus made against the Sacians, others, of the immortality of the Soul, and of before the conquest of Lydia, according to the punishments and rewards following the Ctessas before cited, who calleth Tompris, good and ill deserving of every man in this sparets, though he deliver the success of life; he exhorted his Sons by the strongest that War otherwise than Herodotus doth: arguments he had, to a perpetual concord Vig prim. The rather (faith Viginier) because Strabo in and agreement. Many other things he utpar. Eib. his eleventh Book reciteth, that Cyrus fur- tered, which make it probable, that he reprized the Sacians by the same stratagem by ceived the knowledge of the true God which Justin faith, he defeated the Son of from Daniel, when he governed susa in Percie. L. 15. Homyris. And the same Clessas also reporteth, Jiu; and that Cyrus himself had read the bift. part. That the last War which Cyrus made, was Prophecy of Esty, wherein he was exprelly three daies after. Strabo also affirmeth, That he was buried work that ever Cyrus performed. For in ravi: Ego fum Cyrus qui Perfis imperium constitui, pusillum hoc terræ quo meum tegitur Corpus mihi ne invidens ; O thou man, whofoever thou art, or whence foever thou comest; for I was not ignorant that thou should ft come: I am Cyrus that founded the Persian Empire, do He last War, and the endrof this not envy unto me this little earth, with which

This Tomb was opened by Alexander, as Conquest of Afathe less, Cyrus invaded the Qu. Curtius reporteth, either upon hope of 9. Care and following the War against Cyrus, in a of Cold to be set upon it. These things well fecond battel beat the Persian Army, and considered, as they give credit to the re-Zantia taking Cyrus prisoner, cut off his head from ports of Xenophon and Zonaras, so they de-20.

And furely, had Cyrus loft the Army of Persia in Scythia, it is not likely, that his Son It should hereby feem, that Cyrus know would so foon have transported all his repeace : and that finding in himself, that he This War, which Metasthenes calleth To- | could not long enjoy the world, he called Cambyles and Smerdis; or, after Xenophon, But in this particular I believe with Vigi- Tanaoxares: and, after a long Oration, against Amorrhaus King of the Derbicians, a named, and by God (for the delivery of his Nation (as the rest) of scythia; whom people) preordained. Which act of deliverthough he overcame, yet he then received ing the Jews from their Captivity, and of the wound of his death, which he fuffered reftoring the holy Temple and City of Jeru-Salem, was in true confideration the noblest other actions he was an inftrument of Gods begun. And whereas some Authours make power, used for the chastising of many Nadoubt, that whatsoever Cambyses did when Esd. 2, 16. Grace to be an instrument of Gods goodness, solve themselves out of Efdras. That by the heaven and earth shall perish.

CHAP. III.

ø. VII.

of God in Jerusalem.

Aving therefore fpoken of his great Victories, mentioned by fundry Hifforians, the glory of all which was a reward verned under him, as when himself became of this his fervice done unto him that was fole and Soveraign Monarch, we shall find House of God in Jerusalem, having now endured and finished the threescore and ten merly done in the times of other Kings. years captivity, by the Prophets foretold. bed the Temple.

out of Chaldaa under their Leader Zoroba- which they did to Sennackerib, Nabuchodo-1261.1. Out of Chalacca under their Leader 2010 to nefor, and other Kings of Babylon. For, as it is Extension, bel, the fon of Salathiel, and Nephew to nefor, and other Kings of Babylon. For, as it is Extension. Josadak, were about fifty thousand; where, of the house of Israel. as foon as they arrived, they built an Altar 1 Eld. 3. according to their own law, and afterward to whom the Counfellors and Governors of

for the rebuilding of the Temple. But no focner did the Jews begin to lay in the fixth and seventh Chapters of Efdras other Idolatrous Nations adjoyning, gave nors (whose Epistle sheweth as much) did all the impediment they could. So did the not withftand the building of the Temple, in no fort favoured the Jews, nor the labours and by the Kings answer, it is evident. nor purposes they had in hand. And not Also in the fixt of Ezra, the fourteenth only those which were but Provincial Lieu- verse, the Kings are named in order as they 16, tenants, and other officers of less place, but Coverned, and Artaxerxes written after Da-

power, the draw the establishing of a Government himself had obtained the Empire, yet during tions, and the establishing of a Government himself had obtained the Empire, yet during the life of Government the life of Government himself had obtained the Empire, yet during the life of Government himself had obtained the Empire, yet during the life of the in those parts of the world, which was not the life of Cyrus there was no such impedilong to continue. But herein he had the ment or prohibition: they may herein re- 1 Est 4.5. and a willing advancer of his Kingdom up- conspiracies of the neighbouring Nations, on earth; which must last for ever, though the building was hindred all the time of King Cyrus life, &c. And therefore it is true, what the Jews themselves affirm as it is written in the fecond of John, That the Temple was 46. years in fetting up, having received of Cyrus his Decree for building the Temple | fo many hinderances from the first foundation to the fecond of Darius. And if we feek the natural and politick

Authour of them and of all goodness: I them in that Epistle remembred by Esdras, hold it meet at length to speak of the De- written by Belemus, Mithridates, and the cree made in the first of his Reign, being rest Presidents and Counsellors in Phanicia, perhaps the first that ever he made after wherein they complain that the Jews were his possession of the Babylonian Empire: evermore rebellious and troublers of Kings; Estat. 64. That the captive Jews should return again that their City being once built, they would into their own Territory, and re-build the | then refuse to pay tribute, and fall from the obedience of the Empire, as they had for-

But that which for that prefent feemed For the accomplishing whereof, he gave the most forcible impediment, was, that order to his Treasurers to furnish them with | Cambyses having it in his resolution to invade all things necessary and wanting. He also | Egypt, and that it was a common opinion, restored unto them five thousand four hun- That the Jews were descended of those Nadred threescore and nine Vessels of Gold tions, because they issued thence under Moand Silver, whereof Nabuchodonofor, the Jes, when they conquered Judea; their City Grandfather of Balthafar, had formerly rob- being once repaired and fortified, they might return to their old vomit, and give The number of the Jews which returned | the same disturbance to Cambyses Conquest, King Jeconias, and Jesus or Josua the son of written in Ezechiel, Egypt was the confidence

But it is to be understood, as Codoman to the living God, and facrificed thereon, and others have observed, that Artaxerxes, Eld 4 bethought themselves how to prepare ma- Phanicia complained against the Jews, did not precede, but succeed Darius Hystaspes, as any one stone, than the Samaritans and it is made plain: and also that those Gover-Governours of those Provinces under Cyrus but the fortifying and enclosing of the City, altogether countenance the diffurbers, and as by the reasons given in the said Epistle,

Cambyfes himself; who having the charge rius; as: And they built and finished it (to wit of the whole Empire, while Cyrus was buli- the Temple) by the appointment of the God of ed otherwise, countermanded the building Israel, and by the commandement of Cyrus

544

Lastly, in the seventh of Ezra it is written; old Translation calleth a Macedonian) had Now after these things, in the reign of Artah- against the Jews, though the opinion of Tothafte King of Persia: which was as much as feplus be more probable, who finds Amanto to fav, after the finithing of the Temple in be an Amalchite. But it is hard to be un-Darius time. And therefore Artaxerxes in derstood, how Atossa, the daughter of Cyrus, the fecond of Efdr.is is there named by an- should have been Efther, whose History ticipation, not in his own time and place.

ing of the City and Temple of Hiernfalem. of Hystaspes, or of Xerxes. The desire of Which action though prospered by the hand Atoffa to have Greece brought under the of God, was very flowly purfued by the men yoke of Persia, was partly grounded upon whom it most concerned, but first set on the honour which thereby she thought her foot by cyrus. The other Ordinances of husband might obtain, partly upon a femi-Cyrus, with his form and manner of Govern- nine humour of getting many brave Dames, ment, are to be found in Xenophon. At his Corinthians, Athenians, and others of that death he bequeathed the Empire unto his Nation to be her bond-woman. Wherefore eldest son Cambyses, appointing Smerdis or I cannot give affent to the opinion of Codo-Tanaoxares his younger fon to be Satrapa, or man, who upon the near found of the two Lieutenant of Media, Armenia, and Cadulia; names, Atossa and Hadassa, (by the latter of and then died, after he had reigned (faith which Efther was also called) makes them to Herodotus) one and thirty years, or (accor- have been one person. For though it be true ding to Justine) but thirty.

ø. VIII.

Of Cyrus his issue: and whether Atossa were . Same with Queen Helter.

Meroe, and Artystona: Ctesias addeth to derstood the truth: who nevertheless did so these, Amytis. Atossa and Meroe their bro- well know the parentage of Atossa, that for ther Cambyfes married; Artystona, Darius her sake, as being daughter of Cyrus, her son Hystaspes obtained; so did he Atossa, Cam- | Xerxes was preferred to the Kingdom before byfes being dead: who (as some Writers his elder brother, against whom also he have supposed) inflamed both her husbands, could have pretended a very weak claim. Darius, and Xerxes after him, to invade But of these things more hereafter in fitter Greece, to be avenged of the whole Nation place.

and Darius, and Artahshaste Kings of Persia. | for the cruel intent that Aman (whom the feems rather to appertain to the time of Ar. And thus much concerning the rebuild- taxerxes Longimanus, than of Darius the fon that Efther concerning her parentage, awhile might be taken for a great Lady; yet Codomans inference is nothing probable, that she should therefore, and for the great affection which the King bare unto her, be thought his daughter, or (as some think) were the the daughter of cyrus. Certain it is, that Esther did at length discover her Kindred and Nation 5 whereby, if Histories could be kept Trus had iffue two fons, Cambyfes and free from this errour, yet the people, and smerdis, with three daughters, Atoffa, especially the Nobility, must needs have un-

CHAP. IV.

The eflate of things from the death of Cyrus to the reign of Darius.

6. I.

Of the number and names of the Persian Kings.

the continuance of the Persian Cyrus alone. Empire, there are many opi- Priscus Artaxerxes. nions : As that of Metasthenes, Darius Longimanus. who hath numbred the Persian Darius Nothus. Kings, and their times as followeth.

F the fuccessors of Cyrus, and Darius Medus, and Cyrus joyntly. >years Ataxerxes Mnemon

Artaxerxes Ochus. 4 | years. Arses, or Arsames. Darius, the last, conquered by Alexander.

To which Philo agreeth; which number of years added, make in all an hundred ninety and one. But in this Catalogue Meta-Theres hath left out Cambyfes and Xerxes, and names Artaxerxes Affuerus, for the immediate successor of Cyrus; in place (saith Melanthon) of Darius the Son of Hystaspes: doth not account Cambyfes in the Catalogue, v. 7 because his reign was confounded with that of Cyrus.

There is a second Opinion, though ridiculous, of sedar Olam, who finds but four of that Empire.

the North Latins follow, and fo doth Krentzheim, who ing with his own Sons. hath fully answered; and, as I take it, refuted all the former Authors varying from following the Greeks, apply the beginnings that account. For in this fort do the Greeks and ends of every Perstan King with their marshal the Persian Kings with the times of Acts, to some certain Olympiad; As the War their reigns.

Melanelhon gives Cyrus but 19.	Cyrus in all. Cambyses with the Magi.	8) 80)
	Darius Hystaspes.	36
Melmet.	Xerxes.	21
but 10.	Artaxerxes Longimanus.	40 years
	Darius Nothus.	19
Melanet. but 40	Artaxerxes Mnemon.	43
Melantt.	Artaxerxes Ochus.	23
16. Milavil. 4.	Arfames.	3
satisfier, 4.	Darius the last.	61

all two hundred and thirty.

ra I. ch. I. verf. I. and often elsewhere.

upon the Geneva understands that place; fall out right with each computation. but, under correction, mistakes the matter For Ptolemy reckons the time answerable greatly, when he faith in the fame note, that to two hundred and four and twenty Julian Darius Hystaspes was an enemy to the people years, and an hundred and forty dates from favour and liberality to the Jews being elsewhere proved.

Thirdly, Is Darius Hystaspes found in Ezra the first, c.4.v.5, who in the fixth verse is also named Abassuerus.

Fourthly, In the eleventh of Daniel, verse the fecond, Xerxes is plainly foretold and described, and the great War which he should make against the Greeks by Daniel remembred.

Fifthly, Artaxerxes Longimanus in Ezra the fourth, verse seven, who is also called for Metasthenes, as Melantthon conjectureth, Arthasastha, c. 4. l. 1. Ezra v. 7. and chap. 7.

> Sixthly, Darius Nothus, Ezra cap. 4. v. 24 and cap. 5. v.6. Nehem. cap. 12. v.22.

Seventhly, Artaxerxes Mnemon in Nebem. cap.2. v. 1. who was Father to Artaxerxes Persian Kings from the beginning to the end Ochus, and Arsames: for Darius the last, he was of another Family, the Line of Cyrus Genebrard, Schubert, and Beroaldus, have the Great ending in Ochus, who descended also a differing account from the Greeks; from Xerxes the Son of Atolla, Cyrus his whom nevertheless Eusebius, and most of the Daughter; and the issue male of Cyrus fail-

> But to proceed, Eusebins, with the Latins of Aftyages (Cyrus his maternal Grandfather) and Alyattes (Crassus his Father) to the nine and fortieth Olympiad; The beginning of Cyrus reign, to the beginning of the five and fiftieth Olympiad; The taking of Sardis by Cyrus to the eight and fiftieth Olympiad; The invalion of Egypt by Cambyles to the third year of the threefcore and third Olympiad, and to of the rest. Which reference with good agreement between feveral forms of computation, add the more credit unto Again, this historical demonstration is Alm 1/3. Which numbers put together, make in confirmed by the Astronomical computation of Ptolemy, who referrs the death of This account (as I have faid) the most Alexander the Great, who died the 12. of Chronologers, and the best learned approve. | November, in the beginning of the hundred These Persian Princes, being all warranted by and fortieth Olympiad, to the four hundred the authority of the Scriptures, as Pencer and four and twentieth year after Nabonafin his historical Animadversions, hath ga- Jar. And the Era of Nabonassar began on the thered the places; finding first Cyrus in the six and twentieth of February: which, confecond of Chronicles, ch. 36. vers. 22, 23 Ex- ferred with the Olympiad, was in the ninth month of the first year of the eighth Olym-Secondly, Cambyses in the eleventh of Da- piad; So that whether we follow the acniel, who may indeed be well esteemed for counts of the Olympiaids, as do the Greek Hione of those three Kings in the second verse storians, or that of Nabonassar with Ptolemy, named, and so the Marginal Commentator we shall find every memorable accident to of God, and stood against them: his great Nabonassar to the sixteenth of July in the seventh year of Cambyses.

CHAP, IV.

45

lus, place the taking of Egypt by Cambyfes in marriage, Amasis presented him with Nitetis the fecond or third year of the threefcore the Daughter of Apries his predecessor. and third Olympiad, and the beginning of which Cambyses distained. Cambyses seventh year, in the first of the threescore and fourth Olympiad: which first byses gathered an Army sit for such an enof the threefcore and fourth olympiad runs terprize, and caused the same to march. along with part of the two and twentieth But before they entred Egypt, Amalis died. of Nabonassar. The like agreement is conse- and lest Psammenticus, whom Ctessus calquently found about the beginning and end led Amyrieus, his successor; who enjoyed of Cyrus.

fucceeded Cambyfes, is according to Ptolomy though other Chronologers give him fix the two hundred and fix and fortieth of Na- | years. bonaffar, which (observing the differences of Nabonassara and the Olympiad, viz. eight in one battel he lost it, and was himselftaand twenty years) agrees with the third of ken prisoner. the threefcore and ninth Olympiad, wherein it is placed by the Greeks. In this Josephus agrees with the Greeks throughout, faving life to the conquered King, but that he also that he joyneth Darius Medus, whom Xenophon calleth Cyaxares, with Cyrus in the destruction of Babylon; which is true, and not contrary to the Greek computation, but may very well fland with it.

Lastly, The disagreement and confused accompts of those that follow the other Catalogue of the Persian Kings formerly rehearfed, doth give the greater credit to this of the Greeks, which being constant in it self, accordeth also with the computation of other Historians, and Astronomers, and likewife with the holy Scriptures.

6. II.

of Cambyfes, and the conquering of Egypt

TE will therefore, according to the truth, give the Empire of Persia to Cambyfes, the Son of Cyrus, though degenerate in all things, faving the defire to increase the greatness of his Empire: whereof it with Carrion. others give him a longer reign than agreeth Her. 1. 3. Plin. 1. 6. c. 54. Stra. & Jul. 1. 1. Pag. 87, 88. Her. 1. 3. Stale with the Gracian accompt before recei-

Lib.2; c. 2. In the fifth year of his fole reign, and in Her. 1. 3. the third year of the threescore and third pag. 83,84, Olympiad, according to Diodore and Eusebiw, he invaded Egypt, and having overthrown the King thereof, Pfammeniticus, he not only caused him to be slain, but also did put constrained Evelthon King thereof to acto death all his kindred and dependants, knowledge him, who before held that Island with the most of his children,

Herodotus and Ctesias give for cause of this tion of Cambyfes) that when he fent to Ama-The Greeks, and namely, Diodorus Sicu- Is King of Egypt, to have his Daughter in

Howfoever it were ; true it is, that Cam-Egypt after his Father (according to thebell Copies of Herodotta) but fix months,

But how long foever he held the Crown,

It is faid that Cambyfes, following therein the example of Cyrus, did not only spare trusted him with the Government of Egypt, and that, upon some revolt, or suspicion thereof, he caused him to be slaughtered. But the race of this King was not lo extirpated, if we may believe Herodotus and Thucydides, but that he left a Son called Inarus, who caused the Egyptians to revolt both from Xerxes and Artaxerxes.

That Psammeniticus was at the first entreated gently by Cambyfes, I hold it very improbable, if it be true which is also written of him, That he fo much hated Amalis the King of Egypt, who died before his arrival that he caused his body to be drawn out of the grave, and after divers indignities used, commanded the same to be burnt, contrary to the custom both of the Egyptians and Persians. For the Egyptians used to powder their dead bodies with falt, and other drugs, to the end the worms might not devour them. The * Fersians durst not New confume them with fire, which they efteem-did the A ed as a God, and therefore feared to feed confunt

he was possest in his Fathers time, while Cy- till the time of Sylla Dictator, who caused his own to be devoured rus made war in the North. Ctessas with that element, fearing the Law called Talionis, or like for like, beam himself had untombed the carkass of Cains Mirius after his den

ø. III. The rest of Cambyses bis Acts.

Fter this victory obtained in Fgypt, Cambyfes fent an Army into Cyprus, and of the Egyptians.

While Cambyses yet bussed himself in War(being no other indeed than the Ambi- Egypt, he so much detested the Idolatry of that Nation, as he caused the Images them | cestuous match, to be slayed alive, for an Oratory, raised such a Tempest of Sand, ment. wherewith the greatest part of the Country is covered, as the Persians were therewith choaked and over-whelmed.

Notwithstanding which misadventure, Go, faith the King; Stay, faith the Tide.

with child, because she bewailed the death report. Her. B. So. of her Brother Smerdis. I find it written of this Cambyfes, That because his Predecessors | cifed, till at the last, according to the phrase observed religiously the Ordinances of their of our Law, he became felon de foy. For when red of them, whether there were any Law dis the Magi (Cedrenus writeth them sphenamong the Persians that did permit the Bro- | danes and Cimerdius) Ministers of his dother to marry his own Sifter; it being his meltical affairs, taking advantage of the alwaies either Lawstor distinctions in store Kings Brother, and Smerdis the Magus, poscerned not the Kings private satisfaction, he | gi governed, while he was absent. caused sisamnus, one of his Judges, and per-felves, with the Temples wherein they were unjust judgment given, and the same his hide worshipped, to be torn down and defaced. to be hung up over the judgment-seat. Af-This done, he directed a part of his Army inter which, bestowing the Fathers Office on to Lybia, to overturn the Temple of Jupiter his Son, he willed him to remember that the Ammon; but the Devil, in defence of his same partiality deserved the same punish-

Among other his cruelties, that which he exercifed against the Son of his beloved Praxaspes, was very strange and ungrateful. For when he defired to be truly informed by Herodotus and Seneca report, that, difdain- him what the Perfians thought of his condiing to be refifted, he prepared the rest of his tions, Praxaspes answered, That his virtues Army, which himself meant to conduct into were followed with abundant praise from those parts; but that finding a beginning of all men; only it was by many observed, that those incommodities, which his first-tent he took more than usual delight in the tast troops had tryed, he changed his purpole. of Wine: with which taxation inflamed, For though conquering Kings have power he used this replication: And, Are the over men, yet the Elements do not obey Persians double-tongued, who also tell me, them; according to that old English Proverb, that I have in all things excelled my Father Cyrus? Thou Praxafpes shalt then witness, After his return from the attempt of whether in this report they have done me Ethiopia, he caused Apis the Egyptian Bull, right: for, if at the first shot I pierce thy worshipped by that Nation as God, to be Sons heart with an Arrow, then is it false flain: a deed very commendable, had it that hath been spoken; but if I miss the proceeded from true zeal, and been execu- mark, I am then pleafed that the fame be ted as in fervice of him that only is, and accounted true, and my subjects believed. liveth. But soon afterwards, when in a This being spoken, he immediately directed dream it feemed unto him that Smerdis did an Arrow towards the innocent child, who fit in the Royal Throne of Persia (which ap- falling down dead with the stroke, Cambyses parition was verified in Smerdis the Magus) commanded his body to be opened, and his he gave it in charge to his favourite Praxaf- heart being broched on the Arrow, this pes, to murther Smerdis his Brother. And monftrous Tyrant greatly rejoycing, shewed having married his own Sifters, contrary to it to the Father, with this faying instead of the Persian Laws, he committed a most cause- an Epitaph: Now Praxaspes, thou mayst reless and most detestable murder upon the Solve thy felf, that I have not lost my wits with one of them called Meroe, then by himself | Wine, but the Persians theirs, who make such

Many other barbarous cruelties he exer-Empire, he affembled his Judges, and enqui- he was informed, that Patizites, and Smerown intent fo to do: The Judges (who had great refemblance between smerdis the to fatisfie Kings and times) made answer, self themselves of the Empire, he made all That there was not any thing written allow- haste towards Persia; and in mounting haing any fuch conjunction, but they not with- Itily on horse-back, his fword dif-sheathing standing found it in their customs, that it peirced his own thigh, wherewith deadly was alwaies left to the will of the Persian wounded, falling into an over-late and re-Kings, to do what best pleased themselves; mediless repentance of the slaughter which and fo, as Nanclerus terms it, invenerunt oc- he had executed upon his own Brother, he cassionem: that is as much to say, The Judges soon after gave up his wicked ghost, when found a shift to please the King, and to see he had reigned eight years, accounting cure themselves. And yet, where it con-therein those seven months in which the Ma-

In Cambyfes the Male Line of Cyrus failed. chance one of those which favoured his in- For he had no issue either by Atossa or Zzz 2

CHAP. V.

Zon. Com. 2. Meroe : yet Zonaras out of Hierom gives him upon the Laws of their Country; take other a Daughter called Pantaptes, and a Son mens wives by force, and destroy whom called Orontes: who being drowned in the they please without judgment. River Ophites by Antioch, the fame was afterward, in memory of the Princes death, cal- firming that the tyranny of a multitude was led Orontes.

the place where Latopolis was formerly fea- judgment, run into bufiness and affairs with ted, and that of Meroe in the Island of Ni- precipitation, like raging and over-bearing lus, calling it by the name of his Sifter | floods.

ø. IV.

of the Inter-regnum between Cambyses and from excellent men.

one of the Magi, the counterfeit of Smerdis, ever happen that the discord of many Ruthe Princes, or Satrapa's, or Provincial Go-lers hath enforc'd the election of One Suvernors of the Empire (to wit, Otanes, In. preme. It were therefore, faith Darins, taphernes, Gobrias, Megabyfus, Alphatines, Historia far fafer to observe the Laws of our Countage of the Co darnes, and Darins, who were all descended try, by which Kingly Government hath from Achamenes the first Persian King) ha- been ordained. ving discovered the fraud of this imposture, joyned their forces together, furprized and rius, and agreed to continue the same Imperooted out the Confpirator with his Com- rial Government, by God established and panions and Affiftants. In which action made prosperous. And, to avoid partiality, (faith Justin) Intaphernes and Asphatines it was accorded, that the morning followwere flain: but Herodotus otherwise, that ing these seven Princes should mount on they were only wounded; for he avoweth, Horfe-back, and on him the Kingdom should the election following.

it was not fafe to give all power to any one, rius for their Lord and King. feeing greatness it self, even in good men , Plato in the third of his Laws affirmeth, doth often infect the mind with many vices, that in memory of the feven Princes, and that liberty and freedom in all things is whereof Darius himfelf was one, that dedo commonly use the service of wicked Governments; Herodotus saith, into twenmen, and favour them most; they usurp ty Satrapies.

Megabysus was of another Opinion, afthrice more intolerable than that of One. He built the City of Babylon in Egypt, in For the multitude do all things without

> He therefore thought it fafest to make election of a few, and those of the best. wifest, and most vertuous; because it is ever found, that excellent Counsels are ever had

Darius gave the third judgment, who perswaded the creation of a King, because Trus and his two Sons being now dead, even among few diuturnity of concord is and the Kingdom in the poffession of seldom found, and in great Empires it doth

The other four Princes adhered to Dathat all the feven Princes were present at be conferred, whose Horse, after the Sun-Hadden rifing, should first ney or bray. In the even- 100,101, For the Empire being now without a Go- ing, after this appointment was made, it is vernour, these Princes grew into a consul- said, that Darius consulted with the Master tation how the same might be ordered from of his Horse Oebarus, who, in the Suburbs of thenceforth. Otanes (one on the Seven) did the City, where the election was resolved not fancy any election of Kings, but that of, caused the same Horse, whereon in the the Nobility and Cities should confederate, morning Darius was mounted, to cover a and by just Laws defend their Libertie in Mare, who, as soon as he came into the same equality, giving divers reasons for his Opinion, being, as it seemed, greatly terrified Whereupon the other six Princes descended by the cruelties of Cambyses: As first, that from their Horses, and acknowledged Da-

most apt to infult, and to commit all man-livered the Empire from the usurpation of ner of wicked outrage. Again, that Tyrants the Magi, he divided the whole into leven

CHAP. V.

Of Darius the fon of Hystaspes.

ø. I.

of Darius his Linage.

Arius was descended of the antient Persian Kings, to wit, of the Achemenide, of which, Cyrus the Great was the lineal fuccesfor. For in this fort Herodotus derives him as before;

> Cyrus the first, who had Teispins, who begat Ariaramnes, who was father of Arsamnes, the father of Hystaspes, the father of Darius, firnamed Celes, the father of Xerxes.

Hyltaspes accompanied Cyrus the Great, in the wars against the Scythians : at which time Cyrus being made jealous of Davius by a dream of his own, caused him to be sent into Persia; others say to be imprisoned, from whence by the death of Cyrus he was delivered, and made Governour of the Persian Magi. He afterward followed Cambyfes into Egypt; he then joyned with the rest of the Princes against the Magi, and either by the neying of his horse, or, as others affirm, by strong hand he obtained the Empire, which he the more affured to himself by taking two of Cyrus Daughters, and as many of his Neeces for his wives.

Hystaspes, according to * Herodotus, had, 137 befides Darius, these three sons, who were great Commanders in the War which Darius made in Asia the less, Thrace, Macedon, and Greece; Atarnes, Artaphernes, and Artaba-190, ms, who diffwaded Xerxes, from the fecond n.l.6.p. Grecian war. Hystaspes had also a Daughter 186. married to Gobryas the Father of Mardoni-190, 115, who commanded the Army of Darius in 179. Macedon, and married the Daughter of Da-

104. rius, artosoftre, his Cofen german. Reineccius gives to Hystaspes five sons, Darius who succeeded Cambyses, Artabanus, 154. Artaphernes, Otanes, and Atarnes, with two Daughters.

o. II.

Of Darius his Government, and suppressing the rebellion of Babylon.

Arius devised equal laws whereby his Subjects might be Governed, the same being formerly promifed by Cyrus. He gave access to all his Subjects, and behaved himfelf so mildly to all men, that many Nations defired and offered themselves to become his Vaffals: Only he laid divers payments and taxes on the people, which had not been accustomed in Cyrus time, to the value of fourteen thousand five hundred and threefcore talents, faith Herodotus.

The war which Cambyfes made a far off in Egypt, and the contention between the Magi and the Princes of Persia, for the Empire, gave heart to the Babylonians to recover their liberty, and to shake off the Persian yoke; whereof Darius being advertised, he prepared an Army to recover that City and State revolted. But finding the same a difficult work, he used the service of Zopyrus, who for the love he bare Darius, did cut off his own Ears and Nose, and with other wounds yet fresh bleeding, he seemed to fly to the Babylonians for fuccour, to whom he accused the cruelty of Darius: who for having given him advice to give over the siege of their City, had in this sort dismembred and deformed him; whereupon the Babylonians gave him that credit, as they trusted him with the disposition and commandement of their greatest forces: which when Zopyrus had obtained, after fome fmall colourable over-throws given to the Persians upon fallies, he delivered the City into Darius his Her. 1.2 hands, who had Iven before it twenty

CHAP.

ø. III.

the Temple.

Hierusalem should go on, and commanded because they joyned themselves to Darius. that the same should be finished at his own But the scythians more elegantly termed charge, and out of the revenues of the them good flaves, for as much as they would Crown. And whereas the Governours of not run away from their Master, but were those Provinces which are fituate between more mindful of doing their duties, than of Euphrates and the Phenician, and midland shaking off their bondage, when they were Sea (whom Ezra calleth the Captains be- presented with as fair an occasion of liberty vond the River) had hindred the work in as could have been defired. For the great Cambyles his time, Darius gave commande- Army of Darius entring the defart Country ment that they should not thence-forth called Bessarabia, found in it neither people come neer unto Jerusalem, to give any im- to relift them, nor any sustenance to relieve pediment to the building, but that they them. For the Seythians were then, as are should withdraw themselves, and get them the Chrim Tartars, their posterity, at this far off till all were finished, and at an end. day, all horse-men, using the Bow and Sword, In the old Latine it is written, Procul recedite | They were not Plough-men, but Grafiers, ab illis; With-draw your felves far from them; driving their Heards from one place to ano-In our English, Be je far from thence, to wit, ther, as opportunity of Pasture led them. from the City and Temple now in build-Standing Towns they had none, but used thenceforth hinder the fetting up of the good order, making Streets and Lanes in the Temple of God, that his house should be manner of a great Town, removeable at torn down, and the disturber hanged on the their pleasure. Neither hath the Emperour Gallows made of the timber thereof. He also himself, called now the great Chrim, any Eggi6.11 in the fame Decree maketh invocation to other City than fuch as Agora, (as they God; That hath caused his Name to dwell there name it) or Town of Carts. When as there-(to) destroy all Kings and people that put their fore Darius had wearied himself, and wasted hands to alter, and to destroy this house of God his provision in those desolate Regions, which is in Jerusalem, &c. In four years af- wherein he found neither wayes to direct ter which Decree (the Jews being really him, victuals to refresh him, nor any houses, furnished with money and all things neces- fruitful trees, or living creatures, nor any fary from Darius) the Temple was in all thing at all, which either he himself might finished, to wit, in the beginning of the make use of, or by destroying it might Spring, in the fixth year of Darius Hyftaspes, grieve his enemies, he began to perceive his and in the two and fortieth after their first own folly, and the danger into which he

ø. IV.

of Darius his Scythian War.

ded the Scythians, whose King Justin him Earth and Water, which the Perstans Jaf. 1.2. calleth Lauthinus; and faith, that Darius used to demand as a fign that all was yielded undertook this war against him, because he unto them. To this challenge the scythian refused him his Daughter in marriage. The returned an Hieroglyphical answer; sending better to convoy his Army into Scothia, he a Bird, a Frog, a Monfe, and five Arrows: ver Ister or Danubius, and gave the custody own wish, thought that he did yield all the of the same in charge (among others of Asia Elements wherein those creatures live, and whom was Militades, who perswaded the bryas, one of the seven Princes, who had Asian Grecians to break down the bridge, to the end Darius might not return thereby, of Darius his favour to the Jews in building and if by any other way, then not without great difficulty; but the same was refisted by Histians Prince of Milet, a City of Ionia. N the fecond year of Darius, he gave or which Nation, being a Colonie of the Greeks, der that the building of the Temple at Diodorus calleth Traytors to their Country, Dialing for Houses the Waggons wherein they car-He also made a Decree which concerned ried their wives and children. These Waghis own Subjects, That who oever should gons they place at every Station in very had brought him. Yet fetting a good face upon a bad game, he fent brave messages to the Scythian, bidding him to cease his flight, and either to make trial of his valour and fortune in plain battel; Or, if he acknowledged himself the weaker, then to yield by A Fter the recovery of Babylon he inva- fair means, and become his Subject; giving built a bridge of small Vessels over the Ri- which dumb shew Darius interpreting by his the less) to the Ionians and Aolians, among his weapons withal into his hands. But Goflain the Magi, construed their meaning upon their greatness and many Victories, bethey returned from Ister to seek him out.

ø. V.

Some actions of the Persians in Europe, after the Scythian War.

Arius having thus escaped out of Scy-I thia, determined the invasion of The first occasion of the War which Darius Thrace and Macedon, in which War he employed Megabasus, who mastered the Paonians, and transplanted them, and possess Perinthus, Chalcedon, Byzantium, and other places, being also foon after subjected, and added to the Persian Empire by Otanes, the merchine Civy in from the Persian, who having now rethuat duced under his obeyfance the best part of worst brunt of Darino invasion on that side with of Thrace, did fend his Embassadors to Amintas the Sea, with admirable success. Neither do Gry upon raignty over that Kingdom. Amintas business as gave fire to those wars, which nehas, at Embafiadors with gentle words, and after- the ruin of this great Persian Monarchy. Perwere well filled with wine, and prefumed Athens.

aright, which was thus; O ye Perfians, get gan to use such embracings, and other lasciwings like Birds, or dive under the water, vious behaviour towards those Noble Laor creep into holes in the earth, for else ye shall dies, as Alexander the Kings fon, great not escape our arrows. And this interpreta- Grandfather to Alexander the Great, diftion was foon verified by the Scythians daining the Persians barbarous presumption. themselves, who assailed the Fersian camp, befought his Father to with-draw himself drave the horse-men into the trenches, and from the assembly, continuing notwithvexed the Army with continual Allarums standing all honourable respect towards the day and night; were fo fearless of this great Embassadors, whom withall he entreated Monarch, and so little regarded him, that that the Ladies might refresh themselves for within his hearing, and even in his fight, a while; promifing their speedy return. they did not forbear the pastime of cours- This being obtained, Alexander caused the ing a Hare, which they had started by like number of well-favoured young men chance. By this boldness of theirs, Darius to clothe themselves in the same garments, was so discouraged, that he forsook his and to use the same attires which the Ladies Camp by night,making many fires, and leaving all that were fick and weak behind him,

That when the Perfiant offered to abule and so with all speed marched away towards them, they should forthwith transpierce the River Isler. He was pursued hardly by them with their long knives, of which they the scythians, who mist him, yet arriving at were provided for that purpose, which was the Bridge before him, perfivaded the *Toni*accordingly performed. Charge was foon ans to depart, affuring them that the *Perfam*after given by Darius for a fevere revenge King should never more be able to do them of this murder. But Alexander somewhat either good or harm. Which words had before the death of Amintas, gave his fifter certainly been proved true, had not Hystiæ- Gygea in marriage to Bubaris, a principal us the Milesian prevailed with his people, to Commander of Darius forces on that side, attend the coming of Darius, whom the who perswading her husband how helpful Soythians did likewise fail to meet, when the Alliance of Macedon would prove for the invalion of Attica intended, so prevailed, as Alexander escaped that tempest, which threatned to fall upon him very fuddenly; the war of Asia the less, called Ionick, falling out at the lame time.

ø. VI.

made upon Greece, with a rehearfal of the government in Athens, whence the quarrel

70w the better to understand the reaon and motives of that great War, fon of sysamnes, whom Cambyses had excori- which followed soon after, between the ated for false judgment. So were the Ci- Persians and Grecians, it is necessary to ties of * Selybria, and a Cardia likewise taken make a short repetition of the state of King of Macedon adjoyning, demanding of I hold it any impertinency to be large in him by the Earth and Water, the Sove- unfolding every circumstance of so great a doubting his own strength, entertained the ver could be throughly quenched, untill in wards invited them to a solemn and magni- sepolis the Capital City of the Empire, was at ficent feast; the Persians greatly defired that the request of an Athenian Harlot consumed the Macedonian Ladies might be present: with a flame, as dreadful, as in the pride which being granted, the Embassadors, who of their greatness, the Persians had raised in

Now

CHAP. V.

Now therefore as out of the former books | Abfander. it may be gathered, how Athens and other Erixias was the last Archon of the decennial parts of Greece, were anciently Governed, the same being already set down, though fcatteringly, and in feveral times, among other the Contemporary occurrents of the Eastern Emperours, and the Kings of Judea; so I thought it very pertinent in this place to remember again the two last changes in the State of Athens. As for the Lacedamonians, they maintained still their ancient polity under Kings, though these also after some fifteen descents were bridled by the Ephori.

Codrus King of the Athenians, in the former books remembred, who willingly died for the fafety of his people, was therefore fo honoured by them, as (thinking none worthy to succeed him) they changed their former Government from Monarchical to Princes for term of life, of which Medon the Son of Codrus was the first, after whom they were called Medontida; and of these there were twelve Generations besides Medon, to Rome created for that purpose) reduced in-

wit, Agestus.

Archippus, in whose times the Greeks transported themselves into Ionia, after Troy all other Chronologers (fuch as foland forty.

Thersippus. Thorbas.

Laws to the Spartans.

Pheredus. Ariphron.

Arbaces.

ding to Eusebius) were erected in Laceda-first Archon, was charops, then Æsymedes. Elvdicus. Hippomenes. Leocrates.

Governours, which form continuing threefcore and ten years, was then changed into annual Magistrates, Maiors, or Burg-masters, of which Theseus was the first, according to Paulanias; others find Leoftratus; and then Anthofthenes.

Archimedes. Miltiades. Damasias.

Draco. Megacles.

solon, and others, who are the less to be regarded, by reason of the yearly change. This solon being a man of excellent wifdom, gave Laws to the Athenians, which were published, according to Gellius, in the three & thirtieth year of Tarquinius Priscus. and were in after-ages derived unto the Romans, and by the Decem-viri (Magistrates in to Twelve Tables, which were the ground of the Roman Laws. But these goodly ordinances of solon, were in his own dayes violated and for a while almost quite extinguishan hundred and fourfcore years, accor- ed. For whereas they were framed unto the cording to Eugebius: which migration practice and maintenance of a popular Government; the state of Athens was very low Enfebius herein excepted) find in foon changed into a Monarchy by Pifffrathe year after Trey fallen one hundred | two the fon of Hippocrates : who finding the Citizens distracted into two factions, whereof Megacles and Lycurgus, two Citizens of Noble Families, were become the heads, took occasion by their contention Diogenetus, in whose time Lycurgus gave and insolency to raise a third faction more powerful than the other two, and more plaufible, for that he feemed a Protector of the Citizens in General. Having by Theispeus, in whose time the Assyrium Em- this means obtained love and credit, he pire was overthrown by Belechus and wounded himfelf, and fained that by malice of his enemies he had like to have been flain for his love to the good Citi-159. Efchylus, in whose time the Ephori (accor- zens; he precured a Guard for his defence, and with that band of men surprising the State-house, or Cittadel of Athens, he made Alcamenon, the last Prince for life, after himself Lord of the Town; Hegelistratus bewhose death the Athenians elected De- ing then Governour. But the Citizens, who cennial Governours: the former Princes in every change of Government had fought for life having continued in all three to remove themselves further and further hundred and fixteen years. The first of from the form of a Monarchy, could so ill those that Governed for ten years, or the brook this usurgation of Pifftrains, that he was driven for lack of help, to fly the Town, as soon as Megacles and Lycurgus (joyning their forces) attempted his expulsion. Yet as the building of his Tyranny, founded upon the diffention of the Citizens, was ruined by their good agreement; fo was it foon after well re-edified by the new break- 1y favoured by Darins, to whose Son Hypoagreement held not long; the Alemaonida, and especially Megacles, being incensed Bril 12 against Pilistratus for his misdemeanour to-Esizes, by with the Souldiers of the Town, proceeding wards his Wife. Wherefore they practifed | banished Almaonida, together with an Army theis calin their treason so secretly, and so far, that napaant, piliftratus (upon the first discovery of their puterolisis, intent) perceived no other remedy for his Restild. affairs, than to withdraw himself to Eretria, Elianus, but, ast Justin hath it, four and thirty; accounting the time belike as well before, as after his feveral expulsions. Herodotwo gives the Father and the Son fix and thirty years; Aristotle five and thirty. But Thuhad refigned his estate.

cydides affirmeth, that he died very old, leaving for his Succeffors, his two Sons, Hippias

with such moderation, as they rather seemed the Lineal fucceflors of a natural Prince than of a Tyrant. But in the end, and some three years before Hippias was expelled out to conquer Greece, was one, but not the of Athens, his Brother Hipparchus was murdered by Harmodius and Aristogiton. The cause why, and the manner how performed, Thueydides hath written at large. And, though Hipparchus was charged with unnatural lust after Harmodius, yet Plato in his Dialogue, intituled Hipparchus, doth greatly magnifie him, affirming that he was a Prince of as many eminent virtues as that Age had any, altogether condemning the murderers, and authors of that scandal. Hippias fearing ing out in Asia about the same time. The that this enterprize upon his Brother had more and deeper roots than were apparent, which occupied the greatest part of the Sea-

Harmodius and Aristogiton, by a Harlot of 500 years, even from the Ionick migration, theirs called Lemnia: who, because she to the time of Crass, were by this Lydian City of would not reveal her Companions, did cut King made Tributaries, and afterwards as Figure out her own tongue. Then did Hippias, the Balls, better to ftrengthen himself, enter into a Grans, and left as hereditary Servants to the frait amity with Eantides*, Tyrant of the Grown of Person.

ing out of the old factions. For when Mega- clus he gave one of his Daughters in marcles found the power of Lycurgus to grow riage. But some three years after the death greater than his own, he did (as is the usual of his Brother, doubting I know not what practice of the weaker fide) call in the common enemy Pififtratus, to whom he gave his use the Citizens with great severity, which Daughter in marriage; by which alliance neither Pifftratus the Father, nor Hippius the Family of the Alemeonide, whereof Me- himself had ever exercised, during their gacles was chief, became very powerful, yet usurpation till this time. And therefore the to, that Pilistratus by their power was made Athenians fearing lest that this disease might Master both of them and all the rest. But this rather increase, than diminish in Hippias. they stirred up clistines, one of the noblest and best able of their City, to practise their delivery: who, calling to his affiftance the of the Lacedamonians led by Cleomenes their King, fo affrighted Hippias, as by his compofition he gave over his estate, and the posfession of Athens, and from thence imbarking himself, took Land at * Sigeum, whence * Sigeum, a where he remained eleven years. Which time he went to Lamp sacus in Mysia governed by promontobeing expired, having hired Souldiers out of Antides, who presented him to Darius. He ty opposite many parts of Greece, he again recovered the was deprived of his estate, as Herodotus and of Tenedos, Thoughton principality of Athens: after which third Thucydides agree, twenty years before the which Aobtaining his estate, he governed Athens battel of Marathon: all which time he con-Animal feventeen years, according to Aristotle, and tinued, partly with Eantides, at other times calls ide reigned in all thirty and three years, faith with Artaphernes Lieutenant for Darius in promontori-Sardis, the Metropolis of Lydia; perfwading and practifing the enterprize upon Athens which Darius in the end to his great dishonour undertook, twenty years after Hippias

Thus far I have digressed from Darius, to the end the Reader may conceive the betand Hipparchus, who governed the Athenians ter the causes and motives of this War: whereof the hope that Hippias had to be restored to Athens by the help of Darius, which made him folicit and perswade the Persians most urgent.

ø. VII.

Of the Ionian Rebellion, which was the principal cause of the Wars ensuing between Greece and Persia.

A Nother, and a strong motive to this Lexpedition, was the Ionick War, break-Colonies transported out of Greece into Alia. first sought to discover the further intents of coast, having enjoyed their liberty about upon every advantage and opportunity: fo that might befall him, as one that had wadid the Ionians, and other Grecians, both in steed the King's treasures to no good pur-Cyrus his life, and after him, feek by all means pofe.

That a unity with Zeantiaes, Tyrant of the Colombia as it is the cultom of Nations halfconquered CHAP. V

possible to free themselves. to four them into Rebellion, as had by the Country of Ionia into the same course persian been given unto them for bridles to which he determined to run, he abandoned hold them in subjection. Every one of those his tyranny, and did set Miletus at liberty. Towns had a Lord to rule it, whom they This plaufible beginning wan unto him the (abhorring the Government of one man) hearts of the Milestans: and his proceeding called their Tyrants. These Lords were ve- with other Ionian Tyrants (of whom some ry true to the Persian, by whose only might he took and fold as slaves to their Citizens, they held the people in subjection. And this others he chased away) caused the whole their dutiful affection they had well decla- Nation to be at his command. The Persan red, when Darius, being in great extremity, Fleet, whereof he lately had been Admiral they used all means to deliver him and his in the enterprize of Naxos, he had surprized Army (that otherwise had been lost) out of in his first breaking out, together with the the Septhians hand. Of this great piece of principal Officers, and Captains; fo that now fervice Hilliaus the Tyrant of Miletus ex- he thought himself able to deal with the pected the chief thanks, as having been chief great King's forces, lying thereabout, either Author of their expecting Darius, when the by Land or Sea. But likely it was that the rest, either perswaded by the Scythians, or power of all Asia would shortly be upon his carried away with their own defires, were neck, and crush both him and his affishants ready to have abandoned him. But it came to pieces, unless he were able to raise an Arfo to pass, that Darius being more fearful of my that might hold the field, which the the harm that Histiaus (being powerful and Ionians alone were infusficient to perform, crafty) might do to him in the future, than Therefore he took a journey to sparta, mindful of the good which he had already where having affayed in vain with many arreceived at his hand, found means to carry guments, and the offer of fifty Talents, to him along to sufa, where he detained him win to his party Cleomenes King of the Lacewith all kind usage of a friend, yet kept such | damonians: he went from thence to Athens, good espial upon him, as an enemy, he could and with better success besought the people not frart away, Histiaus had subtilty enough to lend him their affistance. The Athenian to discover the King's purpose, which ill Embassadours which had been sent to the agreed with his own desires. For he thought Perstan Kings Lieutenant in the lower Asia, it more pleafant, and more honourable to defiring them not to give countenance to rule as Prince in one fair City, having a Hippias, now a banished man, and lately their small Territory, than to sit and feast at the Tyrant, were a while before this returned great King's Table, and hear the Counfels with ill answers, having found very churlish by which a large Empire was mana ged; be- entertainment. So that the evil which they ing himself an idle beholder, and enjoying were to expect in all likelihood from the with much restraint of liberty, none other Persian, made them willing to begin with pleasures than a private man might bestow him. To which purpose, their consanguinity upon himfelf. fing of some tumults in the lower Asia, to pa- his treasure were not helping. Twenty ships cifie which, if he might be sent, as one that the Athenians furnished for this voyage; to had great experience and authority in those which the Eretrians furnished five more, in quarters, it would afterwards be in his regard of the ancient kindness that had passpower to stay at home, and either satisfie the sed between the Ionians and them. With King with excuses, or deal as occasion shall these and their own forces joyned, the Ionirequire. Resolving upon this course, he sent ans entred the River Caistrus, which falleth very secret instructions to Aristagoras his into the Sea by Ephesas: by which advankinsman, whom he had left his Deputy at tage they surprized Sardis, when no enemy Miletus, advising him to ftir up some Rebel- was heard of or suspected; insomuch, as Arlion. These directions came seasonably to taphernes, who ruled as Vice-roy in those Ariftagoras, who having failed in an enter- parts, had no other hope of fafety, than by prize upon the Isle of Naxos, through the retreating himself into the Castle, which the conquered (witness Ireland) to rebel again in fear of difgrace, if not of some further ill

Therefore he readily embraced the coun-At this time they found such men ready sel: and the better to draw the whole with the Ionians, and the perfuations of Wherefore he bethought himself of rai- Aristagoras, drew them on a pace, if perhaps false dealing of a Perstan his Associate, stood Gracians could not force: from whence he beheld the flaughter of the Citizens, and the whole Nation of the Greeks; for all of the City flaming.

on that fide the Sea.

Yet the burning of Sardis made a greater noise in the world, than the late good fucskirmishes, could raise. Wherefore the Ionians bravely proceeded, wonn a great part of Caria; and fending their Fleet into the Hellespont, got Bizantium and other Towns into their hands. Yea, the Cyprians, lately subdued by Cambyses, began hereupon to take heart; and entring into confegive them aid by Sea, rebelled against the whom his double-dealing was detected. Persians.

attempt such things, but by the instigation and by his heavy taking of his death. of those, to whom the ignorance of his ced any further.

them gave to his Rebels free harbour: the The Persians, at length, mixt with the Islanders moreover did help to furnish out Burgers, began to encourage them to de- a Navy of three hundred and fixty fail fence, and recovered the Market-place, against him. These provocations did rather frengthened by the River Pactolus, which breed in him a defire to abate their pride. ran thorow it; and borrowing courage than any fear of harm that they were like from desperation, they both defended them- to do him. For what they had done at 8arsolves, and charged their enemies 5 who well dis, was but by surprize. In every fight advising themselves, made all the haste they they were beaten by the Persians, who had could toward the Sea side. But Arraphernes not yet lost the fruits of their discipline, having gathered all the strength he could, wherein Cyrus had trained them, nor all pursued the Grecians, and found them near their ancient Captains. In one Sea-fight by Ephelus; where fetting resolvedly upon the Isle of Cyprus, the Ionians indeed had them, he flaughtered a great part of their the upper hand; but they were Phanicians. Army, the rest saving themselves in Ephesus. Egyptians, and Cilicians, whom they van-In this fight, Evalcides, Captain of the Ere- quished : neither was that victory of any use trians perished: but his fame and memory to them; the Cyprians, in whose aid they was by that excellent Poet Simonides pre- came, being utterly beaten by the Persian ferved. After this overthrow, the Athenians, Army at Land, and reduced into their old which were before fent unto Ariftagoras, and subjection. So had the Persians likewise by to the Ionians, could by no arguments of open War and fair force overthrown the theirs, no not by their tears, be perswaded | Carians in two battels, and reclaimed that to make any fecond trial of their fortunes | Nation; as also they had recovered the Towns upon Hellespont, with some Æolian and Ionian Cities, when Aristagoras with his friends quitting Miletus, fled into Thrace, cels which the Persians had in one or two desirous to seat himself in Amphipolis, a Colony of the Athenians. But the Edonians, on whose Territory belike he landed, overthrew him, and cut his troops in pieces.

About the same time, Histiaus, the first mover of this infurrection, came down into those quarters; who having undertaken the performance of great matters to Darius, deracy with the Ionians, who were able to was glad to flye from his Lieutenants, by

But this Evafion preferved him not long. These news coming to the ear of Darius, And after many vain attempts that he filled him with great indignation, and with made, he was taken in fight by the Persians, an extreme hatred of the Athenians, upon and hastily beheaded, lest the King should whom he vowed to take sharp revenge. As pardon him upon remembrance of old good for the Ionians, his contempt of them, and turns; as it feems that he would have done, their knowledge of his power, made him to by the burial which he commanded to be think, that they would not have dared to given to his dead body that was crucified, Histiaus had fought to put himself into great might had afforded the courage to Miletus; but the Citizens, doubting his conprovoke him. This was the main ground of ditions, chose rather to keep him out, and the War commenced by Daring, and purfued make shift for themselves, without his help. by Xerxes, against Athens: To which the | The strength of their City by Land, which folicitation of Hippias, before remembred, had in old time withflood the Lydian Kings; gave only some form and affistance: the bu- and their good Fleet, which promised unto finels, when once it was thus far on foot, them the liberty of an open Sea, cmbeing like enough to have proceeded, boldened them to try the uttermost, when though he had perished, ere it were advan- very few friends were left upon that Continent to take their part. But their Navy was Some other occurrences in this Ionian broken as much by threatnings as by force; commotion extended the quarrel of Darius many of their companions and fellow-rebels against many of the Islanders, if not against forsaking them upon hope of pardon; and flight of those that should have affifted sage, and shroud themselves from all sudden them. Neither was it long before the tempests and out-rage. Town it felf, being assaulted both by Land and Sea, was taken by force, the Citizens of Samos; secondly, they attempted Naxos: flain, their wives and children made flaves, and their goods a booty to the Persians, their own forces, abandoned. So did the whom for fix years space they had put to people of Delos, of which Apollo was native: fo much trouble.

Aaaa 2

CHAP, V

ø. VIII.

The war which Darius made upon Greece, with the Lattell of Marathon, and Darius his death.

this City or People made on Europe fide with variable fuccess; straitly, and after fix days affault, partly by were of Darius obstinate in the enterprise and Con- force, and in part by the treason of Euphabus Pringing quest of Greece (though at first he pre- and Philagius, they took it, sackt it, and cypuid, or tended to make the War but against the of offices themsens and Eritreans, who jointly asbetween fifted the Ionians against him, and burnt Enbæa the Persians past their Army into Atand Muse Sardis in Lydia) did now by his Embastica, conducted and guided by Hippias, late don, fadours, demand an acknowledgement Prince of Athens, and marching towards it, know, but from them all among whom, fome of the bord them not fo well refolved as the reft, fub-from the Sea, where they landed, towards deers, and next the mitted themselves; as the Eginets, and Athens. enemy, were more others. Against these, the Athenians bewere more ing inflamed, (by the affiftance of the wherein they were to dispute with their likely to ing inflamed, compound Lacedemonians) after divers encounters own vertues against Fortune, and to cast lots than the reflar off forced them to give pledges, and to re- for their liberty, for their wives, their chil-There is linquish the party of the Persians. Cleomenes dren, and their lives, put themselves in the led the Lacedemonians in this war, and best order they could to make resistance, ty caused of sing caused his companion-King Demantus to be and withall sent away with speed to the Lanor far deposed: who thereupon fled to Darius, cedemonians for succour, imploying in that from the from the first part of the form the first part of the fir 31,333,80 fon of these discords, alienations, and civill through Arcadia, encountred in the way a wars among the Greeks. He therefore familiar Devil, which he supposed to be ran, gave order to Hippagorus to prepare a Fleet who willed him to affure the Athenians of of Ships, fit to transport his Army over the victory, promising that some one of the Hellespont: the same consisting of an hun- gods should be present at the battell, to asdred thousand foot, and ten thousand horse. Ifift them, and defend them against the mul-The charge in chief of his Army he commit- titude of their enemies. Phidippides at his reted to Datis, accompanied and affifted by turn, feeing he could not bring with him out of Athens twenty years before, and thought it greatly availing to bring news and other Vessels; and first of all attempted the Islands, called Crelades, which lay like superstitious sooleries, than by any just in the mid-way between Asia the less, and cause or folid reason. Greece. For (obtaining those places) the Persians had then nothing to hinder the selves, with one thousand only of the Platetransportation of their forces over the Age- ans (who having been formerly defended by an Sea; but on the contrary they might the Athenians against the Thebans, did in many being daunted with the causeless alwayes both relieve themselves in the past

To this end, they first possest themselves. Which Island, the inhabitants despairing of Which Island Darius did not only forbear to fack, but recalling the inhabitants, he gave order to beautifie the places and Altars of Sacrifice to Apollo crected. And having recovered these & other Islands, the Persians directed their course for Eretria in Enbea: for that City (as already hath been shew. In Hund ed) had affifted the Ionians at the taking Horad, 1.6. His War with good fucces finished and firing of Sardis. In this Island the Perfeby the Persians, and some attempts ans took ground, and besieged Eretria very

The Athenians, finding the time arrived Hippias, the Son of Pillfratus, expelled any present succours from sparta, yet he by Artaphernes his Erother, Governour from the gods, & promife of affiftance from of Sardis, and the Sea-coast of Asia the Heaven which no doubt (though the device lefs. These Commanders having their was somewhat likely to be his own, yet) it Companies brought down to the Sea-side, greatly encouraged the multitude and comimbarked themselves in fix hundred Gallies mon people, who in all ages have been more defend the walls of Athens, or to put themfelves into the field with such forces as they had, the same consisting of ten thousand In the end, and after great diversity of opipions, Miltiades, who perswaded the trial

by battel, prevailed. thew. So invincible and refiftless the Per- nasseus. Gans esteemed their own numbers to be, and This great fray thus parted, and the Perthat small troup of their enemies then in stans returned back into the lesser Asia, Milview, rather to be despised than to be sought tiades sought and obtained an employment withall: But in conclusion, the Victory be- against the Islanders of Paros, one of the ing doubtfully balanced for a while, fome- Cyclades, and paffing over his Companies in time the vertue of the Grecians, and some-threescore and ten Gallies, after fix and times the number of the Persians prevailed; twenty dayes assault he brake his thigh, in the Grecians fighting for all that they had, feeking to enter it by the Temple of Ceres, their ships.

hundred fourscore and twelve. For how- a few dayes ended his life. foever it came to pass, either by strange visions, which were afterward called Pannici other, with their private Factions, affisted terrores, or by some other affright, it seem- by the unthankful and witless people, eth that the invading Army, after the first brought them, not many years after, from a encounter, fought with their backs towards Victorious and famous Nation, to base subtheir enemy, and loft that number, by Hero- jection and flavery. Miltiades left behind him dotus fet down, in their diforderly retrait, or one fon called Cymon begotten on Hegespila, rather in their flat running away. As for daughter of Olorus King of Thrace, who (laith land of the Persian Army were slain, the in valour, nor to Themistocles in understandfame hath no appearance nor poffibility ing, but exceeded them both in Justice and of truth. In this fight Hippias the pergood Government. fwader of the enterprise was flain, faith Now Darius taking greater care how to this extremity witness their thankfulness and gave. Themistocles had his first reputation in grateful disposition) began to dispute, Whe- this fight, being but young and of the first ther it were most for their advantage to beard. Those of the Grecians, of mark and commandement, that fell in the first encounter, were Callimachus and stefileus. It is also faid, That Cynegyrus following the Athenians, and one thousand of the Plataans. Persians to their embarking, laid hands on one of their Gallies, to have held it from putting off the shore, and having his right hand cut off, he yet offered to arrest it with The Armies being now in view, and his left; of which also being deprived, he within a mile of each other, the Athenians took hold of it with his teeth. This encoundisposed themselves into three troups: two ter happened in the first year of the threewings or horns, as they term them; and the score and twelfth Olympiad, about the time body of a battel. The Persians when they of the war made by Coriolanus against his perceived fo small a troup advancing to- fellow-Romans : Alexander the son of wards them, thought the Athenians rather Amyntus being then King of Macedon, and dispossest of their understandings, than pos- Phanippus then Governour of Athens, accordiponet of their discertainings, same made ding to Plutarch, or Hybilides, after Halycar-

the Persuas for that they needed not, these wherewith himself being made unable, and great forces of Darius were disordered and his Companies discouraged, he returned to put in rout; the Athenians following their Athens; where those ungrateful Citizens Victory even to the Sea-shore; where the forgetting all his services past, and that of all Persians, so many of them as lost not their other the most renowned at the battel of wits with their courage, faved themselves in Marathon, did by the perswasion of Xantippus, the father of Pericles (who envied his The Fersian Army consisted of an hundred same) cast him into prison, and set on him a thousand foot, and ten thousand horse; of fine of fifty Talents; where his weak and which there were flain in the place fix thou- wounded body being not able to endure the fand three hundred, and of the Grecians an one, nor his effate to pay the other, he after

Which envy of the better fort to each Justin's report, That two hundred thou- Plutarch) was neither inferiour to his Father

Justine and Cicero; but Suidas tells us, That recover his honour, than forrow for the loss he escaped, and died most miserably in received in Greece, gave order for new levies of men, and all other warlike provisions. But The greatest honour of this Victory was the Egyptians revolting from his obedience cast upon Miltiades, who both perswaded (a Kingdom of great strength and revenue) the trial by battel, and behaved himfelf greatly distracted his resolution for the retherein answerably to the counsel which he invasion of Greece. The dissention also born after he was King, and by fo great a after the battel of Marathon, and after mother as Atoffa, disdaining to give place to that he had reigned fix and thirty years. his elder brother, born before Darius ob- He left behind him five fons, namely, Artained the Empire, greatly vexed him. tabasanes, born before he obtained the And lastly, Death, who hath no respect of Armonian Mingdom, Nerves who succeeded his any mans affairs, gave end to all his confultations and enterprises, and joyned him and Anabignes.

among his fous, of whom the younger being | to the earth of his Ancestors, about a vear

CHAP. VI.

Of Xerxes?

ø. I.

The preparations of Xerxes against Greece.

there is nothing remaining in writing how those that opposed his desire to this War the fame was performed: the other against (changing opinion and counsel) affished the the Gracians, of which it is hard to judge, Grecian Expedition with all the powerhe whether the preparations were more terri- had. ble, or the fuccess ridiculous. In the confultation for the profecution of this War, years were confumed in describing and gawhich was chiefly bent against the Atheni- thering an Army for this invasion: which ans, the Princes of Persia were divided in being compounded of all Nations subject to opinion. Mardonius, who had formerly the Persian Empire, consisted of seventeen commanded in Thrace and Macedon, under hundred thousand foot, and eighty thou-Darius, and had also Hystaspes for his Grand- sand horsemen, besides Chariots, Camels, father, as Xerxes had, and married Xerxes and other Beafts of Carriage, if we may arguments the European War. But Arta- Trogus finds the number less by seven hunbanus, Brother to the late Darius, and Un-dred thousand footmen. cle to Xerxes, maintained the contrary The Commanders of the feveral Nations counsel, laying before Xerxes the lamenta- were the Princes of the blood of Persia, eible and ridiculous fuccess of the two late ther by marriage in the Kings house, or Invafions, which Darius had made contrary otherwife; for to these were all commandto his counsel: The one in person upon the ments of this nature given, some few peo-Scythians, the other by his Lieutenants upon ple excepted, who had of their own Leathe Greeks; in each of which Darius left to ders. his enemies both his Army and his Howell advised before he did too far imbark others of Xerxes his neerest kindred, as Gehimself in this business. For whatsoever un- nerals over all ; saving that the charge of dertaking hath deliberate and found counsel ten thousand select Perstans, called the imfor conductor, though the fuccess do not al- mortal Regiment (because if any one of wayes answer the probability, yet hath For-the whole number died, or were flain, there tune nothing else thereof to vaunt, than the was another presently chosen in his stead) variableness of his own nature, which only was given to Hydarnes; the eighty thousand the Divine Providence, and not any humane horsemen were led by the sons of Datis, who power, can constrain.

Erxes received from his Fa-| But so obstinate was the resolution of ther, as hereditary, a double Xerxes in profecution of his former intent, War, one to be made against that Artabanus, whether terrified by Visions the Egyptians, which he (as it is written of him) or fearing the finished fo speedily, that Kings hatred, which he made known to all

After the War of Egypt was ended, four his fifter Artozostres, perswaded by many believe Herodotus: for of this multitude, multi-

The charge of the whole Army-was beflowed on Mardonius, the fon of Gobrias, by He therefore belought Xerxes to be right | a fifter of Darius, to whom were joyned some commanded the late Army of Darius in

The Fleet of Gallies were 2200, and eight of the common way by which the Army furnished by the Phanicians, who had marched. Commanders of their own Nation, and by the Cypriots, Cilicians, Pamphylians, before he came to the Sea-fide. The one barked.

s. II.

Xerxes Army entertained by Pythius: his cutting off Mount Athos from the Continent: his Bridge of Boats over the Hellespont: and the discourse between him and Artabanus upon the view of the Army.

thousand of the Persian Dariei; which make | Emperour, in imitation of Xerxes his Bridge, so many of our Marks.

The King overcome with the exceeding

Lycians, Dorians, Carians, Ionians, Eolians, was a pallage for Galliesto be cut behind and Hellespontines; who were trusted with Mount Athos, making the same (with the the furnishing of their own Vessels, though half Island or Headland, whereon it stood) commanded by the Princes of Persia, as to be an entire Island, fundring thereby by Artabigues, the fon of Darius, and from the Continent of Thrace five Cities, beothers. The rest of the Vessels for trans- sides the Mountain and the Chersonesus, or portation were three thousand. There were Neck of Land it felf: a work of more oftenalso certain Gallies furnished by Artemesia, tation, than of use, and yet an enterprise of the daughter of Lygdames, Princess of Ha- no great wonder, the Valley which held it licarnaffaus, and the Islands adjoyning, to the Continent having but twelve furwhich her felf commanded. Those Gal- longs (which make about a mile and a lies by her prepared and furnished, exceeded half) to cut through, and the ditch being all the rest of the Fleet, excepting those of broad enough only for two Gallies to pass Zidon, in which Xerxes himself was im- in front. The Cities so severed from the main, were Dion, Olophyxus, Acrothoon, Thyfus, and Cleona.

He also gave order, that a Bridge upon Boats should be made over the Hellespont between Abidus and Seftos, the Sea there having a mile of bredth, wanting an eighth part; which after the finithing, was by a Tempest torn asunder & dissevered: wherewith Xerxes being more enraged than difcouraged, commanded those to be flain that were mafters of the work, and caused fix When this world of an Army was hundred threefcore and fourteen Gallies to be coupled together, thereon to frame a the Nations of which it was compounded, to | new Bridge; which by the art and industry make their Rendez-vous, and repair at of the Phanicians, was fo well anchored to Sardis in Lydia. And when he had affem- refift both winds blowing into, and from the bled to the number of seventeen hundred Euxine Sea, as the same being well boorded thousand foot, as he entred the border of and rayled, the whole Army of seventeen Celanas, he was by one Pythius a Lydian en- hundred thousand Foot, and fourscore tertained, who out of his Flocks and Herds thousand Horse, with all the Moyles and of Cattel gave food to Xerxes and his whole | Carriages, past over it into Europe in seven Army. The feast ended, he also presented | dayes and seven nights, without intermissihim with two thousand Talents of Silver, on. This transportation of Armies did and in Gold four Millions, wanting seven Casar afterward use. And Caligula, that mad did build the like.

The Bridge finished, and the Army liberality of Pythius, did not only refuse his brought neer to the Sea-side, Xerxes took a treasure offered, but commanded that seven view of all his Troops, assembled in the thousand Darici should be given him to Plains of Abidus, being carried up, and seatmake up his four Millions; of which, so many ed on a place over-topping the Land round thousands were wanting when he made the about it, and the Sea adjoyning: and after he Present. But soon after, when Pythins be lad gloried in his own happines, to be hold sought him to spare one of his five sons from and command so many Nations, and so his attendance into Greece (because himself powerfull an Army and Fleet, he suddenly was old, and had none whom he could fo (notwithstanding) burst out into tears, well trust as his own son) Xerxes most bar- moved with this contemplation, That in one baroully caused the young man, for whom hundred years there should not any one his father fought exemption, to be fundered furvive of that marvellous multitude: the into two parts, commanding that the one cause of which sudden change of passion half of his carkas should be layed on the when he uttered to Artabanus his Unkle, Artight, and the other half on the left hand tabanus spake to the King to this effect. That on of this great Troop within that num- feared, to wit, the overthrow of the Army in ber of years by the King remembred, is, That felf both by Sea and Land, which soon after the life it self which we enjoy is yet more followed. These cautions were exceeding miserable than the end thereof : for weighty, if Xerxes his obstinacy had not mise in those few dayes given us in the world, prised them. For to invade by Sea upon a there is no man among all these, or else-perillous Coast, being neither in possession where that ever found himself so accompa- of any Port, not succoured by any party. nied with happiness, but that he oftentimes may better fit a Prince presuming on his forpleafed himself better with the defire and tune, than enriched with understanding, hope of death, than of living; the incident Such was the enterprise of Philip the second calamities, diseases, and forrows whereto annkind is subject, being so many and ine-like never heard of this Counsel of Artabavitable, that the shortest life doth oftentimes nus to Xerxes, or forgotten it. appear unto us over long; to avoid all which, there is neither refuge nor reft, but very likely, that Xerxes his Army, which

in defired death alone.

not to overcast those joyes which they had mine, and using Machiavels words, Mourire now in pursuit with fad remembrances. And fans confteo; die without a knife. For it was holding still a doubtfull conceit, that Arta- impossible for Greece, being a ragged, strait, banus utterly condemned the invation of and mountainous Countrey, to yield food Greece, against which he had formerly given | (befides what served themselves) for twenty many firong reasons, defired him to deal hundred thousand strangers, whom they nefreely with him, Whether he were returned | ver meant to entertain, but with the sharpto his first resolution, that the enterprise of ned points of their weapons, destroying Greece could not be prosperous; or whether, withall whatsoever they could not well inaccording to the change of mind put into close and defend. Nay, if we may believe him by his late Vision, he was confident of Herodotus, the Army of Xerxes, being regood fucces? Artabanus, notwithstanding viewed at Thermopyle, consisted of five milthat he affured himself of the Kings resolutions, two hundred eighty three thousand, tion to go on, and dared not by any new ar- two hundred twenty men, besides Launguments to batter the great purpose it self, dresses, Harlots, and Horses, and was yet he told the King, That there were two therefore likely to endure a speedy fathings which marvelloully affrighted him, mine. and which the King should find, as he feared, to be most adverse; to wit, the Sea and the it was impossible to provide for all things; Land: The Sea, because it had no where in and that whosoever should enterprise any that part of the world any Port capable of great matter, if he gave the hearing to all fo greata Fleet; insomuch, as if any tempest that could be objected of accidental inconshould arise, all the Continent of Greece veniences, he should never pursue the same could hardly receive them, nor all the Ha- farther than the dispute and consultation: vens thereof afford them any fafety: and which if his Predeceffors, the Persian Kings, therefore when any fuch shelter shall be had done, they had never grown to that wanting unto them, he prayed him to under- greatness, or possest so many Kingdoms and stand, that in such a case of extremity, men Nations, as they now did; & therefore conare left to the will and disposition of For- cluded, That great enterprises were never tune, and not Fortune to the will and dispo- undertaken without great perils. Which refition of men. The Land, befides other in- folution of Xerxes was not to be condemncommodities, will be found by so much the ed, if any necessity had inforc'd him to that more an enemy, by how much the unfatiate war. But feeing the many Nations newdefire of man to obtain more & more there- ly conquered, which he already commandof, doth lead him forward for were there no ed, were more then could be constrained man found to give refishance, yet the want of to obedience any longer than the powerfull means to feed fuch an Army, and the Famine which cannot be prevented, will without that Greece was feparated by the Sea from any other violence offered, dif inable and the rest of Xerxes his Dominions (of whose consume it. By these Arguments Artabanus resolution his Father Darius had made a hoped to have diverted Xerxes, not daring dear experience) the fruit of this War was which is more lamentable than the diffoluti- | perchance to utter what indeed he most

Now concerning the fecond point; It is could not have in it less than two millions of With this melancholy difcourse, Xerxes Souls, besides his beafts for Service and being not much pleased, prayed Artabanus | Carriage, should after a few dayes suffer fa-

The effect of Xerxes his answer was, That rather a luggage than an aid.

felf flain.

o. III.

ved. As first at Thermopyle, a narrow passage news, for then shall we fight in the cool of half an acre of ground, lying between shade.

answerable to the plantation, and the fuc- the Mountains which did divide Theffals ces and end agreeable to the weak counsell from Greece, where sometime the Phocians whereon it was grounded. Furthermore, had raifed a wall with gates, which was then those millions of men which he transported, for the most part ruined. At this entrance and yet in his own judgement not sufficient, Leonidas one of the Kings of Sparta, with (for he gathered in, marching on, all the three hundred Lacedamonians, affifted with frength of Thrace and Macedon) were an one thousand Tegeata and Mantineans, one argument, that he rather hoped to fear the thousand Arcadians, and other Peloponness-Greeks by the fame of his numbers, than that ans, to the number of three thousand one he had any confidence in their valour and hundred in the whole; befides one thousand resolution, whom he conducted. For it is Phocians, four hundred Thebans, seven hunwifely faid of those uncountable multi- dred Thespians, and all the forces (such as tudes: Non vires habent, sed pondus; & im- they were) of the bordering Locrians, depedimenta potius sunt, quam auxilium: They fended the passage two whole dayes togeare great in bulk, but weak in forces, and ther against that huge Army of the Persians. The valour of the Greeks appeared so excel-Besides, as it was impossible to marshall lent in this defence, that in the first dayes fuch a world of men in one Army, fo the di- fight, Xerxes is faid to have three times leapvers Nations, speaking divers languages, ed out of his Throne, fearing the destructibred the same confusion among the Persian on of his Army by one handful of those men Commanders when they came to fight, as it whom not long before he had utterly dedid to the builders of Babel, when they came | spised; and when the second dayes attempt to work. Whereas if Xerxes had of his five upon the Greeks had proved vain, he was almillions compounded ten Armies of fifty together ignorant how to proceed further; thousand chosen Souldiers in each, and sent | and so might have continued had not a runthem yearly into Greece well victualled and nagate Grecian taught him a fecret way, by furnished, he had either prevailed by the which part of his Army might ascend the fword, or forced them to forfake their terri- | ledge of mountains, and fet upon the backs tory, brought them into obedience by ne- of those who kept the Straits. But when the ceffity and famine, which cannot be refilt- most valiant of the Persian Army had almost ed. But while Xerxes refolved to cut down | inclosed the small forces of the Greeks, then the banks of Greece, and to let in a sea of did Leonidas, King of the Lacedamonians men upon them, he was deceived both of with his three hundred, and seven hundred his own hopes, and in their hearts whom he | Thespians, which were all that abode by him employed, and beaten by the Greeks, both refuse to quit the place which they had unby Land and Sea 3 yea, he himself, conducted dertaken to make good, and with admirable by his fear, fled shamefully into Asia. A courage not only result that world of men great part of his Army was buried in Greece: which charged them on all sides; but isluing the remainder whereof, which, wintred out of their strength, made so great a slaughin Thessaly, and led by Mardonius who ter of their enemies, that they might well be perswaded the enterpise, was in the sum- called vanquishers, though all of them were mer following utterly defeated, and him- flain upon the place. Xerxes, having lost in this last fight, together with twenty thoufand other Souldiers and Captains, two of own brethren, began to doubt what inconvenience might befall him by the vertue of Of the fights at Thermopylæ and Artemisium. Such as had not been present at these battels, with whom he knew that he shortly was to A Fter fuch time as Xerxes had transf-ported the Army over the Hellespont, great fear, whose manhood had appeared and landed in Thrace, leaving the descripti- fingular in this triall, which caused him on of his passage along that Coast, and how very carefully to enquire what numbers the River of Liffus was drunk dry by his they could bring into the field. It is remultitudes, and the lake neer to Piffirus ported of Dieneces the Spartan, that when by his cattell, with other accidents in his one thought to have terrified him by marches towards Greece) I will speak of saying, That the slight of the Fersian the encounters he had, and the shamefull arrows was so thick as would hide the and incredible overthrows which he recei- Sun, he answered thus; It is very good

CHAP, VI

been expressed in deeds, as was uttered in one course, and lay not far asunder. But words, caused the Persua to stand in great doubt, when he heard that the City of spar-lame time that his Army had telt the valour ta could arm well-nigh eight thousand men of the Greeks by Land, his Navy likewise of the like temper, and that the other Lace- made a forrowful proof of their skill and demonians, though inferior to those, were courage at Sea. The Grecians Fleet lay at very valiant men. Wherefore he asked coun- that time at Artimessum, in the straits of Enfel of Demaratus, a banished King of the bea, where the Persians thinking to encom-Spartans, who had alwaies well advised and pass them, sent two hundred sail about the instructed him in the things of Greece, what Island to fall upon them behind, using alike course were fittest to be taken in his further stratagem to that which their King did praproceedings. The opinion of Demaratus was, ctife against Leonidas, in a case not unlike. That all the Land-forces should assemble but with far different success. For that nartogether to defend the Isthmus, that ftreight row chanel of the Sea, which divideth Euneck of ground which joyneth Peloponnessis | bas from the main, was in the same fortheld to the Continent. For which cause he advi- by a Navy of two hundred threescore and fed, That three hundred ships well manned, eleven fail against the huge Persian Armado. should be sent unto the Coast of Laconia, to as the straits of Thermopyla had formerly fpoil the Country, and to hold the Laceda- been maintained by Leonidas, till he was cirmonians and their neighbours busied at cumvented, as this Navy might have been, home, whilst Xerxes at his leifure having sub- but was not. The departure of those two dued the rest, might afterward bring his hundred ships that were sent about the whole power upon them, who remaining de- Illand, and the cause of their voyage, was flitute of succour, would be too weak alone too well known in the Persian Fleet, and soon s. to make refistance. To this purpose also the enough disclosed to the Greeks, who setting same Demaratus further advised, That the fail by night, met them with a counter-surfaid Fleet of three hundred ships should prize, taking and finking thirty vessels, infeize upon the Illand then called Cythera, forcing the reft to take the Sea; where, benow Cerigo, which lying near to the Coaft of ing over-taken with foul weather, they was Laconia, might ferve as a fit place of Randerven upon the Rocks, and caft all away.

dexnous upon all occasions, either of their Contrariwise, the Navy of the Greeks were own defence, or endamaging the enemy: increased by the arrival of fifty three Alberteby that ancient speech of Chilon the nian ships, and one Lemnian, which came Lacedemonian should be verified, that it to their party in the last fight. As these new were better for his Countrymen to have forces encouraged the one fide, so the fear that Isle drowned in the Sea, than stand so of Xerxes his displeasure stirred up the other inconveniently for them as it did. What cf- to redeem their loss with some notable exfect this counsel might have taken, had it ploit. Wherefore setting aside their unforbeen followed, it is not easie to ghess. But a tunate policy, they resolved in plain fight to contrary opinion of Ackamenes, Brother to repair their honour, and casting themselves King Xerxes, was preferred as the fafer. For into the form of a Crefcent, thought fo to inthe Persian Fleet had been forely vexed with close the Greeks, who readily did present a grievous tempest, which continued three them battel at Artemisium. whole daies together, wherein were loft upon the Coast of Magnesia, four hundred ships and ended with equal loss to both parts. of War, befides other vessels innumerable, For, though more of the Persians ships were accordingly as Artabanus had foreseen, that | sunk and taken, yet the lesser loss fell altoif any such calamity should overtake them, gether as heavy upon the Greecish Fleet, there would not be found any Harbor wide which being small, could worse bear it. Hereenough to give them fuccour. Therefore in only the Barbarians may feem to have Achamenes perswaded his Brother not to had the worse, that they forsook the place disperse his Fleet; for if (said he) after the of fight, leaving the wrack and spoils to the loss of four hundred ships we shall fend away enemy, who nevertheless were fain to abanother three hundred to feek adventures, don presently even the passage which they then will the Greeks be strong enough by had undertaken to defend; both for that ma-Sea to encounter the rest of the Navy, which ny of their ships were forely crushe in the holding all together, is invincible. To this battel, and especially because they had recounsel Xerxes yielded, hoping that his Land- ceived advertisement of the death of Leoni-

Such notable resolution having as freely the other in good stead, whilst both held

The fight indured from noon till night, Army and Fleet, should each of them stand das at Thermopple. Before they weighed Anchors, Themistocles, General of the Athenians, | against Delphos, this vizzor of holv and zeaengraved upon frone at the watering-place lous revenge falling off, discovered the face an exhortation to the Ionians, that either of covetoulness so much the more ugly, by they should revolt unto the Greeks, or stand how much the more themselves had profesneutral; which perswasion, he hoped, sed a detestation of the offence which the at the least make them suspected by the meer michance. Perstans.

o. IV.

The attempt of Xerxes upon Apollo's Temple: and his taking of Athens.

of the Phocians, and the regions adjoyning: and Palifladoes: too weak to hold out long, as for the Inhabitants, they chose rather to though by their desperate valour so well fly, and referve themselves to a day of bat- maintained at the first assault, that they tel, than to adventure their lives into his might have yielded it upon tolerable conhands, upon hope of faving their wealth, by ditions, had they not vainly relyed upon the making proffer unto him of their fervice. Prophecy: whereof (being fomewhat ob-Part of his Army he fent to spoil the Temple | feure) it was wifely done of Themistocles, to made by divers Kings and great personages; sashioning the business to words. of all which riches it was thought that Xerxes had a better Inventory than of the goods left in his own Palace. To make rethe companies which arrived at the Temple to have facked it, and of two Rocks that breaking from the Mount Parnassus, overwhelmed many of the Barbarians, it were Herodotus, who lived not long after, faith, hismemory in the Temple of Minerva, whither they rowled in their fall. And furely this attempt of Xerxes was impious; for feeing he believed that Apollo was a god, he should not have dared to entertain a coveit may possibly be true, that license to chastile his impiety, in such manner as is reported, was granted unto the Devil, by that 1.38. Holy One, who faith, Will a man spoil his and elsewhere; Hath any Nation tific against the Persians, and so to defend changed their gods, which yet are no gods? Go to the Isles of Kittim, and behold, and send to Greece. Whereas indeed, in the enterprize were so possessed with fear of losing their would either take some place with them, or Athenians had committed in that kind by

The remainder of that which Xerxes did, may be expressed briefly thus: He came to Athens, which finding forfaken, he took and burnt the Cittadel, and Temple, which was therein. The Cittadel indeed was defended a while by some of more courage than wifdom, who literally interpreting Apollo's Hen Xerxes had past the straits of Oracle; That Athens should be safe in mooden thermopyle, he wasted the Country malls, had fortified that place with Boards of Delphi, which was exceeding rich by make diferetion the Interpreter, applying means of many Offerings that had been rather the words to the present need, than

ø. V.

lation of a great aftonishment that fell upon How Themistocles the Athenian drew the Greeks to fight at Salamis.

"He Athenians had, before the coming of Xerxes, removed their wives and peradventure fomewhat superstitious. Yet children into Trazene, Egina, and Salamis, not so highly prizing their houses and lands, That the broken Rocks remained even to as their freedom, and the common liberty of Greece. Nevertheless, this great zeal, which the Athenians did shew for the general good of their Country, was ill requited by the other Greeks, who with much labour were hardly intreated to flay for them at Salamis, tous defire of inriching himfelf by commit- whilst they removed their wives and chilting facrilege upon his Temple. Wherefore dren out of the City. But when the City of Athens was taken, it was prefently refolved upon, that they should for fake the Isle of Salamis, and withdraw the Fleet to Isthmus: which neck of land they did purpose to for-Peloponnesus by Land and Sea, leaving the rest of Greece, as indefensible, to the sury of Kedar, and take diligent heed, and see whether the enemy. So should the Islands of Salamis there be any fuch things. Now this impiety of and Agina have been abandoned, and the Xerxes was the more inexcusable, for that Families of the Athenians (which were there the Persians alledged the burning of Cybele's bestowed as in places of security) have been Temple by the Atkenians, when they fet fire given over into merciless bondage. Against on the City of Sardis in Asia, to be the this resolution, Themistocles, Admiral of the ground and cause of the waste which they Athenian Fleet, very strongly made oppomade in burning of Cities and Temples in sition; but in vain. For the Peleponnesians

564

CHAP. VI.

own, which they would not hazard, that a-new; and there (quoth he) will we plant no persuasions could obtain of them to re- our selves, leaving unto you a sorrowful regard the estate of their distressed Friends membrance of my words, and of your own and Allies. Many remonstrances Themisto-eles made unto them, to allure them to abide the enemy at Salamis; As first in pricate unto Europhiades the Lacedamonian, Admiral of the whole Fleet; That the self-unital of the self-unital fame fear which made them forfake those ven to crouch to others; but rather were coalts of Greece, upon which they then an- fuch, as might enforce the rest to yield to chored, would afterward (if it found no them, and condescend even to the uttermost check at the first) cause them also to disse- of their own demands. ver the Fleet, and every one of the Confe- | For the Athenians, when they first embraced derates to withdraw himself to the desence that Heroical resolution, of leaving their of his own City and Estate: Then to the grounds and houses to fire and ruine, if ne-Council of War, which Eurybiades upon ceffity should enforce them so far, for the this motion did call together (forbearing to preservation of their liberty, did employ object what want of courage might work the most of their private wealth, and all in them hereafter;) he shewed, that the fight at Ishburus would be in an open Sea; whereas it was more expedient for them, having the favor thing to determine the means they hoped (which having the favor thing to determine the means the favor thing the favor thing to determine the means the favor the favor that the favor thing to determine the means they have the favor that the f having the fewer ships, to determin the matter in the streights; and that, besides the not well be counterpoised by great advanfafeguard of Ægina, Megara, and Salamis, tages at Sea: Knowing well, that a frong they should by abiding where they then were, sufficiently defend Isthmus; which the or a secure passage to any other Country. Barbarians should not so much as once look The other States of Greece held it sufficiupon, if the Greeke obtained victory by Sea 3 ent, if building a few new ships, they did which they could not so well hope for elsewhere, as in that present place which gave came to pass, that, had they been vanquishim to good advantage. All this would not determine the could not have expected any ferve to retain the Peloponnessans, of whom other fortune, than either present death, or one, unworthy of memory, upbraided The- perpetual flavery; neither could they hope miffocles with the loss of Athens, blaming to be victorious without the affiftance of the Eurybiades for suffering one to speak in the Athenians, whose forces by Sea did equal all Council, that had no Country of his own theirs together; the whole confissing of to inhabit. A base and shameful objection more than three hundred and sourcore it was, to lay as a reproach that lofs, which bottoms. Wherefore these Peloponnesians being voluntarily fultained for the com- beginning to suspect their own condition, mon good, was in true estimation by so which would have stood upon desperate much the more honourable, by how much points, if the Fleet of Athens had forfaken it was the greater. But this indignity did them, were soon perswaded, by the greater exasperate Themistocles, and put into his sear of such a bad event, to forget the lefmouth a reply so sharp, as availed more than ser, which they had conceived of the Perall his former perswasions. He told them stans; and laying aside their insolentbraall plainly, That the Athenians wanted very, they yielded to that most profitable not a fairer City than any Nation of Greece | counfel of abiding at Salamis. could boast of; having well-near two hundred good ships of War, the better part of the Grecian Fleet, with which it was easie for them to transport their Fa- How the Persians consulted about giving batmilies and fubstance into any part of the World, and fettle themselves in a more secure habitation, leaving those to shift as well as they might, who in their extremity had refused to Itand by them. Herewithal he mentioned a Town in Italy belonging of old to the State of Athens, of which Town convenient to offer battel to the Greeks, or

o. VI.

tel: and how Themistocles by policy held the Greeks to their resolution; with the vi-Cfory at Salamis thereupon ensuing.

N the mean season, the Persians had entred into confultation, whether it were he faid an Oracle had foretold, That the no. The rest of the Captains giving Athenians, in process of time, should build it such advice as they thought would belt agreed upon the fight; but Artemissa Queen propounding chiefly to themselves what miof Halicarnassem, who followed Xerxes to lery would befall them, if, losing the Victory, this War in person, was of contrary opini- they should be driven into Salamis, there to on: Her counsel was, that the King himself be shut up, and besieged round in a poor dedirectly should march toward Peloponnesius, solate Mand. whereby it would come to pass, that the Greek Navy (unable otherwife to continue fail for Isthmus: which had prefently been long at Salamis for want of provision) should done, if the wisdom of Themistocles had not prefently be differered, and every one feek- prevented it. For he perceiving what a ing to preferve his own City and Goods, violent fear had fropt up their ears against they should, being divided, prove unable all good counsel, did practise another course. to refift him, who had won fo far upon them and forthwith labour to prevent the execuwhen they held together. And as the pro- tion of this unwholfome decree; not fufferfit will be great in forbearing to give bat- ing the very hour of performance to find tel; fo on the other fide, the danger will be him busie in wrangling altercation. As soon more (aid she) which we shall undergo, than as the Council brake up, he dispatched seany need requireth us to adventure upon; cretly a trusty Gentleman to the Perstan and the loss, in case it fall upon us, greater Captains, informing them truly of the inthan the profit of the Victory which we tended flight, and exhorting them to fend defire. For if we compel the enemies to fly, part of their Navy about the Island, which it is more than they would have done, we incomposing the Greeks, might prevent their fitting (fill: but if they, as better Sea-men chan ours, put us to the worst, the journy to his assistance. The Persians no sooner heard Peloponnesus is utterly dasht, and many that than believed these good news, well knownow declare for us, will foon revolt unto ing that the Victory was their own affured, the Greeks. Mardonius, whom Xerxes had if the Athenian Fleet joyned with them ; unto his Master the common consent of the what ability their Master had to recom-

please the King their Master, had soon save that which remained unconquered

Hereupon they resolved forth-with to set fent for that purpose to the Fleet, related which they might easily hope, considering other Captains, and withall this diagreeing pence for fo doing, both the Captains with opinion of Artemisa. The King, well please rich rewards, and the people with restitution ed with her advice, yet refolved upon fol- on of their City, and Territories. By these lowing the more general, but far worse means it fell out, that when the Greeks very counsel of the rest; which would question- early in the morning were about to weigh less have been the same which Artemisia Anchor, they found themselves inclosed gave, had not fear and flattery made all the round with Persians, who had laboured hard Cartains utter that, as out of their own all that night, fending many of their ships judgment, which they thought to be most about the sile of salamin, to charge the eneconformable to their Princes determination. my in rear, and landing many of their men So it was indeed that Xerxes had entertained in the Isle of Psittalea, which lyeth over a vain perswassion of much good, that his against salamis, to save such of their own, own presence upon the shore to behold the and kill such of the Grecian party, as by any conflict, would work among the Souldiers. Therefore he encamped upon the Sea-fide, Thus did meer necessity enforce the Greeipitching his own Tent on the Mount $\mathcal{L}ga$ and to undertake the battel in the straights lew; which is opposite unto the Isle of Salamis, where they obtained a memora-Salamis, whence at ease he might safely ble Victory, stemming the foremost of their view all which might happen in that action, enemies, and chasing the rest, who falling having Scribes about him to write down the foul one upon another, could neither conveacts and behaviour of every Captain. The niently fight nor fly. I do not find any partineer approach of the Barbarians, together cular occurrences in this great battel to be with the news of that timorous diligence much remarkable. Sure it is, that the Scribes which their Countrymen shewed in forti- of Xerxes had a wearisom task of writing fying the Isthmus, and of a Persian Army, down many disasters that befel the Persian marching apace thither, did now again fo Fleet, which ill acquitted it felf that day, terrific and amaze the Peloponnefians, that doing no one piece of fervice worthy the no entreaty nor contestation would suffice presence of their King, or the registring of to hold them together. For they thought it his Notaries. As for the Greeks, they might meer madness to fight for a Country already well feem to have wrought out that Victory loft, when they rather should endeavour to with equal courage, were it not that the principal honour of that day was ascribed no such intent, but rather wished his hastv to thole of Egina, and to the Athenians, of departure, knowing that he would leave his whom it is recorded. That when the Barba- Army not fo firong, as it should have been, whom it is reconcided. That when the remained with it. And rians did fly towards Phalerus, where the Land-Army of Xerxes lay, the ships of Egina for this cause did Eurybiades give counsel, having possest the Straights, did link or take that by no means they should attempt the them, whilst the Athenians did valiantly give breaking of that bridge, lest necessity charge upon those that kept the Sea, and should inforce the Persians to take more made any countenance of refifting.

ø. VII.

and of the flight of Xerxes.

by way of Scrutiny, to determine ther it were so that he found the bridge which of the Captains had best merited of whole, and thereby repassed into Asia; or them, in all this great Service; every whether it were torn in funder by tempelis, Captain, being ambitious of that honour, and he thereby driven to imbark himself in did in the first place write down his own some obscure vessel, it is not greatly matename, but, in the second place, as best deser- rial; though the Greeks did most willingly ving next unto himfelf, almost every Suf- imbrace the latter of these reports. Howsofrage did concur upon Themistocles. Thus ever it were, this flight of his did well ease private affection yielded unto vertue, as the Country, that was thereby disburdened foon as her own turn was ferved. The Persian of that huge throng of people, which, as Lo-King, as not amazed with this calamity, be- custs, had before overwhelmed it. gan to make new preparation for continuance of War; but in such fashion, that they which were best acquainted with his temper, might easily discern his faint heart The negotiations between Mardonius and the through his painted looks. Especially Mardonius, Authour of the War, began to cast a wary eye upon his Master, fearing lest his counfel should be rewarded according to the event. Wherefore purposing rather to adventure his life in purfuit of the Victory, than to cast it away by undergoing his into Thessay, whence he sent Alexander the Princes indignation, he advised the King to son of Amyntas King of Macedon, as Embasleave unto him three hundred thousand sadour to the Athenians, with promise of men, with which forces he promifed to re- large amends for all their loffes received; duce all Greece under the subjection of the and of extending their Territories as far as Persian Scepter. Herewithall he forgot not their own desires; allowing them to retain to footh Xerxes with many fair words, tel- their liberty and laws, if they would make ling him, That the cowardise of those Egyp- peace with Xerxes, and affift him in that tians, Phanicians, and Cilicians, with others | War. of the like metal, nothing better than flaves, The Athenians had now re-entred their who had so ill behaved themselves in the City, but not as yet brought back their late Sea-service, did not concern his honour, wives and children; for as much as they who had alwayes been victorious, and had well perceived that the place could not be already subdued the better part of Greece, secure, till the Army of Mardonius was broyea taken Athens it felf, against which the ken and defeated. Wherefore the Laceda-War was principally intended. These monians, understanding what fair conditiwords found very good acceptance in the ons this Embassador would propound, were Kings ear, who presently betook himself to perplexed with very great fear, lest he should his journey homewards, making the more | find good and ready acceptance. Hereupon, hafte, for that he understood, how the Greeks they likewise very speedily dispatch their had a purpose to sail to Hellespont, and there Embassadors for Athens, who arriving beto break down his bridge, and intercept his fore the Macedonian had audience, used the passage. True it was that the Greeks had best of their perswasion to retain the Athecourage, and rather to fight like men, than die like beafts. Wherefore Themistocles did. under pretence of friendship, send a false advertisement unto this timorous Prince. of things following after the battel of Salamis: advising him to convey himself into Asia with all speed, before his bridge were diffolved: which counsel Xerxes took very kindly, and Fter this Victory, the Greeks intending hastily followed, as before is shewed. When

g. VIII.

Athenians, as also between the Athenians and the Lacedamonians, after the flight of

Ardonius with his three hundred thousand had withdrawn himself

CHAP. VI. nians firm. They alledged, that neither hars the leaders might be won with great mans mans nor Darius had any pretence of War rewards, to draw them to this purpose; all against the rest of Greece, but had only which projects, if they should fail, the deagain the fubversion of Athens, till they struction of Athens would be a good mean to threatned and all their Confederates arming them- please his Master, King Xerxes; who must and an then grant City, were drawn thereby needs understand, that Mardonius into the quarrel, wherein the Athenians kept his ground, and feared not to confront mto the quality of injuffice could not the whole power of Greece, in the strongest without much We know, faid they, that ye part of their own Country. But his expectatihave endured great calamities, losing the on was beguiled in all these. For the Athenifruit of the grounds, and being driven to ans fo little regarded his offers, that when for fake the Town, the houses thereof be one Lycidas, or (as Demostheres calls him) ruined, and unfit for your habitation; in Cyrcilus, advised the Senate to accept the conregard whereof, we undertake to maintain ditions, and propounded them to the peoas our own, your wives and children amongst plesall the senators, and as many as abiding us, as long as the War shall continue, hoping | without the Counsel-house, heard what he that ye, who have alwayes procured liberty had faid, immediatly fet upon him, and stoto others, will not now go about to bring all ned him to death; not examining whether it Greece into flavery and bondage. As for the were fear or mony, that had moved him to Barbarians, their promifes are large, but utter such a vile sentence. Yea, the women of their words and oaths are of no affurance. Athens, and in the Isle of Salamin, hearing of It was needless to use many arguments to his bad counsel, and bad end, affembling tothe Athenians, who gave answer to Alexander gether did enter his house there, and put his in presence of the Spartan Embassadours; wife and children to the like execution. All That whilft the Sun continued his courfe, this bravery notwithstanding, wh'n t they would be enemies to Xerxes, regarding perceived the flackness of the Pelopora flans neither Gold nor any riches, with which in giving them aid, they were fain to be he might feek to make purchase of their take themselves to Salamis again, the old liberty. Concerning the maintenance of place of their fecurity. Remaining there. their wives and children, it was a burden and feeing little forwardness in those whom which they promifed to fuftain themselves, it most concerned to affift them, they sent charges: Or, if this affection took no place fear preserved in quiet the Islands lying in with them, but that needs they would rely the midst of the Agean Seas. But it was well upon their old confederates, whose succors and seasonably observed by a Counsellor of did very flowly advance forwards, yet per- | Sparta, that the Wall upon Ishmus would only defiring the Lacedamonians, that with very severe messages to Sparta, complaining all speed they would cause their Army to of their slacknes, &threatning withal, to take march, forasmuch as it was not likely, that such course as might stand best with their Mardonius would long sit still in Thessay, own good, seeing that the common estate of having once received fuch a peremptory all was so little regarded. These messengers answer. In this their opinion of Mardonius were at the first entertained with dilatory his readiness to invade Attica, they found answers; which every day grew colder, when themselves nothing deceived. For he, as as the Peloponnesian Wall, builded athwart foon as Alexander had returned their obsti- the Isthmus, was almost finished. But as the nate purpose of resistance, did forthwith Lacedamonians waxed careless and dull, so lead his Army towards then, and their the Athenians hotly preffed them to a quick City: they having now the fecond time quitted it, and conveyed themselves into places of more fecurity abroad in the Coun- latory courses, it would not be long ere the try, where they expected the arrival of their | City of Athens took a new course, that should confederates. From Athens he sent his Agent little please them. All this while the Persian unto them, with instructions, not only to sleet lay upon the coast of Asia, not daring to perswade them to acceptance of the condi- draw nearer unto Greece, as being now too tions before to them propounded, but with weak at Sea. Likewise the Greekish Navy great promises to allure the principal of contained it self within the Harbours upon them to his party. His hope was, that either | Europe side; both to do service where need the people, wearied with forfaking their should require at home, and withalto shun houles so often, would be desirous to preserve the danger which might have befallen any them from fire, & to have those which were part of it, that (being distracted from the already laid waste, re-edified at the Kings rest) had ventured over-far. So mutual loponness, if once the Athenians gave ear to hundred and ten thousand, of which forty Mardonius: confidering that many doors thousand were weightily armed, the rest would be opened into that Deny-Island, as were only affistants to these forty thousand. foon as the Enemy should by winning the being armed more sleightly, as rather to friendship of Athens, become the Master of make excursions and give chase, than to sithe Seas about it. The Lacedamonians upon stain any strong charges. this admonition, making better perulal of Thefe two Armics having eleven daves their own dangers, were very careful to give | confronted one the other, without performfatisfaction to the Athenian Embassadours, ing any memorable piece of service; Mardowho not brooking their delaies, were upon nim, whose victuals began to fail, resolved point of taking leave, yea, as it feemed, of to begin the fray. The Greeks were promifed renouncing their alliance. Wherefore dif- Victory by an Oracle, if they fought in the patching away five thousand spartans in the Land of the Athenians, and in the plain of Ceevening, under conduct of Paulanias, they res & Proscrpina, making prayers unto certain gave audience the next day to the Embassa- | gods, Demi-gods, and Nymphs. But it was dors, whose complaints they answered with hard to find the certain place which the vehement protestations of their readines; Oracle designed. For the plain of Ceres Was deeply fwearing that the Army of sparta indeed in the Territory of Athens; but was already far upon the journy, and giving there was also an old Temple of Ceres and them leave to take up other five thousand Proserpina, near unto the place where they Lacedemonians, out of the Region adjoyu- lay at that time encamped; as likewise the ing, to follow after them.

want of gravity, in a matter to important, Citheron; and the ground ferved well for were nevertheless contented with the final footmen against horse; only the Land beconclusion; and levying the number ap- longed unto the Plateans, and not unto the pointed of Lacedamonian Souldiers, made Athenians. what haftethey could to incamp in Attica. The other Grecians were nothing flack in the interpretation of this doubtful Oracle, fending forth Companies, whole near approach caused Mardonius to forlake Attica | bestow their land on that side the Townup. as a rough Country, and therefore of much on the Athenians. disadvantage to Horse, wherein consisted the best of his power. Before his departure he burnt the City of Athens, beating down the Walls of it, and ruining all that had former-Iy escaped the fury of War.

ø. IX. The great battel of Plataa.

TT were too long a rehearfal to shew all that happened in many skirmishes between the Greeks and him, in the Country of their fight, and having beaten them often-Bacotia, which Mardonius had chosen to be times before. This being agreed upon, the the feat of that War. Much time was spent before the quarrel was decided by the trial nians; which Mardonius understanding (whe of one main battel: for both parties did stand ther searing the Athenians, of whose valour upon their guard, each expecting when the the Medes and Persians had felt heavy proof, other should assail them.

three hundred thousand, which were by him Greece) he did also change the order of his chosen out of Xerxes his Army; to whom battel, and oppose himself to Panfanias. All were adjoyned the forces of Thebes, Macedo- the Greeks might well perceive how the Ene-17, The faly, and other parts of Greece, that my did fifth his wings, and Paulanius therenow fiding with the Persian, furnished his upon returned to his former Station; which Camp with fifty thousand men. Against these Mardonius noting, did also the like. So one the Lacedemonians, Athenians, and their whole day was frent in changing to and fro.

ferve to little purpose for the defence of Pe- | Confederates, had leavied an Army of one

memorials of those Nymphs and Demi-The Athenians, though distasting such gods, were in the same place, upon Mount

> Whilst the Greeks were perplexed about the Plateans, to make all clear, did freely

This magnificence of the Plateans caused Alexander the Great, many ages after, to reedifie their City; which was ruined in the Peloponnesian Wars.

All things being ready for battel, the La? cedamonian General thought it most meet, that the Athenians should stand opposite that day to the Medes and Persians, whom they had formerly vanquished at Marathon; and that he, with his spartans, should entertain the Thebans and other Greeks which followed Mardonius, as better acquainted with Athenians changed place with the Lacedemoor defiring to encounter the Spartans, as The Army of Mardonius contained about thinking them the bravest Souldiers in fo molest the Greeks at their watering-place, that they were fain to enter into confultation of retiring; because they could not without much loss to themselves, and none to the enemy, lye near to that fountain which did serve all the Camp. Having therefore concluded among themselves to dis-lodge; and part of the Army being fent away before Army first fell to rout. day-light: Mardonius perceived their departure in the morning, and thereupon being incouraged by their flight, (which to him feemed to proceed out of meer cowardife) he charged them in the rear with great violence. It may well be recorded as a notable example of patient valour, That the Lacedamonians being over-taken by the enemies horse, and over-whelmed with great flights any relistance or defence, till the Sacrifices for victory were happily ended, though many of them were hurt and flain, and some of especial mark lost, before any sign of good fuccess appeared in the entrails.

Sacrifice those tokens, which the superstition of that Age and Country accounted forminate; he gave the Signal of battel: and thereupon the Souldiers, who till then did fit upon the ground, as was their manner, arole altogether, and with excellent courage the Greek Army that was in march, being revoked by Paulanias, came in a-pace to fucthe Army which was led by the Athenians. battel, because the Thebans, and other Greeks check by the way. Nevertheless, the Sparnot acquainted with the manner of affaultwhich having not long purfued, they came and the weakness of their Enemies. to help the Lacedamonians, whom they found warily bufied in affaulting the Camp,)

Some attempt the Persians made that day with more valour than skill. Wherefore with their Archers on horse-back, who did they themselves undertook it, and in short space forced a passage thorow the Wall; at which breach first, and then on all sides, the Greeks entred with fuch fury, and just defire of vengeance, that of three hundred thoufand, they are faid not to have left three thousand alive, excepting those who fled away with artabazus, when as the Persian

If the execution were fo great, as is reported an especial cause of it was the foolish retreat, or rather flight into the Camp. For, though it were fo, that the place was well fortified, and the number of those who cast themselves into it greater than any of the Asiailants; yet they being of several Nations and Languages, and having loft their General, with other principal Commanders, of Arrows, did quietly fit still, not making it was impossible that they in such a terrour and aftonishment should make good that piece of ground, lying in the heart of an Enemy-Country, against an Army of men, far more valiant than themselves, and enflamed with prefent victory. Therefore the fame Wall, which for a few hours had pre-But as foon as Panfanias had found in the ferved their lives, by holding out the enemy, did now impale them, and leave them to the flaughtering fury of unpitiful Victors. Artabazus fled into Thrace, telling the people of Theffaly, and other Countries in his way, that he was fent by Mardonius upon some received the charge of the Barbarians, that | piece of fervice: For he well knew that had came thronging upon them without any they understood any thing of that great diffear of such notable refistance. The rest of comfiture, all places would have been hoftile unto him, and fought with his ruine to purchase favour of the vanquishers. Therecour the Lacedamonians: only that part of fore making fo large marches, that many of his Souldiers being feeble, were left behind could not arrive unto the place of the great | and loft, he came to Byzantium, whence he shipped his men over into Asia. Such was confederated with the Persians, gave them the end of the vain-glorious Expedition, undertaken by Xerxes against the Greeks, tans, with other their affiftants, did so well upon hope of Honour, and Conquest, acquit themselves, that the Persians were though forting otherwise, accordingly as vanquished, and Mardonius, with many Artabazus had foreseen, and rather worse, thoulands more flain in the field; the rest fled | for as much as it began the quarrel, which into the Camp, which they had fortified never ended before the ruine of the Perwith wooden Walls, and there defended fian Empire was effected by that Nation of themselves with such courage, as desperate the Greeks, despised and sought to have necessity inforced them unto, holding out been brought into slavery. Hereby it may the longer, because the Lacedemonians were seem, that the vision appearing to Xerxes, was from God himfelf, who had formerly ing Fortresles, and Walls. In the mean time disposed of those things, ordaining the subthe Athenians having found strong opposi- version of the Persian Monarchy by the tion of the Thebans and Thessalians, did with Greeks, who thus provoked, entred into much labour and courage obtain victory, greater confideration of their own strength, thousand vain and frivolous) a few precisely felf doth sometimes use to terrifie those who prefume upon their own strength, by these light means of tumultuous noises: as he rai-fed the fiege of Samaria, by caufing a found of Horses and Chariots to affright the Ara-mites; and as he threaned senacherib, faying.

make offensive War.

570

ø. X.

that fell out in the beginning : and examples of the like.

Battel fought at Mycale, a Promontory, or ing very glad to have found some that durst Head-land in Asia, where the Persian Fleet begin. It is said, that while the Greeks were the Athenian, Admirals of the Greek Navy, at the request of some Islanders and Ionians, did fail into those parts, to deliver the Samians, and procure the Ionians to revolt from very true. For the Battel of Platea was the Persian. Xerxes himself at this time lay at sought in the morning, and this of Micale Sardis, a City in Lydia, not far from the Sea- in the evening of the same day. fide, having left threescore thousand under the command of Tigranes, for defence of Io- wherein Paulus Emilius overthrew Persens nia, and the Sea-coast. Therefore when Ar- the last King of Macedon, was brought to tagntes, and Ithramitres, Admirals of the Rome in four daies, as Livie with others do Persian Fleet, understood that the Greeks record. And Plutarch hath many other exbent their course towards them, they did amples of this kind. As that of the Battel forth-with draw their ships aground, forti- by the River Sagra in Italy, which was heard fying with Palissadoes, and otherwise, as much of, the same day in Feloponness: That of ground as was needful for the encamping the Battel against the Tarquinians and the of all their Land and Sea-forces. Lentychides Latins, presently noised at Rome: And (which at his arrival, perceiving that they meant to is most remarkable) the victory obtained keep within their strength, and resolving to against Lucius Antonius, who was Rebelto force them out of it, rowed with his Gally | Domitian the Emperour. This Lucius Antoclose aboard the shore, and called upon the nins being Lieutenant of the higher Germa-Ionians (who more for fear, than good will, | 17, had corrupted his Army with gifts and were encamped among the Persians) ex- promises, drawing the barbarous people to horting them in the Greek tongue to remem- follow him, with great hope to make himber liberty, and use the fair occasion which | self Emperour; which news much troubling they now had to recover it. Herein he did | the City of Rome, with fear of a dangerous imitate Themistocles, who had done the like | War, it was suddenly reported, that Antoniat Eubwa, trusting that either these perswa- us was slain, and his Army defeated. fions would prevail, or, if the Persians did happen to understand them, that it would gods, and shew all manner of publick joy, breed some jealousie in them, causing them as in such cases was accustomed. But when to fight in fear of their own companions. It | better enquiry was made, and the Author need not feem strange, that this very same of these tydings could not be found, the stratagem, which little or nothing availed Emperour Domitian betook himself to his Themistocles, did now very happily succeed. journey against the Rebel; and being now For Xerxes being in his full strength, it was with his Army in march, he received advera matter of much difficulty, to perswade tisement by Post, of the Victory obtained, those Inhabitants of Asia to revolt; who now and the death of Antonius: whereupon rein his declining estate, gave a willing ear to membring the rumour noised before in the sweet found of liberty. The Perstans like- Rome, of the self-same victory, he found that wife, who in their former bravery, little re- the report and victory were born upon one garded, and less feared, any treason to be day, though twenty thousand furlongs wary, that from the samians which were dred miles) afunder. It is truly faid of Pluftreight passages of Mysale; pretending that credulous imagination, there should not be

these Milesians did best of all others know those places. But these devices little availed The Battel of Mycale; with a strange accident them. For the Samians perceiving that thev were held as Traitors, took courage in the heat of the fight, and laying hold upon fuch weapons as came to hand, affailed the Perfi-He fame day on which the Battel was ans manfully within the Camp; which exfought at Platea, there was another amples the Ionians presently followed, beyet in a march toward the Enemies Camp, a Lutychides the Spartan, with Xantippus rumour suddenly rann in the Army, that Mardonius was overthrown in Greece, which (though perhaps it was given out by the Captains to encourage the Souldiers) was Hereupon many did offer facrifice to the contrived by their fubjects, were now fo (which make above five and twenty hunamongst them, they took away their arms; tarch, that this last example gives credit unthe Milesians, whom they did suspect, but to many the like. And indeed it were very would not feem to miltruft, they placed far strange, if among so many rumours, begotten from them, as it were for defence of the by forgery or mistakings, and fosteredby ø. X I.

The like report of that great Battel,

true. Howhert we may find, that God him- of the barbarous qualities of Xerxes: with a transition from the Persian affairs to matters of Greece, which from this time grew more worthy of regard.

Erxes lay at Sardis, not far from the place of this Battel; but little mind had he to revenge either this, or other his hear a noise, and return to his own Land. great losses, being wholly given over to Wherefore it may well have been true, that the love of his Brothers Wife: with whom God was pleased by such means as this, to he could not prevail by intreaty, nor animate the Greeks; who (as Herodotus would obtain his defire by force. Because notes) went towards the Enemies with hea- he respected much his Brother her Husyy hearts, being in great fear, lest their own band, he thought it best to make a match adventure should by no means fall out well; between his own Son Darius, and the confidering in what danger they had left Daughter of this Woman; hoping by that their own Country of Greece, which was rea- means to find occasion of such familiarity dy to be subdued by Mardonius, whilst they as might work out his defire. But whether went wandring to feek out Enemies a-far- it were fo, that the chaffity of the Mother offuponthe coast of Asia. But, the same of did still reject him, or the beauty of the the Battel fought at Flatea being noised Daughter allure him, he soon after fell in among them, every man defired that his own love with his own Sons Wife, being a vicivalour in the present fight, might be some ous Prince, and as ill able to govern himhelp to work out the full deliverance of felf in peace, as to guide his Army in war. Greece. In this alacrity of spirit, they divided This young Lady having once defired the themselves into two Eattalions, whereof the King to give her the Garment which he Athenians led the one, by the way of the then wore, being wrought by his own Wife, plain, directly towards the Enemies Camp; the Lacedamonians conducted the other, by Husbands convertation with her, which the Mountains and streight passages, to win she imputed not so much to the beauty of the higher ground. The Athenians did first her Daughter-in-law, as to the cunning of let upon the Camp (ere the Lacedamonians | the Mother, against whom thereupon she could arrive on the other part) and being conceived extreme hatred. Therefore at a desirous to get all the honour of the day to Royal Feast, wherein the custom was, that themselves, did so forcibly assault it, that the King should grant their request, she they brake way thorow the Palisladoes and craved that the Wife of Massifes, her Huf-Gabious, and made themselves Masters of the | bands Brother, the young Ladies Mother, place, flaying all that could not fave them- | might be given into her disposition. The barfelves by flight. In this fight the Samians barous King, who might either have reformdid good fervice, as is formerly mentioned. ed the abuse of such a custom, or have delu-But the Milesians, who upon the like jea- | ded the importunate cruelty of his Wife, by lousie, were placed by the Persians on the threatning her self with the like, to whatsotops of Mycale, to defend the passages, did ever she should inflict upon the innocent Lanow (as if they had been fent of purpose to | dy, granted the request; and sending for his keep them from running away) put as many Brother, perswaded him to put away the to the fword as fell into their hands, letting | Wife which he had, and take one of his none escape, except very few, that fled Daughters in her stead. Hereby it seems, that through by-paths. The Lacedemonians that he understood how villainously that poor day did little service, for the business was Lady should be intreated, whom he knew to dispatched ere they came in: Only they be virtuous, and whom himself had loved. broke fuch companies as retired in whole Massites refused to put her away; alleging troops; making them flie dispersed in very his own love, her deserving, and their commuch disorder, whereby the Milesians were mon children, one of which was married to enabled to do the greater execution upon the Kings Son, as reasons important to move them. This was the last fight of that huge him to keep her. But in most wicked man-Army levied against Greece, which was now ner Xerxes reviled him, saying, That he utterly broken, and had no means left to now should neither keep the Wife which he had, nor have his Daughter whom he had promised ved with these words, but much more, when ally the Athenians, that the Persian was no returned home, he found his Wife most better Souldier at his own doors, than in a butcherly mangled by the Queen Amestris, forein Country: whereof good trial was who had caused her Nose, Lips, Ears, and made forth-with, and much better proof as Tongue to be cut off; and her Breafts in like foon as the affairs of Athens were quietly manner, which were cast unto Dogs. Massifes setled and assured. enraged with this villany, took his way with From this time forward I will therefore his children, and some friends, towards Ba- pursue the History of Greece, taking in the Etria, of which Province he was Governour, matters of Persia, as also the estate of other intending to rebel and avenge himfelf: But Countries, collaterally, when the order of Xerxes understanding his purpose, caused an time shall present them. True it is, that the Army to be levied, which cut him off by the Persian estate continued in her greatness, maway, putting him and all his Company to ny ages following, in such wife, that the the fword. Such was the Tyrannical condition of the Perssan Government; and such Kingdom, representing the Majesty of a are generally the effects of Luxury, when it great Empire. is joyned with abfolute power.

Cccc 2

Prince of much virtue. And therefore Alex- quired, yielding few actions, or none, that ander the Great, finding an Image of his were worthy of remembrance, excepting overthrown, and lying upon the ground, fome Tragedies of the Court, and examples faid, That he doubted, whether in regard of of that excessive Luxury, wherewith both his virtue, he should again erect it; or, for it, and all, or the most of Empires that the mischief done by him to Greece, should ever were, have been enervated, made unlet it lye. But furely, whatfoever his other | weildy, and (as it were) fattened for the good qualities were, he was foolish, and was hungry swords of poor and hardy Enemies. a coward, and confequently mercilefs.

the virtue of Cyrus was very great, upon with mony and base policies; very seldom or which the foundation of the Persian Empire | never (unless it were with great advantage) was so furely laid, that all the wickedness dating to adventure the tryal of plain Batand vanities of Xerxes, and other worfe Printel with that little Nation of Greece; which ces, could not overthrow it, until it was bro- would foon have ruined the foundations ken by a virtue almost equal to that which laid by Cyrus, had not private malice and did establish it. In wars against the Egypti- jealousie urged every City to envy the ans, the fortune of Xerxes did continue, as at height of her neighbours walls, and therethe first it had been, very good; but against by diverted the swords of the Greeks into the general estate of Greece, neither he, or their own bowels, which after the deparany of his posterity, did ever make offensive ture of Xerxes began very well, and might war, but received many losses in Asia, to better have continued, to hew out the way which the last at Mycale served but as an in- of Conquest, on the side of Asia.

promifed unto him. Maliftes was much grie- troduction; teaching the Greeks, and especi-

But this greatness depended only upon the Yet of Xerxes it is noted, that he was a riches and power that had formerly been ac-Hereby it came to pass, that Xerxes and his Therefore we may firmly believe, that successors were fain to defend their Crowns

CHAP. VII.

Of things that passed in Greece from the end of the Persian War, to the beginning of the Peloponnesian.

ø. I.

How Athens was re-built and fortified.

Fter that the Medes and Persians | ded the Grecian Army, leaving the pursuit had received their last blow, and of the War to the Athenians, affisted by the were utterly beaten at Mycale: revolted Iones, returned with the Lacede-"Leutychides, who then comman- monians and other Peloponnesians to Sparta, and other places, out of which they had Athens, from whose relation they might reand other place. The Athenians in the mean folve themselves, and determine accordingly. own places.

their works, by the advice of Themistocles, maintained. they held the Lacedamonians in hope of the Themistocles towards Lacedamon, giving him Embassadors. for excuse, that he could not deliver the retarded. But after a while, the Lacedamo- all occasions. nians expectation being converted into jealousie (for by the arrival of divers persons out of Attica, they were told for certain, That the walls of Athens were speedily grown up beyond expectation) Themistocles prayed them not to believe reports and vain rumors, but that they would be pleased to fend some of their own trusty Citizens to

while befieged seftor, a City on the strait of Which request being granted, and Commiswhile beneged section, a City on the Italia of the Hellesport, between which and Abydus, fineers fent, Themistocles dispatched one of the Newcook had lately fastened his Bridge of his own, by whom he advised the Athenians, Boats: where the Inhabitants, desperate of sirst to entertain the Lacedamonians with fuccour, did not long dispute the defence some such discourse as might retain them thereof, but quitted it to the Greeks, who a few dayes, and in conclusion to hold them thereot, pur quirted it to the Oreas, who allow dayes, and in conclument o hold them entertained themfelves the Winter follow among them, till himself, and the other ing on that fide the Hellesport. In the Spring Athenian Embaliadours, then at sparta, had ing on that not the starting left their wives and children, fince the invation of 11-being also affured by his associates and Aritica, and the abandoning of Athens, in di- Stides, that Athens was already defensible on vers Islands, and at Træzen, they now found all parts, Themistocles demanding audience, them out, and returned with them to their made the Lacedamonians know, That it was true that the walls of Athens were now raif-And though the most part of all their ed to that height, as the Athenians doubted houses in Athens were burnt and broken not the defence of their City; praying the down, and the walls of the City over-turn- Lacedamonians to believe, That when loever ed, yet they resolved first on their common it pleased them to treat with the Athenians defence, and to fortifie their City, before they would know them for fuch as right they cared to cover themselves, their wives well understood what appertained to a and children, with any private buildings. Common-weale and their own fafety, with-Whereof the Lacedamonians being adverti- out direction and advice from any other: fed, and milliking the fortifying of Athens, That they had in the War of Xerxes abanboth in respect that their own City of sparta | doned their City, and committed themselves was unwalled, as also because the Athenians to the wooden Walls of their Ships, from were grown more powerful by Sea, than the resolutions of their own counsels and either themselves, or any other State of courage, and not thereto taught or per-Greece, they dispatched messengers to the swaded by others : and finally, in all that Athenians to diffwade them; not acknow- perillous War against the Persians they ledging any private mislike or jealousie, but | found their own judgements and the execupretending, that if the Persians should return | tion thereof in nothing inferiour, or less forto invade Greece a third time, the Athenians tunate, than that of any other Nation, State, being in no better frate to defend themselves or Common-weale among the Greeks. And than heretofore, the same would serve to re- therefore concluded, that they determined ceive their enemies, and to be made a Seat to be Masters and Judges of their own for the War, as Thebes had lately been. To affairs, and thought it good reason, that this the Athenians promised to give them sa- either all the Cities confedered within tisfaction by their own Embasiadours very Greece should be left open, or else that the speedily. But being resolved to go on with | Walls of Athens should be finished and

The Lacedamonians finding the time uncontrary, till they had raifed their walls to fit for quarrel, diffembled their mislike, both that height, as they cared not for their mif- of the fortifying of Athens, and of the divisilikes, nor doubted their disturbance; and on; and so suffered the Athenians to depart, therefore (to gain time) they dispatched and received back from them their own

The Walls of Athens finished, they also Athenians resolutions, till the arrival of his fortified the Port Pyreus, by which they fellow-Commissioners, who were of purpose might under covert imbark themselves upon

HE Athenians having fetled things Athenians great commodity; fo the defire thirty Gallies for the purfuit of the War commodity, corrupted their vertue, and against the Perstans, to which the Lacedomo- robbing them of the general love, which had nians added other twenty, and with this made them powerful, abandoned their Civ Fleet, firengthened by the rest of the Cities to the defence of her treasure, which with of Greece confederated, they fet fail for cy- her in the next age perished. For it was prus, under the conduct of Paulanias the not long ere these four hundred and three-Lacedamonian; where, after their landing fcore Talents were raised to fix hundred; nor having possess themselves of many principal long after that, ere their covetous tyranny places, they imbarked the Army again, and had coverted their followers into flaves, took land in Thrace, recovering from the and extorted from them yearly thirteen Persians by force the City Bizantium, now hundred Talents. The Isle of Delos was at Constantinople: from whence Pausanias, be- the first appointed for the Treasure-house having himself more like a Tyrant than a wherein these sums were laid up, and Captain, especially towards the Ionians late- where, at the general Assembly, the Caply revolted from Xerxes, was called back by tains of those forces, fent by the confedethe Council of Lacedamon, and not only rates, were for form fake called to confultaaccused of many infolent behaviours, but of tion. But the Athenians, who were stronger Intelligence with the Medes, and Treason by Sea than all Greece besides, had lockt up against his Country. In his stead they im- the common treasure in an Island, under ployed Docres, who either gave the fame their own protection, from whence they cause of offence; or eise the Athenians, who might transport it at their pleasure, as afteraffected the first commandement in that ward they did. War, practifed the Souldiers to complain; though indeed the wife and vertuous becomes fon of Militades, who first took baviour of Arifides, General of the Athenian Eiona, upon the River Strimon; then the forces, a man of rare and incomparable fin- life of sciros, inhabited by the Dolopes : they cerity, had been able to make a good Com- maftered the Cariflii, and brought into fermander feem ill in comparison of himself; vitude the Naxii, contrary to the form of the and therefore was much more available, in confederacy: So did the other the inhabirendring those detested, whose vices afford-tants of Greece, if at any time they failed of ed little matter of excuse. Howsoever it their contribution, or disobeyed their comwere, the Lacedamonians being no less mandements; taking upon them and usurpwearied of the War, than the Athenians were ing a kind of soveraign authority over the eager to pursue it, the one obtained their rest; which they exercised the more assured eale, and the other the execution and ho- ly, because they were now become Lords of nour which they defired: for all the Greeks, the Sea, and could not be refifted. For many (those of Peloponnesus excepted) willingly of the confederated Cities and Nations, subjected themselves to the commandement weary of the War in their own persons, and of the Athenians, which was both the be- given up altogether to their eale, made four hundred and threefcore Talents, which derates, employed fo well by the Athenians was raifed eafily by the honest care of that just man Ariftides, to whose discretion all The beginning of the Athenian greatness, and the confederates referred themselves, and prosperous war made by that State upon the no one man found occasion to complain of him. But as the vertue of Ariftides, and other worthy Citizens, brought unto the in good order at home, prepared which they conceived of encreasing their ginning of their greatness in that present choice rather to pay their parts in mony, age, and of their ruin in the next succeed- than either in men of War, or in Ships; ing. For the charge of the War being now leaving the provision of both to the Athenicommitted unto them, they began to rate ans. Hereby the one grew weak in all their the confederated Cities; they appointed Sea-defences, and in the exercise of the Receivers and Treasurers, and began to le- Wars; the other greatly strengthened their vy mony, according to their diferetion, for Navy and their experiences, being alwayes the maintenance of the general defence of armed and imployed in honourable fervices, Greece, and for the recovering of those places at the cost of those, who having lifted them on Europe fide, in Afa the less, and the Islands, into their Saddles, were now enforced to from the Persians. This tribute (the first that become their footmen. Yet was the Triwas ever paid by the Greeks) amounted to bute-mony, levied upon these their confe-

CHAP. VII.

at the first (as ill proceedings are often founded upon good beginnings) that nogreat cause of repining was given. For they rigged The death of Xerxes by the treason of Artabaout a great Fleet of Gallies, very well manned, wherewith Cimon the Admiral scouring the Afiatick Seas, took in the City of Phaselis; which having formerly pretended neuaffift the Greeks, were enforced to pay ten Talents for a fine, and so to become followers of the Athenians, paying yearly con-

From thence he set fail for the River Euthe first notice of their approach, Cimon the truth is more ancient than the Verse; weighed anchor, and meeting them at an head-Land, called Hydra, did fo amaze them, ground; by which mean, preferving few of their men, they loft all their ships. These losses Lame-footed Vengeance fails to overtake. did fo break the courage of the Persian, that omitting all hope of prevailing upon Greece, he condescended to whatsoever Articles it liberty unto all the Greeks inhabiting Asia; and further covenanting, That none of his ships of War should fail to the Westward of the Isles, called Cyanea and Chelidonia.

This was the most honourable peace that in which War, few, or perhaps none of them, altogether under the Macedonians.

s. III.

575

DEfides these losses, which could not eafily have been repaired, the troubles trality, and refused to relieve, or any way of the Empire were at this time such, as gave just cause to the Persian of seeking peace upon any terms not altogether intollerable. For Artabanus, the Uncle of Xerxes. perceiving, that the King his Master did eafily take imall occasions to shed the blood of rymedon in Pamphylia, where the Persian such as in kindred or place were near unto Fleet rode, being of fix hundred fail, or (ac- him, began to repose less hope of Safety in cording to the most sparing report) three remaining faithful, than of obtaining the hundred and fifty, and having a great Land- Soveraignty, by destroying a Prince that Army, encamped upon the shoar; all which was so hated for his cruelty, and despised forces having been provided for advancing for his cowardile and misfortunes. Having the Kings affairs in Greece, were utterly de- conceived this Treason, he found means to feated in one day, and two hundred ships execute it by Mithridates an Eunuch, in such taken by the Athenians; the reft being broken | close manner, that (as if he himself had been to pieces, or funk, ere ever they had fwom innocent) he accused Darius the fon of in the Greekish Seas. Cimon having in one Xerxes, and caused him to suffer death as a day obtained two great Victories, the one Parricide. Whether it be true, that by this by Sea, and the other by Land, was very great wickedness he got the Kingdom, and soon presented with a third. For sour-held it seven months; or whether, intending fcore fail of Phanicians (who were the best of the like evil to Artaxerxes the son of Xerxes, all Sea-men, under the Persian command) he was by him prevented and surprised, were thinking to have joyned themselves with the | hard to affirm any certainty. But all Writers Fleet before destroyed, arrived upon the agree upon this, That taken he was, and with fame Coast, ignorant of what had passed, and fearing nothing less than what ensued. Upon torments, according to the settleam the settle settlements and the settlements are settlements.

> Rarò antecedentem scelestum Deseruit pede pæna claudo.

that they only fought to run themselves on Seldome the villain, though much haste he make,

ø. IV.

pleased the Athenians to propound, granting | The banishment of Themistoles: his flight to Artaxerxes newly reigning in Persia; and his death.

Rtaxerxes being established in his Kingdom, and having fo compoundever the Greeks made; neither did they in ed with the Atkenians, as the prefent neeffect, after this time, make any War that ceffity of his affairs required, began to conredounded to the profit or glory of the ceive new hopes of better fortune against whole Nation, till fuch time as under Alex- the Greeks, than he or his predecessors had ander, they overthrew the Empire of Perfia; ever hitherto found. For the people of Athens, when the Persians were chased out of had any place of great command, but ferved | Greece, did so highly value their own merits in that fervice, that they not only thought it fit for themselves to become the Commanders over many Towns and Islands of the Greeks, but even within their own walls, they would admit none other form of Government

CHAP. VII.

in they were so insolent, that no integrity great conflict between thankfulness to his nor good defert was able to preferve the well-deferving Prince, and natural affection estate of any such as had born great office, to his own ill-deserving people, by smishing longer, than by flattering the rafcal multi- his life with a cup of poyfon. tude, he was contented to frame all his words and deeds to their good liking.

This their intolerable demeanour much offended Themistocles; who, though in former times he had layed the foundations of How the Athenians, breaking the peace, which his greatness upon popularity, yet now prefuming upon his good fervices done to the State, he thought that with great reason they might grant him the liberty to check their inordinate proceedings. But contrariwife, they were fo highly offended with his often rehearing the benefits which they Egyptian war, wherein it appeared well had received from him, that they laid upon | That a just cause is a good defence against him the punishment of Oftracism, where a strong enemy. An Athenian Fleet of by he was banished for ten years, as a two hundred says strong was sent forth unman over-burthensome to the Common- der Cimon, to take-in the Isle of Cyprus: wealth.

expired, a new accufation was brought broken at Sea, and thereby unable to reagainst him by the Lacedamonians, who lieve the Island. Now although it were so, charged him of confulting with Paufanias, that a peace had been concluded, which about betraying the whole Countrey of was likely to have been kept fincerely by Greece unto Xerxes. Hereupon Themistocles, the Persian, who had made so good proof finding no place of fecurity against the of the Gracian valour, that he was nothing malice of two fuch mighty cities, was driven defirous to build any ships of War (without after many troublesome flights, and dange- which the Greeks could receive no harm rous removings, to adventure himself into from him) whereof if any one should be Persta, where he found Artaxerxes newly found sayling towards Greece, the peace was fetled, and was by him very honourably en- immediately broken; and, if not his whole tertained. But the great hope which Arta- eftate, yet all the Sea-coast (no small part xerxes had conceived of advancing his af- of his Dominions) exposed to the waste of an fairs by the counfell and affiftance of The- | enemy too far over-matching him, Yet whemistocles, proved altogether fruitless. For ther the Athenians were in doubt, lest the when the Athenians, in favour of Inarus the league which in his own worser fortunes he Lybian, (who infested Egypt, causing it to had made with them, he would break in rebell against the Persian) had sent a Fleet theirs; and therefore sought to get such asto Sea, landing an Army in Egypt, and scou- surance into their hands, as might utterly ring those Eastern Seas, to the great hinde- disable him from attempting ought against rance of Artaxerxes, and (for ought that I | them; or whether the increase of their recan understand) to the manifest breach venues and power, by adding that rich and of that peace, which to their great honour | great Island to their Empire, caused them to they had concluded with Xerxes; then did | measure honour by profit; they thought it the King fend his Letters to Themistocles, re- the wifest way, to take, whilest they might, quiring him to make good the hopes which | whatfoever they were able to get and hold, had given, of affuring the Perfian estate and he unable to defend. against the Greeks.

unlikeliness of good success, in leading a Egypt, is very fitly seated for any Prince of great army of daltardly Persians against the State, that being mighty at Sea, doth either warlike people of Greece; or else (as in fa- seek to enrich himself by trade with those vour of his vertue it is more commonly re- Countreys, or to infelt one or more of ported) the love of his Country would not | them when they are his enemies. And this permit him to feek honour by the ruine of being the purpose of the Athenians, their it; sure it is, that being appointed by Ar- Ambirion which had already devoured, in taxerxes to undertake the conduct of great conceit, this Island, was on the sudden wellvernment than meerly Democratical. Here- forces against the Athenians, he decided the

to their great honour they had made with the Persian , were shamefully beaten in

Hen was Artaxerxes driven to use the fervice of his own Captains in the which conquest seemed easie both to make Before the time of his return was half and to maintain; the Persian being utterly

The Isle of Cyprus lying in the bottom of But whether Themistocles perceived much the streights between Cilicia, Syria, and

finatch at which, they let Cyprus alone, to use for the recovery of that which was which they might eafily have swallowed lost, or for the preservation of the remainand digested. For Inarus King of the Lybi- der. The best of his hope, was; by setting and discretizing Egypt, having found how the Lacademonians upon Athens, to enforce greatly the Country was exhausted by the the Athenians to look homewards to their late Wars, and how weakly defended by own defence. This was the first time that very fleuder Persian Garrisons, conceived the Persian Sought to procure the affishance rightly, that if such small forces as the Sa- of the Greeks one against the other, by stirtrapa, or Viceroy, could make on the sudden ring them up with gold, to the entertainthe naturals of the Countrey not long fince | fent Megabazus to Sparta with much Treaoppressed by Cambyses, and, after a revolt, sure; who after great expence, finding that tle to that Kingdom than a good fword. Athenians, whom in many conflicts of great Further, he perswaded himself that the importance they had found to be their Egyptians his adherents were not answera- about Memphis the great City. ble to their defires, perceived well, that to It cannot be doubted, that long abode in they shared somewhat equally.

Dddd

nigh choaked with a greater morfell, to could Artaxerxes well advise what means of his own Guards, or levy out of the ordinary Garrisons, were by him defeated, their common enemy. To this purpose he very lately subdued by Xerxes, would soon the Lacedamonians were nothing forward break faith with him, who had no other ti- in employing their whole force against the people, unable to defend themselves against matches, notwithstanding the absence of the Persian without his assistance, would their Army in Egypt; he thought it his eafily be drawn to accept him, the author of wifeft way to employ the rest of his money their deliverance, for King. Neither did and means, to their relief who had now the this hope deceive him. For having taken space of six years defended his masters right and cruelly flain Achemenes the Vicerop, diverse for the vicerop and cruelly flain Achemenes the Vicerop, diverse for the vers Cities for thwith declared themselves another of his name, the son of Zopprus, who for him, and proclaiming him King, shew-ed the most of their indeavour for proce-the revolted people; over whom he obtaincution of the War. But he confidering his ed victory, which made him mafter of the own weakness, and that the means of the Countrey, whilest the Athenians lay busied relift the power of Artaxerxes, far greater a strange ayre, and want of supply, had forces than his and theirs were to be pro- much enfeebled the Athenians: fure it is, that cured, at what price foever he obtained when Megabazus, having reduced the Counthem. Therefore hearing of the great Athe- try to obedience, attempted the City it felf, Profibites mian fleet, and knowing well the vertue of whether his former success had amended the an island the Souldiers therein imbarqued; he invited the Commanders to share with him the Kingdom of Egypt, as a far greater reward of their adventure, than such an addition pursued them so the such as the s as that of Cyprus could be to their estate, to fortisse themselves in the Isle of Proso-less of Ni-Whether he or they (if things had wholly pites, where Megabazus, after eighteen lustowards forted according to their expectation moneths fiege, turning away one part of disa would have been contented with an equal the River by divers Trenches, assume that the River by divers Trenches, assume the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum of the River by divers Trenches, as a sum thare, and not have fallen out in the parti- Athenians without impediment of waters, tion, were perhaps a divination unnecessia- took their Gallies, and put all to the sword, ry. He was possessed the peoples love, they were of most power. But the issue of into Lybia; the same entertainment had fifty is an i. those affairs was such as left them nothing other Gallies, which they sent to the suc-stand in to communicate but misfortunes, which cour of the first two hundred. For those the mouth of Nilus, Athenians having heard nothing that their between Yet had the beginning of their enter-prile very good and hopefull fucces: For by the branch of Nilus, which is called magnitum, they entred the Land, as far as to Memphis, Mendessum, and fell unawares among the & Dieless: the principall City; and of the City it self Phemician Gallies, and the Perssan Army; but the branch of they took two parts: to the third part, which fo as the Persians recovered all Egypt, but wilus, cal-Was called, the White wall, they laid such that part held by Amyrteus, and Inarus led Mondehard fiege, that neither those forces of the the King of Lybia, being by them taken and nething Persians, which then were in Egypt, were hanged. This was the end of the Atheni-the City frong enough to remove them; neither ans fix years War in Egypt, and the reward ganaphifis.

CHAP. VII.

of their vanity and indifcretion to under-perswaded thereunto by orestes, but were take many enterprises at once.

578

ø. V.

time.

Egypt, yet the Athenians in their homewars waded through many difficulties, and they fent fixty of their ships. The rest of held the reputation of their forces against their Army failing in their enterprise at Cothe Lacedemonians, Corinthians, and others, prus, and their fortunate and victorious rather to their advantage than otherwise. Leader Cimon dying there, as they coasted For as they were beaten near unto Halia the Island, incountred a fleet of the Phoniby the Corinthians and Epidaurians, so they cians and Cilicians, over both which Natiobtained two great Victories soon after; ons they returned victorious into Greece: as the one over the Peloponnessians, neer unto also those returned fafe which were sent in-Cecryphalia; the other over the Eginets, to Egypt. neer unto Ægina, where they funk and carried away threescore and ten Gallies of their enemies. Furthermore, they landed their forces on the fudden, and befieged of Artaxerxes Longimanus, that he was Ægina, from whence they could not be moved, notwithstanding that the Corinthians, to divert them, invaded Megara; where, after a great fight with equall loss, the Corinthians, when they returned again to fet up their Trophie, as Victors in the former battell, were utterly broken and slaughtered by the Athenian Garrisons, and Megarians, to their great loss allow unto him four and forty. He was a and dishonour.

Again, as the Athenians were discomsitted near to Tangra, by the Lacedamonians, who returned from the fuccour of the Dorians against the Phocians (at which time the hemias, which fell in his time. Thessalian horsemen turned from their Allies the Athenians, and fought against them) fo about threescore days after, the Atheni- work of building the Temple, it were a ans entred Baotia under the conduct of Myronides, where beating that Nation, they wan Phocis on the gulf of Oetens, and evened | shew that those two Prophets were licensed the walls of Tanagra to the ground. Finally, they enforced Agina to render upon most such fort as appears in their writings. base conditions; as to beat down the walls of their City, and to give them hostages for Tri- who married Hester. Whereof if it be needbute: the fiege whereof they had continued, | full to give proof, it may suffice, that Ahanotwithstanding all their other brabbtes shueros lived in Susa, reigning from India to and attempts ellewhere. Befides these victories, they lackt and spoiled many places upon the Sea-coast of Peloponnesus, belonging by the circumstances of the History, and to the Lacademonians, wan upon the Corin thians, and overthrew the Sicyonians that authority of which Princes began under came to their fuccour. These were the un- Darius the son of Hylaspes , wherefore he dertakings of the Athenians, and their Al- could be neither Cyrus nor Cambyses. lies, during the time of those fix years, that a part of their forces made war in Egypt. In King Darius the son of Hyfrafies, together refifted by the King Pharfalus, who had chafed Orestes out of his Dominions. They also landed in sicyonia, and had victory over those that resisted, after which they made of other Wars made by the Athenians for the truce with the Peloponnessians for five years. most part with good success, about the same and sent Cimon into Cyprus with two hundred fhips; but they were again allured by Amyrteus one of the race of their former Otwithstanding these overthrows in Kings, who held the Marish and Wooddy

ø, VI.

Ahashuerosh the husband of Queen He-

These Egyptian troubles being ended, the reign of Artaxerxes continued peaceable: whereof the length is by some restrained unto twenty years, but the more and better Authors give him forty, some Prince of much humanity, and noted for many examples of gentleness. His favour was exceeding great to the Jews; as appeareth by the Histories of Esdras and Ne-

To prove that this was the King who gave countenance and ayd to that great needless travell; considering that all the late Divines have taken very much pains to by him, and fuccoured in that building, in

This was likewise that King Abashuerosh Æthiopia, and therefore must have been a Persian; That he lived in peace, as appears used the counsel of the seven Princes, the

The continual wars which exercised the end whereof they attempted Theffaly, with the certainty of his marriages with fundry wives, from none of whom he was divorced, but left his first wife Atossa, the daughter of Cyrus, alive in great honour, of the troubles in Greece, foregoing the Pethe being mother to Xerxes the succeeding King, do manifeltly prove that Hefter was not his. Whereunto is added by Fhilo the Jew, That at the perswasion of Mardo-

end of Darius. had free from war, are enough to prove, that the story of Hester pertained not unto the time of Xerxes, who lived but one and twenty years, whereas the two and thirtieth of Ahasucrus or Artasastha is ex-Of the Princes that fucceeded Artaxerxes weighteen years more than Isaac the Pa. truce was made for thirty years. triarch lived, namely, one hundred fourfcore and eighteen years in all, which exyears old.

ø. VIII.

loponnesian War.

But it is fit that we now return to the affairs of the Greeks, who from this cheus, Jojachim the High-Priest the son of time forward, more vehemently prosecu-Jessus, caused the feast of Purim to be insti- ting their civil wars, suffered the Persuans nited in memory of that deliverance. Now for many ages to rest in peace: this Egythe time of Jojachim was in the reign of ptian expedition being come to nought. Artaxerxes, at the coming of Esdras and Soon after this, the Lacedamonians under-Nebemias: Jesus his father dying about the took the war called Sacred, recovered the Temple and Isle of Delphos, and delivered The same continuance of wars with other | both to the inhabitants ; but the Athenian's his furious and tragical loves wherewith regained the fame, and gave it in charge Xerxes did confume fuch little time as he to the Phocians. In the mean while the banished Beotians re-entred their own Land. & mastered two of their own Towns possest by the Athenians, which they foon recovered again from them; but in their return towards Athens, the Bwotians, Eubwans, and pressed by Nehemias. Again, it is well known | Locrians (Nations oppress by the Athenithat Xerxes in the feventh year of his ans) fet upon them with fuch resolution, as reign (wherein this marriage must have the Athenians were in that fight all slain or been celebrated) came not near to Susa. taken, whereby the Buotians recovered their former liberty, restoring to the Athenians Longimanus, to prove that none of them their prisoners. The Handers of Eubwatook could be Ahafhuerofh, it is enough to fay, that | fuch courage upon this, that they revolted Mardochaus having been carried from Hie- | wholly from the Athenians, whom when Perusalem captive, with Jechonia, by Nabu- ricles intended to reconquer, he was adverchadnezzar, was unlikely to have lived until tifed that the Megarians (who first left the Lacedamonians, and submitted themselves to But of this Artaxerxes it is true, that he Athens) being now weary of their yoke, had lived in sufa, reigned from India to Æthi- Ilain the Athenians Garrisons, and joyned opia, lived in peace, was contemporary with themselves with the Corinthians, Sycionians, Jojachim the high Priest, and further he had and Epidaurians. These news hastened Pehappily by his Lieutenants reclaymed the ricles homeward with all possible speed; but rebellious Egyptians in that seventh year ere he could recover Attica, the Peloponneof his reign; which good fortune might fians, led by Plistoanax the fon of Pansanias, well give occasion to such a Royal Feast, as had invaded it, pillaged and burnt many is described in the beginning of Hester. This | parts thereof, after whose return Pericles is the fumm of the arguments, brought to went on with his first intent, and recovered prove the age of Hesters story by the Eubera. Finally, the Athenians began to treat learned and diligent Krentzhemius, who of peace with the Peloponnesians, and yielded adds the authorities of fosephus, affirming to deliver up all the places which they held the same, and of Philo giving to Mardocha- in the Countrey of Peloponnesus: and this

After fix of these years were expired, the Athenians (favouring the Mylesians against pire in the five and thirtieth year of this the Samians) invaded Samos by Pericles; and Artaxerxes, if we suppose him to have been after many repulses, and some great losses, carried away captive, being a Boy of ten both by Sea & Land, the Citizens were forced to yield up themselves upon most lamentable conditions: Namely, to deliver up all their ships to break down their own wals, to pay the charge of the war, and to restore whatfoever had been taken by themselvs, or by their practice, from the Athenians. In the neck of which followed that long and cruel CHAP. VIII.

this Brief following: the same contention hold it convenient now at the first to shew taking beginning fifty years after the flight briefly the estate of the Countrey at that of xerxes out of Greece. But because there time, and especially the condition of those was no City thereof, which either in the two great Cities, Athens and Sparta, upon beginning of this war, or in the continuance which all the rest had most dependance.

580

Peloponnesian War, whereof I have gathered | of it, was not drawn into the quarrell; I

CHAP. VIII.

Of the Peloponnesian War.

ø. I.

Upon what terms the two principal Cities of Greece, Athens and Sparta, food at the begining of the Peloponnefian War,

Union and League against the Perstans, aid was commonly held as good as the assuwhereof they were Captains, than into any rance of victory. absolute subjection. For every Estate held | These Lacedamonians had lived about their own, and were governed by Laws, far 1 four hundred years under one form of 60. different, and by their own Magistrates, vernment when the Peloponnessan War benotwithstanding the power of the Macedo gan. Their education was only to practife nians, so whom they did yield obedience no feats of Arms; wherein they so excelled, that otherwise than as to such, who were (perforce) their leaders in the Persian war (deem very great numbers of any other people. ed the General quarrel of Greece) & took the They were poor, and cared not much for profit and honour of the victory, to their wealth; every one had an equall portion of own use and increase of greatness. But the the common field, which sufficed to maintain Kings which afterwards reigned in Macedo- him in fuch manner as they used. For bravery nia, did fo far enlarge their authority, that they had none, and curious building or apall Greece was by them brought under such parel they regarded not. Their diet was obedience, as differed little from fervitude; fimple, their feasts and ordinary meals being very few excepted, who could hardly, in common Halls, where all fared alike. They fometimes with arms, and fometimes with used money of yron, whereof they could not gifts, preserve their liberty: of whom the be covetous nor great hoarders. Briefly, they Lacedamonians and Athenians were chief; lived Otopian-like, fave that they used no which two people deserved best the plague other occupation than War, placing all their of tyranny, having first given occasion there- felicity in the glory of their valour. Hereby unto by their great ambition, which wea- it came to pass that in all enterprises, whereried and weakned all the Countrey by per- of they were partakers, the leading and high petual War. For, until thefe two Cities of command was granted to them, and all Athens and Sparta distracted all Greece, Greece followed their conduct. But the Athedrawing every State into the quarrell, on the nians were in all points contrary to this. For

Reece was never united under were neither great, nor of long continuthe government of any one ance. All controversies were soon decided, Prince or Estate, until Philip of either by the authority of the Amphiliones, Macedon, and after him Alex- who were the general Councel of Greece, or ander, brought them rather to by the power of the Lacedamonians, whose

one or other fide, and so gave beginning to they fought wealth, & measured the honors the Peloponnesian War (the effects whereof in of their victories by the profit; they used true estimation ceased not, before the time mercenary Souldiers in their wars, & exacted that Philip had over-mastered all, for a fmuch great tribute of their Subjects, which were as every conclusion of one war afforded for the most partllanders compelled to obey henceforth matter of fome new distraction them, because the Athenian fleet was great. of the whole Countrey) the wars, commen-

As in form of policy, and in course of life, ced between one City of Greece & another, so in conditions natural, the difference between these two people was very much. The Athenians were eager and violent, fudden in their conclusions, and as hasty in the execution. The Lacedamonians very flow in their deliberations, full of gravity, but very resolute, and such as would in cold blood the Athenians being now very mighty in by war the injuries done to their Allies. Fleet, reduced all the Islands of the Greekish | First therefore, seeking religious pretenquarrel with them 3 but much more willing fift from their purpose of making War. to breed contention between them and other Alkens. Hereby it was thought, that the than they were very willing to undergo.

Athenians though be intangled in a long But the Athenians would yield to no-Athenians should be intangled in a long nour and puillance.

v. VII.

How Sparta and Athens entred into War.

Evertheless, many Estates of Greece were very ill-affected to Athens, beperform what the Athenians did usually in cause that City grew very insolent upon flagrant. Whereby it came to pass, that the sudden prosperity, and, maintaining the Lacedamonians had all the Estates of Greece weaker Towns against the stronger, independing upon them, as on men firm and croached apace upon their Neighbours, taassured, that sought honour, and not riches; king their dependants from them. Especialwhereas the Athenians were followed by ly the Corinthians were much inraged, befuch as obeyed them perforce, being held cause the people of the Island Corcyra, their in streight subjection. But the Signiory of the Colony which had rebelled against them. Athenians was nothing large, until fuch time and given them a great overthrow by Sea. as the Persian Xerxes had invaded Greece, was by the Athenians (who defired to inpretending only a quarrel to Athens: For crease their Fleet by adjoyning that of Corthen the Citizens perceiving well, that the cyra unto it) taken into protection, and the Town of Athens could not be defended Corinthians thereby defeated of that reagainst his great Army of seventeen hundred venge, which else they would have taken. thousandmen, bestowed all their wealth upon Now, howsoever it were so, that these deala Navy, and (affifted by the other Grecians) lings of the Athenians were not directly overthrew the Fleet of Xerxes, whose Land- against the conditions of peace agreed upon forces were foon after discomfitted by them, among the Greeks, yet were the complaints and the Greeks, who all ferved under con- made at Sparta fo vehement, that (though duct of the spartans. After these victories, with much ado) they concluded to redress

Seas under their obedience; imposing upon ces, they required the Athenians to expiate them a hard tribute, for maintenance (as certain offences committed against the gods; they pretended) of War against the Fersian; whereto having for answer, That they though indeed they imployed their forces themselves should expiate other the like ofchiefly, to the conquest of such Islands and sences, committed in Sparta, they began to Haven-Towns of their Country-men, as deal plainly, and required that the people flood out against them. All which was ea- of some Towns, oppressed by the State of fily suffered by the Lacedemonians, who Athens, should be set at liberty; and that were In-landers, and men that delighted a decree made against those of Megara; not in Expeditions to be made far from whereby they were forbidden to enter any home. But afterwards perceiving the power | Port of the Athenians, should be reversed. of the Athenians to grow great, they held This last point they so earnestly press, that them in much jealousie and were very apt to if they might obtain it, they promised to ab-

This they defired, not as a matter of any Estates. Wherefore at such time as the great importance (for it was a trifle) but on-Thebans would have oppressed the Plateans, ly that by seeming to have obtained somewhen they of Platea repaired to Sparta for what, they might preserve their reputation fuccour, they found there no other aid, than without entring into a War, which threatthis advice, That they should seek help at | ned them with greater difficulties apparent, and tedious War with their neighbours of thing; for it was their whole defire that all Thebes. But it proved otherwise; for their Greece should take notice how far they were from fear of any other City. Hereupon they force was now fo great, that all fuch occaprepared on both fides very strongly, all fions did only ferve to encrease their hothat was needful to the War; wherein the Lacedamonians were Superiour, both in number and quality, being affifted by most of the Cities in Greece, and having the generalfavour, as men that pretended to let at liberty fuch as were oppressed: but the Athenian and are not eafily affembled.

582

ø. III.

The beginning of the Peloponnesian War.

He first and second years Expedition was very grievons to the Circums was very grievous to the City of Athens. For the Fields were wasted, the Ahad felt by Sea, they received at Folia Trees cut down, the Country people driven a very fore blow, that compelled them to to flye, with Wives, Children, and Cattel fue for peace. A Fleet of Athenian ships into the Town; whereby a most furious pe- bound for Corcyra, wasting in that passage, ftilence grew in the City, such as before they as their manner was, the coast of Laconia, had never felt, nor heard of. Hereunto was and all the half-Isle of Peloponnesus, was by added the revolt of the Mytilenians, in the contrary winds detained at Pylus, which is Isle of Lesbos, and the siege of Platea their a ragged Promontory, joyning to the Main, confederated City, which they durft not ad- by a strange neck of Land. Before it there venture to raise, besides some small over-lyes a small barren Island of less than two throws received. The Lacedamonians af miles compals, and within that a creek, fembling as great forces as they could raife which is a good harbour for ships, the force out of Peloponnesw, did in the beginning of of weather being born off by the head-Land Summer enter the Country of Attica, and and Isle. This Promontory the Athenians therein abide, until victuals began to fail, fortified, as well as in hafte they might; wasting and destroying all things round and what was wanting in their artificial forabout. The Governours of the Athenians tification, was supplied by the natural would not fuffer the people to iffue into the strength and site of the place. By holding field against them; for they knew the valour this piece of ground, and haven, they in reaof their Genemies: but used to send a Fleet son expected many advantages against their into Peloponnesus, which wasted as fast all enemies. For the Country adjoyning was the Sea-coast of their enemies, whilst they inhabited by the Messenians, who in ancient were making war in Attica. So the Pelo- times had held very strong and cruel war ponnessians being the stronger by Land, wan with sparta; and (though quite subdued) the Town of Platea, which wanted rescue; they were held in streight subjection; yet the Athenians likewise being more mighty was not the old hatred so extinguished, that by Sea, did subdue Myrilene which had re- by the near neighbourhood and affistance belled, but could not be succoured from of the Athenians, it might not be revived. Sparta. By these proceedings in that War, Furthermore it was thought, that many illthe Lacedemonians began to perceive how willers to the Lacedemonians, and as many * from the Islands that were subject unto that | stans thither in all haste out of Attica, which was the whilst afflicted. Wherefore they well fore-law, little fearing the grievous

Athenians did as far exceed them in all pro- began to fet their care to build a strong Navisions of mony, shipping, engines, and ab- vy, wherein they had little good success he folure power of command among their Sub- ing eafily vanquished by the Athenians, who jects; which they held, and afterward found both had more and better thips, and were of greater use in such need, than the willing so skilful in Sea-fights, that a few Vessels of readiness of friends, who soon grow weary, theirs durst undertake a great number of the Peloponnesians.

ø. IV.

Of the great loss which the Spartans received at Mong other Iosles which the Spartans unfit they were to deal with fuch enemies. of their bond-flaves as could escape from For after that Attica was throughly wasted, them, would repair to Pylus, and from thence it lay not greatly in their power to do any make daily incursions into Laconia, which offence equal to such harm as they them- was not far off: Or if other hopes failed, yet felves might, and did, receive. The Confe- would the benefit of this haven, lying almost derates began to let forward very flowly in in the mid-way between them and Corcyra, their Expeditions into Attica; perceiving make them able to furround all Peloponne well that Athens was plentifully relieved fus, and wafte it at their pleasure. The news with all necessaries, which came by the Sea of these doings at Pylus drew the Peloponne-Estate; and therefore these invaders took they had entred a few daies before with but small pleasure in beholding the Walls their whole Army: but now they brought of that mighty City, or in wasting a forfaken not only their Land-forces, but all their field, which was to them a pattern of the Navy to recover this piece, which how bad calamities with which their own Territory a neighbour it might prove in time, they CHAP. VIII. los at hand, which they there in few daies whilst with such reputation they might But felves aground.

Wine, and Flesh, should be daily carried into were ill-affected unto them. the Isle, but that no ships should pass into the Island secretly: That the Athenians should carry the Lacedamonian Embassadors to bring them back, at whose return the truce should end, which if in the mean time it were broken in any one point, should be held utterly void in all; That when the truce was expired the Athenians should restore the Peloponnesian ships, in as good case as they recei-

received. For when they in vain made a they found all contrary to their expectatigeneral affault on all fides, both by Sea and on: For infread of concluding upon even Land, finding that fmall Garrison which the terms, or desiring of meet recompence for Athenians had left, very resolute in the de- loss sustained, the Athenians demanded cerfence, they occupied the haven, placing four tain Cities to be restored to them, which had hundred and twenty choise men, all of them been taken from them by the Lacedamoni-Citizens of Sparta, in the Island before men- ans long before this War began, refusing tioned, at each end whereof is a chanel that likewise to continue the treaty of peace, unleads into the Port; but so narrow, that on- less the Spartans which were in the Isle, ly two ships in front could enter between the were first rendred unto them as prisoners. Ifle and Pylos ; likewise but seven or eight Thus were the Embassadors returned withthips could enter at once by the further cha- out effect; at which time the truce being nel, between the Island and the Main. Ha- ended, it was defired from the Athenian Capving thus taken order to flut up this new tains, that they should, according to their Town by Sea, they fent part of their Fleet Covenant, restore the ships which had been to fetch wood, and other stuff, wherewith to put into their hands. Whereto answer was fortifie round about, and block up the piece made, that the condition of the truce was. on all fides. But in the mean feafon the Athe- that if any one Article were broken, all fhould nian Fleet, hearing of their danger that were be held void; now (faid the Athenians) re left at Pylus, returned thither, and with have affaulted our Garrisons, and thereby great courage entring the haven, did break are we acquitted of our promise to restore and fink many of their enemies veffels; took the fhips. This and the like frivolous allefive, and so inforced the relidue to run them- gations which they made, were but meer Thifts; yet profit fo far overweighed honour, Now was the Town secure, and the spar- that better answer none could be got. Then tans abiding in the Island as good as lost. were the Lacedamonians driven to use many Wherefore the Magistrates were sent from hard means, for conveyance of victuals into Sparta to the Camp (as was their custom in the Isle; which finally was taken by force, great dangers) to advise what were best for and the men that were in it carried prisothe publick fafety; who when they did per- ners to Athens, where it was decreed that ceive that there was no other way to refcue when the Peloponnesians next invaded Attitheir Citizens out of the Isle, than by com- |ca, these prisoners should all be slain. Whepolition with their enemies, they agreed to ther fearing the death of these men, or withentreat with the Athenians about peace, ta- | held by the troubles, which (according to king truce in the mean while with the Cap- the Athenians hope) fell upon them, the Latains at Pylus. The conditions of the truce | cedemonians were fo far from wasting Attiwere, That the Lacedamonians should deli- | ca, that they suffered their own Country to verupall the ships which were in the Coast, be continually over-run, both by the Atheand that they should attempt nothing against | nians, who landed on all parts of their Coast, the Town, nor the athenians against the and by those which issued out of Pylus; Camp: That a certain quantity of Bread, which became the Rendevous of all that

ø. V.

Athens, there to treat of peace, and should How the Lacedæmonians hardly, and to their great disadvantage, obtained a Peacethat was not well kept.

"Herefore theyendeavoured greatly to obtain peace; which the Athenians would not hearken unto. For they were for ved them. The Embafiadors coming to puffed up with continuance of good fuccess, Athens, were of opinion, that as they them- that having fent a few bands of men into 81selves had begun the war, so might they end cilie, to hold up a faction there, and make it when they pleased. Wherefore they told what profit they might of the sicilians the Athenians how great an honour it was quarrels; when afterward they heard that that the Lacedamonians did sue to them for the differences in that Isle were taken away, peace, advising them to make an end of War, and their bands returned without either

CHAP. VIII.

gain or loss, they banished the Captains, as wherewith to maintain a Navy, could do if it had been meerly through their default, unto them, yea, as Masters of the Sea, to that the Isle of Sicilie was not conquered; weary them out, as in effect already they which (besides the longer distance) was in had done. As for the Confederates of power to offend others, or defend it felf, Sparta, they could now endure neither War no whit inferiour unto Feloponnessu. Yet nor peace; their daily travels, and many was this their over-weening much abated losses had so wearied and incensed them. shortly after by some disasters received, espe- Wherefore the Lacedamonians were glad cially in Thrace, where, in a battel which they to use the occasion, which the inclination of lost at Amphipolis, Cleon and Brasidas, Generals of the Athenian and Lacedamonian forces, were both flain; which two had most been adverfaries to the peace. As the Athenians by their losses were taught moderation; fo the Lacedamonians, who not only felt the like wounds, but through the great Navy which they had received at Pylus, were fain to proceed lamely in the War, against such as, through commodity of their good fleet, had all advantage that could be found in expedition, were fervently defirous to conclude the business, ere Fortune by any new favour fhould revive the infolence, which was at this time well mortified in their Enemies. Neither was it only a confideration of their present estate, that urged them to bring the treaty of peace to a good and fpeedy effect; but other dangers hanging over their heads, and ready to fall on them, which unless they compounded with the Athenians, they knew not how to avoid. The hands, but had been rendred unto their estate of Argos, which had antient enmity | Confederates, the Spartans found means to with them, was now after a truce of thirty give some satisfaction, by permitting the years well-nigh expired, ready to take the Athenians to retain others, which they had benefit of their present troubles, by joyning gotten in the War; as for the rest, they with those who alone found them work promised more than afterwards they could enough. Argos was a rich and strong City, | perform. The Cities which they had taken which though inferiour to Sparta in valour, into protection, could not endure to hear yet was not fo unwarlike, nor held fuch ill of being abandoned, neither would they by correspondence with the neighbouring any means yield themselves into the hands Estates, that the Lacedamonians could ever of their old Lords the Athenians, whom far prevail upon it, when they had little else they had offended by revolting, notwith-

this War had not been regarded. For it was terance in time to come. This dull perforthen thought that by wasting the Territory | mance of conditions on the side of the sparof Athens with fword and fire, the quarrel tans, made the Athenians become as backshould easily and in short time have been ward in doing those things which on their ended, whereby not only the Athenians part were required; fo that restoring only should have been brought to good order, but | the prisoners which they had, they deferred the Corinthians, and others, for whose sake the rest, untill such time as they might rethe War was undertaken, have been so firm- ceive the full satisfaction, according to the ly knit to the Lacedemonians, that they agreement. But before such time as these should for love of them have abandoned difficulties brake out into matter of open the Argives to their own fortunes. But now | quarrel, the Lacedamonians entred into a the vanity of those hopes appeared, in that more streight alliance with the Athenians, the Athenians abounding in ready mony, making a league offensive and defensive and means to raise more, were able to secure with them. Hereunto they were moved by themselves by a strong fleet, from any great | the backwardness of the Argives, who being their enemies did then afford, of making a final peace, which with much ado they procured, as feemed equal and eafie; but was indeed impossible to be performed. and therefore all their travel was little effe-

The restitution of prisoners and places taken being agreed upon, it fell out by lot, that the Lacedamonians should restore first. These had won more Towns upon the Continent from the Athenians, than the Athenians had from them; but what they had won, they had not won absolutely. For they had restored some Towns to such of their Allies, from whom the State of Athens had taken them; some, and those the most, they had fet at liberty (as reason required) which had opened their gates unto them as to their friends and deliverers, and not compelled them to break in as enemies. Now concerning the Towns which were not in their own franding whatfoever Articles were drawn, This was a thing that in the beginning of and concluded, for their fecurity, and betharm that the Peloponnesians, wanting (as they thought) likely to have sued for once compounded between Athens and fore Pylus, had rather chosen to live in capsparta, did shew themselves plainly unwilling to give ear to any fuch motion. Think- felf, sticking as a thorn in the foot of Lacoing therefore, that, by cutting from Argos niu, had bred fuch anguish in that Estate, as all hope of Athenian fuccour, they should utterly wearying the accustomed Spartan make fure work, the Spartans regarded not refolution, had made it fit down, and feek to the affections of other States, whom they refresh it self by dishonourable ease: then had either bound unto them by well-defer- did not only the Corinthians and Thebans ving in the late War, or found fo trouble- begin to conceive basely of those men which fome, that their enmity (if perhaps they durst were vertuous, though unfortunate; but let it appear) was little worse than friend- other less Cities joyning with these in the fhip. It bred great jealousie in all the Cities same opinion, did cast their eyes upon the of Greece, to perceive such a conjunction be- rich and great City of Argos, of whose abilitween two fo powerful Signiories: especial- ty to do much, they conceived a strong bely one clause threatning every one, that was lief, because of long time it had done noany thing apt to fear, with a fecret intent thing. Such is the base condition, which that might be harboured in their proud through foolish envy is become almost natuconceits, of subduing the whole Country, ral in the greater part of mankind. We curiand taking each what they could lay hold oufly fearch into their vices, in whom, had on. For, belides the other Articles, it was they kept fome diffance, we should have diagreed. That they might by mutual confent | feerned only the vertues; and comparing inadd new conditions, or alter the old at their jurioufly our best parts with their worst, are own pleasures. This impression wrought so justly plagued with a false opinion of that firongly in the Corinthians, Thebans, and good in strangers, which we know to be other ancient Confederates of Sparta, that wanting in our felves. the hate which they had born to the Atheused the advantage.

ø. VI.

Peace that was concluded.

peace at their hands, as foon as things were being overlaid by enemies, in the Island be-

The first that published their dislike of sparwians their professed enemies, was violently to were the Corintbians, at whose vehement thrown upon the Lacedamonians their un- entreaty (though moved rather by envy at jultfriends: whereby it came to pals, that the greatness of Athens daily encreasing) the they who lately had borne chief fway in Lacedamonians had entred into the present Greece, might have been abandoned to the War. But these Corinthians did only murmur diferetion of their enemies, as already in at the peace, alleging as grievances, that effect they were, had the enemies wifely fome Towns of theirs were left in the Athenians hands. The Mantineans, who during the time of War, had procured some part of the Arcadians to become their followers, and forfake their dependancy upon the State of Of the negotiations and practices held between sparta, did more freely and readily discover many States of Greece, by occasion of the themselves; fear of revenge to come, working more effectually than indignation at things already past. The Argives feeling the THE admiration wherein all Greece gale of prosperous fortune that began to fill held the valour of sparta as unrefist-their sails, prepared themselves to take as able, and able to make way through all much of it as they could stand under ; giving impediments, had been so excessive, that for that purpose unto twelve of their Citiwhen by some finister accidents, that City zens a full and absolute commission to make was compelled to take and feek peace, upon alliance between them and any free Cities of terms not founding very honourable, this Greece (Athens and Sparta excepted) withcommon opinion was not only abated, but out any further trouble of propounding (as happens ufually in things extreme) was every particular bufiness to the multitude. changed into much contempt. For it was ne- When the gates of Argos were fet thus open ver thought that any Lacedamonian would to all commers; the Mantineans began to have endured to lay down his weapons, and lead the way, and many Cities of Peloponneyield himself prisoner, nor that any missor- fus following them, entred into this new tune should have been so great, as should confederacy; some incited by private rehave drawn that City to relieve it felf other-wife than by force of Arms. But when once the land by force of Arms. But when once it had appeared that many of their Citizens, might arise unto them by these courses, the among whom were some of especial mark, Lacedamonians easily discerned; & therefore

CHAP. VIII.

fent Embassadours to stop the matter at Co- neans and Eleans; these did firmly betake rinth, where they well perceived that the themselves to the Argives, in whom they michief had been hatched. These Embassa- knew the same affection to be inveterate: dours found in the Corinthians a very rough others did only hate the peace concluded; disposition, with a gravity expressing the opi- and these would rather have followed the nion which they had conceived of their prefent advantage over Sparta. They had caufthe Argives in War than the Lacedemonians ed all Cities which had not entred yet into in peace. Of this number were the Corinthi. alliance with Argos, to fend their Agents to ans, who knowing that the Thebans were afthem, in whose presence they gave audience | feeted like unto themselves, dealt with them to the Lacedemonians; the purport of whose to enter into the society of the Argives, as Embassic was this: That the Corinthians, they had done: but the different forms of without breach of their oath, could not for Government, used in Thebes and Argos, causfake the alliance which they had long fince ed the Thebans to hold rather with Sparta, made with Sparta; and that Reason did as that was ruled by the principal men, than to well bind them to hold themselves content- incurr the danger of innovation, by joyning ed with the peace lately made, as Religion with fuch as committed the whole rule to enforced them to continue in their antient the multitude. confederacy; for a finuch as it had been agreed between the Spartans and their affociats, that | Corinthians began to bethink themselves of the confent of the greater part (which had their own danger, who had not fo much as yielded unto peace with Athens) should bind any truce with Athens, and yet were unprethe leffer number to perform what was con- pared for War. They fought therefore to cluded, if no Divine impediment withstood come to some temporary agreement with the them. Hereunto the Corinthians made an- Athenians, and hardly obtained it. For the fiver, that the Spartans had first begunto do Athenians, who had dealt with all Greece at them open wrong, in concluding the War one time, did not greatly care to come to wherein they had loft many places, without any appointment with one City that had provision of restitution; and that the very shewed against them more stomack than clause alleged by the Embassadours, did ac- force; but gave them to understand, that quit them from any necessity of subscribing they might be safe enough from them, if they to the late Peace, forafmuch as they had would claim the benefit of that alliance, fworn unto those people whom they perfinaded to rebel against Athens, that they and her dependants ; yet finally they grantwould never abandon them, nor willingly fuffer them to fall again into the tyrannous to acknowledge themselves dependants of hands of the Athenians. Wherefore they held Sparta) the truce that they defined; but themselves bound both in Reason and Religion to use all means of upholding those, whom by common consent they had taken into protection; for that an oath was no less one should not make peace nor War withto be accounted a Divine impediment, than out the other. were pestilence, tempest, or any the like accident, hindring the performance of things clearly be seen the great advantage which undertaken. As for the alliance with Argos, absolute Lords have, as well in Peace as in they faid that they would do as they should War, over such as are served by voluntaries. find cause. Having dismissed the Embassadors | We shall hardly find any Signiory, that hath with this answer, they made haste to joyn been so constantly followed as sparta was or feared the Lacedemonians, as the Manti-

586

Spartans than the Argives in War, yet rather

This business having ill succeeded, the which Athens had lately made with Sparta ed unto these Corinthians (which were loth into private confederacy they would not admit them, being an article of the league between them and the Spartans, That the

Herein, as in many other passages, may themselves with Argor, and caused other by so many States, and some of them little States to do the like; so that Sparta and inferiour to it self, being all as free: whereas Athens were in a manner left to themselves, contrariwise, the Athenians had lately, and the Thebans and Megarians being also upon by compulsive means gotten their Dominithe point to have entred into this new confe- on, wherein they demeaned themselves as deracy. But as the affections were divers Tyrants. But in performance of conditiwhich caused this halty confluence of sud- ons agreed upon, the Athenians were able denfriends to Argor, it so likewise came to to make their words good by excluding any pals that the friendship it self, such as it was, State out of their Confederacy, and giving had much diverfity both of fincerity and of up fuch places as were agreed upon of continuance. For fone there were that hated which the Lacedemonians could do neither Athens.

the Athenians. This was fought to have against all enemies. been excused by the Lacedamonian Embasfent them.

rendred to them by Covenant, especially tween their Estates and the Athenians. Pylus that had so forely troubled them. Alcisome honourable employment ; used all it; but to keep the love of the Athenians, the

their old Allies had gotten by their means in | means to fet the quarrel on foot, whilst the the late War, could not be restored with- Athenians had yet both advantage enough, out their consent which had them in pre- as not having rendred ought fave their prifent possession; and particularly the Town soners, and pretence enough to use that adof Panacte, which the Thebans held, could by vantage of breaking the peace, by reason that no means be obtained from them by the La- the Lacedamonians (though indeed against redemonians (who earnestly desired it, that their wills) had broken all Covenants with by restitution thereof unto the Athenians them. Now the State of Athens had fully deas earneftly demanding it, themselves might termined to retain Pylus, and to perform norecover Pylus) unless that they would agree thing that the Lacedamonians thould, and to make a private alliance with Thebes; might require, untill they had first, without which thereupon they were constrained any longer halting, fulfilled all Articles to do, though knowing it to be contrary whereto they were bound, even to the utto the last agreement between them and most point. This was enough to make them fweat, who having already done the most The Lacedamonians having broken one that they could, had as yet got nothing in article of the league made between them & recompence, except the delivery of their the Athenians, that by fo doing they might | Citizens, which were prisoners. But Alcibienable themselves to the performance of an- | ades wishing a speedy beginning of open war, other were shamefully disappointed of their fent privily to the Argives, and gave them to hopes by the Thebans, who did not give up understand how fitly the time served for the Town of Panacte, till first they had utter- them to associate themselves with Athens, ly demolished it, and made it of no worth to which was enough to give them fecurity

The Argives, upon the first confluence of fadors, who coming to Athens (whither they many Estates unto their society, had embrahad fent home all prisoners that had been | ced great hopes of working wonders, as if detained at Thebes') hoping with gentle they should have had the conduct of all words to falve the matter; faying, That from Greece against the Athenians, robbing Sparta henceforth no enemy of Athens thould neftle of that honour, as having ill used it, and in Panacle, for it was destroyed. But these thereby leaving their old enemies in case of Embassadours had not to deal with tame much contempt and disability. But these sudfools. For the Athenians told them in den apprehenfions of vain joy, were suddenplain terms, That of three principal con- ly changed into as vain fear; which ill agreed ditions agreed upon in their late League, with the great opinion that had lately been they had not performed any one ; but used | conceived of Argos. For when the Thebans fuch base conclusions as stood not with their | had refused their alliance; when the Corinhonour: having made private alliance with thians had fought fecurity from Athens; and the Thebans; having destroyed a Town when a false rumour was noised abroad, that they should have restored; and not Athens, Thebes and Sparta, were come to a full having forced their dependants by War, agreement upon all points of difference 5 to make good the Covenants of the late then began the Argives to let fall their crefts, concluded peace. Hereupon they dismissed and sue for peace unto the Lacedamonians, the Embaliadours with rough words, mean- who needing it as much as they, or more, yet ing with as rough deeds to anger those that | held their gravity, and were not over-hasty to accept it. At this time, and in this pertur-There were at that time both in Athens and | bation, the mellage of Alcibiades came very Sparta, many that were ill-contented with welcome to the Argives, which were not the peace: among whom were the Ephori, now consulting how to become the chief of chosen for that year, in Sparta; & Alcibiades, all others, but how to fave themselves. a powerful young Gentleman in Athens. But | Wherefore they fent away presently to the Ephori, though defiring to renew the Athens, their own Embaliadours, accompa-War, yet wished that first they might get nied with the Mantineans and Eleans, to from the Athenians as much as was to be make a league offensive and defensive be-

Of this business the Lacedamonians knew biades, whose Nobility, riches, and favour not what to think: for well they saw, that with the people, made him defire War, as fuch a combination tended to their great the mean whereby himself might procure hurt, and therefore were desirous to prevent CHAP. VIII

done, than ftood with their honour or pro- of the Embassadours, and the strong perfit; others held it the wifest way, having done swassions of Aleibiades, that little wanted of fo much, not to stick upon a little more, but concluding the league with Argos. Yet for rather by giving full fatisfaction, to retain the prefent fo far did Nicias, an honourable the friendship of that State, which was more | Citizen, and great friend to the peace, preto be valued than all the rest of Greece. This vail with them, that the business was put off. refolution prevailing, they fent away fuch of until he himfelf, with other Embaffatheir Citizens as were best affected to the dours, might fetch a better answer from peace, who coming to Athens, with full com- | Sparta. mission to make an end of all controversies, did earnestly labour in the Council-house, poor a trick of Alcibiades was able to carry to make the truth of things appear, faying; a matter of fo great importance, when the That their Confederacy with the Thebans | Spartan Emballadours might have cast the had tended to none other end than the re- load upon his own shoulders, by discovering covery of Panathe: concerning which Town, the truth: But the gravity which was ufuor any other business, that it much grieved ally found in the Lacedemonians, hindred the Lacedamonians, to fee things fall out in them (perhaps) from playing their game fuch wife as might give to the Athenians handsomely against so nimble a wit; and cause of displeasure; but that all should be they might well have been thought untrusty done which in reason might be required for men, had they professed themselves such as making matters even between them; to would fay and un-fay for their most advanwhich purpose they shewed that themselves | tage. had abiolute commission. Wherefore they defired that Pylus might be reftored to them, and especially for the present, that the negotiation with the Argives might be called afide. Favourable audience was given to this proposition, the rather, because they which | Panacte, and should immediately renounce promifed amends, had power to make their | their Alliance made with the Thebans; letting words good. But all this fair likelihood of them understand, that otherwise the Athegood agreement was dasht on the sudden, by | nians, without further delay, would enter the practile of Alcibiades, who, secretly dea- into confederacy with the Argives, and ling with the Lacedamonian Emballadors, their adherents. The Ephori at Sparla had perswaded them well of his friendship to- no mind to forsake the Thebans, assured wards their City, and advised them to take | friends to their State; but wrought so hard, all care that their absolute power to con- that the anger of the Athenians was suffered clude what they pleased in the name of spar- to break out what way it could, which to ta, might not be known to the Commonalty mitigate, they would do no more, than of Athens, left the incelent multitude should only (at the request of Nicias their honourthereupon grow peremptory and yield to able friend, who would not feem to have efnothing, unless they could draw them to un- | fected nothing) fwear a-new to keep the reasonable conditions. The Embassadours Articles of the league between him and believed him, and fashioned their tale in the athens. Immediately therefore upon return affembly of the people, as he had advised of the Embassadors, a new league was made them. Hereupon the same Alcibiades taking between the Athenians, Argives, Mantinapresently the advantage, which their double ans, and Eleans, with very ample provision dealing afforded, inveighed openly against for holding the same common friends and them, as men of no fincerity, that were come enemies; wherein, though the Lacedamoto Athens for no other purpose, than to hin- nians were passed over with silence, yet was der the people from strengthning them- it manifest, that the whole intent of this conselves with friends, meaning to draw the sederacy did bend it self chiefly against Argives and their Adherents to their own them, as in short while after was proved by alliance, as (contrary to their own Oath) effect. already they had the Thebans. The people of Athens, whom a pleafing errand would ill cafe, who having refored all that they very hardly have fatisfied, or brought into could unto the Athenians, and procured a good opinion of the Lacedemonians, others to do the like, had themselves reco-(whose honest meanings had so ill been se- vered nothing of their own (prisoners ex-

new Ephori thought that more was already fo much incenfed with the double dealing

It may also seem a great wonder, how so

Nicias and his Companions had a fowre message to deliver at sparta, being peremptorily to require performance of all conditions, and among the rest, that the Lacedamonians should take the pains to rebuild.

At this time the Lacedamonians were in conded, with good performance) were now cepted for default of restoring all that they should. But that which did most of all dif- ans wanting matter of quarrel, and the Laable them, was the loss of reputation, which cedemonians growing weary, they began to they had not more impaired in thellate War be quiet; retaining still that enmity in their by misfortunes, than in fundry passages be- hearts, which they had sufficiently discovertween them and the Athenians: to procure ed in effects, though not yet breaking out and keep whose Amity, they had left sun- into terms of open War. dry of their own friends to thift for themfelves. Contrariwife, the Athenians by the treaty of peace, had recovered the most part of that which they loft in War; all The Athenians fending two Fleets to fack Sytheir gettings they had retained; and were strengthened by the access of new Confederates.

ø. VII.

How the Peace between Athens and Sparta was ill kept, though not openly broken.

of their feveral friends.

By these occasions the Corinthians, Bwotians, Phocians, Locrians, and other people of ponnesians with mony. Greece, began a-new to range themselves under the Lacedamonians, and follow their lia such, as without help from Athens, could enfigns. One victory which the Lacedamo-Battel, near to Mantinea, against the Argive side, helped well to repair their decayceeded fo far, as to renounce the Amity of out. the Athenians in express words, and forced fpace of time the multirude prevailing, reto the Athenians as closely as before.

Befides these uproars in Peloponnesus, many affaies were made to raife up troubles in all (who feeking revenge upon his own Citiparts of Greece, and likewife in Macedon, to | zens, was fled unto them) fortifie the Town the Athenians; whose forces and readiness of Decelea, which was near to Athens, whence for execution, prevented fome things, re- they ceased not with daily excursions to venged other, and requited all with some harry all the Country round about, and prosperous attempts. Finally, the Atheni- sometimes give alarm unto the City it self.

ø. VIII.

racuse, are put to flight, and utterly discomcomfited.

Uring this intermission of open War, the Athenians re-entertained their hopes of subduing sicil; whither they fent a Fleet fo mighty, as never was fet forth by Greece in any Age before or after,

This Fleet was very well manned, and T was not long ere the Argives and their furnished with all necessaries to so great an fellows had found business wherewith to expedition. All which came to nought; partfet the Athenians on work, and make use of ly by the factions in Athens, whence Alcibithis conjunction. For, prefuming upon the ades, Author of that voyage, and one of the ftrength of their fide, they began to meddle Generals of their Fleet, was driven to banish with the Epidaurians, whom it concerned himself, for fear of such judgement, as else the State of Sparta to defend. So, many acts he was like to have undergone among the of hostility were committed, wherein Athens incensed people; partly by the invasion and Sparta did (as principals) infest each the which the Lacedamonians made upon Astica. other, but came in collaterally, as to the aid | whilft the forces of that State were fo far from home. Hereunto was added the aid of the King of Persia, who supplied the Pelo-

Neither was the fuccess of things in Sicigive any likelihood of a good end in that nians obtained by their meer valour in a fet | War. For, although in the beginning, the enterprize had so well succeeded, that they belieged syracuse, the chief City of all the ed reputation, though otherwise it yielded Island, and one of the fairest Towns which them no great profit. The civil diffention the Greeks inhabited, obtaining the better in ariling fhortly after within Argos it felf, be- | fundry Battels by Land and Sea ; yet when tween the principal Citizens, and the Com- the Town was relieved with strong aid from mons, had almost thrown down the whole Peloponnesus, it came to pass that the Atheframe of the now combination. For the nians were put to the worse on all sides, in chief Citizens getting the upper hand, made | fuch wife, that their Fleet was shut up into a league with sparta, wherein they pro- the haven of syracuse, and could not issue

As the Athenian affairs went very ill in the Mantineans to the like. But in short | Sicil, so did they at home stand upon their terms; for that the Lacedamonians, who had versed all this, and having chased away been formerly accustomed to make wearitheir ambitious Nobility, applied themselves some yearly journys into Attiea, which having pillaged and forraged, they returned home; did now by counfel of Alcibiades of the Athenians was very ftrange; who lea- rance of his well-informed conscience, raving at their backs, & at their own doors, an ther than by the malicious report and cenenemy little less mighty than themselves, did sure of others) yet it may be excused; since he yet fend forth another Fleet into sicil, to had before his eyes the injustice of his peoinvade a people no less puissant, which had ple, and had well understood that a wicked never offended them.

590

makes foolish counsel seem wifer than it whereby oppression beginning upon one, is was; which came to pass many times among extended as warrantable upon all. Therethe Athenians, whole vain Conceits Pallas fore his fear of wrongful condemnation was was said to turn unto the best. But where such, as a constant man could not easily have unfound advice, finding bad proof, is obsti- over-mastered; but when afterwards the nately purfued, neither Pallas nor Fortune Army, having no other expectation of fafecan be justly blamed for a miserable issue. ty than the faint hope of a secret slight, he This fecond Fleet of the Athenians, which was so terrified with an Eclipse of the better might have ferved to convey home Moon, happening when they were about to the former that was defeated, after some dif-lodge, that he would not confent to have attempts made to fmall purpose against the the Camp break up till seven and twenty Syracufans, was finally (together with the daies were past. His timorousness was even other part of the Navy, which was there be- as foolish and ridiculous, as the issue of it fore) quite vanquished, and barr'd up into was lamentable. For he should not have the haven of syracuse, whereby the Camp of thought that the power of the Heavens and the Athenians, utterly deprived of all benefit by Sea, either for succour or departure, his Athenians, or might portend less with was driven to break up, and fly away by the flothful, than to fuch as did their best. Land, in which flight they were over-taken, Neither do I think that any Aftrologers can routed, and quite overthrown, in such wise alledge this Eclipse, as either a cause or that fearce any man escaped.

Athenians, who had wickedly condemned application, turn it to their own confusion. into exile sophocles and Pthiodorus Generals, Had C. Caffins the Roman, he who flew Juformerly fent into that Ifle, pretending that ling Cafar, imitated this superstition of Nithey had taken mony for making peace in cias, he had furely found the same fortune in sicil, whereas indeed there was not any a case very like. But when, he retyring, the means or possibility to have made War. broken remainder of Crassius his Army, defea-Hereby it came to pass, that Nicias, who had | ted by the Parthian Archers, was advised, the chief command in this unhappy enter- upon fuch an accident as this, to continue prize, did rather chuse to hazard the ruin of where he then was, till the Sun were past his Country by the loss of that Army, where- the fign of scorpio; he made answer, that he in confifted little less than all the power of stood not in such fear of scorpio, as of sagit-Athens; than to adventure his own estate, tarius. So adventuring rather to abide the his life, and his honour, upon the tongues of | frowning of the Heavens, than the nearer shameless accusers, and the sentence of danger of Enemies upon Earth, he made dom and necessity required it. For (faid fair example to that good rule, he) they shall give sentence upon us, who know not the reason of our doings, nor would give ear to any that would fleak in our behalf, but altogether hearken to suspicious and vain rumours that shall be brought against us yeathese our fouldiers, who now are so desirous to return the Governours of understanding, when he in safety, will in our danger be well contented to frame their tales to the pleasure of the lewd wickedness of unjust men is the ready mean and insolent multitude.

This resolution of Nicias, though it cannot be commended (for it is the part of an honest and valiant man, to do what reason willeth, not what opinion expecteth, and to

In these extremities, the perverse obstinacy | measure honour or dishonour by the affufentence is infinitely worse than a wicked It often happens, that a prosperous event fact, as being held a president and pattern prognostication of that Armies destruction, This mischief well deserved, sell upon the otherwise than as the folly of men did, by Judges before his tryal refolved to condemn fuch a fafe and honourable retrait, as did him, by retiring from Syracuse, when wis both shew his noble resolution, and give a

--- Sapiens Dominabitur aftris.

Thus we see that God, who ordinarily works by a concatenation of means, deprives intends evil to the Multitude; and that the to weaken the virtue of those who might have done them good.

g. IX.

CHAP. VIII.

fell, after the great loss of the Fleet and Army in Sicilia.

the Athenian Dominion, and may be well accounted a very little less calamity to that Estate, than was the subversion of the Athens, being wearied with the peoples infolency, took upon them to change the form of that Estate, and bring the Government into the hands of a few. To which purpose, abroad, they caused them to set up the form the supplies which the Persian King had pro- nians, desiring to compound in as good

mised to the Lacedamonians, were by Tiffaphernes his Lieutenant, made unprofitable, of the troubles whereinto the State of Athens through the flow and bad performance, Alcibiades had at the first been very well entertained in Sparta, whilst his service done unto that State, was not grown to be the ob-He loss of this Army was the ruine of ject of envy. But when it appeared that in Counsel and good performance he so far excelled all the Lacedamonians, that all their good fuccess was ascribed to his wit and vawalls, when the City about feven years af- lour, then were all the principal Citizens ter was taken by Lylander. For now began weary of his virtue; especially Agis one of the subjects of the Athenian Estate to rebel: their Kings, whose wife had so far yielded of whom, some they reduced under their herself to the love of this Athenian, that obedience, others held out; fome for fear among her inward friends the could not forof greater inconvenience were fet at liberty, bear to call her young child by his name. promifing only to be their good friends, as Hereupon order was taken, that Alcibiaformerly they had been their Subjects; des should be killed out of the way. But he others having a kind of liberty offered by discovering the Spartan treachery, conveythe Athenians, were not therewith conten- ed himself unto Tissaphernes, whom he so ted, but obtained a true and perfect liberty | bewitched with his great beauty, sweet conby force. Among these troubles it fell out versation, and sound wit, that he soon bevery unseasonably, that the principal men of came the Master of that barbarous Viceroys affections, who had free power to difpose the great Kings Treasures and Forces in those parts. Then began he to advise Tissaphernes, not fo far forth to affift the Lacedamoniconspiring with the Captains which were ans, that they should quite overthrow the State of Athens, but rather to help the weaof an Aristocracy in the Towns of their kerside, and let them one consume another, Confederates; and in the mean time, fome whereby all flould fall at length into the that were most likely to withstand this In- hands of the Persian. By this counsel he made novation, being flain at Athens, the Commo- way to other practices, wherein by strength nalty were so dismaid, that none durst speak of his reputation (as the only Favourite of against the Conspirators, whose number they so great a Potentate) he played his own knew not, but every man was afraid of his neighbour, left he ihould be a member of the league. In this general fear the Majeffy but not by the Citizens (who then were of athers was usurped by four hundred oppressed by the four hundred) he laboured men, who observing in shew the ancient greatly to reconcile the Souldiers to the form of proceeding, did cause all matters to Governours; or at least to divert their heat be propounded unto the people, and con- another way, and turn it upon the common cluded upon by the greater part of voices: Enemy, Some of the four hundred approved but the things propounded were only fuch his motion, as being weary of the tyranny as were first allowed in private among whereofthey were partakers, partly because themselves; neither had the Commonalty they saw it could not long endure, and partany other liberty, than only to approve and ly for that themselves, being less regarded by give consent: for whosoever prefumed any the rest of their companions, than stood further, was quickly dispatched out of the with their good liking, sought to acquit way, and no enquiry made of the murther. themselves of it as honestly as they might. By these means were many Decrees made, But the most of that Faction laboured to all tending to the establishment of this new obtain peace of the Lacedamonians, desiring authority, which nevertheless endured not | chiefly to maintain both their own authorilong. For the Fleet and Army which then ty, and the greatness of their City, if they was in the Isle of samos, did altogether de- might: but if this could not be, they did test these dealings of the four hundred usur- rather wish to preserve their own power, or pers, and held them as Enemies; where- fafety at least, than the good Estate of the upon they revoked Alcibiades out of banish- Common-wealth. Therefore they made ment, and by his affiftance procured that fundry overtures of peace to the Lacedamoø. X.

terms as they might, and affirming that they were fitter to be trusted, than the wavering multitude; especially considering that the City of Sparta was governed by an Aristocracy, to which form they had now reduced Athens. All these passages between the four hundred (or the most and chief of them) and the Lacedemonians, were kept as fecret as might be. For the City of Athens, hoping, without any great cause, to repair their losfes, was not inclined to make composition; were about the same time overthrown at from which upon juster ground the Enemy was much more averse, trusting well that which had remained at Samos, to which Althe discord of the Athenians (not unknown cibiades afterwards joyning such forces as abroad) might yield fome fair opportunity he could raife, obtained many Victories. to the destruction of it self, which in esfect (though not then prefently) came to pass. And upon this hope King Agis did fometimes bring his forces from Decelea to Athens, where doing no good, he received fome fmall loffes. Likewife the Navy of Feloponnesus made shew of attempting the City, but feeing no likelihood of fuccess, they tified chrysopolis. Hereupon Letters were bent their course from thence to other pla- sent to sparta, which the Athenians interces, where they obtained Victories, which cepting, found to contain the diffres of the in the better fortune of the Athenians might Army, in these few words: All is lost; Minmore lightly have been regarded, than in darus is flain; the Souldiers want viduals; this their decayed estate. Yet it seems, without any disparagement to their wisdom, they should rather have forborn to present unto the Lacedemonians in fight by Land at Chalthe City, or to the Countries near adjoyning, any terrour of the War. For the dissention within the walls might foon have done more good than could be received from the Fleet or Army without, which indeed gave home with very great welcome, and was occasion to fet the Citizens at unity, though made High Admiral of all the Navy. it lasted not very long. The four hundred, by means of these troubles, were fain to for it was taken from him, and he driven to refign their authority, which they could banish himself again, only because his Lieunot now hold, when the people, having ta- tenant, contrary to the express command ken arms to repel forein Enemies, would of Albiciades, fighting with the enemies in not lay them down, till they had freed his absence, had lost a great part of the themselves from such as oppressed the State Fleet. at home. Yet was not this alteration of Government a full restitution of the soverein to the Athenians more harmful than the command unto the people, or whole body | first; and the loss which thereupon they reof the City, but only to five thousand; ceived, was (though more heavy to them, which company the four hundred (when yet) less to be pitied of others, than that their authority began) had pretended to which enfued upon his former exile. For, take unto them as affiftants: herein feem- whereas at the first, he had sought revenge ing to do little wrong or none to the Com- upon his own City; now, as inured to admonalty, who feldom affembled in greater verfity, he rather pitied their fury, who in number. But now when the highest power time of such danger, had cast out him that wascome indeed into the hands of fo many, should have repaired their weak estate, it was soon agreed, that Alcibiades and his than sought by procuring or beholding the companions flould be recalled from exile, calamity of his people, to comfort himfelf and that the Army at Samos should be re- after injury received. Before they, who were quested to undertake the Government: instituted in the place of Alcibiades, arrived to the Souldiers defire.

592

How Alcibiades won many important victor ries for the Athenians; was recalled from exile; made their General, and again de-

"His establishment of things in the City, was accompanied with fome good fuccels in the Wars. For the Lacedamonians Sea, in a great Battel, by the Athenian Fleet. Before the Town of Abydus, his arrival with eighteen ships, gave the honour of a great Battel to the Athenians; he overthrew and utterly destroyed the Fleet of the Lacedamonians, commanded by Mindarus 3 took the Towns of Cyzicus and Perinthus, made the Selymbrians ranfome their City, and forme know not what to do.

Shortly after this, Alcibiades overthrew cedon,took Selymbria, besieged and won Byzantium, now called Constantinople, which even in those daies was a goodly, rich, and very ftrong City. Hereupon he returned

But this his honour continued not long,

The fecond banishment of Alcibiades, was which was forthwith reformed according at the Fleet, he presented Battel to Lylander the Lacedamonian Admiral, who was not CHAP. VIII. fo confident upon his former Victory, as to wife and virtuous Philosopher, whose voice indertake Alcibiades himfelf, bringing thips in this judgment was not regarded. Six of more in number (notwithstanding the for- them were put to death, of whom one had more holfs of fifteen) than his enemies had, hardly escaped drowning, and was with and better ordered than they had been un- much ado relieved by other Vessels in the der his Lieutenant. But when the Decree from: but the Captains which were absent he had built a Castle.

ø. X I.

The Battel of Arginuse, and condemnation of the victorious Athenian Captains by the people.

A Fter this time, the Athenians receiving many losses and discomfitures, were driven to fly into the Haven of Mytelene, where they were straitly befieged both by Land and Sea. For the raifing of this fiege, necessity inforced them to man all their ves-fels, and to put the uttermost of their forces into the hazard of one Battel. This Battel was fought at Arginusa, where Callicratidas,

Admiral of the Lacedamonians, losing the honour of the day, preferved his own reputation, by dying valiantly in the fight. It might well have been expected, that the ten over the Athenian Fleet, should for that good received great honour of their Citizens. But contrariwife, they were for hwith called being drowned. Hereto the Captains readily made a very just answer, That they pur-fuing the Victory, had left part of the Fleet, wrackt; which if it were not well accom-

of the people was published in the Navy, escaped; for when the sury of the people then did Alcibiades withdraw himself to a was over-past, this judgment was reversed, Town upon Hellespont, called Bizanthe, where and the accusers called into question for having deceived and perverted the Citizens. Thus the Athenians went about to free themselves from the infamy of injustice, but the divine Justice was not a-fleep, nor would be fo deluded.

ø. XII.

The Battel at Ægos-Potamos, wherein the whole State of Athens was ruined; with the end of the Peloponnesian War.

He Pelopornesian Fleet under Lylander, the year next following, having scowred the Egean Seas, entred Hellespont, where (landing fouldiers) it befieged and took the Town of Lampfacus. Hereupon all the Navy of Athens, being an hundred and fourscore sail; made thither in haste: but finding Lampfacus taken before their coming, they put in at seftos, where having re-Captains, who joyntly had command in chief | freshed themselves, they sailed to the River called #gos-Potamos, which is (as we might daies service, and so happy a Victory, have name it) Goats-Brook, or the River of the Goat, being on the Continent opposite to Lampfacus: and there they cast Anchors, home, and accused, as if wilfully they had not one whole league off from Lylander, who fuffered many of the Citizens, whole ships rode at Lampfacus in the harbor. The next day after their arrival, they presented fight were broken and funk, to be cast away, when by appointing some Vessels to take unto the Peloponnesians, who refused it, themup, they might have faved them from whereupon the Athenians returned again to Egos-Potamos; and thus they continued five daies, braving every day the Enemy, and returning to their own harbour when it drew towards evening. under sufficient men, to save those that were

The Castle of Alcibiades was not far from plished, it was, because a tempest arising the Navy, and his power in those places was about the end of the fight, had hindred the | fuch as might have greatly availed his performance of that, and other their intend- | Country-men, if they could have made use ments. This excuse availed not: For a lewd of it. For he had waged mercenaries, and fellow was brought forth, who faid, That making war in his own name upon some he himself escaping in a Meal-tub, had been people of the Thracians, had gathered much intreated by those who were in peril of wealth, and obtained much reputation drowning, to defire of the people revenge of among them. He perceiving the diforderly their deaths upon the Captains. It was very course of the Athenian Commanders, restrange, that upon such an accusation main- paired unto them, and shewed what great tained with fo flender evidence, men that inconvenience might grow, if they did not had well deserved of their Country should soon fore-see and prevent it. For they lay be overthrown. But their enemies had so in a rode subject to every weather; neither incenfed the rascal multitude, that no man near enough to any Town where they durst absolve them, save only Socrates the might furnish themselves with necessaries, nor fo far off as had been more expedient, and fuch of the Souldiers as came into the seftos was the next Market-town; thither rescue, cut in pieces. Thus was the war which both Souldiers and Mariners reforted, flock- had lafted feven and twenty years, with vaing away from the Navy every day, as foon riable fuccess, concluded in one hour, and the as they were returned from braving the glory of Athens in such wise eclipsed that she Enemy. Therefore Alcibiades willed them never afterward shone in her perfect light. either to lye at seftor, which was not far Immediately upon this Victory, Lylanoff, or at least to consider how near their der, having taken such Towns as readily Enemy was, whose fear proceeded rather did yield upon the first fame of his exploit, from obedience to their General, than from fet fail for Athens, and joyning his forces any cowardife. This admonition was fo far with those of Agis and Paulanias, Kings of despised, that some of the Commanders wil- sparta, summoned the City; which finding led him to meddle with his own matters, too frubborn to yield, and too frong to and to remember that his authority was out be won on the fudden, he put forth again of date. Had it not been for these oppro- to Sea; and rather by terrour than violence. brious words, he could (as he told his fami- compelling all the Islands, and such Towns liars) have compelled the Lacedamonians, of the Ionians as had formerly held of the either to fight upon unequal terms, or utter- Athenians, to submit themselves to Sparta, ly to quit their Fleet. And like enough it he did thereby cut off all provision of victure was that he might so have done by trans- als, and other necessaries, from the City. porting the light-armed Thracians, his con- and inforced the people by meer famine to federates, and others his followers, over the yield to these conditions; That the long Streights, who affaulting the Feloponnesians walls, leading from the Town to the Port, by Land, would either have compelled them should be thrown down; That all Cities to put to Sea, or else to leave their ships to subject to their Estate, should be set at lithe mercy of the Athenians. But finding their berty; That the Athenians should be Maacceptance of his good counsel no better sters only of their own Territories, and the than hath been rehearfed, he left them to fields adjoyning to their Town; And that he did prognosticate. by the advantage of his Haven, was not did, and follow the Lacedamonians as Leacareless in looking into the demeanour of ders in the wars. the Athenians. When they departed, his manner was, to fend forth some of his swiftest walls were thrown down with great rejoy-Vessels after them, who observing their do- cing of those who had born di pleasure to ings, related unto him what they had feen. Athens; and not without fome consultation Therefore understanding in what careless of destroying the City, and laying waste the fashion they romed up and down the Coun-land about it. Which advice, although it was try; he kept all his men a board after their not entertained, yet were thirty Goverdeparture: and the fifth day gave especial nours, or rather cruel Tyrants, appointed charge to his Scouts, that when they percei- over the people, who recompenced their ved the Athenians dif-imbarking, as their former infolencie and injustice over their custom was, and walking towards sesters, Captains, by oppressing them with all base they should forthwith return, and hang up and intolerable flavery. a brazen shield in the Prow, as a token for The only small hope then remaining to him to weigh Anchor.

594

Lysander being in a readiness, made all speed ruined. But the Thirty Tyrants perceiving that strength of Oars could give, to Agos- this, advertised the Lacedamonians there-Potamos, where he found very few of his of, who contrived, and (as now domineerenemies a-board their ships, nor many near ing in every quarter) soon effected his sudthem, and all in great confusion upon the den death. news of his approach.

which the Athenians then shewed, was in the putation and great power, which therein escape of eight or nine ships, which knowing they had obtained, grew very odious to how much that loss imported, gave over Greece, and by combination of many Cities Athens as desperate, & made a long flight in- against them, were dispossessed of their high their fortune; which how evil it would be, they should keep no more than twelveships; That they should hold as Friends or Ene-Lyfander all this while defending himself mies, the same, whom the Lacedamonians

These Articles being agreed upon, the

the Athenians, was, that Alcibiades might The Scouts performed their charge, and perhaps repair what their own folly had Such end had the Peloponnesian war. After Infomuch that the greatest industry which the Lacedamonians abusing the reto the Isle of Cyprus; all the rest were taken, authority, even in that very age in which focunterpoize the ftronger, that no one Mafters.

they had subdued Athens. The greatest foil City could extend the limits of her jurisdithey mad took, was of the Thebans led by Ction fo far as might make her terrible to that they wonder whomis Philip of Macedon, her neighbours. And thus all parts of the Epamnonum, and an parts of the Father to Alexander the Great, had the best Country remained rather evenly ballanced. of his education. By these Thebans, the City than well agreeing, till such time as Philip, of sparta (befides other great loiles recei- and after him Alexander, Kings of Macedon. or a partie of being ta- (whose fore-fathers had been dependants, yed) was fundry times in danger of being taven was taken a term at the ven and followers, year almost meer Vassals to hans came finally to nothing; for the several the Estates of Athens and Sparta) found Fitates and Signiories of Greece, were grown means, by making use of their factions, to fo jealous one of anothers greatness, that bring them all into servitude, from which the Lacedemonians, Athenians, Argives, and they never could be free; till the Ro-Thebans, which were the mightieft, affocia-ting themselves with the weaker party, did berty, did themselves indeed become their

CHAP. IX.

Of matters concurring with the Peloponnelian War, or shortly following it.

6. I.

How the affairs of Persia stood in those times.

Uring the times of this Peloponnesian Darius having flain his Brother, held the War, and those other less Expedi- Empire nineteen years. Amyrtaus of Sais tions foregoing it, Artanerxes Lon- an Egyptian, rebelled against him, and having gimanus, having peaceably enjoyed a long partly flain, partly chased out of the Land reign over the Persians, left it by his death the Persian Garrisons, allied himself so firmeither to Darius, who was called Darius ly with the Greeks, that by their aid he Nothus, or the Bastard, whom the Greek Hi- | maintained the Kingdom, and delivered it storians (lightly passing over Xerxes the se- over to his posterity, who (notwithstandcond, and sogdianus, as Usurpers, and for ing the fury of their civil Wars) maintained theirshort reign little to be regarded) place it against the Persian, all the daies of this next unto them, or to Xerxes the second; Darius, and of his Son Artaxerxes Mnemon who, and his Brother sogdianus after him Likewise Amorges, a subject of his own, and (seeming to have been the Sons of Hester) of the Royal blood, being Lieutenant of held the Kingdom but one year between caria, rebelled against him; confederating them, the younger succeeding his elder himself with the Athenians. But the great Brother. It is not my purpose (as I have calamity, before spoken of, which fell upon faid before) to pursue the History of the the Athenians in Sicil, having put new life Persians from henceforth, by rehearfal of all into the Spartans, and given courage to the the particulars, otherwise than as they shall | Islanders and others, subject to the State of be incident to the affairs of Greece. It may Athens, to shake off the yoke of their long therefore suffice to say, That Xerxes the fe- continued bondage; It fell out well for Dacond, being a vicious Prince, did perish af- | rius, that the Lacedamonians being destitute ter a month or two, if not by furfeit, then of mony, wherewith to defray the charge of by the treachery of his riotous Brother sog- a great Navy, without which it was imposdianus. Likewise of Sogdianus it is found, sible to advance the War against the State that being as ill as his Brother, and more of Athens, that remained powerful by Sea, cruel, he slew unjustly Bagorazas a principal were driven to crave his assistance, which Funuch, and would have done as much to he granted unto them, first upon what conhis Brother Darius the Bastard, had not he ditions best pleased himself, though afterfore-seen it, and by raising a stronger Army wards the Articles of the league between than this hated King Sogdianus could leavy, him and them, were fet down in more prefeized at once upon the King and Kingdom. cife terms; wherein it was concluded, That Ffff 2

CHAP, IX

he and they should make war joyntly upon first by the people to compile a body of their the Athenians, and upon all that should re- Law, and make a collection of such ancient bel from either of them, and (which was Statutes, as were meet to be put in practice: highly to the Kings honour and profit) that the condition of the City standing as it did all the Cities of Asia which had formerly in that so sudden alteration. To this charge been his, or his Predecessors, should return was annexed the supreme authority, either to his obedience. By this Treaty, and the as a recompence of their labours, or because War enfuing (of which I have already spo- the necessity of the times did so require it. ken) he recovered all that his Grandfather wherein the Law being uncertain, it was fit and Father had loft in Afia. Likewise by afthat such men should give judgment in parfiftance of the Lacedamonians, he got Amor- ticular causes, to whose judgment the Laws ges alive into his hands, who was taken in themselves, by which the City was to be orthe City of Tafus; the Athenians wanting ei- dered, were become subject. But these thirther force or courage to fuccour him. Never- ty, having fo great power in their hands. theless Egypt still held out against him; the were more careful to hold it, than to decause whereof cannot be the imployment of serve it by faithful execution of that which the Persian forces on the parts of Greece: for was committed to them in trust. he abounded in men, of whom he had enough Therefore apprehending fuch troublefor all occasions, but they wanted manhood, some fellows as were odious to the City. which caused him to fight with gold; which though not punishable therefore by Law. effected for him by Souldiers of other Na- they condemned them to death; which protions, and his natural enemies, what the va- ceeding was by all men highly approved, who lour of his own Subjects was infufficient to confidered their lewd conditions, but did perform. Darius had in marriage Parysatis his not withall bethink themselves, how easiea own Sifter, who bare unto him (befides thing it would be unto these thirty men, to other children) Artaxerxes called Mnemon, take away the lives of Innocents, by calling that is to fay, the Mindful, or the Remem- them perturbers of the peace, or what elfe berer, who fucceeded him in the Kingdom; they lifted, when condemnation without and Carus the younger, a Prince of fingular true trial and proof had been once well alvirtue and accounted, by all that knew him, lowed. Having thus plaufibly entred into a the most excellent man that ever Persia bred | wicked course of Government, they thought after Cyrus the Great. But the old King Da- it best to fortifie themselves with a sure rius, intending to leave unto his eldelt Son guard, ere they brake out into those difor-Artaxerxes the Inheritance of the great Em- ders, which they must needs commit for the pire, did cast a jealous eye upon the doings establishing of their authority. Wherefore of young cyrus, who being Kieutenant of dispatching two of their own company to the lower Asia, took more upon him than be- sparta, they informed the Lacedamonians, fitted a Subject: for which cause his Father | that it was the full intent of the Thirty, to fent for him, with intent to have taken some keep the City free from all rebellious movery fharp course with him, had not his own tions: to which purpose it behoved them to death prevented the coming of his younger cut off such as were feditious; and therefore Son, and placed the elder in his Throne. Of defired the Lacedamonians to fend them a the war between these Brethren, and summarily of Artaxerxes, we shall have occasion cost to maintain. This motion was well to speak somewhat in more convenient approved, and a Guard sent, the Captain of place.

ø. II.

How the thirty Tyrants got their Dominion in Athens.

If thew the proceedings of the Greeks, after likely, or able to make any head against the subversion of the walls of Athens, which this wicked form of Government : whereby gave end to that War called the Peloponne- there was such effusion of blood, as to The-Jian War, but could not free the unhappy ramenes (one of the Thirty) feemed very Country of Greece from civil broils. The horrible, and unable to escape vengeance. thirty Governours, commonly called the His dislike of their proceedings being openly . thirty Tyrants of Athens, were chosen at the discovered, caused his fellows to bethink which was fo well entertained by the Thirty, that none of their misdeeds could want his high commendations at Sparta. Hereupon the Tyrants began to take heart, and looking no more after base and detested persons invaded the principal men of the City, fending armed men from house to house, who drew Hold it in this place very convenient to out fuch as were of great reputation, and themselves, him to drink poyfon.

o. III.

The Conspiracy against the thirty Tyrants, and their deposing.

Fter the death of Theramenes, the thir-Aty began to use such out-rage, as excelled their former villanies. For having three thousand (as they thought) firm unto them, they robbed all others without fear or Citizens, who were fled to Thebes, entred in seventy only, yet the Victory seemed the

themselves, and provide for their own secu- to consultation, and resolved to hazzard rity and his destruction, lest he should make their lives in setting free the City of Athens. himself a Captain of the discontented (which The very thought of such a practice had were almost the whole City) and redeem his been treason at home, which had no other own peace with their ruin. Wherefore they danger abroad, than might be found in the own peace with their time. Whetevote they dispersion on the Citizens, whom they thought meeteft, and gave unto them fome part of the publick authority, the reft they difarmed; and having thus increased their own frength, and weakned done did the thirty hear of their exploit, the ir opposites, they began a fresh to shed than seek means to prevent further danger; the blood, not only of their private enemies, affembling the three thousand, and their Labut of fuch whose mony, or goods, might in- cedamonian guard, with which force they but of fuch whole mony, or goods, might in richthem, and enable them for the payment of their Guard. And to this purpose they their men repelled. Finding the place too concluded, that every one of them should name one man, upon whose goods he should to befrege it; which purpose came to nought fieze, putting the owner to death. But when by means of fnow that fell, and other ftormy Theramenes uttered his detestation of so weather, against which they had not made wicked intent, then did Critius, who of all provision. Retiring therefore to the City the thirty was most tyrannical, accuse him which above all they were to make good, to the Council, as a treacherous man, and they left the most of their guard, and two (whereas one main priviledge of the three companies of horse, to weary out them thousand was, that none of them should suf- which lay in Phyla, with a flying siege. But thousand was, that note of the thirty, it was not long ere the followers of Thraff-but have the accultomed trial) he took upon him to firike out of that number the hundred, which adventured to give charge name of Theramenes, and so reduced him un- upon those guards, of whom they cut off der the trial and fentence of that order. It was well alledged by Theramenes, that his but prosperous beginnings, added more to name was not more easie to be blotted out the number of those in Fhyla, who now with of the catalogue, than any other mans; up-on which confideration, he advifed them all fuburb of Athens, lying on the Port. Before to conceive no otherwife of his case, than as their coming the thirty had resolved to forof their own, who were liable to the same tifie the Town of Eleusine, to their own use, form of proceeding: but every man choofing | whereinto they might make an easie retrait, rather to preferve his own life by filence, and fave themselves from any sudden peril. than prefently to draw upon himself the It may well seem strange, that whereas their danger, which as yet concerned him little, barbarous manner of Government had and perhaps would never come near him; brought them into fuch danger, they were the Tyrants interpreting filence as confent, fo far from feeking to obtain mens good condemned him forthwith, and compelled will, that contrariwife, to affure themselves of Eleusine, they got all of the place who could bear arms into their hands by a train, and wickedly (though under form of Juflice) murthered them all. But, Sceleribus tutum per scelera est iter, the mischiefs which they had already done were fuch, as left them no hope of going backward, nor any other apparent likelihood of fafety, than by extending their cruelty unto all, feeing few or none were left, whom they could truft. When Thrasybulus and his fellows, who as yet were termed conforators, had taken the flame, despoiling them of lands and goods, Pirens, then were the three thousand armed and caused them to fly into banishment, for a gain by the Tyrants, and brought to affault lafeguard of their lives. This flight of the it; but in this enterprise Thraspulus had the Citizens procured their liberty, and the general good of the City. For the banished though there were slain to the number of greater,

CHAP. X.

greater, because Critias, and one other of the not hitherto broken any one article of the thirty, perished in that fight. The death of league: but fearing indeed, less the Lacede-Critias, and the stout defence of Piraus, to-monians should annex the Territory of Athens gether with some exhortations used by Thra- to their own Demains. It is not to be doubfibulus to the Citizens, wrought such effect, ted, that Pausanias took this answer ingood that the thirty were deposed. Nevertheless part. For it was not his purpose to destroy there were fo many of the three thousand, those against whom he went, but only to cross who having communicated with the thirty the proceedings of Lysander, whom he envito make war against that people, who had City returned to her former quietness.

in their mildeeds, feared to be called to a ed. Therfore having in some small skirmishes fharp account, that no peace, nor quiet form against them of Thrasibulus his party, made a of Government could be established. For shew of war, he finally wrought such means. Embassadours were sent to Sparta, who cra-that all things were compounded quietly: ving aid against Thrashlulus and his follo- the thirty men, and such others as were like wers, had favourable audience, and a power to give cause of tumults, being sent to sparfent to their affiltance, both by land and sea, ta. The remainder of that tyrannical faction. under the conduct of Lysander, and his Bro- having withdrawn themselves to Eleusine, ther; whom Fansanias the Spartan King did were shortly after found to attempt some infollow, railing an Army of the Cities confe- novation; whereupon the whole City riling derate with the Lacedamonians. And here against them, took their Captains, asthey appeared first the jealousie, wherein some were coming to Parly, and slew them: which people held the State of Sparta. The Bwoti- done, to avoid further inconvenience, a law ans and Corinthians, who in the late wars had been the most bitter enemies to Athens, reforgotten, and no man called into question fused to follow Pausanias in this expedition; for wrongs committed. By which order, alledging that it ftood not with their oaths, wifely made, and carefully observed, the

CHAP. X.

Of the Expedition of Cyrus the younger.

ø. I.

The grounds of Cyrus his attempt against his Brother.

taxerxes King of Persia, having in his Fathers should measure; and opening unto them life-time very carefully profecured the War the riches, and withall the weakness of the against Athens, did fend his messengers to Persian, to kindle in them both defire and Sparta, requesting that their love might appear no less to him, than that which he had another generation; than to give into their shewed towards them in their dangerous hands that mighty Kingdom, whose hour War against the Athenians. To this request, was not yet come. The love which Parssats being general, the Lacedemonians gave a the Queen mother of Persia bare unto Cyrus futable answer; commanding the Admiral her younger son, being seconded by the earto perform unto Cyrus all fervice that he nest favour of the people, and ready desires

HE matters of Greece stand- | he did, the subversion of that Empire had ing upon such terms, that no forthwith ensued. But it pleased God, raone Estate durst oppose it self ther to shew unto the Greeks the wayes, against that of Lacedamon; which under the Macedonian Ensigns, the young Cyrus, Brother to Ar-victorious foot-steps of their posterity should require of him. If Cyrus had plainly of many principal men, had moved this discovered himself, and the Lacedemonians young Prince, in his Fathers old age to bent their whole power to his affiftance, ve- afpire after the Succession. But being fent ry like it is, that either the Kingdom of Persia for by his Father(as hath before been shewshould have been the recompense of his de-ed) whose meaning was to curb this ambitiferts; or that, he perifhing in battel, as after ous Youth; he found his elder brother Artaxerxes established so surely by the old ment; and the means which he had by love Kings favour, that it were not fafe to at- of his own people, and that good neighbourtempt any means of displanting him, by hood of the Lacedemonians, whom he had whose disfavour himself might easily lose the bound unto him, to obtain the Crown for whole custavoir financial and the held in Asia himself. Neither was it expedient that he the less, and hardly be able to maintain his should long sit idle, as waiting till occasion the less, and hardly be able to maintain in own life. The nearest neighbour to Cyrus so flould present it self: but rather enterprise of all the Kings Deputies in the lower Asia, so what whilst yet his Mother lived, who was Tissaphernes, a man compounded of co- could procure a good interpretation to all wardile, trechery, craft, and all vices which his actions, if they were no worse than only accustomably branch out of these. This man questionable. Hereupon he first began to accompanied Cyrus to his Father, using by quarrel with Tisfaphernes, and seized upon his own Province.

ø. II.

The preparations of Cyrus, and his first entry into the War.

HE form of Government which the Persian Lieutenants used in their sethe digrace endured by his late imprison- higher designs. Pretending therefore that the way all fair shews of friendship, as to a many Towns of his Jurisdiction, annexing Prince, for whom it might well be thought, them to his own Province, which displeased rinice, to when the dobtained the inheritance of that Queen Parifatis had obtained the inheritance of that mighty Empire. And it was was of condition formswhat fimple) being very true, that Parylatis had used the best of truly paid by Cyrus the accustomable Triher endeavour to that purpose, alledging butes out of those places, was well contentthat (which in former ages had been much ed to fee his brothers hot spirit exercised in available to Xerxes, in the like disceptation private quarrels. But Tiffaphernes, whose with his elder brother) Artaxerxes was born base conditions were hated, and cowardise whilst his Father was a private man, but despised, although he durst not adventure Cyrus, when he was crowned King. All to take arms against Cyrus, yet perceiving which not fufficing; when the most that that the Milesians were about to give up could be obtained for Cyrus, was the pardon themselves into the hands of that young of some presumptuous demeanour, and con- Prince, as many other Towns of the Ionians firmation of his place in Lydia, and the parts had done, thought by terrour to preserve adjoyning: then did this Tiffaphernes disco- his reputation, and keep the Town in his ver his nature, and accuse his friend Cyrus to own hands. Wherefore he slew many, and the new King Artaxerxes, of a dangerous many he banished, who flying to Cyrus, were treason intended against his person. Upon gently entertained, as bringing fair occasion this accusation, whether true or false, very to take arms, which was no small part of his eafily believed, Cyrus was arrefted, and by defire. In levying Souldiers he used great the most vehement intreary of his Mother policy; for he took not only the men of his very hardly delivered, and fent back into own Province, or of the Countries adjoyning, whose lives were ready at his will; but fecretly he furnished some Grecian Captains with money, who being very good men of War, entertained Souldiers therewith, some of them warring in Thrace, others in Theffaly, others elsewhere in Greece; but all of them ready to cross the Seas, at the first call of Cyrus, till which time they had secret instructions to prolong their several Wars. veral Provinces, was in many points almost that the Souldiers might be held in conti-Regal. For they made war and peace, as | nual exercise, and ready in arms upon the they thought it meet, not only for the Kings fudden. Cyrus having fent a power of men behoof, but for their own reputation; ufu- to beliege Miletus, forthwith summoned ally indeed with the Kings enemies, yet these bands of the Greeks, who very readily fometimes one with another: which was came over to his affiftance, being thirteen the more easily tolerated, because their own thousand very firm Souldiers, and able to heads were held only at the Kings pleasure, make head (which is almost incredible) which caused them to frame all their doings against the whole power of Artaxerxes. to his will, what soever it were, or they could With this Army, and that which he had leconjecture it to be. Cyrus therefore being vied before, he could very eafily have forced fetted in Lydia, began to confider with him- Miletus, and chased away Tiffaphernes out felf, the interest that he had in the King- of Asia the less: but his purpose was not so dom; the small assurance of his Brothers to lose time in small matters; that was to love, held only by his Mothers intercession; be imployed in the accomplishment of the Pilidians, a people of Alia the less, not to affift him. By such devices, and excessive fubject to the Persian, had invaded his Ter- promise of reward, he brought them to Enritory; he railed the stege of Miletus, and phrates; where some of the Greeks considerwith all fpeed marched Eastward, leaving ing, That who so passed the River first. Tillaphernes much amazed, who had no lei- should have the most thanks, and might fure to rejoyce that Cyrus had left him to fafely return if the rest should refuse to folhimself, when he considered, that so great an low them; they entred the Foords, where-Army, and fo strong, was never levied by all were finally perswaded to do as some against the Rovers of Pisidia, but rather had begun: and being allured by great against the great King his Master. For which hopes, they resolved to seek out Artaxerxes. cause taking a band of five hundred horse, wheresoever he was to be found. The King he posted away to carry tidings to the in the mean time having raised an Army of Court, of this great preparation.

HAP. X.

600

ø. III.

How Cyrus took his journey into the higher Asia, and came up close to his Brother.

mations of the Queen Statira, against Parysatis, the Queen-Mother, whom the called the Author and occasioner of the war. But whilst face; who despairing to find any way by the King in great fear was arming the high Land, had procured the Lacedamonian Fleet, Countries in his defence, the danger hafted | by the benefit whereof to have transported upon him very fast. For Cyrus made great his Army. I do not find that this cowardife marches, having his number much increased of Abrocomas, or his Souldiers, who arrived by the repair of his Country-men, though not at the Camp, till five daies were past most strengthened by the access of seven after the battel, received either punishment, hundred Greeks, and of other four hundred or difgrace; for they, toward whom he of the same Nation, who revolted unto him withdrew himself, were all made of the from the King. How terrible the Greeks same metal. were to the Barbarians, he found by tryal in a Muster, which (to please the Queen of of retiring to the uttermost bounds of his Cilicia, who had brought him aid) he made Kingdom, until by Teribazus, one of his Capin Fhrigia; where the Greeks by his directi- tains, he was perswaded not to abandon so on making offer of a charge upon the rest many goodly Provinces to the enemy, who of his Army, which contained a hundred | would thereby have gathered addition of thousand men, the whole Camp (not per- | strength, and (which in the sharp disputaticeiving that this was but a bravery) fled on of Title to a Kingdom is most available) a-main, the victuallers and baggagers for- would have grown superiour in reputation. faking their Cabbins, and running all away By such advice, the King resolved upon for very fear. This was to Cyrus a joyful meeting with his Brother, who now began fpectacle, who knew very well, that his Bro- to be secure, being fully perswaded that Arther was followed by men of the same tem- taxerxes would never dare to abide him in per, and the more unlikely to make refi- the field. For the King having cast up a stance, because they were prest to the war | Trench of almost forty miles in length, about against their will and dispositions, whereas thirty foot broad, and eighteen foot deep, his Army was drawn along by meer affe- intended there to have encamped: but his ction and good will. Nevertheless he found courage failing him, he abandoned that it a very hard matter to perswade the Greeks | place, thinking nothing so safe, as to be far to pass the River of Euphrates. For the very distant from his enemics. length of the way which they had trodden, wearied them with the conceit of the tedious return. Therefore he was driven, being yet in Cilicia, to feek excuses, telling them, The Battel between Cyrus and Artaxerxes. that Abrocomas, one of the Kings principal Captains, and his own great enemy, lay by the River, against whom he requested them

nine hundred thousand men, was not so confident upon this huge multitude, as to adventure them in trial of a plain battel. Abrocomas, who with three hundred thousand men, had undertaken to make good the Streights of Syria, which were very narrow. and fortified with a ftrong wall, and other He tumult which his coming brought | defences of nature and art, which made the was very great, and great the excla- place to feem impregnale, had quitted the passage, and retired himself toward the Kings forces, not daring to look Cyrus in the

Therefore Artaxerxes was upon the point

ø. IV.

He Army of Cyrus having overcome many difficuties of evil waies, and fcarcity

fearcity of victuals, was much incouraged he advanced with fix hundred Horfe, and by perceiving this great fear of Artaxerxes; gave so valiant a charge upon a squadron of by perceiving and being palt this Trench, marched care-fix thousand, which lay before the King, and being pear diforder, having befrowed that he brake it, flaying the Captain thereletty in great Cartes, and upon Beafts of car-their Arms in Cartes, and upon Beafts of car-of Artagerses, with his own hands, and putriage; when on the fudden one of their ting all the rest to flight. Hereupon his whose Van currors, brought news of the Kings company of fix hundred very few excepted. van-currens, prougate news of the kings campany of its numerica, very few excepted, approach. Hereupon with great tumult they began to follow the chafe, leaving Cyrus armed themselves, and had ranged their too ill attended, who perceiving where the Battels in good order upon the fide of the King flood in troop, uncertain whether to River Euphrates, where they waited for the fight, or leave the field, could not contain coming of their enemies, whom they faw himself, but faid, I fee the man: and prenot till it was after noon. But when they fently, with a fmall handful of men about haw the cloud of dust raised by the feet of him, ran upon his Brother, whom he strake that huge multitude, which the King drew through the Curace, and wounded in the after him, and perceived by their near approach how well they were marshalled, his last, he received immediately the satal coming on very orderly in filence, whereas blow, which gave period at once to his amit had been expected, that rushing violently bition and life, being wounded under the with loud clamours, they should have spent eye with a Dart, thrown by a base sellow, all their force upon the first brunt; and when wherewith astonied; he fell dead from his it appeared that the fronts of the two Ar- horse, or so hurt, that it was unpossible to mies were so unequal in distent, being all have recovered him, though all which were embattelled in one body and square, that with him, did their best for his safety; not ca-Cyrus taking his place (as was the Persian | ring afterwards for their own lives, when manner) in the midst of his own, did not once they perceived that Cyrus their Master with the corner, and utmost point thereof, was slain. Artaxerxes caused the head and reach to the half breadth of Artaxerxes his right hand of his Brother to be forthwith battel, who carried a front proportionable stricken off, and shewed to his people, who to his number, exceeding nine times that of now purfuing them, fled apace, calling upon Cyrus: then did the Greeks begin to distrust the name of Cyrus, and defiring him to partheir own manhood, which was not accu- don them. But when this great accident had flomed to make proof of it felf, upon fuch | breathed new courage into the Kings excessive odds. It was almost incredible, troops, and utterly dismayd such Fersian that so great an Army should be so easily | Captains, as were now, even in their own chased. Nevertheless, it quickly appeared, eyes, no better than rebels; it was not long that these Persians, having learned (contrary ere the Camp of Cyrus was taken, being to their cultom) to give charge upon their quite abandoned; from whence Artaxerxes enemies with silence, had not learned (for making all speed, arrived quickly at the it was contrary to their nature) to receive a | quarter of the Greeks, which was about three strong charge with courage. Upon the ve- miles from the place where Cyrus fell. There ry first offer of an on-set, made by the he met with Tiffaphernes, who having made Greeks, all that beastly rabble of cowards way through the Battel of the Greeks, was fled a-main, without abiding the stroke, or ready now to joyn with his Master in spoilflaying till they were within reach of aDart. ing their Tents. Had not the news, which The Chariots armed with hooks and fithes Artaxerxes brought with him of his Brothers (whereof Artaxerxes had two hundred, and death, been sufficient to countervail all dif-Cyrus not twenty) did small hurt that day, afters received, the exploit of Tissaphernes because the drivers of them leaping down, in breaking through the Greeks, would have fled away on foot. This base demeanour of | yielded little comfort. For Tissaphernes his enemies gave fo much confidence to Cy- had not flain any one man of the Greeks, but rus and his Followers, that such as were contrariwise, when he came upon them, about him forth-with adored him as King. they opening their Battel, drave him with And certainly, the Title had been affured great flaughter through them, in such wife, unto him that day, had not he fought how that he rather escaped as out of an hard pafto declare himself worthy of it, ere yet he fage, than forced his way through the squahad obtained it. For perceiving that Artax- dron of the Greeks. Hereof the King being erxes, who found that part of the field which informed by him, and that the Greeks, as lay before him void, was about to encompals Mafters of the field, gave chase to all that the Greeks, and to fet upon them in the rear, came in their fight; they ranged their Companies Gggg

pames into good order, and follow them in the Greeks, intending to fer upon them in the Army, should live to carry tidings home, there are But these good Souldiers perceivity would not be long ere with greater forces ing the Kings approach, turned their faces, they difputed with him for his whole Signoand made head againft him; who not intending to feek honour with danger of his whereby he might bring them to deffructilife, wheeled about and fled, being purfued on, and not let one escape to carry tidings unto a certain Village, that lay under a Hill, of that which he had feen: to which puron the top whereof he made a fland, rather pose he sent them a brave message the next on the top whereon he made a rame, rather in a bravery, than with purpose to attempt morning; charging them to deliver up their upon these bold fellows any further. For Arms, and come to his Gates, to await there he knew well that his brothers death had upon his Mercy. It feems that he was in fecured his estate, whom he would feem good hope to have found their high couto have flain with his own hand, thinking rages broken, upon report of his brothers that fact alone sufficient to give reputation death: but he was greatly deceived in that on to his valour; and this reputation he thought. For the Greeks being advertised thought that he might now preferve well that morning from Arians, a principal Comenough, frewing a manly look half a mile mander under Cyrus, that his Mafter being off. On the top of this Hill therefore he flain, he had retired himself to the place of advanced his Standard, a golden Eagle diftheir last encamping, about eight miles from plaid on the top of a Spear. This enfign thence, whence intending to return into Ismight have encouraged his people, had nia, his meaning was to dillodge the next not some of the Greeks clipied it, who not day, awaiting for them to long it they would meaning that he should abide so near them, joyn with him, but resolving to stay no lonwith all their power marched toward ger: they fent answer back to Arian, that him. The King discovering their approach, having beaten the King out of the field and fled upon the ipur: fo that none remained in finding none that durft refift them, they the place of batail, fave only the Greeks, who would place Arieus himfelf in the Kings had lost that day not one man, nor taken Throne, if he would joyn with them, and any other harm, than that one of them purfue the victory. Before they received any was hurt with an arrow. Much they won- reply to this answer, the Messengers of Ardred that they heard no news of Cyrus, but taxerxes arrived at the Camp, whose errand thinking that he was purfuing the Army, they | feemed to the Captains very infolent: One thought it was fittest forthem, having that told them, that it was not for the Vanquilliday done enough, to return to their quarter, ers to yield their Weapons, another, that he and take their Suppet, to which they had would dye ere he yielded to such a motion: good appetite, because the expectation of a third asked, whether the King, as having the Kings comming had given them no leil the victory, required their Weapons, if fo, fure to dine.

ø. V.

The hard eftate of the Greeks after the fight; made them yield unto him.

with them, found their Camp spoiled, little them such numbers of men, as they wanted or nothing being left that might ferve for Arength to kill if they would hold up their food: so that wanting victuals to satisfie throats; for vyhich cause he accounted them their hunger, they refreshed their weary his prisoners. These words, to them, who bodies with fleep. In the mean feafon ar knew themselves to be free, were nothing taxerxes returning to his Camp, which he pleafant. Therefore, one told Phalinus, that entred by Torch-light, could not enjoy the having nothing left, but their Arms and Vapleature of his good fortune entire, because lour, whil'ft they kept their Arms, their Vahe perceived that the baleness of his people, lour vyould be ferviceable, but should they and weakness of his Empire, was now yield them, it was to be doubted, that plainly discovered to the Greeks: which their bodies would not long remain their gave him affurance, that if any of these oven. Hereat Phalinus laughed, saying;

panies into good order, and followed after who had beheld the shameful demeanor of why did he not fetch them? or, whether he defired them in a way of friendship; for then would they first know, with what curtesie he meant to requite their kindness. To this question Phalinus a Grecian, waiting upon and bow Artaxerxes in vain fought to have Tiffaphernes, answered; That the King having flain Cyrus, knew no man that could pretend any Title to his Kingdom, in the middest T was now about the fetting of the whereof he held them fast enclosed with Sun, and they bringing home dark night great Rivers, being able to bring against CHAP. X. This young man did feem a Philosopher, it is that they were cut in pieces; for had and made a pretty speech; but that his deep they been kindly used, it may well be inculation shewed his wits to be very shal- thought that some of them should have aclow, if he thought with his Arms and Va- companied Tiffapherner, and ferved as Stales lour to prevail against the great King. It to draw in the rest. Arians being of too base frems that Phalinus being a Courtier, and a temper, and birth, to think upon feeking imployed in a business of importance. thought himself too profound a States-man, to be checkt in his Embassage by a bookssh discourser. But his wisdom herein failed him. For whatfoever he himfelf was (of whom no more is known, than that he Country-men, perfwading them basely to furrender their Weapons, and Lives, to the merciles Barbarians) this young Scholar by him despised, was that great Xenophon, who, when all the principal Commanders were furprifed by treachery of the Persians, being a private Gentleman, and having never feen the wars before, undertook the conduct of the Army, which he brought fafe into Greece, freeing it from all those, and from greater dangers than Phalinus could propound. Some there were who promifed to be faithfull to the King, as they had been to Cyrus, offering their fervice in Egypt, where they him, no wifer than he came. All that day Horses, Asses, and other Beasts, which they Targets, thrown away by the Enemies.

ø. VI.

How the Greeks began to return home-wards.

T night they took their way towards Arians, to whom they came at midnight; being forfaken by four hundred foot, and forty horse, all Thracians, who fled over to the King; by whom how they were entertained, I do not find. Like enough the Kingdome for himself, with such affistance as might have given it unto Cyras, was very well pleased to make covenant with them for mutual affiftance unto the last: Whereunto both parts having fworn, he advifed them to take another way homeward, brought an unhonest message to his own which should be somewhat longer, yet safer and fitter to relieve them with victuals, than that by which they came. The next day, having made a wearifome march, and tyred the Souldiers, they found the Kings Army which had coasted them, lodged in certain Villages, where they purposed themselves to have encamped: towards which Clearchus made directly, because he would not seem by declining them, to shew fear, or weakness. That the Kings men were contented to remove, and give place to their betters, it cannot be strange to any that hath considered their former behaviour; Nor strange, that the Grecians, being weary and hungry, thought Artaxerxes might have use of them. and lying among enemies in an unknown But the final answer was, That without Countrey, should be very fearful: but it is al-Weapons they could neither do the King most past belief, that the noise which was good as Friends, nor defend themselves from heard of these poor men, calling one to anohim as Enemies. Hereupon Phalinus delivered ther tumultuoully, as the present condition the Kings further pleasure, which was to inforced them to do, should make the Persigrant them Truce, whil'st they abode where ans flie out of their Camp, and so affright the they then were, denouncing War if they stir- | great King, that in stead of demanding their red thence; Whereunto he required their Arms, he should crave peace of them. The answer. Clearchus the General told him, next day very early came messengers from They liked it. How (faith Phalinus) must I Artaxerxes, desiring free access for Embassiaunderstand you? As choosing peace if we dours, to entreat of peace. Were it not that flay, or otherwise war, said Clearchus. But such particulars do best open the quality of whether war or peace, quoth this politique | the persons, by whom things were managed, Embassadour? To whom Clearchus (not wil- I should hold it fitter, to run over the geling to acquaint him with their purpole,) neral passages of those times, than to dwell Let our doings tell you; and so dismissed among circumstances. But surely it is a point very remarkable, That when Clearchus had the Greeks were fain to feed upon their willed the Messengers to bid the King prepare for battel, because the Greeks (as he rosted with Arrows, Darts, and wooden said) wanting whereupon to dine, could not endure to hear of truce till their bellies were full; Artaxerxes diffembling the indignity, was contented sweetly to swallow down this pill, fending them guides, who conducted them to a place where was plenty of victuals to relieve them.

CHAP.X

o. VII.

604

How Tiffaphernes, under colour of peace, betrayed all the Captains of the Greeks.

affairs, than brought themselves into any contented whilst they were well, and not to ftraights or terms of disadvantage. But now cast themselves again into those difficulties. came unto them the fubtil Fox Tiffapher- out of which they were newly freed by the nes, who circumventing the Chief Com- late Treaty; reciting withall their own manders by fine fleights, did mischievously wants, and the Kings means, but especially entrap them, to the extreme danger of the the Oathes mutually given and taken, Army. He told them, that his Province, wherewith he saw no reason why the enelying near unto Greece, had caused him my should have clogged himself if he meant greatly to desire, that their deliverance mischief, having power enough to dothem might be wrought by his procurement; harm by a fair and open War. knowing well that in time to come, both they, and their Countrimen at home, (if honour may be valued by greatness and would not be unthankful for fuch a bene- place in Court) which caused his Oath to the great fervice that he had done to his inforcement, or base respect, was like to have Mafter, being the first that advertised him drawn it from him. But his falshood was of Cyrus his intent, and having not only fuch, both in substance and in success, as brought him a good ftrength of men, but in may fitly expound that faying, which prothe day of battel shewed his face to the ceeded from the fountain of Truth, I hate a Greeks, when all others turned their backs : | rich man a lyer. A lye may find excuse when that he, together with the King, did enter | it grows out of fear: for that passion hath their Camp, and gave chase to the Barbarians his original from weakness. But when Potreating that he would give me leave to fallhood is most abominable; for the offen-I have good hope to speed, if you will fend strength against the Divine Justice, doth a mild answer to him, who hath willed me commit that fin with an high hand, which to ask you, for what cause ye have born commonly produceth lamentable effects, Arms against him. The Captains hearing and is followed with sure vengeance. It was this, were contented to give gentle words, not long ere Tistaphernes found means to dewhich Tiffaphernes relating to the King, procured (though very hardly, as he faid) that | into his power by a train; making the Genecame unto them again after twenty dayes, allurements, that he daily grew more strange to the Greeks than formerly he had been. This caused many to advise Clearchus, rather to pass forward as well as he might, than to rely upon covenants, and fit still whilst the Therto the Greeks, relying upon their King layed snares to entrap them. But he own vertue, had rather advanced their on the contrary perswaded them, to rest

Tiffaphernes was a very honourable man fit. Herewithall he forgot not to rehearse be the more esteemed; for as much as no that stood on the part of cyrus. All this wer, which is a Character of the Almighty, (quoth he) did I alledge to the King, en- shall be made the supporter of untruth, the conduct you fafe into Greece; in which fute | der, like proud Lucifer, advancing his own ftroy all the Captains, whom he fubtilly got peace should be granted: the conditions ral Clearchus himself the mean to draw in whereof were; That they should pass free- all the rest. The business was contrived ly through all the Kings Dominions, paying thus: Having travelled some dayes together for that they took, and committing no spoil! in such wise, that the Persians did not encamp yet that it should be lawful for them to take with the Greeks, who were very jealous of victuals by force, in any place that refused the great familiarity appearing between to afford them an open Market. Hereupon Tiffaphernes and Ariaus; Clearchus thought both parties having sworn, the League was it convenient to root out of Tiffaphernes his concluded; and Tillaphernes, returning to the brains all causes of distrust, whereof many King to take leave, and end all business, had grown in that short time. To which purpole obtaining private conference with and then they fet forward. This interim of him, he rehearfed the oath of Confederacy, twenty dayes, which Tiffaphernes did spend which had past between them, shewing how at the Court, ministred great occasion of religiously he would keep it; and, repeating mistrust to his new Confederates. For be- the benefits, which the Greeks did receive by fides his long absence, which alone sufficed the help of Tissaphernes, he promised that to breed doubt, the Brethren, the Kindred their love should appear to him not unfruitof Arians, repairing daily to him, and other ful, if he would make use of their service Perstans to his Souldiers, did work him and against the Mysians or Pistdians, who were them so with assurance of pardon, and other accustomed to insest his Provinces; or against bands of Persian Horse-men scoured the chief upon the whole Army. field, killing as many Greeks as they met, and riding up to the very Camp of the Gracians, who wondred much at the tumult, escaping sorely wounded, informed them of all that had been done. Hereupon the Greeks took Arms in hafte, thinking that the enemy would forth-with have affailed their

the Egyptians, who were then Rebelsto the his own Brother, and Arians, followed Great King. For which cause he desired him, with three hundred Horse, who called for that whereas all divine and humane respects the principal men in the Army, saying, That had linked them together, he would not they brought a message from the King, which give place to any close accusation or suspici- Arieus delivered to this effect: That Cleon, whereby might grow sudden inconve- archus having broken his faith, and the nience to either of them, upon no just league made, was justly rewarded with ground. The faithless Persian was very much death; that Menon and Proxenus, two other delighted with this speech, which ministred of the five Collonels, for detecting his fair occasion to the execution of his purpose. treachery, were highly honoured; and fi-Therefore he told Clearchus, that all this nally, that the King required them to furwas by him wifely confidered, withing him render their Arms, which were due to him. further to call to mind how many waies as having belonged unto his fervant Cyrus he could have used to bring them to con- When some altercation had followed upon fusion, without peril to himself; especial- this message, Kenophon told the Embassialy by burning the Country, through dors, that if Clearchus had in fuch fort offenwhich they were to pass, whereby they must ded, it was well that he was in such fort puneeds have perished by meer famine. For nished: but he willed them to fend back Mewhich cause he said, that it had been great non and Proxenus, whom they had so greatfolly to feek by perjury, odious to God and ly honoured, that by them, as by common Man, the destruction of such as were already friends to both Nations, the Greeks might be in his hands. But the truth was, that his own advised how to answer the Persian: Hereunto love to them had moved him to work their the Embassadors knew not how to frame any fafety, not only for those ends which Clear- reply, and therefore departed without chus had recounted, of pleasures that might speaking one word more. Clearchus and the redound to himself, and the King, by their other four were sent to Artaxerxes, by whose affiltance; but for that he might by their commandment their heads were stricken off. friendship, hope to obtain what cyrus had I hold it not amis to prevent the order of mist. Finally, he invited the credulous time, annexing to this persidiousness of Tis-Gentleman to Supper, and fent him away so Japhernes, the reward which he afterward well affured of his good will, that he promi- received. He faw his Province wasted by the fed to bring all the Captains with him to the Greeks, against whom receiving from his Masame place, where, in presence of them all, ster convenient aid of men and mony he did Tissaphernes likewise promised to tell open- so ill manage his affairs, that neither subtilly, which of them had by fecret information ty, nor perjury (to which he failed not to fought to raife diffention between them. have recourse) availed him; finally the King Clearchus himself being thus deceived, with was jealous of his cunning head, and sent a great importunity drew all the chief Com- new Lieutenant into those parts, who took manders, and many of the inferiour Leaders it from his shoulders. Such was the recomto repair with him to the Camp of Tiffapher- pence of his treachery, which made him fo nes, whither followed them about two mistrusted at home, that the service which hundred of the common Souldiers, as it had he could not do, he was thought upon pribeen to some common Fair. But being vate ends to neglect; and so hated abroad, there arrived, Clearchus, with other the five that he knew not which way to fly from the principal Collonels, were called into the stroke, all the world being shut against Tent, the rest staying without, where they him. But now let us return to the prosperihad not waited long ere a fign was given, ty, wherein he triumphed without great upon which they within were apprehended, caule, having betrayed braver men than and the refidue flain: Forth-with certain himself, and intending to bring the like mif-

ø. VIII.

whereof they knew not the cause, till one, How Xenophon heartned the Greeks, and in despight of Tissaphernes went off safely.

Reat was the heaviness of the souldiers. Theing now left destitute of Leaders Camp. Anon they might perceive the Em- and no less their fear of the evil hanging bassadors of Tissaphernes, among whom were over their heads, which they knew not well whose learning supplied his want of experi-fend the Country, as granted by the enemy ence, finding the deep fadness of the whole himself to be theirs; others to make more Army, to be such as hindred them from taking any course of preventing the danger at ashamed to do that which was the desire of hand, began to advise the under-officers of such as made passage in hostile manner; But Proxenus his Companies, whose familiar these were faint comforts. The best counsel friend he had been to bethink themselves of was, that being neer unto the Carduchi, a fome mean, whereby their fafety might be people enemy to the Perstan, they should enwrought, and the Souldiers encouraged: ter into their Country, passing over some fetting before their cyes whatfoever might high mountains which lay between them. ferve for to give them hope, and above all, This course they followed, which could not mercy of their barbarous enemics.

CHAP. X.

him the charge of that Regiment; and fo to- fine wit. gether with him, the same night calling up fuch as were remaining of any account, they made choice of the fittest men to succeed in the places of those who were flain, or taken. This being done, and order fet down for disburdening the Army of all superfluous impediments, they cafily comforted themfelves for the loss of Tissaphernes his affiflance, hoping to take victuals by force better cheap than he had been wont to fell them; To which purpose they intended to force to defend themselves against the huge take up their lodging two or three miles fur- Armies of the Fersian, were no way inferither, among some plentiful Villages, and so our to the Greeks in daving, but only in the to proceed, marching towards the heads of Art of War. They were very light of foot, those great Rivers, which lav in their way, and to pass them where they were foordable. Many attempts were made upon them try were of much use against these poortraby Tissaphernes, whom they, ferving all on vellers, affiliting them in feven daies which foot, were notable to requite for the harm they fpent in that paffage, far more than all which they received by the Perlian Archers, the power of the Great King had done. Bewho that at a farther distance than the tween the Territory of these Carduchi, and Greeks could reach. For this cause did Xeno- the parts of Armenia confining them, ran phon provide flings, wherewith he over | Centrites, a great River, upon which the reached the enemy; and finding some Horses | Greeks refreshed themselves one day, rejoyfit for service, that were employed among cing that they had so well escaped these danthe carriages, he fet men upon them; train- gers, and hoping that the remainder would ing likewife his Archers to shoot compass, prove easie. But the next morning they saw who had been accustomed to the point | certain troops of Horse, that lay to forbid blank. By these means did he bear off the their passage. These were levied by the Persians who assailed him; and sometimes Kings Deputies in those parts; Tissaphernes gave them chase with that band of fifty and his Companies having taken their way Horse, whith being well backt with a firm towards Ionia. The River was broad and body of footmen, and seconded with troops | deep, so that it was not possible for such as of the light-armed-shot and slingers, com- would enter it, to make refistance against pelled the enemy to lye aloof. Tillaphernes those which kept the opposite banks. To not daring to come to handy-gripes with increase these dangers, the Cardnehi, followthese resolute men, did possess the tops of ing upon them, lay on the side of a Mounficulties, he betook himself to that course, them passing over, dideasily chase away the Country. With great forrow did the Greeks back the most expedite men, gave succour behold the Villages on fire, and thereby all to the Rear ward, against which the Car-

how to avoid. Among the reft, Xenophon, hope of victuals cut off. Some adviced to deperfivading them in no wife to yield to the have availed them, if Tiffaphernes had begun fooner to cut off their victuals, rather than Hereupon they defired him to take upon to feek to force, or circumvent them by his

ø. IX.

The difficulties which the Greek Army found in passing thorow the Land of the Carduchi.

Ntring upon the Land of the Carduchi, they were encountred with many difficulties of waies, but much more afflicted by the fierce Inhabitants, who, accustomed by skilful Archers, and used the Sling well; which weapons in that mountainous Counmountains, and places of advantage, by tain, within less than a mile of the water. which they were to pass. But finally, when But it was their good hap to discover a their valour made way through all such dif. Foord, by which the greater number of which was indeed the fureft of burning the Subjects of the Persian, and then sending CHAP. X. duchi being fleightly armed, could not on that was taken prisoner, the whole plot was fully beaten.

Greeks having paffed Centrites did arrive. ø. X.

He Army finding in Armenia good King. provision, marched without any disturbance about fifty or threescore miles to the heads of the River Tygris, and paffing overthem, travelled as far further without The passage of the Army to Trabyzond , thorefiftance, till they were encountred by Teribazas, at the River Teleboa, which Xenophon commends as a goodly water, though fmall. but Ptolemy and others omit it. Teribazus governed that Country for the Persian, and plain ground make refiftance hand to hand. revealed. Hereupon the Greeks, taking this These Carduchi seem to have inhabited the captive with them for a guide, sought him Mountains of Niphates, which are not far out, and coming upon his Camp, did so affrom the Spring of Tygris, though Ptolemy fright him, that before the whole Army could placethem far more to the East upon the arrivethere, the shout which was raised by River of Cyrus in Media; wherein he differs the Van-currors, chased him away. They much from Xenophon, whose relation being took his Pavillion, wherein (besides many grounded upon his own knowledge, doth flaves, that were Artificers of voluptuousbest in this case deserve credit. Of the Ri- ness) very rich furniture was lest by the ver Centrites (as of many other Rivers, treacherous coward, who returned no more Towns, and Places, mentioned by Keno- to challenge it. From hence the Army went phon) will not labour to make a conjecture, Northward, and passing Euphrates, not far which may indure the feverity of a critick below the springs thereof, travelled with For Ptolemy, and the whole Nation of Geo- much difficulty through deep Snow, being graphers, add small light to this Expedition: followed aloof by the enemy, who durst only of this laft, I think it the same which not approach them, but did cut off such as falleth into Tygris, not much above Artasi- they found stragling behind. The Inhabigarta, firinging out of Niphates, and running tants of the Country, thorow which they by the Town of Sardeva in Gordene, a Pro- marched, had their wintering houses under vince of Armenia the Great, wherein the ground, wherein was found great plenty of Victuals, and of Cattel, which likewife did winter in the same Cellars with the owners. Having refreshed themselves in those parts, and taken sufficient ease after the miserable How Teribazus Governour of Armenia, feek- journey, which had confumed many of them ing to entrap the Greeks with terms of with extreme cold; they departed, leading feigned peace, was disappointed, and shame- with them many bond-slaves, and taking away (besides other Horses and Cattel) fome Colts that were bred up for the Great

ø. XI.

row the Countries bordering upon the River of Phasis, and other obscure Nations.

SO without impediment they came to the River Phasis, neer whereunto the peowas in great favour with Artaxerxes, whose ple called Phasiani, Tacchi, and Chalybes Court may feem to have been a School, were feated. These Nations joyned togewhere the Art of falshood was taught as ther, and occupying the tops of a ledge of wildom. He defired peace of the Greeks, | Mountains, which the Greeks were to pals, which was made upon this condition, That made countenance of war: but some Comthey should take what they pleased but not panies being sent by night to seize upon burn down the Towns and Villages in their a place of equal height to that whereon the way. As foon as he had made this league, enemies lay, making good the piece of helevied an Army, and befetting the Streights ground which they had taken, fecured of certain Mountains which they were to the ascent of the rest; which caused these pass, hoped well to make such benefit of people to flye, every one retiring to the their fecurity, as might give him the com- defence of his own. The first upon whose mendation of being no less craftily dishonest Country the Greeks did enter, were the than Tissaphernes. Yet his cunning failed of Tacchi, who conveying all their provision of fuccess. For a great Snow fell, which caused victuals into strong holds, brought the Arthe Greeks to make many fires, and featter my into much want, until with hard labour themselves abroad in the Villages. Teribazus one place was forced, wherein great store also made many fires, and some of his men of Cattel were taken; the people, to avoid wandred about feeking relief. By the fires captivity, threw themselves head-long he was discovered, and by a Souldier of his down the rocks, the very women throwing down first their ewn children, and then cast- means of Anaxibus the Lacedamonian Ading themselves upon them. Here was taken miral, who was his friend, that he would a great booty of Cattel, which served to feed provide Vessels to embark them. Having them, travelling through the land of the thus concluded, they likewife took order Chalybes, of whom they got nothing but for the staying of such ships as should pass ftrokes. The Chalybes were a very ftout Nathat way, meaning to use them for their tion, well armed at all points, and exceed-Navigation. Left all this provision should be ing fierce. They encountree the Greeks hand found infufficient for the transportation of to hand, killing as many as they took prithe whole Army, Xenophon perfwaded the foners, and cutting off their heads, which Cities adjoyning to clear the wayes, and they carried away, finging and dancing, to make an eafie paflage for them by Land; the great grief of their companions living; whereunto the Souldiers were utterly unwho were glad, when after feven dayes willing to give ear, being defirous to return journy they escaped from those continual by Sea: but the Country, fearing what inskirmillies, wherewith they had been vexed convenience might grow by their long flay, by these Barbarians. Hence travelling did readily condescend to Xenophons rethrough a good corn-Country, inhabited by an obscure Nation called the Scythini, they came to a rich Town, the Lord whereof, and of the Region adjoyning, used them friendly, and promifed to guide them to a Mountaie, whence they might discover the Eux- of Trabizond: the other took Merchants ine Sca. From Gymnim (which was the name and passengers, whose goods were safely of his Town) he led them through the Territory of his enemies, desiring them to waste it with fword and fire. After five dayes abode, when victuals began to fail, by reafon march, they came to a Mountain called that all the Land of the Colchi, near unto the Teches, being (as I think) a part of the Camp, was already quite wasted, they were Mountains called Mofebici, whence their fain to embark their fick men, with the wo-

Colony of them with hostility, were required with the Creeks like; for the Army having now good leifure femate in joyn them with the weaker and truate in the bottom to repose themselves among their friends whom they left Masters of all. of the Eu-the Trapezuntians, did spoil the Country

ø. XII.

a Fleet, wherewith to return home by Sea: hom they came into the Territory of Synope, and there prosecuted the same purpose.

quest. Two ships they borrowed of the Trapezuntians, which they manned and fent to Sea : the one of them failed directly into Greece, forfaking their Companions, who had put them in trust to bring ships into the Port kept for the owners, but the Vessels were frayed to increase the fleet. After long guide shewed them the Sea 5 towards men, children, and such of the baggage as which they bent their course: and passing might best be spared, in those few ships friendly through the Region of the Ma- which they had already provided. The reft crones, (with whom by means of an inter- of the Army took their way by Eand to Cepreter, found among themselves, who born rasus, a Greek Town, where the Fleet likein that place had been fold into Greece, they wife arrived. Here the Army being mumade a good peace) they arrived in the stered, was found to confift of eight thou-Land of Cholchos, wherein stands the City fand and fix hundred men. From hence they of * Trabifond, called then Trapezus, a Colo- passed through the Country of the Moral through the Country of the Marian ny of the Greeks. The Colehr entertaining maci, who were divided into factions. The a Name

The next place of their abode was b Coty b Cotynta thirty dayes together, forbearing only the ora, a Greek Town likewife, and a Colony of Townin Borderers upon Trainzond, at the Citizens the Synopians, as Trapezus and Cerafus were; the fame but the entertainment which here they Region. found was very churlish, having neither an open Market afforded to them, nor the fick men that were among them admitted into How the Army began at Trabizond to provide any house. Hereupon the Souldiers entred the Town by force, and (committing no outrage) bestowed those which were sick in convenient lodgings, taking into their own hands the custody of the Gates. Provision Aving now found an Haven-Town, the for the Army they made by ftrong hand, Souldiers were defirous to take fhip- partly out of the Territory of the Paphlago c size party out of the 1 erritory of the Papanage examples, and change their tedious Land-journies into an ealie Navigation. To which purpose Cherisophus a Lacedemonian, one of the principal Commanders, promise by the Camp, who complaining of these dear appliques the camp.

CHAP. X. lings, and threatning to joyn with the Fa- ferved his mony carefully, was defirous to would they not put from the shore.

how it was embarked.

hings, and the might freely enjoy blagonians, if redress could not otherwise be foon at home, that he might freely enjoy had, were roundly answered by Xenophon, his gettings. By him the purpose of Xenophon had, were necessity had enforced the Army was divulged, which was interpreted acto teach those of Cotyora good manners in so cording to the diversity of mens opinions : to teach thook : letting them know, that he some approving the motion, but the greater feared not to deal with them and the Pa- part rejecting it. They of Sinope and Heraphlagonian at once; though perhaps the Pa- clea, being informed of this confultation. phlagonian would be glad to take Sinope it were fore afraid, left the poverty of the felf; to which, if cause were given, they Souldiers, who had not wherewith to mainwould lend affiftance. Upon this answer the tain themselves at home, should give success Emballadours grew better advised, promite to the project. Which to prevent, they profing all friendship that the State of Sinope mised to supply the Army with a sufficient ould flew, and commanding the Town of Fleet, and likewise offered mony to some of Cotyona to relieve the Souldiers as well as the Captains, who thereupon undertook to they might. Further, they promifed to give the Souldiers pay, if they would preafish them with shipping, letting them un- sently set sail for Greece. One of these Capderstand how difficult the passage by Land tains being a banished man, defired them to would prove, in regard of the many and follow him into Tross; another offered to great Rivers, as Thermodon, Tris, Halys, and lead them into Cherronesus. Xenophon, who Farthenius, which croffed their way. This defired only the common good, was pleafed good counfel, and the fair promifes accome greatly with these propositions, and profef-panying it, were kindly accepted by the Army, which well perceived, that the City of forward, and hold together in any case, pusinope would spare for no cost, to be freed mishing him as a Traitor that should forsake from such a neighbourhood. It was there- the Army, before such time as they were arfore decreed that they would pass the rest rived at their journies end. Silanus the of the way by Sea; provided, that if there Sooth-fayer, who had uttered Xenophons should want such number of Vetfels as might purpose, was hereby stayed from out-runferve to imbark every one of them, then ning his fellows, and driven to abide with t his wealth among poor men, longer than stood with his good liking. Also the other Captains were much troubled and affraid, b when they perceived that ships were prepa-Of differtion which arose in the Army; and red sufficient for their Navigation, but that the mony promised to them, and by them to the Souldiers, came not. For the people of Itherto the danger of enemies, and sinepe, and Heraclea, knowing that the Army I mileries of weather and wants, had was now resolved for the voyage, and that kept the company in firm unity; which now | Xenophon, whom they leared, had perswaded began to diffolve and to thaw, by the neight them to this resolution, thought it the wisest bouring air of Greece, warming their heads way to furnish them with a Navy, whilet with private respects to their several ends they were in good readiness, to depart, but and purposes. Whilst they, who were fent to keep the mony to themselves. The Capas Agents from the Camp; remained at si- tains therefore, who being disappointed by nope ; Xenophon confidering the ftrength and these Towns, found themselves in great danvalour of his men, and the opportunity of ger of their men, whom they had deceived the coast whereon they lay, thought it with fair hopes, repented much of their fair would be an honourable work to build a offers, and fignifying as much to Xenophon, City in those parts, which were soon like to prayed him to make proposition to the Arprovegreat and wealthy in regard both of my, of taking the ships, and sayling to Phasis, their own puillance; and of the great repair where they might feize upon Lands, and of the Greeks into that quarter. For this plant themselves in such wise as should stand cause he made sacrifice according to the su- best with their good liking. But finding persistion of his time and Country, divining him cold in the business, they began to work of his fuccess by the entrails of beasts. The the principal of their own followers, hoping Sooth-fayer whom he imployed had receive by them to draw in all the reft. These ed agreen reward of Cyrus, for conjecturing news becoming publick, bred a suspition of aright, that Arracer would not give bat- Xenophon, as if he had won the rest of the tel in ten dayes: he therefore, having pre- Captains to his purpole, and meant now

ø. XIII.

CHAP. X.

CHAP. X

their own home. Wherefore affembling the in lending ships for their transportation, Two Companies, he gave them fatisfaction, and daies they had failed by the coaft of Afia, withal complained of some disorders, which when being past those great Rivers, which he caused them to redress. A general in- would have given impediment to their jourquisition was likewise made of offences com- ny by Land, they touched at Heraclea, where mitted fince the death of Cyrus; which be consulting how to take their way onwards. ing punished, all things were in quiet. whether by Land or Sea, one seditious man Shortly after came Embassadours from Co- began to put them in mind of seeking to get rylus, Lord of the Paphlagonians, who fend- somewhat for themselves; telling them that ing presents, defired peace of the Greeks: all their provision would be spent in three the Embassadours were friendly entertain- dayes, and that being now come out of the ed, and peace concluded, which needed not enemies Country, victuals and other necesto have been fought, for that the Greeks, faries could not be had without money; for having now their fleet in a readiness, did which cause he gave advice to send messensoon weigh Anchors, and set sail for Harmene gers into the Town of Heraclea, giving the the Port of sinope, whither Cherisophus came, Citizens to understand what their wants bringing with him a few Gallies from the were, and demanding of them threethou-Admiral Anaxibius, who promifed to give fand pieces of mony, called Cyzicens, which the Army pay as foon as they came into the fum amounteth to two thousand and five parts of Greece.

610

ø. XIV.

Another great dissension and distraction of the Army. How the mutiners were beaten by the Barbarians, and rescued by Xenophon.

Greece, the greater was their defire agreed not with his disposition, others of to make provision for themselves, that more impudency and less discretion were they might not return home empty-handed. | fent; who in such wise delivered their inso-Wherefore trusting well that if the charge lent message, that the Citizens taking time to of the Army were absolutely committed to deliberate upon their request, brought what one sufficient man, he might the more con- they could out of the fields into the Town, veniently procure the good of them all they and shutting the Gates, did forthwith man determined to make Xenophon sole Comthe Walls. When the Souldiers perceived mander of all; in whose favour as well the themselves to be disappointed of their rave-Captains as the common Souldiers were very nous purpole, they fell to mutiny, faying, earnest and violent. But he, either fearing | That their Leaders had betrayed them and to displease the Lacedamonians, who were being for the more part of them Arcadians jealous of him already (being incensed by and Acheans, they for sook immediately Chethat fugitive who for look the Army at Tra- risophus and Xenophon, chusing new Leaders bizond, flying with one of their two fhips)or out of their own number. Above four thoumoved by some tokens appearing to him in sand and five hundred they were, all heavithe entrails that threatned ill success to his ly armed, who electing ten Captains, failed Government, procured with vehement con- into the Port of Calphas, which is in the midtention, that this honour was laid upon cherisophus a Lacedamonian. It feems that Xeno- purpose to assail the Bythinians on the sudphon, confidering the vexation incident to den. With Cherisophus there abode two the conduct of a voluntary Army, wanting thousand and one hundred, of whom one pay, did wifely in yielding to such tokens as thousand and four hundred were armed forbad him to accept it : especially, knowing weightily: Xenophon had two thousand foot, fo well their defire, which was, by right or three hundred whereof were lightly armed, by wrong, to get wealth wherefoever it and forty horse; which small band had done might be found, without all regard of friend good fervice already, and could not have or foe. Cherisophus had been General but fix been spared now. Cherisophus had agreed or feven dayes, when he was deposed, for with Cleander Governour of Byzantium, to having been unwilling to rob the Town of meet him at the mouth of the River Calpbas, to carry the Army quite another way from Camp, and been very beneficial unto them hundred pound sterling or thereabout. This motion was greatly applauded, and the fum raised to ten thousand Cyzicens at least; which to require, they thought Cherisophus, as being General, the fittest man; others had more defire to fend Xenophon, but in vain, for they both refused it, and renounced the action as dishonest. Lest therefore either of these He nearer that they approached to should fail in managing the business which way between Heraclea and Byzantium, with Heraclea, which had fent prefents to the whither Cleander promifed to bring fome vantage the Thracians had, that being all to dif-joyn the Army, should suffer death. light armed they could at pleasure make retrait from these Arcadians and Achaans, who wanting the affiftance of horse, and having neither Archers nor Slingers among them, Of divers pieces of service done by Xenophon; were driven to stand meerly upon their defence, bearing off with great danger, and many wounds received, the Darts and Arrows of the Barbarians, till finally they were driven from their watering place, and enforced to crave parly. Whatfoever the Articles of

Gallies to convey him over into Greece; for on a light flame, to the great terrour of the which cause he took his way thither by enemies, who thought that some huge Army which cause to Kenophon fuch flipping as he had approached. That night he encamped Land, caving to accompany to the way by on a hill, within five mile of the Arcadians, had 3 who pains the confines of Heraelea, encreasing still the number of his fires, which Sea, randed appliatica, intending to make a cut he caused hastily to be quenched from after and Thrasia, intending to make a cut and the approximate and Country to the Pro-Supper The enemics perceiving this, though pont. The Mutiners who had landed at Calpont. I have the purpose to take spoils in them in the dark, which caused them in all poss by ingering and themselves into ten Com-haste to dislodge. Early in the next morning bytaning, are Captain leading his own Repanies, every Captain leading his own Regiment into fome Village, five or fix miles der, to have given battel found that his defrom the Sea; in the greater Towns were vice, to affright the Thracians, had taken full two Regiments quartered: and fo was that effect; but he marvelled that the Greeks part of the Country surprised on the sudden, were also departed, concerning whom he and facked all at one time. The place of learned by enquiry, that they removed at Rendevous was an high piece of Ground, break of day, and perceived by figns that where some of them arrived, finding no di- they had taken the way to the Port of Calfurbance; others, not without much trou- phas, in which journey he overtook them. ble and danger: two Companies were bro- They embraced him and his, with great joy: ken and defeated, only eight men escaped, confessing that they themselves had thought the reft were all put to the fword. For the the fame which the enemies did, looking Thracians which had flipt at first out of the that he should have come by night; wherein Souldiers hands, did raile the Country; and finding themselves deceived, they were affinding the Greek loaden with booty, took fraid left he had for faken them, and therethe advantage of their disorder, cutting in fore hastened away to overtake him, and pieces those two Regiments: which done, joyn with him So they arrived at the Haven they attempted the reft, encompassing the of calphas, where it was decreed, That whohill whereon they encamped. One great ad- foever from thenceforth made any motion

ø. XV.

and how the Army returned into Greece. The occasions of the War between the Lacedæmonians and the Persians.

He Haven of Calphas lay under a goodly head-land, that was very composition were, the Thracians yielded to strong, and abounding with all kind of all; but pledges for affurance they would give | Grain and Fruits, except Olives. There was none, without which the Greeks well knew, also Timber for building and shipping, and that all promifes of such people, especially so | a very convenient Sea for a great City. All incensed, were nothing worth. In the mean which commodities that might have allured time Xenophon holding his way quietly the Souldiers to stay there, and to plant, through the In-land Region, did enquire of caused them to haste away, fearing lest fome Travellers, whether they knew ought | Xenophon flould find fome device to have of any Grecian Army, passing along those settled himself and them in that place. For parts: and receiving by them true informa- the greater part of them had good means to tion of the desperate case into which these live at home; neither did they so much for Gallants had foolifhly thrown themselves, he hope of gain follow Cyrus in that War, as in marched directly towards the place where regard of his Honour, and the love which they lay, taking with him for guides, them they bare unto him: the poorer fort were who gave him the intelligence. His horse-men such as left their Parents, Wives, and Chilhe sent before to discover, and to scour the dren, to whom (though failing of the riches wayes; the light armed foot-men took the which they had hoped to purchase) they hill tops on either hand, all of them setting were now desirous to return. But whether it fire on what loever they found combustible: were so that Xenophon found advantage by whereby the whole Country feemed to be their own superstition, to make them stay, Hhhh 2 which they greatly suspected; or whether stain them in the place, and ships to carry were inforced to abide in the place till vi- their dinners, than another day falling; and cruals failed: neither would the Captains not to regard the uneasse return, which lead them forth to forrage the Country, un-might ferve to stay Cowards from running til the Sacrifices should promise good success. away but to wish unto the Enemy a fair and Cherisophus was dead of an Ague, and his easie way, by which he might fly from them. ships were gone, being returned to the Hera- These perswasions were followed with so cleans, of whom they were borrowed. His valiant execution, that both Persians and Brfollowers were joyned to the rest of the Ar- thinians being chased out of the field, abanmy, which the greater it was, the more pro- doned the Country forthwith, removing vision it needed, and the sooner felt want. For their Families, and leaving all that could which cause, he that was chosen Colonel in not suddenly be conveighed away, to the to the place of Cherisophus, would needs ad- discretion of the Greeks, who at good leasure venture to gratifie the Souldiers with the gathered the Harvest of these bad Neighspoil of some Villages that stood near at bours fields. This was the last fight which hand; in which enterprise he found ill suc- they had on the side of Asia. For they were cess, the whole Country lying in wait to in- not only suffered quietly to enjoy the spoil trap him, and an Army of Horse being set by of the Country, but when the opinion grew Pharnabazus the Satrapa, or Vice-roy of Phry- common in those parts, that it was the intent gia, to the affiftance of these Bythinian Thra- of Xenophon to plant a Colony on the Port of rest to a certain Mountain there by. The Souldiers had no mind to stay. Wherefore news of this overthrow coming to Xenophon, entring further into Bythinia, they took a he led forth a part of the Army to the rescue great booty, which they carried away unto of those that survived, and brought them Chrysopolis, a City near unto Chalcedon, fafe to the Camp; upon which the Bythinians where they fold it. Tharnabazus, Lieuteto the very Tents. This new courage of the might breed in them a defire to visite his enemy, together with the present condition Province, where they might have found the figns appearing in the entrails, did in them away? Wherefore he willed them deed forbid their departure; fo long they rather to fight well that day, having eaten cians, which troops falling upon the Greeks that were feattered abroad in feeking booty, flew five hundred of them, and chafed the make offer of their best assistance. But the made an offer that night, and breaking a nant in Phrygia to Artaxerxes, did greatly Corps du garde, flew some, pursuing the rest fear, lest their long stay in that Country of the Army, so disheartned and unfurnished great wealth, and little power to guard it. of necessaries, caused the Greeks to remove Therefore he sent to the Lacedamonian Adtheir Camp to a place of more strength; miral, intreating him with much instance which having intrenched and committed to and large promifes to wast them over into the defence of fuch as were least able to endure travel, Xenophon with the firmest and condescending, promised to give the Souldibest able men went forth, both to bury those ers pay, as soon as they arrived at Byzantiwhich were lately flain, and to abate the um. So were they carried out of Asia at the inpride of the Thracians, and their affiltants. treaty of the Persian, who in the height of his In this journey his demeanour was very ho- pride had thought them fo furely imprisonnourable. For having given burial to the ed with mighty Rivers, that he not only dedead, the enemy was discovered, lying on nied to permit their quiet departure, but the tops of the hills adjoyning, to whom willed them to furrender their Arms into (notwithstanding that the way was very his hands, and so to yield their lives to his rough & troublesome, so that some thought | discretion. How discourteously they were it a matter of too great danger, to leave at intreated by Anaxibius, and how, to requite their backs a wood fcarce passable) he his injurious dealings, they seized upon Bymarched directly, telling his men plainly, zantium, which by Xenophons perswasion that he had rather follow the enemy with they forbare to fack; I hold it superfluous half the number, than turn his back to them to relate. For the refidue of their doings with twice as many; and letting them further appertain little to the general course of know, that if they did not charge the Barba- things. But this expedition, as in all ages rians, he would not fail with the greater re- it was glorious, so did it both discover the folution to pursue them; from whom if they | secrets of Asia, and stir up the Greek to could fafely retire to the camp, yet what think upon greater enterprifes, than ever should they do there, wanting victuals to su- their forefathers had undertaken. Likewise CHAP. XI. it was the only remarkable action which the King, prepared to rebel; which they thought time afforded. For the Roman Wars did hi- fafer, than to fall into the hands of Tillapherinerto extend no further than to the next mes, who was now appointed Lieutenant, neighbouring-Towns of Italy; and in Greece both of his old Province, and of all that all things were quiet, the Lacedemonians ru- had belonged to Cyrus. Wherefore the Ioniling infolently, but without diffurbance. ans befought the Lacedamonians to fend Trucitis, that the feeds of the War short- them aid, whereby to recover their liberly following, which the Lacedamonians ty; and obtained their request. For a power made upon Artaxerxes, were already fown, was sent over, under conduct of Thimbro a before the Companies returned out of the Spartan, who befowed his men in such that Countries of Asia. For the Towns of Towns as had already revolted, to secure Jonia, which had fided with young Cyrus the Cities and their Fields, but not to make and Tiffaphernes, if not against the Great any offensive War.

6:2

CHAP. XI.

Of the Affairs of Greece, whilft they were managed by the Lacedamonians.

ø. I.

How the Lacedamonians took courage by example of Xenophons Army, to make War upon Artaxerxes.

fifty five furlongs, spent in going and re-turning, which make of English miles about four thousand two hundred fourscore and one, a very painful march of one year and three months. Nevertheless, the civil di- The prosperous beginnings of the War in Asia. straction, wherewith Greece was miserably torn, and especially that hot fire of the Theban War, which, kindled with Persian gold,

If seems that the Lacedamonians did Estate; leaving it questionable, whether well perceive in how ill part Artax- Agesilaus having both the same, and far greaerxes took their favour shewed unto ter forces, could have wrought proportionhis Brother, and yet were timorous in able effects. Sure it is, that in the whole beginning an open War against him, space of two years, which he spent in Asia, thinking it sufficient to take all care that no his deeds procured more commendation of advantage might flip, which could ferve to magnanimity and fair behaviour, than of strengthen their Estate, by finding the Per- stout courage, and great or profitable atfan work beyond the Sea. But when Xeno chievements. For how highly loever it plea-phons Army had revealed the baseness of select Xenophon, who was his friend, and folthose effeminate Asiatiques, and rehearsed lower in this, and in other Wars, to extol his the many Victories which they themselves virtue; his exploits being only a few incurhad gotten, upon terms of extreme difad- fions into the Countries lying near the Sea, vantage; then was all Greece filled with de- carrying no proportion to Xenophons own fire of undertaking upon this huge unweildy journey, which I know not whether any Empire, thinking it no hard matter for the Age hath paralleled: the famous retrait of joynt-forces of that whole Nation, to hew Conon the Briton with fix thousand men from out the way to Susa, whereof one handful Aquileia, to his own Country, through all had opened the passage to Babylon; and further, finding no power that was able to give despite of the Emperour Theodosus, being them refistance, in all that long journey of rather like it than equal. But of Agefilaus and four and thirty thousand two hundred and his Wars in Asia and Greece, we shall speak

ø. II.

Himbro receiving Xenophons men, began to take inTowns, and to entertain brake forth suddenly into a great flame, all such as were willing to revolt from the drew back out of Asia the power of the La- Persian, who were many, and some of them redamonians, to the defence of their own fuch, as had been highly beholding to the

615

Aingywnotech to have had no other tand or discontent, than that they were to live under the Government of Tissaphernes, whom all the Governous firming in vain to have kept others did as vehemently hate, as the King it to the use of Pharnabazus. Now remainhis Master did love him. The managing of ed only two Cities, Gergethe and sceptis, the War begun by Thimbro, was for his op- which the Traytor held; who fearing all the war begun by termore, was for us preffions taken out of his hands; and committed to Dercyllidas a Spartan, who behaved dours to Dercyllidas, desiring leave to speak himself as a good man of War, and a wife with him, and pledges for his security: up-Commander. For whereas the Rule of the on the delivery of which, he issued out of low-Countries of Asia was divided between the comming it to the Camp, made of the countries of Asia was divided between the comming it to the Camp, made of the countries of the agree, Pharmarbazus being the worthier conditions as might feem reasonable, But man, but the other by his Princes favour he was plainly told by Dercyllidas, that the greater, and having the chief command other condition there was none, than to fet in those Wars against the Greeks; Dercylli- the Citizens freely at liberty. And presentdas, who did bear a private hatred to Phar- ly upon these words they marched toward wahazus (knowing well that Tiffaphernes was Scepfis. When Midias perceived that it was of a michieveus nature, and would not be in vain to strive against the Army, and the forry to fee his Corrival throughly beaten, Towns-men, who were all of one mind; he though to the Kings lefs) made an appoint | quietly went along with Dercyllidas, who ment with Tissaphernes, and forthwith entred remaining but a few hours in the City, dida Æolis, which was under the jurisdiction of facrifice to Minerva, and then leading away Pharnabazas, which Province in few daies, the Garrison of Medias, he left the City free, he brought into his own power.

fame time fuffered a violent alteration, him, earneftly entreating that he might be which gave easie success to the attempts of suffered to retain Gergethe: but coming to Dercyllidas. Zenis a Dardanian had been the Gates, he was bidden to command Deputy to Pharnabazus in those parts; after his Souldiers that they should be opened; whose death his Wife Mania procured his for (quoth Dercyllidas) I must here likewise Office, wherein she behaved her self so well, do a facrifice to Minerva. The Traytor, not that the not only was beloved of the people daring to make denial, caused his Merceunder her Government, but enlarged her naries to open the Gates, whereby Dargl-Territory, by the Conquest of certain Towns lidas, taking possession of the place, tendred adjoyning; and fundry times gave affiftance pay to the Garrison, who did not refuse to to Pharnabazus in his Wars against the My serve under his Ensigns. This done, all the fians and Persians. For the had in pay fome goods of Mania were scized upon, as belong Companies of Greeks, whose valour by her ing to one that had been subject to Phargood usage, did her great service. But some mabazus, who was enemy to the Greeks: and what before the arrival of Dercyllidas in so the murdrous wretch was sent away those parts, a Son-in-law of hers, called Mi- naked, not knowing in what part of the diss, whom she trusted and loved much, be- World he might find any place to hidehis ing blinded with ambition, found means to detefted head. Deryclidas having in eight stille her, and kill her Son of seventeen years daies taken nine Cities, purposed for the case old; which done, he seized upon two of of his Consederates to winter in Bythinia, to her principal Towns, wherein her treasure which end he took Truce with Pharnabalay, hoping to have been admitted into pof zus, who had not any defire of War. That fession of her whole Estate. Being denyed en- Winter, and the Summer ensuing, the trance by her Souldiers that lay in Garrison, Truce being continued, held; in which time, he fent Mellengers with Prefents to Phar- befides the walting of Bythinia, the neck of nabazus, desiring him to make him Gover- Land joyning Cherronea to the Main, was nour in the place of Mania. His Prefents fortified, being four or five miles inbreadth, were not only rejected by Pharnabazus, but by which means eleven Towns, with much revenge of his foul treafon threatned, where good Land belonging to them, were freed by the wicked villain was driven into terms from the incussions of the wilde Thracians, of almost utter desperation. In the mean and made sit and able to victual the Camp. time came Dercyllidas, to whom the Towns Likewise the City of Atarne was taken, of Mania, that held against Midias, did which was of great strength, and very well quickly open their Gates. One only Town stored with provision. After this, Derej lidas Kingswho feem to have had no other cause of flood out four daies (against the will of the and departed toward Gergethe. Midias That Country of Æolis had about the did not forfake his Company, but followed time of necessity; yet was he not in his own not adventure to finish by tryal of a battell. danger requited with the like. For Pharnabazus, having respect to the Kings service, came to affift his private enemy Tiffaphernes, and so passing into Caria, they thrust Garrisons into all places of strength; which done, they marched towards Ionia, hoping to find the Towns ill manned for relistance. As these Persians were desirous to keep the War from their own doors, so was Dercylli-had command from sparta to divert the enjoy their own liberty and laws; but con-War into Caria, where was the feat of Tiffa- trariwife, on the other fide, That the Lacephernes; for that hereby it was thought demonians should depart Asia, and leave not uneafie to recover all the Towns of Io- the Towns to the Kings pleasure. This Treaty nia; pharax the Admiral of the fleet (which was of none effect; only it served to free the was a yearly office) being appointed to joyn Greeks from the present danger, and to gain with him. Though it was manifest that time unto Tissaphernes, who defired to avoid Tillaphernes had neglected Pharnabazus in theWar by procrastination, which he durst

ø. III.

How the Lacedamonians took revenge upon the Eleans for old displeasures. The discontents of the Corinthians and Thebans, conceived against the State of Sparta.

IN the mean feafon the Lacedamonians who found none able to withstand them das willing to free his Confederats the in Greece, began to call the Eleans to ac-Tonians from the spoil and danger of the compt for some disgraces received by them War, by transferring it into Caria. For which during the late Wars, when leifure cause he passed the River of Maander; and was wanting to the requital of such not looking to have been so soon encoun- petty injuries. These Eleans being Presitred,marched carelelly through the Coun- dents of the Olympian games, had fet a try: when on the very sudden the whole Ar- sine upon the City of Sparta; for Non-paymy of Tissaphernes & Pharnabazus was disco- ment of which, they forbad them to come vered, confisting of Persians, Carians, & some to the solemnity; and publickly whipt one Mercenary Greeks, who were all marshalled of them that was of note, for prefuming in very good order to present battail. The to contend against their decree. Likewise odds was too apparent, both in numbers they hindred Agis King of Sparta from doof men, and in readiness, as also in advantage | ing facrifice to Jupiter; and in all points of ground: for the Persian had a great mul- used great contempt toward the Spartans, titude of Horse, the Greek very few and who now had no business that could himfeeble, being to fight in an open plain. der them from taking revenge: and there-Therefore all the Ionians, together with the fore fent a peremptory message to the Ele-Ilanders and others, of fuch places as bor- ans, commanding them to fet at liberty the dered upon the Kings Dominions, did either | Cities which they held in Subjection. This betake themselves to present flight; or was the usual pretence, which they made abiding a while for thame , did plainly di- the ground of all their Wars: though litkover by their looks, that they meant not the they cared for the liberty of fuch Towns, to be more bold than wife. Only Dercyl- which they caused afterwards to become lidas with his Peleponnesians, regarding their followers, and little better than meer Vassals honour, prepared to endure the fight, of the Lacedamoaians. In their late Wars which must needs have brought them to with Athens, the strong opposition which destruction, if the counsel of Pharnabazus they found, caused this goodly Title of lihad been followed; who perceiving the op- berty to work very flowly: but having now portunity of so great a victory, was not wil- to do with a State of great spirit and small ling to let it slip. But Tissaphernes, who na- force, it gave present success to their desires. turally was a coward, feeing that counte- Two years together they fent an Army innance of refistance was made, began to con- to the Countrey of the Eleans: the first year fider what strange defence the Souldiers of an Earth-quake (held in those times a pro-Xenophon had shewed, and thinking that all digious fign, and which did alwayes forbid the Greeks were of the like resolution, held the prosecution of any enterprise in hand) it the wifest way to crave parley; the con- caused them to retire: the second year, all clusion of which was, That a Truce should the Towns of the Eleans did hastily revolt, be made, to last untill Tissaphernes might re and the City it self was driven to submisceive answer from the King, and Dercyllidas fion; consenting both to suffer their old subfrom sparta, concerning the demands pro- jects freely to enjoy their liberty, and to pounded in the Treaty; which were, on the have her own Walls thrown down. Only one part, That all the Greeks in Asia might the Presidentship of the Olympian games doubted that they would in time coming malice, that fending fome Companies of use modefily, finding themselves to stand at horse, they threw down his facrifice from the mercy of Sparta. In this expedition all the Altar. It was not then convenient time the Greeks were assistant to the Lacedamo- for Agesilaus to entangle himself and his nians, excepting the Corinthians and Boo- Countrey in a new War; therefore waiting tians, whose aid having been of as much better opportunity of revenge, he quietly importance in the late Peloponnesian War, as swallowed the contumely, and followed his the force of Sparta it felf, they could not main intendment. Having landed his men at smother their dislike of their unequal divi- Ephesus, he was entertained by Tissaphernes fion following the victory; which gave to with a Treaty of peace, wherein Agellans Sparta the command of all Greece; to Thebes peremptorily requiring that the Persian and Corinth, only fecurity against Athens, should restore to liberty all the Greek Towns but fuch a fecurity as was worse than the in Asia, was promised that the King, being first danger. For when the equal greatness of informed of his demand, should fend answer two mighty Estates, did counterpoise each to his good liking, if he would in the mean the other, it was in the power of these Neu- while make Truce. Truce was therefore tral Common-weals to adhere to either, as made, which Tisaphernes had fought, only the condition of their affairs required; but to win time of making provision for the when, to revenge injuries, they had by mortal hatred profecuted the War to extremity, and geting fupply of men and money tall hatred profecuted the War to extremity, from Artaxerxes, whill the Agefluus was buffer to the content of leaving the one City naked of power and | in fetling the estates of his confederate Cifriends, the other mightily increased in ties oc that fide of the Sea. The end of this both; it was then (if not necessary to obey long vacation from war was at the coming the greatness which themselves had made, down of these forces which Artaxerses yet) foolish and dangerous to provoke it. had fent: at what time Agefslaus received a Nevertheles, it was not the purpose of the plain message from Tissaphernes, that either spartans to take occasion of any quarrel, which they could not finish at pleasure, till fuch time as they had by victory or composition made some good end with the Persian, toward whom they bent all their care and forces.

616

Kings good.

Awas defirous to have the honour of the into that Countrey which was fittelt for victory, which not without cause, he expel their service. But the Greeks left him waiting pected upon those of Asia; and therefore there in vain, and marched directly into procuring a great Army to joyn with that Phrygia, where they took great spoyl with of Dercyllidas, he took his way in great out refistance, till such time as the Horsepompto Aulis in Beotia, a Haven lying opposite to the Iland of Eubea; in which small skirmish having the better of the place Agamemnon (leading the power of all Greeks, were the occasion that Agefilans re-Greece to the War against Troy many Ages turned to Ephefus. Although in this last before) had imbarked his men. In imitation fight only twelve men were loft, yet Agesof Agamemnon, he meant also to do sacri- lans perceiving by that tryal how hard it fice in Aulis, which the Thebans, Lords of would be to prevail, and hold the mastery that Countrey, would not permit, but faying, that the performance of such Ceremo-Horse, took all possible care to increase that nies in that place, belonged unto their Offi- part of his forces. By which means having was lest unto them, which it was not to be | cers; they were so unable to coneeal their he must forthwith depart out of Asia, or make good his abode by strong hand. Agesilaus returning word, that he was glad to hear that his enemies had by perjury deserved vengeance from heaven, prepared to invade them; and fending word to all the Towns which lay between him and Caria, that they should provide victuals and other necessaries for his Army did easily make Tiffapher-The passage of Agesilaus into Asia. His War nes believe, that his intent was to invade that with Tislaphernes. How Tislaphernes was Province wherein Tissaphernes dwelt, and put to death; and the War diverted into which was unfit for Horse, in which part another Province, through perfivation and of his forces the Perfian had most configifts of Tithraustes his successour. How dence. Therefore Tissaphernes bestowing careles the Persian Lieutenants were of the all his Companies of foot in Caria, entred with his Horse into the plains of Meander, hoping thereby to stop the passage of a Gestlaus newly made King of Sparta, heavy foot-army, not suffering them to pass entred upon the Country of Tiffaphernes, as thirty Talents. foon as the feafon of the year would permit, of Asia; he did not seek to finish the War, of making fuch end as best might stand with it feems that he much mistook his Princes disposition, who though he had highly rewarded him for the aid which he did bring more gladly have taken it, if he could have feries. found fuch means whereby the danger it self might have been avoided: as not loving to have War, whilst by any conditions (honourable, or not) he might obtain peace. And this appeared well by the course which Tithraustes took at his first possession of the low-Countries. For he sent Embassadours to Agefilaus, in very friendly fort, letting him enabled himself, whilst Winter lasted, he Tithraustes, who bought his departure with

This was a strange manner of War, both and not only took a great booty, but finding on the offensive, and on the defensive part. the Horse-men of Tissaphernes in the plain of For Agesilans having entertained great hopes Meander, without affiftance of their infan- of vanquishing the great King, was contentery, he gave them battel, and had a great ted to forbear his feveral Provinces, at the Victory, taking their Camp, in which he entreaty of the Lieutenants: and those Lieufound great riches. The blame of this loss tenants being employed by the King to mainfell heavy upon Tissaphernes, who either upon cowardife had absented himself from the if they failed, they knew that their heads battel, or following some other business, might easily be taken from their shoulders) was then at Sardis. For which cause his were little offended at any loss that fell on Master having him in distrust, and thinking their next Neighbour-Princes, which were that peace might be the sooner had, which subject likewise to the same Crown of Persta, he much defired, if the man, so odious to the so long as their own Government could be whole Nation of the Greeks, were taken out | preserved from waste and danger. The cause of the way; he fent into those parts Tithran- of this disorder on the Fersian side, I can fies a Persian, to cut off the head of Tissapher- ascribe to nothing so deservedly, as to the nes, and succeed him in the Government. corrupted estate of the Court, wherein Eu-Such was the end of this base and cowardly nuchs, Concubines, and ministers of plea-Politician, who little caring to offend Hea- fure, were able, by partial construction, to ven, when by perjury he could advance his countenance, or difgrace, the actions of fuch purposes on Earth, failed at the last, through as had the managing of things abroad; and too much over-weening of his own wife- to that foolish manner of the Kings (which dom, even in that part of cunning wherein was so usual that it might be called a rule) he thought himself most perfect; for sup- to reward or punish the Provincial Goverpoling, that by his great skill in fubtile ne- nour, according to the benefit or loss, which gotiation he should one way or other cir- the Country, given in charge unto each of cumvent the Greeks, and make them weary them, received, during the time of his rule. Whereby it came to pals, that as every one and, according to his Masters wish, bring all was desirous to make his own territory yield things freedily to quiet, but rather to temporize, till he might find some opportunity man was careful to affilt his borderers, if loss or danger might thereby grow to himthe Kings honour and his own. Wherein felf and his but fate still as an idle beholder, when perhaps by joyning their forces, it had not been uneafie to recompence the spoil of one Country, by conquering another, in his time of danger, yet would he much or defending a third from far greater mi-

ø. V.

The War and Treaty between Agefilaus and Pharnabazus.

Gesilaus having thus compounded with Tithraustes, entred Phrygia, burning know, that the man who had been Authour and wasting the Country without resiof the War, was now taken out of the way; stance. He took the Palace of Pharnabaand that it was the Kings pleasure to let the zw, and by his Lieutenant drave him out of Greeks enjoy their own laws and liberty, the Camp. These Actions, together with upon condition, that they should pay him his honourable behaviour, which added the tribute accustomed, and the Army be much to their lustre, were more glorious forthwith dismissed. The answer to this pro- than profitable. For he did not win Cities and polition, was by Agesilaus referred to the Places of strength, which might have en-Council of sparta; in the mean season he creased his power, and given assurance to was content to transfer the War into the the rest of his proceedings: but purchased Province of Pharnabazus, at the request of fame and high reputation, by which he drew unto him some that were discontented and ftood upon bad terms with the great King; whom he loft again as eafily, by means of some sleight injury done to them by his under-Captains. Pharnabazus did not enclose himself in any Town, for fear of being belieged, but keptsthe field, lying as neer as he could fafely to the enemies, with whom it was not his purpose to fight, but to make fome good end by composition, which he found not uneafie to do. For the plea- by the City of sparta was not only driven fures, by him formerly done to the State of to look to her own, and give over her Sparts, in the times of their most necessity, great hopes of subverting the Empire, but had been fo great, that when he (ob- was beaten out of all that had been gottaining parley) did fet before their eyes ten by many late victories, and faw her his bounty towards them, and his love, Dominion restrained unto the narrow (which had been fuch, that befides many | bounds of her own Territory. He fent inother hazzards of his person, he had for the to Greece fifty talents of filver, to be imrescue of their sleet, when it was driven ployed in raising war against the Lacedomoto run a shore at Abyelus, adventured to nians; which treasure was by the subtle praride into the Seas as far as he could find clice of him that was put intruft withit in any ground, and fight on horfe-back such wife dispersed among the principal men against the Athenians) together with his of the Thebans, Argives, and Corinthians, that faith which had never been violated in all those Estats having formerly born secret word or deed: they knew not how to hateto that of sparta, were now defirous excuse their ingratitude, otherwise than of nothing so much, as of open war. And by telling him, That having War with his Master, they were inforced against their tude should, for want of present exercise, bewill, to offend him. Agefilaus did make a fair gin to faint and vanish away in idle words, offer to him, that if he would revolt from occasion was found out to thrust the Lacethe King to them, they would maintain demonians into Arms, that they themselves him against the Persian, and establish him might seem Authors of the quarrel. Some free Prince of the Countrey wherein he land there was in the tenure of the Lorium, was at that time only Deputy to Artax- to which the Thebans had in former timelaid erxes. But Pharnabazus told him plain- claim; but the Phocians either having the ly, That if the King his Master did put better title, or finding the greater favour, had him in trust to make war against them, he would not fail to do the best that he could as their enemy; if the charge were either hired or perswaded to pay now to the taken out of his hand, and he commanded Thebans, who readily accepted it. The Fhoto obey another, he would then shift side, cians not meaning so to lose their Rent, made and betakehimself to their alliance. The a distress by strong hand, recovering a iffue of this parley was, That the Army great deal more than their own; which the should no longer abide in Phrygia, nor Thebans (as in protection of their new Teagain return into it, whilest employment could be found elsewhere. The excuse Phocis, wasting that Countrey in the manner revenge.

CHAP. XI.

618

ø. VI.

The great commotions raised in Greece by the Thebans and others, that were hired with gold from the Persian.

IN the mean while Tithrauftes, perceiving that Agesilaus meant nothing less than to return into Greece, and let Artaxerxes rest quietly in Asia, took a wife course, wheremade by Agestlams, and the withdrawing of of open war. Such were the beginnings of his forces out of those parts, were not professed hostility between Thebes & Sparts, fufficient to appeale Pharnabazus, whom & the first breaking out of their close emihe had not invaded for want of more necessary business elsewhere; but because his concealed. For when the Phocian Embassa-Countrey would yield great booty, and for the hire of thirty Talents. By this means lence done by the Thebans, & requesting size. the Lacedemonians changed an honourable cour, they had very favourable audience, & Friend into a hot Enemy, who afterwards ready consent to their suite, it being the manrequited their unthankfulness with full ner of the Lacedemonians to defer the acknowledgment of injuries received, until occasion of revenge were offered, & then to discover their indignation in coldblood. At this time they had very good oportunity to work should follow him with the strength of Peloponnesus. Lysander did as he was appointed, and being of great reputation in those parts, he drew the Orchomenians to revolt from Thebes. Pausanias likewise raised all Peloponnefus, except the Corinthians (who refused, to affift him in that enterprise) meaning to joyn with Lyfander, and make a speedy end of the war. The confideration of fo great a was far too little to make relistance against dayes in banishment. fuch mighty preparations. It was not unknown to them, that many followers of the Lacedamonians were otherwise affected in heart, than they durst utter in countenance; How Agefilaus was called out of Afia to help but the good wifnes of fuch people were little available, confidering that the most which could be expected from them, was, that they should do as little hurt as they could by which manner of tergiversation, the Corinthians did at that present cast themfelves into the displeasure of the Spartans, to the no great benefit of Thebes. Wherefore it their own wils, having no other war to di- being defirous to do somewhat that might frurb them in Greece; and hearing out of Asia advance the business in hand, came to Halino news that could offend or trouble them. artus, where, though Panfanias did not meet wherefore they fent Lyander to raise all the him, as had been appointed, yet he attem-Countries about Phocis, and with fuch forces pted the Town, and was flain in fight by the as he could levie, to attend the coming of Thebans, who came hastily to the rescue. Paulanias King of Sparta (for Sparta, as hath As this victorie did incourage the Thebans. been shewed before, had two Kings) who so the coming of Pausanias with his great Army did again amaze them, with presentation of extreme danger; but their spirits were foon revived by the ftrong fuccour which was brought from Athens, in confideration of which, and of the late battel, Paufanias durst not hazzard a new fight with them, but receiving the bodies of those that were flain, by composition, departed out of their Territory; for which, either danger, approaching fo fwiftly, caused the cowardise or indiscretion, he was at his re-Thebans to feek what help they could turn to Sparta condemned as a Traitor, and abroad, for as much as their own strength driven to flie into Tegea, where he ended his

ø. VII.

his Countrey. A victory of the Spartans. Conon the Athenian affifted by Pharnabazus, overcomes the Lacedamonian Fleet; recovers the mastery of the Seas, and re-builds the walls of Athens.

His good fuccefs, and the confederacy made with Athens, gave fuch reputawas thought the fafest course to procure the tion to the Thebans, that the Argives, Corinaffiltance of some Estate that might present- thians, Eubwans, Locrians, and Acarnanes, ly declare it felf on their fide, which would | did forthwith fide with them, and raifing and make their party ftrong. To this end they fent Embafiadours to Athens, excusing old offences, as either not committed by force of Sparta it felf was not great, but publick allowance, or done in time of the grew more and more by the adjunction of general war, and recompensed with friend- their Confederates. The Magistrates of this lately shewn in their refusal of assisting sparta perceiving the danger, sent for Pragiania, when he came in behalf of the Megilians, who readily obeyed them, and prothirty Tyrants against the good Citizens of miling his friends in Asia to return speedi-Athens. In regard of which, and for their ly to their affiftance, paffed the Streights of own Honour fake, they requested them of Hellespont into Europe. In the mean time, aid in the present war, offering to do the the Cities of the new league had given batbest that they could for the restoring of A- tel to the Lacedamonians, and the remainthens to her former estate and dignity. der of their Associats; but with ill success. For Thrasphulus and his Friends, who, persecuted when the right wing of each part had gotten by the Thirty, had been well entertained at the better hand, the Argives and Thebans re-Thebes, procured now the City to make a turning from the chale in some disorder, large requital of the courtesie which they were broken and deseated by the Lacedahad received. For it was decreed, that the monians, who meeting them in good order, State of Athens should not only refuse to won from them the Honour which they had aid the Lacedemonians in this War; but that gotten by forcing the left wing of the Lacet thould affift the Thebans, and engage it felf demonians and made the victory of that day in their cause. Whili Pansarias lay still waitenties their own. The reporters of this batterial water than the control of the still waitents. ing the arrival of his Confederates; Lysander tell meeting Agesilaus at Amphipolis, were by him fent over into Asia, wherein it is not many losses, much defaced. For the Thebans likely that they brought much com- did in the battel of Coronea vanquish the fort unto his friend, who had fince his depar- Orchomenians, who stood epposite unto ture feen the spartan Fleet beaten, and Ly-them, and retired unbroken to Mount Helifander the Admiral flain. The fame man, con, opening way perforce when Agefilaus whose endeavour had brought the Atheni- charged them in the return from the purans into order by advancing the Sea-forces fute. Likewife Gylis was flain with a great of the Lacedemonians with money, and all part of his Army by the Locrians; and some manner of supplies, was now the occasion other exploits by the Lacedemonians perthat the power of Athens grew strong at formed against the Corinthians, were repay-Sea, when the City was disposled of her old reputation, and fearcely able to maintain parts adjoyning; many Towns being easily an Army by Land for her defence. Pharnaba- taken, and as easily recovered. The variety of zus considering how much it imported the which enterfeats was such, that the Thebans King his Master, to have the Greeks divided themselves were drawn by the loss of the hainto fuch factions as might utterly difable ven of Corinth, to fue for peace, but could not them from undertaking abroad, thought it get audience, till fuch time as the news came the fafest way for himself, during these of a great victory obtained by Iphierates, broils, to take fuch order, that he should General of the Athenian forces at Lechenn; not need any more to feek peace by intreaty whereupon the Theban Embassadors being and commemoration of old benefits, at their | fent for, and willed to do their mellage, rehands, who unprovoked, had fold his love for quired only in fcorn, to have a fafe conduct thirty Talents. To which purpose he furnish- given them, that they might enter into Coed Conon the Athenian with eight ships, who rinth. From this time forward the War was had escaped when the Fleet of Athens was made for a while only by incursions, wherein furprized by Lyfander at Agos - Potamos zgiv - the Achaens, Confederates of Sparta, felt ing him the command of a great Navy, most los, their whole State being endangewherewith he requited the loss received at red by the Acarnanians; who held with the Ægos-Potamos, by repaying the Lacedamoni- contrary fide, until Agefilaus repayed these ans with the like destruction of their fleet invaders with equal, or greater calamities, at Enidus. After this victory Conon failed to brought upon their own Lands, which did Athens, bringing with him, partly as the libe- fo afflict the Acarnans, that they were drirality of Pharnabazus, partly as the fruit of vento fue for peace. But the affairs at Sea his victory, fo ftrong a Navy, and fo much were of most consequence, upon which Gold, as encouraged the Athenians to re- the success of all depended. For when the build their Wals, and think more hopefully Towns of Asia perceived that the Lacedeupon recovering the Signiory which they monians were not only intangled in a hard had loft.

620

s. VIII.

Dominion.

fome years the honour of their Estate, en- lus, took in Bizantium, Chalcedon, and other dangered very greatly by this loss at Sea. places thereabout, reducing the Isle of Les For Agestlans obtained the better with his bos to their ancient acknowledgement of horse-men from the Thessalians, who were Athens. accounted the best riders in Greece. He wastedBætia, and fought a great battel atCoronea against the Thebans and their Allies, whom he overthrew; and by his Marshall Gylis forraged the Countrey of Locris: which done, he returned home.

The gain of these victories was not great, and the reputation of them was, by War at home, but almost disabled to pass the Seas, having lost their Fleet at Cnidus; they foon gave ear to Pharnabazus, who promised to allow that they should use their of fundry small victories gotten on each part. own laws, if they would expell the spar-The Lacedemonians lose all in Asia; the tan Governours. Only the City of Abydus Athenians recover some part of their old did stand firm, wherein Dercyllidas lay, who did his best to contain all the Towns about Hellefront, in the Alliance of the TEvertheless, the Lacedamonians, by Lacedamonians; which he could not do, many victories at Land, maintained for because the Athenian Fleet under Thrash-

6. IX. The

ø. IX.

The base conditions offered unto the Persian by the Lacedamonian. Of Sundry fights and other passages in the War. The Peace of Antalcidas.

A perceive how uneafie a thing it would from Lesbos toward Rhodes, was flain by be to maintain the War against men as good as themselves, affisted with the treasures of long before joyned with the Lacedamoni-Persia: wherefore they craved peace of Artaxerxes, most basely offering not only ner) an Aristocratie, or the Government of a to renounce the Greeks inhabiting Afia, and few the principal Citizens; whereas contrato leave them to the Kings disposition; but riwise the Athenians were accustomed to put withall, to fet the Illanders, and every Town the Soveraignty into the hands of the peoin Greece, as well the little as the great, at | ple, each of them feeking to assure themfull and absolute liberty, whereby they faid | selves, by erecting in the Town of their Conthat all the principal Estates of their Coun- federates aGovernment like unto their own: try would be so weakened, that no one, nor which doing (where more especial cause did all of them should be able to stir against the not hinder) caused the Nobility to favour Great King. And fure it was, that the power | Sparta, and the Commons to incline to of the Country being so broken and rent Athens. The people of Agina roved upon the into many small pieces, could neither have coast of Attica which caused the Athenians disquieted the Persian, by an offensive War, to land an Army in Egina, and besiege their nor have made any good defence against | Town: but this siege being raised by the afhim, but would have left it easie for him in sistance of the Lacedemonian Fleet, the Islanthe Lacedamonians, did by their feveral Emfriends and foes on the fudden to an equality. Especially Strutbas, whom Artaxerxes had fent as his Lieutenant into the low-Countries, did feek to repay the harm done by Agesilaus in those parts: which his intent appearing plain, and all hope of the peace being thereby cut off, Thimbro was fent great actions worthy of remembrance. Thim away into Cyprus a greater force than his

bro was flain by Struthas, and in his place Diphridas was fent, who demeaned himfelf more warily. Dercyllidas was removed from his charge at Abydus, because he had not impeached Thrasybulus in his enterprizes about Hellespont; Anaxibius, who succeeded him. was furprized and flain in a skirmish by Iphi-Bout this time the Spartans began to crates the Athenian. Thrasybulus departing the way at Aspendus. The City of Rhodes had ans, who erected there (as was their mancontinuance of time to have taken the Ci- ders began a-new to molest Attica, which ties one after another, till he had made him- caused the Athenians to man their ships felf Mafter of all. The Spartans were not again, that returned beaten, having loft four ignorant of this, but were so carried with of thirteen. The loss of these ships was soon envy, that perceiving how the dominion of recompenced by a victory which chabrias the the Seas was like to return to Athens, they Athenian General had in Egina, whereupchose rather to give all from themselves and on the Islanders were fain to keep home, and others, and make all alike weak, than to per- leave to the Athenians the Seas free. It may mit that any of their own Nation should | well seem strange that the City of athens, hagrowstronger than themselves, who so lately | ving but newly raised her walls, having not hadcommanded all. Yet this great offer was not at the fire accepted; both in regard that the other Effates of Greece, who had in only depending upon the affiftance of fuch the Kings behalf joyned together against | Confederates, as, carried unto different ends, had often discovered themselves irresolute bassadors oppose themselves unto it; and in the common cause, would send a Fleet and for that it was thought fafelt for Artaxerxes | an Army to Cyprus, in defence of Evagoras, rather to weaken the Lacedamonians yet when the Mastery of the Seas was so ill asmore, than by interpoling himself to bring fured, that an Island in the eye of Pyraeus, had ability to vex the coast of Attica. But as the over-weening of that City did cause it usually to embrace more than it could compass; so the insolency and shameless injustice of the people, had now bred in the chief Commanders, a defire to keep themselves far out of fight, and to feek employments at into Asia to make War upon Struthas; and such distance as might secure them from the others were appointed to other places: eyes of the envious, and from publick judgwhereby the War being scattered about, all ments, out of which few or none escaped. For the Isles and Towns on the firm Land, which cause Timotheus did pass away much grew almost to the manner of Pyracy and part of his time in the Isle of Lesbos, Iphicra-Robbery affording many skirmishes, but few tes in Thrace; and Chahrias now did carry

Country could well have spared with which risons, for which they wanted mony; and he returned not when the business in Cyprus other States by the miseries of the war came to an end, but lought new adventures whereof they faw no end; that all (excepting in Egypt; whereby arole neither thanks to the Thebans) did consent unto these Articles. himself, nor profit to his City, though ho- This was called the peace of Intalcidas: nour both to him and it. The Athenians be- whereof the Lacedemonians taking upon ing thus carcless of things at hand, had a no- themselves the execution, did not only comtable blow given unto them, shortly after pel the Argives to depart out of Corinth that Chabrias was gone to Cyprus, even with- (which, under pretence of defending, they in their own Haven. For Teleutias, a Lacede- held by Garrisons, lately thrust into it, not as monian, being made Governour of Agina, Patrons, but as Lords) and the Thebans to conceived a frong hope of furprizing the leave Baotia free, of which Province Thebes Navy of Athens, as it lay in Pireus; thinking had alwaies held the Government, the Thearight, that it was a harder matter to en- bans themselves being also comprehended counter with ten ships prepared for the fight, under the name of the Beotians; but caused than with twenty lying in harbour, whose the Mantineans to throw down their own Mareners were afleep in their Cabbins, or City, and to dwell in Villages: alledging than drinking in Taverns. Wherefore he failed they had formerly been accustomed to to by night into the mouth of the Port, which do, though purposing indeed to chaffle entring at the break of day, he found (ac-them, as having been ill-affected to spartain cording to his expectation) most of the men the late War. By these courses the Lacedeon shore, and few or none left aboard to monians did hope that all the small Towns make refiftance: by which means he took in Greece would, when occasion should remany ships laden with merchandizes, many quire it, willingly follow them in their wars, fisher-men, passengers, and other Vessels, as Authors of their liberty; and that the also three or four Gallies; having funk or great Cities having lost all their dependants, broken, and made unferviceable, as many of would be unable to make opposition. the rest as the time would suffer. About this time Pharnabazus, the Lieutenant of Phrygia, had one of the Kings Daughters given to him in marriage with whom he lived about the Court; and many Officers that favoured the Lacedamonians, were placed in the lower Asia; by whose assistance the Fleet of Sparta grew victorious about Hellespont; in fuch wife that perhaps they should not have needed the peace, which they themselves proties of Greece, and dividing the Country into as many feveral States as were petty Boroughs in it. Thus Artaxerxes having bought his own peace with mony, did likewise by his dom, was taken by the Olynthians, who folmony become Arbitrator and decider of lowing the usual pretence of the Lacedemoprus should be his own; the Isles of Lemnos, and of Apollonia, being nearest unto the danand the necessity of maintaining many Gar- subject unto her, and sight in her defence.

ø. X.

The War which the Lacedamonians made uppon Olynthus. They take Thebes bytrea-Son; and Olynthus by famine.

Hilst these wars, which ended with-out either victory or profit, consumed the riches and power of Greece, the Cicured by Antalcidas, from the Great King, the conditions whereof were fuch as are mentioned before, giving freedom to all the Cirible to places far removed, and to Spartait self. Great part of Macedonia, together with Fella, the principal City of that King-Controversies between the Greeks, disposing nians, to set at liberty the places over which of their business in such wise, as stood best King Amyntas did tyrannize, had almost now with his own good. The Tenor of Artax- driven him out of his Dominions, and taken erxes his Decree was, That all Asia and Cy- all to themselves. The Citizens of Acanthus, Imbrus, and scirus, be subject to Athens; all ger of those incroaching neighbours, acother Greek Towns, as well the little as the quainted the Lacedamonians with their fear, great, be fet at liberty; and that whosoever affirming that this Dominion of the Olynthishould refuse this peace, upon them the ap- ans, would be too strong for all Greece, if provers of it should make war, the King af- continuance of time should give it reputafifting them by Land and Sea, with men, and tion, which only it wanted : wherefore they ships, and treasure. The Athenians were so requested affistance, but in such terms as did discouraged by their losses at Sea; the Lace- sound of compulsion, protesting that either chemonians by revolt of their confederates, they must war upon Olynthus, or become two thousand being fent presently away, solemn feath being then held in the City, two monaids to be seconded by a greater Phyllidas promised the Governours, who with promise to be seconded by a greater Phyllidas promised the Governours, who with promise two thousand gave such were insolent and lustful men, that he would Army. White the war, as agreed with their convey unto them that night the most beginning to the war, as agreed with their convey unto them that night the most beautiful to the war. fmall number, the body of the Army following them, furprized the Cittadel of Theber, should take their pleasure. Having cheared mg tnem, any need into the hand of Phabi-which was betrayed into the hand of Phabidas the Lacedemonian, by some of the Magi-Wine, he told them when the time of perfirstes, who fought to strengthen their fa- formance (which they urged) came, that he trates, who flavery of their Country. The could not make good his promife, unless Thebans were ill-affected to Sparta, but had they would difinife their followers, because not in any point violated the peace lately the Gentlewomen, who attended without not in any point made between them; which caused the La the Chamber, would not endure that any of naue octions to doubt whether this act of the servants should see their faces. Upon Phebidas were more worthy of reward or this occasion the attendants were dismissed, der it self unto their obedience.

of the History of the World.

ø. XI.

How the Thebans recovered their liberty, driving out the Lacedæmonian Garrison.

passed undiscovered unto the house of cha- part of their ancient Inheritance had been ron, whom Phyllidas the Scribe had drawn taken from the Lacedemonians, and not a

Hereupon was made a hafty levy of men, into the confpiracy. The day following, a of punishment. In conclusion, profit fo far and the Conspirators, attired like Ladies over-weighed honefty, that the deed was and their Maids, brought into the place; approved, many principal Citizens of Thebes who taking advantage of the Governours approximated to death, many driven into baloofe behaviour, flew them all upon the fudnilhment, and the Traitors rewarded with den with Daggers, which they brought hidthe Government of the City: by whose auden under their garments. Then presently thority, and the force of the Garrison, the casting off their disquise, they went to other Thebans were compelled to serve the Lace-places, where feigning themselves to come demonians, in all, and more than all that they to the Governours upon business, they got could require. This access of power having admittance, and likewise slew those which ftrengthened the Lacedemonians, caused were of the Lacedemonian faction. By the them to entertain the greater forces about like device they brake into the prison, flew Olynthus, which (notwithstanding the loss of the Gaoler, and set at liberty such as they one great Battel, and fome other disafters) thought meet; and being followed by these they compelled at length by famine to ren- desperate men, proclaimed liberty, making the death of the Tyrants known. The Captain of the Castle hearing the sudden Proclamation, thought the Rebels to be ftronger than indeed they were: the Citizens contrariwife mistrusted, that it was a practice to discover such as would be forward upon occasion of revolting. But as soon as day-A Fter this Olynthian War, which endured light revealed the plain truth, all the people took arms and belieged the Castle, sending Estate in Greece was able to make head hastily to Athens for fuccour. The Garrison against that of Sparta: but it was not long also sent for aid unto the Towns adjoyning, ere the Thebans found a means to shake off whence a few broken troops coming to the their yoak, and gave both example and refcue, were defeated on the way by the means to others to do the like. One of the horse-men of Thebes. On the other side, the banisht men found by conference with a banished Thebans did not only make speed Scribe of the Theban Magistrates, coming to to affist their Country-men, but procured Athens, that the tyranny wherewith his some Athenians to joyn with them, and there-Country was oppressed, pleased him no bet-ter than it did those, who for fear of it were Castle was yielded, more through fear than fled from home. Whereupon a plot was laid any necessity, upon condition that the Soulbetween these two, that soon found very diers might quietly depart with their Arms; good fuccess, being managed thus. Seven of for which composition, the Captain at his the banished men forsook Athens privily, return to Sparta was put to death. When and entred by night into the fields of Thebes; the news of the doings at Thebes, and the where spending the next day secretly, they success arrived at sparta, an Army was raised came late in the evening to the Gates like forthwith, and all things prepared as earnesthusband men returned from work, and fo ly for the recovering of that City, as if some CHAP. XII

red to her own liberty. Cleombrotus, one of attempt upon the Haven of Athens; which the Kings, was fent on this Expedition, who failing to take, he wasted the Country adhaving wearied his followers with a toilfome joyning, and drave away Cattel, caufing by Winters journey, returned home without this outrage the Athenians to enter with all with part of his Army, at Thespies, to inset were before very carefully seeking how they the Thebans; who doing them some displea- might possibly withdraw themselves.

Town perfidiously usurped by them, resto-sures, made large amends by a foolish

CHAP. XII.

Of the flourishing Estate of Thebes, from the Battel of Leuctra, to the Battel of Mantinæa.

ø. I.

How Thebes and Athens joyned together against Sparta. How the Athenians made peacefor for themselves, and others, out of which the Thebans were excluded. The Battel of Leuctra. and beginning of the Theban greatness.

respects withstanding the commodity of such a War, unable to relieve their com-Sparta were to be neglected; the practice plaining friends, resolved to settle the affairs of which Doctrine, even by the best and of Greece, by renewing that form of peace wifelt of them, did greatly blemith that which Antalcidas had brought from the Per-Estate: but when it was put in execution by sian. Wherefore they sent Messengers to infufficient over-weening men, it feldome Thebes, peremptorily fignifying, That it was failed to bring upon them, inftead of profit unjuftly expected, both flame and lofs. And so it befel them in these enter-based and with them to sparta; who prizes of Thabidas, upon the Castle of Thebes, readily condescended, fearing otherwise that and sphodrias upon the Piraus. For, how-they should be left out of the Treaty of foever Agefilaus did spoil the Country about Peace: which came to pass, being so wrought Thebes, in which he spent two Summers, yet by the couragious wildom of Epaminondas, the diligence of the Thebans repaired all, who understood it far better than his Coun-

abroad, failing to the Isle of Corcyra, where offered to swear to the Articles in the name they ordered things at their pleasure, and of the Bactians, Agesilans required themto having in some fightsat Sea prevailed, began, swear in their own name, and to leave the as in the Peloponnesian War, to surround Pe- Beatians free, whom they had lately redu-Loponnesus with a Navy; afflicting so the La- | ced under their obedience. Whereunto Epacedemonians, that, had not the Thebans by minondas made answer, That the City of their infolency wearied their friends, and sparta should give example to Thebes by setcaused them to seek for peace, it had been ting the Laconians free; for that the Signiovery likely that the end of this War, should ry of Baotia did by as good right appertain have foon come to a good end, which to the Thebans, as that of Laconia to the nevertheless, being projecuted by the The- Spartans. This was well and truly spoken; bans (who opposed at once both these two but was heard with no patience: for Agestgreat Estates) left the City of Sparta as lans bearing a vehement hatred unto those

He Lacedamonians were men proud and tyrannous. But the Athenians of great resolution, and of perceiving how Thebes encroached every much gravity in all their pro- day upon her weak Neighbours, not sparing ceedings; but one difhonour- fuch as had been dependants upon Athens, able Rule they held, That all and finding themselves, whilst engaged in who by the good fucces of some attempts, grew stronger than they were at the sirft. try men, what was to be feared or hoped. In this Treaty the Lacedamonians and Athenia The Athenians likewise began to look nians did soon agree; but when the Thebans much dejected, as the beginnings found it of Thebes, by whom he was drawn back out and effeminate.

6. II.

fteth the Territory of Lacedamon.

of Asia into Greece, and disappointed of all rated at Athens, where the general liberty the glory which he had hoped to atchieve of all Towns, as well small as great, was by the Fersian War, did now passionately ratisfied under the stile of the Athenians, and by the replant and the Emptions at li-their affociates. Hereupon began fresh gar-berty; and finding it as obstituately resulted, boils. The Mantineans, claiming power by he dath the name of the Thebans out of the this Decree to order their affairs at their league. At the same time Cleombrotus the own pleasure, did (as it were) in despisht of other King of Sparta, lay in Phocis, who re- the Spartans, who had enforced them to raze reived command from the Governours of their Town, re-edifie it, and allie themselves Sparta forthwith to enter upon the Land of with such of the Arcadians as stood worst the Thebans with all his power; which he affected to sparta. The Arcadians, a strong did and was there flain at Lendra, and with Nation, confifting of many Cities, were him the Flower of his Army. This Battel of distracted with factions; some desiring to Lentira, being one of the most famous that hold good correspondency with the Lacedeever were fought between the Greeks, was monians; some to weaken and keep them not fo notable for any circumstance fore- low; yet all pretending other ends. The going it, or for the managing of the fight it Lacedamonians durft not give impeachment felf, as for the death of the King, and many to the Mantineans, nor take upon them to Citizens of Sparta; but especially, for that correct their ill-willers among the Arcaafter this Battel (between which and the dians, till fuch time as the factions brake out conclusion of the general Peacethere passed into violence, and each party called in but twenty daies) the Lacedamonians were forein help. Then was an Army fent from neverable to recover the strength and re- Sparta, as it were in defence of the people putation which had formerly made them re- of Tegea, against the Mantineans, but indoubted far and near; whereas contrariwife deed against them both. Agesilans had the the Thebans, whose greatest ambition had in leading of it, but effected nothing. The former times confined it felf unto the little Thebans had by this time subdued the Pho-Region of Beotia, did now begin to under- cians, and were become head of the Lotake the leading and command of many crians, Acarnanians, Eubwans, and many people and estates, in such wise, that ibon others; with the power of which Countries after they brought an Army of threescore they entred Peloponnesus in favour of the and ten thousand strong unto the Gates of Arcadians, who had, upon expectation of sparta. So much do the afflictions of an their coming, abstained from giving Battel hard War, valiantly endured, advance the to Agefilaus. The Army of the Spartans beaffairs of the distressed, and guide them into | ing dismissed, and Epaminondas joyned with the way of Conquest, by stiffening that re- the Arcadians, the Region of Laconia was infolution with a manly temper, which wealth vaded and spoiled: a thing so strange, that no and ease had through luxury, retchlesness, Oracle could have found belief if any had and many other vices or vanities, made rufty | foretold it. Almost 600 years were spent, fince the Dorians, under the posterity of Hercules, had feized upon Laconia; in all which time the found of an enemies Trumpet was not heard in that Country. Ten years were How the Athenians took upon them to maintain | not fully past, fince all Greece was at the dethe Peace of Greece. New troubles hence votion of the Spartans : but now the Region arifing. Epaminondas invadeth and wa- which neither Xerxes with his huge Army could once look upon, nor the mighty for-ces of Athens, and other enemy-States had He Athenians refusing to take advan- dared to set foot on, saving by stealth, was all tage of this overthrow fallen upon on a light fire, the very smoak whereof the their old Enemies, and new Confederates women of sparta were ashamed to behold. the Lacedamonians, did nevertheless finely All which indignity notwithstanding, the give them to understand, that their Domi- Lacedamonians did not issue out of spartato nion was expired, and therefore their pride fight, but fought how to preferve the Town, might well be laid away. For taking upon fetting at liberty as many of their Heilotes themselves the maintenance of the Peace or Slaves, as were willing to bear Arms in lately concluded, which Asoflans (perhaps defence of the State, and iomewhat pittfully of purpole to make benefit of quarrels that entreated the Alberians, to give them furnishes the state of the State, and iomewhat pittfully of purpole to make benefit of quarrels that might arife) had left unperfect, they aftern-bled the Deputies of all the estates confede-ponnesus, they received speedy assistance, the

Kkkk

CHAP. XII.

that Epaminondas returned without battel, ty. For the Arcadians confidering their own having re-builded the City of Messene, and numbers which they brought into the field peopled it a-new by calling home the anci- and having found by many trials that their ent Inhabitants, whom the Lacedamonians people were not inferiour to others in many ages before had chafed away to other litrength of body, in courage, or in good Countries, policiling their Territories them- Souldiership, thought it good reason that

ø. III.

wife, that they did no longer demand the next enterprise of the Spartans and their conduct of the Army, which was to be raif friends was upon these Arcadians, who relyed, nor any manner of precedence: but lend- ing too much upon their own worth, were ing Emballadours from sparta, and from all overthrown in a great battel, their calamity the Cities which held league with it, unto being as pleafing to their Confederates, as Athens, they offered to yield the Admiralty to their Enemies. to the Athenians, requesting that they themselves might be Generals by Land. This had been a composition well agreeing with the fituation and quality of those two Cities; but it was rejected, because the Mariners and others that were to be employed at Sea, were men of no mark or estimation, in regard of those companies of horse and foot, whereof the Land-Army was compounded; who being all Gentlemen or Citizens of Athens, were to have served under the Lacedemonians. Wherefore it was agreed that that without their aid, the fuccess of all enthe Authority should be divided by time, terprises proved so ill; whereas they them the Athenians ruling five dayes, the Lacede- felves had by their own power accomplishmonians other five, and fo fuccessively that ed very well whatsoever they took in hand, each of them should have Command of all, and were become not only victorious over both by Land and by Sea. It is manifest, the Lacedamonians, but Patrons over the that in this conclusion vain ambition was Thessalonians, and moderators of great quarmore regarded than the common profit; rels that had rifen in Macedonia; where which must of necessity be very flowly ad- compounding the differences about that vanced, where confultation, resolution, and Kingdom, as pleased them best, they carperformance are fo often to change hands. ried Philip the son of Amyntas, and father of This appeared by a fecond invasion of Pelo-Alexander the Great, as an Hostage unto ponness, wherein the Thebans found their Thebes. Having therefore obtained such cnemies foundbleto impeach them, that har reputation, that little feemed wanting to ving fortified Ishmus from Sea to Sea, as in make them absolute Commanders of all former times they had done against Xerxees, Greece, they fought means of alliance with they were driven out of their frength by the Persian King, to whom they sent Embal-Epaminondas, who forraged the Country fadour the great and famous Captain Pelopiwithout refistance. But as the Articles of das, whose reputation drew Artaxerxes to to those ends for which it was concluded 560 monians, and that the Ashenians should forthe example of it wrought their good, by bear to fend their ships of War to Sea; only

Athenians came forward more flowly, fol filling the enemies heads with the like vanithey should in like manner share the Government, with their friends the Thebans; and not alwaies continue followers of others, by increasing whose greatness they The Composition between Athens and Sparta should strengthen their own yoke. Hereupfor command in War against the Thebans; on they began to demean themselves very who again troade and spoil Peloponnesus. infolently, whereby they grew hateful to The unfortunate prefumption of the Arca their Neighbours, and suspected of the Thebans in an ill time. For, a motion of general peace having been made (which took not effect, because the City of Messen was the reputation of the spartans, in fuch not abandoned to the Lacedemontans) the

ø. IV.

The areat growth of the Theban Estate. Embas-Jages of the Greeks to the Perlian; with the reasons why he most favoured the Thebans. Troubles in the Persian Empire. The fruitless issue of the Embassages.

He Thebans especially rejoyced at the Arcadians misfortune, confidering, this league between Athens and Sparta did, grant unto the Thebans all that they defined; by dividing the conduct in such manner, whereof two especial points were, That disable the Society, and make it insufficient Messene should remain free from the Lacedothe latter of these two was somewhat quali- these times, in that great rebellion of all the the fied with reference to further advice. The Maritimate Provinces. For had then the other States of Greece did also send their affairs of Greece been so composed, that any

Embaffadours at the same time, of whom few one City might without empeachment of or none received much contentment. For the the rest have transported an Army to affist King having found by long experience, how the revolting Satrapa, or Vice-royes of Caria, far it concerned him to maintain a fure par- Phrygia, Lydia, Myfia, Lycia, Pifidia, Pamphytyin Greece, did upon many weighty consi- lia, Cilicia, Syria, and Fhanicia; humane derations resolve to bind the Thebans firmly reason can hardly find the means, by which unto him; justly expecting, that their great- the Empire could have been preserved from ness should be on that fide his own fecurity. that ruine, which the Divine Counsel had The Athenians had been ancient enemies to deferred unto the dayes of Alexander. But his Crown; and having turned the profit of this great conspiracy of so many large and their victories upon the Persians to the pur- wealthy Provinces, wanting a firm body of chase of a great Estate in Greece, maintained good and hardy Souldiers, was in short space their Signory in fuch puillant manner, that discussed, and vanished like a mist, without (fundry grievous misfortunes notwith- effect: these effeminate Assatiques, wearied standing) they had endured a terrible War, quickly with the travels and dangers inciwhereinthe Lacedamonians being followed dent to War, forfaking the common cause; by most of the Greeks, and supplied with and each man striving to be the first, that by treasure, and all forts of aid by Darius No- treason to his company should both redeem thus, were not able to vanquish them till the former treason to his Prince, and purtheir own indifferetion brought them on chase withall his own promotion with entheir knees. The Lacedamonians being victo-crease of riches. Of this commotion, which rious over Athers, had no sooner established in course of time followed some actions not their Dominion at home, then they under- as yet related, I have rather chosen to make took the Conquest of Asia, from which short mention in this place, than hereaster though by the commotion raised in Greece to interrupt the Narration of things more with Persian gold, they were called back, yet important; but for that it was like a sudden having renewed their power, and fetled ftorm, rashly commenced, idlely followed, things in Greece, it was not unlikely, that and foolifhly laid down, having made a they should upon the next advantage have great noise without effect, and having small pursued the same enterprise, had not they reference to any other action agreeable; as been empeached by this Theban War. But also because in the whole reign of Artaxthe Thebans contrariwise had alwaies disco- erxes, from the War of Cyrus to the invasion vereda good affection to the Crown of Per- of Egypt, I find nothing (this infurrection, fia. They had fided with Xerxes in his inva- and a fruitless journey against the Cadustans fion of Greece; with Darius and the Lacede- excepted) worthy of any mention, much less monians against Athens: And finally having of digression from the course of the business offered much contumely to Agesslaus when in Greece. All, or the most of his time passed he put to Sea, they drew him home by ma- away so quietly, that he enjoyed the pleaking War on the Confederates of Sparta, fures which an Empire so great and wealthy Besides all these their good deservings, they could afford unto so absolute a Lord, with were no Sea-men, and therefore unlikely to little difturbance. The troubles which he look abroad; whereupon if perchance they found were only, or chiefly, Domestical; should have any desire, yet were they dis- growing out of the hatred which Parysatis abled by the want of good Haven Towns; the Queen-Mother bare unto his wife stawhich they could not feize upon without tira, and to fuch as had been the greatest open breach of that peace, whereof they in- enemies to her fon Cyrus, or gloried in his tended to become the Executors, giving li-death: upon whom, when by poyfon and berty to all Cities that had at any time been mischievous practices she had satisfied her free. Wherefore Artaxerxes did wholly feminine appetite of revenge, thenceforth condescend unto the requests of Pelopidas, as she wholly applyed her self to the Kings diffarforth as he might, without giving open position, cherishing in him the lewd desire of defiance to the rest of Greece; and by that marrying his own Daughter, and filling him mean he purchased his own quiet, being ne- with the perswasion, which Princes not enver afterward molested by that Nation in dued with an especial grace, do readily enthe lower Asia. The ill means which the tertain; That his own will was the supreme Greeks had to disturb Artaxerxes, was very law of his subjects, and the rule by which beneficial to the Estate of Persia shortly after all things were to be measured & adjudged

CHAP. XII.

been adverse to Thebes, was now, by miseries of this grievous War, driven to become Neutral) took occasion hereby, and by fome diforders among the Arcadians, to vifit peloponnesus with an Army, confisting of all the power of Thebes. A great tumult had rifen in Arcadia about confecrated mony, which many principal men among them had laid hands on, under pretence of employ-mony which had come into their hands, pro-thereby caused was so great, that the prisoners were forthwith enlarged, and the Arca-

to be good or evil. In this imaginary hap-pines Pelopidus, and the other Embaliadors low, did now conjoyn their forces against of Greece, both found and left him; but left the Thebans, who fought to make themselves him by so much more assured than they Lords of all. The Eleans, Corinthians, and found him, by how much the conclusion of Achaians, followed the party of these ancient this Treaty with them, being altogether to Governing Cities; either for the old reputahis own advantage, did feem to promife, if tion of them, and benefits received, or in not the perpetuity, a long endurance of the diflike of those, who by strong handwere fame felicity to him and his, or (at the least) ready to become Rulers, to which authority a full fecurity of danger from Greece, whence they could not fuddenly aspire without some only could any danger be feared. But such injury and much envy. The City of Theles foundations of eternity laid by mortal men abounding with men, whom necessity had in this transitory world, like the Tower of made warlike, and many Victories in few Babel, are either shaken from heaven, or years had filled with great spirits; and being made vain and unprofitable, ere the frame fo mighty independants, that she had reducan be raifed to full height, by confusion of ced all the continent of Greece without Pelptongues among the builders. Hereof was ponnessus (the Region of Attica, and very litfound a good example in the Thebans, and the part beside, excepted) under such acother Estates of Greece that had sent Embas- knowledgement, as wanted not much of sadours to the Persian. For whereas it had meer Vassallage, did hope to bring all Pelobeen concluded, that all Towns, as well the ponnesus to the like obedience, wherein allittle as the great, should be set at liberty, ready she had set good footing by her conand the Thebans made Protectors of this junction with the States of Argos, and of Arcommon peace, who thereby should become cadia. The Argives had been alwayes bad the Judges of all Controversies that might Neighbours to the Spartans, to whom they arise, and Leaders in War of all that would thought themselves in ancient Nobility Suenter into this Confederacy; the Kings let- periours, but were far under them in valour, ters being folemnly published at Thebes, in having been often beaten out of the field by the presence of Embassadours drawn thi- them, and put in danger of losing all : which ther from all parts of Greece; when an oath caused them to suspect and envy nothing was required for observation of the form of more than the greatness and honour of peace therein fet down, a dilatory answer was made by the Embaliadours, who said, that they were sent to hear the articles, not to swear unto them. Hereby the Thebans her enemies whensoever they found herenwere driven to fend unto each of the Cities | tangled in a difficult War. As the Argives to require the Oath; But in vain. For when were, in hatred of sparta, fure friends of Thethe Corinthians had boldly refused it saying, bes, so the Arcadians, transported with a that they did not need it; others took cou- great opinion of their own worthines, had rage by their example to do the like, difap- formerly renounced and provoked against pointing the Thebans of their glorious hopes, them their old Confederates and Leaders, to whom this negotiation with Artaxerxes the Lacedamonians, and were now become gave neither addition nor confirmation of very doubtful adherents to the Thebans. In greatness, but left them as it found them to which regard, it was thought convenient by relye upon their own fwords.

628

ø. V.

How all Greece was divided between the Athenians and Lacedæmonians on the one side, and Thebans on the other. Of the great tumults rising in Arcadia.

THe condition of things in Greece at that time did frand thus. Athens and sparta, which in former times had commanded all that Nation, and each upon envy of the others greatness drawn all their follo- not relinquishing the old, because they wers into a cruel intestine War, by which found that howsoever these Arcadians were the whole Country, and especially the enemies to the Lacedamonians, they should Epaminondas. and the State of Thebes, to fend an Army into Peloponnesus, before such time as these wavering friends should fall further off, and become either Neutral, or, which was to be feared, open enemies. And furely great cause there was to suspect the worst of them, confidering that without confent of the Thebans, they had made peace with Athens, which was very strange, and seemed no less to the Athenians themselves, who holding a firm league with sparta at the same time when the Arcadians treated with them, did nevertheless accept this new Confederacy, hereby be drawn fomewhat further from other hope of fecuring their own effate their alliance with Thebes, which without could not be thought upon) did now very them was unlikely to invade Peloponnelus gently yield to the Arcadians, that the comwith a strong Army. But this did rather ham and of the Army in chief, should be given with a tribus any means fray the coming of for the time, to that City in whose Territory Epaninondas; who finding the way fome- it lay. what more clear for him (because the City of Corinth, which lay upon the Isthmus, and had

ø. VI.

A terrible Invalion of Peloponnelus by Epaminondas.

Ertain it is, that the condition of things did at that time require a very firm confent, and uniform care of the common fafety. For befide the great forces raifed out of the other parts of Greece, the Argives and ing it to publick uses. In compounding the Messenians prepared with all their strength differences grown upon this occasion, such to joyn with Epaminondas; who having as had least will to render account of the lyen a while at Nemea, to intercept the Athenians, received their intelligence, that the cured the Captain of some Theban Souldiers, Army coming from Athens would pass by lving in Tegea, to take prisoners many of Sea, whereupon he disledged, and came to their Country-men, as people desirous of in- | Tegea, which City, and the most of all Areanovation. This was done: but the uproar | dia befides, forthwith declared themselves his. The common opinion was, that the first attempt of the Thebans, would be upon such dians, who had in great numbers taken of the Arcadians as had revolted; which Arms, with much ado scarce pacified. When caused the Lacedamonian Captains to fortifie Mantinea with all diligence, and to fend complaint of the Captains proceedings came to Thebes, Epaminondas turned all the blame | for Agesslaus to Sparta, that he bringing with upon them, who had made the peace with him all that small force of able men which Athens, letting them know, that he would remained in the Town, they might be strong be flortly among them, to judge of their enough to abide Epaminondas there. But Epaminondas held fo good espial upon his fidelity, by the affiftance which they should give him, in that War which he intended to | Enemies, that, had not an unknown fellow brought hafty advertisement of his purpose make in Peloponnesus. These Lordly words to Agesilaus, who was then well onward in did greatly amaze the Arcadians; who the way to Mantinea, the City of Sparta needing not the aid of fo mighty a power as had fuddenly been taken. For thither with he drew along with him, did vehemently all fpeed and fecrecy did the Thebans march, suspect that great preparation to be made who had furely carried the City, notwithagainst themselves. Hereupon such of them standing any defence that could have been as had before fought means to fettle the afmade by that handful of men remaining fairs of their Country, by drawing things to within it, but that Agefilaus in all flying hafte fome good conclusion of peace, did now got into it with his companies, whom the forthwith fend to Athens for help, and with-Army of his Confederates followed thither. all dispatched some of the principal among them as Embassadours to Sparta, by whom to the rescue as fastasit was able. The arrival of the Lacedamonians and their friends, as it they offered themselves to the common decut off all hope from Epaminondas, of taking fence of Peloponnesus, now ready to be invasparta, so it presented him with a fair advanded. This Embassage brought much comfort to the Lacedemonians, who feared nothing tage upon Mantinea. It was the time of Harvest, which made it very likely, that the more than the coming of Epaminondas, against whom they well knew, that all their | Mantineans, finding the War to be carried forces, and best provisions, would be no more from their walls into another quarter, would than very hardly sufficient. Forbearing use the commodity of that vacation, by therefore to dispute about prerogatives, they | fetching in their Corn, and turning out their (who had been accustomed unto such a supremacy, as they would in no wife commu- near, that might impeach them. Wherefore nicate with the powerful City of Athens, till he turned away from Sparta to Mantinea,

HAP. XII.

fending his horse-men before him, to seize courage in their first growth, and leave some upon all that might be found without the memorable character of his Expedition, re-City. The Mantineans (according to the folved to give them Battel, whereby he reaexpectation of Epaminondas) were scattered sonably hoped both to settle the doubtful abroad in the Country, far more intent up- affections of his own Affociats, and to leave on their Harvest business, than upon the war, the Spartans as weak in spirit and ability, as whereof they were fecure, as thinking them- he found them, if not wholly to bring them felves out of distance. By which prefumpti- into subjection. Having therefore warned on it fell out, that great numbers of them, his mento prepare for that Battel, wherein and all their Cattel, being unable to reco- Victory should be rewarded with Lordship ver the Town, were in a desperate case; and of all Greece; and finding the alacrity of his the Town it felf in no great likelihood of Souldiers to be such as promised the accomholding out, when the enemy should have plishment of his own desire; he made shew taken all their provision of victuals, with so of declining the enemy, and intrenching many of the people as had not over-dearly himself in a place of more advantage, that he been redeemed, by that Cities returning to by taking from them all expectation of fociety with Thebes. But at the same time, fighting that day, he might allay the heat of the Athenians coming to the fuccour of their their valour, and afterward strike their Confederates, whom they thought to have fenses with amazement, when he should found at Mantinea, were very earnestly en- come upon them unexpected. This opinion treated by the Citizens to rescue their deceived him not. For with very much tugoods, and people, from the danger where- mult, as in fo great and fudden a danger, the into they were fallen, if it were possible by enemy ran to Arms, necessity enforcing their any couragious adventure to deliver those resolution, and the consequence of that daies who otherwise were given as lost. The The- service, urging them to do as well as they bans were known at that time to be the best might. The Theban Army consisted of thirty Souldiers of all the Greeks, and the commen- thousand foot, and three thousand horse; dation of good horsemanship had alwaies the Lacedemonians and their friends were been given to the Thessalians, as excelling in short of this number, both in horseand in that quality all other Nations; yet the re- foot, by a third part. The Mantineans (begard of honour fo wrought upon the Athe- cause the War was in their Country) stood nians, that for the reputation of their City, in the right wing, and with them the Lacewhich had entred into this War upon no demonians; the Athenians had the left wing; necessity of her own, but only in desire of the Achaans, Eleans, and others of less acrelieving her distressed friend, they issued count, filled the body of the Army. The forth of Mantinea, not abiding folong as to Thebans stood in the left wing of their own refresh themselves, or their horses, with Battel, opposite to the Lacedamonians, hameat; and giving a lufty charge upon the ving by them the Arcadians, the Enbeans, enemy, who as bravely received them, after | Locrians, Sicyonians, Meffenians, and Theffaa long and hot fight, they remained Masters lians, with others, compounding the main of the field, giving by this Victory a fafe Battel; the Argives held the right wing; the and easie retrait to all that were without horse-men on each part were placed in the the walls. The whole power of the Baotians | flanks, only a troop of the Eleans were in the arrived in the place foon after this Battel, rear. Before the foot-men could joyn, the whom the Lacedemonians and their affistants were not far behind.

610

ø. VII.

The great Battel of Mantinæa. The honourable death of Epaminondas, with his commendation.

that his attempts of surprizing Sparta and ment; but finding the Theban horse to have Mantinea having failed, the impression of given them over, and withall discovering terrour which his name had wrought in the fome Companies of foot, which had been fent Peloponnessans, would soon vanquish, unless about by Epaminondas, to charge their Batby some notable act he should abate their tel in the rear they brake upon them, routed encounter of the horse on both sides was very rough, wherein finally the Thebans prevailed, notwithstanding the valiant refistance of the Athenians: who, not yielding to the enemy either in courage or skill, were overlaid with numbers, and so beaten upon by Theffalian flings, that they were driven to forfake the place, and leave their infantery naked. But this retrait was the less disgrace-Paminondas, confidering that his Com-mission was almost now expired, and and did not fall back upon their own footthem, and hewed them all in pieces. In the tue of Epaminondas, who being in the head mean season the Battel of the Athenians had not only to do with the Argives, but was the Lacedamonians fquadron, and forced it not only colled by the Theban Horse-men, in to give back in disaray, was furiously charsuch wife that it begun to open, and was ready to turn back, when the Elean squadron of Horse came up to the relief of it, and restored all enthat part. With far greater violence did the Lacedamonians and Thebans meet, these contending for Dominion, the other for the maintenance of their ancient honour; fo that equal courage, and equal loss on both sides made the hope and appearance of Victory to either equally doubtful : unless perhaps the Lacedamonians being very firm abiders, might feem the more likely to prevail, as having born the first brunt and fury of the on-fet, which was not hitherto remitted; and being framed by difcipline, as it were by Nature, to excel in patience, whereof the Thebans, by practice of a few years, cannot be thought to have gotten a habit fo fure and general. But Epamithe Thebans, who may justly be said to have carried the Victory, seeing that they remained Masters of the ground whereon the Battelwas fought, having driven the Enemy to lodge farther off. For that which was alby chance in their own flight, finding them behind their Army, and the retaining of Leuctra and Mantinea were two fair daughtheir dead bodies; it was a ceremony reters, in whom his memory should live. gardable only among the Greeks, and ferved meerly for oftentation, shewing that by the the enemy could not get from them otherwife than by request. But the Thebans arri-

of that Warlike troop of men, which broke ged on the fudden, by a desperate Company of the Spartans, who all at once threw their Darts at him alone; whereby receiving many wounds, he nevertheless, with a singular courage, maintained the fight, using against the enemies many of their Darts, which he drew out of his own body 5 till at length by a Spartan, called Anticrates, he received to violent a stroke with a Dart, that the wood of it brake, leaving the Iron and a piece of the trunchion in his breaft. Hereupon he funk down, and was foon conveyed out of the fight by his friends; having by his fall somewhat animated the Spartans (who fain would have got his body but much more inflamed with revengeful indignation, the The? bans, who raging at his heavy mischance, did with great flaughter compel their difordered enemies to leave the field; though long nondus perceiving the obstinate stiffness of they followed not the chase, being wearied the Enemics to be such, as neither the bad more with the sadness of this disaster, than fucces of their own horse, nor all the force with all the travel of the day. Epaminondas of the Baotian Army, could abate so far, as being brought into his Tent, was told by the to make them give one foot of ground; ta- Phylicians, that when the head of the Dart king a choice company of the most able men, should be drawn out of his body, he must whom he cast into the form of a Wedge, or needs dye. Hearing this, he called for his Diamond, by the advantage of that figure | shield, which to have lost, was held a great against a squadron, and by his own exceed-dishonour: It was brought unto him. He ing virtue, accompanied with the great bade them tell him, which part had the Vifireigth and resolution of them which fol- ctory ; answer was made, that the Baotians lowed him, did open their ranks, and cleave | had won the field. Then faid he, It is a fair the whole Battel in despight of all resistance. time for me to dye; and withall sent for Thus was the honour of that day won by lolidas and Diophantes, two principal men of War, that were both flain: which being told him, He advised the Thebans to make peace, whilst with advantage they might, for that they had none left that was able to discharge the office of a General. Herewithall he willedged by the Athenians, as a token that the led, that the head of the weapon should be Victory was partly theirs, the flaughter of drawn out of his body, comforting his those Mercenaries upon whom they lighted | friends that lamented his death, and want of iffue, by telling them, that the Victories of

So died Epaminondus, the worthiest man that ever was bred in that Nation of Greece, fight they had obtained fomewhat, which and hardly to be matched in any Age or Country: for he equalled all others in the feveral virtues, which in each of them were vedat the general immediate end of the bat- fingular. His Justice and Sincerity, his Temtel; none daring to abide them in the field: perance, Wildom, and high Magnanimity, whereof a manifest confession is expressed were no way inferiour to his Military virfrom them, who forfook the place which tue; in every part whereof he fo excelled, they had chosen or accepted, as indifferent that he could not properly be called a Wafor trial of their ability and prowefs. This rie, a Valiant, a Politick, a Bountiful, or an was the last work of the incomparable vir- Industrious, and a Provident Captain. Neither was his privateConversation unanswer- offend her Neighbours, and therefore might able to those high parts, which gave him well be allowed to shew that anger in cepraise abroad. For he was Grave, and yet remonies, which had no power to declare if very Affable and Courteous; resolute in pub- self in execution. This Peace, as it gave lick business, but in his own particular ca- some breath and refreshing to all the Counfie, and of much mildness: a lover of his try, so to the Cities of Athens and sparta in People, bearing with mens infirmities, witty afforded leifure to feek after wealth by foand pleasant in speech, far from insolence, rein employment in Egypt, whither Agesilaus Mafter of his own affections, and furnished was sent with some small forces to affish, or with all qualities that might win and keep indeed as a Mercenary, to ferve under Tuchor love. To these graces were added great King of Egypt in his War upon syria, Chabriability of body, and much Eloquence, and as the Athenian, who had before commandvery deep knowledge in all parts of Philoso- ed under Acoris King of Egypt, went now as phy and Learning, wherewith his mind be- a voluntary, with fuch forces as he could ing enlightened, rested not in the sweetness raise, by entreaty, and offer of good pay, to of Contemplation, but brake forth into fuch the same service. These Egyptian Kings deeffects as gave unto Thebes, which had ever- scended from Amyrtaus of Sais, who rebelmore been an underling, a dreadful repu- led against Darius Nothus, having retained tation among all people adjoyning, and the the Country, notwithstanding all intestine highest command in Greece.

6. VIII.

Of the Peace concluded in Greece after the Battel of Mantinæa. The Voyage of Agefilaus into Egypt. His death, and qualities; with an examination of the comparison made between him and Pompey the Ro-

His Battel of Mantinea was the greatest that had ever been fought in that stand had not proved a false Traitor, joyning Country between the Naturals; and the last. With Nectanebus, who rose against his Prince, For at Maranthon, and Plataa, the populous and helping the Rebel with that Army Armies of the barbarous Nations gave rather a great fame, than a hard trial to the Grecian valour; neither were the practice of good of his own Country, though it feem Arms and Art Military, fo perfeft in the beginnings of the Peloponnesian War, as long continuance, and daily exercise had now made them. The times following produced no actions of worth or moment, those excepted, which were undertaken against forein enemies, proving for the most part unfortunate. But in this last fight all Greece was interefled, which never had more able foldiers, and brave Commanders nor ever contended for Victory with greater care of the fuccefs, or more obstinate resolution. All which, notwithstanding, the issue being such as hath up another King; to whom all, or most of been related, it was found best for every the Egyptians yielded their obedience. But particular Estate, that a general Peace Agestians fighting with him in places of adshould be established, every one retaining vantage, prevailed so far, that he left Nettawhat he prefently had, and none being for- nebus in quiet possession of the Kingdom; ced to depend upon another. The Messenians who in recompence of his treason to the were by name comprized in this new league; | former King Tachos, and good service done which caused the Lacedamonians not to en- to himself, rewarded him with two hundred ter into it. Their standing out hindred not and thirty Talents of filver, with which the rest from proceeding to conclusion, con- booty failing homewards, he died by the fidering that Sparta was now too weak to way. He was a Prince very temperate, and diffentions, and forein invalions, during three Generations of their own race, were fo well acquainted with the valour of the Greeks, that by their help (eafily procured with gold) they conceived great hope, not only to affure themselves, but to become Lords of the Provinces adjoyning, which were held by the Persian. What the issue of this great enterprize might have been, had it not fallen by Domestical Rebellion, it is uncertain. But very likely it is, that the Rebellion it felf had foon come to nothing, if Agewhich the mony of Tachos had waged. This falshood Agesilaus excused, as tending to the rather, that he grudged because the King took upon himfelf the conduct of the Army, using his service only as Lieutenant, who had madefull account of being appointed the General. Howfoever it came to pass, Tachos being shamefully betrayed by them, in whom he had reposed his chief confidence, fled unto the Persian, who upon his submisfion gave him gentle entertainment; and Nectanebus (who feems to have been the Nephew of Tachos) reigned in his flead. At the same time the Citizens of Mendes had set were before him; so Agesilaus had at one things, in any other Nation.

valiant, and a good Leader in War, free time or other some quarrel with every valiant, and a good with Town in Greece, had made a War in Alia. any blemilh of luft; which praises are the and medled in the business of the Egyptians, any premiure and the discipline in which variety he went beyond all his fers aumin was fuch as did endue every one of Predecessors: yet not winning any Counot spans (not carried away by the vio-the Citizens (not carried away by the vio-the Citizens (not carried away by the viothe Citizens (not can death all, or the lent fream of an ill nature) with all, or the lent fream of an ill nature) with all, or the chief of these good qualities. He was nechief of these good qualities. He was nechief of these good qualities. He was nechief of these good qualities. enter or the S arrogant; perverle, unjust them was the last great Captain which his vertneres very management which his and vain-glorious, measuring all things by Nation brought forth in time of liberty, and and value grotion and obstinately profecuting each of them ruined the liberty of his Counhis own will, and obstinately profecuting his own win, whose ends were beyond try by his own Lordly wilfulnes, We may hope. The Expedition of Xenophon hadfil- therefore well fay Similia magis omnia quam led him with an opinion; that by his hand paria; the resemblance was nearer than the the Empire of Persia should be overthrown; equality. Indeed the freedom of Rome was with which conceit being transported, and lost with Pompey, falling into the hands of finding his proceedings interrupted by the cefar, whom he had inforced to take Arms: Thebans and their Allies, he did ever after yet the Roman Empire stood, the form of bear fuch hatted unto Thebes, as compelled Government only being changed: But the that Estate by meer necessity to grow war- liberty of Greece, or of Sparta it self, was not like, and able, to the utter dishonour of forfeited unto the Thebans, whom Agesslaus sparta, and the irrepairable loss of all her had compelled to enter into a victorious former greatness. The commendations given War; yet the Signiory, and ancient renown to him by Xenophon his good friend, have of sparta was prefently loft; and the freecaused Plut arch to lay his name in the bal- dom of all Greece being wounded in this Thelance against Pompey the great; whose acti- ban War, and after much blood lost, ill heaons (the folemn gravity of carriage excep- led by the Peace ensuing, did very soon upted) are very disproportionable. Yet we on the death of Agestlam, give up the ghost, may truly say, That as rompey made great and the Lordship of the whole Country was Wars under fundry Climates, and in all the feized by Philip King of Macedon, whose Provinces of the Roman Empire, exceeding actions are now on foot, and more to be rein the multitude of employments all that garded than the Contemporary paffages of

Finis Libri Tertii.

CHAP. I.

THE OF THE

Intreating of the Times from the Reign of Philip of Macedon, to the establishing of that King. dom, in the Race of ANTIGONUS.

THE FOURTH BOOK.

CHAP. I.

Of Philip the Father of Alexander the Great, King of Macedon.

ø. I.

What Kings reigned in Macedon before Philip.

riority, do still, as in for-

tion of each other.

liberty, with as happy ficcess as ever Nati- (of whom we are now to speak) they had so on had, and with no less honour, than hath little regard, as they grew even then more ever been acquired by deeds of Arms. And violent in devouring each other, when the having had a trial and experience more faft-growing greatness of such a Neighbourthan fortunate, against those Nations, they King, should, in regard of their own lafeties, fo little regarded what might come from have ferved them for a ftrong argument of

HE Greeks of whom we them, who had so often forfeited the repuhave already made large tation of their forces, as whatfoever could difcourfe, not as yet wearicd with intestine War, home, they transported over the Hellenor made wife by their font, as sufficient, to entertain and buse vain contention for super them withall.

But, as it commonly falleth out with evemer times, continue the invalion and valta- ry man of mark in the world, that they underfall, and perish by the hands and harms Against Xerxes, the greatest Monarch of which they least fears to fared it at this time that part of the world, they defended their with the Greeks. For of Philip of Macedon poses of the Macedonians, because those and twenty years. Kings and States, which fate nearer them Perdiccas the first, the son of Tyrimas gobetween them and this inundation, than by Perdicas. feek to rampire and re-enforce their own fields, which by the Level of reason they might have found to have lien under it. It (1) was therefore well concluded by Orofius: Gracia Civitates imperare singula cupiunt, imperium omnes perdiderunt 3 The Cities of them to command all.

Macedon, the fon of Ofiris, or, as other Authors affirm, of Jupiter and Æthra, is the next North-west, by the Thracians and Illyrians; and on the South and South-west by Thef-faly and Epirus.

Their Kings were of the family of Teme-Oracle to lead a Colony into Macedon, de- nius of Clotarius the fon of Fredegunda. parted thence with many people: and as he was marching through that Countrey, the and twenty years. weather being rainy and tempestuous, he espied a great herd of Goats, which fled reigned fifty years; He lived at such time the storm as fast as they could, hasting them as Darius Hystaspes, after his unprosperous to their known place of covert. Whercupon return out of Scythia, fent Megabazus with salbine, Caramus, calling to mind , that he had also for The by another Oracle been directed, to follow required Amyntas to acknowledge him for the first troop of beasts, that should either his Supream Lord, by yielding unto him lead him, or flie before him; he pursued Earth and Water. But his Embassadors, as these Goats to the Gates of Edessa, and being you have heard before, were for their inso-City without resistance, and possess it. Soon was the son of Amyntas, and his Successor.

union and accord. But the glory of their after this, by the overthrow of Ciffeus, Cara- Eufeb. it persian victories, wherewith they were pam- nus became Lord of the rest of Macedon, and chro. nred and made proud, taught them to neg- held it eight and twenty years. Comus fucleft all Nations but themselves, and the ra-ceeded Caranus, and reigned twelve years. ther to value at little the power and pur- Tyrimas followed Carns, and ruled eight kings and states, with the time of Amyntas, than they did, had in the time of Amyntas, the Father of Philip, to much weakned them, and won upon them, that they were not (a much renowned: Solimas, Pliny, Juffine, Eu-Sol.c. 14.

and won upon them, that they were not (a much renowned: Solimas, Pliny, Juffine, Eu-Sol.c. 14.

by Themphilips Anticohemic and other Plin. 1.4. and won upon them, that the Grecians perfected themselves) in any selicity, Theophilus, Antiochemus, and other selicity to recover their own, much affirm, that he appointed a place of burial one age, meny or teoret than own, mach allowed the place of burnal lefs to work any wonders againft their borderers. And, indeed, it was not in their Phiderers. that the Kingdom should so long continues on sare, storm-like, sudden and violent; and his Line and Race, as they continued to lay that it is then over-late to repair the decayed and broken banks, when great rivers are once swollen, fast-running, and inraged. No, the Greeks did rather imploy themselves, in nide failed in him: a thing rather devised breaking down those defences which stood after the effect, as I conceive, than foretold > Argaus succeeded unto Perdiccas, and ruled eight and twenty years.

Philip the first, his succellor, reigned eight Euseb. in and twenty years.

Æropus followed Philip, and governed fix and twenty years: in whole infancy the Greece lost their command, by striving each of Illyrians invaded Macedon, and having obtained a great victory, they purfued the same The Kingdom of Macedon, fo called of to the great danger of that State. Whereupon the Macedonians, gathering new forces, and resolving either to recover their former Region towards the North which borde- loss, or to lose at once both their Kingdom reth Greece . It hath to the East, the Age- and their King they carried him with them an Sea; it is bounded on the North and in his cradle into the field, and returned victorious; for they were either confident that their Nation could not be beaten, (their King being present) or rather they perswaded themselves that there was no nus, of the race of Hercules, and by Nation | man so void of honour and compassion, as Argives; who are lifted as followeth. About to abandon their natural Lord, being an In-Eufeb. fome fix years after the translation of the fant, and no way (but by the hands of his mian. The. Assirian Empire, Arbaces then governing servants) able to defend himself from de-Ant. & c. Media; Caranus of Argos, commanded by an fruction. The like is reported by Aimo-6, 82.

Alcetas fucceeded Æropus, and ruled nine

Amentas the first succeeded Alcetas, and undiscovered by the Inhabitants, by reason | lent behaviour towards the Macedonian La-Her. Est. of the darkness of the air, he entred their dies, slain by the direction of Alexander, who

Alexander

617

Amyntas, governed Macedon three and for his return from the Asian expedition, to pass ty years. He did not only appeale the wrath by the way of Macedon into Greece. of Megabazus, for the flaughter of the Per-fun Embafladors, by giving Gygea his Sifter, Argens, and Alexander. Pansanias fucceeded an Pic. his father Argens, and having reigned to Bubares of the blood of Persia; but by his father Eropus, and having reigned one Down. that match he grew fo great in Xer- year, he was driven out by Amyntas the son xes grace, as he obtained all that Region of Philip, the son of the first Perdiccas, the between the Mountains of Olympus and He- fon of Alexander the Rich; which Philip mus, to be united to the Kingdom of Mace- was then preferved, when Archelaus the don. Yet could not these benefits buy his Bastard slew his Brother Ferdiceas, his Uncle affection from the Greeks. For Xerxes be- Alcetas, and his fon Alexander. This Anna-That Est ing returned into Asia, and Mardonius made tas reigned (though very unquietly) four General of the Persian Army; Alexander and twenty years; for he was not only infeacquainted the Greeks with all his intents sted by Pausanias, assisted by the Thraciani. and purposes against them. He had three and by his brother Argans, incouraged by lived in the time of the Feloponnesian war, the other fide, the Olynthians, his Neighand reigned in all eight and twenty years. bours neer the Ægean Sea, made themselves The wars which he made were not much for a while Masters of Pella, the chief City remarkable: the Story of them is found of Macedon. here and there by pieces in Thucydides his first fix Books. He left behind him two rydice the Illyrian, three sons; Alexander fons; Perdiceas, who was very young; and the fecond, Perdiceas the third, and Philip the custody and care of Archelaus, was at se- He had also by his second Wife Greathree ven years of age cast into a well and drown- Sons; Archelaus, Argeus, and Menelaus, afed by his falle Guardian: who excufing terward flain by their brother Philip. He this fact to Cleopatra the mother of the had more by a Concubine, Ptolomy furnamed young King, faid, That the child in following | Alorites, of the City of Alorus, whereinhe a Goose hastily, fell thereinto by misadven- was born. ture. But Archelaus stayed not here: for having thus dispatched his brother, he slew above one year, in which time he was invaboth his Uncle Alcetas the fon of Alexan- ded by Pausanias, the fon of Eropus, but der the Rich, and Alexander the fon of this defended by Iphicrates the Athenian, while Alcetas, his Cousin Germain, and enjoyed he was at that time about Amphipolis. He the Kingdom of Macedon himself four and was also constrained (for the payment of twenty years.

Archelaus, who was base-born.

Gorg. Ariffotle make mention, though he made who had subjected his Father Amyntas to in Fol. 5. himself King by wicked murder, yet per- the payment of tribute. After this, Alexanformed many things greatly to the profit | der being invited by the Alevade against of his Nation. It is faid, That he fought by Alexander the Tyrant of Pheres in Theffaly, all means to draw Socrates unto him, and having redeemed his brother Philip; to draw that he greatly loved and honoured Eury- the Thebans to his affiftance, entred into Conpides the Tragedian. He had two fons, federacy with Pelopidas, being at that time in Archelaus and Orestes.

ther; and having reigned feven years, he was for the gage of his promifes to Pelopidas. flain in hunting, either by chance, or of But Eurydice his Mother falling in love with purpose, by Crataus.

the education of Aropus of the Royal death of Alexander her fon, with a purpose blood of Macedon, and had the same mea- to confer the Kingdom on her Paramour, fure which Archelans had measured to his which Ptolomy Alorites did put in execution: Pupil; for Eropus murthered him and usur- by means whereof, he held Macedon for ped the Kingdom, which he held fome fix three years, but was foon after flain by years: the same who denyed passage to Perdiccasthe brother of Alexander. Diodore

Alexander surnamed the Rich, the son of Agesilans King of Sparta, who desired, after fons, Perdiceas, Alcetas, and Philip.

Perdiceas the fecond, the fon of Alexander, two years disposiest of Macedon: but on Amyntas the fecond, had by his wife Futhe fecond, Father of Alexander the Great: Perdiccas the third, being delivered to and one Daughter called Euryone or Exione,

Alexander the second reigned not much nenty years.

This Archelaus, of whom both Plato and brother Philip in Hostage with the Illyrians, the same Countrey, with whom he also left Archelaus the second, succeeded his Fa- Philip with divers other principal persons, her Son-in-law, who had married her Orestes his younger son was committed to Daughter Euryone or Exione, practifed the naul it and faith, That Amyntas his Father by Sea, and three thousand Souldiers by by whom he was conveyed to Thebes, there all fides and quarters of his Country: vet fecond time by Alexander his brother.

practice of Eurydice his mother, as Alexan-

ø. II.

The beginning of Philip's reign: and how he delivered Macedon from the troubles wherein he found it intangled.

Philip the second, the youngest son of Amyntas by Eurydice, having been inftructed in all knowledge requisite unto the Government of a Kingdom, in that excellent between him and the Athenians for that education which he had under Epaminondas, making an escape from Thebes, returned | Iy renowned and honoured by all the into Macedon, in the first year of the hundred and fifth Olympiad, which was after the building of Rome three hundred fourscore and thirteen years: and finding the many enemies and dangers wherewith the King- | The good success which Philip had in many endom was invironed, he took on him, not as a King (for Perdiccas left a fon, though but an Infant) but as the Protector of his Nephew, and Commander of the men of War.

and his hath it etherwise of Philip being made and that the Athenians with a Fleet delivered him for hostage to the Illgrians, Land under Mantias, did beat upon him on to be kept: others report that Philip (while after he had practifed the men of War of his Father was yet living) was first ingaged Pannonia, and corrupted them with gifts : to the Thebans, and delivered for hoftage a and had also bought the King of Thrace from Paufanias, he forthwith made head against Perdices the third, after he had flain the Athenians his stiffest enemies; and, for Alorites his base Brother, Governed Macedon the first, he prevented their recovery of five years, and was then flain in a battel Amphipolis, a City on the frontier of Maceagainst the Illyrians, according to Diodorus; don: and did then pursue Argaus, the son but Jufin affirmeth that he perished by the of Eropus, set against him by the Athenians, and followed him so hard at the heels; in his retrait from Æges, that he forced him to abide the battel: which Argans loft, having the greatest part of his Army slain in the place. Those of the Athenians, and others which remained unbroken, took the advantage of a strong piece of ground at hand, which though they could not long defend, yet avoiding thereby the present fury of the Souldiers, they obtained of the Vanquishers life and liberty to return into Attica. Whereupon a peace was concluded present, and for this clemency he was great-Greeks.

o. III.

terprises.

Ow had Philip leasure to look North-ward, and to attend the Illyrians and Yet his fruitful ambition foon over-grew his | Pwonians, his irreconcileable enemies and modesty, and he was easily persuaded by borderers: both which he invaded with so the people to accept both the title of King, prosperous success, as he slew Bardillis, King and withall, the absolute rule of the King- of the Illyrians, with seven thousand of his dom: And, to fay the truth, the necessity of Nation, and thereby recovered all those the State of Macedon at that time required places which the Illyrians held in Macedon: a King both prudent and active. For, be- and withall, upon the death of the King of fides the incursions of the Illyrians and Pan- Pannonia, he piere dthat Country, and after nonians, the King of Thrace did set up in op- a main Victory obtained, he enforc'd them position, Pausanias; the Athenians, Argam; to pay him tribute. This was no sooner done, fons of the late Usurper Eropus: each of than (without staying to take longer these labouring to place in Macedon a King breath) he hasted speedly towards Larisia, of their own election. These heavy burdens upon the River Peneus in Thessaly, of which when Philip could not well bear, he bought Town he foon made himself Master; and off the weightiest by mony, and by fair pro- thereby he got good footing in that Counmiles unloaded himself of so many of the try, whereof he made use in time following. rest, as he ran under the remainder happily Now although he resolved either to subdue enough. For, notwithstanding that his the Thessairs, or to make them his own brother Perdiccas had his death accompani- against all others, because the horse-men of ed with four thousand Macedonians, befide that Country were the best, and most feared those that were wounded and taken pri- in that part of Europe; yet he thought it most foners; and that the Pannonians were for his lafety to close up the entrances out destroying all before them in Macedon; of Thrace, lest while he invaded Thessaly and

CHAP!

618

tions, lying towards the North, should either hand wrest the sword out of their fingers; withdraw him, or over-run Macedon, as in but the Greeks themselves, beating down former times. He therefore attempted Am- their own defences, to give him an easie past phipolis, seated on the famous river of stri- sage; and beating themselves, to give him mon, which parteth Thrace from Macedon; Victory without peril; left nothing unperand won it. He also recovered Pynda, and formed towards their own slavery, saving (to the North of Amphipolis) the City of the title and imposition. Of this War the Crenides (sometime Datus) and called it af- Thebans (made over-proud by their Victory ter his name, Philippi: to the people where- at Leuttra) were the inflamers. For at the of, Saint Paul afterward directed one of his Council of the Amphytiones, or of the ge-Epistles. This place, wherein Fhilippi stood, neral Estates of Greece, in which at that time is very rich in mines of gold, out of which, they swayed most, they caused both the Lagreatly to the advancement of Philips af- cedemonians and Phocians to be condemned fairs, he drew yearly a thousand talents, in greater sums of mony than they could which make fix hundred thousand French | well bear; the one for surprizing the Castle Crowns.

disburden the Thracian shores of the Atheni- to the Temple of Delphos. The Phocians an Garrisons, to which he had given a great being resolved not to obey this Edict, were blow by the taking in of Amphipolis, he en- secretly set on, and encouraged by the Lacetred into league with his Fathers malicious demonians: and for refusal were exposed enemies, the Olynthians; whom the better as Sacrilegers, and accurfed to all their to fasten unto him, he gave them the City of neighbour-Nations, for whom it was then Pynda with the territory, meaning nothing lawful to invade, and destroy them at their less than that they should enjoy it, or their pleasures.

own Estate, many years.

ground upon the Greeks, he took the fair fame dice of hazzard that Cafar after many occasion to deliver the City of Pheres in Ages following did; but had not the same Theffaly, from the Tyrants Lycophron and chance. Yet they dealt well enough with Tifiphonus: who, after they had conspired all the enemies of their own Nation, And with Thebe the wife of Alexander, who usur- the better to bear out an ungracious quarped upon the liberty of that State, they rel, of which there was left no hope of comthemselves (Alexander being murdered) held it also by the same strong hand and oppressible for seeing that for the ploughing of fion that Alexander did, till by the affiftance a piece of Apollo's ground, they had so much of Philip they were beaten out, and Pheres offended their Neighbour-god, and their restored to her former liberty. Which act Neighbour-Nations, as worse could not beof Philip did for ever after fasten the Thes- fall them than already was intended; they falians unto him, and, to his exceeding great resolved to take the gold with the ground, advantage, binde them to his service.

ø. IV.

ad, eight years after the battel of Mantinea, and Locrians; but being beaten in the fourth, and about the eighth year of Artaxerxes their Leader Philomelus cast himself head-Ochus, began that War, called Sacred. Now, long over the Rocks. as all occasions concur towards the execution of eternal providence, and of every great | su, both to defend themselves against their alteration in the World, there is some pre- bad neighbour Philip, who encroached upon ceding preparation, though not at the first them, and to draw others into their quarrel, easily discerned; so did this revengeful ha- rendred themselves to the Athenians. Philip tred by the Thebans, Theffalians, and Locri- prepareth to get them into his hands, and at ans, conceived against the Phocians, not the siege of Methone lost one of his eyes, It is Greece towards the South, those ample Na- only teach Philip how he might with half a rowns.

And that he might with the more ease ploughing up a piece of ground belonging

The Phocians perfwaded thereunto by Now that he might by degrees win Philomelus, a Captain of their own, call the and either to perish for all, or to prevail against all that had commission to call them to account. The treasure which they took out of the Temple in the beginning of the Of the Phocian War which first drew Philip War, was ten thousand talents, which in those dayes served them to wage a great many men; and fuch was their fuccessin the Bout this time, to wit, in the fecond beginning of the War, as they won three Ayear of the hundred and fixth Olympi- great battels against the Thebans, Thessalians direct his arrow toward him, and that it was the ans were very frong, and had ever more written on the shaft thereof: After Thilippo; both braved and beaten the Macedonians. After to Philip: for to he was called that gave It is faid, that Philip having put to death paint the wound. This City he evened with Archelaus his half brother (for Amontas had while Philip was buffed on the border of elder brother by the same Mother being white Theffalians ingaged in the dead, he determined to rid himself also of holy War, entred Thessaly with new forces, the rest) the two younger held themselves not find leafure to invade them. Hereupon all things were lawful that might ferve his their City of Coronea. But Philip, impatient of his late misadventure, after he had re-enforced his Army, returned with all speed into Thessaly, there to find again the honour which he lately loft : and was the fecond time encountred by Onomarchus, who brought into the field twenty thousand foot, and five hundred horse. All this great preparation sufficed not; for Onomarchus was by Philip furmounted, both in numbers and in good fortune, his Army overturned, fix thousand flain, and three thousand taken: of which number himself being one, was among others hanged by Philip. Those that fled, were in part received by the Athenian Gallies, which failed along the coast, commanded by Chares 5 but the greatest number of those that took the Sea, were therein devoured ere they recovered them. Lycophron was now again driven out of Theffaly, and Pheres made free as before.

In the mean while the Cities of Chersone-

s. V.

Of the Olynthian War. The ambitious pradices of Philip.

Rom hence Philip resolved to invade By gifts the Macedon clave Gates alunder, favour his entrance into those parts; and therefore with the help of the Lacedamonians, they retrench'd his paffage at the Streits of Thermopylis. Whereupon he re-ruption and fraud, than he did by force. For turned into Macedon, and after the taking as he had in all the principal Cities of Greece of Missberne, Torone, and other Towns, he his fecret workers (which way of Conquest quarrelled with the Olynthians, whom not was well followed by Philip the second of faid, That he that fhot him, did purposely and bought his peace of them. For the Olynthree fons by Eurydice the Mother of Philip, The Tyrant Lycophron before mentioned, and three other fons by Gygaa: but Philips being affilted by Onomarchus, Commander within Olymbus; and that the receiving of of the Phocian Army, in place of Philomelus, them by the Olynthians was the cause of the For hereby the Phocians hoped to enter- War, Justine affirmeth. Just quarrels are rain the Thessalians at home, as they should ballanced by just Princes, but to this King was Philip the second time called into The fla- turn; all his affections, and passions, how by; but both the Theffalians and Macedonia divers foever in other men, were in his amans (Philip being present) were utterly over- bition swallowed up, and thereinto convertthrown by Onomarchus; and great numbers ed. For he neither forbare the murder of of both Nations lost. From Thessalp, Ono- his own brothers, the breach of faith, the marching drew speedily towards Baeotia, and buying of other mens fidelity: he esteemed with the same Victorious Army brake the no place strong where his As loaden with forces of the Baotians, and took from them | gold might enter; nor any City or State unconquerable, where a few of the greatest, to be made greater, could lose the sense of other mens forrow and subjection. And because he thought it vain to practise the winning of Olynthus, till he had inclosed all the power they had within their own walls, he entred their Territory, and by the advantage of a well-compounded and trained Army, he gave them two overthrows ere he fate down before the City it felf: which done, he bought Enthicrates and Lasthenes from their people, and from the fervice of their Country and Common-weale, by whose treason he entred the Town, slew his brothers therein, fackt it, and fold the Inhabitants for flaves by the drum. By the spoil of this place he greatly enriched himself, and had treasure sufficient to buy-in other Cities withall, which he daily did. For fo was he advised by the Oracle in the beginning of his undertaking, That he should make his assaults with silver spears: Whereupon Horace well and truly laid,

> Diffidit Urbium Portas vir Macedo, & Subruit amulos Reges muneribus.

Hor, Carm. Od. 16,

And Kings envying his estate brought under.

And it is true, that he won more by corlong before he had wooed to his alliance, spain;) So when in the contention between

he was chosen the Arbitrator; he came not the superintendency of the Pythian games. to the Council accompanied with Piety and forfeited by the Corinthians, by being par-Justice, but with a powerful Army, and takers in the Phocian sacrilege. having beaten and flain both Kings, gave fentence for himfelf, and made the Kingdom

ø. VI.

How Philip ended the Phocian War.

ly War: the Baotians, finding themselves the Thracians to pay him the tenth part of unable to subsist without some present aid, all their revenues. But his next enterprise fent unto Philip for fuccour, who willingly against the Perinthians stayed his fury Perinvielded to their necessities, and sent them thins was a City of Thrace, seated upon Frofuch a proportion of men, as were neither fuf- | pontis, in the mid-way between selfos and ficient to master their enemies, nor to assure Byzantium, a place of great strength, and themselves; but yet to enable them to con- a people resolved to defend their liberty tinue the War, and to waste the strength of against Philip, where the Athenians incou-Greece. They also fent to Artaxerxes Ochus raged and affisted them. Philip sate down befor supply of treasure, who lent them thirty | fore it with a puissant Army, made many fair talents, which makes a hundred and four- breaches, gave many furious affaults, built fcore thousand Crowns: but when with these | many over-topping and commanding Towfupplies they had still the worst against the ers about it. But he was repelled with equal Phocians, who held from them three of the violence. For whereas Philip thought by his strongest Cities within Baotia it self, they continual assaults to weary them, and waste then belought Philip of Macedon that he both their men and munition, they were would affift them in person, to whom they supplied, not only from the Persian with would give an entrance into their Territo- | men and money, and succoured from Byzanry, and in all things obey his commande- tium, which frood upon the same Sea-coast, ments in War.

he knew himself in state to give the law to whatsoever was wanting to their necessity. both, and so quitting all his other purposes But because those of Byzantium by reason of towards the North, he marched with a spee- their neighbourhood, and easie passage by dy pace towards Beotia, where being arriv- water gave them often and ready help, Phied. Phallechus who commanded the Phocian lip removed the one half of his Army, and Army, fearing to thock with this victorious | befieged it, leaving fifteen thousand foot King, made his own peace, and withdrew | before Perinthus, to force it if they could: himself with a Regiment of eight thousand But, to be short, he failed in both attempts, Souldiers into Peloponnesus, leaving the Pho- (as all Princes commonly do that undertake cians to the mercy of the Conqueror; and divers enterprises at one time) and returnfor conclusion he had the glory of that War ed into Macedon with no less dishonour than called Sacred, which the Grecians with fo loss: whereupon he made an overture of many mutual flaughters had continued for peace with the Athenians, & greatly defired ten years; and, besides the glory, he posses it it to which though Phocion perswaded them himself of Orchomene, Coronea, and Corsia, in all he could, and that by the occasion offethe Country of the Exotians, who invited red they might greatly advantage their conhim to be victorious over themselves. He ditions; yet Demosthenes with his eloquence brought the Phocians into servitude, and prevailed in the refusal. In the mean while, wasted their Cities, and gave them but their Philip having digested his late affront, and Villages to inhabite, referving unto himself supplied his expence, by the taking of an the yearly tribute of threefcore talents, hundred threefcore and tenMerchantsfhips, which make fix and thirty thouland French he gathered new forces, and being accom-Crowns. He also hereby (besides the same of panied with his son Alexander, led them into piety for service of the gods) obtained the scythia; but he was also unprosperous in fame double voice in the Council of the that enterprife ; For the Triballi, a people of the Competitors for the Kingdom of Thrace, Amphyctiones which the Phocians had, with

ø. VII.

How Philip with ill success attempted upon Perinthus, Byzantium, and the Scythians.

Hilip, after his triumphant return into Macedon, by the Lieutenant of his Army "He War still continued between the Parmenio, slaughtered many thousands of Phocians and the Associates of the ho- the Illyrians and Dardanians, and brought but they were relieved from Athens, Chio, & Now had Philip what he longed for ; for Rhodes, by the conduction of Phocion, with Mella, let on him in his return, wounded time in diffrace, and not imployed; info the spoils which he had gathered.

ø. VIII.

How Philip overthrowing the Greeks in the battel of Cheronæa, was chosen Captain-General of Greece. The death of Philip.

ed the decree of the Amphyctiones, in which with so many difficulties, continued for so Philip had a double voice, and who by rea- many Ages, and so often defended against fon that the Thebans and Locrians gave the greatest Kings, was now lost in a mocountenance and aid to the Amphissonians, ment, and for ever lost. the rest were not of themselves able to Now this advised King (never passionate conftrain them, they befought Philip to come to his disadvantage) to the end he might obin person to their affistance. Now you tain the Soveraignty over all Greece, and be must think that Philip was not long in re- acknowledged for their Captain-General folving upon this enterprise; he needed against the Persians, without any further no drawing on, whom nothing could keep hazzard or trouble, was content to let go back; nor other diffwasion than a mastering those Athenians that were taken at this batpower could hold thence. He therefore tel of Cheronea, as he also forbare to attempt commanded his Army forthwith to march; anything against their City: but in Thebes the same being compounded of thirty thou- (which lately by the vertue of Epaminondas fand Foot, and two thousand Horse; and triumphed over the rest) he lodged a Garwith as much expedition as could be made, rifon of Macedonians. And being foon after he entred Phocis, won Platea, and brought | (according unto the long defire which he into subjection all that Region.

Therest, and especially the Athenians, although they had good cause to fear that a great part of this ftorm would fall on them-

felves, yet were they diffwaded by Demostbenes from accepting fuch reasonable conditions of peace as Philip offered, and rather | Parmenio, transported the fame over the made choice (having drawn the Thebans to | Hellespont into Asia, to begin the War. Of joyn with them) to leave the enjoying of his enterprise against Persia, he sought suctheir estates & their freedom to the chance | cels from the Oracle at Delphos, from whence of one battell, than to hold it either by com- he received such another convertible ridpolition, or by the grace of Philip. But this dle, as Crafus did when he attempted Cyrus, their Oratours eloquence cost them dear. and was in like fort mistaken in the ex-It is true, that he could far more eafily mind position. them of the vertue of their Ancestors than But as it is hard to discern and withstand make them fuch as they were. He might the flatteries of our own appetites, fo did repeat unto them (with words moving paf- Philips ambitious defire to invade Persia, fior) the wonders they wrought at Mara- abuse his judgement, so far, that the death, thon, but he could not transform the Mace- wherewith himself was threatned, he undonians into Persians, nor draw from the derstood to be delivered of his enemy, whom dead, a Miltiades, an Ariftides, a Themistocles, he intended presently to invade. Before or a cimon, or any of those famous Com- his purposed departure into Asia, he prepa-

him, and took from him the greatest part of much as when the Armies of Philip and the Confederates incountred, although some thousands of the Athenians did abide the killing, and the like number well-near of the Thebans died with them; yet the want of the worthy men on that fide to hold up the rest, and to draw them on, and the many choice Captains of the Macedonians, incouraged by a King of a growing fortune, as Mong these Northern Nations (part it gave to Philip so shining a victory, that Alexander by the light thereof found his way. he spent some eight years; and in the ninth (in despight of all the Nations interjacent) year, after the end of the holy War, he into Persia, India, and Egypt; so it cut to the was, by his great advantage, invited ground, and gave end and date to all the again by the Grecians to their affiftance. Grecian glory; Yea their liberty (faith For the Citizens of Amphissa having disobey- Curtius) with their large Dominion won > had nourished of this Soveraignty) by the general States at Corinth , styled the first Commander of all the Grecians, and contribution of men and money granted him, he compounded an Army of great strength, and under the Commandment of Attalus and manders, whose great vertues they had pay- red for the marriage of his Daughter Cleaed with the greatest ingraritude that ever patra, with Alexander King of Epirus; to Nation did. A Phocion they had, but by the which feaft and pastimes thereat appointed, strength of a contrary faction he was at this he invited all his Friends and Allies, with the

Mmmm

from whom he received much honour subjection of that famous Nation of Greece, and many rich prefents: but this was which for fo many ages had defendand many then precents. For, ed it felf against the greatest King of the indeed the feast of his Funeral. having refused to do justice to one Pau-having refused to do justice to one Pau-fanius, a Gentleman of his Guard, whom Attalus (greatly favoured by Phi-whom Attalus (greatly favoured by Phiwhom around (greatly layouted then left of them, both for their valour and judgeto be carnally abused by divers base persons; ment in the War, were no less worthis Panfarias grew into fo great a detectatons rangamas grew into io great a coul a fact, ware a Crown: For it was faild of Partion of the Kings partiality in fo foul a fact, as, when Philip was paffing twards the Theamenio (whom Alexander, ungrateful to ter, he drew a fword from under his long fo great vertue, impioully murthered) garment and wounded him to death, when That Parmenio had performed many things he had lived fix and forty years, and challenging eternal fame, without the reigned five and twenty. Justine reports it, King; but the King without Parmenio nethat Olympias incouraged Panfanias to mur- ver did any thing worthy of renown: as der the King her husband, 5 which after his for the reft of his Captains, though condeath she boldly avowed, by the honour tent to obey the Son of sich a Father, yet the did unto Paufanias, in crowning his dead did they not after Alexanders death endure body, in confecrating his fword unto Apollo, to acknowledge any man Superiour to themby building for him a monument, and other felves.

qualities and issue.

like Graces.

from the World, when he had ma- we find a good example in his dealing with ftered all opposition on that side of the Arcadion and Nicanor. Whom when for Sea, and had feen the fruits of his hopes, their evil speech of Philip, his familiars and labours, changing colour towards perswaded him to put to death, he an ripeness and perfection; yet he was here twered them, That first it ought to be in happy, that he lived to fee his confidered, whether the fault were in fon Alexander at mans estate, and had them that gave him ill language, or in himfelf been an eye-witness of his re-himfelf; Secondly, that it was in every folution and fingular valour in this last mans own power to be well spoken of;

which himself meant to creek, as the per- upon he told those that had perswaded formance and finishing was far more ea-fie to Alexander, though more glorious, better Physician for evil speech than they than the beginnings unto Philip, though were. less famous. For, besides the recovery of Macedon it self in competition be- remembred by Cicero and Gellius, and by tween him and the fons of Aropus, the Dion and Chrysoftome exceedingly comone affifted by the Thracians, the other mended. His Stratagems are gathered by by the Athenians; and besides the re- Polyanus and Erontinus; his wise sayings, gaining of many places possess by the by Plutarch. And albeit he held Mac-Illyrians, the crushing of all those Nor- don as in his own right 3, all the time thern Kings his Neighbours, the over- of his reign, yet was he not the true and throw of Olynthus, a State that denext Heir thereof; for Amyntus the lon piled the power of his Father, the of his brother Perdicess (of whom he had many Maritimate Cities taken, of great the Protection during his infancy) had principal persons of the Grecian Cities, strength and ancient freedom; and the

Of this Prince it is hard to judge, whether his ambition had taught him the exercise of more vices, than Nature and his excellent education had enriched him year year of Alexanders great valiant, Wife, Learned, and Master of ness were laid by Philip. Of his laudable his Affections, he had this savour of Piety, that he rather laboured to satisfie those that were grieved, than to suppress Gw although he were then taken them. Whereof (among many other) and this was shortly proved; for after The foundation of whole future great- Philip relieved their necessities, there ness he had laid so soundly for him, with one none within his Kingdom that did him more honour then they did. Where-daughter Cyna, who had by him a daughter the was afterward by her Father-in-law Ancalled Eurydice, who was married to Philips tipater put to death. base son Aridaus, her Uncle by the Mothers By Cleopatra the Neece of Attalus, he had fide: both which Olympias, Philips first Wife, Caranus, whom others call Philip: him Olymand Mother to Alexander the Great, put to pias, the Mother of Alexander the Great. death; Aridaus by extreme torments, Eury- caused to be rosted to death in a copper dice the strangled.

His Epistles to Alexander his son are

the race of Achilles) Alexander the Great, fo murdered at the Mothers brest. and Cleopatra. Cleopatra was married to her Uncle Alexander, King of Epirus, and was after her brother Alexanders death flain whom after he had gotten with child, he at Sardis, by the commandement of Anti- married to an obscure man, called Laeus.

had Cyna, married as is shewed before.

the right. This Amyntas he married to his der, after he had taken Pidna, married; but Pan. Others lay this murder to Alexander philip had by this Olympias, the daughter himself. By the same Cleopatra he had likewise of Neoptolemus, King of the Moloffians (of a daughter called Europa, whom Olympias al-

> By Phila and Meda he had no iffue. He had also two Concubines, Arlinge who bare Ptolomy King of Egypt, called the By Audata, an Illyrian, his fecond Wife, he Son of Lagus, but esteemed the Son of Philip: by Philinna, his fecond Concubine, a By Nicalipolis, the Sister of Jason, Tyrant publick Dancer, he had Aridem, of whom we of Pheres, he had Theffalonica, whom Caffan- shall have much occasion to speak hereafter.

CHAP. II.

Of ALEXANDER the Great.

ø. I.

A brief rehearfal of Alexanders doings, before he invaded Alia.

very of their former liberty, and to advent he fame title of General Commander) but Lexander afterwards called the ture it by force of arms. Alexanders young Great, fucceeded unto Philip his years gave them hope of prevailing, and Father; being a Prince no less his suspected severity increased courage in valiant by Nature, than by E- those, who could better resolve to die, than ducation, well instructed, to live flavishly. But Alexander gave no time and inriched in all forts of Learning to those swelling humours, which might and good Arts. He began his reign over the speedily have endangered the health of his Macedonians four hundred and seventeen Estate. For after revenge taken upon the years, after Rome was built, and after his Conspirators against his Father, whom he own birth twenty years. The strange dreams slew upon his Tomb, and the celebration of of Philip his Father, and that one of the gods his Funerals, he first fastened unto him his in the shape of a Snake, begat him on Olym- own Nation, by freeing them from all exa-Pias his Mother, I omit as foolish tales; ctions and bodily slavery, other than their but, that the Temple of Diana (a work | service in his Wars; and used such Kingly authe most magnificent of the world) was sterity towards those that contemned his burnt upon the day of his birth, and that fo young years, and fuch elemency to the rest firange an accident was accompanied with that perswaded themselves of the cruelty of the news of three feveral Victories, obtained his disposition, as all affections being pacified by the Macedonians, it was very remarkable, at home, he made a present journey into and might with the reason of those times be Peloponnesus, and so well exercised his spirits interpreted for ominous, & fore-shewing among them, as by the Counsel of the States the great things by Alexander afterward of Greece, he was, according to the great deperformed. Upon the change of the King, fire of his heart, elected Captain-General the Neighbour-Nations, whom Philip had against the Fersians, upon which war Philip opprest, began to consult about the reco- had not only resolved, (who had obtained menio and Attalus, a part of his Army, to dours to pacifie the King, and to be received mento and attains, a part of the again into his grace. Alexander was not long recover fome places on Asia-side, for the again into his grace. Alexander was not long fafe descent of the rest.

Mmmm 2

644

pied all Alexanders affections; those fair easily drawn from great purposes by such marks of Riches, Honour, & large Domini- occasions as may easily be taken off, neither on, he now floot at both fleeping & waking 5 hath any King ever brought to effect any all other thoughts and imaginations were great affair, who hath intangled himfelf in either grievous or hateful. But a contrary many enterprises at once, not tending to wind arifeth : for he receiveth advertise- one and the same certain end. ment, that the Athenians, Thebans and Lacedemonians, had united themselves against towards the South, he resolved to assure him, and, by affiltance from the Persian, hoped those Nations which lay on the North-side for the recovery of their former freedom. of Macedon, to wit, the Thracians, Triballes. Hereunto they were perswaded by De- Peones, Getes, Agreans, and other salvage peomosthenes, himself being thereto perswaded ple, which had greatly vexed with incursiby the gold of Persia: the devise he used ons, not only other of his Predecessors, but was more subtile than prositable; for he even Philip his Father: with all which, after caused it to be bruited, that Alexander was divers Overthrows given them, he made flain in a battail against the Triballes, and brought into the assembly a companion Notwithstanding this good success, he could whom he had corrupted, to affirm that him- not yet find the way out of Europe. There is felf was present, and wounded in the battail. nothing more natural to man than liberty: There is indeed a dertain Doctrine of Poli. the Greeks had enjoyed it over-long & loss it cy (as Policy is now a-days defined by false- too late to forget it; they therefore shake off hood and knavery) that devised rumors and the yoke once again. The Thebans, who had in lies, if they serve the turn but for a day or their Citadel a Carrison of a 3000. Macedons. two, are greatly available. It is true, Com- attempt to force it; Alexander hastnethto mon people are sometimes mockt by them their succour, & presents himself with 30000. as Souldiers are by falle alarums in the wars; foot, all old fouldiers, & 3000.horfe, before but in all that I have observed, I have found the City, and gave the Inhabitants somedays the fucces as ridiculous as the invention. For to resolve, being even heart-fick with the as those that find themselvs at one time abu- defire of passing into Asia. So unwilling, infed by fuch like bruits, do at other times neg- | deed, he was to draw blood of the Grecians, lect their duties, when they are upon true by whom he hoped to serve himself essereports, and in occasions perillous, summoned | where, that he offered the Thebans remission, to assemble; so do all men in general con. if they would only deliver into his hands domn the Venters of Such trumpery, and for Phenix and Prothytes, the stirrers up of the them, fear upon necessary occasion to enter-tain the truth it self. This labour unlooked fortune of Alexander, (which bare all refifor, and loss of time, was not only very griev- | stance before it, like the breaking in of the ous to Alexander, but by turning his sword Ocean Sea) instead of such an answer, asmen from the ignoble and effeminate Fersians, besieged and abandoned should have made, against which he had directed it, towards demanded Philotas and Antipater to be delithe manly and famous Grecians, of whose vered unto them; as if Thebes alone, then affiftance he thought himself affured, his layed in the ballance of Fortune with the present undertaking was greatly disordered. Kingdom of Macedon, and many other Pro-But he that cannot endure to strive against vinces, could either have evened the scale the wind, shall hardly attain the Port which or swayed it. Therefore in the end they pehe purposeth to recover: and it no less be- rished in their obstinacy. For while the Thecometh the worthielt men to oppose missor- bans oppose the Army assailant, they are tunes, than it doth the weakest children to charged at the back by the Macedonian Garbewail them.

wards these Revolters, as that himself, with fand sold for slaves, at the price of four the Army that followed him, brought them hundred and forty talents. This the king did the first news of his preparation. Hereup to the terrour of the other Gracian Cities. on all stagger, and the Athenians, as they Many arguments were used by Cleades one were the furt that moved, fo were they the of the priloners, to persuade Alexander had transported under the leading of Par- first that fainted seeking by their Embassain refolving; for the Persians perswaded him This enterprise against the Persian occu- to pardon the Gracians. Wise men are not to forbear the destruction of Thebes. He my, consisting of two and thirty thousand perswaded of Alexander's death, they rebel- maternal Ancestor. led but against his successour. He also befuddenly thrust him into the mouth thereof | dy to the grave, and left him there. and stoned him to death.

And having now quieted his borderers rison their City taken and razed to the He therefore made fuch expedition to- ground, fix thousand flain, and thirty thou-

into their City fo many of the Thebans, as he so much scorned the Army of Macedon, had escaped and fled unto them for suc- and had so contemptible an opinion of Alexcour, Alexander would not grant them ander himself, as having stiled him his serpeace, but upon condition to deliver into vant on a letter which he wrote unto him, his hands both their Orators which perswa- reprehending his disloyalty and audacity ded this fecond revolt, and their Captains; (for Darius intitled himself King of Kings, yet in the end, it being a torment unto him and the Kiniman of the gods) he gave orto retard the enterprize of Persia, he was der withall to his Lieutenants of the lesser content that the Orators should remain, Asia, that they should take Alexander alive, and accepted of the banishment of the Cap- whip him with rods, and then convey him tains; wherein he was exceeding ill-advi- to his presence: that they should fink his sed, had not his fortune, or rather the pro- ships, and send the Macedons taken prisovidence of God, made all the resistance ners beyond the Red-Sea; belike into Æthiagainst him unprofitable: for these good opia, or some other unhealthful part of Leaders of the Gracians betook themselves Africa. to the service of the Persian, whom after a few daies be invaded.

6. II.

the Persians upon the River of Granicus.

Spont, and being ready to dif-imbark, he name and countenance of their King were threw a Dart towards the Asian shore, as wont to prevail against those of less courage in the future to posses. He landed his Art to arm themselves with Iron and Steel prayed the King to believe that they were foot, and five thousand horse, all old Soulrather mif-led, by giving hasty credit to false diers, near unto Troy, where he offered a reports, than any way malicious; for being folemn facrifice upon Achilles Tomb, his

But before he left his own coast, he put fought the King to remember, that his Fa- to death, without any offence given him, all ther Philip had his education in that City, his Mother-in-laws Kinsmen, whom Philip yea, that his Ancestour Hercules was born his Father had greatly advanced, not spatherein: but all perswasions were fruitless; ring such of his own as he suspected. He also the times wherein offences are committed took with him many of his tributary Prindo greatly aggravate them. Yet for the ho- ces, of whose fidelity he doubted; thinking nour he bare to learning, he pardoned all by unjust cruelty to assure all things, both in therace of Pindarus the Poet, and spared, the present and suture. Yet the end of all and fet at liberty Timoclea, the Sifter of The- fell out contrary to the policy which his agencs, who died in defence of the liberty of Ambition had commended unto him, though Greece against his Father Philip. This noble agreeing very well with the justice of God; woman being taken by a Thracian, and by for all that he had planted, was foon after himravished, he threatned to take her life withered, and rooted up; those, whom he unless the would confess her treasure: the most trusted, were the most traiterous: his led that Thracian to a Well, and told him, mother, friends, and children, fell by fuch that the had therein cast it: and when the another merciles sword as his own, and all Thracian stooped to look into the Well, she manner of confusion followed his dead bo-

When the knowledge of Alexander's Now because the Athenians had received landing on Asia side was brought to Darius,

In this fort did this glorious King, confident in the glittering, but heartless multitude which he commanded, dispose of the already-vanquished Macedonians: But the ill destinies of men bear them to the ground, How Alexander passing into Asia, fought with by what strong considence soever armed. The great numbers which he gathered together, and brought in one heap into the Henall was now quieted at home, field, gave rather an exceeding advantage to his enemies, than any discouragement at allof Antipater both Greece and Macedon, in For, besides that they were menutterly unthe first of the Spring did pass the Helle- acquainted with dangers, men, who by the a token of defiance, commanding his Soul than themselves; men that took more care diers not to make any waste in their own how to embroider with gold and filver their Territory, or to burn, or deface those buil- upper garments, as if they attended the indings which themselves were presently and vasion but of the Sun-beams, than they did against the hardy Macedonians; I fay, befides all that the Persian horse-men fought with great thefe, even the opinion they had of their fury, though in the end scattered; and laftown numbers, of which every one in parti- ly, how those Gracians in Darius his pay, own numbers, or manufacturn holding themselves in one body upon a to fight, filled every one of them with the piece of ground of advantage, did (after care of their own fafety, without any intent mercy was refused them) fight it out to the at all to hazard any thing but their own last; how doth it then resemble truth, that breath, and that of their horses, in running such resistance having been made, yet of away. The Macedonians, as they came to Alexander's Army therefell but twelve footfight, and thereby to enrich themselves with men, and two and twenty horse-men? the gold and jewels of Persia, both which they needed; fo the Persians, who expected nothing in that War but blows and wounds, which they needed not, obeyed the A digression concerning the desence of hard King, who had power to constrain them in affembling themselves for his service; but their own fears and cowardife, which in time of danger had most power over them, they only then obeyed, when their rebellion against so servile a passion did justly and violently require it. For, faith Vegetius, Quemadmodum bene exercitatus miles prelium cu- thereof without a blow, some one or two pit, ita formidat indoctus; nam sciendum est Towns excepted. For in all invasions, where in pugna usum amplius prodesse quam vires. As the Nations invaded have once been beaten the well-practifed Souldier descres to come to upon a great advantage of the place, as in battel, fo the raw one fears it: for we muß defence of Rivers, Streights, and Mountains, understand, that in fight it more avails to have they will soon have perswaded themselves, been accustomed unto the like, than only to that such an enemy upon equal terms and have rude firength. What manner of men the even ground, can hardly be refifted. It was Persians were, Alexander discovered in the therefore Machiavels counsel, That he first encounter; before which time it is said, by those that write his story, that it was hard to judge, whether his daring to undertake And to fay truth, few Regions of any great the Conquest of an Empire so well peopled, circuit are so well senced, that Armies of with an handful of men, or the success he had were more to be wondred at. For at the River of Granick, which severeth the Territory of Tray from Fropontis, the Persians passage or other is commonly left unguardfought to frop his passage, taking the higher ed: if all be defended, then must the forces ground and bank of the River to defend, of the Country be distracted; and yet light which Alexander was forced (as it were) to ly fome one place will be found that is declime up unto, and scale from the Level of fended very weakly. How often have the the water. Great refistance (faith Curtius) Alpes given way to Armies, breaking into was made by the Persians, yet in the end Alexander prevailed. But it seems to me, that the Victory then gotten was exceeding eafie, and that the twenty thousand Persian footneen, said to be slain, were rather killed in the back, in running away, than hurt in the | hind them: for they are of too large extent, bosoms by refitting. For had those twenty thousand foot, and two hundred and fifty horse-men, or, after Plutarch, two thousand when the Warlike Nation of the Switzers, and five hundred horse-men, dyed with had undertaken to hinder France the French their faces towards the Macedonians, Alex- King from descending into the Dutchy of ander could not have bought their lives at Milan: but whilft these Patrons of Milan, fo fmall a rate, as with the loss of four and whom their own dwelling in those Mounthirty of all forts of his own. And if it were tains had made fittest of all other for such a alfo true, that Plutarch doth report, how fervice, were busied in custody of the Alpers, Alexander encountred two of the Persian Francis appeared in Lombardy, so much against the sharp pikes, swords, and darts of Commanders, Spithridates & Rhesaches, and

o. III.

passages. Of things following the Battel of Granick.

"He winning of this passage did great-If the winning or true parage and grand ly encourage the Macedonians, and ly encourage the Macedonians, and brought fuch terrour upon all those of the lesser Asia, as he obtained all the Kingdoms which resolveth to defend a passage, should with his ablest force oppose the Assailant. fuch force as may be thought fufficient to conquer them, can be debarred all entrance, by the natural difficulty of the waies. One CHAP. II. the greater terrour of the Inhabitants, by the greatest the less they had expected his dis, Ephefus, the Cities of the Trallians, and now much what shall we say of those Moun- Magnesia, which were rendred unto him. arrivan.

rains, which lock up whole Regions in fuch | The Inhabitants of which, with the people tames, which they leave but one Gate open? The of the Country, he received with great-Streights, or (as they were called) the grace, suffering them to be governed by Gates of Taurus in Cilicia, and those of Ther- their own Laws. For he observed it well; mopele, have seldom been attempted, per- Novum Imperium inchoantibus, utilis clemenhas because they were thought impreg- tia fama; It is commodious unto such as lav nable: but how seldom (if ever) have they the foundations of a new Sover aignty, to have been attempted in vain? Xerxes, and long the fame of being merciful. He then by Parafter him, the Romans, forced the entrance of menio wan Miletus, and by force mastered Thermopple; Cyrus the younger, and after Halicarnassas, which because it resulted obhim Alexander, found the Gates of Cilicia stimately, he razed to the ground. From been locked and barred, yet were those Queen, who had been cast out of all that hinder the passage, as a matter tending to his own disadvantage, fill the heads of his Souldiers with an opinion, that they are in ill case, having their means of safeguard taken from them, by the skill or valour of fuch as are too good for them. Certainly if a River were sufficient defence against an Arme, the Hle of Mona, now called Anglesey, which is divided from North-Wales by an Army of Julius Agricola. But he wanting, and not meaning to spend the time in making veffels to transport his forces, did affay the foords. Whereby he fo amazed the enemies

sians were very dastards. der, to pass the River of Granick in face of cy, by hewing it in pieces. the enemy; not marching higher to feek an eatier way, nor labouring to convey his men thereby cut off no less of their reputation, Chio, and Coos: the charge whereof he fuch unable Protectors

Soon after this Victory he recovered Sarwide open; how strongly soever they had whence he entred into Caria, where Ada the Countries open enough to a Fleet that she held (except the City of Alinda) by Dashould enter on the back-side. The defence rim his Lieutenants, presented her self unofRivers, how hard a thing it is, we find ex- to him, and adopted him her Son and Sucamples in all histories that bear good wit- ceffor; which Alexander accepted in fo graness. The deepest have many Foods; the cious part, as he lest the whole Kingdom to fwiftest and broadest may be passed by her disposing. He then entred into Lycia, Boats, in case it be found a matter of diffi- and Pamphylia, and obtained all the Seaculty to make a bridg. He that hath men coasts, and, subjecting unto him Pisidia, he. enow to defend all the length of his own directed himself towards Darius (who was bank, hath also enow to beat his enemy; faid to be advanced towards him with a and may therefore do better to let him come marvellous Army) by the way of Phrygia: over to his loss, than by striving in vain to For, all the Province of Asia the less, bordering upon the Sea, his first Victory laid under his feet.

While he gave order for the government and fetling of Lycia, and Pamphylia, they fent Cleander to raise some new Captains in Peloponnesus, and marching towards the North, he entred Celenas, feated on the River Meander, which was abandoned unto him; the Castle only holding out, which the Sea, had been safe enough against the also after forty daies was given up: for so Romans, invading it under the conduct of long time he gave them to attend fuccours from Darius. From Celenas he past on through Phrygia towards the Euxine Sea. till he came to a City called Gordium, the Regal Seat, in former times, of King Midasi attending for ships and such like provision In this City it was, that he found the Gonby Sea; that furely believing nothing could dian-knot, which when he knew not how to behard or invincible to men, which came undo, he cut it alunder with his fword. For so minded to War, they humbly intreated there was an ancient Prophecy did promise for peace, and yielded the Island. Yet the to him that could untie it, the Lordship of Britains were men front enough, the Per- all Afia; whereupon Alexander, not refrecti ing the manner how, so it were done, assu-It was therefore wifely done of Alexan- med to himself the fulfilling of the Prophe-

But before he turned from this part of Asia the less towards the east, he took care to over it by some fafer means. For, having clear the Sea-coast on his back, and to thrust beaten them upon their own ground, he did the Persians out of the Islands of Lesbos, than of their strength, leaving no hope of committed unto two of his Captains, giving fuccour to the partakers and followers of them fuch order as he thought to be most convenient for that fervice; and delivering unto them fifty Talents to defray the less material, as were also the forces and charge; and withall out of his first spoyl power of command, by which it wrought. gotten, he sent threescore Talents more to But he that would find the exact pattern of Antipater his Lieutenant in Greece and Ma- a noble Commander, must look upon such as ceden. From Celenas he removed to Ancira, Epaminondas, that encountring worthy now called Anguori, standing on the same Ri- Captains, and those better followed than ver of Sangarino, which runneth through themselves, have by their fingular vertue Gordium: there he mustered his Army, and over-topped their valiant enemies, and still then entred Paphlagonia, whose people sub- prevailed over those, that would not have mitted themselves unto him, and obtained vielded one foot to any other. Such as these freedom of tribute: where he left Catus Governour with one Regiment of Macedoni-

ans lately arrived. Here he understood of the death of Memnon, Darius Lieutenant, which heartned him and utterly subdue a multitude of service greatly to pass on towards him; for of this Nations, compounding the body of a gross only Captain he had more respect than of unwieldy Empire. Wherefore these Parcoall the multitude by Darins affembled, and Potentes, men that with little have done of all the Commanders he had besides. For much upon enemies of like ability, are tobe fo much hath the spirit of some one man ex- regarded as choise examples of worth; but celled, as it hath undertaken and effected great Conquerours, to be rather admired the alteration of the greatest States and for the substance of their actions, than the Common-weals, the erection of Monarchies, exquifite managing: exactness and greatness the Conquest of Kingdomes and Empires, concurring to seldom, that I can find no inguided handfuls of men against multitudes stance of both in one, save only that brave of equal bodily strength, contrived victories Roman, Cafar. beyond all hope and discourse of reason, converted the fearful paffions of his own that we return unto our Eastern Conquerfollowers into magnanimity, and the valour our; who is travelling hastily towards ciof his enemies into cowardize; such spirits licia, with a desire to recover the Streights have been stirred up in fundry Ages of the thereof before Darius should arrive there. world, and in divers parts thereof, to creck But first making a dispatch into Greece, he and cast down again, to establish and to de- sent to those Cities, in which he reposed ftroy, and to bring all things, Persons and most trust, some of the Person Targets States, to the same certain ends, which the which he had recovered in his first battel; infinite Spirit of the Universal, piercing, upon which, by certain inscriptions, he made moving, and governing all things, hath or them partakers of his Victory. Herein he dained. Gertainly, the things that this King well advised himself; for he that dothnot did, were marvellous, and would hardly as well impart of the honour which he gains have been undertaken by any man else : and in the Wars, as he doth of the spoils, shall though his Father had determined to have never be long followed of those of the betinvaded the leffer Afa, it is like enough that ter fort. For men which are either well born, he would have contented himself with some or well bred, and have more of wealththan part thereof, and not have discovered the of reputation, do as often satisfie themselves River of Indus, as this man did. The fwift with the purchase of glory, as the weak in course of victory, wherewith he ran over so | fortune, and strong in courage, do with the large a portion of the World, in so short a gain of gold and silver. space, may justly be imputed unto this, that he was never encountred by an equal spirit, Alexanders coming on, left some Companies concurring with equal power against him. to keep the Streights, which were indeed Hereby it came to pass that his actions being very defensible; and withall, as Curtius nolimited by no greater opposition, than defart teth, he began over-late to prise and put in places, and the meer length of tedious jour- execution the Counsel of Memnon: who in nies could make, were like the Coloffus of the beginning of the Wars advised him to Rhodes, not to much to be admired for the waste all the provisions for Men and Horse, workmanship, though therein also praise- that could not be lodged in strong places, worthy, as for the huge bulk. For certainly and alwayes to give ground to the invader, the things performed by Xenophon, discover | till he found some such notable advantage as brave a spirit as Alexanders, and working as might assuredly promise him the obtainno less exquifitely, though the effects were ing of Victory. For the fury of an invading are, do feldom live to obtain great Empires. For it is a work of more labour and longer time to mafter the equal forces of one hardy and well-ordered State, than to tread down with all the strength of Persia at once.

Having thus far digreffed, it is now time

The Governour of Cilicia hearing of

Xerxes, when he invaded Greece and fought abroad, in being beaten, lost only of their destruction.

the freedome of Rome, and his own life.

Ferdinand, in the Conquest of Naples, would needs fight a battel with the French by painful travel. to his confusion, though it was told him by honourable enough.

Prince of Orange in the Low-Countries.

se ; and King John (when the English were Alexanders coming, and as great cause Army is best broken, by delayes, change of well-neer tired out, and would in short diet, and want, eating fometimes too little, time by an orderly pursuit have been wasted and fometimes too much fometimes reposing to nothing) constrained the black Prince themselves in beds, and more oftner on the with great fury, near Poitiers, to joyn battel cold ground. These and the like sudden al- with him: But all men know what lamentterations bring many difeases upon all Nati- able success these two French Kings found. ons out of their own Countries. Therefore Charles the fift of France made another kind if Darius had kept the Macedonians but a of Fabian-Warfare; and though the English while from meat and fleep, and, refusing to burnt and wasted many places, yet this King give or take battel, had wearied them with held his resolution to forbear blows, and his light horse, as the Parthians afterward followed his advice, which told him. That did the Romans, he might perchance have the English could never get his inheritance faved his own life, and his estate. For it was by smooth. And it is reported by Belloy and one of the greatest incouragements given by Herrault, that King Edward was wont to say Alexander, to the Macedonians, in the third of this Charles, that he wan from him the and last fatal battel, That they were to fight Dutchy of Guyen without ever putting on his Armour.

But where God hath a purpose to destroy; wife men grow short-lived, and the charge his men; but Darius being invaded by the of things is committed unto fuch as either Greeks, and fighting at home, by being bea- cannot fee what is for their good, or know ten, loft his Kingdom. Pericles though the not how to put in execution any found ad-Lacedamonians burnt all in Attica to the vice. The course which Memnon had pro-Gates of Athens, yet could not be drawn to pounded, must in all appearance of reason hazzard a battel: for the invaded ought have brought the Macedonian to a great perevermore to fight upon the advantage of plexity, and made him frand ftill a while at time and place. Because we read Histories the Streights of Cilicia, doubting whether it to inform our understanding by the exam- were more shameful to return, or dangerous ples therein found, we will give some in- to proceed. For, had Cappadocia and Paphlaflances of those that have perished by ad- gonia been wasted whilst Alexander was far venturing in their own Countries, to charge off; and the Streights of Cilicia been defendan invading Army. The Romans, by fighting ed by Arsenes, Governour of that Province, with Hannibal, were brought to the brink with the best of his forces; hunger would not have fuffered the enemy, to fray the trial Pompey was well advised for a while, when of all means that might be thought upon, of he gave Cafar ground; but when by the forcing that passage: or if the place could importunity of his Captains he adventured | not have been maintained, yet might Cilicia, to fight at Pharsalia, he lost the battel, lost at better leisure have been so throughly spoiled, that the heart of his Army should have been broken, by feeking our miferies

But Arfenes leaving a small number to dea man of found judgement, that those Coun- fend the Streights, took the best of his Army fels which promife furety in all things, are with him, to waste and spoil the Country ; or rather, as may feem, to find himfelf some The Constable of France made frustrate work, by pretence of which he might hothe mighty preparation of Charles the Fift, neftly run further away from Alexander. when he invaded Provence, by wasting the He should rather have adventured his per-Country, and for bearing to fight; fo did the | fon in cuftody of the Streights, whereby he Duke of Alva weary the French in Naples, might perhaps have faved the Province; and and dissolve the boistrous Army of the in the mean time, all that was in the fields, would have been conveighed into strong The Leigers, contrary to the advice of Towns. So should his Army, if it were driven their General, would needs fight a battel from the place of advantage, have found with the Bourgonians, invading their Coun- good entertainment within walled Cities, try, and could not be perswaded to linger the and himself with his horse men have had time, and fray their advantage; but they loft the less work in destroying that little which eight and twenty thousand upon the place. was left abroad. Handling the matter as he Philip of Valois fet upon King Edward at Cref- did, he gave the Cilicians cause to wish for

to the Keepers of the passage not to hinder twelve several Nations, which the better to it. For cowards are wife in apprehending all avoid confusion, did hardly understand each forms of danger. These Guardians of the others language; and these marshalld in the torms of danger. These Quarters in the Streights, hearing that Argenes made all head of the reft, being beaten, might serve haste to joyn himself with Daring, burning very fitly to disorder all that followed them: down all as he went, like one despairing of in the tail of these Horses the Regiment of the defence, began to grow circumspect, and foot marched, with the Persians called Imto think that furely their General, who gave mortal, because if any died, the number was as lost the Country behind their backs, had presently supplied: and these were armed exposed themselves unto certain death, as with chains of gold, and their coats with the men that were good for nothing else but to fame metal imbroidered, whereof the fleeves dull the Macedonian fwords. Wherefore, were garnished with pearl; baits, either to not affecting to dye for their Prince and catch the hungry Macedonians withall, or to Country (which honour they faw that Arfenes himself could well forbear) they speedi- to cut, and to deface such glorious garments. ly followed the foot-steps of their General, But it was well said; Sumptuose indutus mi. gleaning after his Harvest. Thus Alexander les, se virtute superiorem aliis non existimet. without labour got both the entrance of Ci- cum in praliis oportest fortitudine animi, & licia, abandoned by the cowardife of his Enemies, and the whole Province that had been alienated from the Perstan fide by their exceedeth those in valour, whom he exceedeth in indiscretion.

6. IV.

Darius took in this expedition. He is vanquished at Issus; where his Mother, Wife, things following the battel of Islus.

who (as Curtius reports) had compound | pieta atque aurata seuta transfre Romanum pi ed an Army of more than two hundred and lum; For these plumed cress would wound no ninety thouland Souldiers, out of divers body, and the Roman pile would bore boks in Nations ; Justine musters them at three painted and gilded shields. hundred thousand Foot, and a hundred thousand Horse; Plutarch, at fix hundred teen thousand were appointed more rich and thousand.

describes it, was rather like a Masker than rour) and these were honoured with the Tia man of War, and like one that took more the of the Kings Kinfmen. Then came Darius care to fet out his glory and riches, than to himfelf, the Gentle-men of his Guard-robe, provide for his own fafety, perfivading him- riding before his Chariot, which was supporfelf, as it feemed, to beat Alexander with ted with the gods of his Nation, caftand cut pomp and sumptuous Pageants. For, before in pure gold; these the Macedonians didnot the Army there was carried the holy Fire, ferve, but they ferved their turns of thefe, which the Persians worshipped, attended by by changing their massie-bodies into thin, their Priests; and after them three hundred portable and currant coyn. The headofthis and threefcore and five young-men, answer- Chariot was set with precious stones, with ing the number of the dayes of the year, co two little golden Idols, covered with an vered with Scarlet; then the Chariot of Jupiter drawn with white Horses, with their hinder part being raised high whereon Dari-Riders cloathed in the same colour, with us sate, had a covering of inestimable value. rods of gold in their hands; and after it, the This Chariot of the King was followed with Horse of the Sun: Next after these follow ten fumptuous Chariots, in-layed and gar- ted with filver, and their heads guilt; nifht with filver and gold; and then the which they meant not to imbrue in the Manual to the manual Vantguard of their horie, compounded of cedenian blood, for fear of marring their perswade them that it were great incivility non vestimentis muniri, quoniam hostes vestibus non debellantur; Let no man think that he gay garments; for it is by men armed with fortitude of mind, and not by the apparel they put on, that enemies are beaten. And it was perchance from the Roman Papyrius that this Of the unwarlike Army levied by Darius against advice was borrowed, who, when he fought Alexander. The unadvised courses which against the Samnites in that fatal battel, wherein they all fware either to prevail or dye, thirty thousand of them having appaand Children are made prisoners: of some relled themselves in white garments, with high crests, and great plumes of feathers, bade the Roman Souldiers to lavaside all IN the mean scason Darius approached, sear: Non enim cristas vulnera facere, o per

To fecond this Court-like company, fifglittering than the former, but apparelled The manner of his coming on, as Curtius like Women (belike to breed the more teropen-winged-Eagle of the same metal: The ten thousand Horse-men, their Lances plaown person, two hundred of the blood Roy- Nations; for as the needy are alwayes adali blood, too Royal and precious to be spilt venturous, so plenty is wont to shun peril, and by any valorous adventure, (I am of opinion men that have well to live, do rather study that two hundred flurdy fellows, like the how to live well, I mean wealthily than care King, which if he had meant to have used, blows. he would have marshalled somewhat nearer

CHAP. II.

being led by sifgambis the Kings Mother, the outfides of the Persians, and never have and by his Wife, drawn in glorious Chariots, looked into the intrails of Beafts for fuccess. followed by a great train of Ladies their at- For leaving the description of this second tendants on horse-back, with fifteen Wa- battel (which is indeed no-where well degons of the Kings children, and the wives of scribed; neither, for the confusion and hasty the Nobility, waited on by two hundred and running away of the Alians, could it be) we fifty Concubines, and a world of Nurses and have enough by the slaughter that was made Eunuchs, most sumptuously apparelled. By of them, and by the few that fell of the Macewhich it should seem that Darius thought donians, to inform us what manner of resithat the Macedonians had been Comedians stance was made. For if it be true that threeor Tumblers; for this troop was far fitter | score thousand Persian footmen were slain in to behold those sports than to be present at this battel, with ten thousand of their horsebattels. Between these and a company of men; Or (as Curtius faith) an hundred thonflight-armed flaves, with a world of Varlets, | fand footmen, with the fame number of was the Kings treasure, charged on six hun- horsemen, and besides this slaughter, 40000 dred Mules, and three hundred Camels, taken prisoners, while of Alexanders Army brought, as it proved, to pay the Macedoni- there miscarried but two hundred and fourans. In this fort came the May-game-King | score of all forts, of which numbers Arrianus languages, and for their numbers impossible effeminate, and fo rich in gold and in garments, as the same could not but have encouraged the naked'st Nation of the world against them. We find it in daily experience, whatfoever elfe hath been wont to move and incourage Vertuous men, hath no force at all with the common Souldier, in comparifon of spoil and riches. The rich ships are boorded upon all disadvantage, the rich Towns are furioufly affaulted, and the plentiful Countries willingly invaded. Our English Nation have attempted many places in the Indies, and run upon the Spaniards headlong, in hope of their Royals of plate, and Pistolets; which had they been put to it upon the like disadvantages in Ireland, or in their Peeces and Pikes against their Commanders, contesting that they had been brought without reason to the butchery and beauty. He had for the proper Guard of his | fuccess, that is ordained against the richest switzers, would have done him more to dye (as they call it) honourably. Car on fervice) and these were backt with thirty il n'y a rien a gaigner que des coups, volontiers thousand foot-men, after whom again were iln'y vapas. No man makes haste to the marled four hundred spare horses for the ket, where there is nothing to be bought but

Now if Alexander had beheld this preparation before his confultation with his Sooth-Now followed the Rere-ward, the same sayers, he would have satisfied himself by into the field, incumbred with a most un- and other Historians cut off almost the one necessary train of Strumpets, attended with half; I do verily believe, that this small troups of divers Nations, speaking divers number rather died with the over-travel and pains-taking in killing their enemies, to be marshalled; and for the most part so than by any strokes received from them. And furely if the Persian Nation (at this time degenerate and the basest of the World) had had any favour remaining of the ancient valour of their fore-fathers, they would never that all discourse of Magnanimity, of Nati-onal Vertue, of Religion, of Liberty, and price, the Mother, the Wife, the Daughters, and other the Kings children; had their own honour been valued by them at nothing, and the Kings safety and his estate at less. Darius by this time found it true, that Charidemus a banished Gracian of Athens had told him, when he made a view of his Army about Babylon, to wit, That the multitude which he had affembled of divers Nations, richly attired, but poorly armed, would be found more terrible to the Inhabitants of the country, whom in paffing by they would devour than to the Macedonians, whom they meant any poor Country, they would have turned to affail; who being all old and obedient Souldiers, imbattelled in groß squadrons, which they call their Phalanx, well covered with Armour for defence, and furnished flaughter. It is true that the War is made with weapons for offence of great advanwillingly, and for the most part with good tage, would make so little accompt of his Nnnn 2 delicate Fersians, loving their ease and their it is truly said of those men, who, by being palat, being withall ill armed and worse acquainted with dangers, fear them not disciplined, asexcept it would please him to That, Neglecto periculo imminentis mali, opus entertain (having so great abundance of ipsum, quantumois difficile, aggrediumur: treasure to do it withall) a sufficient number They go about the business it self, how hard so of the same Gracians, and so to encounter ever it be, not standing to consider of the danthe Macedonians with men of equal cou- ger, which the mischief hanging over their rage, he would repent him overlate, as heads may bring: and as truly of those that

652

Darius (who had been accustomed to no- lity enough, and to spare, till dangers appear; thing so much as to his own praises, and to but when peril indeed comes, they get them nothing fo little as to hear truth) as he com- gone. manded that this poor Grecian should be presently slain: who while he was a fundring trait, advised Darius to retire his Army into in the Tormentors hand, used this speech to the plain of Mesopotamia, to the end that the King, That Alexander, against whom he had given this good counsel, should affuredly revenge his death, and lay deferved | invironed the Macedonians on all fides with punishment upon Darius for despising his his multitude; and withall they counselled

rata ejus Principis salus est, cujus aures itafor- Fortune, whereby he might have fought mamata sunt, ut aspera que utilia, nec quicquam ny battels, and have brought no greater nisi jucundum accipiat; That Princes safety is numbers at once than might have been well in a desperate case, whose cars judge all that is marshalled and conducted. But this Council profitable to be too sharp, and will entertain was so contrary to the cowardly affections of nothing that is unpleasant.

of Council; Libertas consilii est ejus vita, & and to cut them in pieces as Traitors. The essentia, qua ereptà consilium evanescit.

advice given him by the Gracian Souldiers often in the alteration of Kingdoms and that ferved him, who intreated him not to Estates, by taking understanding from the fight in the Streights: But had they been Governours, so as they can neither give not Counsellers and Directors in that War, as discern of Counsels. For Darius that would they were underlings and commanded by needs fight with Alexander upon a streightothers, they had with the help of a good ned piece of ground, neer unto the Cityof troup of horse-men been able to have opposed the fury of Alexander, without any to fight than Alexander could, (who by the affiftance of the Persian foot-men. For when advice of Parmenio staied there, as in a place Darius was overthrown with all his coward- of best advantage) was utterly overthrown, ly and confused rabble, those Gracians, un- his Treasure lost, his Wife, Mother, and der their Captain Amyntas, held firm, and Children (whom the Gracians his followers marched away in order, in despight of the had perswaded him to leave in Babylon, or Vanquishers. Old Souldiers are not easily elsewhere)taken prisoners, and all their train dismayed: we read in Histories ancient and of Ladies spoiled of their rich Garments, Jemodern, what brave retraits have been wels, and Honour. It is true, that both the made by them, though the rest of the Army Queen, with her Daughters, who had the in which they have ferved, hath been good hap to be brought to Alexanders prebroken.

perials were beaten by the French, a squa- and their Jewels and rich Garments restored dron of Spaniards, old Souldiers, came off unto them; and though Darius Wife was a unbroken and undifinayed; whom when most beautiful Lady, and his Daughters of Gafton de Foix, Duke of Nemours, and Ne excellent form, yet Alexander mastred his phew to Lems the twelfth, charged, as hol- affections towards them all: only it is reding the Victory not entire by their escape, he was overfurned and slain in the place. For taught by the miserable success like to sol- know the Wars but by hear-say; Quid valentes sunt & prævalentes ante pericula, in But this discourse was so unpleasing to ipsis tamen periculis discedunt; They have abi-

These Gracians also that made the re-Alexander being entred into those large fields and great Champians, he might have him to divide that his huge Army into parts, It was the faying of a Wise man: Despe- not committing the whole to one stroke of the Persians, as they perswaded Darius to in-For liberty in Council is the life and effence viron the Gracians which gave the advice, infinite wisedom of God doth not work al-Darius did likewise value at nothing the wayes by one and the same way, but very sence, were entertained with all respect due At the battel of Ravenna, where the Im- unto their birth, their Honours preferved, non, her Husband lately dead, who was ta- peace, but fuch as rather became a Conquerken flying from Damascus by Parmenio, at or, than one that had now been twice shamewhich time the Daughters of Ochus, who fully beaten, not youch fafing in his direction. reigned before Darius, and the Wives and to stile Alexander King. It is true, that the Children of all the Nobility of Persia in ef-Romans, after that they had received an fides.

with divers other of his chief Captains, Alexander disdained the offers of Darius. (casting the Crown from his head) hardly and sent him word, that he not only directed escaped.

After this overthrow given unto Darius, all Phanicia (the City of Tyre excepted) was vielded to Alexander, of which Farmenio was made Governour.

Cities of great importance, of which one strato was King (but hated of the people) acknowledged Alexander. Good fortune followed him so fast that it trod on his heels; the less, overthrew the Cappadocians, Paphlacome to divide Kingdoms.

It was a good defire of this new King, when speaking to Alexander, he wisht that he could bear his prosperity with the same moderation, and quietness of heart, that he himself that which he commended in another mans defire: for it was a fign that he did but accompany, and could not Govern his felicity.

feet, fell into captivity; at which time also overthrow by Pyrrhus, returned him a more Darius Treasure (not lost at Issue) was seiz- scornful answer upon the offer of peace, than ed, amounting to fix thousand and two they did before the trial of his force. But hundred talents of coin, and of Bullion five as their fortunes were then in the Spring, for hundred talents, with a world of riches be- that of Darius had already cast leaf; the one a refolved, well armed and disciplined Darius himself leaving his brother dead, Nation, the other cowardly and effeminate. his letter to a King, but to the King of Darius himfelf.

6. V.

Aradus, Zidon, and Biblos, maritimate How Alexander besieged and wan the City of Tyre.

A Lexander coming near the City of Tyre, received from them the present of a for Antigonus, Alexanders Lieutenant in Asia golden Crown, with great store of victuals, and other prefents, which he took very gonians, and others lately revolted; Arifto- thankfully, returning them answer, That he demus, Darius Admiral, had his Fleet partly defired to offer a facrifice to Hercules, the taken, and in part drowned by the Macedo- | Protector of their City, from whom he was nians newly levied; the Lacedamonians that | descended. But the Tyrians like not his comwarred against Antipater were beaten; four pany within their Walls, but tell him that thousand of those Greeks which made the the Temple of Hercules was seated in the old retrait at the last battel, for saking both the | City adjoyning, now abandoned and desoparty of Darius and of Alexander, and led by late. To be short, Alexander resolved to Amyntas into Egypt, to hold it for themselves, enter it by force : and though it were a were buried there; for the time was not yet | place in all mens opinion impregnable, because the Island whereon it was built, was Alexander to honour Epheltion, whom he eight hundred furlongs from the Main, yet loved most, gave him power to dispose of the | with the labour of many hands, having great Kingdom of Zidon. A man of a most poor store of stone from the old Tyre, and timber estate, that laboured to sustain his life being sufficient from Lybanus, he filled the passage of the Royal blood, was commended by the of the Sea between the Island and the Main, people unto him, who changed his Spade which being more than once carried away into a Scepter, so as he was beheld both a by the strength of the Sea upon a storm of Beggar and a King in one and the same wind, sometime by the Tyrians fired, and fometime torn afunder; yet with the help of his Navy which arrived (during the fiege) from Cyprus, he overcame all difficulties and prevailed, after he had spent seven months in that attempt. The Tyrians in the beginhad done his adverfity; but ill done of ning of the fiege had barbaroufly drowned Alexander, in that he would not perform in the messengers sent by Alexander, perswading them to render the City, in respect whereof, and of the great loss of time and men, he put eight thousand to the sword, and caused two thousand of those that esca-While he made some stay in those parts, ped the first fury, to be hanged on Crosses he received a letter from Darius, importing on the Sea-shore, and reserved for slaves the ransome of his Wife, his Mother, and his (faith Diodore) thirteen thousand; Arria-Arrian Children, with some other conditions of mis reckons them at thirty thousand. Many ferved Alexander, conveyed great numbers He found better men in this place than he away by shipping unto their own City.

654

Happy it was for Apollo that the Town was taken: for one of the Tyrians having Gaza, that he was forced to fend for a new dreamt, that this god meant to forfake the supply into Greece. Here it was that Alexan-City, they bound him fast with a golden der first began to change condition, and to chain to the Idol of Hercules; but Alexander, like a gracious Prince, loofed him again.

It is true, that it was a notable entermade greater. For Nebuchodonofor had taken it before, and filled up the chanel that thorow his feet, and caused him to be drawn lay between the Island and the Main.

The Government of this Territory he he committed to socrates, and Andromachus his torments. And what had he to counte-Lieutenant under Parmenio; Epheftion had nance this his tyranny, but the imitation of charge of the Flect, and was directed to find Alexander at Gaza towards Egypt.

ø. VI.

deals graciously with the Jews.

IN the mean while Darius fends again to Alexander, sets before him all the difficulties of passing on towards the East, and layeth the loss of the last Battel to the streightness of the place: he hoped to terrifie him by threatning to encompass him in the plain Countries, he bids him to confider, how impossible it was to pass the Rivers of Euphrates, Tigris, Araxes, and the rest, with all such other fearful things: for he that was now filled with nothing but fear, had arguments enow of that nature to present unto another. All the Kingdoms between the River admired it. Josephus reports it, that he fell of Alss, and the Hellesport, he offered him to the ground before the high Priest, asrein Dower with his beloved Daughter. But verencing the Name of God, and that Par-Alexander answered, That he offered him menio reprehended him for it. Howsoever nothing but his own, and that which victo it was, I am of opinion, that he became fo ry and his own virtue had polleft him of; confident in his enterprize, and fo affured of That he was to give conditions, and not to the fucces after the Prophecy of Daniel receive any, and that he having passed the had been read unto him, wherein he saw Sea it felf, diffained to think of refiftance in himself, and the Conquest of Persia fo directly transporting himself over Rivers. It is said, pointed at, as nothing thence-forth could That Parmenie, who was now old, and full discourage him, or fear him. He confessed to of honour and riches, told the King, That Parmenio (laith Josephno) that in Dio a City were he Alexander, he would accept of Da of Macedon, when his mind laboured the rim his offers; to which Alexander answer- Conquest of Asia, he saw in his sleep such a ed, That so would he, if he were Parmenio.

Daries, thuts the Gate against him, and dehand, with afturance of victory. This apparatus to the Country of the Towns of the Country of the Towns of the Country of the Towns of the Country of the Count fends the Town with an obstinate resolutirition, formerly apprehended only by the on, at the fiege whereof Alexander received light of his fantafie, he now beheld with his a wound in the shoulder, which was dange- bodily eyes, wherewith he was so exceed-more had died, had not the Zidonians, that rous, and a blow on his legge with a ftone, did at the former Battels; for he left so many of his Macedonians buried in the Sands of exercise cruelty. For after that he had entred Gaza by affault, and taken Betis (whom Josephus calleth Babemesis) that was weakprize, and a difficult, but great things are ned with many wounds, and who never gave ground to the Affailants; he bored holes about the street, whilst he was as yet alive; who being as valiant a man as himfelf, difgave to Philotos the Son of Parmenio, Cilicia, dained to ask him either life or remission of his Ancestor Achilles, who did the like to Hector? It is true, that cruelty hath alwaies fomewhat to cover her deformity. From Gaza (faith Josephus) he led his Ar-Likit. my towards ferusalem, a City, for the anti-How Darius offered Conditions of Feace to quity and great fame thereof, well known Alexander. Alexander wins Gaza, and unto him while he lay before Tyre; He had fent for some supply thither, which Jaddus the high Priest, being subject and sworn to Darius, had refused him. The Jewstherefore fearing his revenge, and unable to refift, committed the care of their estates and fafety to Jaddus, who, being taught by God, issued out of the City covered with his Pontifical Robes, to wit, an upper garment of Purple, embroidered with gold, with his Miter, and the plate of gold wherein the Name of God was written, the Priests and Levites in their rich ornaments, and the people in white garments, in a manner fo unufual, stately, and grave, as Alexander greatly But he goes on towards Egypt, and complete before Gaza. Gotic a Gibbal Complete But he goes on towards Egypt, and complete before Gaza. Gotic a Gibbal Complete But he goes on the same God by whom he was ing before Gaza, Gette, a faithful fervant to incouraged to purfue the purpose he had in ingly pleased and emboldened, as contrary fell drops of blood; and that the like drops Religion.

ø. VII.

Alexander wins Egypt: and makes a journey to the Temple of Hammon.

valiantest man he had, but the command of put to ruine. one City, and to the veryest coward the goone city, and to the very the coward the go-vernment of all Egypt. When he had fet is ill described by Curtius: for he bounds it things in order in Egypt, he began to travel by the Arabian Troglodites on the South, beand he bringeth to pass what it pleaseth him; the South part of Marmarica. for it is also said, That when he had lost his to Jupiter's Temple.

Arrianus, from the report of Ptolomy, the alike true. But many of those wonders and prodigious things, are fained by those that have written the Story of Alexander; as, his head at the battel of Iffice; That a Swallow flew about his head when he flept, and for his own. could not be feared from him, till it had wakened him at Halicarnaffeus, fore shewing had formerly consulted with this Oracle, the treason of Aropus, practised by Darius to The one when he was employed against have Main him; That from the Iron barrs of Gorgon; The other against Antens and Buffwhich the Tyrians made their defensive En- ris; and seeing these men had derived them-ingly Please the Phenicians (who ho-were found in a loaf of bread, broken by a ned to have facked and destroyed Jernsa- Macedonian Souldier, at the same time; That peats have the fews all, and more than a Turfe of earth fell on his shoulder, when they defired, both of liberty and immunity, he lay before Gaza, out of which there flew with permiffion to live under their own a Bird into the Air. The Spaniards in the with permanent in the Laws, and to exercise and enjoy their own Conquest of the West Indies have many such pretty tales; telling how they have been affifted in battel by the presence of our Lady, and by Angels riding on white horses, with the like Romish miracles, which I think themselves do hardly believe. The strangest thing that I have read of in this kind, being certainly true, was, That the Rom Jerusalem, Alexander turned again night before the battel at Novara, all the towards Egypt, and entred it, where Da- Dogs which followed the French Army, ran rius his Lieutenant, Aftaces, received him, from them to the Switzers, leaping and and delivered into his hand the City of fawning upon them, as if they had been bred Memphis, with eight hundred talents of trea- and fed by them all their lives, and in the fure, and all other the Kings riches. By this morning following, Trivulzi and Tremonille. we see, that the King of Persia, who had more Generals for Lewis the twelfth, were by of affection than of judgment, gave to the these imperial switzers utterly broken and

The place of this Idol of Jupiter Hazemon after God-head, towards Jupiter Hammon; fo tween whom and the Territory of Hammon, foolish had prosperity made him. He was to the Region Thebais, or the superiour Egypt, pass over the dangerous and dry Sands, with the Mountains of Lybia, and the River where, when the water which he brought of Nilus, are interjacent; and on the North on his Camels back was spent, he could not he joyns it to a Nation called Nasjamones, but have perished, had not a marvellous who bordering the Sea-shore, live (saith showre of rain fallen upon him, when his he) upon the spoils of shipwrack : whereas Army was in extreme despair. All men that the Temple or Grove of this Idol hath no know Egypt, and have written thereof, af- | Sea near it by two hundred miles and more, firm, That it never rains there: but the being found on the South part of Lybia; purpoles of the Almighty God are fecret, these Nassamones being due West from it, in

When Alexander came near the place, he way in those vast desarts, that a flight of sent some of his Parasites before him to pra-Crows flew before the Army; who making chile the Priests attending the Oracle, That faster wing when they were followed, and their answer might be given in all things, fluttering flowly when the Army was cast agreeable to his mad ambition; who affectback, guided them over those pathles Sands ed the title of Jupiter's Son. And so he was faluted, son of Inpiter, by the Devils Prophet, whether prepared before to flatter him, or Son of Lagues, fayes, That he was led by rather (as some think) defective in the Greek two Dragons; both which reports may be tongue; For whereas he meant to fay, o padion, he faid, O pai dios; that is, O son of Jupiter, instead of O dear son: for which Grammatical errour he was richly reward-That an Eagle lay hovering directly over ed, and a rumour presently spread, that the Great Jupiter had acknowledged Alexander

He had heard that Perseus and Hercules gines, when Alexander besseged them, there selves from the gods, Why might not he?

By this it feems, that he hoped to make his followers and the world fools, though in the hands of any one: whom therein the Rodeed he made himfelf one, by thinking to man Emperours also followed, not daring to cover from the worlds knowledge his vanities and vices; and the better to confirm their Senators, but to men of meaner rank his followers in the belief of his Deity, he and degree. He then gave order for the had practifed the Priests to give answer to founding of Alexandria upon the Westerfuch as confulted with the Oracle, that it most branch of Nilus. And having now fet-

656 4

Alexander as his Son. cun. 1.4, ted, either by a Bos carried in a Boat, or us his ill fortune, one happy victory would by a Ram, or a Rams head, I fee that many readily have redeemed) he led his Army towife men have troubled themselves to find wards Euphrates, which passage, though the out; but, as Arrianus speaks of Dionysius or same was committed to Mazeus to defend. Liber Pater (who lived, faith St. Augustine, yet was it abandoned, and Alexander within Moses time) Ea que de diis veteres fabulis out resistance past it. From thence he march. suis conscripsere, non sunt minium curiose per- ed towards Tigris, a River for the swiftness veftiganda; We must not over-curiously search thereof called by the Persians, The Arrow. Con. Co. into the fables which the Ancients have written Here, as Curtius, and Reason it felf tells us.

World, the Devil, in this, and all other Idols, many weighty stones, and those that moved became speechless. For, that this Hammon not, but lay in the bottom, were soround was neglected in the time of Tiberius Cafar, and in the time of Trajan altogether forgotten, Strabo and Plutarch witness.

There is found near his Temple a Fountain called Fons solis (though Ptolomy in his their hands, and enterlacing armstogether, third African Table lets it farther off) that making one weighty and entire body toreat Mid-night is as hot as boiling water, and fift the fwift pallage, and furious race of the at Noon as cold as any Ice: to which I can- ftream. Befides this notable help, the Chanot but give credit, because I have heard of nel was so deep towards the Eastern shore, fome other Wells of like nature, and because where Darius should have made head, as the it is reported by St. Angustine, by Diodore, foot-men were enforced to lift their Bows, Herodotus, Fliny, Mela, Solimus, Arrianus, and Arrows, and Darts, over their heads to keep them from being moistened, and made in England are much warmer in the night unserviceable by the Waters. But it was truthan in the day.

ø. VIII.

How Alexander marching against Darius, was opposed very unskilfully by the Enemy.

Rom the Temple of Hammon he return-ed to Memphis, where, among many other learned men, he heard the Philosopher Pfammones, who, belike understanding that he affected the title of Jupiters Son, told him that God was the Father-King of and sometimes mortal diseases: So had the all men in general; and refining the pride Empire of Perfia at this time brought it self of this haughty King, brought him to fay, into a burning and consuming Feaver, and That God was the Father of all mortal men, thereby become frantick, and without unbut that he acknowledged none for his children, fave good men.

He gave the charge of the several Provinccs of Egypt to leveral Governours, follow- Eastern shores of Typris, without any other should be pleasing to Jupiter to honour led (as he could) the estate of Egypt, with the Kingdoms of the leffer Afia, Phanicia, and Who this Ammon was, and how represen- Syria (which being but the pawns of Darimight Darius eafily have repelled the inva-But this is certain and notable, that after ding Macedonian: for the violent course of the Cospel began to be preached in the the stream was such, as it drave before it and well polished by a continual rolling, that no man was able to fight on fo flippery a footing; nor the Macedonian foot-men to wade the River, otherwise than by joyning ly and understandingly said of Homer,

> Talis est hominum terrestrium mens, Qualem quotidie ducit pater virorumq;

The minds of men are ever so affected, As by Gods will they daily are directed.

And it cannot be denied, that, as all Estates of the world, by the furfeit of mil-government have been subject to many grievous, derstanding, fore-shewing manifestly the diffolution and death thereof.

But Alexander hath now recovered the ing the rule of his Mafter Ariffothe, That difficulty, than that of the nature of the place; where Mazens (who had charge to In omni prelio non tam multitudo, & virmen. as if with uneven forces he durst have multitude and rude andacity. charged them on even ground, when as with wanting to the competency of the Army the Heavens themselves. which he conducted. Those things also out of fight, and far behind.

ø. IX.

The new Provisions of Darius. Accidents foregoing the Battel of Arbela.

resistance. Arrianus hath numbred them whole Army in effect perished. with their Leaders; and finds of foot-men | These Egyptians gave no other reason than the invading Army. But it is a Rule in the ter of terrour. Philosophy of the War; defend the Passage both of Euphrates and tus indocta, quam ars & exercitium solent it) presented himself to the Macedonians, prestare victoriam; In every Battel skill and followed with certain companies of Horse- practice do more towards the Victory, than

While Alexander gave rest to his Army a multitude far exceeding them, he for- after the passage over Tygris, there happened fook the advantage which no valour of an Eclipse of the Moon, of which the Macehis enemies could easily have overcome. donians not knowing the cause and reason, But it is commonly feen, that fearful and were greatly affrighted. All that were ignocowardly men do ever follow those waies rant (as the multitude alwaies are) took it and counsels, whereof the opportunity is for a certain prefage of their overthrow and destruction, insomuch as they began not It is true, that he fet all provisions afire, only to murmure, but to speak it boldly; wherewith the Macedonians might serve That for the ambition of one man, a man themselves over Tygris, thinking thereby that disdained Fhilip for his Father, and greatly to have diffressed them; but the exe- would needs be called the Son of Jupiter, cution of good counsel is fruitless, when un- they should all perish; for he not only enfeafonable. For now was Alexander fo well forced them to make War against worlds of furnished with carriages, as nothing was enemies, but against Rivers, Mountains, and

Hereupon Alexander being ready to which he fought to waste, Alexander being march forward, made a halt, and to quiet now in fight, were by his Horse-men saved the minds of the multitude, he called before and recovered. This Mazeus might have him the Egyptian Astrologers, which foldone some daies before at good leisure; or lowed him thence, that by them the Soulat this time with fo great a strength of horse- diers might be assured that this defection men as the Macedonians durft not have pur- of the Moon was a certain prefage of good fued them, leaving the strength of their foot | success; for, that it was natural, they never imparted to the common people, but referved the knowledge to themselves, so as a forry Almanack-maker had been no fmall fool in those daies.

Of this kind of superstitious observation Cafar made good use, when he fought against Arioviftus and the Germans: for they being Arins, upon Alexanders first return out perswaded by the casting of lots, that if of Egypt, had affembled all the forces, they fought before the change of the Moon, which those Regions next him could furnish, they should certainly lose the Battel, Casar and now also were the Arians, Scythians, forced them to abide it, though they durst Indians, and other Nations arrived; Na- not give it; wherein, having their minds altions (faith Curtius) that rather ferved to ready beaten by their own superstition, and make up the names of men, than to make being resolutely charged by the Romans, the

of all forts ten hundred thousand, and of this, That the Grecians were under the horse four hundred thousand, besides armed aspect of the Sun, the Persians of the Moon; Chariots, and some few Elephants. Cur- and therefore the Moon failing and being tins, who musters the Army of Darius at darkened, the state of Persia was now in two hundred thousand foot, and near fifty danger of failing, and their glory of being thousand horse, comes (I think) nearer to obscured. This judgment of the Egyptian the true number; and yet feeing he had Priefts being noised through all the Army, more confidence in the multitude than in all were fatisfied, and their courage rethe valour of his Vassals, it is like enough doubled. It is a principle in the War, which, that he had gathered together of all forts though devised fince, was well observed some three or four hundred thousand, with then: Exercitum terrore plenum Dux ad pugwhich he hoped in those fair plains of Asy- nam non ducat; Let not a Captain lead his ria, to have over-born the few numbers of Army to the fight, when it is possessed with mat-

It is truly observed by Curtius, that the people are led by meeting it in all frories, hadulurpedupon his Islues, left not one of and often in our own, that by fuch inventhem to draw breath in the world within a tions, devised tales, dreams, and prophecies, few years after. The truth is, That Alexthe people of this Land have been car- ander in going for into the East, left beried head-long into many dangerous tu-him the reputation which he brought out of mults and influrrections, and still to their Macedon; the reputation of a just and pruown lofs and ruine.

CHAP II

certain Letters were surprized, written by abundance of prosperity, became a lover of Darius to the Gracians, perswading them wine, of his own flattery, and of extreme for great furnms of mony, either to kill or cruelty. Yea, as Seneca hath observed, the betray Alexander. But these, by the advice taint of one unjust slaughters, amongst maof Parmenio, he suppressed.

At this time also Darius his fair Wife, opprest with forrow, and wearied with tra- ctories obtained. But the Perstan Embasiavel, died. Which accident Alexander feem- dours fray his answer, which was to thisefed no less to bewail than Darius, who upon feet, That whatsoever he had bestowed on the first bruit, suspected that some disho- the wife and children of Darins, proceeded nourable violence had been offered her; from his own natural elemency and magnabut being fatisfied by an Eunuch of his own nimity, without any respect to their Malter; that attended her, of Alexander's kingly but thanks to an enemy was improper that respect towards her, from the day of her he made no Wars against adversity, but being taken, he defired the immortal gods, against those that resisted him; not against That if they had decreed to make a new Women and Children, but against armed Master of the Persian Empire, then it would enemies: and although by the retterated please them to confer it on so just and conti- practice of Darins, to corrupt his Souldiers, nent an enemy as Alexander; to whom he and by great fumms of mony to perswade once again, before the last tryal by Battel, of his friends to attempt upon his person, he had

fered these conditions of Peace.

would deliver up, and refign all Asia the not (were it otherwise and faithful) refolve less; and, with Egypt, oll those Kingdoms be- in haste to accept the same, seeing Darius tween the Phanician Sea, and the River of had made War against him, not as a King Euphrates; That he would pay him for the with Royal and overt-force, but as a Traitor ransome of his Mother, and his other by secret and base practice; That for the Daughters, thirty thousand talents, and Territory offered him, it was already his that for the performance thereof, he would own, and if Darius could bear him back leave his Son Occhus in hostage: To this again over Euphrates, which he had already they fought to perswade Alexander by such past, he would then believe that he offered arguments as they had. Alexander causing the Embassadours to be removed, advised with his Council, but heard no man speak but Parmenio, the very right hand of his good fortune; who perfwaded him to accept of these fair conditions. He told him, That the Empire between Euphrates and Hellespont, was a fair addition to Macedon that the retaining of the Tersian prisoners was a great cumber, and the treasure offered for them of far better use than their perfons, with divers other arguments; all which Alexander rejected. And yet it is probable, that if he had followed his advice, and bounded his ambition within those limits, he might have lived as famous for virtue, as for fortune, and left himself a Successour of able age to have enjoyed his estate. which afterward indeed he much enlarged, rather to the greatning of others than him-

people are led by nothing fo much as by felf: who, to affure themselves of what they dent Prince, a Prince temperate, advised, and As Alexander drew near the Ferstan Army, grateful: and being taught new Lessons by ny, defaced and withered the flourishing beauty of all his great acts, and glorious vireason to doubt that the peace offered was That with his Daughter in marriage he rather pretended than meant; yet hecould him somewhat in his own power: Otherwise he propounded to himself for the reward of the War which he had made, all those Kingdoms as yet in Darius possession; wherein, whether he were abused by his own hopes or no, the Battel which he meant to fight in the day following should determine. For in conclusion he told them, that he came into Asia to give, and not to receive; That the Heavens could not hold two Suns: and therefore if Darius would be content to acknowledge Alexander for his Superiour, he might perchance be perswaded to give him conditions fit for a fecond Person, and his Inferiour.

6. X.

Costrongly fought as report hath made it.

than feel without.

Battels upon the River of Granick, and in them. Cilicia, the Macedonians were best taught with what men they were to encounter. And it is a true faying, Victoria victoriam parat, aufert; One victory begets another, and puts courage into those that have already had the better, taking firit away from those that have been beaten.

Parmenio was in danger of being overthrown, who led the left wing; That Alex-The Battel of Arbela: and that it could not be ander's Rere-guard was broken, and his carriages loft; That for the fierce and valorous encounters on both sides, Fortune her self Vith this Answer the Embassiadors re-turn; Darius prepares to fight, and Garland: And lastly, that Alexander in fends Mazeus to defend a passage, which he person wrought wonders, being charged in never dared yet so much as to hazard. Alex- his retrait. But in conclusion, Curtius deliander consults with his Captains. Parmenio vers us in account but three hundred dead perswades him to force Darius his Camp by Macedonians, in all this terrible daies work. night; so that the multitude of enemiesmight saying, That Ephelion, Perdiceas, and others not move terrour in the Macedonians being of name were wounded. Arrianus finds but few. Alexander disdains to steal the not a third part of this number slain; of the Victory, and resolves to bring with him the Persians there fell forty thousand (faith day-light, to witness his valour. But it was Curtius) thirty thousand, according Arriathe fuccess that made good Alexander's re- mis; ninety thousand, if we believe Diofolution, though the counsel given by Par- dore. But what can we judge of this great menio was more found: For it is a ground encounter, other than that, as in the two in War, Si pauci necessario cum multitudine former Battels, the Persians upon the first pugnare cogantur, consilium est noctis tempore charge ran away, and that the Macedonians belli fortunam tentare. Notwithstanding up- pursued? For if of those four or five hunon the view of the multitude at hand, he dred thousand Asians brought into the field flaggers and trenches hinsfelf upon a ground by Darius, every man had cast but a dart or of advantage, which the Persian had aban- a stone, the Macedonians could not have doned: And whereas Darius for fear of fur- bought the Empire of the East at so easie a prize had ftood with his Army in Armour rate, as fix or feven hundred men in three all the day, and forborn fleep all the night, notorious Battels. Certainly, if Darius had, Alexander gave his men rest and store of sought with Alexander upon the banks of food; for reason had taught him this Rule Euphrates, and had armed but fifty or threein the War, In pugna Milites validius rest- score thousand of this great multitude, onfunt, si cibo potuque refecti fuerint; nam fames | ly with Spades (for the most of all he had intrinsecus magis pugnat, quam ferrum exte- were fit for no other weapon) it had been riùs: Souldiers do the better stand to it in impossible for Alexander to have past that fight, if they have their bellies full of meat and River so easily, much less the River of Tidrink; for hunger within, fights more eagerly gris. But as a man whose Empire God in his providence had determined, he aban-The numbers which Alexander had, faith doned all places of advantage, and suffered Arrianus, were forty thousand foot, and se- Alexander to enter so far into the bowels of venthousand horse; these belike were of his Kingdom, as all hope and possibility of the European Army: for he had besides, both escape by retrait being taken from the Ma-Syrians, Indians, Egyptians, and Arabians, codonians, they had presented unto them that followed him out of those Regions. He | the choice, either of death or victory; to used but a short speech to his Soldiers to en- which election Darius could no way concourage them. And I think that he needed strain his own, seeing they had many large little Rhetorick; for by the two former Regions to run into from those that invaded

ø. XI.

animumque victoribus auget, & adversariis Of things following the Battel of Arbela. The yeilding of Babylon and Sula.

Arius, after the rout of his Army, re-covered Arbela the same night, better Arrianus and Curtius make large descrip- followed in his flight, than in the fight. He tions of this Battel, fought at Gangamela; propounded unto them that ran after him, They tell us of many charges and re-charges; his purpose of making a retrait into Me-That the Victory inclined sometime to the dia, perswading them that the Macedonians, Persians, sometime to the Macedonians, That greedy of spoil and riches, would rather 00002 attempt bauyion, onju, and other vanquisherie, which so much softned the minds led with treasure, than pursue the vanquisheries, which so much softned the minds ed. This milerable refolution his Nobility of the Macedonians, not acquainted till now rather obeyed than approved.

662

of treasure, and Princely ornaments, was vel, and hard lodging, began rather to be rendred to him: for the fear which con- forgotten, than neglected. ducted Darius, took nothing with it but ducted Darius, took nothing with it but Souldiers were crected, and Commanders souldiers were crected, and Commanders twice beaten, should rather have fent his appointed over them, who thereupon were treasure into Media, than brought it to Ar- stilled Chiliarchi. This new order Alexander bela, fo near the place where he abid the brought in, was to honour those Captains coming of his enemies; if he had been vi-Corious, he might have brought it after him to have deferved best in the late War. For at leifure; but being overcome, he knew it before this time the Macedonian companies unpofiible to drive Mules and Camels laden confifted but of five hundred. Certainly the with gold from the purfuing enemy, feeing drawing down of the foot-bands in this himself, at the overthrow he had in Cilicia, cast the Crown from his head, to run away with the more speed. But errours are then best discerned when most incurable; Et præterita magis reprehendi pessint quam corrigi;

From Arbela Alexander took his way towards Eabylon, where Mazeus, in whom less charged, and far better served. King Darius had mest confidence, rendred himfelf, his Children , and the City. Also the Command of any of his good Ships , but Captain of the Caftle, who was keeper of the treasure, strewed the streets with slowers, nay sometime be made two Gentlemen of burnt Frankincense upon Altars of silver, as Alexander passed by, and delivered unto dersand degrees are fallen from the reputahim whatfoever was committed to his trust. The Magi (the Chaldwan Astrologers) followed this Captain in great folemnity to entertain their new King: after these came for Antipater sent him fix thousand foot, and the Eabylonian horse-men, infinite rich in five hundred horse out of Macedon; of attire, but exceeding poor in warlike fur- Thracians three thouland foot, and the like niture. Betweenthele (though not greatly number of horse; and out of Greece four to be feared) and himself, Alexander cau- thousand, and four hundred horse, by which fed his Macedonian foot-men to march. his Army was greatly frengthened: for When he entred the Castle, he admired the those that were infected with the pleasures glory thereof, and the abundance of trea- of Babylon, could hardly be brought again, fure therein found, amounting to fifty thou De quitter la plume pour dormir sur la dane; fand talents of filver uncoyned. The City it To change from foft beds to hard boards. felf I have elsewhere described, with the Walls, the Towers, the Gates and Circuit, with the Territories about it, in charge with with the wonderful place of pleasure about three of his own Captains, to wit, Agathon, two miles in Circuit, furrounded with a wall Minetus, and Appolidorus; to supply all of fourfcore foot high, and on the top wants, a thousand talents: but to grace thereof (being under-born with Pillars) Mazeus, who rendred the City unto him. a Grove of beautiful and fruitful Trees, he gave him the title of his Lieutenant over which it is said that one of the Kings of Ba- all, and took with him Bagiffines that gave bylon caused to be built, that the Queen and up the Castle; and having describited to eveother Princesles might walk privately there-ry Souldier a part of the Treasure, he left in. In this City, rich in all things, but most Babylon, and entred into the Province 84of all in voluptuous pleasures, the King trapene: from thence he went on toward rested himself and the whole Army four and Susa in Persia, the same which Ptolomy, Hethirty daies, confuming that time in ban- radotus, and Elianus call Mennonia, fituate attempt Babylon, Sufa, and other Cities fil- quetting, and in all forts of effeminate ex-Alexander from after Darins his departure pline of War, which taught them the fuffearrives at Arbela, which with a great mass rances of hunger and thirst, of painful tra-latter age hath been the cause (faith the Marshall Monlust) that the title and charge of a Captain hath been bestowed on every Picque-Beauf, or Spurn-Cow; for when the Captains of foot had a thouland Souldiers It is easier to reprehend than amend what is under one Enfign, and after that five hundred, as in the time of Francis the first, the title was honourable, and the Kingswere Henry the eighth of England never gave the to men of known valour, and of great estate; quality Commanders in one ship: but all ortion they had.

While Alexander was yet in Babylon, there came to him a great supply out of Europe;

He left the Castle and City of Babylon.

CHAP. II. on the River Euleus, a City fometime go- the Duke (revolted from his Mafter) very verned by Daniel the Prophet. Abulites also, well wherewithall to have recovered his Governour of this famous City, gave it up favour. to the Conquerour, with fifty thousand talents of filver in bullion, and twelve Elephants for the War, with all other the treaphanes of Darius. In this fort, did those Vassals How Alexander came to Persepolis and of fortune, lovers of the Kings prosperity, not of his person, (for so all ambitious men are) purchase their own peace and safety with the Kings treasures. And herein was toward Persepolis, and when he sought hesiand are) purchase their own peace and safety plasmet Alexander well advised, that whatsoever to passithose Mountains which sunder suffa-Alexandre Alexandre Alexan beaten the Macedonians but in one battel, himself by retrait, causing his Foot to march rurned unto their natural Lord. Those that with their Targets from the stones tumbled to be used alone in great enterprises by those | end he found out another path, which a Ly-

While Alexander spoiled Arbela, Mazeus laid up in that City. But who hath fought out and friended fearful adverfity? It is cerbut the honest? for those that are but greedy of themselves, do in all changes of fortune only confult the confervation of their own greatness.

experience, when Don Pedro de Navarra, with Fonterabe, in the year 1523.

Mazeus and others, in giving them titles, but neither trust nor power; for he left three thousand old Souldiers in Garrison to assure the place; and Darius mother and her children to repose themselves.

It is faid that Charles the fift, having promife, because he should thereby have left spoil and kill at their pleasure. There was

ø. XII.

burnt it.

with other Cities and Provinces by him con-quered; for if Darino (as yet living) had of his Macedonians, he was fored to fave all the Nobility of Persta would have re- close together, and to cover themselves are Traitors to their own Kings, are never on them from the Mountain-top. Yet in the Princes that entertain them, nor ever to be | cian, living in that Country, discovered unto trusted with the defences of any frontier- him, and came thereby suddenly in view of Town, or Fortress of weight, by the ren- Ariobarzanes, who being inforc'd to fight dring whereof they may redeem their liber- upon even ground, was by Alexander broty and estates lost. Hereof the French had ken, whereupon he fled to Persepolis; but (after that they of Persepolis had refused to being banished out of spain, was trusted receive him) he returned and gave a second charge upon the Macedonians, wherein he was flain. In like manner did King Francis might have furnish'd the King from Babylon; the first, in the year 1515, find a way over and while he stayed four and thirty dayes at the Alpes, the Smitzers undertaking to de-Babylon, Abulites might have holpen him | fend all the passages, who, if their footmanfrom sufa; and while he feasted there, Tiri- ship had not saved them upon the Kings dates from Persepolis might have relieved descent on the other fide, they had been ill him; for the great mass of Treasure was payd for their hard lodging on those Hills.

Four thousand Greeks, faith Curtius (Jufine numbers them but at eight hundred) tain, that benefits bind not the ambitious, having been taken prisoners by the Persians, presented themselves to Alexander now in fight of Persepolis. These had the barbarous Perfians so maimed and defaced, by cutting off their hands, nofes, ears, and other mem-The Government of Susa, with the Castle | bers, as they could no way have been known and Treasure, he committed to his own Ma- to their Country men, but by their voyces; cedonians, making Abulites, who rendred it to each of these Alexander gave three hununto him, his Lieutenant, as he had done dred Crowns, with new garments, and fuch Lands as they liked to live upon.

Tiridates, one of Darius his false-hearted Grandees, hearing of Alexanders approach, made him know that Persepolis was ready to receive him, and prayed him to double his pace, because there was a determination in miled Charles of Bourbon the Government of the people to spoyl the Kings treasure. This Marfeilles, if he could have forc'd it, and City was abandoned by many of her Inhabiwhereof he made fure accompt, told some of tants upon Alexanders arrival, and they that his nearest Counsellors, that he meant no- stayed followed the worst Counsel; for all thing less than the performance of that pro- was left to the liberty of the Souldiers, to no place in the world at that time, which, if cups all the reputation of his actions past. it had been laid in the ballance with Persepo- and that by descending, as it were, from the lis, would have weighed it down. Babylon reverend Throne of the greatest King, into m, would have weighed it down indeed, and sufficient very rich; but in Per-indeed, and sufficient very rich; but in Per-fepalis lay the bulk and main flore of the Perfans. For after the spoyl that had been and all other Nations. For being perswaded. made of money, curious plate, bullion, Ima- when he was inflamed with wine, by the inges of gold and filver, and other Jewels, famous Strumpet This; he caused the most three remained to Alexander himself one fumptuous and goodly Castle and City of hundred and twenty thousand talents. He Persepolis to be consumed with fire, notwithleft the same number of three thousand Ma- standing all the arguments of Parmenio to cedonians in Persepolis, which he had done in the contrary, who told him that it was a Sufa, and gave the same formal honour to dishonour to destroy those things by the the traino: Tiridates, that he had done to perswasions of others, which by his proper Abulites; but he that had the trust of the vertue and force he had obtained; and that place was Nicarides, a creature of his own. it would be a most strong perswasion to the The body of his Army he left here for thirty Assans, to think hardly of him, and thereby dayes, of which the Commanders were Par-menio and Craterus, and with a thousand lieve that he which demolished the goodliest horse, and certain troops of chosen seot, he Ornaments they had, meant nothing less would needs view in the Winter-time those than (after such vastation) to hold their parts of Persta, which the Snow had covered; a fruitless and foolish enterprise, but, as se- tur; Cruelty doth commonly follow drunken 81. neca fayes: Non ille ire vult, sed non potest ness: For it so fell out soon after, and often, stare: He hath not a will to go, but he is una- in Alexander. ble to stand fill. It is faid and spoken in his praile, That when his Souldiers cryed out against him, because they could not endure the extreme frost, and make way, but with The Treason of Bessus against Darius. Darius extreme difficulty, through the flow, that Alexander forfook his horfe, and led them the way. But what can be more ridiculous than to bring other men into extremity, thereby to thew how well himfelf can endure it? His walking on foot did no otherwife take off their weariness that followed which he meant to have increased in Bahim, than his fometime forbearing to drink, did quench their thirst, that could less endure it. For mine own little judgement, I nies as he had, which was numbred at thirty shall rather commend that Captain that or forty thousand) he determined once makes careful provision for those that follow him, and that feeks wifely to prevent extreme necessity, than those witless arrogant fools, that make the vaunt of having endured equally with the common Souldier, as if that were a matter of great glory and

We find in all the Wars that Cesar made, or the best of the Roman Commanders, that the provision of victuals was their first care. had ever ought him, with firm confidence, For it was a true faying of Coligni, Admiral that all the rest were of the same condition of France; That who so will shape that Beast (meaning War) must begin with his belly.

lis, where those Historians that were most to wit, Nabarwanes and Bessu, whereof the amorous of his vertues, complain, that the later was Governour of Badria, had conamorous of his vertues, compani, that the later was Covernous of his vertues, compani, that the was Covernous of his walonr, of his liberality of his priced against their Master; and therefore clemency towards the vanquished, and all advised the King to lay a new foundation other his Kingly conditions, were drowned for the War, and to purfue it by some such indrink; That he fmothered in carowling person for the present against whom neither

ø. XIII.

his death.

A Bout this time he received a newfupply of Souldiers out of Cilicia, and goes on to find Darius in Media. Darius had there compounded his fourth and last Army, Etria, had he not heard of Alexanders coming on, with whom (trufting to fuch compaagain to try his fortune. He therefore calls together his Captains and Commanders, and propounds unto them his refolution, who being desperate of good success, used silence for a while. Artabazus, one of his eldestmen of War, who had sometime lived with Philip of Macedon, brake the ice, and protesting that he could never be beaten by any adverfity of the Kings, from the faith which he (whereof they likewise affured Darius by the like protestation) he approved the Kings But Alexander is now returned to Persepo- resolution. Two only, and those the greatest, ed, being more in number than the rest, with-held him. In the mean while Naburganes with-drew himself, and Bessus followed him, making their quarter a-part from the rest of the Army. Artabazus, the Kings faithful fervant, perswaded him to be advifed and serve the time, seeing Alexander was at hand, and that he would at least make to follow their advice who from the beginning of the War gave him faithful counfel, though againft a Prince purely Heathenith but he inclined still to Beffus, who told him, and an Idolater. that the Greeks, with Patron their Captain, fafety, and honour.

King-like, to have dyed in the head of those leaving the rest to the mercy of the Macedofour thousand Greeks, which offered him nian swords. the disposition of their lives, (to which Are Polystratus a Macedonian, being by pursuit the gods nor fortune had in all things dethe good and the good and the good and the good and the clared themselves to be an enemy: this precared inclined and in conclusion those ambitious Monsters that laid hand on advised the election of his fellow Traitor him, whom neither the confideration of his Besting, with promise that, the Wars ended, former great estate, nor the honour he had $B = \frac{B = \frac{1}{2} B^{2}}{1}$, the Empire should again be restored to Da-given them, nor the trust reposed in them, rius. The King fwollen with difdain, prest nor the world of benefits bestowed on towards Naburzanes to have flain him, but them, could move to pity: no, nor his pre-Bellin and the Battrians whom he command- fent advertity, which above all things should have moved them, could pierce their viperous and ungrateful hearts. Vain it was indeed to hope it; for, Infidelity hath no compassion.

Now Darius, thus forfaken, was bound and laid in a Cart, covered with hides of Beafts, to the end that by any other ornament he might not be discovered; and, to add deshew of forgetting the offence made; which spight and derision to his adversity, they the King being of a gentle disposition, wil- fastned him with Chains of Gold, and so lingly yielded unto. Beffus makes his fubmif- drew him on among their ordinary Carrifion, and attends the King, who removes his ages and Carts. For Beffus and Naburzanes Army, Patron, who commanded a Regiment perswaded themselves to redeem their lives offour thousand Greeks, which had in all the and the Provinces they held, either by deliformer battels ferved Darius with great vering him a prisoner to Alexander, or, if that fidelity, and alwayes made the retrait in hope failed, to make themselves Kings by his fpight of the Macedonians, offered himself slaughter; and then to defend themselves to guard his person, protesting against the by force of Arms. But they failed in both. Treason of Bessus; but it was not his destiny | For it is against the nature of God, who is

Alexander having knowledge that Darius were corrupted by Alexander, and practifed was retired towards Badtria, and durft not the division of his faithful servants. Bessus abide his coming, hastened after him with a had drawn unto him thirty thousand of the violent speed, and because he would not Army, promiting them all those things, by force his footmen beyond their powers, he which the lovers of the World and them- mounted on horf-back certain felected comfelves are wont to be allured, to wit, riches, panies of them, and best armed, and with six thousand other horse, rather ran than mar-Now the day following Darius plainly dif-ched after Darius, Such as hated the Treason covered the purpoles of Eessis, and being of Eessis, and fecretly forfook him, gave overcome with passion, as thinking himself knowledge to Alexander of all that had unable to make head against these ungrate- happened, informing him of the way that ful and unnatural Traytors, he prayed Arta- Bessus took, and how near he was at hand: bazus his faithful servant to depart from for many men of worth daily ran from him. him, and to provide for himself. In like fort Hereupon Alexander again doubled his he dicharged the reft of his attendants, all pace, and his Vant-guard being discovered fave a few of his Eunuchis 3 for his Guards by Besus his Rear, Besus brought a Horse to had voluntarily abandoned him: His Fersians the Cart, where Darius lay bound, perswabeing most base cowards, durst not under- ding him to mount thereon, and to save himtake his defence against 'the Battrians, not- self. But the unfortunate King refusing to withflanding that they had four thou fand follow those that had betrayed him, they Greek to joyn with him; who had beer able cast Darts at him, wounded him to death, to hate beaten both Nations. But it is true, and wounded the Beafts that drew him, and that him, which for fakes him elf, no man fol-flew two poor Servants that attended his lows. It had been far more Man-like, and perfon. This done, they all fled that could, tabazus perswaded him) than to have lyen of the vanquished prest with thirst, as he

664

was refreshing himself with some water that defended certain passages for a while. He he had discovered, espying a Cart with a passeth the River of Zioberis, which taking Team of wounded beafts breathing for life, beginning in Parthia, diffolves it felf in the and not able to move, fearched the fame, Caspian Sea: it runneth under the ledge of and therein found Darius bathing in his own Mountains, which bound Parthia and Hyreablood: And by a Persian Captive which fol- nia, where hiding it self under ground for lowed this Polyfiratus, he understood that it three hundred furlongs, it then rifeth again, was Darius, and was informed of his barbarous Tragedy. Darius also seemed greatly carta, or Zeudracarta, the same City which comforted (if dying men ignorant of the Ptolomy writes Hyrcania, the Metropolis of living God can be comforted) that he cast that Region, he rested fifteen dayes, bannot out his last sorrows unheard, but that by quetting and feasting therein, this Maccdonian, Alexander might know and take vengeance on those Traytors, which had dealt no less unworthily than cruelly with him, recommending their revenge to Alexander by this messenger, which he befought him to pursue, not because Darius had defired it, but for his own honour, and for the fafety of all that did, or should after wear Crowns. He also having nothing else to present, rendred thanks to Alexander for the Kingly grace used towards his Wife, Mother, and Children, desiring the immortal gods to submit unto him the Empire of the whole World. As he was thus speaking impatient Death pressing out his few remaining spirits, he defired water, which Polystratus presented him, after which he lived but to tell him, that of all the best things that the world had, which were lately in his power, he had nothing remaining but his last breath, wherewith to desire the gods to reward his compassion.

d. XIV.

How Alexander purfued Bessus, and took into his grace Darius his Captains.

T was now hoped by the Macedonians, I that their travels were near an end, every pany him till she were made with child by man preparing for his return. Hereof when him: which done (refuling to follow him Alexander had knowledge, he was greatly into India) she returned into her own grieved, for the bounded earth sufficed not Country. his boundless Ambition. Many arguments he therefore used to draw on his Army far- ing this meeting of Thalestric with Alexanther into the East, but that which had most | der, and some contradicting it. But indeed, ftrength, was, that Beffus, a most cruel Tray- the letters of Alexander himself to Antipater, tor to his Master Darins, having at his devo- recounting all that befell him in those parts, tion the Hyrcanians and Bactrians, would in and yet omitting to make mention of this short time (if the Macedonians should re- Amazonian business, may justly breed suspiturn) make himself Lord of the Persian Em- tion of the whole matter as forged. Much pire, and enjoy the fruits of all their former more justly may we suspect it as a vaintale, travels. In conclusion he wan their consents because an Historian of the same time reato go on : which done, leaving Craterus with ding one of his books to Lysimachus (then certain Regiments of foot, and Amyntus with King of Thrace) who had followed Alexanfix thousand horse in Parthenia, he enters not der in all his voyage, was laught at by the without some opposition into Hyreania; for King for inserting such news of the Amathe Mardons, and other barbarous Nations, | 2013; and Lylimachus himself had never and followeth its former course. In Zadra-

Phataphernes, one of Darius his greatest Commanders, with others of his best followers, fubmit themselves to Alexander, and were reftored to their places and Governments. But of all other he graced Artabazins most highly for his approved and constant faith to his Master Darius. Artabazus brought with him ten thousand and five hundred Greeks, the remainder of all those that had ferved Darius ; He treats with Alexander for their pardon, before they were yet arrived, but in the end, they render themselves simply without promife or composition: he pardons all but the Lacedamonians, whom he imprisoned, their Leader having flain himfelf. He was also wrought (though to his great dishonour) to receive Nabarzanes that had joyned with Beffus to murder Darius.

ø. XV.

of Thalestris Queen of the Amazons; where, by way of digreffion, it is shewed, that such Amazons have been and are.

TEre it is faid that Thalestris or Mino-I thea, a Queen of the Amazons, came to visit him, and her sute was, (which she eafily obtained) that the might accom-

Plutarch citeth many Historians, report-heard of One that accompanied Alexander, took upon him to write his acts; which to Amazons, whom he tels us that the Scythians amplifie, He told how the King had fought call Æorpatas, which is as much as *Virici*fingle with an Elephant, and flain it. The das, or men-killers. And that they made in-King hearing such stuff, caught the book, cursion into Asia the less, fackt Ephelia, and and threw it into the river of Indus; faying, burnt the Temple of Diana, Manethon, and That it were well done to throw the Writer Aventinus report; which they performed we believe and know that there are Ele- thefilea, that she came to the succour of phants, though it were false that Alexander Priamus. fought with one; fo may we give credit unto Writers making mention of such Ama- inhabiting upon the River of Thermodoon. gons, whether it were true or falfe that they speaking confidently of the wars they made met with Alexander; as Plutarch leaves the with divers Nations, and of their overmatter undetermined. Therefore I will here throw. take leave to make digreffion, as well to shew the opinions of the ancient Historians, Cosmographers, and others, as also of some rians, reports the taking of Antiopa Queen modern discoverers touching these warlike Women, because not only Strabo, but many others of these our times make doubt, whether or no there were any fuch kind of people. Julius solinus feats them in the North parts of Asia the less. Pom. Mela finds two feeling, That fuch Amazons there were. The Regions filled with them; the one on the River Thermodoon, the other near the Ca. Spian Sea; Quas (faith he) Sauromatidas appellant; Which the people call Sauromatides. The former of these two had the Cimerians for their Neighbours; Certum eft (faith Vadianus, who hath commented upon Mela) illos proximos Amazonibus fuisse; It is certain that the Cimerians were the next Nations to the Amazons. Ptolomy fets them farther inrul lib.6. to the Land North-wards, near the Moun-Afte Tab tains Hippaci, not far from the Pillars of Plant, 6. Alexander. And that they had Dominion in the river of Amazon from Peru in the year tellus. Where they governed a people cal-Pandea the Daughter of Hercules, from whom all the rest derive themselves. Claudian affirms, That they commanded many Nations: For he speaks (largely perhaps as a Poet) thus:

--- Medis levibusque gabæis Imperat hic Sexus: Reginarumque sub armis, Barbaria pars magna jacet.

> Over the Medes, and light Sabaans raigns This female fex: and under arms of Queen, Great part of the Barbarian Land remains.

Diodorus Siculus hath heard of them in Lybia, who were more ancient (faith he) than those which kept the banks of Thermodoon, a River falling into the Euxine Sea, near Heraclium.

Herodotus doth also make report of these after it, who by inferting such fables, dispa- forty years after Troy was taken. At the raged the truth of his great exploits. Yet as siege of Troy it self we read of Pen-1.

Am. Marcellinus gives the cause of their L.22, c.7.

Plutarch in the life of Thefeus; out of Philochorus, Hellenicus and other ancient Histoof the Amazons by Hercules, and by him given to Theseus; though some affirm, That Theseus himself got her by stealth, when she came to visit him aboord his ship. But in fubstance there is little difference; all confame Author in the life of Pompey speaks of certain companies of the Amazons, that came to aid the Albanians against the Romans, by whom after the battel, many Targets and Buskins of theirs were taken up: and he faith farther, That these women entertain the Gelæ and Legales once a year, Nations inhabiting between them and the Albanians.

But to omit the many Authors, making mention of Amazons that were in the old Hift. Ind. times, Fran. Lopez, who hath written the na-par, 1.6, 28. vigation of Orellana, which he made down Asia it felf toward India, Solinus and Pliny 1542. (upon which river, for the divers turnings, he is faid to have failed fix thouled the Pandeans, or Padeans, so called after | fand miles) reports from the relation of the faid Orellana, to the Councel of the Indies, That he both faw those women, and fought with them, where they fought to impeach his passage towards the East-Sea.

It is also reported by Ulrichus Schmidel, that in the year 1542, when he failed up the Rivers of Paragua and Parabol, that he came to a King of that Country, called scherves, inhabiting under the Tropick of Capricorn, who gave his Captain Ernando Rieffere, a Crown of filver, which he had gotten in fight from a Queen of the Amazons in those

Ed. Lopez, in his description of the Kingdom of Congo, makes relation of such Amazons, telling us, That (agreeably to the reports of elder times) they burn off their right breafts,& live apart from men, fave at one time of the year, when they feast & accompany company them for one month. These (saith impoverished in their virtues, than inriched he) possess a part of the Kingdom of Mono- by their victories; and that it was hard to motapa in Africa, nineteen degrees to the judge whether the Conquerors, or the Con-Southward of the line; and that these women quered, were the baser slaves. Neitherwere are the strongest Guards of this Emperour, these opinions so reserved, but that the noise all the East-Indian Portugals know.

CHAP, I

to justifie mine own relation of these Ama- fort, and those of whose judgments he was zons, because that which was delivered me most jealous; and making it known to the for truth by an ancient Cacique of Guiana, Army, that Bessus had assumed the title of how upon the River of Papamena (fince the a King, and called himself Artaxerxer, and Spanifi discoveries called Amazons) that that he had compounded a great Army of these women still live and govern, was held the Bactrians, and other Nations, he had for a vain and unprobable report.

o. XVI.

How Alexander fell into the Persian Luxury: and how he further pursued Bessus.

polis: so at this time his prosperity had so place, he, together with his own, caused all to much over-wrought his virtue, as he ac- be confumed with fire. Certainly, this could counted elemency to be but baseness, and not but have proved most dangerous unto the temperance which he had used all his him, seeing the common Souldiers had life-time, but a poor and dejected humour, more interest in these things which they rather becoming the inftructers of his youth, had bought with their painful travels, than the condition and state of so mighty a and with their blood, than in the Kings King as the World could not equal. For he ambition; had not (as Seneca often obperswaded himself, that he now represented served) his happy temerity overcome all the greatness of the gods; he was pleased things. As he was in his way, news came that those that came before him, should fall to him, that Satribarzanes, whom he had to the ground and adore him; he ware the established in his former Governmentover robes and garments of the Perstans, and com- the Arians, was revolted; whereupon leamanded that his Nobility should do the like: ving the way of Bactria, he fought him he entertained in his Court and Camp, the out ; but the Rebel, hearing of his confame shameless rabble of Curtifans, and So ing, fled to Besses, with two thousand Horse. domitical Eunuchs, that Darius had done; He then went on towards Beffus, and by and imitated in all things the proud, voluptu- fetting a great pile of wood on fire, with the ous, and detested manners of the Persians, whom he had vanquished. So licentious is fe- | fage over an high and unaccessable Rock, licity, as not with standing that he was fully which was defended against him with thirperfwaded, that the gods whom he ferved teen thousand foot. For the extremity of the (deteffing the vices of the invaded) affifted flame and fmoak forced them from the him in all attempts against them, he himself, contrary to the Religion he profelt (which civil War of France, certain Caves in Lanhow Idolatrous foever it were, could not be guedoc, which had but one entrance, and but fearful unto him by neglecting it) became that very narrow, cut out in the mid-way of by imitation, and not by ignorance or edu- high Rocks, which we knew not how to encation, a more foul and fearful Monster than ter by any ladder or engine, till at last, by Darius, from whose tyranny he vaunted to certain bundles of straw, let down by an have delivered fo many Nations. Yea, those Iron chain, and a weighty stone in the midst, that were dearest and neerest unto him, be those that defended it, were so smoothered, gan to be ashamed of him, entertaining each as they rendred themselves, with their plate, tiers; That by his example, the Macedonians well mounted, mothered to death, together were in the end of fo many travels, more with their Horfes, by the Country-people, of them came to his ears. He therefore I have produced these authorities in part, with great gifts sought to pacifie the better arguments enow to perswade them to go on, to the end that all already gotten, might not with themselves (so far ingaged) be cast away. And because they were pestered with the spoils of so many Cities, as the whole Army seemed but the guard of their carriages, (not much unlike the warfare of Now as Alexander had begun to change the French having commanded every mans fardels to be brought into the Market advantage of a strong wind, won the pasplace, otherwise invincible. I saw in the third other with this, and the like fcornful dif- mony, and other goods therein hidden. courfe; That Alexander of Macedon was There were also some three years before my become one of Darius his licentious Courarrival in Guiana, three hundred Spaniards who did fet the long dry grafs on fire to the length to like well of the bufiness, he was Fastward of them (the wind in those parts told more at large what they were that had heing alwaies East) so as, notwithstanding undertaken it. There were nine or ten of their flying from the smoak, there was not them, all men of rank, whose names Dimmis any one that escaped. Sir John Burrowes (to countenance the enterprise) reckoned alfo, with a hundred English, was in great up to Niekomachus. Niekomachus had no danger of being lost at Margarita, in the sooner freed himself from the company of welf-Indies, by having the grafs fired behind this Traitor Dimnus, than he acquinted his him; but the smoak being timefully disco- own Brother Ceballinus with the whole severed, he recovered the Sea-shore with the story: whereupon it was agreed between los of fixteen of his men. I remember these them, that Ceballinus (who might with least things; but to give caution to those that suspition) should go to the Court, and utter thing of countries, that they alwaies, before him the whole business, declaring him to acthey pass into the Land, burn down the quaint the King therewith: which he prografs, and fedge, to the East of them; they mised to do, but did not. Two daies pasmay otherwise, without any other enemy sed, and Philotas never brake with the King than a handful of straw set on fire, dye the about the matter, but still excused himself

«. XVII.

Philotas and Parmenio.

Aria and Drangiana.

strained by fear, he made shew as if he had his Philotas: been won by perswasion; and by seeming at death of Hony-Bees, burnt out of the Hive. to Ceballinus by the Kings want of leifure. This his coldness bred superion, and caused Ceballinus to addies himself to another, one Metron, Keeper of the Kings Armory, who A Conspiracy against Alexander; The death of forth-with brought him to Alexanders prefence. Alexander, finding by examination what had passed between Ceballinus and Phi-Lexander was, after he parted hence, lotas, did fully perswade himself that this /Ino where refifted, till he came into concealment of the treason, argued his hand Aria, to the East of Badria, where the chief to have been in the business. Therefore City of that Province, called Artacoana, was when Dimnus was brought before him, he a while defended against him, by the revolt asked the Traitor no other question than of Satribarzanes; but in the end he received this: Wherein have I so offended thee, that thou the Inhabitants to mercy. At this place his Mouldest think Philotas more worthy to be a Army was re-enforced with a new fupply King than 1? Dimnus perceiving when he offive thousand and five hundred foot, and was apprehended, how the matter went, had near five hundred horse, out of Greece, Thes- so wounded himself, that he lived no longer, falie, and other places. His journey out of than to give his last groan in the Kings pre-Persia into these parts, is very confusedly de- sence. Then was Philotas called, and charge feribed. For, having (as all his Hiftorians ged with the fulpition, which his filence tell us) a determination to find Bessies in might justly-breed. His answer was That Bastria, he leaves it at the very entrance, when the practice was revealed unto him by and takes the way of Hyrcania; from thence Nicomachus, he judging it to be but frihe wanders Northwards towards the obe volous, did forbear to acquaint Alexander scure Mardi, upon the Caspian-Sea, and therewithall, until he might have better thence over the Mountain Coronus into information. This errour of his, (if it were only an errour) although Alexander, for the At this time it was that the treason of notorious services of his Father Parmenio, Dimnus brake out, of which Philotas the Son of his Brother Nicanor lately dead, and of of Parmenio was accused, as accessary, if not | Philotas himself, had freely pardoned and principal. This Dimmis, having (I know given his hand for affurance; yet, by the innot upon what ground) conspired with some stigation of Craterus, he again swallowed his others against the life of Alexander, went Princely promise, and made his enemies his about to draw Nicomachus, a young man Judges. Curtius gives a note of Craterus in whom he loved, into the fame treason. The this business; How he perswaded himself, Youth, although he was first bound by oath that he could never find a better occasion to secrecy, when he heard so foul a matter to oppress his private enemy, than by preuttered, began to protest against it so vehe- tending Piety, and duty towards the King. mently, that his friend was like to have flain Hereof a Poet of our own hath given a him for security of his own life. So, con- note as much better, as it is most general, in

See how these great men cloathe their private the end, the King asked him, In what lan-In these fair colours of the publick good; And, to effect their ends, pretend the State, As if the State by their affection stood: And, arm'd with Power and Frinces jealousies. Will put the least conceit of discontent Into the greatest rank of treacheries, That no one actionshall seem innocent: Tea, valour honour bounty shall be made As accessaries unto ends unjust: And even the fervice of the State must lade The needfull'st undertaking with distrust; So that base vilenes, idle Luxury, Seem safer far, than to do worthily,&c.

070

following the advice of Craterus, had refolved the next day to put Philotos to torment, contended among themselves, which of them yet in the very evening of the same night in should exceed in hatred towards him. which he was apprehended, he called him to Among many other arguments, which he a Banquet, and discoursed as familiarly used in his own defence, this was not the with him as at any other time. But when in weakest; That when Nicomachus defired to the dead of the night Philotos was taken in know of Dimnus, what men of mark and his lodging, and that they which hated him power were his partners in the confinacy began to bind him, he cryed out upon the as feeming unwilling to adventure himself King in these words; O Alexander, the malice with mean and base Companions) Dimnus of mine Enemies hath surmounted thy mercy, and their hatred is far more constant than the Chamber, Nicanor, Amyntas, and some word of a King. Many circumstances were others; but spake not a word of Philotos, urged against him by Alexander himself (for who by being Commander of the Hore, the Kings of Macedon did in person examine would greatly have valued the party, and the acculations of treason) and this was not have incouraged Nicomackus. Indeed, as the least (not the least offence, indeed, Philotas faid well for himself, it is likely that against the Kings humour, who desired to Dimmus, thereby the better to have heartbe glorified as a god) That when Alexander ned Nicomachus, would have named him, wrote unto him concerning the title given though he had never dealt with him in any him by Jupiter Hammon, He answered, That fuch practice. And for more certain proof, he could not but rejoyce that he was admit- that he knew nothing of their intents that ted into that facred Fellowship of the gods, practifed against the King, there was not and yet he could not but withall grieve for any one of the Conspirators, being many, those that should live under such a one as inforced by torments, or otherwise, that would exceed the nature of man. This could accuse him; and it is true, that adwas (faith Alexander) a firm perswassion un- versity being seldom able to bear her own to me, that his heart was changed, and that burden, is for the most part found so malihe held my glory in despight. See what a cious, as she rather desires to draw others ftrange Monster Flattery is, that can per-fwade Kings to kill those that do not praise ger, than to spare any that it can accuse. Yet and allow those things in them, which are at the last, howsoever it were, to avoid the of all other most to be abhorred. Philotas extremity of refiftless and unnatural torwas brought before the multitude to hear ments, devised by his profest enemies, cratethe Kings Oration against him: he was rus, Cenus, Ephestion, and others, Philotos brought forth in vile garments, and bound like a Thief; where he heard himself, and they would have slain him forthwith. But he they would have slain him forthwith. But he his absent Father, the greatest Captain of the failed even in that miserable hope, and suf-World, accused; his two other Brothers, fering all that could be laid on flesh and Hellor and Nicanor having been loft in the blood, he was forced to deliver, not what present War. He was so greatly opprest with he knew, but what soever best pleased their grief, as for a while he could utter nothing cars, that were far more mercilels than but tears, and forrow had so wasted his spi- death it self.

(hate, | rits, as he fank under those that led him. In guage he would make his defence; he anfivered, In the fame wherein it had pleafed the King to accuse him; which he did, to the end that the Persans, as well as the Macedonians, might understand him. But hereof the King made his advantage, perswading the affembly, that he disdained the language of his own Country; and fo with-drawing himself, left him to his merciless enemies.

This proceeding of the Kings, Philotos greatly lamented, feeing the King, who had fo fharply inveighed against him, would not vouchfafe to hear his excuse. For not his enemies only were emboldened thereby Now, although it were so, that the King, against him, but all the rest, having discovered the Kings disposition and resolution, euffine greatly complaineth, as a matter to truth, he that had made the purchase for tears. and com in fua canfa quifque torquetur; all the glory and fame he had: That he e cum queritur ulrum sit nocens, eruciatur; might not therefore revenge the death of

It had been enough for Alexanders fafety, if Philotas had been put to death without torment; the rest would not much have grieved thereat, because he was greatly suspectagainst him, made the Kings cruelty and delight in blood, the greatest motive of his own illintent. Therefore, Seneca, speaking of Alexander, faith thus ; Crudelitas minime humakum malum est, indignum tam miti animo; ferina istarabies est sanguine gaudere & vulneribus, & abjecto homine, in silvestre animal transire, Cruelty is not a humane vice, it is unworthy of so mild a spirit: It is even a beaftly rage to delight in blood and wounds. and caffing away the nature of man, to become a favage Monster.

For the conclusion of this Tragedy, Curtim makes a doubt, whether the confession

Of this kind of judicial proceeding St. An loved of the men of War, and, to fay the be bewalled, faith he, with Fountains of the King of the Empire of the East, and of es innocens luit pro incerto seelere certissimos his Son, though not upon the King, (for it on quia illud commissife detegitur fed was unlikely that he would have dishonourthat the committee refertur. What that we cd his fidelity in his eldest age, having now gration when one is put to torture in his own lived threefcore and ten years) yet upon easles and tormented whilft yet it is in que- those that by the witcherast of slattery had fin whether he be guilty; and being innocent, possest themselves of his affection, it was refifters affired punishment for a fault, of which lolved, that he should be dispatcht. Polydathere is no certainty: not because he is known mas was employed in this business, a man to have committed the offence, but because whom of all other Parmenio trusted most. others do not know that he hath not committed and loved best, who (to be short) finding him in Media, and having Cleander and other murderers with him flew him walking in his Garden, while he was reading the Kings Letters. Hic exitus Parmenionis fuit, militiæ domique clari viri; Multa sine Rege Lib. 7. ed. But Hemolaus, who afterward conspired prospere, Rex sine illo nihil magne rei gesserat; This was the end of Parmenio (Saith Curtius) who had performed many notable things without the King, but the King; without him, did never effect any thing worthy of praise.

ø. XVIII.

How Alexander fubdued the Bactrians, Sogdians, and other people. How Beslus was delivered into his hands. How he fought with the Scythians.

Hen these things had end, Alexander went on with his Army, and brought that Philotas made, were to give end to the under his obedience the Araspians, or Evertorments which he could not any longer en- gitans; he made Amenides (fometime Dadure, or that the same was true indeed; For rius his Secretary) their Governour, then (faith he) in this case, they that speak tru- he subdued the Arachosians, and left Menon ly, or they that deny fallly, come to one and to command over them. Here the Army, the same end. Now, while the Kings hands sometimes led by Parmenio, finds him, conwere yet wet in blood, he commanded that listing of twelve thousand Macedons and Lyncester, Son-in-law to Antipater, who had Greeks, with whom he past through some been three years in prison, should be slain: cold Regions with difficulty enough. At The same dispatch had all those that Nico- length he came to the foot of the Mountain machus had acculed: others there were that Taurus towards the East, where he built a were suspected because they had followed City, which he honoured with his own Philotos; but when they had answered for name, and peopled it with seven thousand themselves, that they knew no way so di- of his oldest Macedons, worn with age, and rect to win the Kings favour, as by loving with travels of the War. The Arians, who those whom the King favoured, they were fince he left them were revolted, he subdudismiss. But Parmenio was yet living; Par- ed again by the industry and valour of Camenio, who had ferved with great fidelity ranus and Erigius. And now he refolves to as well Philip of Macedon the Kings Father, find out the new King Bessus in Bactria. Besas himself; Parmenio, that first opened the Jus, hearing of his coming, prepares to pass way into Asia; that had deprest Attalus the over the great River of Oxus which divides Kings enemy; that had alwaies, and in all Bactria from Sogdiana; Artabazus is made hazards, the leading of the Kings Van-guard, that was no less prudent in counsel, The Macedonian Army suffereth for want of than fortunate in all attempts; A man be- Water, infomuch as when they came to the River of Oxus, there dyed more of them by Sogdians stirred to rebellion, by the same drinking inordinately, than elexander had Spitamenes and Catanes, who had lately deloft in any one Battel against the Persians, livered into his hands the Traitor Bellus. And it may well be; For (as Clytus did after Many Cities were refolvedly defended object unto him) he fought against women, against him, all which, after victory, hedenot against men; and not against their per- faced and razed, killing all therein. At one fons, but their shadows. He found on the of these he received a blow on the neck. banks of this great River no manner of Tim- which struck him to the ground, and much ber or other materials, to make either boats, difabled him for many daies after. In the bridges, or raft, but was forced to few toge | mean while spitamenes had recovered Mather the hides that covered his carriages, racanda, against whom he employed Meneand ftul them with ftraw, and on them in demus with three thouland foot, and cight fix daies to pass over his Army; which Bessus hundred horse. might eafily have diffrest, if he had dared but to behold the Macedonian Army afar marched on (if we may believe Curtius and off. He had formerly complained against others) till he came to the River of Tanais; Darius for neglecting to defend the banks of upon whose bank he built another Alexan-Typris, and other pallages; and yet now, dria, threescore furlongs in compass, which when this traiterous flave had ftiled himself he beautified with houses within seventeen a King, he durft not perform any thing wor- daies after the walls built. The building of thy of a flave. And therefore those that were this City is faid to have been occasion of a neerest unto him, and whom he most trusted, to wit, Spitamenes, Dataphernes, Catanes, and others the Commanders of his Army, moved both by the care of their own fafety, and by the memory of Bessus his treafon and cruelty against Darius, bound him in the like manner, that he had done his Mafter, but with this difference, that he had ry fear, should nevertheless make sute for the chain closed about his neck like a Ma- peace: neither find I the reason why Alexstiff-Dog, and so was dragged along to be ander (not intending the Conquest of those presented to his enemy.

at a certain Town inhabited with Greeks of alone, with whom he could not meddle fur-Miletum, brought thither by Xerxes, when ther than they should agree to suffer him. long before he returned out of Greece; whose Yet hereof is made a great matter; and a Iffues had well-neer forgotten their Coun- victory described; in pursuit of which the try-language. These most cruelly (after | Macedons ran beyond the bounds and mothey had received him with great joy) he numents of Bacchus his Expedition. put to the fword, and destroyed their City. At this place he received Beffus, and having rewarded spitamenes with the rest that delivered him, he gave the Traitor into the artes, that runs between Sogdiana and Seghands of Oxatres, Darius his Brother, to be thia, which Alexander past over, while Mene-

tormented.

fome twenty thousand Mountainers assaul- from Europe, is neer two thousand miles dited his Camp; in repelling whom he received | frant from any part of Bactria and Sogdiana, a shot in the leg, the arrow-head sticking and the way defart and unknown. So that in the flesh, so as he was carried in a Horse- Alexander had (besides Jaxartes) the great litter, fometime by the horfe-men, some- River of Volga, and many others to swim time by the foot.

which Petrus Perondinus takes to be Samar. chand, the regal City of the great Tamerlain. followed him, if he had employed all the It had in compass threescore and ten fur- time that he lived in Asia in that travel. longs (Curtius faith.) Here he received the Embassadours of the Scythians (called Avi the Asiatique Scythians, making some offer ans) who offered to ferve him.

The fourth Book of the first Part

In the heat of these tumults Alexander War between him and the Scythians; the Scythian King perfivading himfelf, that this new Town was fortified of purpole to keep him under. I do not well understand, why the scythians, offering war in such terrible manner, that Alexander was judged by his own Souldiers to counterfeit fickness for ve-Northern defarts, but only the defence of In the mean while Alexander was arrived his own bank) should refuse to let them

The truth is, That Curtius and Trogus have greatly mistaken this River, which they call Tanais. For it was the River of Jaxdemus was employed in the recovery of Sa-But while he now thought himself secure, marchand: But Tanais, which divides Afa over, ere he could recover Tanais: which Soon after he came unto Maracanda, (from the place where he was) he could hardly have discovered with the Army that

Wherefore it is enough to believe, that to disturb the erection of his new City, The Ballrians are shortly again with the which was like to give some hinderance to when it serves to give light to the bufiness you an example in a place of our own. in hand. The small number which the Macedonians loft; the omission of the number and of that Government, was in Queen Mawhich they flew (a thing not usual in Cur- ry's time surprised by the French, and could time, who forbears nothing that may let out never have been recovered again by strong a great exploit, by others.

a new Governour in that Province.

side whereof he built six Towns near each setch the commodities promised, and what their excursions, were driven away by the other for mutual succour. But he finds a macedomans; and being naked of defensive new start-up-Rebel, called Arimazes, (A macraming chafed some ten or twelve miles; sogdian) followed with thirty thousand Arms, can't which is the substance of Curtius his report. Souldiers, that defended against him a which is the limits of Bacchus his journey, like strong piece of ground on the top of a high enough it is that Bacchus (if in his life- Hill; whom when Alexander had fought in time he were as fober a man, as after his vain to win by fair words, he made choice time ne were as the made choice death he was held a drunken god) went not of three hundred young men, and promifed very far into that waste Country, where he ten talents to the first, nine to the second; could find nothing but trees and ftones, and foin proportion to the reft, that could nor other business than to fet up a Monu- find a way to creep up to the top thereof. This they performed with the loss of some Threescore of the Macedonians are said two and thirty of their men, and then made to have been flain, and one thousand one a sign to Alexander, that they had performhundred hurt in this fight, which might ea- ed his commandment. Hereupon he fent one fily be in paffing a great River, defended Cophes to perswade Arimazes to yield the against them by good Archers. Of Scythian place; who, being shewed by Cophes that the horses one thousand eight hundred were Army of Magedon was already mounted up, brought into the Camp, and many priloners. yielded simply to Alexanders mercy, and It is forbidden by fome Historians, and in- was (with all his kindred) scourged and deed it is hardly possible, to set down the crucified to death; which punishment they numbers of fuch as perish in Battel: yet ca- well deserved for neglecting to keep good far commonly did it. And where the dili- watch in fo dangerous a time. For the place, gence of the Victors hath been so inquisitive as seems by the description, might easily into the greatness of their own fuccess, that have been defended against all the Armies Writers have been able to deliver fuch par- of the World. But, what strength cannot do. ticulars by credible report, I hold it not un- Mans wit, being the most forcible engine, lawful to fet down what we find; especially hath often effected: Of which I will give

The Island of Sarke, joyning to Garnsey, the greatness of Alexander) and the little hand, having cattel and corn enough upon booty that was gotten, do make it probable, the place to feed fo many men as will ferve that this War was no better than the repul- to defend it, and being every way so inacfion of a few roving Tartars (the like being ceffible, that it might be held against the yearly performed by the Mojcovite, without Great Turk. Yet by the industry of a Gentleany boast) and therefore better omitted by man of the Netherlands, it was in this sort. fome Historians, than so highly extolled as regained. He anchored in the road with one Ship of small burden, and pretending the While Alexander was affuring himself of death of his Merchant; belought the French, those southians bordering upon Jaxartes, being some thirty in number, that they he received the ill news that Menedemus might bury their Merchant in hallowed was slain by spitamenes, the Army (by him Ground, and in the Chapel of that Isle; ofled)broken, and the greatest numbers slain, sering a present to the French of such Comto wit, two thousand foot, and three hun-modities as they had aboard; whereto(with dred horse. He therefore, to appeale the re- condition that they should not come ashore bellion, and to take revenge of Spitamenes, with any weapon, no not fo much as with a makes all the haste he can; but Spitamenes Knife)the French-men yielded. Then did the flies into Bactria. Alexander kills, burns, and Fleming, put a Coffin into their Boat, not layes waste all before him, not sparing the filled with a dead carkass, but with Swords, innocent children, and so departs, leaving Targets, and Harquebusses; The French received them at their landing; and searching To repair this loss, he received a great every of them so narrowly as they could not supply of nineteen thousand souldiers out of hide a Pen-knife, gave them leave to draw Greece, Lycia, and Syria; with all which, and their Coffin up the Rocks with great diffithe old Army he returns towards the South, culty; some part of the French took the Fleand raffeth the River of Oxus; on the South- mish Boat, and rowed aboard their Ship, to

were taken and bound. The Flemings on ing taken away, the Dacans also seized upon the Land, when they had carried their Cof- his fellow-conspiratour Dataphernes, and the Land, when they had carried then courself in the Chappel, flut the door to them, and taking their weapons out of the Coffin, and taking their weapons out of the Coffin and th fet upon the French; they run to the Cliff, of the Provinces which he past over, and & cry to their company aboord the Fleming went on with his Army into Gabaza, where to come to their fuccour, but finding the it suffered so much Hunger, Cold, Lightning, Boat charged with Flemings, yielded themfelves and the place. Thus a Fox-tail doth peft a thousand of his Train. From hence he fometimes help well to piece out the Lionsskin that else would be too short.

ø. XIX.

How Alexander flew his own friends.

we read of Alexanders killing of a Lion, and other Frivolous matters, and that hence he directed his course towards India, he committed the Government of Maracan- having fo increased his numbers, as they da, and the Country about it, to Clytus, and amounted to an hundred and twenty thouhow he flew him foon after, for valuing the fand armed men. vertue of Philip the Father before that of Alexander the fon, or rather because he objected to the King the death of Parmenio, lure the Macedonians, he employed two perand derided the Oracle of Hammon: for nicious Parafites, Hagis and Cleo; whom therein he toucht him to the quick, the same | Califthenes opposed : For, among many other being delivered in publick, and at a drunken honest arguments used to the assembly, he Banquet. Clytus, indeed, had deserved as told Cleo, That he thought, that Alexander much at the Kings hands, as any man living | would distain the gift of God-head from his had done, and had in particular faved his Vaffals; That the opinion of Sanctity, life, which the King well remembred when though it did fometime follow the death of he came to himself, and when it was too late. | those, who in their life-time had done the Yet, to fay the truth, Clytus his infolency was greatest things, yet it never accompanied any intolerable. As he in his Cups forgat whom one as yet living in the world. Hefurther he offended, so the King in his (for neither told him, That neither Hercules nor Bacchus of them were themselves) forgat whom he were Deified at a Banquet, and upon drink went about to flay: for the grief whereof he tare his own face, and forrowed fo inordinately, as, but for the perswasions of Ca- than manly acts by them performed while lifthenes, it is thought he would have flain they lived, they were in future and succeed-

tance: but preceding mischies are not that was spoken, waiting but an opportunity amended by fucceeding bewailing: Omne to be revenged on Califtbenes, who being a vitium ebrietas & incendit, & detegit; ob- man of free speech, honest, learned, and a lostantem malis conatibus verecundiam removet; ver of the Kings honour, was yet soon after ubi possedit animum nimia vis vini, quicquid tormented to death; not for that he had bemali latebat, emergit : non facit ebrietas vitia, trayed the King to others, but because he fed protrabit; Drunkenness both kindles and never would condescend to betray the King layer open every vice; it removes out of the to himself, as all his detestable flatterers did. way that shame which gives impediment unto For in a conspiracy against the King made bad attempts; where wine gets the mastry, all by one Hermolaus and others (which they the ill that before lay hidden breaks out : drun- confest) he caused Califthenes without conkenneß indeed rather discovers vices, than fession, accusation, or trial, to be torn asimmakes them.

Eeffus, and had lately revolted from Alex-dri erimen atermum, quod milla virtus, mila ander, was murdered by his Wife, and his bellorum fælicitas redimet : Nam quoties quis else they pleased; but being entred, they head presented to Alexander. Spitamenes be-Thunder, and Storm, as he loft in one Teminvaded the Sacans, and destroyed their Country. Then came he into the Territory of Cohortanes, who submitted himself unto him, feasted him greatly, and presented him with thirty beautiful Virgins, among whom Roxana, afterwards his Wife, was one: which although all the Macedonians dif-Fter these Sogdian and Scythian Wars, dained, yet none of them durst use any freedome of speech after Clytus his death. From In the mean while he would needs be hn-noured as a god: whereto that he might aling Ages numbred among the gods. Alexan-Wine begat Fury, Fury matter of Repen- der ftood behind a partition, and heard all der upon the rack: This deed unworthy of a Soon after this, Spitamenes, who flew King, Seneca thus confureth; Hoc off Alexan, dixerit, Occidit Persarum multa millia; op- strength by himself: he wan also a passage between him and Porus.

6. X X.

taken by Polysperchon, and a Rock of great half a mile, and withall deep and swift. It

ponitur, & Califthenem. Quoties dictum crit, upon one Errx, who was flain by his com-Occidit Darium; opponitur, & Califthenem. pany, and his head presented to Alexander. Quoties dictum erit, Omnia Oceano tenus vicit, This is the fum of Alexanders doings in those iplum quoq; tentavit novis classibus, & Impe-parts, before such time as he arrived at the rium ex angulo Thracia usq; ad orientis ter- River of Indus. Coming to Indus, he found minos protulit; dicetur, sed Calisthenem oc- there Ephestion, who (being sent before) had cidit. Omnia licet antiqua Ducum Regumque prepared Boats for the transportation of his exempla transferit, ex his que fecit nihil tam Army, and ere Alexanders arrival, had permaenum erit quam scelus Calisthenis; This swaded Smphis King of that part of the is the eternal crime of Alexander, which no Country, to submit himself to this great vertue nor felicity of his in War shall ever be Conquerour. Therefore, foon upon Alexadels to redeem: For as often as any man shall say, anders coming, Omphis presented himself the slew many thousand Persians; it shall be with all the strength of his Country, and replyed, he did so, and he slew Califthenes. fix and fifty Elephants, unto him a offering When it shall be said, he stew Darius; it shall him his service and affistance. He made be replied, and Califthenes. When it Shall be Alexander know, that he was an Enemy to faid he wan all as far as the very Ocean, thereon the next two great Kings of that part of also he adventured with unusual Navies, and India, named Abiasares and Porus; where extended his Empire from a corner of Thrace, with Alexander was not a little pleased, hoto the utmost bounds of the Orient; It shall be ping by this dif-union to make his own Vifaid withall, But he killed Califthenes. Let Ctory by far the more easie. He presented him have out-gone all the ancient examples of Alexander with a Crown of gold, fo did he Captains and Kings; none of all his acts make the rest of his Commanders, and withall so much to his glory, as Califthenes to his fourscore talents of filver covn; which Alexander not only refused, but to shew that he was covetous of glory, not of gold, he gave Omphis a thousand talents of his own treasure, besides other Persian rarities. Abiaof Alexanders journey into India. The battel fares, having heard that Alexander had received his enemy Omphis into his protection, refolved to make his own peace also: For, With the Army before remembred, of knowing that his own frength did but one hundred and twenty thousand equal that of Omphis, and that there was no foot and horse, Alexander did enter the bor- other difference between them, than that ders of India, where such of the Princes, as which the chance of War gave, he thought submitted themselves unto him, he enter- it an ill match, when Alexander, who had tained lovingly, the rest he constrained, already beaten under foot all the greatest killing Man, Woman, and Child, where they | Princes of Asia, should make himself a Party relifted. He then came before Nisa, built by and Head of the quarrel. So had Alexander Bacchus, which after a few dayes was ren- none now to stand in his way but Porus, to dred unto him. From thence he removed to whom he fent a commandement, that he a Hill at hand, which on the top had goodly | should attend him at the border of his King-Gardens, filled with delicate fruits and dom, there to do him homage. But from Vines, dedicated to Bacchus, to whom he Porus he received this manly answer; That made feasts for ten dayes together. Now he would satisfie him in his first demand, when he had drunk his fill, he went on to- which was to attend him on his borders, and wards Dedula, and from thence to Acadera, that well accompanied; but for any other Countries spoiled and abandoned by the acknowledgment he was resolved to take Inhabitants; by reason whereof, victuals fai- counsel of his Sword. To be short, Alexanling, he divides his Army: Ptolomy led one der resolves to pass over the River Hydaspes, part, Cenon another, and himself the rest. and to find Porus at his own home. Porus They take many Towns, whereof that of attends him on the farther bank with thirty greatest same was Mazage, which had in it thousand foot, fourscore and ten Elephants, three hundred thousand men; but after and three hundred armed Chariots, and a and three hundred thouland men; but after a fame thanker a fame thanks, and a fine changes, it was yielded unto him by Glephe the Queen, to whom again he refored it; at the fiege of this City he received a wound in the leg. After this, Nora was like a hard three thankers a fine thanker thanks a fine thanks of the control of the contro had in it many Islands, among which there querour, from whom again he received his was one well shadowed with wood, and of estate with a great enlargement. good capacity. Alexander fent Ptolony up the River with a great part of the Army, fhrowding the rest from the view of Porus: who by this device being drawn from his first incamping, sets himself down opposite to Ptolomy, supposing that the whole Army of Macedon, meant to force their pallage there. In the mean while Alexander recovers the farther shore without resistance. He orders his troops, and advanceth towards Porus, who at first rather believes, that Abiafares his Confederate (but now the Confederate of fortune) had been come the River of Indus. The descriptions of over Hydaffes to his aid, than that Alexander places about the head and branches thereof had paft it. But he finds it otherwise, and are better known unto us in this Age, by fends his Brother Hagis with four thousand means of our late Navigations into those horse, and a hundred armed Waggons to parts, than they were in any former times. entertain him. Each Waggon had in it four The magnificence and riches of thole Kings to fight, and two to guide it; but they were we could in no fort be perswaded to believe, at this time of little use: for there had fallen till our own experience had taught us, that fo much rain, and thereby the fields were fo there were many ftranger things in the moistned, as the horses could hardly trot. World, than are to be seen between London The Scythians and Dahans had the Vant- and Stanes. guard, who fogalled these Indians, as they brake their rains, and other furniture, in the year 1372, and had feen fo much of overturning the Waggons, and those in the World, and of the East India, we acthem. Perdiccas also gave up the Indian counted the greatest fabler of the World; horse-men, and the one and the other were yet had he another reputation among other forc'd to recoile. Porus moves forward with Nations, as well able to judge as we. Witness the groß of his Army, that those of his Van- the Monument made of him in the Covent of guard scattered might recover his Rear; the Friers Guillimius in Liege, where the Alexander being followed with Epheltion, Religious of that place keep fomethings of manding Cemus or Cenon to invade the right; Antigonus and Leonatus, he directed to break upon Porus his battel of foot, ftrengthened dus, and where those many Rivers of Hydawith Elephants, Porus himself being carried Spes, Zaradris, Acosines, and the rest fall into upon one of them, of the greatest stature. the main stream, are now possest by the By these beasts the Macedonian foot were great Mogol the ninth from Tamberlain, who most offended; but the Archers and Darters, commands all the tract between Persia and being well guarded with the long and Indus towards the West, as also a great ftrong pikes of the Macedonians, fogalled extent of Country towards Ganges, in the them, as being inraged, they turned head, mouth of Indus, the Ascension, a Ship of Lonand ran over the foot that followed them: den, suffered shipwrack, in the year 1609. In the end, and after a long and doubtful and fome of the company travelled over fight, by the advantage of weapon, and by the courage and skilfulnes of the Macedoni- City (as I take it) which our later Comoan Captains, the victory fell to Alexander, graphers call Nagra, being named of old who also far exceeded Porus in number: for Dionysopolis. besides the Macedonians and other Eastern and Northern Nations, Porns was affailed by 11s, speaking of the expedition of Bacebus and his own Confederate and Country people. Hercules into the East India, tells us, that Yet for his own person he never gave those two great Captains (whom Alexander ground otherwife than with his fword to- fought by all means to out-fame) when they wards his enemies, till being weakened endevoured to subject to them the Oxidrace,

676

ø. XXI.

How Alexander finished his expedition and returned out of India.

Forbear to trouble my felf and others with a frivolous discourse of Serpents, Apes, and Peacocks, which the Macedonians found in these their travels: or of those petty Wars which Alexander made between the overthrow of Porus, and his failing down

Our great traveller Mandevile, who died Ptolomy, and Perdiccus, took on him to charge his, Comme pour honourable memoire de fon Gui la the Indian horse men on the left wing, com- Excellence; For an honourable memory of his like in Excellency, faith Guichardine.

The Countries towards the Springs of In-Land till they came to Agra, the same great

Philostratus in the life of Apollonius Tyanawith many wounds, and abandoned by his a people inhabiting between the Riversof Army, he became a prisoner to the Con- Hyphasis and Ganges, they were beaten from highmings. This may well be understood by of fix thousand Thracian Horse-men, seven the great Ordnance that those people had thousand Foot; and from his Lieutenant at then inule. For it is now certainly known, Babylon five and twenty thouland Armours, that the great Kings of the uttermost East, garnished with filver and gold, which he dihave had the use of the cannon many hun- tributed among his Souldiers. About these dreds of years fince, and even fince their first Rivers he wan many Towns, and committed civility and greatness, which was long before great flaughter on those that resisted; It is Alexander's time. But Alexander piere'd not then written of him, that affaulting a City of fo far into the East. It sufficed, that having the Oxidracans, he leapt from the top of the already over-wearied his Army, he discovered the rest of India by fame. The Indian long, against all the Inhabitants; tales like Kings whom he had subdued, informed him, those of Bevis of Southampton, frivolous and that a Prince called Aggramenes, who com- incredible. Finally, he passed down the River manded many Nations beyond the River with his fleet, at which time also the news Gariers, was the powerfullest King of all came unto him of a rebellion in Bactria, and unto them than the greatest Army that the rich. East could gather. Yet at the last contented they were, after many perswasive Orations, to follow him towards the South; to discover such part of the Ocean Sea, as was nearer at hand, whereunto the River of Indur was their infallible guide. Alexander feeing that it would be no otherwise, devised a pretty in this passage, is amos was one, the Inhathan Horses could feed in. He cansed all Serpent. furniture of men and horses to be made larger than would ferve for use; and scattered these Armours and Bridles about his Camp, to be kept as reliques, and wondred at by the Savages. Proportionable to these he raifed up twelve great Altars to be the monument of his journies end. in This was a ness to his greatness it could add nothing lave a suspition is that it was less than is make it thought more than it was it his fleet, where Acelines and Hydafpes incounter a where to testifie by a surer monument, how far he had past towards the East, after the name of his beloved Horse Bucepha- made.

the affault of their Cities with thunder and has. Here again he received a fourth supply wall into it, and fought, I know not how thole Regions: and that he was able to then of the arrival of an hundred Embaliabring into the field two hundred thousand dours from a King of India, who submitted Foot, three thousand Elephants, twenty himself unto him. He feasted these Embasthouland Horle, and two thouland armed | fadours upon a hundred beds of gold, with Chariots. With this report, though Alex- all the sumptuosity that could be devised, ander were more inflamed than ever to pro- who, foon after their dispatch, returned ceed in this discovery and conquest, yet all again with a present of three hundred the art he had, could not perfwade the Soul- Horses, one hundred and thirty Waggons, diers to wander over those great Desarts and to each of them four Horses, a thousand beyond Indus and Ganges, more terrible Targets, with many other things rare and

Their entertainments ended, he failed towards the South, passed through many obscure Nations, which did all yield unto him either quietly, or compelled by force: among these he builded another Alexandria. Of many places which he took trick, wherewith he hoped to beguile po- bitants whereof fought against him with sterity, and make himself seem greater than poisoned swords, with one of which Ptolohewas. He enlarged his Camp, made greater my (afterward King of Egypt) was woundtrenches, greater Cabbines for Souldiers, ed, and cured by an herb which Alexander greater Horse-stalls i and higher mangers dreamt he had seen in the mouth of a

When he came near the out-let of Indus (being ignorant of the tides of the Sea) his Gallies, as they were on a fudden shuffled one upon another by the Flood, fo on the Ebb they were left on the dry ground, and on the fandy banks of the River, wherewith the Macedonians were much amazed 3 but after ready way to encrease the same of his big- he had a few dayes observed well the course of the Sea, he past out of the Rivers mouth some few miles, and after Sacrifices offered thought, feeing he strove so earnestly to to Neptune, returned : and the better to inform himfelf, he fent Nearchus and Oneficri-This done, he returned again to the bank tus, to discover the coast towards the mouth of Acesines, and there determined to let up of Euphrates. Arrianus in the beginning of his fixt Book hath written this naffage down the River of Indus at length, with the manner of the Vessels in which he transported. hebuilt by those Riverstwo Cities: the one his Army, the Commanders that were used, he called Nicea, and the other Bucephalon, therein, and other the marvellous provisions

Near

Near the out-lets of this River, he spent | certain loose fellows to witness against orfome part of the Winter, and in eighteen lines, that he had robbed Cyrus Tomb, for dayes march from thence recovered Gedro- which he was condemned to dye; but he (ia, in which passage his Army suffered such affisted the Hang-man with his own hands milery for want of food, that of a hundred in tormenting him. At which time also Alex. and twenty thousand foot, and twelve thou- ander caused Phradites to be slain, suspectino fand horse, which he carried into India, not his greatness. Coperat (faith Currius) essential the fourth part returned alive.

ø. XXII.

Of Alexanders Riot, Cruelty, and Death.

"Rom Gedrosia, Alexander led his Army into Carmania, and so drawing near to Terfia, he gave himself wholly to feating and drinking, imitating the triumphs of Bacchus. And though this Swinish vice be hateful enough in it felf, yet it alwayes inflamed this King to Cruelty. For (faith Curtius) the Hang-man followed the feast : for Aspastes, one of his Frovincial Governours, he commanded to be flain; fo as neither did the excess of voluptuousness qualifie his cruelty, nor his cruelty binder in ought his voluptu-

While he refreshed his Army in these parts, a new supply of five thousand foot and Epheltion, and sourscore other Persan Ladies a thousand horse, was brought him by Cleander, and his fellows, that had been employed in the killing of Parmenio. Against these he gave a cup of gold. Here there came unto Murderers, great complaint was made by him three thousand young Souldiers, out of the Deputies of the Provinces, in which they his conquered Provinces, whereat the Macehad commanded; and their offences were donians greatly murmured. Harpalus, his fo out ragious, as Alexander was persivaded, Treasurer in Babylon, having lavishly conthat, had they not altogether despaired of sumed the monies in his keeping, gothim his return out of India, they durft not have going with five thousand Talents, and six committed them. All men were glad of thousand hired Souldiers; but he was rethe occasion, remembring the vertue of jected in Greece, and there slain. Alexander him, whom they had flaughtered. The greatly rejoyced at the fidelity of the Greek, end was, That Cleander, and the other chief, whom Harpalus with these forces and treawith fix hundred Souldiers by them em- fures could not ftir: yet he fent commandeployed, were delivered over to the Hang- ment, that they should again receive their man: every one rejoycing that the Ire of banished men, whereunto (fearful of his inthe King was at last executed on the mini- dignation) all submitted themselves (except fters of his Ire.

Nearchus and Onesicritus were now returned from the coaft, and made report of bondage. After this, there followed a maran Island rich in gold, and of other strange things; whereupon they were commanded to make some farther discovery: which those old Souldiers which could no longer done, that they should enter the mouth of endure the travel of War, and to keep the Euphrates, and find the King at Babylon.

As he drew near to Babylon, he visited the Sepulchre of Cyrus in Pafargada, now called | pelt of their fury. But afterward, as Whales Chalquers: where he was presented with are drawn to the Land with a twine-thred, many rich gifts by Orsiner, one of the Princes | when they have tumbled a while; so are of Persia, of the race of Cyrus. But because the unconsiderate multitude easily condu-Bagoas, an Eunuch in special favour with the cted when their first passions are evapo-King, was neglected; he not only practifed rate. With such as were licensed to depart, ceps ad reprasentanda supplicia, item ad dete. riora credenda; He began head-longly to feed blood, and to believe false reports. It is true, that he took a way to make all men weary of his Government, feeing cruelty is more fearful than all adventures that can be made against it.

At this time it is faid, that Calanus the Philosopher burnt himself, when he had lived threefcore and thirteen years. Whether herein he followed the custome of his Country, being an Indian, or fought to prevent the grief and incommodity of elder age, it is uncertain: but in this the Hiftorians agree, that fore-feeing and fore-shewing Alexanders death, he promised to meet him

thortly after at Babylon.

From Pasargada he came to Susa, where he married Statira, Darius his eldest Daughter, giving her younger fifter to his beloved to his Captains. There were fix thousand guests invited to the feast, to each of which the Athenians) though they resolved, that it was a manifest preparation towards their vellous discontentment in his Army, because he had resolved to send into Macedon all rest in Asia. He used many Orations to satisfie them, but it was in vain during the temhe sent Craterus, to whom he gave the Lieu- play any other part; no more than Casar being now at an end. For Antipater faw no- followed in all the former War. thing in this remove, but the Kings disposition to fend him after Parmenio, and the rest. With this Antipater, the King, notwithstanding his great courage, had no great appetite to grapple: Princes, though jealous, do not stand in doubt of every man ill-affected. though valiant : but there is a kind of kingunderstanding, which is many times so fear-

ted the World within a few daies.

tenantship of Macedon, Thessaly, and Thrace, did, after he had so long a time governed which Antipater had held from his first de- the Gauls, where he utterly forgat the art parture out of Europe, who had beaten the of obedience. A most cruel and ungrateful rebellious Greeks in his absence, discharged Traitor Antipater was, if Curtius do not bethe trust committed unto him with great fi- lye him: For though he feared some ill delity, and fent him fo many firong fupplies measure upon his remove (the Tragedies of into Asia from time to time. Certainly, if Parmenio, Clytus, and Callisthenes, having allexander had not taken counsel of his cups, been so lately acted) yet he knew nothing he would have cast some better colour on to the contrary, but that the King had rethis alteration, and given Antipater a ftron- folved to have given him fome other great ger reason for his remove, than to have im- Government in Asia: The old Souldiers ployed him in the conduction of a new fup thence returned, having perchance defired ply to be brought him to Babylon, the War to be governed by Craterus, whom they had

ø. XXIII.

Of Alexanders person and qualities.

Owfoever it were, Alexanders former cruelties cannot be excused, no more ly courage, compounded of hardiness and than his vanity to be esteemed the Son of Jupiter, with his excessive delight in drink ful unto them, as they take leave both of and drunkenness, which others make the Law and Religion, to free themselves cause of his fever and death. In that he lamented his want of enterprifing, and grie-After he had fent for Antipater, he made a ved to confider what he should do when he journey into Media to fettle things there; had conquered the World, Augustus Cafar where Ephelian, whom he favoured most found just cause to decide him, as if the wellof all men, dies. The King, according to the governing of fo many Nations and Kinggreatness of his love, laments his loss, hangs doms, as he had already conquered, could his Physician, and bestows upon his Monu not have offered him matter more than ment twelve thousand talents: After which aboundant, to busie his brains withall. That he returns to Babylon. Thither Antipater he was both learned, and a lover of learncame not, but fent; and not to excuse him- ing, it cannot be doubted. Sir Francis Bafelf, but to free himfelf. For if we believe con, in his first Book of the Advancement of Cartius (whom Plutarch and others gain- Learning, hath proved it fufficiently. His lifay) Antipater by his Sons, Caffander, Philip, berality, I know not how to praise, because and Iolla, who waited on Alexanders cup, it exceeded proportion. It is faid, That gave him poylon; The ffalus (who was of the when he gave a whole City to one of his Conspiracy) having invited him to a drink- servants, he, to whom it was given, did out ing-feast of purpose. For after he had taken of modesty refuse it, as disproportionable to a carouse in Hercules his cup, a draught of his fortune: to whom Alexander replied, drink stronger than Hercules himself, he quit- That he did not enquire what became him to accept, but the King to give: of which Certainly the Princes of the World have Seneca; Animofa vox videtur & regia, cum feldom found good, by making their Mini- sit stultissima. Nihil enim per se quenquam L. i.de Elis. fiers over-great, and thereby suspicious to decet. Refert quid, cui, quando, quare, ubi, c. 1. themselves. For he that doth not acknow- &c. sine quibus factivatio non constabit; haledge sidelity to be a debt, but is perswaded, beatur personarum & dignitatum proportio,& that Kings ought to purchale it from their cum fit ubiq, virtutis modus, eque peccat quod Vassals, will never please himself with the excedit, quam quod deficit; It seems a brave Price given. The only restorative, indeed, and Royal speech, whereas indeed it is very that strengthens it, is the goodness and vir- foolish. For nothing simply considered by it self tue of the Prince, and his liberality makes befeems a man, We must regard what, to it more diligent; so as proportion and di- whom, when, why, where, and the like; withstance be observed. It may be, that Antipa- out which considerations, no act can be approter, having commanded two or three King- ved. Let honours be proportioned unto the domsten or twelve years, knew not how to perfons: for whereas virtue is ever limited was as valiant as any mansa disposition, taken ders, every one of his Fathers old Captains by it felf, not much to be admired: For I am by far exceeding the best of his Enemies. refolved, that he had ten thouland in his But it feems Fortune and Destiny (if we may Army as during as himself. Surely, if ad- use those terms) had found out and prepaventrous natures were to be commended red for him, without any care of his own. fimply, we should confound that virtue with both heaps of Men, that willingly offered the hardiness of Theeves, Ruffians, and Ma-their necks to the yoke, and Kingdomsthat ftiff-Dogs. For certainly it is no way praife- invited and called in their own Conqueworthy, but in daring good things, and in rours. For conclusion, we will agree with the performance of thole lawful enterprifes, Seneca, who speaking of Philip the Father, in which we are employed for the service of and Alexander the Son, gives this judgment our Kings, and Common-weals.

Arrianus bach a far HAP. III.

other troublers of the world, who have perfusium est, quam conflagratio, qua magna bought their glory with fo great destructi- pars animantium exacuit; They were no less on and effusion of blood, I think him far in- plagues to mankind, than an overthrow of waferiour to Casar, and many other that lived ters, drowning all the level; or some bunning after him, seeing he never undertook any drought, whereby a great part of living creawarlike Nation, the naked Soythians excep- tures are scorched up.

by measure, the excess is as faulty as the de- ted; nor was ever encountred with any Army of which he had not a most mastering For his Person, it is very apparent, That he advantage, both of Weapons and Commanof them: Quod non minores fuere peftes mor-If we compare this great Conquerour with talium, quam inundatio, qua planum omne

CHAP. III.

The Reign of Aridaus.

Of the Question about Succession to Alexander.

ving loft his only eye. For that which is re- of his own: by which bond, and much ported in fables of that great Cyclops, might more by his own proper strength, he assured well be verified of the Macedonians: their the Crown unto himself: Amyntas never force was intolerable, but for want of good attempting ought against Philip; though guidance uneffectual, and harmful chiefly (with price of his life) he did against Alexto themselves. The causes whereof (under ander in the beginning of his reign, Wherethe divine ordinance) were partly the un- fore Eurydice, the fole iffue of this marriage, certainty of Title to succession in the King-ought in reason to have been acknowledged dom of Macedon, partly the stubborn pride Queen after Alexander; as having better of Alexander himself, who thinking none Title thereunto, than either He or Philip worthy to be his heir, did refue to establish had, when they lived, unless (peradventure) the right in any one, leaving every one to his fome Law of that Nation forbad the reign own fortune: bur especially the great am of Women But the excellent virtue of these bition of his followers, who all had learned two Princes had utterly defaced the right of of their Master to suffer no equals; a lesion all Pretenders, not claiming from their own foon taught unto spirits reflecting upon their bodies: and so great were their Conquests, own worth, when the reverence of a greathat Macedon it felf was (in regard of them) ter object faileth.

lip (the Father of Alexander) governing in mand of their posterity, had they lest any

HE death of Alexander left, Macedon as Protector, affumed unto himhis Army (as Demades the felfthe Kingdom, not rendring it unto Amyn-Athenian then compared it) in tas, (the Son of his elder Brother Perdicess) fuch case, as was that mon- when he grew to mans estate; but only bestrous Gyant Polyphemus, ha- stowing upon him in marriage a Daughter a very small Appendix, and no way defer-It hath formerly been shewed, That Phi- ving to be laid in ballance against the demore folemnly married) was left by him great puissance. with child. But the baseness of the Mothers, and contempt of the conquered Nations, bling afpirers do often take check by the was generally alledged in Barr of Plea made | plain-dealing of them who dare to go more the name of Alexanders children.

riness to take what comes next to hand.

but reputed of Philip: who having used Pride; and rewarded with death. the company of Arsinoe Ptolomie's Mother, tune out of those diffentions, which are incident unto the confultations of many ambitiousmen, equal in place, forcing them at length to redeem their quiet with subjection able to make challenge of the Royal Seat. lomy had conceived the form of their con-Alexander having taken many Wives, had sultations. or to set in the Chair such a King issue by none of the principal of them. Bar- as Aridaus, no wifer than the Chair it felf. time by none of Artabazus a Persian, had Also the Controversies arising were deterborn unto him a young Son: and Roxane mined by the greater part of the Captains; the Daughter of Oxyaries (whom he had by the greater part, if not in number, yet in

But as these counterfeit shews of dissemfor them, by some that would (perhaps) directly to work: so was it like to have fared have wrought out their own ends, under with Ptolomy and the reft, when Ariftonus, another of the Captains, interpreted the very Cleopatra a Sifter of Alexander, widow to words of Alexander, faying, That he left his the King of Epirus, and Aridaus his base Bro- Kingdom to the worthiest, as designing Perther (Son to Fhilip by a Concubine of no ac- diceas, to whom (lying at the point of death) count who had married the Lady Eurydice he delivered his ring. It feened good in reabefore mentioned, were next in course. Of son, that Alexander should be disposer of his Cleoratra there was no speech, which may own purchases: and those tokens of Alexangive sufficient, that either Law or Custom ders purpose appeared plain enough, so long had made that fex uncapable of the Sove-raignty: Aridous (besides his bastardy) was ction: every one being uncertain how the neither for person nor quality fit to rule as secret affections of the rest might be incli-King; yet upon him the election fell, but ned. Many therefore, either out of their love, flowly, and (as happeneth often) for lack of or because they would not be of the latest, abetter: when the Counsellors having over- urged Perdicess to take upon him the estatelaboured their dilagreeing wits in deviling Royal. He was no stranger to the Royal what was best, were content for very wea- | blood; yet his birth gave him not such reputation, as the great favour of his dead Ptolomy (fcon after King of Egypt) concur- King, with whom he had been very inward, ring with them who rejected all mention of and that especially since the death of Ephethe half-Persian brood, King Alexanders Stion (a powerful Minion) into whose place children, was of opinion, that the rule of all he was chosen. For his own worth he might should be given to the Captains; that going well be commended, as a good man of War, for Law, which by the greater part of them and one that had given much proof of his should be decreed: fo far was he from ac- private valour. But very surly he was: which knowledging any one as true Heir to the quality (joyned with good fortune) carried a shew of Majesty: being checkt with mif-This Ptolomy was called the Son of Lagus, adventure, it was called by a true name,

In the present business a foolish over-weendelivered her in marriage to Lagus, being ing did him as great harm, as it had been great with child. Therefore, whether it were great happiness to have succeeded Alexanlo, that he hoped well to work his own for- der. For not content to have the acclamation of the Souldiers, appproving the sentence of Aristonus, he would needs counterfeit modefty; thinking that every one of the Princes would have intreated him to take the to one, deferving regard by his blood, and weighty burden of an Empire, which would trust for his even carriage; or whether he be the less envious, the more folemnity he desired only to get a share to himself, which used in the acceptance. It is truly said, He could not have come to pass, had all been that feigneth himself a Sheep, may chance to given to one: plain enough it is, that he be eaten by a Wolf. Meleager, (a man by, nathought not on preferring Aridans before ture envious, and bearing a particular hahimfelf: and therefore gave such counsel as tred to Perdiccas) took advantage of his irfitted his own and other mens purposes. resolute behaviour, and very bitterly en-Yea, this device of his took place indeed, veighed against him. In conclusion, he prothough not in form as he had propounded nounced, That wholoever was Heir to the the for, it was in effect all one, to have af- Crown, the fouldiers ought to be heirs to the fembled at Alexanders empty Chair, as Tto- Treasure; and therefore he invited them, who were nothing flow, to share it. This ing was not unexpected: and they were by disturbed all the Consultation. The Captains | Perdiceas rebuked with such gravity, that were left alone, far enough from agreeing, they departed honester than they came; beand not able to have brought any conclusi- ing forry for their bad enterprise, Upon the on to good effect without consent of the news of this attempt, the Camp was in an Souldiers, who greedy of spoil, thronged up-roar, which the King seeking to pacific. about Meleager.

ø. II.

ed with good liking of many, until at last it King by offering to resign his estate unto grew to the voice of the Army. Meleager them, renewed out of their pity that fahaving withdrawn himself tumultuously vourable affection, which had moved them from the company of the Lords, was glad of to fet him up at the first. fo fair an occasion to make himself great : Perdiccas having now joyned himself with therefore he produced Aridaus, commended Leonatus, kept the fields, intending to cut him to the Souldiers, who called him by offall provision of victuals from the City. his Fathers name Philip, and brought him But after fundry Embassies passing between into the Palace, investing him in Alexan- the King and the Nobles, (they requiring to Many of the Nobles withftood this election, but in vain: for they could not re- be joyned with Leonatus and Perdiccas, 282 Solve what course to follow, rejecting this. Third in government of the Army) things Only Python, a hot-headed man, took upon were compounded according to the Kings him to proclaim the Son of Alexander by defire. Meleager should have done well to Roxane, according to the counsel which consider, That such men as had one dayde-Perdices at first had given, appointing Perdices and Leonatus his Protectors. But the lowing to give him a principal place among child was not yet born, which made that them without any new occasion offered, had attempt of Python vain. Finally, Perdiccas not some purpose of treachery lurked under with fix hundred men, and Ptolomy with their great facility. General peace was rethe Kings Pages, took upon them to de- newed, and much love protested where little fend the place where Alexanders body lay: was intended. The face of the Court was but the Army conducted by Meleager, who the same which it had been in Alexanders carried the new King about whither he time: but no longer now did the fame heart listed, easily brake in upon them, and in- give it life; and windy spirits they were forced them to accept Arideus for their So- which moved in the arteries. False reports veraign Lord. Then by the intercession of were given out by appointment of Ferdiceas, the ancient Captains, a reconciliation was tending to his own diffgrace, but in fuch terms propounded and admitted, but on neither as might feem to have proceeded from Mefide faithfully meant.

goodly Gentleman, and valiant, iffued out of and (as defirous of a true friendship) defired Babylon, being followed by all the horse, of Perdiceas, that such authors of discord which consisted (for the most part) of the might be punished. Perdiccas (as a lover of Nobility. Perdiccas abode in the City (but peace)did wel approve the motion; & there franding upon his guard) that he might be fore agreed that a general Muster should ready to take the opportunity of any com- be made, at which time the disturbers of the motion that should happen among the Infan- common quiet should receive their punishtry. The King (who was governed by Melea- | ment (as was the manner for Souldiers offenger) commanded, or gave leave to have Per- | ding)in presence of the Army. The plot was diccas made away; which attempt succeed- mischievously laid. Had Meleager given ed ill, being neither fecretly carried, nor way to feditious rumours, he must needs wanted authority, as having newly got the Crown by them, and holding it by their courtesie. The matter it self afforded no good excuses, and his indiscretion made them The Election of Aridaus, with the troubles worfe. He faid that no harm was done for thereabout arising; the first Division of the Perdiccas was alive: but their exclamations were against the tyrannous enterprise, which he imputed to Meleager; abandoning the Uring this up-roar, mention was made furest of his friends to the rage of themalof Aridaus by some one, and entertain- titude, who were not appealed, until the leager: who finding part of the drift, but Leonatus, who was of Royal blood, a not all, took it as an injuiry done to himself; committed to fure executioners. Their com- have incurred the general hatred of all, as a Prince being too weak a Patron. Now feek- might be. The charge of his burial was ing redress of these disorders, he hastened committed to Aridaus, one of the Captains. his own ruine, by a less formal, but more who was two years preparing of a great fpeedy way. This kind of Muster was very and costly shew, making a stately Chariot folenmand practifed with many ceremonies, in which the corps was laid; many coarfes as for cleaning the Army. The Horse-men, of his friends being laid in the ground before the Elephants, the Macedonian foot, the that of Alexander was bestowed in Alexan-Mercenaries were each according to their dria, a City of his own building, in Egypt. quality fet in array, apart from others, as if they had been of fundry forts, met at adventure:which done, the manner was to skirmish (as by way of exercise) according to the direction of their feveral Captains. But at that time the great battel of Macedonian Pikes. which they called the Phalanx, led by Mele-

of man their King was, divided all the Pro-

thither they fent and flew him.

fower of diffention, and thereby with a pub- ven dayes neglected, was opened and emlick approbation might have been cut off, as balmed by the Egyptians: no fign of poyson having often offended in that kind; his appearing, how great foever the suspicion

ø. III.

The beginning of the Lamian War.

Hilest these things were in doing, or presently after, Antipater and Craager, was of purpose bestowed in a ground terus, two principal Noble-men, and infeof disadvantage; and the countenance of the riour to none of Alexanders followers, if Horse and Elephants beginning to give not greater than any of the rest, were bucharge upon them, was fuch, as discovered fied in Greece with a war, which the no jesting pastime, nor good intent. Kings Athenians more bravely than wisely had were always wont to fight among the horfe- begun in Alexanders life, but now did promen; of which custom Perdicess made great | secute more boldly than before, upon the use that day, to the utter confusion of his courage which they had taken by his death. enemies. For Arideus was always governed Alexander, not long before he died, had by him, who for the present had him in commanded that all the banished Greeks possession. Two or three days before, he (few excepted)should be restored unto their fought the death of Perdiccas at the instiga- former places. He knew the factious quality tion of Meleager: now he rides with Perdiceas of the Grecian Estates, & therefore thought up and down about the foot-men, command- fo to provide, that in every City he would ing them to deliver unto the death all such have a sure party. But it fell out otherwise: as Perdiccas required. Three hundred they For he loft the hearts of many more than he were who were cast unto the Elephants, and won by this proud injunction. His pleasure by them flain, in the presence of the King | indeed was fulfilled; yet not without great (who should have defended them) and of murmuring of the whole Nation, as being their affrighted companions. But these three against all order of Law, and a beginning of hundred were not the men whose punish open tyranny. The Athenians greatly decayment Meleager had expected: they were fuch ed in estate, but retaining more than was as had followed him, when he difturbed the needful of their ancient spirits, forbad the first consultation that was held about the execution of this Decree in their Dominielection of a new King, and some of them his ons; so did also the Ætolians, who were valiespecial friends. Having therefore kept him- ant men, and inhabited a Region well forfelf quiet a while, as unwilling to give of- tified by nature: yet neither of them took fence to them that had the advantage; when Arms, but seemed to bear themselves; as menhe faw their proceedings tend very mani- that had done no more than they might well festly to his destruction, he fled away into justifie by reason:nevertheless to prevent the a Temple, which he found no Sanctuary: for worst, the Athenians gave secret instructions to Leofthenes, a Captain of theirs, willing The Army being thus corrected, was led him to levy an Army, but in his own name, into the City, where a new Councel of the and to keep it in a readiness for their use. Princes was held, who finding what manner | This was no hard thing for Leofthenes to do : great numbers of Greek Souldiers being vinces of the Empire among themselves, lately returned from the Asian War in poor leaving to Aridans the office of a Visitor, and estate, as defrauded of their pay by the yet making Perdiccas his Protector, and Captains. Of these he had gathered up eight Commander of the forces remaining with thouland, when the certain news was him. Then were the funerals of Alexander brought of Alexanders death: at which the thought upon; whose body having beense- City of Athens declared it self, and more against the Macedonians for the liberty of ry few years. Greece. Hereupon Leosthenes drew in the Etolians and some other Estates, gave bat- all the Captains of companies lying near, tel to the Baotians, who fided with Antipa- folicited to make hafte. Not without cause: ter, and overthrew them; growing so fast For in Macedon there could not at that time in reputation, and so strong in adherents, be railed more than thirteen thousand foot. that Antipater (arming in all hafte, yet fuf- and fix hundred horse; which Muster was into Afia to Craterus for fuccour. Nothing is more vain than the fears and indeed who had long frood firm for Philip hopes of men, shunning or pursuing their and Alexander, who also were the best horsedestinies a far off, which deceive all mortal men of Greece, furnished him with very wisdom, even when they seem near at hand. brave troops, that might have done great One moneth was scarcely past, since nothing service, had their faith held out, which fo heavily burthened the thoughts of Anti- they changed for the liberty of Greece. With pater as the return of Craterus into Mace- these forces did Antipater in Thessaly try the don; which he then feared as death, but fortune of a battel with Leofthenes; rather now defired as the most likely assurance of (as may seem) fearing the increase of his his life. Craterus, whom Alexander held as enemies power, and rebellion of the Greeks, of all men the most assured unto him, was (were they not checkt at the first) than prefent into Macedon to convey home the old fuming on his ftrength. For Leofthenes had of Souldiers (that was the pretence) and to Athenians, Etolians, and Mercenaries, two fucceed Antipater in the government of Ma- and twenty thousand foot, besides the afficedon and Greece. The suspitions were strong stance of many petty Signories, and of some that he had a privy charge to put Antipater Illyrians and Thracians: of horse he brought to death: neither did that which was com- into the field about two thousand and five monly published sound much better; which hundred but over-strong he was that wav was, That Antipater should be sent unto the also, when once the Thessalians had revoked King, as Captain of the young Souldiers, unto him. So Antipater loft the day; and his newly to be levied in Europe. For Alexander loss was such, that he neither was able to was much incensed against him by his Mo- keep the field, nor to make a safe retreat ther Olympias: and would sometimes give into his own Country; therefore he fled into out speeches, testifying his own jealousie and the Town of Lamia, which was well forisihatred of him; but yet he strove to smother ed, and well provided of all things necesit, which in a cruel Prince betokeneth little fary to bear out a siege. Thither did Legood. Few of Alexanders Lieutenants had ofthenes follow him, prefent him battelagain, escaped with life:most of them indeed were and upon refusal close up the Town with mean persons in regard of those who follow- Earth-works, and a Wall. There will ed him in his Indian expedition, and were we leave him for a while, travelling in the therefore (perhaps) removed to make place last honourable enterprise that ever was unfor their betters. But if the Kings rigour dertaken by that great City of Athens. was fuch, as could find rebellious purposes (for fo he interpreted even lewd government) in base persons; little might Antipater hope for, who having fitten Vice-roy ten years in the strongest part of the Empire, was called away to the presence of To fell a Master, and the envie of a Court, wherein they had been his inferiours, gone each to his own Province, kept a naked which would now repine to see him their Court: all his greatness consisting in a equal. Therefore whether his fear drew bare Title, supported by the strength of him to prevention, working first the Kings his Protector, who cared not for him other death by poylon, given by his Son Io- wife than to make use of him. Ferdices had laus, Alexanders Cup-bearer; or when no Province of his own peculiar, neither ther it brake not forth untill opportuni- was he like to be welcome to any whom he ty had changed it into the paffion of re- should visit in his government. A stronger venge, which was cruelly performed by Army than any of the reft he had, which he honourably than wifely, proclaimed War the ground of effects to be produced inve-

684

At the present, Craterus was sent for, and pecting his own ftrength) was fain to fend of raw Souldiers, all the force of the Countrey being emptied into Asia. The Thessalians

ø. IV.

How Perdiccas employed his army.

Ing Aridaus living under the rule of Perdiccas, when all the Princes were his fon Cassander 5 great cause of much might easily hope in that unsetled condifear he had; which I note in this place, as tion of things to make better worth to him than many Provinces could have been. The ftroy them: which intent of his Perdiceas diff better to accomplish his desires, he closely fought the marriage of cleopatra; the fifter of Alexander; yet about the same time he either married Nicea the daughter of Antitheir eyes, who did not somewhat narrowly fearch into his doings.

Ariarathes the Cappadocian, the second of that name, and tenth King of that Country. had continued faithfull to the Persian Emple of his fore-fathers, even from Pharnaces the first that reigned in Cappadocia, who marner, with many others, he crucified him, and forth to return unto his great Master. as many of his Kindred as he could light upthan as to the most assured. Python was to Lamian War taketh ending. subdue the Greeks rebelling in the high Countrys of Asia. About twenty thousand foot, and 2000 horse they were, (all old Soldiers) who planted in Colonies by Alexander to bridle the barbarous nations, were foon weary of their unpleasant habitations, and the rude people, among whom they lived:

covering, did both give him in charge to put all those Rebels to the fword, giving the spoyles of them to his Souldiers, and further enjoyned it unto Pythons Captains (his own pater, or made such love to her as blinded creatures; that they should see his commandment executed. These directions for use of the victory, might have proved needless; so uncertain was the victory it felf. A Captain of the Rebels commanding over three thoufand, corrupted by Python, did in the heat pire as long as it ftood: following the exam- of the fight (which was very doubtful) retire without necessity to a hill not far off. This dismayed the rest, and gave the ried Atoffa fifter to the great Cyrus. Some day to Python: who being far enough of his Ancestors had (indeed) been oppres- from Perdiccas, offered composition to fed by the Persian: but what Fortune took the vanquished, granting unto them their from them at one time, Vertue restored at lives and liberty, under condition of laying another, and their faithful Princes had much down their arms; & hereupon he gave them encrealed all. But now in the fatal Period his faith. Being master of these Companies. of so great an Empire, with much wisdom, he might well have a good opinion of his and (Darius being flain) with sufficient ho- own power: all power being then valued by nour he might have acknowledged the Ma- strength in followers, when as none could cedonian in the Persians room. This he did vaunt himself as free Lord of any Territory. not; neither did Alexander call him to ac- He had thirteen thousand foot, and eight count being occupied with great cares. But | thousand eight hundred horse, besides these Perdiccas, who had no greater business new Companions, whom needless fear withwherein to entertain his Army, found it ex- out great loss had caused to leave the field: pedient both for the honour of the Empire, but in true estimation, all the greatness to take that in-land Kingdom, furrounded whereof Python might think himfelf affured, with Provinces of the Macedonian conquest, was (and soon appeared to be) inherent in and for his own particular, to have one op- | Perdiccas. For by his command were ten portune place of fure retreat, under the go- thousand foot, and eight thousand horse, of vernment of a stedfast friend. Therefore he those which followed Python, levied; the entred Cappadocia, fought with Ariarathes, Rulers of the Provinces carefully obeying who drew into the field 30000. foot, and the letters of Perdiccas, by which they were 15000, horse (a strong Army, had it not en- enjoyned to give assistance to that business; countred a stronger, and better trained) wan & by vertue of the precept given unto them the victory, and thereby the whole King- by Perdiccas, did the Macedonians cut in dom. But with much cruelty did he use the pieces all those poor men who had yielded victory: for having taken Ariarathes prifo- themselvs; leaving Python as naked as he came

Now was Perdiceas mighty above the on, and so delivered that Province to Eu- | mighty, and had fair leisure to pursue his menes, whom of all men living he trusted hopes of marriage with Cleopatra, and theremost Another part of his forces he had com- by to make himself Lord of all: but this mitted to Python, rather as to the most ho- must be secretly carried for sear of opposinourable of such as remained about him, tion How it succeeded, will appear when the

6. V.

The process of the Lamian War.

TE left Antipater hardly besieged, wanting means to free himfelf withand therefore took advantage of the present out succours from his friends in Asia. Those troubles to feek unto themselves a better helps not appearing so soon as he expected, fortune. Against these Python went, more he came to parley with Leosthenes, and desirous to make them his own, than to de- would have yielded unto any terms of reason Rrrr 2 reason, wherewith men possessed with had (notwithstanding the departure of the hope of victory, do seldome limit their de- Ætolians) the advantage of Leonatus in fires. Legithenes willed him without fur- horfe, by the odds of two thousand Theffalither circumstance to submit himself to dif- ans; in other things he was equal with him; cretion. This was too much for him that in cause he thought himself Superiour in the had once commanded over them, who now fortune of that day he proved fo: for he required of him fuch a difhonourable com- wan a great victory (chiefly by vertue of the extremity, from which as yet he was far the end of Leonatus himself; who fighting enough, could bring no worfe with it, Anti- valiantly, was driven into a marifu piece of pater prepared for the defence ; and the ground, where he found his death, which other for winning the Town, which felt he desperately had fought among the Indigreat want of victuals.

687

In this lingring War the Ætalians (whe- from the place of his nativity. He was the ther weary of fitting still at a siege, or have- first of Alexanders Captains which dyed in ing bufiness which they pretended at home battel; but all, or most of the rest shall follow took their leave, and returned into their him the same way. After this day, the Atheown Countrey. Their departure left the nians did never any thing suitable to their trenches to thinly manned, that Antipater ancient glory. found means to fally out upon his enemies to their great los: for many were flain, and weak to renew the fight, and too proudto Leofthenes himfelf among them, ere he could flie. They betook themselves to high grounds, be repulled into the Town. Yet hereby the unfit for service on horse-back, and so abode Macedonians were nothing relieved, their in the fight of the enemy that day; the day victuals wafted, and they were not firong following, Antipater with his men cameinto enough to deal with the Greeks in open their Camp, and took the charge of all. The fight. Craterns was long in coming. Lyfina Athenians perceiving their ffrength tobe chus, who was nearest at hand in Thrace, had at the greatest, and searing lest that of the work too much of his own, leading no more enemy should increase, did earnestly seek than four thousand foor, and two thousand to determine the matter quickly by another horse, against Seuthas the Thracian King, battel. But still Antipater kept himselfon who brought into the field above tour ground of advantage; which gave more times that number'; and though Lylimachus, than reasonable confidence to the Greek, not without loss had gotten one victory, yet many of whom departed to their homes, the enemy abounding in multitude, felt accounting the enemy to be vanquilled. not the blow fo much as might abate his This wretchlefness (incorrigible in an Arcourage. Therefore Leonatus was earneftly my of Voluntaries) was very inexculable; folicited by Antipaters friends, to make all feeing that the victories by Land were haste to the rescue. He had the government | very much defaced by losses at Sea, where of Phrygia the less, and was able to raise an the Athenians, labouring to have made Army of more than twenty thouland foot, themselves once again Masters, were put to and two thousand five hundred horse; whe- the worst. ther levied out of his Province, or appointed unto him out of the main Army, it is uncertain. Certain it is, that he was more livered unto this day. Craterus with a strong willing to take in hand the journey into Army having made great marches from Ci-Greece, than Antipater was to have him come. licia, paffed over into Europe, and coming For Cleopatra had written unto him, desiring into Thessalp, joyned himself with Antipa his presence at Pella, the chief City of Mace- ter. The forces of Leonatus, Antipater, and don, and very kindly offering her self to be Craterus being joyned in one, contained for his Wife; which letters he kept not so close ty thousand weightily armed, three thousand as had been requifite, and therefore brought light-armed men, and five thousand horse; himself into great suspition, that soon ended of which numbers the Greeks wanted a with his life. Antiphilus, chosen General by thousand and five hundred in horle; in foot, the Athenians in place of Leoftheres, hearing of his approach, forfook the fiege of Antiphilus labour to avoid the necessity of a Lamia, and took the ready way to thefe battel, until fuch time as the Towns confegreat Conquerors of Asia, with purpose to derate should return unto the Camp those give them an evil welcome home, before bands which had ftraggled from it. But Antipater and they should joyn in one. He those companies were so flow in coming

Wherefore knowing that the Theffalians) which appeared the greater by ans, but it waited for him at home, not far

The vanquished Macedonians were too

But now the fatal captivity of Greece came on, of which she never could be dehad carried away the victory : for the Thef-(over-and which caused them also to fall when their admiration was to cost them higher ground, which caused them also to fall when their admiration was to cost them back. So the Macedonians became Lords of much in real effects. the field, having little else to boast of, considering that with the loss of an hundred and Leofthenes, required of the Athenians, that thirty men, they had only purchased the they should wholly submit themselves to death of some five hundred enemies. Yet his pleasure; which being (perforce) granted, hereof was great use made: For the Greeks, he commanded them to defray the charges as not subject unto the full command of one of the War past, to pay a fine, and entertain General; and being every one defirous to a Garrison. Further, he abrogated the poderstanding their aptness to division, refused | convenient proportion of riches. to hearken to any general composition, but rather to abide the coming of their affistants, whose unreasonable carelesness beupon other mens unlikely hopes, with their own affured and prefent calamity.

ø. VI.

Of the peace granted to Athens by Antipater. of Demosthenes his death.

defiring peace upon some good terms: ne- be, or honourably carried. ceffity enforcing them to have accepted and Antipater fo urgent upon the Greeks, the Orator, and Xenocrates the Philospher, and annual to the matter were chief of this Embaliage; Phocion, as that compensately further attendance. Like the most honourable; Demades, as a strong in hazard without further attendance have been provided the most honourable. in nazara is that with a little more help they perswader (both of them well respected by Antipater ;) and Xenocrates, as one admired nad carried and per hand, and held it, un- for wildom, gravity of manners, and vertil such time as they perceived their battels tue; but all these ornaments consisting in (over-laid with multitude) retire unto the speculation, and therefore of less regard,

Antipater calling to mind the pride of preserve his own estate and City: concluded | pular estate, committing the government of to make a treaty of peace with Antipater; the City to those of most wealth, depriving who being a fubtle Artificer, and well un- of the right of fuffrage all fuch as wanted a

About nine thousand they were, all men willed every City to deal apart for it felf. of good substance, to whom the administra-The intent of his device was so apparent, tion of the Common-wealth was given; a that it was rejected: the Greek choosing number great enough to retain the name and form of a Democratie. But the rascal multitude of beggarly persons, accustomed trayed the cause. Antipater and Craterus to get their livings out of the common befreging and winning some Towns in Thef- troubles, being now debarred from bearing July, which the Army of the Confederates offices and giving their voyces, cryed out, wanted means and courage to relieve, wea- | that this was a meer Oligarchie, the violent ried that Nation from attending any longer | ulurpation of a few incroaching upon the publick right. These turbulent fellows (of whom King Philip had been wont to fay, That war to them was peace, and peace war) Antipater planted in Thrace, and gave them lands to manure; leaving as few of them as he could to molest the quiet of Athens.

To the same end (yet withal for satisfying He Thessalians falling off, all the rest his own suspitions and hatred) he caused 1 Coonfollowed feverally, and fued for Demosthenes and Hyperides, famous Orators, peace; the gentle conditions given to the with fome others, to be flain. Had the most forward, inviting such as were slack.
Only the Athenians and Ætolians held out.

death of these two, especially of Demosthernes, been forborn, the rest of his proceed-Little favour could they hope for, having ings in this action might well have passed been Authors of this tumult, and their fear for very mild; whereas now, all fuch as was not great 5 the feat of the war being either are delighted with the Orations of farfrom them. But the celerity of Antipa- Demosthenes, or have furrendred their ter confounded all their imaginations; who judgements to Authors justly admiring him, fate ftill at Athens, devising upon courses of as the most eloquent of all that ever did profecuting the War to come, which came speak and write, condemn him utterly, calto their doors before their confultation ling him a bloody Tyrant. Such grace and could find iffue. He was ready to enter up-reputation do the Learned Arts find in all on their Frontiers; they had no ability to Civil Nations, that the evil done to a man, refift, and were as heartless as friendless. All famous in one of them, is able to blemish that remained was to fend Embaffadours, any action, how good foever otherwise it

Demosthenes had taken Sanctuary in the eventhe very worst. Phocion, with Demades Temple of Neptune, in the Isle of Calauria;

there did Archias (fent with Souldiers by werful State of Athens had been Their Coun-Antipater for the purpole) find him, and try was rough and mountainous having magently perswaded him to leave the place; ny places of great sastness, into which they but not so prevailing he threatned violence. conveyed such of their goods as they most Then Demostheres entrearing a little respite, esteemed, and of their people, as were least as it had been to write fomewhat, fecretly fit for War: with the rest they fortified the took poison, which he had kept for such a strongest of their Cities, and so abode the necessity, and so died; rather choosing to do coming of the Macedonians, whom they the last execution upon himself, than to fall manfully resisted. With great obstinacy did into the hands of fuch as hated him. Only the Macedonians contend against the diffithis act of his (commendable perhaps in a culties of the places, which the Ætolians Heathen man) argued some valour in him; made good as long as their victuals held out. who was otherwise too much a coward in But when Craterus had shut up all passages. battel, howfoever valiant in perswading to & utterly debarred them of relief, then were enterprises, wherein the way to very ho- they put to a miserable choice; either to denourable ends was to be made through pal- fcend from their strong holds, and fight upfages exceeding dangerous. He loved money on equal ground, with unequal numbers, or well, and had great sums given him by the to endure the miseries of hunger and cold. Persian, to encourage him, in finding work against which they could make no long refor the Macedonians at home. Neither did sistance; or to yield themselves to the Macehe ill (me thinks) in taking from the Persians donians, who, incensed by the loss of many which loved not his Country, great reward, good Souldiers, were not like to leave to for speaking such things as tended to his stubborn enemies in places which might give Countries good; which he did not cease to confidence to rebellion. In cases of extremity procure, when the Persians were no longer much fineness of wit apprehending all cirable to give him recompence. Such as in ten- cumstances of danger, commonly dothmore der contemplation of his death can endure hurt than a blunt confideration of that only, no honourable, though true, mention of An- which at the present is in hand. These Ætolitipater, may (if they can) believe Lucian, ans did not as yet want meat; but their en-who tells us, That it was Antipaters purpole mies daily molested them: wherefore as yet to have done him great honour. Sure it is, they thought upon nothing but fighting. that he was a stedfast enemy to the Mace- | Fortune was gracious to their courage. For donians; therefore discretion required that such news came out of Asia into the Macedohe should be cut off.

ed, the chief command was left in the hands their hands of these Ætolians, giving them of Fhocion, a vertuous man, and lover of his whatfoever conditions they would ask: yet Country, yet applying himself to the neces- with purpose to call them to severe account; fity of the times; by which commendations yea, to root them out of Greece by death, or he had both at other times done the City by captivity, when once they should have much good, and now procured this peace, lettled the affairs of Alia; as they hoped and which (though grievous to free-men, yet defired. But of mens purpofes God is dispofavourable to the vanquished) he endea- ser: in whose high Counsel it was ordained, voured carefully to preferve.

ø. VII.

Macedonian Lords.

O Antipater with Craterus returned into Ction to all the civil Wars ensuing. Macedonia, where they strengthened their friendship with a new alliance; Craterus taking Fhila, the Daughter of Antipater, these. Antipater and Craterus were of Alexto Wife.

lians, whose poverty was not so easily daun- dency, and the present rule which he bare ted, as the luxurious wealth of the more po- in the parts of Europe. The other, as of all nian Camp, as made Antipater and Craterus The matters of Athens being thus order- think every hour a month, till they had rid that this poor Nation should continue a troublesome bar to the proceedings of Macedon and Greece, and (when time had ripened the next Monarchy) an open gate tolet How Craterus and Antipater were drawn the Roman Conquerors into those and other from their Ætolian wars into Asia. The Provinces. Likewise concerning the matters grounds of the first civil war between the of Asia, the reformation intended by Antipater and Craterus, was so far from taking effect, that it ferved meerly as an introdu-

The grounds of the Asiatique Expedition, which did set the world in an uproar, were anders Captains the mightiest in reputati-Shortly after they went against the Æto- on: The one, in regard of his ancient precemen the Mexander and of the whole Army. meet with a good title; and what more Next unto these had Perdiccas been; whom | could be wished? Some impediment the the advantage of his presence at the Kings death did make equal, or fuperiour, to either of thele, if not to both together. The first better with love of the people; yet if the intents of Perdiccas were, to have conforted business prospered in Macedonia, like with these two, and to have been with them enough it was that either Ptolomy would a third partner in the Government of all ; to follow of himself, or be driven to come to which purpose he entertained the discourse reason. Antigonus likewise then Governing of marriage with one of Antipaters Daugh- in Phrygia, a busic-headed man, and ill affeters. But feeling in fhort space the strength cted to the side, was to be looked into and of that gale of wind which bore him up, he | made away, for fear of further trouble. So hegan to take wing and foar quite another thought Perdiccas, and was deceived in fo way. Arideus was a very fimple man, 'yet thinking. Antigonus was as good a man of ferved well enough to wear the title of that War, of as deep a judgement, as high a foirit. Maiefty, whereof Perdiccas being Admini- and as great undertaking, as any of Alexanfrator, and hoping to become proprietary, ders Captains. His imployments had been Town on fire, into the flame whereof the fore mentioned. young men did throw themselves, after that holding authority, the match with Cleopatra ing against him,

men the best beloved, and most respected, might easily be made. So should greatness power of Ftolomy might give, who held Egypt well fortified with men, but much the practice was more severe than had been less than some of theirs, which made him also in the dayes of Alexander: the defire to the less respected. But his thoughts were as feemterrible, being very familiar with weak | proud as theirs: for he valued himfelf by Princes, and their ambitious officers, who his own worth, not by the opinions of other know no other means of preferving them- men; with careful attention had he watchselves from contempt, and of giving such a ed Perdiccas, and sounded the depth of his fiery lustre to their actions, as may dazle the purposes, which it was now high time to eyes of the beholders. How cruelly the poor discover. For Perdicess having with a jealous Greeks in the higher Asia were all put to the eye pryed into the demeanour of Antigonus, fword; and how tyrannoully the King and and finding him no way fit for his turn, Princes of Cappadocia were crucified, hath | caused him to be charged with such accusaalready been shewed. The Pifidians were tions, as might suffice to take away his life, the next who felt the wrath of these coun- especially by a Judge that sought his death. terfeit' Alexanders, One City of theirs was | This device Antigonus would not feem to utterly razed; the children fold for flaves, perceive, but prepared himself in shew to and all the rest massacred. The Isaurians, by make answer, indeed, to make escape; which this example grown desperate, when after easily he did, putting himself and his Son two orthree dayes trial they found them- Demetrius aboord of some Athenian Gallies, selves unable to continue the defence, lockt that carried him to Antipater, laden with themselves into their houses, and set the such tidings as finished the Ætolian War be-

As the coming of Antigonus made Craterus they had a while repelled the Macedonians and Antipater manifestly perceive their own danger: fo his flight gave Perdiccas to un-These exploits being performed, the derstand that his intentions were laid open, Army had no other work than to fift the and must now be justified by the sword. ashes of the burnt City for gold and silver 3 Therefore he prepared as fast as he could, but Perdiceas had bufiness of greater impor- not only for defence, but (as having on his tance troubling his brains. Nothing was fide the Kings name) to meet with them at more contrary to his ends, than to fit still home, who were nothing flack in providing without employment, letting his Souldiers to encounter him. Ptolomy being advertised grow idle about him, whilft others grew of these proceedings, and considering how great, and took deep root in their feveral nearly they concerned him, fided with An-Provinces. He purposed therefore to trans- tipater. To his Government of Egypt he had Port his forces into Europe, under pretence annexed the Dominion of Cyrene, not withof bringing the King into Macedonia, the feat out confent of the chief Citizens; and now of his Ancestors, and head of the Empire. in the midst of these garboyls he celebrated The Kings presence would make the Offices the funeral of Alexander with great solemniof his Vice-Roys (during the time) actual- ty, purchasing thereby to himself much good ly void; Antipater with Craterus being once will and many partakers, notwithstanding in case of private men, and only Perdiceas the terrible report of the Kings Army com-

s. VIII.

o. VIII.

690

upon Ptolomy; leaving Eumenes to keep to codiles, a miserable spectacle eventosuch as his use, against Craterus and Antipater, the were out of danger; such as were strong parts of Asia bordering upon Europe.

ther make head against those who were to come out of Greece with a great number, and of more able men than Ptolomy could bring. Perhaps he thought to make a against their General, giving liberty to their quick end with Ptolomy; or believed that Graterus would not be ready for him foon evil thoughts of their hearts. While they enough. Sure it is, that he took a bad course, were thus murmuring, news came from and made it worse with ill handling.

many to his party, without help of any bad fion on those who fell into his hands alive, arts. Perdiceas contrariwise was full of infolency, which never failes to be rewarded with hatred, which is truly defined, An affe- on his fide: and finally, fent their bones and ction founded upon opinion of an unjust contempt. The whole ftory of his proceedings in Egypt is not worth relation: for he did mon Souldiers, but made the Captainsfall nothing of importance; but (as a wilful to mutiny, thinking it unreasonable to make man) tyred his followers, and wasted them in war upon so vertuous and honourable a hard enterprises without success. His most person, to fulfill the pleasure of a Lordy forceable attempt was upon a little Town, ambitious man, using them like slaves. The called the Camels Wall: thither he marched | fedition growing ftrong, wanted only a head, by night, with more haste than good speed; which it quickly found. Python was there, for Ptolomy preventing him, did put himself who inwardly hated Perdiccus, for the difinto the place, where behaving himself not grace which he had suffered by his procureonly as a good Commander, but as a front ment, after the victory upon the rebellious Souldier, he gave the foil to Perdiccas, Greeks. Python had lived in honourable place causing him to retire with loss, after a vehe- about Alexander; he was in the division of ment, but vain, assault continued one whole the Provinces made Governour of Media; he day. The night following, Perdiccas made had followed Perdiccas, and being in all another journy, (which was his last) and things (the Protectorship excepted) equal to came to the divisions of Nilus, over against him, had nevertheless been scornfully used Memphis. There with much difficulty he by him, which now he requited. Drawing began to pass over his Army into an Island, together a hundred of the Captains, and a where he meant to incamp. The current good part of the Horse, which confilted of was strong, the water deep, and hardly the Gentry, (the footmen having declared foordable. Wherefore he placed his Ele- themselves before) he entred the Tent of phants above the passage, to break the violence of the stream, and his horse-men beneath it, to take up such as were carried Such end had the proud mif-governing auaway by swiftness of water. A great part of thority of Perdiceas. He might have lived his Army being arrived on the further as great as any, could he have suffered any as bank, the channel began to wax deep; so great as himself; yea, peradventure master that whereas the former companies had of all, had he not been too masterly over waded up to the chin, they who should have those which were already his. followed could find no footing. Whether this came by the rifing of the water, or flitting away of the ground; (the earth being himself of things past, as not having been broken with the feet of fo many Men, Horfe, Author, or given cause of the War, and and Elephants) no remedy there was, but was eafily believed: the favour of the such as had passed must repass again, as well Army being such toward him, that needs as they might: for they were too weak for the enemy, and could not be relieved by Perdiccas his voyage into Egypt, o his death. their fellows. With great confusion therefore they committed themselves to the Ri-Perdicess, uncertain which way to bend his main power, at length refolved to fet perished, a thousand were devoured by Croand could fwim, recovered the Camp; many It may feem strange, that he did not ra- were carried down the stream, and driven to the contrary bank, whereby they fell into the hands of their enemies.

This misfortune exasperated the Souldiers tongues, which long time had concealed the Ptolomy, which did fet them in an up-roar. Ptolomy by his fweet behaviour allured Ptolomy had not only shewed much compasbut performed all rights of funeral to the dead carkasses, which the River had cast upashes to be interred by their Kinsmen or Friends. This did not only move the com-Perdiccas, where without further circumstance they all ran upon him, and slew him.

The next day Ptolomy came into the Camp, where he was joyfully received; he excused they would have made him Protector in the were ferviceable, and training them well up. against Perdiccas.

CHAP. III.

CHAP. III

hereafter.

ø. IX.

Victories of Eumenes in the lower Afia.

mand from Perdiceas to be affiftant to Eu-room of Perdiccas. But this he refused. It Not without great need. For when upon adwas an Office fit for one that would feek to vertifement of the great preparations made increase his greatness with his trouble. Pto- by Craterus and Antipater (who had newly lowy was well enough already; wherefore, passed the Hellesport) for the invasion of his for his own quiet he forbare to accept it, Provinces, he willed Neoptolemus to come to and for their well-deferving of him, he pro- him with all his power; Neoptolemus did (inand to the annual deed advance, but in hostile manner, though to Arideus the Captain, who having had unprovoked, prefented him Battel. Neoptofome companies of Souldiers, to furnish with lemus had secretly covenanted with Antipatheir attendance the solemnities of Alexan- ter to lay open the way for him to the Conders Funerals, did with them adhere to him quest of Asia, which now intending to perform, he was shamefully disappointed. For, In the midst of these businesses came news though his foot-men, being all Macedonians. of two great Victories obtained by Eume- had much the better, and prevailed far upon nes; which news, had they arrived two or Eumenes his Battels ; yet were his horse drithree daies fooner, had been entertained ven out of the field, and himfelf compelled, with joyful acclamations; and would have with a few of them, to run away, leaving given fuch reputation to Perdiccas, as had naked the backs of his Macedonian foot-men caused both his private maligners to to be charged by Eumenes, who forced them continue his open flatterers, and his open in such wife, that casting down their Pikes, enemies to have accepted any tolerable they cryed for mercy, and gladly took their composition. But these good tidings coming outh to do him saithful service. Antibater in ill time, when death had stopped the and Craterus endeavoured with many goodcars which would have given them welcome, ly promifes to draw Eumenes into their fofound bad acceptance, as shall be shewed ciety, who contrariwise offered himself as a mean of reconciliation, between Perdiceas and Craterus, whom he dearly loved; profeffing withall his hatred to Antipater, and confrant faith to the cause which he had undertaken to maintain.

Whilst these negotiations were on foot, DEfore we proceed in the relation of Neoptolemus came with his broken crew to Othings happening about the person of Antipater, and his Associates, vilifying Euthe King, it is meet that we speak of those menes, and calling him a Scribe (at which businesses in the lower Asia, which were foolish railing they laught) but extolling the handled by Eumenes with notable dexteri- virtue of Craterus (as well he might) with ty, whilft Perdiccas was occupied in the high commendations; affuring them, that if Egyptian Wars. Alcetas the Brother of Per- Craterus did but once appear, or that his diccus, and Neoptolemus, had received com- voice were but heard by any Macedonian in Eumenes his Camp, the Victory was won ; menes, and to follow his directions. But Alce- for they would all forthwith revolt unto tas made flat answer that he would not; al- him. Earnestly therefore he defired them to ledging the backwardness of his men to bear give him aid against Eumenes, and especial-Arms against so great a person as Antipater, | Iy requested that Craterus might have the and a man fo much honoured as Craterus. leading of the Army to be fent. Their own Neoptolemus was content to make fair flew, affections did eafily lead them to condescend but inwardly he repined at the precedency to his motion: a good hope there was, that given to Eumenes, as thinking himself the the reputation of Craterus might prevail as better man. Eumenes discovering, through much as the force which he drew along. For the counterfeited looks of Neoptolemus, the he had in the midst of Alexander's vanities, mischief lurking in his heart, wifely dissem | when others (imitating their King) betook bled with him, in hope to win him by gentle themselves to the Persian fashions of garbehaviour, and fweet language, that com- ments and customs, retained the ancient monly are loft, when bestowed upon arro- Macedonian form of behaviour, and appargant creatures. Yet the better to fortifie rel; whereby he became very gracious with himfelf, that he might stand upon his own the common Souldiers, who beheld these strength, he raised out of the Countries unnew tricks of Asia with discontented eyes, as der his jurisdiction, about six thousand reproachful and derogatory to the manhorse, giving many privileges to such as ners of their native Country. So Antipater

diceas at bay, and to joyn with Ptolomy. Crathe deceitful iffue of frivolous hopes. Then terus used great celerity, to have taken En | was it high time for Craterus (having failed menes revelling (as he hoped) according to in surprising them as enemies) to discover the common fathion of Captains, after a himfelf to his old friends, and fellow-foulgreat Victory. But he had a wary and well-diers, of whom he could fee none. Phenix advised enemy to encounter, who kept good a Tenidian, and Artabazus a Persian, had the efpial upon him, and with much wildom leading of that fide, who, mindful of their fore-faw all that was to be feared, and the instructions, began to give battel upon him. means of prevention, which his courage did with such countenance as told him his error, not fail to execute. Eumenes was not igno which to redeem, he bade his men fight, and rant that Craterus was able to defeat him redeem the day, and take the spoil to themwithout Battel, yea without stroke; him selves; but the Bear, whose skin he sells, is therefore he feared more than the Army following him (yet the Army following him) not yet caught. The ground whereon the following him (yet the Army following him) was fuch, as much exceeded his own foot- the horse, who encountred very roughly on men, but was inferiour in horfe-men) and all parts: especially about Eumenes and Nethought it more uncasie to keep the Mace- optolemus; who, as soon as they had discovedonians from revolting to him, than from red one another, could not contain themknowing him. Hereupon he took in hand a felves, but with great rage met body to boftrange piece of work, which desperation of dy, and letting loose their bridles, grappled all courses else taught him, and wise manage- so violently together, that their horses ran ing prosperoully accomplished. He gave out from under them, leaving both of them tumreports, that Neoptolemus was returned bling on the ground. Neoptolemus rofe first with fuch company as he could gather to- up, but Eumenes had his fword first drawn, gether, and had gotten Pigres (a Captain of wherewith he houghed the other, caufing no great estimation, who lay not far off) to him to fall down and fight upon one knee. joyn with him. Having animated his men In this conflict they received many wounds, against Neoptolemus, whom he knew to be but Neoptolemus giving slight ones, took such despised and hated among them, (as having as were deadly, by which he died in the been vanquished by some of them, and for- place, and was there (being half-dead, halffaken others in plain field, whilft they vali- alive) ftripped by his mortal enemy, whole antly fought in his quarrel) he took great revilings he requited, lying even at the last care to keep them from receiving any in- gasp, with one wound in the groin, dangetelligence of the enemies matters. Peremp- rous had it not wanted force. The death of toilry he commanded that no messenger nor Neoptolemus caused his followers to run trumpeter should be admitted; and not here- away upon the spurre, and seek shelter bewith fatisfied, he placed against Craterus no hind the Battels of their foot. They were one Macedonian, nor any other that much nothing hotly pursued. For Eumenes pained would have regarded him, had he been himself to carry succour to his left wing, known: but Thracians, Cappadocians, and which he suspected much to be distressed but found accompanied with the same for more highly of none, than of Perdiceas and tune, that had affilted him when he fought himself. To these also he gave in charge, in person. Craterus had gallantly born that without speaking or hearkning to any word, they should run upon the enemy, and of Artabazus and Phenix with more cougave him no leifure to fay, or do any thing rage than force; holding it nothing agreeof Eumenes every way prepared for the he was trampled under foot by many that of Eumenes every way prepared for the ne was trampled under foot by many fight, the other wearied with long journies, knew him not, and so perished unknown, till it took the way toward Cilicia, to hold Per- which over-haftily they had made, feeking but fight. The directions which he gave to able with his honour to retire and protract others, he did not fail to execute in his own the fight, when he was charged by men of perion: but placing himself in the right little estimation or note. Otherwise it is wing of his Battel, opposite to Neoptolemus not unlikely that he might have either carwho (as he understood) conducted the left ried the day, or preserved himself to a better wing on the contrary fide, he held the Mace- adventure by giving ground, as the reft donians arranged in good order, and ready (when he and Neoptolemus were flain) didto charge the enemy as foon as the distance But whilst he fought to preserve his reputawould give leave. A rifing piece of ground tion, he loft his life by the fall of his horfe, lay between them, which having accorded, or his falling from his horse, through force the Armies discovered each other: but that of a wound received; upon which accident to the place where he lay, made great la King Perdiceas, Philips elder Brother. mentation, as having alwaies loved and ho-

CHAP. III.

and fled toward Antipater.

ø. X.

tence, than to put it in execution.

Quarrels between Eurydice the Queen, and Python the Protector. Python resigns his office, into which Antipater is chosen.

it was too late to know it. Eumenes coming | Kingdom of Macedon, being the only Son of

This Cyna was a warlike woman; the had mentation, of whose death he was now led Armies, and (as a true Sister of Alexanbecome the instrument. The vanquished Ar- der) fighting hand to hand with Caria my entertained a treaty of peace with Eu- Queen of the Phrygians, a Virago, like unto morse, making shew of willingness to become her self, had slain her. She brought up this his followers; but their intent was only to Eurydice in the same unwomanly Art of refresh themselves, which (by his permissi- War, who now among the Souldiers began on) having done, they stole away by night, to put in practice the rudiments of her education, to the small contentment of Python, This Battel fought within ten daies of the that could not brook her too curious interformer, wan to Eumenes more reputation medling in his charge. Whether it were fo. than good will: for his own Souldiers took that Python had some purpose to advance the death of Craterus heavily; and the Ar- the Son of Alexander by Roxane, to the Kingmies lying further off were inraged with the dom, (as once he had fought to do;) or news. But other matters there were which whether the Queen did suspect him of some incensed men against him, besides the death such intent; or whether only desire of rule of Craterus, whereof it manifeltly appeared, caused her to quarrel with him; quarrel she that he was as forry as any that pretended did, which disturbed the proceeding against greater heavines. His Army wanted pay, Eumener. The Army having shaken off such This was a great fault; which he wisely a rank-rider as Perdiceas, would not afteramended, by giving to them the spoil of ward be reined with a twined thread. Python fuch Towns as were ill-affected to him. So bearing himself upon his office, tookupon him heeredeemed the love of his own men, who to give directions in the Kings name, which of their meer motion appointed unto him the Queen did oftentimes controll using the a Guard for defence of his person. Others same name with more authority, and better were not so easie to be reconciled. They liking of the Souldiers. Python seeing this, who had been Traitors to Perdiceas, hated | would needs refign his office, whether upon him for his faithfulness, as greatly, as they weariness of the contentions daily growing, thought he would hate them for their falf- or on purpose to bring the Queen into enhood; neither found they any fairer way of vy, it is uncertain. Perhaps he thought, that excusing their late revolt, than by accusing now being the far worthiest man in the and condemning the fide which they had Camp, he should be intreated to retain the forfaken. Wherefore they proclaimed En- | place, and have his authority confirmed, or menes a Traitor, and condemned him to dye: (as might be) increased, were it but for but it was an easier matter to give that fen- want of a fit Successor. Eurydice was nothing forry at this course; for now she thought to manage the affairs of the Empire at her own will, being freed from the troublesome affiftance of a Protector. But the Souldiers disappointed both her and Python of their contrary expectations; chusing Antipater, the only powerful man of Alexanders Cap-Then and Aridaus being chosen Pro- tains, then living, into the room of Python. tectors of King Aridaus, and the chil-Hereat the Queen fretted exceedingly, and dren of Alexander; took the way to Afia began to deal earnestly with the Macedonithe less, conducting the Army thorow sy- ans, that they should acknowledge no Lord ria. Of these two, Python was the greater in save only the King their Soveraign. Yet she reputation, yet far too weak to sustain so failed of her purpose, being hindred (as may important a Charge. For Eurydice, wife to feem) by three things: the apparent weak-King Arideus, was come to her husband, a ness of her husband; the growth of Alexan-Lady of a masculine spirit, well understand- ders children, who (though born of outing what the was or thould be, and thinking landish women) were bred in the Macedoher self able to support the weight which nian Camp; and the mightiness of Antipafortune laid upon her foolish husband, being ter, who commanding a great Army neat at due to her own title. Her Mother Cyna, Si- hand, arrived in few daies at the Camp, and fter to Alexander, by her Father King Fhi- enforced Eurydice to hold her felf content. lip, was married (as hath been shewed) to Antipater was of such power, that he needed Amyntas, who was the right Heir to the not to work by any close devices, as Per-the Governours of Provinces that remained not. Eumenes perceiving the irrecoverable alive, acknowledged him their better; yea mischief which this traiterous practice had many of them he displaced out of hand, put- brought upon him, pursued the villain, and many of them see displaced out of management the cut him off before he could thrust himself intook the King, Queen, and Princes along to the troops of Antigonus, and boast of his with him into Macedonia, leaving Antigonus treachery. This was some comfort to En-General of the Royal Army: to whom for menes in the loss of that Battel, which difhis good fervices done, and to be done abled him utterly to keep the field, and left against Eumenes, he gave the rule of Susiana, it very hard for him to make a safe retrain. befides his former Provinces, and committed Yet one thing he did which much amazed into his hands the Government of Asia during that War.

ø. XI.

of Eumenes, and besiegeth him in Nora: He vanquisheth other followers of Per-

TEre begins the greatness of Antigonus, whose power in few years over-growing the rest, wanted little of spreading it self heaps of earth as mountains over them, and over the whole Monarchy. He was to make fo went his way. As this bold adventure bred War upon Eumenes, Alcetus, the Brother, and in the Macedonians (returned to their Camp) Attalus the Brother-in-law to Perdiccus: work enough to keep his Army imployed news which Menander (who was fettolook in the publick fervice, till fuch time as he unto their carriages) brought and published might find occasion to make use of it in his among them, entired them to love him as own business. The first of these which he their honourable friend. He had found Meundertook, was Eumenes, with whom Alcetus and Attalus refused to joyn, having unfeafonably contended with him in time of of many Nations, the rewards of their long common danger about the chief place. Eumenes had an Army strong in number, cou- but fearing lest such a purchase should prove rage, and all needful provisions; but obedi- a heavy burden to him, whose chief hope ent only at discretion. Therefore Antigonus confisted in swift expedition, he gave secret tryed all waies of corrupting his Souldiers; tempting first the whole Army with letters: tains, whilst he detained his men (whomauwhich practice failing by the cunning of En- | thority could not have restrained) by this menes (who made shew as if he himself had | sleight, setting them to bait their horses scattered abroad those letters to try the The Macedonians extolled him for this faith of his men) he dealt apart with such courtesie, as a noble Gentleman, that had Captains as he thought most easie to be won. Of these Captains one rebelled, breaking out too hastily before any help was near him, yet looking so carelesly to himself, that | wives : but Antigonus told them, that he had he and his were surprised, when he thought | not forborn to do this out of any good will his enemies far off. Another follower of Eu- to them; but out of meer subtilty had avoidmenes (or rather of good fortune, which he ed those precious fetters, which would have thought now to be in company with Anti | hindred his speedy flight. He told them true. gonus) kept his treachery fecret, referving it For Eumenes did not only think all carriefor the time of execution. Upon confidence ges to be over burdenfome, but the number of the treason which this falle man, Apolloni- of his men to be more troublesome than des, had undertaken, Antigoms presented available in his intended course. Wherefore battel to Eumenes; in the heat whereof Apollo- he fent them from him as falt as he could nides, General of the horse to Eumenes, fled wishing them to shift for themselves; and over to the contrary fide, with such as he retaining only five hundred horse, and two could get to follow him: but was closely hundred foot. When he had wearied Anti-dicess had done: he had no concurrents, all followed by some, whose company he desired his enemies, and (though a matter of fmall importance) caused Antigonus himself to admire his high resolution. It was held no fmall part of the Victory, to get possession of the dead bodies. Eumenes, whilst Antigonus, Antigonus Lieutenant of Asia, wins a Battel held him in chase, turned out of the way, and fetching a compass, returned to the place where the Battel had been fought; there he burned (according to the manner of the time) the bodies of his own men, and interred the bones and ashes of the Captains and common Souldiers apart, raising up great admiration of his brave spirit: so the nander in an open Plain, careless, as after an assured Victory, and loaden with the spoils fervice; all which he might have taken: warning to Menander to fly to the mounforborn when it lay in his power to strip them out of all their wealth, and make their children flaves, and to ravish their quired restitution of his Provinces, which him in his Office. could not be granted without Antipaters how great foever, is infufficient.

ø. XII.

Ptolomy wins Syria and Phoenicia. The death of Antipater.

7 Hilft these things were in doing, V the rest of the Princes lay idle, ragonus a while in following him up and ther feeking to enjoy their Governments for down he came to Nora : where again keep- the present, than to confirm or enlarge aowii, ne about him than neceffity re- them. Only Ptolomy looking abroad, wan nigno make good the place, he lovingly all Spria and Phanicia: an action of great quired to make the reft. Nora was a little for- importance, but not remarkable for any tres in the borders of Lycaonia and Cappa- circumstance in the managing. He sent docia, so strongly situated, that it seemed a Lieutenant with an Army, who quickly impregnable, and fo well victualled and took Laomedon prisoner, that ruled there fored with all necessaries, that it might hold by appointment of Antipater, and formeroutformany years. Thither did Antigonus ly of Perdiccas; but (as may feem) withfollow him, with more defire to make him out any great strength of Souldiers, fat his friend, than to vanquish him in War. To from Assistants, and vainly relying upon this purpose he entertained parley with him, the authority which had given him that but in vain. For, whereas Antigonus offer- Province, and was now occupied with greaedhim pardon and his love; Eumenes re- ter cares, than with feeking to maintain

695

Antipater was old and fickly, defirous of consent. Then was Nora closed up; where rest, and therefore contented to let Antigo-Antigonus leaving sufficient strength for con- nus pursue the dispatch of those businesses tinuance of the fiege, took his journey into in Asia. He had with him Polysperchon, one Pilidia against Alcetus and Attalus, with of the most ancient of Alexanders Captains. whom he made fhort work. He came upon that had lately suppressed a dangerous inthem unexpected, and feifed on passages, surrection of the Atolians, which Nation which wanted not men, but such a Captain as Eumenes, to have defended them. Alcetus and Attalus, as they had been too they had gained, whilst Autipater was fecure before his coming, fo were they too abroad in his Cilician Expedition. In this adventrous, in fighting at the first fight, Polysperchon, Antipater did repose great confiupon all disadvantages: and their folly was dence; so far forth, that (suspecting the youth attended with suitable event. Attalus with of his own Son Cassander of insufficiency in so many principal Captains was taken; Alcetus | great a charge) he bequeathed unto him on fled to the City of Termesus, where the love his death-bed the Government of Macedon of the younger fort toward him was so ve- and Greece, together with his office of Prohement, that stopping their ears against all tectorship. So Antipater died, being fourperswassions of the ancient men, they needs score years old, having alwaies travelled in would hazard their lives, and their Coun- the great affairs of mighty Princes, with fuch try in his defence. Yet this availed him no- reputation, that Alexander in all his greatthing: for the Governours of the Town nefs was jealous of him, and the successors having fecretly compounded with Antigo- of Alexander did either quietly give place mis, caused the young men to fally out; and unto him; or were unfortunate in making using the time of advantage, they with their oppositions. In his private qualities, he was servants did set upon Alcetus, who unable to a subtle man, temperate, frugal, and of a Phirelift, flew himself. His dead body was con- losophical behaviour, not unlearned, as haveyed to Antigonus, and by him barbarously ving been Scholar to Aristotle, and written torn, was cast forth without burial. When some Histories. He had been much molest-Antigonus was gone, the young men interred ed by Olympias, Alexanders Mother; whom the carkass with solemn funerals, having after the death of her Son, he compelled to once been minded to fet on fire their own abstain from coming into Macedonia, or en-Town in revenge of his death. Such favour termedling in matters of State: yea, at his hadhe purchased with courteous liberality. own death he gave especial direction, that But, to make an able General, one virtue, no woman should be permitted to deal in the administration of the Empire. But this precept was foon forgotten; and yet, ere long, by forrowful experience approved to have been found and good.

s. XIII.

ø. XIII.

of Cassander against him.

Olysperchon was very skilfull in the Art tyrannous power which they had formerly of War, having long time been Appren-exercised over the principal Citizens, were tice in that occupation; other qualities, kept in order, obeying their betters perforce. requisite in so high an Office as he under-Besides all these helps, Cassander had the went, either Nature had not given to him, secret love of Queen Eurydice, who had in or Time had robbed him of them. He man- private rendred him fuch curtefie, as was aged his business more formally than wifely, due only to her husband. But neither the as a man of a fecond wit, fitter to affift, than Queens favour, nor all his other possibilities. command in chief. At the first entrance gave him confidence to break out into open upon the stage, he called to counsel all his rebellion; because he saw Polysperchon much friends, wherein for weighty confiderations reverenced among the Macedonians, and (as they who weighed not the contrary rea- ftrong enough to suppress him, before he fons held them) the Queen Olympias was could have made head. Therefore he made revoked out of Epirus into Macedon, that shew of following his pleasures in the Counthe presence of Alexanders mother might try, and calling many of his friends about countenance and strengthen their proceed- him, under pretence of hunting, adviled ings. For, the condition of the times re- with them upon the fafeft course, and most quiring, that the Governours of Provinces free from all fuspicion. The necessity was abroad should keep greater Armies, than apparent of raising an Army, before the buwere needful or ease to be retained about siness was set on foot; and to do this, opthe person of the King in Macedonia; it portunity presented him with fair means, feemed expedient, that the face of the Ptolomy had by fine force, without any com-Court should be filled with all Majesty, mission, annexed syria to his Government of that might give authority to the Injuncti- Egypt and Cyrene: this was too much either ons from thence proceeding, and by an aw- for the King to trust him with, or for himto ful regard contain within the limited part with. Intigonus upon the first news bounds of duty such as could not by force of Antipaters death, began to lay hold have been kept in order, being ftrong, and upon all that he could get, in such fort, that lying too far off.

imaginary dangers and out of fight, whileft therefore stood in need of a civil War; present mischiefs lay unregarded in their which Cassander well noted, and presumed bosomes. Cassander, the Son of Antipater, withall, That the friendship which had was not able to discover that great sufficiency passed between his Father and them, would in Polysperchon, for which his father had re- avail him somewhat. Whereupon he seposed in him so much considence: neither cretly dispatched messengers to them both; could he discern such odds in the quality of and within a little while conveyed himself himself and Polysperchon, as was in their for- on a sudden over the Hellespont, that he tune. He was left Captain of one thousand; might in person advance the business with which Office by practice of those times was greater speed. Much perswasion is needless of more importance, than the title now in winning a man to what he defireth feems to imply. He should thereby have Antigonus coveting nothing more, than to been as Camp-master, or Lieutenant general sind Polysperchon work, by raising some comto the other: a place no way satisfying his motion in Greece. Yet (as formalities must ambition, that thought himself the better not be neglected) Cassander did very earnman. Therefore he began to examine his eftly press him, by the memory of his Faown power, and compare it with the forces ther, and all requifite conjurations, to affilt likely to oppose him. All that had relyed him in this enterprise; telling him, that on his Father, were his own assured, especi- Ptolomy was ready to declare for them, and ally fuch as commanded the Garrisons be- urging him to a speedy dispatch. Antigonus flowed in the principal Cities of Greece, on the other fide repayed him with the The like hope was of the Magistrates, and same coin, saying, That for his own sake, and others of principal authority, in those Com- his dead Fathers, whom he had very dearly mon-weals, whose forms had been correct- loved, he would not fail to give him all ed by Antipater, that they would follow the fide, and draw in many partakers: it conof Polysperchon, who succeeded unto Anti-cerned these men in their own particular to pater in the Protectorship. The insurrection adhere unto the Captains, by whom their faction was up-held; and by whom the rascal multitude, covetous of re-gaining the he manifestly discovered his intent of ma-Such care was taken for prevention of king himself Lord of all Asia. These two manner of fuccour. Having thus feasted one counsel against injurious friends. Of this another with words, they were nothing fault nature is not guilty; she hath taught anounce and the common means, lead- the arm to offer it felf unto manifest loss in ing to their feveral ends.

ø. XIV.

The unworthy courses held by Polysperchon, for the keeping down of Cassander.

Reat necessity there was of timely provision. For, Polysperchon needed no other instructions to inform him of Cassanders drift, than the news of his departure. He was not ignorant of the ready disposition, which might be found in Antigonus and Ptolomy, to the strengthening of rebellion; and well he knew that one principal hope of Cassander was reposed in the confidence of fuch as ruled in the Grecian Estate. Therefore (loving to work circumspectly) he called another Council, wherein it was concluded, That the popular form of Government should be erected in all the Cities of Greece; the Garrisons withdrawn; and that all Magistrates and principal Men, into whose hands Antipater had committed of the great Commotions raised in Athens by the fupreme authority, should forthwith be either flain or banished. This was a fure way to diminish the number of Cassanders friends, and to raife up many enemies to him in all quarters. Yet hereby was disclosed both an unthankful nature in Polysperchon, and a factious malice in his adherents. For, how could be be excused of extreme ingracould be faid in their defence, who fought | pleafing to their hafty defires. to destroy many worthy men, friends to civil Wars, and ancient hatred called to that he should find means to thrust some defence of the head: They are deprayed affections, which render men fentible of their own particular, and forgetful of the more general good, for which they were created.

699

The decree, whereby the Greeks were presented with a vain shew of liberty, ran under the Kings name; but fo, as one might eafily difcern, that Polysperchon had guided his pen. For the main point was, That they should follow such directions, as Polysperchon gave, and treat with him about all difficulties. In the rest it contained such a deal of kindness, as proceeding on a sudden from those who had kept them in hard subjection, might well appear to have some other root than the pretended good will; and was of it felf too base and unfit for a King to use toward his conquered Subjects, and often-fubdued Rebels.

ø. XV.

Polysperchons decree. The death of Pho-

Evertheless the Athenians with immoderate joy entertained this happyfeeming Proclamation, and fought how to put it in execution without further delay. But Nicanor, Captain of the Garrison, which titude, that for hatred of the son went about | kept one of their Havens, called Munychia, to dishonour the Fathers actions, whose only | in the lower part of the Town, would needs bounty had inabled him to do it? Or what | take longer time of deliberation, than was

Nicanor, as a trufty follower of Cassander, the State, by whom the Greeks were held was by him shifted into the place, and Merestrained from stirring against the Mace- nillus (that was Captain there before) disdonians? and in opposition to their private charged, when Antipater was newly dead. enemy, gave the rule of things to base Com- His coming to Athens was no way grateful panions, and fuch as naturally maligned the to the Citizens, who foon after hearing the Empire? But as in mans body, through news of Antipater's death, cried out upon finews newly iffuing from one branch, a | Phocion, faying, That he had fufficient intelfinger is more vexed by inflammation of his ligence of that accident, and might, by adnext neighbour, than by any diftemper in vertifing them in due time, have put into the contrary hand: so in bodies politick, their hands a fair opportunity of thrusting the humours of men, subdivided in faction, out the Macedonians. But these exclamaare more inraged by the disagreeable qua- tions argued no more than a desire to shake lities of such as curb them in their nearest off the Macedonian yoke. Far more griepurpoles, than they are exasperated by the vously would they have been offended, had general opposition of such as are divided they known the instructions which Cassander from them in the main trunk. Hereby it had given to Nicanor, and his resolution to comes to pass, that contrary religions are follow them. It was concluded, That he invited to help against neighbour Princes; should not only retain Mungchia, any injunbordering enemies drawn in, to a part in ction to the contrary notwithstanding; but companies companies into Piraus, and fortifie that alfo, to his own hands, than leave in theirs; ver which was the principal Haven, against the rather wished in theirs, than in cassanders. high Town. How to accomplish this, he His Son Alexander, not ignorant of this, made rather wanted some reasonable pretence, fair shew to the Athenians, and spentmuch than good ability. But the Athenians were labour in communing with Nicanor, but fufnot long in giving him sufficient cause to do fered not them, for whom he seemed to lathat, which he would have done without any cause given. They defired him to come unto their Council, affembled in the Pireus, pleasure they conceived against him, they there to confider of the Kings Proclamation: whither upon Phocions word and fafe his office. This was done with much tumult: conduct he came, and earneftly preffed them | banished men and strangers thrusting themto hold with Cassander in the War which selves into the assembly of the Citizens, who was ready to break forth. Contrariwife, distracted with fundry passions, growing out they urged him first of all, to make them of their present misfortunes, thought every masters of their own, which how to use, they one that best could inveigh against things might confult afterwards. Each of them past, a most likely man to find some remedy refuling to condescend unto the others de- for the evil threatning them. In this hurly. mand; the Athenians (who did alwayes burly was Alexander deviling how he might measure justice by profit, yet feldomethri- come to some good point of composition ved by that course) practised with Dercillus, with Nicanor, and held much privy consea Captain following Polysperchon, and then rence with him; which he could not softlying near at hand, that he should enter in- cretly carry, but that his negotiation was to the Town, and take Nicanor prisoner. But discovered, whereby the uproare in the Phocion, who then governed in Athens, a Town was fo far increased, that Phocion with man very unlike to the rest of the Citizens, many of his friends were accused, and driven being nothing pleased with such a trick of to seek safeguard of their lives by slight. So politick dishonesty, did quietly suffer him they came to Alexander, who entertained to depart and fave himfelf.

taking Pirausnot as following now the pro- to take them into his protection. ject of Cassander, but profecuting his own just revenge. He levied as many Souldiers as he ready to enter with an Army into Attica. could, and drew them closely into Munychia, Thither came Phocion with his companions, which done, he issued into Piraus, took it, hoping well that the letters which they and intrenched himself therein, to the ex- brought, and their own deferts, (having alceeding discomfort of the Atherians, who wayes been friends to the Macedonians as far lately impatient of his keeping the one Ha- as the good of their Country gave leave) ven, faw him now mafter of both. Alexan- should be enough to get patronage to their der, the fon of Polysperchon, came thither innocency Besides all this, Dinarchus a Coinshortly after with an Army. Then were the thian, Polysperchons familiar friend, went Citizens in great hope of recovering all, and along with them (in an evil hour) who proaddressed themselves unto him; who made mised to himself and them great favour, by fair shews, intending meer mischief, which means of his acquaintance. But Polyperchin they perceived not, being blinded with the was an unstable man, very earnest in whathe vain Epiftles of his Father, and of Olympias took in hand, yet, either for want of judgethe old Queen. Olympias, taking upon her ment in following them, or of honelty in to command, before the durst well adven- holding the best of them, easily changing his ture to return into Macedon, had perempto- intended courses, and doing things by the rily charged Nicanor to reftore to the Athe- halves, which made him commonly fail of nians the places which he held: but he good fuccess. For fear of Cassander he had would first consider more of the matter. Po- offered wonderful kindness to the Albeni-Inferction had further ordained, that the Isle ans this had caused them to love him: out of of samos should be rendred unto them: a their love he gathered hope of deceiving goodly offer, had it accorded with his power them, which made him to change his mind, and meaning. He was (indeed) so far from and seek how to get into his own hands purposing to let them have samos, that as those keys, with which Cassander held them yet he did not throughly intend to let them fast lockt up: finding himself disappointed have themselves. The commodity of their of this purpose, and suspected as a falle Havens was fuch, as he would rather get in- dishonourable man, he stood wavering bebour to intermeddle with the business. Hereupon the Citizens grew jealous, and the difpoured out upon Phocion, depriving him of them gently, and gave them his letters of Nicanor hereupon began to devise upon commendation to his Father, desiring him unto the popular faction, which was then the virtue of their Ancestors. grown to be Master of that City. And in good time for this purpose were the Athenian Embassadours come, treading (as one were fent to accuse. These had solemn audience given to them in the Kings presence, who was attended by many great Lords, and for oftentations fake was glorified too little to change Aridaus into Alexander: upon them, was (for honours fake) referred Cassander had many friends.

Polysperchon was in the Country of Phois,

tween the contrary allurements of profit and gifts, howfoever importunately thrust upreputation. To keep the Athenians perforce on him; resting well contented with his at his devotion, would indeed have done honest poverty: wherein he lived about well: but the effecting of this began to grow fourscore years, and then was compelled by desperate; and many Towns of importance the unjust judgment of wicked men to drink in Greece, began to cast their eyes upon his that poison, which by just judgment of the proceeding in that action. Wherefore he righteous God, fo infected the City of thought it the wifest way to redeem their Athens, as from that day forwards it never good opinion, by giving all contentment brought forth any worthy man refembling may fay) upon Fhocions heels, whom they of Polysperchon his vain Expedition against Caffander.

ø. XVI.

Ot long after these things were done, cassander, with such forces as Antigowith all exteriour shews of Majesty; yet all nus lent him, entred into Piraus; which news drew Polysperchon headlong into Atfor he did nothing there, but either laugh tica, with a great Army, but so ill victualled. or chafe, as he saw others do. For begin-that he was fain to depart without any ning of the business, Polysperchon commanded thing done. Only he had given some imthat Dinarchus should be tortured and slain. | pediment to the enemy; who, not contented This was enough to testifie his hearty af- with defending what he held, began to look fection to the Commonalty of Athense, in out, and made new purchases abroad. Findthat he spared not his old acquaintance for | ing therefore himsel funable to drive Cassan their fake; whose Embassadours he then der out of Athens, he left his Son Alexander, bade to speak. When their errand was done, with such number of men as exceeded not and answer to it made by the accused, who the proportion of victuals, to withstand his had no indifferent hearing; Phocion and the further incroaching. The greatest part of rest were pronounced guilty of treason; his Army he carried into Peloponnesus, to but to give sentence, and do the execution make the Country sure to himself, wherein unto the City of Athens, because they were His doings in Peloponnesus were such, as Burgesles. Then were they sent away to they had been in other parts of Greece. First, Athens, where the rascal multitude, not he began to fight with Edicts, restoring the fuffering them to speak for themselves, con- Democraty, or popular form of Governdemned them to dye. So they perished be- ment. He commanded that the principal ing innocent. But the death of Phocion be-ing very conspicuous, made the fortune of Rulers, should be either slain, or driven inthe rest to be of the less regard. Five and to exile. This Decree took immediate effect forty times had he been chosen Governour in most places: the vulgar fort being very of the City, never fuing for the place, but ready to feal the Charter of their freedome fent for when he was absent, so well was his and authority, with the blood of those who integrity known, and so highly valued, had kept them in subjection. Yet many Cieven of such as were no pretenders to the ties there were, which delighted in the rule fame virtue. He was a good Commander of the chief Citizens; and many which wishin War, wherein, though his actions were ed well to Cassander, especially they of Menot very great, yet were they of good impor- galopolis, on whom Polysperchon meant to tance, and never unfortunate. Never did inflict an exemplary punishment of disobethe City repent of having followed his dience to him, which he termed Rebellion. counsel: nor any private man of having trusted his word. Philip of Macedon highly esteemed him; so, and much more did resolved to endure the worst. And need there Alexander, who (besides other signs of his was of such resolution. For Polysperchon love) fent him two hundred talents of coming thither with all his power, did so filver, and offered to bestow upon him of much, that he overthrew, by a Mine, three of four Cities in Afa, any one which he would their Bulwarks, and all the space of wall bechuse. But Phocion refused these and other tween them. But the Defendants manfully repelled Tttt

The fourth Book of the first Part

CHAP. III.

the breach 5 and at the same time with great was not able to give them protection against labour they raifed up an inner wall, to bear the enemy which lay in their bolomes, out the next affault. The Affailants having came to agreement with Caffander; accepfailed to carry the Town at the first attempt, ting a Governour of his appointment; and took much pain to clear the ground, and restoring all things to the same state wheremake fair way for their Elephants, whose in Antipater had left them. The like incliviolence was likely to overthrow all that nation to the party of Caffander, was found came in their way. But the Towns-men per- in very many Cities of Greece, which daily ceiving their drift, prepared boards driven and willingly revolted unto him, as to an thorow with long nails, which they used as industrous man, and likely to prevail in the gall-throps, beftowing them fleightly covelend. Thus was the whole Country fet in red, with the points upward, in the way by a combustion, uncasie to be quenched, which which the beafts were to pals. Neither did prefented unto Antigonus an opportunity, they fet any to encounter them in front, but that he neglected not, of making himfelf appointed certain light-armed men to beat upon their fides with Arrows and Darts, as they were instructed by some that had learned the manner of that fight in the Alian Wars. Of these provisions they made happy use in the next assault. For, by them were the Elephants (wherein the enemy chiefly trusted) either forely hurt, or driven back upon the Macedonians, whom they trampled under feet. Polyiperchon came as ill furnisht for long abode to Megalopolis as before to Athens. Therefore being neither able to the utmost benefit that he might of the Ardispatch the business quickly, nor to take my committed to his charge. And in fair fuch leisure as was requisite, he forfook the fiege, with some loss, and much dishonour, leaving some part of his Army to lye before when all the business in Pischia was dispatchthe Town for his credit.

700

Sea, to joyn with Arideus that was come the fiege of Nera, a small thing of itelf, out of Phrygia, and to cut off allificcour but as hard as a greater matter; and requiwhich might come to the enemy out of Afa. ring few men, but much time; when time Cassander also sent his whole fleet under Ni- of all things was most precious. Eument canor, who taking along with him some ships lay in that Fort of Nora, able to make the of antigonus, came to the Propontis, where place good, and hoping that the mutability, he fought with Clitus, and was beaten. But to which the present Estate was manifelly Antigonus hearing of the overthrow, ga- subject, would in continuance of some years thered together the ships that were escaped, (which he might abide) work more for and manning them very well, fent out Ni- him, than his enemies in that space could eanor again, alluring him of the Victory, as work against him. His most fear was, that well he might. For he fent out sufficient for want of exercise in that narrow Castle, numbers of light-armed men, whom he cau- his men and horses might grow fickly and feed to be watted over the Streights in small unserviceable: which made him to practife Vessels by night; these before day-light set many devices of keeping them in health and ting upon Clitus, drave his men, that lay fe- lufty. But when he had continued that up curely on the Land, head-long into their in this manner about a year, his hopescame ships; in which tumult Nicanor arriving, did to good pass, and he was eased of his cares affail them so lustily, that few or none esca-

This lofs at Sea, together with his bad fuccels; by Land, brought Polysperchon into of Eumenes, and confidering his fidelity great contempt. He had a good faculty in flewed unto Perdices, thought that he could penning bloody Decrees, but when the not find in all the world a fitter man than execution was referred to his own fword, him, to employ in managing those high dehe could find the matter more difficult. figns wherein he doubted not that he should Wherefore the Athenians, perceiving that be withstood by the mightiest Princes of repelled the Macedonians which came up to he had left them to fhift for themselves, and

Lord of Asia.

ø. XVII.

Antigonus seeks to make himself an absolute Lord: and thereupon treats with Eumenes, who disappointeth him. Phrygia and Lydia won by Antigonus.

Ntigonus had in Antipaters life-time a firm resolution, to make unto himself feafon for advancement of his purpoles came the news of Antipaters death; even then, ed, and no more employment for the Ar-After this he sent clitus, his Admiral, to my remaining, save only the continuance of belieged.

Antigonus knowing the great sufficiency

the Empire Hard to them both acquaint-one that was friend to them both acquaint-one that was friend to them both acquaintone that was forme part of his intent, and his ambition, this was enough: if any were ing him with fome part of his intent, and his ambition, this was enough: if any were ing make him a better Lord than not herewith fatisfied, he had threefcore ever he had been, and the next man to him-thousand footmen, ten thousand horse, and felf if things fell out as he defired: in regard thirty Elephants in a readiness to answer whereof he required only his friendship, and them. thereupon fent him an oath to take; which done,he might at his good pleasure issue safely out of Nora, and enjoy his perfect liberty. vernour of Phrygia; who fortified the Towns Eumenes perufing the form of the oath, did of his own Province, and fought to have perceive the meaning of Antigonus; which won Cizicus; a fair Haven Town, and feated was, rather to make him his follower than very conveniently for him, but was fain his fellow. For whereas, in a few words, it to go away without it. Hereupon Antigonus mentioned the King & Princes of the blood, took occasion to command him out of the rather to keep the Decorum, than upon any Country. Aridaus was fo far from obeyloyal intent, the binding words and fumm of ing him, that he fent forces to relieve Euall were fuch, as tied him fast only to Antigo-menes. Nevertheless finding that he was nus, omitting all refervation of duty to the unable of himfelf to make long refiftance.he King orany other. This he liked not, holding took fuch companies as he could draw along it unfeemly to become a fworn man to him, with whom he had fought for the mastery; and being affured that his voluntary affi-tune had Clytus, who ruled in Lydia, and france, which way soever he gave it, would be sought the like remedy of his fortune, with more acceptable, and far more honourable, than the course propounded. Yet would he not therefore break off the negotiation, and wait for some better occasion of inlargement, which might perhaps be long in coming: but seeming to be well agreed with Antigonus, he prepared to give up his Hold and depart. As for the oath it felf, when he came to take it, he made shew of dislike, in that it was not folemn enough for such personages as they were, who could not be too ceremonious in testifying in their allegiance. The Macedonians which lay incamped before Nora, liked his words, and gave him leave to put in Olympias, and the children of Alexander, binding himself to them and their adherents, as well as to Antigonus; and fo he departed.

he came down to the Sca-side, to remove much jealousie in Cassander, as fear in Po-

the Empire. He fent therefore to Eumenei by not to dispose of things that should happen

The first that perceived his drift, and provided to relift him, was Aridaus Gowith him, and so passed over into Europe ; to complain at the Court. The like forsome hope at the first (for both of them were entertained with very good words) which quickly vanished; and grew desperate, when they were beaten at Sea, as hath already been declared.

ø. XVIII.

Antigonus pursues Eumenes. Eumenes having authority from the Court, raiseth great war against Antigonus in defence of the Royal house.

Ntigonus having thus gotten into his hands all, or most of all Asia the less, was able to have entred Macedon, and seized upon the Court; which that he forbare to do, it proceeded (as may feem) from some Antigonus had taken upon him, as foon as of these reasons. It would have bred as some of the Governours of the Provinces, lysperchon, which might have brought them behaving himfelf according to the authori to terms of reconciliation: It would ask ty which he had received of Antipater, to more time than he could spare; and the exercise in the time of War. Neither did envy which followed the Protectorship was he want sufficient pretence whereby to ju- such, as he that had power enough without stiffe his proceeding. For, if Polysperchon the office, ought rather to shun, than to purmight lawfully hold the Protectorship, sue. Besides all this, it was manifest that Euwhich the old man doting on his death-bed menes would not only refuse to take his bequeathed unto him, as a legacy, without part, but would make war upon him in deconsent of the Princes and Souldiers; why fence of the Royal house, to which it was might not he himself as well retain the Lieu- found that Antigonus did not stand well-aftenantship of Asia, that was granted unto sected. Against him therefore he bent his him for the general good of the State, in course, and with an Army of twenty thoupresence of the whole Army, by the King, land foot, and four thousand horse, made and by Antipater, who had power to ordain great haste toward Cilicia, hoping to suppress what should seem convenient whilst he lived, him before he should be able to make head.

Tttt 2

Eumenes was one of those few that conti- ter into the particulars of the War it self nued faithful to their dead Master, which be- to shew briefly how the great Ones did muing well known in the Court, he had com- tually frand affected; and by what paffions mission sent unto him from thence to raise they were drawn into those courses, which an Army, and make war upon Antigonus, ta- overthrew most of them, and out of their king of the Kings treasure as much as he ruines built the greatness of a few: as likeshould need. Other letters also there were wife to what extremity the faction brake directed to all the Covernours of Provinces, out in Macedon it felf, about the main Conrequiring them to give affistance to Eume- troversie of the Title to the Crown, wherenes, and be ordered by his direction: especi- upon all other quarrels were or should have ally to the Captains of the old Souldiers, | been depending. called the Argyraspides, or filver-shielded bands, commandment was given to be at his ful, did only what he was bidden. appointment. He had of his old followers gathered together two thousand foot, and Office, had a purpose to advance the Son of five hundred horse, before this authority Alexander by Roxane to the Kingdom, and was given him: but now he purposed with become Governour to a King of his own all the strength which he could make, to making. fight with Antigonus in defence of the Royal blood. Olympias had written to him, defiring this intent, and meaning nothing less than him to bring help to her, and her Nephew the Son of Alexander; and in the mean time to the Throne warm till another were grown give her his advice in that which Polysperchon | old enough to fit in it, grew acquainted with required of her: for the was defirous to re- Cassander, who hated the memory of Alexturn into Macedon, but suspected his ambi- ander, and was therefore the fitter for her tion, as not contained within lawful turn. bounds. Eumenes therefore counselled her to remain in Epirus, till fuch time as he could bring the war to a good iffue; which done, he promised that his faith and care should not be wanting to the feed of Alexander.

Strange it is to confider, that in all the Empire, fcarce any one could be found which he took in the amorous Queen, made among the Noble-men, in whom Alexanders | him to refolve, both to suppress the linage Mother, Wives, and Children, might repose which he hated, and to maintain his befirm confidence, faving only this Eumenes, a loved Mistress, either by supporting her stranger to the Macedonian blood, born at weak Husband, or by taking her to be his Cardia, a City of Thrace. His reputation was own Wife. no more than his own virtue had made it; his followers obeyed at their own discre- different, who reigned over all, so as they tion; and compelled he was to travel as far | might reign in their feveral Countries, and as Persia, to gather together an Army suf- establish their authority in such wise, that ficient to reliff the enemies that purfued his it might not be taken from them.

ø. XIX.

How the Princes of Macedon stood affected mntually. Olympias takes Aridæus and Eurydice, whom the cruelly puts to death.

70w, for a fmuch as in this present War intermeddle; and great alterations happened, not only in the parts of Asia, but Macedon it felf, which brought a new face unto with step-dames) hated the children of her the State, by the extirpation of the Royal | husband by his other wives. It was thought house of Philip and Alexander: I hold it that she had given poison to Aridam, which convenient in this place, before we enter in- failing to take away his life, had much im-

Aridaus the King, being simple and fear-

Polysperchon, defirous to continue long in Eurydice the Queen discovering plainly to let her husband serve as a Stale, keeping

Cassander held fresh in mind the danger wherein his family had been through Alexanders malice, together with the indignity offered to himself by Alexander, who knocked his head against a wall for deriding one that adored him after the Persian manner. The displeasure hereof, and the pleasure

The rest of the Lords held it a thing in-

Among these, Ptolomy and Antigonus were well enough already, if their ambition would have fuffered them to fee it.

Pitho and Seleucus lying far off, and being ftrong, had fome good hope to increach upon their neighbours. Against these, Pencestes, and some others, which much ado hardly made refistance, until such time as Eumenes came to them; who propounded to himall the Rulers of the Provinces did felf great matters, which he lived not to accomplish.

Olympias the old Queen (as it is common paired both his body and wits. Now she ried, she accused of poilon given to Alexanwere able to defend him. To this intent she Government of the Empire. procured men among her kindrd in Epirus, and fo took her way towards Polysperchon, who joyning with her, entred into Macedon.

earnestly to Cassander, praying him to set aside all other business, and come to succour her. She her felf by entreaty, gifts, and promiles, drew to her party as many of the Macedonians as fhe could, until fhe thought her own fide strong enough; and then taking her husband with her, went boldly forth against Olympias, and the Traitor Polysper-

These two Queens met armed, as if the matter should have been determined by any weapon against her. Eurydice finding her felf thus forfaken, fled towards Amphipolis, but was intercepted, and made prifoner with her Husband.

Olympias having obtained this Victory bear Arms against her, the Macedonians would not stick to maintain her, whatsoever her proceedings were. Having therefore shut up Aridaus and his wife in a close room, where they could scarce turn round, she fed confidering, that Eumenes was too full of der, and thereupon caused his Tomb to be business to come home so soon as she wished thrown down, and his bones to be scattered that he should; and that Cassander daily abroad. The Macedonians wondring at this prevailed in Greece: thought it the best way fury, began to condemn themselves, and the to joyn with Polysperchon, and set up, as folly of Polysperchon, who had, quite contra-King, her Nephew Alexander, the Son of ry to Antipaters charge given on his death-Roxane, removing Aridaus before Cassander bed, called this outragious woman to the

ø. XX.

Eurydice hearing these news, wrote very How Cassander was revenged upon Olympias

†. I.

The great Expedition of Cassander. Olympias Shuts her self into Pydna, where Caslander belieged her. Æacides King of Epirus, coming to succour Olympias, is forfaken and banished by his own Subjects.

Affander at that time lay before Tegea. in Peloponnesus; whither when all these their own hands, which ended without any ill tydings were brought to him, he never strokestricken, by the revolt of those who stayed to take the City, nor to give order followed Eurydice. For as foon as the Mace- for the state of things in that Country, donians beheld Olympias; calling to mind (though Alexander the Son of Polysperchon, her former Estate, and the victorious reigns | were there with an Army) but compoundof her Husband and Son, they refused to lift | ing with them of Tegen, he willed his affociates to look to themselves as well as they could, till his return; and fo in all hafte he took his journey towards Macedon, carried headlong with the greedy defire of just revenge. The Ætolians had taken the without blood, thought that all things Streights of Thermopyle, in favour of the would fucceed as eafily, and upon the same | Queen and Polysperchon, to hinder his pafconsiderations for which they had refused to sage; but he, not willing to mis-spend any time in dealing with them, got together as many ships as he could, great and small, with which he transported his Army into Thessaly. There he divided his companies, appointing fome under Callas, a fubtil Captain, to hold them thorow a little hole, till after a while Polysperchon busied, who then lay incamped it came in her head (for fear left the peo- neer to Perbabia, with the rest he marched ple should have commiseration of him, that directly against Olympias. She, having once had reigned almost fix years and a half) prevailed by the respect given to her dignity to put them to death. So she delivered Ari- took more care how to appear Majestical, dans to some barbarous Thracians; who took than to make her felf strong. To this end away his life by cruel torments: to Eurydice | she made a solemn progress to Pydna, a Seathe sent a sword, a halter, and a cup of poi- Town, and well fenced, having in her comfon, willing her to chuse the instrument of pany all the flower of the Court, especially her own death, who praying that the like the great Ladies, among whom was Roxane, presents might one day be sent to Olympias, and her young Son Alexander, heir to the yielded her neck to the halter, having spent great Alexander, by his grand-mothers deher last curses not in vain, Nicanor the Brother of Cassiander, and a hundred the chief of his Soveraign power in her own hands. But his friends, did olympias then chuse out, all all this pomp served to little use against the whom the commanded to be flain. His Bro- violence of the enemy, that foon presented ther Iolans that was already dead and bu- himself before the walls; only it fed the bewould from all parts arrive, to rescue perfons of their quality. And hereof there foon in the City, that the horfes were killed as a appeared fair likelihood, which as foon precious food, many men feeding on the vanished, and went away in smoak.

704

hafte to bring fuccour to Olympias his coulen, vender; some of the Souldiers obtaining the with whom Deodamia his daughter was also Queens leave, (who could not deny it) thut up. Nevertheless, his Subjects were others, without asking leave, yielded them. nothing forward in this Expedition; but | felves to the enemy, and were by himgenfinding certain passages taken in the way by ly relieved, and sent abroad into the Conn-Cassanders men, they called upon him to retire, and quit the enterprise. The Kings im- perfed by these men, did so affright her wellportunity urging them to proceed, and the willers, that fuch as had referved themselves obstinate refulal of the Army, brake out at to the event, came in apace, and submitted length into fuch terms, that when he had to Cassander. At length, when the mortaliraged in vain against the multitude, his au- ty was so great in the Town, that the living thority, with which he thought to have prevailed upon them, was by them taken from of the dead; Olympias bethought her felf him, and he compelled to forfake his Kingdom, and to wander up and down in forein Countries a banished man, his people joyning with the enemy, against whom he had led them forth to war.

neither any could iffue out of the City, nor fore utterly broken with mileries, which any relief be conveyed into it, but it held out | daily afflicted her and the other Ladies, unas long as any food was left; no memorable accustomed to so wretched a kind of life, she fervice being done there, whilft great acti- offered composition, and with much labour ons were managed abroad.

†. II.

A continuation of Olympias ker story. Poly-Pydna. Olympias yields to Cassander.

What we should rehearse the doings of courage from the success of some petty ser-Eumenes and Antigonus in this place, leaving vices wherein he had prevailed) began to Olympias yet a while to the hour of her deftiny; which grows the faster upon her, because she may discern it coming: yet that nestly required him upon his faith to her, we may not be compelled to interrupt the that he should give it up. He did so, and precourse of our narration, by inserting her sently after was killed by his private ene-Tragedy in the midft of things not manifest | mies, that were set on by Cassander, who ly coherent with it; we will here (as else | partly hated him upon old respects, partly where we have done, and elfewhere must) doubted him, as a man likely to feek Innocontinue to an end one History, that we may not be therewith distracted, when we shall come to the relation of another. All the hope of the belieged, remaining in Polysperchon, was in like manner disappointed as The Death of Olympias, and her conditions. their former trust had been, which was reposed in the succours of the Epirots. For Callas, who was fent against him, found the means to corrupt the greatest part of his felf was called into question, and accused in Army with mony leaving him within a little an affembly of the Macedonians, for the murwhile so slenderly accompanied, that he was thers (they were so stilled in her affliction, fleged with a vain hope of fuccour, that fit for no other bufines of war, than a swift retrait. When famine had so far prevailed For Eacides King of Epirus made great dust being given to the Elephants for prowere even poisoned with the noisome sent of stealing away by Sea in a Galley that she had: wherewith her fuccels was as bad as in the rest. For God had appointed this Town, by her chosen as a place of refuge, to be unto her as a house of torment, and a Pydna in the mean time was closed up Gaol, out of which the should not be deliftreightly, both by Sea and Land, to that vered, but unto an evil death. Being therehardly obtained of Caffander (who having fetcht her Gally out of the Haven, accounted himself as good as master of her body) a grant of her own life. Immediately upon her apprehension, Pella, the chief City of the sperchon defeated. Extreme Famine in Kingdom, was yielded to Cassander Amphipe lis did frand out : for Aristonus (to whom Olympias had given charge of fuch forces TOw, though order of time require it, as were left abroad in the Country, taking promise himself great unlikelihoods. But Olympias, to win Caffanders favour, very earvation.

t. III.

Hen*Olympias* had now heard forrow-ful tydings of all her friends, fhe her wince her committed. There was she (be- her own head. ing not heard, nor called to speak) condemned to die. The fute was commenced and profecuted against her, by the kindred of protection and the fact it was at Caf- Cassander celebrates the Funeral of Aridæus those whom she had stain. But it was at Caffanders instigation, who (to hasten the execution) fent her word, that he would furnish her with a ship, and other necessaries, to save her felf by flight: which when the refused, him and others;) after all which, he re- ces.

which in time of prosperity she called ju-warded her malice, by returning it upon

t. IV.

King of Macedon.

A Fter her death, Caffander gave honounerrous with the would plead for her felf, Arable burial to Aridens and Eurydice, laying, that the would plead for her felf, and tell her own tale; he dissembled no lon- among their Progenitors, Kings of Macedon. ger, but fent unto her fuch men, as hated her And looking further into his own poffibiliger, but the most away her miserable life. She ties of greatness, he married the Lady Thef mon, who had taken at Pydna, being was Daughter, and Sifter, unto two Kings of Salonica, whom he had taken at Pydna, being Was Daughter of King Philip, by another of Epirus; Wife, and Mother unto two the the Daughter of King Philip, by another of mighteft Kings, of that, or many other ages; his Wives; that by her he might have some a front Lady, and of unreproveable chaltity; title to the Crown. For the fame end he but herambition was boundlefs, her hatred committed Roxane, and her young Son unappeafable, and her fury in revenge most to close prison, removing thereby some unwomanly. Her perverie conditions made part of his impediment. And, the better her Hufband feek other Wives and Concu- to encrease his same, and purchase love, bines, which caused her to hate both him, built a City, called by his own name Casand them. She was thought privy to her fandria, that foon grew to be very great Husbands death; after which, very cruelly and powerful. He re-edified likewife Thethe flew his late Wife Cleopatra, having first bes in Greece, and restored it unto the old murdered one of her two children in her inhabitants, after it had layn twenty years arms, and with a beaftly fury broiled the wafte, being utterly razed by Alexander. other alive in fire, in a Copper-bason. For By these means, especially by the restaurathese things, her Son Alexander (otherwise tion of Thebes, whereunto all Greece volunloving her well) forbade her to meddle in tarily contributed, he grew fo strong, the Government of Macedon. But God, that few remained enemies unto him; and more severe unto cruel Tyrants, than only they, with much labour, hardly could reto hinder them of their wills, permitted her | fift him. Leaving him therefore daily preto live and fulfil the rest of her wicked- vailing in Greece, we will return to them, nes (which was his justice upon the adul- who contended in Asia, for less titles, teries of Philip, and the oppreffion done by but larger Provinces, with greater for-

CHAP. IV.

Of the great Lordship which Antigonus got in Asia:

ø. I.

The Journey of Eumenes into Persia. His wise dealing with those that joyned with him.

fion, and strengthen himself against Anti- at all. Besides all which Impediments, one gonus. He took his journey through Celo- inconvenience troubled him in all his pro-Bria and Phænicia, hoping to reclaim those ceedings, making them the less effectual. Provinces, usurped with the rest of Syria The Captains of the Agyraspides were so

Omenes, having joyned unto his (as hath been shewed) by Ptolomy, to the company the Argyrafides, made Kings obedience. But to effect this, his hafte into the Eastern parts, to hafte of his passing forward was too great, take possession of those Countries, according to his commif-people, to return their due obedience, none froward, that they fcorned to repair to him, from the Kings treasures, which were kept and take his directions; and their fidelity there. To which end, as foon as he had was fo unsteady, that he might more easily made himself strong enough, he removed have dealt with open traitors. It was not out of Mesopotamia, where he had wintered: expedient, that he, being General, should and taking to him Pytho and Selencus, with weaken his authority by courting them; their men, he marched directly against the neither lay it in his power to keep them in enemies, with intent to give them battel order by compulsion. Therefore he feigned, Eumenes had fortified the Castle of susa, and that Alexander had appointed unto him, in was retired back toward Persia, keeping the a dream, a place for their meeting, namely, River of Tigris between him and his purin a rich pavilion, wherein an empty throne fuers. The passages of the River were well was placed as if Alexander himself had been guarded, and good espial kept upon Antigopresent at their consultations. Thus he freed mus, to observe which way he took, Before himself from their vain pride; but of their he came to Tigris it self, he was to passover faith he could have no affurance. Yet when coprates, a great River, and not foordable. Ptolomy requested them, and Antigonus bri- which he sought to do by small vessels. bed them to forlake him, they continued whereof he had no great store. A great (though not without confidering of the mat- part of his Army had gotten over, when ter) to take his part. So he marched on, Eumenes, who kept a bridge upon Tigris, fending before him the Kings warrant; came with a thousand horse, and four thouwhich Pytho and seleucus refused to obey; | fand foot, to fee their demeanour : and findnot as rejecting the Kings authority, but | ing them out of order, charged them, brake excepting the person of Eumenes, as a man them, and drave them headlong back into condemned to die by the Macedonian Army, Coprates, wherein most of them were for the death of Craterus. Eumenes, know- drowned; very few escaping with life, exing well that he was not to rely upon their cept four thousand that yielded themelves affiftance, who stood otherwise affected prisoners in fight of Antigonus, that was not than his affairs required, and were not to be able to relieve them. This loss made Andealt with by perswasion, sought passage by | tigonus glad to fall off; and the heat of that ftrong hand through the Country of Baby- | Country in the dog-dayes, breeding difion, in such wise that Seleucus, having in vain eases in his Army, by which many perished, affaied to hinder him, by opening the fluces of Euphrates, was glad at length to grant So he took Python with him; (leaving 80him friendly way, as defirous to be rid of lencus to befiege the Castle of susa and him. Thus he came to Pencestes and the rest seeking to go the nearest way, passed of the Eastern Lords, who were glad of his through savage Nations, that continually company, because of the differences between Pytho, Seleucus, and themselves. Yet numbers of his men, before he could arrive the contention about superiority grew very in Media, with his troups that were quite hot among them, every one finding matter | heart-broken. enough to feed his own humour of felfworthiness. But the former device of assembling in one pavilion, made all quiet; the conclusion ever being sure to follow that Of Eumenes his cunning. A battel between which Eumenes propounded, who was both wifest in giving advice, and best able to reward, by means of the authority given him, to take what he pleased of the Kings treafures. By these means he won to himself the remainder of their business. Fain he many of those, who had most power to do would have had them to enter upon those good or hurt.

ø. II.

How Antigonus, coming to fet upon Eumenes, was driven off with loss.

defire to follow him, and drive him further vide it felf into parts.

caused him to remove as far as into Media. vexing him with skirmishes, slew great

ø. III.

him and Antigonus.

After his departure, Eumenes with his affociates fell into confultation, about Provinces, which Antigonus had left behind him; to which also the Captains of the Argyraspides or Silver-shields, were very inclinable, as defiring to draw nearer to Greece. But Peucestes, and the rest, whose dominions lay in the high Countries, had more care of their own particular Estates, and would Nigonus, hearing that Eumenes lay in needs march Eastward. These carried it; The Province of Susa, had an earnest for the Army was not strong enough to di-When

When they came into Persia, Pencestes, ruling there, feasted them royally, and runng by all means to win the Souldiers of divers stratagems practifed by Antigonus, love to himself. Eumenes perceiving whereunto those doings tended, suffered him a unto those done of the while to keep good chear, till the time of Hus did the War continue doubtful, while to keep good chear, till the time of Hus did the War continue doubtful, and was protracted to a greater Wardrewnear. Then did he feign an Epifile, directed, as from Orontes Governour of length, each part having from Souldiers. Armenia, to Peucestes himself: The purport and skilful Generals: but the side which whereof was; that Olympias had vanquilled had hitherto prevailed, being hindred by Callander, and fent over a great Army under the equal authority of many, from pursuing Polysperchon, to joyn with Eumenes. These all advantages to the best, Antigonus grew news, as they filled the Camp with vain joy, daily weaker, in men and reputation, fo that fo they wrought in all mens minds a great to repair himself he could find no way safer, willingness to obey Eumenes, by whom was than to put all to adventure. He knew that the likelieft appearance of their preferment; his enemies lay in their wintering places. wherein they dealt wifely, he being far the quartered far afunder, fo that if he could most sufficient Commander, as they found suddenly come among them, he was likely foon after. For when Antigonus, coming to put them in great distress. Between him out of Media, drew near unto them, Eume- and them, the way was not long, being only ner, by some mischance was fallen sick, and nine dayes journey, but very bad, through fain to be carried in a Litter; the Army a rough dry wilderness, hardly passable. marched in very bad array, and was likely Another way, fairer and leading through a to have been forced to take battel in that Country well peopled, but requiring twenty disorder. But Eumenes, when the rest of five dayes journey, he forsook; partly for the the Captains were amazed, was carried length, partly, and chiefly, because he would about the Army in his Litter, and upon the come undiscovered. So therefore taking his sudden did cast his men into so good form, journy in the dead of Winter, he forbade that Antigonus, perceiving him a far off, unto his men the use of fire by night, because could not refrain from giving him deserved he would not have them descried a far off. commendations. Yet he did not cease to This commandement had been well obserpromife great rewards to the Captains, and | ved four or five dayes, when continuance of all forts of men, if they would for fake Eu- time (as commonly) breeding negligence, menes: which hopes deceiving him, he came | and the cold weather pinching them, they to the trial of a battel. Eumenes had more were bold to cherish themselves, being near his power the dead bodies, which was accounted the fign of victory; for he buried his own, and gave leave to his enemies crastill in the same place, and not only bu-

came.

d. IV.

and Eumenes, one against the other.

Elephants than Antigonus; otherwise, he to their wayes end. The light of these fires was inferiour in number both of horse and gave notice of their coming; which being foot by a third part. The battel was fought reported to Peuceftes, and other Captains, with variable fuccess, and great loss on both they were so aftonished with the sudden fides, continuing a great part of the day, and danger, that in all haste they betook themof the night following. Yet the victory was | felves to flight. But Eumenes, meeting with uncertain. For Eumenes could not force his the news, began to hearten his affrighted men to lye far from their carriages: by companions, promifing to make Antigonus which means Antigonus (who had a more march leisurely, and willing them to abide, abbolute command over his) incamping on and draw up their men together. They the ground whereon they fought, had in could scarce believe him; yet they were content to be ruled, and did as he appointed, who failed not in making his word good. He took with him some companies of the ving it, to do the like. But a greater fign readiest men, wherewith he occupied cerof victory had Eumenes. For he abode tain tops of mountains, looking toward the Camp of Antigonus: there he chose a conried his men very honourably, at great venient ground to incamp upon, and made leifure, but held the Country round about; great store of fires in fundry places, as if the whereas Antigonus was glad (having tar- whole Army had been present. This was a ried but one day) to steal away by night, sorrowful spectacle to Antigonus, who and return into Media, from whence he thought himself prevented of his purpose; and began to fear lest he should be compelled to fight, whilest his men were tired with a long and painful journey. There-Ũuuu

CHAP. IV.

way to fuch places, as might better ferve to transported with Envy, that they could refresh his Army. This he did with great no longer contain their vile thoughts, but care and circumspection, at the first, as know-held communication, as upon a necellary ing how ready Eumenes would be upon all point, how they might find means to mur, advantages. But after a while confidering der him. that no enemy stirred about him, he began to pause, and think in himself, that somewhat mischief contrived against worthy men, to or other was not fallen out according to his their own proud carriage, or fome other ill opinion. To be the bteter informed in the deserving: For, though it often happen, that matter, he caused some Inhabitants of that small vices do serve to counterposse great desart to be taken, and brought before him; vertues; (the sense of evil being more quick of whom he learned, that they had feen no and lafting than of good) yet he shallbeother Army than his thereabout, but only a wray a very foolish malice, that, wanting few men that kept fires on the hill-tops. It other testimony, will think it a part of wisevexed him exceedingly to find that he had dom, to find good reason of the evils done been so deluded. Therefore he went against to vertuous men, which oftentimes have no these troups with great sury, meaning to other cause than vertue it self. Eumener. take sharp vengeance on them, for having among many excellent qualities, was noted fo deceived him. But by this time, sufficient to be of singular courtesie, of a very sweet ftrength was arrived there, which could not | conversation among his friends, and careful be forced without much business, and long by all gentle means to win their love, that ftay. All the Army was come, fave only Eudamus, Captain of the Elephants, who, befides those beafts, had no more than four hundred horsemen in his company. Antigonus hearing of this supply coming to his ene- | should not be slain, before the battel were mies, sent above two thousand horse, and all fought with Antigonus, wherein they conhis light-armed foot-men, to cut it off by the | felled that it flood best with their fafety, to way. Eudamus being falleninto this danger, be governed by his direction. Of this treation was fain to place his Elephants round about he was quickly advertised by Eudamus, to his carriages, and so to defend himself as well | whom he had done many pleasures, and by as he could; for his horse-men, overlaied some others of whom he used to borrow with multitudes, were quickly broken, and money when he needed not, to the endthat driven to run away upon the four. Neither they should be careful of his good, for fear knew they, who fate upon the Elephants, of losing their own. Considering therewhich way to turn them, for on all fides fore, and discoursing with himself of the they received wounds, and were not able villary intended against him, he made his to requite them with the like. In this ex- last Will, and burnt all his Writings that tremity there appeared brave troups of contained any matter of secret: which done, vided the remedy.

708

Eumenes bis life.

fore he resolved to turn aside, and take the their own much insufficiency, were so

Surely, it is great injustice to impute the feemed to bear him any fecret ill affection, It was his meer vertue that overthrewhim. which even they that fought his life acknowledged. For they concluded that he horse and foot, that came unexpected to the he revolved many things in his mind; being reficue; and charging the affailants upon the doubtful wat course he were best to folback, drave them to feck their own fafety low. All the Nobles of the Empire stood ill by speedy flight. These were sent by Eu- affected to the Royal blood, excepting those menes; who though he knew not what his which were with him, that were more in adversary meant to do, yet he knew very number than in worth. How things at that well what was fittest for him to do: and time stood in Macedon and Greece, either he therefore, playing both games himself, pro- knew not, or, knowing the truth, knew nothing that might incourage him to feek their help, that needed his. To make his own peace with Antigonus, had been against his faith to Olympias, and the Princes, that The confirming of Peucestes and others against had committed this great power into his hands. For which cause also it may be thought, that he forbare either to lose the Y these means Eumenes won great ho- battel willingly, or to fly into Cappadocia, nour, and was by the whole Army acand make thift for himfelf among his old knowledged a most expert General, and friends. At length he resolved to do his belt well worthy of the chief command. But against the common enemy, and afterwards Peucestes, and the other Captains, guilty of to look to himself as well as he might.

ø. VI.

Fumenes perplexed, and not knowing the win fuch a victory upon his open enemies, as caule, entreated him not to doubt of the might give him leifure and opportunity to victory, but only to bring them into the deal with his falle friends. field, and fet them in array; for the rest, The sootmen of Antigonus, being, even in ken in vain. For the Silver-shields were men his back. of threescore or seventy years old, & strengthened more by continual exercise, than decayed by age, and excelling in courage, as having passed through greater dangers, than any like to be presented in that fight.

Therefore Antigonus his men (who had try their last hope with these resolute war- to incline. riours, the most Ancient and best regarded of all Alexanders Souldiers) grew very penuttered would prove true.

to give him a sharp entertainment.

ing both to prevent the Traitors, his Com-Elephants, under one Philip, an honest man, tinue where he was:

and (which was enough at fuch a time) obedient : commanding him to protract the The last battel between Antigonus and Eufight, and make a reasonable retrait, expeching the event of the other fide.

So they joyned very fiercely; Antigonus, He Souldiers, especially those old labouring to make himself master of all; bands of the Silver-shields, finding Eumenes, to die an honourable death, or to

they alone would take sufficient order. The their own opinions, far inferiour to those like alacrity was generally found in the whom they must encounter, were at the common Souldiers faces; but the chief first brunt presently defeated by the silver-Commanders were fo mischievously bent shields, who slew above five thousand of against him, that they could not endure to them, losing of their own not one man. But think of being beholding to him for the in Horse, Eumenes was so over matched, that victory. Yet he ordered the battel fo well, he could not repell Antigonus, who preffed that, without their own great fault, they him very hard, but was fain to fland wholcould hardly fail of getting the upper hand. ly upon defence. Yet his courage wrought Before the Armies came to joyning, a fo well by example, among his followers, horse-man from the side of Eumenes, procla- that the Enemy could not win one foot of med with a loud voice unto the followers of ground upon him, untill fuch time as Pen-Anticonus, That their wickedness in fighting cestes, with one thousand five hundred against their own Fathers, would now be pu- Horse, withdrew himself out of the battel, nished as it well deserved. This was not spo- leaving his companions fighting to desend

Then did Eumenes desperately rush amongst his Enemies, labouring to break open the way unto Antigonus himself. And though he failed of his purpole; yet with great flaughter he did fo beat upon them which came in his way, that the victory hung often been beaten by them, and were now to a long time in suspence, uncertain which way

The ground whereon they fought, being of a flight fandy mould, through the tramfive, and advanced heavily, suspecting their | pling of horses, men, and Elephants, did cast own cause, and fearing that the threatnings up such a cloud of dust, as hindred the profpect, so that no man could see what was done Antigonus was now again far the stronger a little from him. Antigonus finding this adin horse, which gave him cause of great vantage, dispatched away some companies hope; the ground, on which they were to of horse, that passed undiscovered beyond fight, being a plain levelled field. Placing Eumenes his battels, and came to his carritherefore himself and his fon Demetrius in ages, which lay about half a mile from the the right wing, and committing the left place of fight, flenderly guarded, (for that wing to Python, he did fet forward couragi- the whole body of the Army lay between oully against the Enemies, that were ready them and danger) and therefore easily taken. Had Penceftes retired himself no further Eumenes took unto him Pencestes, with the than unto the carriages, he might not only rest of the Lords, and stood in the left wing have defended them, but peradventure have of his battel, in the face of Antigonus 5 mean- furprised those which came to surprise them, and fo have done as good a piece of fervice panions, of all means to make head against as a better man. But he was gotten somehim on the fudden; and (withall) to give what further, to a place, where out of danproof of his own valour, which perhaps he ger he might expect the event : and Eumenes should no more do, in the face of all his Ene- was so over-laboured both in body and mies. In the right wing, opposite unto Python, mind, that he could not possibly give an eye he bestowed the weakest of his horse and to every place, being not well able to con-

ing together, those of Antigonus had the needs return into the high Countries; and better hand; whereupon Eumenes, finding the Souldiers had no defire either to fly or himself every way over-charged, began to to fight, but only to recover their goods. give back, and withdrew himfelf and his companies in good order, to the other fide of the battel, where Philip (as he was directed) had by fighting and retiring together, kept that wing from loss. The Antigomians had felt so much of Eumenes that day, that they were well content to let him depart quietly, and wished not to see him come cretly with Antigonus, requesting himtoreagain; as fain he would have done.

unto him, as foon as he had any leiture to of their fervices, in the Wars of Philip and hear how things went: whereupon he prefently ordered his men for a fresh charge, and fent for Pencestes that was not far off, requefting him to bring in his men, and renew the they had reason to expect, would also with fight, whereby he trusted, not only to recover their own goods, but to enrich them; felves with the spoils of the enemies. Pencefees not only refused to joyn with him, but them with hopes of far greater matters than immediately withdrew himself into a safer they desired, if they would put Eumener into place, where he might be further from such his hands, by whom they were feduced to dangerous temptations.

mies, wearied with fighting, were defirous to how to deliver him alive. Wherefore coming return into their Camps. Yet Antigonus con- about him, as at other times, to do their duty, ceived hope of doing somewhat more, and and pretending more joy of their victory, therefore taking half his horsemen, he wait- than forrow of their loss, which they said ed upon Eumenes a part of his way home- they would redeem by another fight; in the wards, but found no opportunity to offend midft of this goodly talk, they leapt upon him: the other half he committed to Python, him, caught hold of his fword, and bound willing him to fet upon the Silver-firelds in him fast. So they haled him away; and, stoptheir retrait; which yet he forbare to do, | ping their ears against all perswasions, would because it appeared too full of danger. So not yield so far, as to loosen one of his hands, the battel ended; wherein antigonin had and let him kill himself, but broughthim not so much the better in horse, as the worse alive (that was their own General, under in foot: but the spoil which he got, by surfor all his other loffes.

o. VII.

How Eumenes was betrayed to Antigonus, and flain.

Umenes, coming into his Camp, and finding the silver shields extremely difcontented with their misfortune, began to rest were desirous to be rid of him quickly; cheer them up, and put them in hope of recovering all with advantage. For their would foon bethe chief in reputation, for brave demeanour that day had so crushed his great ability. So, after long deliberation, the enemy, that he had no power left, wherewith to abide them in open field, and was way to put him to death; which intending much less able to draw their Carts after him, to have done by famine (perhaps because he through that great wilderness, over the high would keep it a while in his own power, mountains.

It happened so, that the Elephants meet- | Penceftes was gone; the other Captains would Wherefore Tentamus, one of the two Cantains of the Silver-Shields, (who had in former times readily confented unto traiterous motions, in hope of gain, but was letted by his partner Antigenes) finding, as he thought. a fit occasion of making himself great, and winning the love of those bands, dealt seftore unto those old Souldiers their goods. The loss of the carriages was reported which he had taken, being the only reward Alexander.

Antigonies, as a fubtile man, knew very well, that they which requested morethan little entreaty, perform a great deal more than they promifed; and therefore he lovingly entertained the messengers, filling make War against him. This answer pleased By this the night grew on; and both Ar- them to well, that they forthwith deviled whom they had obtained many victories) as prifing his enemies carriages, made amends it had been in triumph, into the Campof their enemies.

The press of men, running out of the Camp to fee him, was fo great, that Antigonus was fain to fend a guard of horse-men and Elephants, to keep him from being fmothered; whom he could not fuddenly refolve either to kill or fave. Very few they were that fued for his life, but of these, Demetrius the fon of Antigonus was one, the thinking belike, that if he were faved, he Antigonus concluded that it was the fafelt to reverse the sentence, as desiring, if it but these perswasions availed nothing. might be, to have him live his friend) haste worthy General Eumenes; who had with (nothing like to Python) differbled his ingreat wildom, fidelity, and patience labour-great wildom, fidelity, and patience labour-great wildom, fidelity, and patience labourgreat windows, in sphold the family which God breeders of diffention between him, and his ea in vain to the cast down. He is reckoned honourable friend, unto whom he means nad-purpose to commit the Government of all those among the but more notable was his Go-Countries: his own bufines calling him inwernment of himself, in all her changes. Ad- to the lower Afia. These reports, coming verfity never leftened his courage, nor prof daily to his ears, did finely delude Python By perity his circumspection. But all his virtue, his greatness with Alexander; his authority indultry, and wit, were cast away, in leading in that Province where they lay, whereof he an Army, without full power, to keep it in was Governour; and the love of the Souldue obedience. Therefore it was not ill and diers which he had bought with mony; he swered by Gaspar de Coligny, Admiral of was strong enough to maintain, even an of-France in our daies, to one that foretold his fensive War. But what need had he to use death, which enfued foon after in the maf | the fword, when he was likely without cona thousand times.

Wars; but with a privy charge, to confume | first he doubtfully waded. them all, as perjured wretches, letting none of them return alive unto his friends and kindred, or so much as once behold the Seas that beat upon the shores of Greece and Macedon.

o. VIII.

sia, carrying away Peucestes.

they spent the rest of the Winter: the com- easily. mon Souldier idly; the principal men intentively bent unto the business ensuing. Python with good cheer to redeem old offences, began to confider his own defervings; for but was deceived, having to do with one the wholeWar had been chiefly maintained that could not be taken with fuch baits: by the strength, and riches of this Province. he was carried away, and feasted with Befides, he thought himself as good a man goodly words of promise, that never after as Amigonus, unless it were in the Souldiers took effect. Thus he, that envied the viropinion, which he judged easie to be purtue of his friend, was driven to flatter (in chased with gifts, and therefore spared not vain) the fortune of his enemy, after which to affay them with great liberality. But in he led a most contemptible life, till he died following this course he was driven by ne- obscurely a man forgotten; cellity to trust many, of whom he stumbled of other business made him do it by the upon some, that were unsecret, and others, To this end came all the travels of that his purpose discovered to Antigorus, who facre of Paris: That rather than to lead tention, to obtain more than his own askagain an Army of Voluntaries, he would dye ing? Therefore he came as soon as he was fent for, to take his farewell of Antigonus, Antigonus himself gave to the body of and to divide the Provinces with him, that Funenes honourals Funerable; and re- meant nothing less than to yield to any such warded the Treason, wrought against him, division. As soon as he came, he was taken, with deferved vengeance. One chief Cap- and accused, condemned to dye, and slain rain of the Silver-shields he burnt alive; out of hand. For Antigonus, having begun many of the other Captains he flew; and to with Eumenes his ancient friend, was not afthe whole multitude of the silver-shields, terward restrained by any consideration of that had betrayed fo worthy a Commander, old acquaintance, from cutting down indifhe appointed a Leader that should carry ferently all that stood in his way: but swam them into far Countries, under pretence of carelelly thorow the blood, wherein at the

> When this business was ended, he appointed a new Governour in Media, to order the Province, and a Captain, to suppress all commotions: thinking belike that the power and authority, fo divided, would hardly agree in one against him, from whom both were derived.

After this he marched into Fersia, where How Autigonus flew Python, and occupied he was entertained as absolute Lord of Asia. Media. How he removed Governours of There began he to shew how well he un-Provinces, and made himself Lord of Per-derstood his own mightiness. For he placed and displaced at his own pleasure, Governours in all Provinces, leaving none in Of-He two Armies being joyned thus in fice, that were not his own creatures, exone, were carried into Media, where cept such as lay too far off to be dislodged

Peucestes, who ruled in Persia, thought

ø. IX.

712

CEleucus was the next in this Visitation; the defire to pick matter of quarrel against One that had from time to time continued him, whereof it was likely that he should in the same tenor of good will to Antigonus, sind such issue, as Python and Pencesses had and now gave proof of his hearty affection done. Therefore taking with him only fiftoward him, by making the Captain of the ty horse, he conveyed himself away, and Castle of susa to meet him on the way, ren- sted into Ptolomies Dominions; desiring dring unto him that strong Piece, and all him to protect him from such a man as went the treasures therein bestowed. This offer about to oppress all, that in former times was fo great, that Antigonus (though ha- had been his betters, or at least his equals. ving in his hands the Keeper of the place)

Antigonus was glad of his flight; for now could hardly believe it; but used him with all those Countries were yielded unto him excessive kindness, for fear so good a mood without battel, whereas to fight with seshould change. In that Castle he found all selencus for them, he wanted all pretence: the treasures of Alexander, with the Jewels and to kill him it was not his desire, having of the Persian Kings, which, added to his received many benefits of him, and those former store of mony, made up five and not intermixed, as commonly it happens. twenty thousand talents. Having all this, he with any injuries. Yet it is reported, that might well account himself a happy man, if the chaldwans brought a strange Prophecy riches were fufficient to happineds. But large dominion was the mark at which he aimed; therefore he proceeded, with intent to leave efcape his hands, he should recover Eulylon, no Country behind his back, that should yea, win all Asia, and kill Antigonus in not acknowledge him for Soveraign Lord. battel. Eafie believers may give credit to Coming to Babylon, he was entertained by this tale. Had it been true, methinks An-Seleucus, with all possible demonstration of tigonus rather should have hanged those love, and honoured with prefents befeem- Chaldeans, for giving him no warning tillit ing the Majesty of a King. All this he accep- was too late, than fent pursuers (as they ted with great gravity, as being due to him; fay that he did) after him, whom the Deffiand began to require an account of the re- nies preserved for so great purposes. When venues of that Province. This demand Se- he had fettled things at Babylon, he took his leucus held unreasonable; saying, That it journey into Cilicia, where he wintered was not needful for him to render unto any There he took up ten thousand Talents man an account of that Province, which was more of the Kings treasures, and casting his given unto him, in respect of his many good accounts, found his yearly in-come to reason or no, it sufficed, that Antigonus was powerful; who urged him daily to cometo How Seleucus was chased out of Babylon by a reckoning. Manifest it was, that neither Antigonus. The great riches of Antigonus. want of mony, nor any other necessity, moved Antigonus to press him thus, but only services to the State. But whether he spake amount unto eleven thousand Talents,

CHAP. V.

Of the great War between ALEXANDERS Captains: and how they affumed the Name and State of Kings:

ø. I.

The Combination of Ptolomy, Cassander, and others against Antigonus. Their demands, and

His great riches, and the rest combined themselves together, intending of his power, made Antigonus to hinder his further growth, and bring dreaded, envied, and suspect- him to more reason than of his own accord ed, whereby he quickly was he seemed like to yield unto. Of their praembarked in a new War. Pto- ctices he had some notice; the good enterlony, Cassander, and Lysimachus, had privily tainment given unto Seleucus, giving him CHAP. V. tumerent cause of the feverally, enter that victory, which he alone without other tent Embanation continue firm in their love mens help had obtained. Though indeed treating means to constitute the state of th toward min, the like. The cold answers if they could see it, having by his means which they made, occasioned his halty pre- kept their Government, whereof they were paration against the most forward of them, paration against the most forward of them, and the to be dispossed by Polysperchon, and which was Ptolomy, it being likely that a the counsel of estate in Macedon. But what good Army should prevail more than a fair marvel was it, if they considered not how he meffage. Therefore, as foon as the scason of had faved them, seeing one of them had forthe year would permit, he took the way to- gotten the time, when coming to him as a ward Syria, and was encountred by Embaf- fugitive, and begging succour, he was by fage from them all. These told him, that their his meer bounty relieved, and enabled to Lords did much rejoyce at his victory, ob- get all that he now held? Cassander did not tained against Eumenes their common ene- (said he) in those daies command me to surmy, and the honour that he had thereby render Provinces, and give him his equal gotten. In which War, for a fmuch as they share of my treasures; but (for his Fathers being his Confederates, must have indured lake) defired me to pity him, and help himgreat loss, with hazard of their whole Estates, if the contrary faction had prevailing him an Army, and Fleet, on considence ed; they held it very just, that all should be whereof he now presumes to threaten me. partakers in the fruits of that voyage, where- As for selencus, How can he complain of they defired him, that making between them right? I did use him well, but his conscience der; and Phrygia, bordering upon the Helle- to provoke me. Spont, to Lysimachus: for whereas his own Dominions were fo much extended Eastward by his late victory, he might well spare some of those Western Provinces, to those The preparation and beginnings of the Wars. that were feated in the West. As for Ptolomy, he would not crave any new addition, but rest contented within his own Territodours, that it was no part of his meaning to invaded sgria; that was not held against fufficient cause of mistrust. Therefore he communicate with other men the profit of in they had been all adventurers. Wherefore wrong, that durft not ftay to plead his all an equal division of the treasures that told him that he had deserved ill; else he were in his hands (a thing easie to be done) | would not have fled. Let them that fo cuhe would also take some convenient order riously fearch into my doings, consider west for enlarging their Dominions, according to their own, which some of them can hardly the rate of his new purchases. This might justifie. I am now in the way to Syria, meanbest be to every ones liking, if he would ing to examine Ptolomies proceedings, and afmake over Cappadocia, with Lycia, to Cassan- ter him to deal with others, if they continue

ø. II.

When the Embassadours were dismissed with this answer, nothing was ries. Provided alwaies, that seleucus their thought upon but War. Antigonus, perceicommon friend, and partner in the late War, | ving that he should be invaded from Europe, might be restored to his own, out of which as soon as he was entred into Syria, left his he had been driven so injuriously, that all Nephew Ptolomy to guard the Sea-coast, and of them were forced to take it deeply to hinder Cassander from landing in Asia: giveheart; requiring amends, with his friendly ing him also charge, to drive out of Cappaconsent unto their demands, which other- docia, some that were already sent over to wife they must labour to obtain with armed mol est him. Likewise he dispatched Meffengers into Greece and Cyprus, not unfurnish-Antigonus knew, that after many losses ed of mony; to draw friends to his side, and received, he should yet be able to redeem raise up troubles to his enemies. Especially, Peace whensoever he listed, with these, or he laboured to make himself the strongest perhaps with easier conditions. Neither was by Sea; to which purpose he rather hahe to weak, to give away quietly any part stened, than foreslowed his journey into of his strength into the hands of such bad spria, that he might get possession of Mount friends, for fear only, lest it should be taken Libanus, which afforded many excellent from him perferce. Rather he hoped that commodities for building of a Navy. Therehe should be able to find them work, more fore, having erected Beacons, and laid than enough to defend their own. There- post-horses throughout all Asia, to give fore he roundly answered the Embassa- swift advertisement of all occurrences, he him by any power sufficient to maintain the heart of his Dominion, where he was beloved and honoured of the people as their natural Lord: his other Provinces he kept with a few Garrisons, better serving to contain the people within obedience, than to confront a forein enemy. So Antigonus took many Cities and Places of that Country, and began to fet great numbers of Artificers on the people of Greece, whose aid, which way work in making thips, which was one of his foever inclined, was of great importance. most earnest cares. In these businesses he Herein at the first, Antigonus sped so well confumed a year and three months; not by large effusion of his treasure, that he idly. For he took foppe and Gaza, which drew to him the Lacedamonians, and other were yielded unto his discretion, and well Peloponnessans, of whom he waged eight nfed. The strong City of Tyrus held out thousand; and caused Polysperchon (who had long, but was compelled in the end by fa- a good while made hard shifts) to rowse mine, to render it felf upon composition, that himself again, and taking upon him thetitle Ptolomies Souldiers might depart with their of Captain of Peloponnesus, to make head Arms; which was permitted.

Ptolomy was not afleep, whilft these things were in doing though he kept himself with- him to proceed further in the same kind. in the bounds of Egypt as indeed it behoved | Wherefore to make Cassander the more him to do. His forces were not able to ftand odious, he called together both his own against Antigonus in plain field, but likely Souldiers, and all the Greeks and Mucdonithey were to encrease, which made him ans that were to be found thereabouts. To willing to protract the time. Nevertheless these he declared, that Cassander had very by Sea (where his enemy was as yet unready) he fent his Fleet into all quarters, Alexander, and not herewith contented, had whereof seleneus had the chief com- flut up in close prison the poor Lady Rox-

Seleucus passed with an hundred sail along ten on her body. That all this proceeded the coast of syria, in the full view of Anti- from a desire to make himself Kingover the gonus, and his Army, to their no little difcomfort. He landed in Cyprus, which was enforcing the Lady Theffalonica, Daughter then governed by many petty Lords : of to King Philip, a match unfit for a man of no whom the greatest adhered to Ptolomy, the greater parentage than he, to joyn with him rest were by the Factors of Antigonus, bought in marriage. That in meer despight of those led also Cassander, but not the Son of edified the City of Thebes, which for the Antipater, howfoever by the painful great treason of the Inhabitants, was level and learned Writer Reinerus Reineccius, led with the ground by the victorious hand he is, by some overfight, counted for of Alexander. For these reasons he required the fame) to declare for Ptolomy and them to make a Decree, that Coffender his Confederates, and bufily imploy in should restore to absolute liberty the Lady their quarrel all his forces, which he Roxane, and her Son; and should yield obehad hitherto kept in good neutrality, and dience to the Lord Lieutenant General of thereby enjoyed reft; but now he threw the Empire, (by which name Antigonas himhimself into dangerous War, chusing ra- self was understood) or else should be reputher to undergo trouble at hand, than to ted a Traitor, and open Enemy to the State. fall under certain ruine, though fome- Furthermore he propounded; that all the what further distant, which would have Cities of Greece should be restored into free overwhelmed him, if Antigonus had beaten dom: this he did, not because he wascare all the rest.

of this tellman assistant a later of

o. III.

Ptolomy lay in Egypt, the strength and How each party fought to win the affifiance of Greece. Antigonus his declaration against Caffander. Alexander the son of Polysperchon revolteth from Antigonus who had fet him up.

> IN the mean feafon all care possible was taken on both fides, to affure unto them against Cassander.

These hopeful beginnings encouraged cruelly flain Olympias, Mother to the great ane, Alexander's Wife, and his Son begot-Macedonians; which well appeared by his for him with gold, but now redeemed by dead Princes, Philip and Alexander, helad the Egyptian with sharp steel.

The same commodity of aid by Sea lip, in a new City by him built, and alled encouraged the President of Caria (calby his own name Cassandria; and had reful of their good, but for the need which he had of their affiftance.

These things being decreed, Antigonal opinion, and think him the most faithful of others. all others to the Royal blood. But concernwhich afforded men far more ferviceable in troll. War, than were to be found in any Province of the Empire.

was openly pretended.

much blood-shed, grievously afflicted the her Subjects and Neighbours. contrary faction, and he himfelf perceiving, that they were more eafily spoiled as enemies, than retained as friends, thought it the best way to make what use he could of them, that were not long like to continue his. Finally, perceiving that Alexander came furnished with plenty of gold, wherewith he was able not only to win the doubtful, but to corrupt fuch as might feem best assured; he thought it a part of wisdom, to surrender upon fair conditions, that which he could not affure himfelf to hold any long time by force. Therefore he fent one to deal with Alexander about the matters in contro-

was perswaded, that not only the Greeks well perswade himself, that the Country was permanent, that the Country would adhere unto him, as to their loving which his Father could not keep, when he would and fall off from Cassander; but that was indeed the Lieutenant of the Empire. the rulers of Provinces, who had hitherto should not in haste be won by him, that was the runs of the ru hut his own benefit, would correct their stilling himself, but not acknowledged by Alexander had lived a while with Antigoing his loyalty to the young Prince, the nu fince the beginning of these wars; amone world was too wife to be deceived with vain whose followers it was not hard to discover the which he did not carry very fe-Greeks was more effectual, and got easie be- cret) of making himself absolute Lord of all. lief, in regard of his present hatred to Cas- Therefore he was soon entreated to accept ner, miregant of accept fander. Yet herein also Ptolomy strove to be so good an offer; and did not stick to enter as earnest as he, making the like decree, in into that league, whereby he was to become hope to win to himself that valiant Nation, a free Lord, and subject unto no mans con-

Howbeit, this his honour continued not long, ere he loft both it and his life together, And this indeed was the point at which by treason of the Sicyonians; who thinking both fides aimed. Wherein Antigonus think- thereby to have made themselves free, were ing to make all fure, deceived himself, not soon after vanquished in battel by Cratesipowithout great cost. For he gave to Alexander lis, Alexanders Wife, a discreet and valiant the Son of Polysperchon five hundred talents, Lady. She in revenge of her Husbands death; willing him to fet the War on foot in Pelo- crucified thirty of the Citizens taken in ponness, whereby it might appear, that on fight; and having by severity taught them his side was meant nothing else, than what obedience, did afterwards continue her Army in good order, and governed those pla-In Peloponnesus, Cassanders men had with cesthat the held, with the commendation of

ø. IV.

The Ætolians rise against Cassander in favour of Antigonus, and are beaten. A Fleet and Land-Army of Antigonus utterly defeated by Ptolomies Lieutenant. In what terms the War stood at this time. Antigonus draws nearer to Greece.

Ntigonus, when he found, that with fo much mony he had only bought an enemy, began to raise troubles to Cassander, and his other adversaries in Greece, versie; telling him, that Antigonus was very by stirring up the Etolians against them: skilful in setting men together by the ears, Likewise he saboured to win to his party not caring who prevailed, but only defiring the Islands in the Greek Seas, by whose afto have them weary themselves, whilst he listance he might be the better able to deal was busied elsewhere; that so at length he with Ptolomy, that greatly prevailed by reamight find opportunity to fet upon the stron- son of his strong Fleet. But neither of these ger. If therefore Alexander were so wise, as attempts had the success which he expected. to keep in his purse the five hundred talents The Atolians, a factious Nation, and alwhich he had, and, without stroke stricken, to waies envying the greatness of their receive the whole Lordship of Peloponnesus, Neighbours, were often in commotion, but it should be freely put into his hands by cafe so, that commonly their gains equalled not Jander: provided, that he should from thence- their losses. Cassander wan some of their own forth renounce all confederacy made with Country, fortified the Acarnanians against Antigomis, and enter into a fure and faithful them, and compelled Glaucias, King of league with Piolomy, Cassander, and the reft the Illyriams, whom he vanquished in of the Consederates. Otherwise he might battel, to forsake their side, and bind him.

felf to bear no Arms against Cassanders cidents, whereof the good were hithern

716 .

were drawn to joyn with Antigonus; fo the commonly is not long wanting to them that Fleet of the Rhodians under Theodatus, who want no mony. was Admiral to Antigonus, passing along the coast of Asia towards Cyprus, with an Army under conduct of Perilans marching on wherein though as yet they had gottenlitthe shore for mutual affistance, was quite tle, yet had he cause to fear, lest the people overthrown by Ptolomies Navy. Polyclytus, being tied unto him by no bond of allegiwho in Ptolomies behalf had been fent into ance, might upon small occasion revolt from Peloponnesus against Alexander, finding no him, to men of as honourable reputationae need of his service in that Country, because he himself. To prevent this, and to be neerer Alexander was come over to their fide, re- to Greece, he held it expedient for him tohe turned homewards, and by the way heard there in person, where his affairs did sem to of the course which these Antigonians held, whom he very cunningly furprised. He rode with his Fleet behind a Cape, which the under his Son Demetrius, to whom being enemies were to double; his Land-forces he then but two and twenty years old, he applaced in ambush, whereinto Perilans fal- pointed many ancient Captains, as Affistants. ling was taken priloner, with many of his or rather as Directors: the rest he carried men, and many were flain, making little re- with him into Phrygia, where he meant to fistance. Theodatus the Admiral perceiving winter. this, made all hafte to help his fellows that were on Land; but whilft he with all his Fleet were intentive only to that business. Polyclytus appeared at their backs; who as How Lysimachus and Cassander vanquished foon as he perceived their disorder, haftened about the Cape, and charging them behind, suffered not one of them to escape him. These ill tydings caused Antigonus to deal with Ptolomy about some composition. First, he sent Embassadours; afterwards they met in person. But Antigonus would not yield unto the demands of Ftolomy: so the parley the process of his business thereabouts. For differently sped in the War, and thereby to were held over-hardly to their own work have equal cause of hope and fear. This on Europe side. Seuthes a King of the Thralate Victory, with the good fuccess of his cians, joyning with some Towns that reaffairs in Cyprus, did feem to make amends belled against Lysimachus, brought also the to Ptolomy for his losses in Syria. Likewise bordering Scythians into the quarrel. All the revolt of Alexander from Antigonus did these relyed upon Antigonus, who was to equal the confederacy made between the help them with mony and other aid. The Ætolians and him; as also those petty skir- Ætolians likewise took courage, and rose milhes, that had been in Asia the less, to against Cassander, having Eacides, lately re-Antigonus his advantage, were sufficiently stored to the Kingdom of Epirus, their Afrecompenced by others of like regard, but fiftant. But Lylimachus gave unto his Readverse to him, and by the troubles brought | bels no time to confirm themselves. He sudupon his estates in those parts by the two denly presented himself before two of the

of his men, mony, and ships, no otherwise He fought a battel with the scythians, and than as the pairing of his nails, that were left wilde Thracians, and drave themout of the long enough, and would eafily grow again, Country. Finally, he overcame senther; but the enlargement of his Territory by ad- and following the heat of his Victory, flew dition of syria, he prized at a higher rate; Panfanias in Battel, whom Antigonus had as if thereby he had fed upon a limb of Ptolong his enemy, and ftrengthened the body did either put to ranfome, or fill up with of his own Empire. Concerning other ac-fufficient to counterpoize the bad, he means On the other fide, as many petty Islands to proceed as occasion should direct, which

That which most molested him, was the prosper the worse, by reason of his absence Therefore he left part of his Army in Syria,

ø. V.

some enemies, raised against them by Antigonus. The good success of Antigonus in Afia and Greece: with the rebellion of many Cities against Cassander.

He coming of Antigonus into those parts, wrought a great alteration in his enemies had short leifure to think upon Hitherto each part seemed to have in- molesting him in Asia: they themselves Cities that had rebelled, & compelled them. Contrariwise, Antigonus valued the loss by fear to return unto their former duty. CHAP. V. philip, Cassanders Licutenant, against the yond all measure, than backward upon fought with the Epirotes, that came to help capable of being any thing. them: and after the victory, fought again with their forces joyned in one, overthrowing them, and, killing Eacides that unfortunate King. Finally, he drave the Etolians out of most of their Country, and forced them to feek their fafety among the wild Mountains. Of the Epirotes he fent as prisoners to Cassander, the principal Authors of the Kings restitution, and of the present midians. For he wasted their Country; their miserable nullity, that held them un-

ø. VI.

Victories of Ptolomy by Sea. A great Battel at Gaza, which Ptolomy and Seleucus wan, against Demetrius the son of Antigonus.

As the presence or neerness of Antigo-Yet these actions required some time, and Asia and Greece; so the designs of his enewearied Antigonus his adversaries with mies, taking advantage at his absence, painful travel; after which they remained ruined the very foundations of those great only favers. Antigonus himself at fair works in the Eastern parts, wherewith in only average and laria the whilft, and fent the year preceding he had over-topped Armies into Peloponnessos, and other parts of them. The Isle of Cyprus, whose Princes Greece, bestowing liberty upon all the Cities wavered between contrary affections, inhe took out of Calfanders hands. The clining one while to Antigonus, another whole Country of Peloponnefus (excepting while faintly regarding their covenant with sicron and Corinth) with the life of En- Ptolomy, was visited by an Egyptian Fleet. bea, and many places of the firm Land, wherewith Ptolomy, in his own person easily were by those means won to be his in true reduced them to a more settled order, putand vehement affection, ready to do or fuf- ting fome to death, carrying others away fer any thing for him that had made fo evi- priloners, & leaving a Lieutenant of his own dent a demonstration of his readiness, to give appointment, Governour of the whole them the liberty in deed, which others had Country. With the same Fleet he ran alongst promifed in idle words. Many States desi- the Sea-coasts, wasting a great part of Caria rous of the same benefit, would fain have and cilicia, with the spoils of which he enshewed their good will; but they were kept riched his followers, and returned loaden to in by Cassanders Garrisons, who was too wise Cyprus. Demetrius the Son of Antigonus, to trust them loofe. Therefore Antigonus hearing frequent reports of the miseries, made shew as if he would pass over into Ma- | wherewith his Fathers subjects were opprescedon: by which terrour he forced caffan- fed, made all hafte out of Syria to the refcue, der to repair thither in all haste, with the best | taking only his horses, and light-armed foot of his strength, leaving many good Towns | with him, because the business required exof Greece fo weakly guarded, that well they pedition. But in vain did he tire himself might take courage to help themselves, if & his followers, in hasty seeking of one, that any forein succour appeared. The aid which by lanching out into the deep, could in a they defired was not long wanting. The few minutes delude the labour of fo many Lieutenant of Antigonus, taking the advan- daies, if need had so required. Answerable to tage of Cassanders departure, entred the the vanity of this expedition was the success. Country; drave his Garrisons out of divers For Ptolomy was gone, before Demetrius Cities; forced the Governour of Athens to came into Cilicia. Neither was it certain, enter into league with their Lord; wan the whether having lightned his ships of their Citadel of Thebes, and fet the people at liber- burthen in Cyprus, he would return upon ty. This last action was somewhat remark- those maritime Countries, or make towards able. For Thebes had not long before been Syria, where his coming was expected. He raifed out of her old ruines by the meer was indeed gone into Egypt, and there with power of cassander; of which act he was seleucus was describing a Royal Army, which accused by Antigonus, as if it had been some he levied with all convenient speed, for hainous crime. Yet now the same Antigonus the recovery of Syria. This was more than winners the City, and the love of the Inhabitants, only by expelling him that was their Founder. So much are men readier to hood, and return the way that he came, with thank the Increaser, than the Author of their all his companies, which were fitter for sergood; and rather to look forward upon vice in the open field, than to be bestowed in those hopes, which vainly they extend be- Garrisons among the Cilicians. He had Xxxx 2

CHAP. V.

The fourth Book of the first Part

718

when the news arrived of Ptolomy's coming out, the errour of Demetrins, who upon no with a puillant Army, to give him battel necessity would needs fight a battel with Hereupon he called to counsel his principal disadvantage, began to appear by his losses friends, who advised him to give way to the He had committed himself to Fortune, hatime, and expect fome better opportunity ving more to lofe by her than he could get. in the future, being a young man, and weak- but in this fight she was idle, and left all to ly furnished with means to refift such ancient be decided by strong hands; unless it may and famous Generals, as Ftolomy and Selen- be faid, that the terrour brought upon his cus. This counsel seemed rather to proceed men, by the loss of his Elephants, was bad from the cold temper of those aged men luck. Those beatts were in that kind of that gave it, than from any necessity growing out of the present business. For Demetrius confidering himself to be the Son of Antigonus, and now General of his Fathers Ar- feeking to break thorow the Palifado, they my, thought his own title weighty enough were forely hurt, and every one of them tato be laid in ballance against the bare names ken. This disaster caused the horse-men of of those two great Commanders. Neither Demetrius to faint. They had laboured hard. found he much reason that should move him and prevailed little, till now perceiving that to distrust his forces, as insufficient. His men all must lye upon their hands, who were ill were better exercifed than the enemies, and able to make their own places good, they promifed as much as could be required. began to shrink, and many of them to pro-Therefore perswading himself, that such vide for their safety by timely slight, which odds of number, and of great fame, would example the rest quickly followed. When rather serve to adorn his victory, than hinder Demetrius had stroven so long in vain to him in obtaining it, he resolved to put the make his men abide, that he himself was matter to tryal, without expecting the ad- likely to be loft; he was fain to give place vantage of more help. So animating his to the stronger, making a violent retrait as Souldiers with hope of spoil and rewards, far as to Azotus, which was about thirty he abode the coming of the Enemies at Ga- miles from the place of Battel. A great part za, with purpose to encounter them, as soon of his carriages was in Gaza, whither some as they had finished their wearisome jour- of his company turned aside, hoping to save ney over the Desarts of Arabia.

a Province as Egypt, came so well provided | ction, and the loss of the Town. For, whilst of all necessaries, that their Army felt not they, forgetful of the danger, hadfilled the any great grievance of the evil way, when | ftreets with fumpter-horses, and cloyed up battel was presented them, which confident- the gates, thronging, some to get in and ly they undertook. In all things else they | fetch; others, to carry out what they had had the odds of Demetrius; of Elephants already loaden, Ptolomy's Army brake in they were utterly unprovided. But how to without refiftance, taking them with their deal with those beafts they were not igno- goods and the City altogether. rant. They had prepared a kind of Palifado, fastened strongly together with chains, and best part of Syria, a Province more case in fharpened in fuch a manner, that the Elephants could not feek to break upon it, without receiving much hurt. The rest of their forces (which (besides that they had advantage in multitude) were heartened with many fortunate services, by them performed that year, whilst the enemies had wearied themselves, either with vain journeys, or long and dulling expectation) they disposed Tyrus by the Garrison, falling to mutiny in such order, as best answered to the form, against their Captain, who trusting to the wherein Demetrius was embattelled. The strength of it, had made great vaunts, but fight began, and was maintained with equal was pardoned by Ptolomy, and honourably courage, for a long time, each part striving entertained in respect of his fidelity. more to win honour, than to fatisfie any other passion, as having little cause of hatred, or revenge. But after some continu-

scarce refreshed his men and horses in Syria, ance, the greater number holding better War hardly to be refifted on plain ground. and therefore at the first they made great fpoil amongst Ptolomy's men. Afterward fuch goods, as in haste they could pack up. Ptolomy and selencus isluing out of fo rich | This foolish covetousness was their destru-

> This Victory restored unto Ptolomy the those times to get, than to keep; and opened the way unto all the greatness of Selencus. For between Gaza and Phanicia no place offered refistance. In Cælosyria and Phenicia, fome Towns held out a while, but were foon taken in by Ptolomy. Among these were the great Cities of Tyrus and Sidon; of which sidon was given up by the Inhabitants;

ø. VII.

on of Seleucus.

better part of Alexanders purchases.

ftrange, and full of unlikelihoods. His train fave all from being loft, or to drive scleucus confilted of no more than eighteen hundred out of that which he had won. foot, and two hundred horse, a number too fmall to have been placed as Garrison, in four hundred Horse, and somewhat above fome one of those main great Cities, against three thousand Foot, wherewith to oppose which he carried it into the higher Afia. But himfelf: his large Conquest of unwarlike little force is needful, to make way into Nations having yielded him many loving ftrong places, for him that already stands Subjects, but few Souldiers. Therefore when posseled of their hearts which dwell within his enemies were near to the River of Tigris, the walls. The name of Selencus was enough; he withdrew himfelf from the place where whom the Babylonians had found fo good a his refiftance was expected, into certain Governour, that none of them would find marifhes not far off; where he lay fecretly courage to refift him; but left that work to waiting for some advantage. Nicanor Antigonus his ownmen, withing them ill to thought that he had been fled, and was the fpeed. Some of the Macedonians that were less careful in fortifying his Camp, In recomwith daily enemies in his own lodging. It further stroke stricken. remained that they should issue forth into the field, and try the matter by fight. But unto the new stile, of The Kingdom of the the treason of one principal man, who re- Greeks, an accompt much used by the Jews, volted to the enemy, with more than a thou- Chaldeans, Syrians, and other Nations in fand Souldiers following him, fo difmayed those parts. I will not make any long difthe rest, that they did no more than seek to putation about the first year of this Ara. make good one strong place, wherein were The authority of that great Astrologer Ptokept the Hostages and Prisoners, that Antinot then apparent. Selencus quickly took it; hereupon is needless, than that note of the mia and Babylon.

Perfia, forces convenient for defence of those years after Nabonassar. With the observati-Provinces, that were the utmost of his Do- on of the Saturn, recorded by Ptolomy, agrees minion. In the Countries about Euphrates he (as it ought) the calculation of Bunting; had not done the like: for his own great Army lay between them and all enemies, How Seleucus recovered Babylon, and made Therefore when the victory at Gaza had on Seleucus recovery at Gaza had binfelf Lord of many Countries in the opened unto Seleucus the way into those bingley Asia. The Erra of the Kingdome of parts; he found little impediment in the bigbest Ana. In the Administration of the Greeks, which began with the Dominihe fought, it behoved him to feek how he might keep his gettings: for his own forces THile Ptolomy followed his business were too small, and his friends were ill able to lend him any more. That which his leave of him, and went up to Babylon, to friends could not do for him, his enemies leave of min, and the found fo did. Nicanor, to whom Antigonus had comtry no one favourable, that recovering first his own mitted his Army in Media, joyning unto Province, he became at length mafter of the himfelf, out of Fersia and other Countries, all needful help, came, with ten thousand This expedition of selences was very Foot, and seven thousand Horse, either to

Against this power, Seleucus had only in those Countries, had the like affection; pence of this vain security, his Camp was others made a countenance of War, which taken by furprile, the first night of his arriby easie compulsion they left off, and fol- val; the Satrapa, or Lieutenant of Persia, lowed new Enfignes. This added courage to together with fundry of the Captains, were the people, who came in apace, and submit- slain; he himself was driven to slee for his ted themselves joyfully to Seleucus. In a de-life into the desarts, and the whole Army fection so general, it was not a safe course for | yielded unto seleucus : whose gentle dethe Antigonians, to thrust themselves into meanour, after the victory, drew all Media, the Towns of most importance: for every | susiana, and the Neighbour Provinces, to man of them should have been troubled acknowledge him their Lord without any This victory of seleucus gave beginning lomy, from which there is no appeal, makes gonus held for his security in those quarters. it plain, that the five hundred and nineteenth pol. Alming. This Castle, belike, they had not fortified in year of Nabonassar, mas the fourfcore and se that it is times of leilure, against dangers, that were cond year of this accompt. Other inference 7. 6 8. and so got the entire possession of Mesopota- learned Gauricus, That the first of these years L Gamic. was reckoned compleat, at Babylon, together in annot ad Antigonus had bestowed in Media and with the end of four hundred thirty and eight tam.

ø. VII.

finding the same Planet to have been so pla- advertising his Father of his misfortune, beced in the fign of Virgo, as the Chaldwans fought him to fend a new supply, wherewish had observed it, in the same year; which he might redeem his honour lost. Antigonus was from Nabonassar the five hundred and upon the first news of this overthrow, had nineteenth; from Seleucus the fourscore and said, That the victory which Ptolony wan fecond year; and the last of the hundred upon a beardless Boy, should be taken from thirty and seventh Olympiad. These obser- him by bearded men: yet upon desire that vations of the celeftial bodies, are the fureft his fon, whom he tenderly loved, should marks of time: from which he that wilfully amend his own reputation, he was content varies, is inexcufable. As for fuch occurto make a stand in Phrygia. Ptolomy hearing rences in History, and the years of succeed- of Demetrius his preparations, did nevering Princes (that are not feldom ambiguous, thelefs follow his own business in Calossia: by reason of unremembred fractions) if they thinking it enough to spend part of his Arfeem to be here-against, it is not greatly ma- my under cilles his Lieutenant, against the terial. Yet thus much is worthy of note; remnant of those, that had been already that these years of the Greeks were not vanquished, when Cilles too much underreckoned in all Countries from one begin- valued the power of fuch an Enemy. He ning; as plainly appears in the difference of thought that this young Gallant, having one year, that is found between actions, re- lately faved his life by flight, would now he lated by the feveral Authors of the two more careful of having a fair way at his Books of the Maccabees, who follow divers back, than adventurous in fetting further accompts. He that shall adhere to the time forward, than urgent reason should prodefined by Ptolomy, may apply the other voke him. In this confidence he passed on supputations thereunto, as being no farther without all fear; as one that were already from it, than a years distance.

ø. VIII.

the causes were of the quiet obedience, per- his journey with such diligence, one whole formed unto the Macedonians, by those that | night, that early in the morning, he came had been subject unto the Persian Empire. upon Cilles unexpected, and was on the sud-Of divers petty enterprizes, taken in hand dain, without any battel, Master of his by Antigonus and Demetrius, with ill Camp: taking him alive, with his Soul-

IN a happy hour did seleucus adventure to credit of Demetrius, which his loss at Gaza go up to Babylon, with fo few men as his had almost ruined: but further it enabled friend could then well spare: for had he him, to recompence the bounty of Ptolony, stayed longer upon hope of getting more with equal favour, in restoring to him cilles, Souldiers, Ptolomy could have spared him with many other of his friends, accompanied none at all. Demetrius the fon of Antigonus, with rich prefents. But neither was Piolong having lost the battel at Gaza, received from so weakned by this loss, nor Demetrim so Ptolomy all his own goods, his Pages, and emboldned by his victory, that any matter Servants, in free gift, and therewithal a of consequence thereupon ensued. For Decourteous mellage, to this effect: That no metrius feared the coming of Ptolomy; and personal hatred was the ground of this War, therefore he fortified himself in places of which he and his Confederates held with advantage: Ptolomy on the other fide was Antigonus; but only terms of honour, where- loth to engage himself in an enterprise, in they would feek to right themselves after wherein he might perceive, that if the comfuch manner, that other friendly Offices, ing of Antigonus found him entangled, he without reference to the quarrel, should not should either be driven to make a shameful in Demetrius an earnest desire of requiting already he possessed. him, with some as brave liberality. Which to effect, he gathered together the remain- his way towards syria; whither he made der of his broken troups; drew as many as all haste, not so much to relieve his son, as could be spared, out of the Garrisons in Ci- to embrace him. For he rejoyced exceelicia, or other Provinces thereabouts, and dingly, that the young man had fo well ac,

Master of the field, and should meet with none, that would iffue out of their places of strength, to make resistance. When Demetrius was informed of this careless march; How Ptolomy loft all he won in Syria. What he took the lightest of his Army, and made diers, and their carriages all at once.

This exploit ferved not only to repair the retrait, or a dangerous adventure of his This Noble dealing of Ptolomy, did kindle whole estate, in hope of not much more than

Antigonus, indeed, was nothing flow in quitted in advice, performed the office of a good Comadvice, performed the office of a good Comglad to offer it, defiring to have them rather mander. Wherefore to increase the repu- friends than servants, for fear of further inration of this late victory, he brought such convenience. forces, as might ferve to re-conquer all syhe imployed in matters of greatest impor-

with Antigonus, than before his coming to utterly taken from them all remembrance have affailed the Camp of Demetrius. Yet of home-born Princes, and incorporated he made it a matter of confultation; as if them into the great body of the Persian Emhe had dared more than he meant. But all pire: fo that wanting within themselves all his Captains advised him to retire into Egypt, | foveraign power, or high authority, the life alledging many good arguments to that pur- and spirit of every Estate; they lay as dead. pounding that course; not without remem- members. brance of the good fuccess against Perdiceas, inthe like defensive War. So he departed that Empire, did not when Darius was taout of Syria, preserving his honour; as being ken from them, as the Macedonian Captains rather led by mature deliberation, than any fuddain passion of sear: and he departed at | hold upon those Provinces, which had many fair leisure, not only carrying his treasures ages been subject unto them, and scarce four along with him, but staying to dismantle years in quiet possession of their enemies; or fome principal Cities, that he thought most | why at least they contended not (when the likely to trouble him in the future. All the terrible name of that great Conquerour did Country that he left at his back, fell pre- cease to affright them) to get their shares fently to Antigonus, without putting him to among his followers, if not wholly to disposthe trouble of winning it by pieces: fo easie | sess them of their new purchases: it is a quegreat Province.

after him. The hot contentions for fupe- Victors. riority between the King of Ifrael, and those of Damascus; between Egypt, and Babylon; quitted himself, and being left to his own ty: and how these proud Conquerours were

It must therefore be noted, that most of ria: meaning, that the honour of all should these Countries had alwayes been subject he referred unto the good foundation laid unto the rule of Kings, or petty Lords, whom by his ion; whom from this time forwards, the Babylonians and Persians long fince had rooted out, and held them in fuch bondage. that few of them knew any other Law, than ptolomy had now less reason to encounter the command of forraign Masters. This had pose: which they might well perceive to be and were bereaved of motion, when that agreeable to his own intent, by his pro- Kingdom fell, whereof they lately had been

Why the Persian Satrapa, or Princes of after the death of Alexander, strive to lay was it in those times, for the Captain of a stion, wherein who is not satisfied, may find strong Army, to make himself Lord of a no less reason to suspect the History, than authority to confirm it. For we feldome We may justly wonder, that these King- | read, that any small Kingdom, prevailing doms of Syria, Media, Babylon, and many against a far greater, hath made so entire a other Nations, (which the victory of Alex- | conquest, in the compass of ten years, as left ander had over-run with so hasty a course as unto the vanquished no hope of recovery, gave him not leisure to take any good view nor means to rebel; especially when such of them) were fo easily held not only by disorders, or rather utter confusion hath himself, but by the Captains of his Army ensued, by the fury of civil War among the

The cause why the Macedonians held so quietly the Persian Empire, is well set down Babylon and Nineve; the Persians and many by Machiavel; and concerns all other King-Countries; argue a more manly temper, to doms, that are subject unto the like form of have once been in those people; which are Government: the sum whereof is this; now so patient of a forraign yoke, that like Wheresoever the Prince doth hold all his Sheep or Oxen, they suffer themselves to be Subjects under the condition of slaves, there distributed, fought for, won, lost, and again is the conquest easie, and soon affured: recovered by contentious Masters; as if they Where ancient Nobility is had in due rehad notitle to their own heads, but were gard, there is it hard to win all, and harder born to follow the fortune of the Macedo- to keep that which is won. Examples of mians. This will appear the more strange, this are the Turkish Empire, and the Kingif we shall consider, how the several States dom of France. If any Invader should preof Greece (many of which had never pol- vail fo far upon Turky, that the great Sulfessed so large Dominion, as might cause tan and his Children (for Brethren he useth their spirits to swell beyond their ability) not to suffer alive) were taken or slain: did greedily embrace all occasions of liber- the whole Empire would quickly be won and eafily kept, without any danger of re- doth leave unto them no means, whereby and early kept, without any danger to oppose themselves against the flourishing they may feem, are meer flaves; neither eftate of their Prince; fo would it weaken they may been, are meet have any one both their power and their courage in oiman, whose personal regard could get the ving him assistance, if adversity should make man, whose periodal regard to an attempt, him ftand in need of them. For there is fearce wherein hope of private gain should not any one among the Turk, Bassass, or Provincountervail all apparent matter of fear. cial Governours, that knows either from Contrariwife, in France, it were not enough whence he was brought, or from whom defor him that would make a conquest, to get scended, nor any one among them, that by into his hands the King and his Children; the loss and utter ruin of the Turkifb Empire. though he further got the better part of the can lose any foot of his proper inheritance; Country, and were by far the strongestin and it is the proper inheritance of the sinh the field. For, befides the Princes of the ject, which is also a Kingdom unto him. Royal blood, there are in that Kingdom which makes him fight with an armed heart ftore of great men; who are mighty in their against the Conquerour, who hath no other feveral Countries, and having certain Royal- device painted on his Enfign, than the pities and Principalities of their own, are able Cture of flavery. to raise War in all quarters of the Realm ; whereunto the remembrance of their own Jan, void of liberty in the Subjects, and ancient Families, and long continued Nobi- utterly destitute of other Nobility, than lity, will alwayes ftir up and inflame them: fuch as depended upon meer favour of the fo that untill every ones piece were won, Prince. Some indeed there were of the and every one (an endlers work) of the Royal blood, and others, defeended from chief Nobility brought under or destroyed, the Princes that joyned with Darius, the son the victory were not compleat, nor well of Hystaspes, in oppressing the Magi: these assured. It is true, that such power of the were men of reputation in Persia, but their Nobility, doth often-times make way for an reputation confifted only in their Pedigree, Invader; to whom the discontentments of and their safety in not medling with affairs a few can eafily make a fair entrance. But of State, which made them little esteemed. fuch affiltants are not so easily kept, as they In what small account these Persian Princes are gotten; for they look to be fatisfied at were held, it may appear by this, that the full, in all their demands; and having what Kings Uncles, Coufin Germans, and Brethey would, they foon return to their old thren, were called by the Kings, Their allegiance, upon condition to keep what | Slaves, and so did stile themselves, in speakthey have, unless they be daily hired with ingunto these great Monarchs. That upon new rewards: wherein it is hard to please every light occasion of displeasure they were one man, without offending another as good | handled as Slaves, it is easie to be discerned, as himself. The Turk, on the other fide, in that example of cruelty, practifed by needs not to fear any peril, that might arife Xerxes upon his own brother Maffet; from the discontented spirits of his principal which hath been formerly noted, in place men. The greatest mischief that any of them more convenient. As for the Satrape, or could work against him, were the betraying of some frontier Town, or the wilful to cite examples, proving them to have lois of a battel: which done, the Traitor been meer flaves: it may fuffice, that their hath spent his sting, and must either fly to heads were taken from them at the Kings the enemy, whereby he loseth all that he will; that is, at the will of those Women formerly did hold; or elfe, in hope of doing and Eunuchs, by whom the King was gofome further harm, he must adventure to verned. excuse himself unto his Master, who seldom forgives the Captain, that hath not strived be added the general want of liberty conveby desperate valour against missortune. As nient among the people: a matter no les for making head, or arming their followers available, in making easie and sure the conagainst the great Sultan, and so joyning quest of a Nation, than is the cause alligned themselves unto any Invader; it is a matter by Machiavel. For as #fope his Afs did not not to be doubted: for none of them have care to run from the enemies, because it any followers or dependants at all, other was not possible, that they should load him than fuch as are subject unto them, by verwith heavier burthens, than his Mafter cautue of their Offices and Commissions. Now less this before a commissions, that the before the commissions with the commissions of the Nations, that the before the commissions with the commissions of the Nations that the commissions will be commission to the Nations that the commissions will be commission to the Nations that the commissions will be commissionally the commissions that the commission that as this base condition of the principal men, led min dany to bear: to the realization as this base condition of the principal men, led min dany to bear: to the realization as this base condition of the principal men,

As is the Turkish Empire, so was the Per-

To this want of Nobility in Persia, may

CHAP. V.

Arabians bordering upon Syria: against it as his own assured. whom Antigonus lent part of his Army ; Antigonus had laid upon his Son a perempfoot, and fix hundred horse, only fifty horse thing, forsook the enterprize, and went back escaped. To revenge this loss, Demetrius was to his Father. fet out with a great power : yet all in vain; for he was not refifted by any Army, but by the natural defence of a vast Wilderness, lack of water, and of all things necessary. A general Peace made and broken. How all the Therefore he was glad to make peace with them; wherein he lost not much honour: for they craved it, and gave him presents. Returning from the Nabatheans, he viewed that hope vanished.

are not greatly fearful of a forein yoke; These petty enterprises, with the ill success Nor will be hafty to shake it off, if by ex- accompanying them, had much impaired perience they find it more light, than was the good advantage against Ptolomy: when the news of Selency his victories in the high from ed. This was it that made the Gafoignes Countries, marred all together. For neither hear such faithful affection to the Kings of was the loss of those great and wealthy. Pro-England; for that they governed more vinces, a matter to be neglected, neither was mildly than the French. This enlarged the it fafe to transport the War into the parts mildy that the Van in Lombardy; for the Towns that they wan, they wan out of the lower Afia should have been exposed to the hands of Tyrannous oppressors: and this did danger of ill-affected Neighbours. A middle cause the Macedonians, with other Nations course was thought the best; and Demetrithat had been subject unto the posterity of us, with fifteen thousand foot, and three Alexanders followers, to serve the Romans thousand horse, was sent against Selencus patiently, if not willingly; for that by them These forces being fent away, Antigonus did they were eased of many burthens, which nothing, and his Son did less. For Seleucus had been imposed upon them by their own was then in Media; his Lieutenants about Babylon withdrew themselves from necessity So that of this tameness, which we find in of fight; some places they fortified and kept; those that had been subjects of the Persian Demetrius could hold nothing that he got, Kings, the reasons are apparent. Yet some without setting in Garrison more men than of thesethere were, that could not so easily he could spare, neither did he get much; be contained in good order by the Macedo- and therefore was fain to fet out the bravenians: for they had not indeed been abso- ry of his Expedition, by burning and spoiling lutely conquered by the Persian. Such were the Country, which he did thereby the more the Sogdians, Battrians, and other Nations alienate, and as it were, acknowledge to beabout the Caspian Sea. Such also were the long unto his enemy, who thenceforth held thinking therewith to bring them under, or tory commandment, to return unto him at rather to get a rich booty. The Captains that a time prefixed: reasonably thinking (as he fent, fell upon the Nabathæans, at fuch time | may feem) that in fuch an unfettled state of as they were busied in a great Mart; wherein things, either the War might be ended, by they traded with the more remote Arabians the fury of the first brunt; or else it would for Mirrh, Frankincense, and other such com- | be vain to strive against all difficulties likely modities. All or most of these rich wares, to arise, where want of necessaries should together with five hundred talents of filver, frustrate the valour, that by strength of time and many prisoners, the Macedonians laid was like to become less terrible to the enchold upon: for their coming was fudden my. Demetrius therefore leaving behind him and unexpected. But ere they could reco- five thousand foot, and a thousand horse, ver Syria, the Nabatheans overtook them, rather to make shew of continuing the War, and finding them weary with long marches, than to effect much, where himself with made such a slaughter, that of four thousand greater forces could do little more than no-

ø. IX.

bouse of Alexander was destroyed.

Hefe ambitious heads, having thus wearied themselves with uneffectual the Lake Appalities, whence he conceived travel, in feeking to get more than any one hope of great profit that might be raifed, by of them could hold; were contented at gathering the Sulphure. With this good length to come to an agreement: wherein husbandry of his Son, Antigonus was well it was concluded, that each of them should be leafed. pleased, and appointed men to the work: hold quietly, that which at the present he but they were flain by the Arabians, and so had in possession. As no private hatred, but meer defire of Empire, had moved them to enter into the viai, and a dulness growing up the credit of Antigonus, and to raise his upon the flow advancement of their feveral hopes as high as ever they had been. hopes, that made them willing to breathe a while, till occasion might better serve to contend against one that is equal to them

Yyyy

724

fight again. Provinces which every man held, there were all: for, where every one mans help is netwo Articles of the peace, that gave a fair, ceffary to the War, there may any one make but a falle colour, to the bufinels; That the his own peace; but no one can flandout Son of Alexander by Roxane, foodld be made alone, when all the reft are weary. The best King when he came to full age; and, That all was, that he knew all their affections: which the Eftates of Greece should be set at liberty. The advancement of young Alexander to his jects unto any man, much less to the son of Fathers Kingdom, teems to have been a an Affatique woman, of whom they had matter forceably extorted from Antigonus; long fince refused to hear mention. Therein whom was discovered a purpose, to have fore he took a short course, and caused both made himself Lord of all. But this, indeed, the Child and his Mother to be slain; free more neerly touched Caffander. For in his ing thereby himself in a trice, from the dam custody was the young Prince and his Mo- gerous necessity of yielding up his Governther: neither did he keep them in a fort an- ment, which he must have done when the fwerable to their degree; but as close priso- Child had come to age. Roxane was a lacers, taken in that War, wherein they had dy of fingular beauty, which was perhapsthe feen the old Queen Olympias taken and mur- cause, why Perdiccas desired to have her Son, dered, that fought to put them in possession being as yet unborn, proclaimed let to of the Empire. The mutual harred and fear the great Alexander. Immediately upon the between them, rooted in these grounds, of death of Alexander, the had used the favour injuries done, and revenge expected; upon (if it were not love) of Perdicess, to the failthis conclusion of peace, grew up faster than Tying of her own bloody malice, upon 814any time before, in the heart of Cassander: tira, the Daughter of King Darius, whom who faw the Macedonians turn their favouAlexander had likewife married, according rable expectation, towards the Son of their to the custom of those Countries, wherein late renowned King.

Prince must first have possession of Macedon: she did, by affistance of Perdicus, murder whereby Cassander should be reduced to his her and her Sister, and threw their bodies poor office, of Captain over a thousand men, if not left in worse case. As for them that earth. But now, by Gods just vengeance, held Provinces abroad, they might either were she and her Son made away, in the do as they had done under Aridaus; or bet- like fecret fashion; even at such time as the ter, as being better acquainted with their neer approaching hope of a great Empire own ftrength. He, in the mean time, by his had made her life, after a wearifone imprireadines to acknowledge the true Heir, had somment, grow dearer unto her than it was freed himself from that ill-favoured imputa- before. tion, of feeking to make himself Lord of all that Alexander had gotten.

The like advantage had he in that Article, of reforing the Greeks to their liberty. now they held themselves free Lords of all This liberty had hitherto been the subject of that they had under them fearing none other much idle discourse: but it never took ef- change of their estates, than such as might fect. Antigonus held scarce any Town of arise by chance of War; wherein every one theirs, Cassander occupied most of the Counperswaded himself of success, rather better try: which if he should set free, he must be than worse. Hereupon all of them (except a poor Prince; if not, there was matter Lysmachus and Selencus, that had work enough of quarrel against him, as against a enough at home) began to rowze themselves. Disturber of the common Peace.

ther with a great Army, and mony ecough about Hellesport: while their Master was enter into the War; fo was it no friendly to entertain a greater, might ferve to hold

CHAP. V

With much disadvantage do many men all in puissance. Cassanders friends had left Befides that main point, Of retaining the him in an ill case, but he could not do with plurality of Wives is held no crime. For, ha-All this either little concerned Antigonus; ving by a counterfeit Letter, in Alexanders or tended greatly to his good. The young name, gotten this poor Lady into her hands, into a Well, caufing it to be filled up with

The fact of Caffander was not so much detested in outward shew; as inwardly it was pleasing unto all the rest of the Princes, For as if now the time were come, for each man In the mean feafon, the Countries lying to improve his own flock. Antigonal his between Euphrates and the Greek Scas, toge-ther with a great Anny, and the Greek Scas, toge-Lieutenants were buffe in Pelopouncies, and GHAP. V. tigonus had put Garrisons into some Towns, which ought, in fair dealing, to be fet at liberty. Under colour of redreffing this enorwon four Towns, and foon after lost them, Commander, but discontented with the ill and Corinth in his own possession. requital of his services) whom finding short-Towns of Sycion and Corinth.

the Greeke, emboldened by his countenance meaning to place him in his Fathers and affiftance, would all of them take heart Throne. and rife up in arms; whereby with little ing it to fall into their mouths.

their Town and Terrritory.

careful in following other, and fome greater much moderation: but, in spight of their earters that were more feeretly to be hand-matters that were more feeretly to be the more feered to be the mo matters that weed the liberty of Greece: yet By this base temper of the principal Cities, led. He pretended the liberty of Greece: yet By this base temper of the principal Cities, led. He pretended the minister unto Ptolo-did the same argument minister unto Ptolo-it is easie to gather, how the rest of the Coundid the same a garnel, against both him and try stood affected. Piolomy could not get my matter or quarter; "good saif he had them to fet their helping-hands to their own cadjonder; Ptolomy could not get Cadjanus of their own taken the matter deeply to heart) that Angood, and to furnish him with the promifed Supplies of mony and victuals. Credible it is. that he had a true meaning to deliver them from thraldom; as judging the commodity nity, he fent an Army into Cilicia, where he that would arife by annexing them to his party, a matter of more weight than the loss without much labour of his own or his ene- that Cassander should receive thereby, who could hardly retain them, if once Antigonus After this, putting to Sea with a strong took the work in hand. But when he found Fleet, heran along the coast of Asia, winning such difficulty in the business, he changed many places: and in that voyage allured un- his purpose: and renewing his former to him a Nephew of Antigonus (a good friendship with Cassander, he retained Sycion

Before the coming of Ptolomy into Greece, ly, as false to himself as he had been to his Cassander had been held occupied with veown Uncle, he was fain to put to death. But ry much work. For (besides his pains taken indoing these things, his desire to set the in Wars among barbarous Princes) he Greeks at liberty, appeared not fo plain, as found means to allure unto himself the Lieuhe wished that it should : for their case was tenants of Antigonus, that were in Peloponno way bettered by his molefting Anti- ness, and about Hellespont: making his gonus in Asia. Therefore to get the love of own advantage of their discontentments. that valiant Nation, he made at the last an By the like skilful practice he freed himself Expedition into Greece it felf: where ha- from a greater danger, and made those murving fet free some little Islands, and landed thers which he had committed seem the less in Peloponness, he raised so great an expe-odious, by teaching his enemies to do the ctation of finishing the long-defired work, like. Old Polysperchon, that had made so that Cratespolis, the Widow of Alexander, great a stir in the reign of Aridaus, did af-Tolysperchons Son, gave up into his hands the ter the death of Roxane and her child, enter again upon the Stage: leading in his hand Ttolomy had conceived a vain belief, that another Son of the great Alexander, and

The name of this young Prince was Herlabour their liberty might be gotten; and he | cules: he was begotten on Barsine the daughbe acknowledged as Author of this immor- ter of Artabazus a Fersian; but had been less tal benefit. But long servitude had well- esteemed than the son of Roxane, either neer extinguished the ancient valour of that | for that his Mother was held no better than Nation: and their ill fortune, in many like- a Concubine, or else perhaps, in regard of ly attempts to recover freedom, had so tired the favour which Perdiccas, and after him their spirits, that they would no more stir in Olympias, did bear unto Roxane. At this time pursute thereof; but sate idly still, as wish- the death of his Brother had moved such compassion, and regard of his being Alexan-The Lacedamonians, about these times, ders only living child, had procured unto began to fortifie their Town with walls; him such good will, that the demand which trusting no longer in their virtue (for both | Polysperchon made in his behalf, was deemed it, and the discipline that upheld it, were too very just and honourable. There were inmuch impaired) that had been a wall to deed more hearts than hands, that joyned with this young Prince: yet wanted he not The Athenians were become as humble sufficient strength of hands, if the heart of fervants, as they had been in times past in- him that least ought, had not been most false. folent Masters: erecting as many statues in Cassander had raised an Army to withstand honour of Demetrius Phalereus, as there were his entry into Macedon: but little trust could daies in the year. This Demetrius was now he repole in that Army, whose wishes he pertheir Governour; and he governed them with ceived to be with Hercules. Therefore he Үүүү 2

CHAP. V

promifes; wherewith at length he prevailed Husband in his Camp. But neither any of fo far, that the old Villain was contented to those brave Captains, that were, in times folmurder his Pupil; chufing rather with ma- lowing fo hot in love with her, durft then ny curses and foul dishonour, to take the offered Lordship of Peloponnesus, and Com- ther, full of other cares, trouble himself with mander of an Army; than to purchase a providing her of an Husband. She therefore, noble fame with dangerous travel, in main- being a lufty Widow, suffered her blood for taining his faith, unto both his dead and li- far to prevail against her honour, that she

ving Soveraigns. Antigonus had not all this while been tainment of Paramours. Alexander hearing afleep; though his losses were hitherto the of this, turned it to a jest: saying, That she chief witnesses of his having been a stirrer in was his Sister, and must be allowed this lithese commotions. He thought it enough for berty, as her portion of the Empire. When him at the present to retain his own: and by his death the Empire lay in a manner therefore took order for the recovery of void, and the portion due to her therein those places which Ptolomy had taken pains grew, in mens opinion, greater than it had to win. As for the rest, it no way grieved been: then did many seek to obtain her. him to see Cassander incur the general hatred while she her self defired only a proper man, of men by committing those murders of with whom she might lead a merry life, To which the profit was like to redound unto this purpose did she invite Leonatus unto him that was the most powerful, or to see her; who made great haste, but was cut off Polysperchon and Ptolomy sweat in a busie by deathere he came to her presence. Now War against Cassander. If they would have at the last, after long tarrying, she had her continued their quarrels, he could well choice of all the great Commanders, Antigohave afforded them leisure, and have nus, Ptolomy, Lysimachus, and Cassander, bethought the time well fpent in beholding ing all her earnest Wooers. All these (Antitheir contentions. For he was throughly gonus excepted) had Wives already; Ptoloperswaded, that when the rest had wearied my had many Wives, and many Concubines themselves in vain with long strife, his Armies | whom he respected as much as his Wives beand Treasures, wherein he exceeded them ing noted of too much dotage in that kind. all, would bring all under. According to This hindred not his fute: peradventure it these haughty conceits, he demeaned him- advanced it, by giving to Cleopatra some hope felf among his followers; looking big upon of mutual toleration. To him therefore the them, and like a King before his time. This bequeathed her felf, and was taking her was it that caused so many of them to revolt journey from Sardes towards him; when from him: but it was no great loss to be Antigonus his Deputy in that City, made for saken by those that looked with envious her to stay, until his Masters further pleaeyes upon that fortune whereon their own fure should be known. Antigonus had now should have depended. Against this envy of a Wolf by the ears: he neither could well his men, and the malice of others, Antigo- hold har, nor durft let her go. She would

pire. lay for the most part in Sardes: whom he | yond her life; as the course taken by Cof. had a great desire to take to Wife. This his fander against Roxane (a Lady less respected defire was not without good hope: for how- than Alexanders own Sifter) did well tellifie. soever she discovered much unwillingness | Therefore he thought it the wisest way to thereunto, yet was she in his power, and procure her death: for to let any other enjoy might therefore be entreated, were it only the commodity of fo fair a title to the King. for fear of being enforced. But it was not dom, it was no part of his meaning. To this his purpose to get her by compulsive means: purpose he sent instructions to the Governor either because his fancy, being an old man, of sardes willing him in any case todo it se was not over-violent; or rather because his cretly. So the fact was committed, and cerambition, whereunto all his affections had tain women about her put in trust with the reference, could have made small use of her, murder: which women afterwards were put by doing fuch apparent wrong. She had to death, as mischievous conspirers against been married unto Alexander King of Epi- the life of that good Lady. So was Antigorus, after whose death she came to her Bro- nus freed from blame, at the least in his own assailed Polysperchon himself with gifts and ther in Asia; hoping belike to find a new supplied the want of an Husband by entermus bufily fought a remedy, fuch as was like not be his Wife; he had no honest pretence to give him a goodly title to the whole Em- to force her; and to keep her prisoner, had been the way, by which he might have in-Cleopatra, Sister unto the great Alexander, curred a general hatred, lasting perhaps beAuthours.

Alexander the great extinguished, and it was der, and so restored the City to liberty. extinguished by the hands of such as thought I think it not impertinent, sometimes to cent blood, were foon after cast down, overthe ruins, as the sequel will declare.

ø. X.

How Demetrius, the fon of Antigonus, gave liberty to Athens, expelling the Garrisons of Callander out of those parts. The immoderate honour decreed by the Athenians to Antigonus and Demetrius.

name, as they were already in substance. Yet had this name ill-beseemed the weaker, neither seemed it convenient in the judgebe thought equal to any name of Royaltie, whereof in feeming modelty, he was not co-Army, with a Navy of two hundred and fifty the Country free.

tred the Haven; it being thought that a out into loud acclamations: Demetrius Pha- till she had wound up the thred of his life, opinion: but the world was less foolish, than lereus for fook the Town, and withdrew opinion to be so deluded. How the murther was himself to Thebes under safe conduct; only to be to detected, we need not ask: for feldom is the Garrison in Munychia strove to make detected, we need not all the detected, we need not all the bloody crime unrevealed, and never for good that piece, which after a while was ill smothered, as when great persons are the long of the bloody crime unrevealed, and never so of Munychia, Demetrius went to Megara; Thus was the whole race of Philip and whence he expelled the Garrison of Cassan-

upon nothing less than the execution of relate such accidents, as may seem no bet-Gods justice, due unto the cruelty of these ter than meer trisles: for even by trisles are powerful, but merciles Princes. Wherefore the qualities of great Persons as well disclothe ambitious frames, erected by these Ty- sed, as by their great actions; because in rants, upon fo wicked foundations of inno- matters of importance, they commonly strain themselves, to the observance of gewhelming themselves or their children, with neral commended rules; in lesser things they follow the current of their own Natures. The Lady Cratesipolis lay in Patras, and had a great defire to fee Demetrius; hoping, belike, that she might by his means better her estate, and recover her Towns of Sycion and Corinth, detained by Ptolomy; to whose Lieutenant in those places, Demetrius before his departure out of Greece, offered mony for the furrender of them. Yet the only bufiness pretended was love. He being One being left alive that had any title to the Kingdom; it ftood with good Country of Megara, and taking a company reason, that they which were Lords of the of his lightest armed, for guard of his per-Provinces, acknowledging no Superiour, lon, made a long journey to meet with should freely profess themselves Kings in ler. This troop also he caused to lodge a great way from his Tent, that none might fee her when she came. As closely as the buwhile the strongest of all did forbear it : sines was carried, some of his enemies had gotten knowledge of it; whereby they conment of Antigonus, to crown his last action ceived good hope, that the diligence of a with fuch a title, as if he had attained unto very few men might overthrow all the great greatness by that foul murder, the infamy preparations of Antigonus; and bring him whereof he was careful how to discharge to any terms of reason, by taking his dear from his own head. He purposed therefore fon prisoner. Their project fell but a little to undertake a plaufible enterprise, even the short of the effect. For they came so suddenliberty of Greece: whereby it was apparent, | ly upon him, that he had no better shift, than that he might get fuch honour as would not to muffle himself in an old cloak, and creep only drown all bad reports, but make him away disguised; leaving them to ransack his Tent. There was in this Prince a strange medly of conditions; especially an extreme vetous. To this purpose he delivered a strong dissoluteness in wanton pleasures, and a painful industry in matter of War. He was of a fail, and five thousand talents of silver, unto most amiable countenance, a gentle nature, Demetrius his fon: willing him to begin at and a good wit; excellent in devising En-Athens, and thence to proceed, in fetting all gines of War, and curious in working them with his own hands. He knew better how Demetrius came to Athens before he was to reform his bad fortune, than how to rule expected: fo that without refiftance he enmore active: prosperity puffed him with fleet of Ptolomy, Cassanders good friend, had over-weening, wherein he thought that he been arrived. But when it was known, might do what he lifted. His fortune was both who he was, and what was the cause changeable, as were his qualities: turning of his coming; the joy of the Citizens brake often round, like the picture of her Wheel, in such manner as followeth to be shewed. Oracle: or rather so weak is great power business at Megara; he resolved no longer to attend the illue of a fiege, to affail Munychia by force, that so he might accomplish the liberty of Athens: which, untill it was The great victory of Demetrius against Ptofully wrought out, he refused to enter into the City, Munychia was strongly fortified: yet by continuance of the affault, the multitude without, through help of their Engines that scoured the walls, prevailed upon the resolution of those that lay within it, and wan the place in two dayes. The walls, and all the defences of that piece against the Ci- of greater difficulty; meaning to employ ty, were levelled with the ground, and so his service against Ptolomy, in Cyprus, Bewas it freely put into the Citizens hands, fore his departure out of Greece, he was to whom withal was given their liberty, willed to establish a general Council, that with promife to aid them in maintain-should treat of matters concerning the com-

CHAP. V.

of any other victory gotten by Demetrius out of Imbros, committing their liberty enwith greater skill and industry. For the Athe- tire, into the peoples hands; whereby it nians, having forgotten how to employ their might appear, that as he would not perhands, laboured to make up that defect with mit any other to oppress the Greek, to their tongues: converting to base flattery, would he be far from doing it himself. This that eloquence of theirs which the vertues was enough to hold his reputation high, manly arguments.

They decreed unto Antigonus and Demetrius the name of Kings; they consecrated mies. the place in which Demetrius leaped from his Chariot, when he entred their City, and | cyprus, through the indifcretion of Municipal Company, through the indifference of Municipal Company, the control of the cont built there an Altar, calling it of Demetrius lans, Ptolomies brother, and his Lieutenant The alighter; they called them by the names in that Ifle. Nicocles, King of Paphos, wasenof the gods their Saviours, ordaining that tred into some practice with Antigonus; yet every year, there should be chosen a Priest not so far that he thought himself pastexof these gods; and further, that such as were cuse; by which considence, he was perhaps employed by their State, in dealing with the more easily detected. To cut off this neeither of these two Princes, should not be gotiation, and the fall-hearted King of Pacalled Embassadours, but Theori, or Consul- phos at one blow, Menelans was sent thither: ters with the gods; like as were they, whom who furrounding Nicocles his house with they fent unto the Oracle of Jupiter or Souldiers, required, in Ptolomies name, to all their flatteries, these being so gross. Here- him, that dye he must, and bad him come by they not only corrupted the young forth quietly. This desperate necessity caused Prince; but made that acclamation, which the unhappy King to rid himself of life; and best would have pleased the old man, to be his death strook such an impression into his of no use. For he could not handsomely wife, that she not only slew her self, but pertake upon him the name of King, as imposed | fwaded the wives of her husbands brethren by the Athenians, unless he would seem to to do the like. Also those brethren of Nice approve their vanity, in loading him with cles, unto whom Ptolomy had intended noill, more than humane honours. Yet was he fo being amazed with the suddenness of this tickled with this their fine handling him, calamity, did shut up the Palace, and setting that when their Theori or Confulters came it on fire, confumed it, with all that was in shortly after, defiring him to relieve them it, and themselves together. with Corn and Timber to build ships; he Whatsoever the crime objected was No. gave them almost a hundred thousand quar-cocles perished as a man innocent, because he ters of wheat, and matter fufficient to make was not fuffered to make his answer. Othis chundred Collins of the chundred Colli a hundred Gallies. So gracious was his first fad accident, though Menelaus deserved the

Returning to his Camp, and finishing his in resisting the assaults of flattery.

o. XI.

lomy in Cyprus. How Antigonus and Demetrius took upon them the stile of Kings; wherein others followed their example.

Rom this glorious work, Antigonus called away Demetrius, unto a bufiness mon good of the Country. About the same The fame of this action was lowder, than time Antigonus withdrew his own Garrison of their Ancestors had suited unto more among these new purchased Friends: it followed, that he should convert his forces, to the winning of ground upon his Ene-

A pittiful Tragedy had lately hapned in have him yielded to the death. Nicocles It were a frivolous diligence to rehearse offered to clear himself; but Menelaus told the furthest removed occasion.

Not long abover fufficient, against any fissance they could, he with the rest of the opposition that Ptolomy was like to make. Fleet, puts to Sea against Ptolomy. The Cypriots did little or nothing against the cyrine because they had small strength, and continued long, with doubtful success. nim, can they held it a matter indifferent, of for that they held it a matter indifferent, and they held it a matter indifferent, or for that they held it a matter indifferent, and they held it a matter indifferent indifferen whom they acknowledged as their Lord, whom the that they should not themselves wing of his own Fleet. Each of them prebring an area of their own Country. Mene vailed against the squadron wherewith he have therefore, out of his Garrifons, drew encountred; but the fuccess of Demetrius forth an Army, and fought with Demetrius. was to better purpose. For his victory in one felf within the walls of Salamis, where he was order, and finally drave all to betake themreturningto him, with the first opportunity, fave himself, in hope of better event, that Most of them were Mercenaries: but all might follow some other time. their goods were in Egypt, which was enough of Sycion and Corinth.

better flored with weapons fit for that fer-the Haven: which they manfully performed, vice; and very well furnished with Engines as great necessity required. in the prows, to beat upon the enemy. Ne-blame, for his rigorous proceeding; yet it on his back: in which case, it was very likeblame, 101 ms rigorous processing 2 to the back; in which cale, it was very like is to be thought, that much difflike fell also ly that all would go very ill with him. is to be thought, as men that are grieved, cast Against this mischiet, he bestowed ten of his upon Plolomy: as men that are grieved, cast Against this mischiet, he bestowed ten of his upon Prounty. as men upon those that gave own Gallies in the mouth of that Haven, to an ill affection even upon those that gave Not long after this, Demetrius came into his horsemen on the shore, to give what af-

The fight began early in the morning, But he was beaten, and driven to fave him- part was such, as caused others to fall out of ich wannamen der der without frong fuc- felves unto speedy flight. As for Ptolomy, he cour, he had no likehood to make good the was fain to leave his advantage upon the place, much less to retain possession of the enemy in one part of the fight, that he might whole Illand. His greatest help at the present relieve and animate those of his own which was the fidelity of his Souldiers; whom no needed him in another; wherein he found his rewards could win from him, nor good usage loss over great to be repaired, by contend-(when any of them were taken prisoners, and ing any longer against the fortune of that inrolled in the enemies bands) keep from day; and therefore he laboured only to

There fell out in this battel no unufual to keep them faithful. Yet could not this accident; yet was the victory greater than their resolution have stood long against the could have been expected. The occasions odds of number, which Demetrius had of men whereof were, partly the great skill in Seaas resolute, and against his terrible Engines services, which the Greeks and Phenicians of battery, if Ptolomy had not hasted to the that were with Demetrius, had above those which followed Ptolomy: partly, the good Prolomy brought with him a hundred and furniture of the Ships, wherein confifted no forty Gallies, besides two hundred Ships of less, than in the quality of those with whom burden, for transporting his Army and Car- they were manned. Further, we may reariages. This Fleet made a terrible flew, fonably judge, that the two hundred thips of when it was descried afar 5 though more burthen, carrying the strength of Ptolomies than half of it was unfit for service in fight Army, did not more encourage his own men, at Sea. Wherefore tomake the opinion of and terrifie his enemies the day before the his forces the more dreadful, Ptolomy fent fight, than breed in each part the contrary unto Demetrius a threatning message: willing affections, when in the beginning of the fight him to be gone, unless he would be over- they fell off, and ftood aloof. For though it whelmed with multitudes, and trampled to were fitting that they should so do; yet a death in a throng. But this young gallant re- imultitude, prepoficifed with vain conceits, payd him with words of as much bravery, will commonly apprehend very flight occapromifing to let him escape upon condition, fions to think themselves abandoned. Bethat he should withdraw his Garrisons out sides all this, the expectation that Menelaus, issuing with his fleet out of Salamis should Demetrius had no more than one hundred charge the enemy in the stern, was utterly and eighteen Gallies; but they were, for frustrate. He was kept in perforee, by the the most part, greater than those of Ptolomy; ten ships appointed to bar up the mouth of

Such disappointment of expectation doth vertheless he frood in great doubt of three-much abate the courage of men in fight; fcore Gallies that lay in the Haven of Sala-effectially of the affailants: whereas on the mis, lest Menelans with them should set up-contrary, they find that some part of their fears vain, do eafily gather hopeful spirits, Thus marched he fair and foftly forward and conceive an opinion of their own abili-with a great throng at his heels (that fervol ty, to do more than they thought upon, out well to fet out his Pagcant) untill hecame in of their not fuffering the harm that they had fight of Antigonus, who could not contain imagined.

710

were, the fruit was very great. For Ptolomy stodemus, upon the sudden, with a high had no more than eight Gallies that accom- voyce falute Antigonus by the name of Kings banied him in his flight: all the rest of his uttering the greatness of the victory (with fleet was either taken or funk. Neither did as much pomp, as before he had covered in Menclaus any longer strive against the vio- with silence) in the hearing of all the prolence of fortune; but yielded up all that he ple; who with loud acclamations, gavether held in Cyprus, together with his Army, con- name of King, both to Antigonus and his fon fifting of twelve thousand foot, and a thou- Demetrius. Antigonus, in requital of the long fand and two hundred horse, and those Gal- suspence, wherein Aristodemus had held him. lies in the Haven of Salamis. The same de- said, That it should also be long ere herejection of spirit was found in the common ceived his reward. But the Title of King, Souldier, as well that was taken at Sea, as together with the Diademe, which his that had served the Egyptian by Land; none friends did set on his head, he could not of them reposing any more confidence in wish a fairer occasion to assume: wherefore Ptolong, but willingly becoming followers he readily accepted them, and fent the like of a new Lord, whose Army they now in- to his son. creafed.

depended on the event of this fight, than the Kings; it was not long ere their fellows were Ifle of Cyprus, for which they contended. ready to follow the good example. Ptolomy Wherefore the common expectation was his friends would by no means endure, that great; especially Antigonus, whomit most their Lord should be thought a mandejestconcerned, was deeply perplexed with cares, ed for the loss of a fleet; therefore they sathinking every day a year, till he were ad- luted him also King. Lysimachus in Thrace had vertised of the islue. In this mood Aristode- boldness enough to put the Diadem about mus found him, a noble flatterer, whom De- his own head. Seleucus had, before this metrius had honoured with the Message of time, among the barbarous people, taken these good news. Aristodemus had be- upon him as King: but now he used the stille thought himself of a trick, whereby to indifferently, as well among the Greek and double the welcome of his joyful errand: | Macedonians, as in dealing with others On-He caused his ships to ride at Anchor, a ly Cassander held himself contented with his good distance from the shore; he himself own name whereby, howsoever he might landed in a Cock-boat, which he fent imme- shadow his pride, he no way lessened the diately back to the ship; and so all alone same of his cruelty against his Masters house. he went forward, looking very fadly, that But the name which he forbore, his forsafno part of his tidings might appear in his ter him were bold to usurp, though with countenance. Report of his arrival (for it ill fuccess, as will appear when they shall was not known where he had been) came enter upon the Stage, whereon these old prefently to Antigonus, who fent Messenger | Tragedians, under new habits, as no lonafter Messenger to meet him on the way, and ger now the same persons, begin to play bring speedy word how all went. But nei- their parts, with bigger looks, and more ther any answer, nor so much of a look, as boistrous actions, not with greater grace might intimate the purport of his errand, and judgement, than in the Scenes already could be won from this demure Gentleman. past.

himself, but went down to meet him at the Whatloever the causes of this victory Gate, and hear the news. Then did drive

When it was once noyfed abroad, that It was generally believed, that much more | Antigonus and Demetrius called themselves of the Wars between the Kings of Egypt, Afia, Macedon, Thrace, and others untill all Alexanders Princes were consumed.

CHAP.

y. I.

The Expedition of Antigonus against Egypt, with ill success.

of the Navy Demetrius was Admiral.

he made : thinking by celerity to pre- ill attended. cover: Demetrius himself, with the best and leaving Egypt,

LI the rest of these Kings had strongest vessels, did so long bear it up taken that name upon them, in against the wind, that all his fresh water imitation of Antigonus himself, was spent; in which extremity, he and all as befeeming his greatness: his must have perished, had not the tempest which was such as gave him ceased when it did, and Antigonus appeared hope to fwallow them up, together with in fight, from whom these over-wearied, their new titles. Being not ignorant of his thirsty and Sea-beaten Souldiers received own ftrength, he resolved to single out relief. After these painful travels, there Ptolomy, and make him an example to followed a War no less painful than to little others; who should hardly be able to stand, purpose; for Ptolomy had so fortified all the when the greatest of them was fallen. To passages upon the River of Nilus, as he asthis purpose he prepared an army of eight- sured himself either to end the war there, or teen thousand foot, and eight thousand if his guards should happen to be forced, yet horse, with fourscore and three Elephants; could it not be done but so much to the as likewife a fleet of an hundred and fifty weakning of the Affailants, as he should af-Gallies, and a hundred ships of burthen, terward, with a second Army (which he The Land forces he commanded in person: held entire) entertain the Invader upon advantage enough. All that Antigonus When all was ready for the journey, the fought, was to come to blows speedily: Pto-Sea-men advised him to stay yet eight days lomy on the contrary, to beat Antigonus by longer, and expect the fetting of the Plei- the belly. It is true that Nilus gave him waades. But his hasty defire to prevent all pre- ter enough, but wood he had none to warm parations for refiftance that Ptolomy should it: and while Antigonus affaulted the Rammake, rejected this counsel; imputing it piers, raised upon the River, in vain, Ptolomy rather to their fear than skill: wherefore he affayed the faith of his fouldiers, with good departed from Antigonia (a Town which success; for, with great gifts, and greater he had built in syria, and called after his promifes, he ferried them over so fast, as had own name, that was foon changed into Se- not Antigonus thrust some assured Regiments leucia, by his mortal enemy) and came to upon the passages next the enemy, and in Gaza, where he met with his Fleet. The the mean while taken a resolution to renecrer that he drew to Egypt, the more haste turn, Ptolomy had turned him out of Egypt vail more than by his great power. He Some of them indeed he laid hands on, caused his Souldiers to carry ten dayes pro- in the way of their escape, and those he put vision of Victuals; and had many Camels to death with extreme torments; but in all loaden with all necessaries for passing the likelihood with the same ill success that Per-Defarts, over which he marched with no diceas had formerly done, when he invaded fmall toil, though he met with no refistance. Egypt, had he not readily removed his Ar-At Mount Galfas, which is near adjoyning my further off, from the noyfe of their ento Nilm, he faw his Fleet riding at Anchor, tertainment, that had already been won not far from the shore, in ill case, and many from him. To prevent therefore as well Ships wanting. It had been forely beaten the prefent danger of his stay, as the shame with foul weather, wherein some were lost, following a forc'd retrait, he secretly praothers driven back to Gaza, or cattered ctifed the advice of his Councel, upon whom ellewhere into such creeks as they could rett is more icis prejudicia. and losses, be where the advantage of power, and of all cates, that errors, dimonours, and other warlike provision promised him vi-laid on Counsellors and Captains, than on other warlike provision promised him vi-Kings; on the Directed, than on the Dire- Ctory. things; on the Enected, than out and reputation of a At this time the City of Rhodes was very cross for the honour and reputation of a Prince is far more precious than that of a mighty, being well governed, and having Vrince is far more precious than that of a linguisty seeing the gottlett, and naying Vallal. Charls the fifth as many other Prin long held it felf in good Neutrality 5 it drew valual. Charts the intigas many other training and differences have done, laid the loss and differences, by the parts, and therein a great deal of richesto way of Provence, to Antonie de Leva, whee it felf; to maintain which, and to encrease ther justly or no, I know not; but howfo- it, it furnished and kept on the Seas a Flee ever, all the Historians of that time agree, of well armed Ships, by which it not only that the forrow thereof cost that brave Cap- beat off all Pyrates and petty Theeves, but tain his life. Certainly to give any violent the reputation of their frength was thereby advice in doubtful enterprifes is rather a fo much increased, as all the neighbour testimony of love, than of wisdom, in the Princes fought their alliance and confedent giver; for the ill fuccess is always cast upon racy. the Counsel, the good never wants a Father, though a false one, to acknowledge it. Yet they must either refuse all that soughthem, I have fometime knownit, that great Com- and fo ftand friendless and apart; or joyn manders, who are for the prefent in place of themselves to some one, and thereby foregoe Kings, have not only been diffwaded, but the peace, by which their greatnes had held, in a kind, by ftrong hand, from haz-grown) their affections carried them to the zarding their own persons, and yet have Egyptian: both because the greatest part of those kind of Mutiners never been called to their trade lay that way, as also for that Ana Marshals Court.

Zzzz

ø. II.

How the City of Rhodes was befieged by De-

it many dead carcalles, and a great paration, to purfue the War aganst them deal of joy in Egypt. Ptolomy held a folemn openly and ftrongly. All things foon after Feast, and sent Messengers abroad, loaden ordered according to the greatness of the with glad news, to Sciencus, Lysimachus, and enterprise, he employed his Son Demarius Cassander, his Confederates: strongly encou- against them in their own Island, who raging all that fide, with the report of this brought fuch terror upon the Citizens, that his late felicity, though it appeared but in a laying afide all respect of friendship and ho defensive War. Antigonus on the contra- nour, they offered him their affiftance and ry, flattered himself with another interpre- fervice against whomsoever. Demetring, who tation, calling the joyes of his enemies for knew from whence this change came, and witnesses of his own greatness, seeing they that the alteration was perswaded by arose but from so little things: his enemies fear, and not by love; raised his demands being but bare favers by the last bargain, to an intolerable height, requiring a hunand himself, as he supposed, having lost but dred Hostages to be delivered him, and lia little time, and no part of his honour in berty to lodge in their Port as many hips of the late retrair. Howfoever it were yet he War as himfelf pleafed. These conditions, meant to follow his affairs henceforth in more properly to be imposed upon a State another fashion; for that which he could not cleave a funder by great blows, he purposed by little and little to pare off, by another off the hearder fashion. cutting off the branches first, to fell the lost courage, and made them resolve to de-Tree it self with the more facility. To effect fend their liberty to the last manthis taught which, he refolved (leaving the great ones them to infranchife all their able bond-men, to grow awhile) to root up the Dependants and wifely rather to make them their felof his Enemies: Dependants, whom the low-Citizens, than to make themselves felfore-named Confederates should be forc't low-slaves with them. cither torelieve, or to lose; and hereby he Demetrius having refused the fair condi-

It is indeed less prejudicial in fuch like doubted not to draw them into the field,

In this fo dangerous a time (in which tigonus his disposition, greatness, and neighbourhood was fearful unto them. This affection of theirs, with some other passages more apparent, gave argument of quarrel to Antigonus, who began to declare himself against them by petty injuries, of taking fome of their ships, with such other griev-His departure of antigonus, left behind ances, while he made a more weighty pretions offered (as the Rhodians the fearful ones propounded unto them) makes preparation for a long fiege, and finding no appearance to carry the place in fury, he fet in hand with his Engines of battery; in the invention and use of which he did never shew himself a greater Artisan, than in this War. But in conclusion, after the Citizens had fuftained all the affaults given them for a hand Army into Greece, quickly drave whole year, after many brave fallies out of cassander, out of Attica; and pursuing his us had formerly taken from him; neither did try, bestowing liberty upon such as needed Caffander make the War as in former times, it. The Town of Sicyon he translated by fuccess) did Polysperchon invade Peloponnesus. gotten by fetting all Greece at liberty.

Officers of the City.

CHAP. VI.

ther it were not lawful to call him a god. gods, and just with men. The Priests which attended in the Temple of Hammon, gave the same fair answer for tent themselves with the style of Kings, but that they would needs be called gods.

ø. III.

How Demetrius prevailed in Greece. Caffander desires peace of Antigonus, and cannot obtain it. Great preparations of War against Antigonus.

Emetrius coming with a strong Fleet the Town, and the famine which they en- fortune, ichased him beyond the straits of dured within the Town, which had proved Thermopple. Herein his reputation did much farmore extream, if Ptolony had not with avail him; which was fo great, that fix manyhazzards relieved them, Demetrius by thouland of his enemies Souldiers revolted mediation of the Grecian Embassadors, gave unto him. So, partly by the greatness of his over the fiege; a hundred hostages they gave name, partly by force, he recovered in short him for performance of the peace made, but | space all that Cassander held in those straits, with exception of all the Magistrates and and giving liberty unto the people, he beflowed upon the Athenians those pieces, Hereunto Demetrius was brought by the which had been fortified against them, to usual policy of War, and State: for while block them up. Then went he into Pelowith the flower of all his Fathers forces he ponnesus, where he found the like, or more lay before Rhodes, Cassander recovered ma- easie success: for he suddenly took Argos, ny of those places in Greece, which Demetri- | Corinth, Sicyon, and the most of the Coun-

by practice and surprise, but by a strong and consent of the Citizens, from the old seat well compounded army, which he himself into another place, and called it after his lead as far as into Attica, and therewith own name, Demetrius. This done, he betook greatly distressed and endangered Athens it himself to his pleasure. At the Isthman games self. On the other side (though with less | he caused himself to be proclaimed Captain General of Greece, as Philip and Alexander These dangerous undertakings upon Greece, had been in former times: whereupon (as advised the Athenians and Ætolians to di- if he were now become as great as Alexanspatch their Embassadors towards Demetri- der) he despised all others, making it a w, and advised Demetrite rather to abandon matter of jest, that any, save himself or his the enterprise of Rhodes, than to abandon father, should usurp the Name of King. But the great honour which he had formerly in his behaviour he was so farr unlike to a King, that in all the time of his leasure, he Demetrius was no sooner out of the Island, deserved none other name than of a drunthan that the Rhodians erected Statues in ken Palliard. Yet were the Athenians as reahonour of Lysimachus and Cassander; but for dy as ever to devise new honours for him: Ptolomy, whom they most affected, and from among which they made one Decree, That whom they received their most relief, they whatsoever King Demetrius should comconsulted with the Oracle of Jupiter, whe mand, ought to be held sacred with the

All Greece being now at the disposition of Antigonus, Cassander stood in great fear, lest Ptolomy, which they had formerly done for the war should fall heavily upon him in Alexander his Master; for as Alexander con- Macedon: which to avoid, he knew no betfulted the Oracle with an Army at his heels, ter way than to make peace with his enefo was Ptolomy at this time Lord of the foil: mies betimes. And to that purpose he sent and yet was this a far more cleanly creation Embassadors; but had no better answer than that done by the Athenians, who dei- from Antigonus, than that he should submit fied Antigonus and Demetrius by decree of his whole estate to his discretion. This proud the people. A mad age it was, when so ma- demand made him look about him, and lany of Alexanders Captains could not con- bour hard in folliciting his friends, both to affift him, and take heed to themselves; neither found he them flow in apprehending the common danger: for Lysimachus knew that if once Cassander had lost Macedon, De- end he might not be driven to leave any that it once canadate had been of Thrace. part of his Army for defence of the Coun-Metrius would look be vialtet to the Country and that his journey might be without. Neither were Ptolomy and Selencus igno-trey; and that his journey might be without. rant of that which was like to befall them, any fuch blemish of reputation, as if he had rant of that which was fine to but himself in abandoned his Dependants: for one Article it Antigonus were unifered to put limited.

Zzzz 2

of the Peace was that all the Cities of Grave wherefore it was agreed, that with joint should be at liberty. Cassander was glad to forces they should all together set upon the be so rid of an Enemy that was too strong common enemy.

all their preparations, faying, That he would contrariwife than they did in Afasteeingthe as easily scatter them, as a flock of birds ratification thereof was referred unto Antiare driven away with a frone. With these gonus. It sufficed, that for the presenters conceits he pleased himself, and no way hin-ry one found means to clear himself of all dred the proceedings of his Enemy. He lay incumbrances elfe-where, to the end that atthat time in his Town of Antigonia (a name each of them might freely apply himlest that it must shortly lose) where he was care to the tryal of the main controversiein. fully providing to fet out some stately game Asia. and Pageants, in oftentation of his glory. But thither was brought unto him the tumultuous news of Lysimachus his victories about Hellespont. For Cassander had committed un- How Antigonus was slain in a great battel at to Lysimachus part of his forces, wherewith topass over into Asia, while he himself with the rest should oppose Demetrius on Europe fide. So Lysimachus passing the Hellessont, Selencus, with his Son Antiochus, joyning began to make hot war upon the subjects of With Lysimachus, compounded a great Antigonus; getting some of the Cities in Army, which was (all considered) notinthose parts, to joyn with him by fair means: feriour to that of the Enemy. In greatness winning others by force, and wasting the of name (that helpeth much in all Wars, Countrey round about. tigonus made hasty journeys, and came soon adversaries: for Antigonus had of long time enough to recover his losses, but not strong kept them under with a mastering spirit, and enough to drive Lyfmachus home, or com- had been reputed a King indeed, when the pel him to come to battel. Lysimachus waited rest were held but Usurpers of the Title, for the coming of Selencus; keeping him-Likewise Demetrius was generally acknowfelf the whilest from necessity of fighting, ledged a brave Commander, having given But Babylon was far off; and Seleucus his proof of his worth in many great lervices preparations were too great to be foon in a of all kinds, and enriched the art of war readiness. The Winter also did hinder his with many inventions, which even his enejourney : which inforced them on both mies, and particularly Lyfimachus, did much fides to rest in some quiet, without perform- admire. Selenens, who had some times slating any matter of importance. This delay tered Antigonus, and fearfully ftolinaway of debating the quarrel in open field, held from him to fave his live, with young dmiall those Nations in a great suspence, and ochus, a Prince not heard of before this jourbred much expectation. Yet might all have ney; and Lysimachus, that had lived loogin come to nothing, had not Antigonus been fo a corner, hardly keeping his own from the forward, that he refused to yield upon any wilde Thracians; wanted much in reputation peaceable conditions. At length selencus on of that which was yielded to their oppodrew neer with a mighty Army of his own fites: yet so, that as ancient Captains under (for he had gathered strength in that long Philip and Alexander, two of them were time of leafure, which Antigorus had given held worthy enough to receive any benefit him) and with great aid from Ptolomy, that that fortune might give, and the third a was joyned with his forces.

To help in this needful case, Demetrius to make experience. was called over into Affa by his Fathers letters: which he readily obeyed. Before his most part hardy and well exercised: many departure out of Greece, he made peace with of them having ferved under Alexander Cassader, upon reasonable terms: to the though of those old Companies, the long for him. Yet would this league have done Hereof Antigonus had notice:but formed him little good, if things had fallen out:

o. IV.

Iphis, neer unto Ephefus; wherein his whole estate was lost.

but especially in the Civil) they were ra-To repress this unexpected boldness, An- ther unanswerable than unequal to their Prince of great hope, whereof he now came > private with his fon whom he commended blesome life. to the Army as his Successor: whereas in racle, had chanced.

CHAP. VI. good Captain.

charged valiantly upon young Antiochus; rified upon his Son. whom when he had broken, and put to flight, he was fo transported with the heat of his good success, that he never gave over his pursuit, but left his Father naked, and lost thereby both him, and the victory. For when seleucus perceived this advantage, he enterposed his Elephants, between Demetrius and the Phalanx of Antigonus; and with many troops of horse offering to break up-

fpace of two & twenty years had confirmed on the enemies battel, wherefoever it lay space of two & Cherry, But concerning their most open, he did so terrifie the Antigonians, the greatest number. Substance of Scharger was that a most open, he did so terrifie the Antigonians, the greatest quantities affections, the followers of selencer were that a great part of them rather chose to affections, the control of the state of the eany permanent the upper hand, or put in fairly invited, than to fustain the fury of fo muttermer get all that belonged unto the dangerous an impression. This cowardize, extreme uning in the covardize, Confederate Princes; whereas Antigonus or rather treason of some, discouraged Contestate a lines, and other necessity of others; and finally, cast them all into flight; nismentonia the obliniate quality of their exposing their General to the last end of his lightings that needs would be Mafter of all. destinies Antigonus was then four core Lord that had about threefcore and ten years olds every fat and unwildy, fo that he thouland foot, ten thouland horse, and three- was unape for flight, if his high spirit could thousand force and fifteen Elephants. His enemies have entertained any thought thereof. He were fix thouland fhort of him in number of had about him fome of his most trusty foltheir foot; in horse they had the odds of lowers, and as many others as he could hold fivehundred; of Elephants they had four together. When one that perceived a great hundred, and an hundred and twenty arm-troop making towards his person, told ed Chariots of War: which helps, though him, Sir King, jonder company means to they little had availed the Persians, yet were charge you; He answered, Well may they; they not to be despised, in the hands of a for who defends me? but anon Demetrius will relieve us. Thus expecting to the ve-Antigonus himself, either troubled with ry last, that his Son should come to the rethe unexpected greatness of his enemies sque, he received so many Darts into his forces, or prefaging little good like to en- body, as took away his lately ambitious but fue, grew very penlive, communing much in then fearful hopes, together with his trou-

His great ability in matter of Arms, former times he had never been so jocund, together with his unsatiable defire of Emas towards the hour of battel, nor had pire, have fufficiently appeared in the been accultomed to make his son, or any whole Volume of his actions. He was other private to his counsel, before it requi- more feared by his enemies, than loved by red execution. Other tokens of bad luck, his friends; as one that could not modeeitherforegoing the fight, or afterwards de- rate his fortune, but used insolence tovised, I hold it needless to recount. Diana of ward all alike, as if it had been some Ephefus dwelt neer to the place of battel, a vertue neerest representing a Kingly Mabusic goddess in many great fights; and jesty. This was the cause that so many of therefore likely to have been thrust into the his followers revolted to his enemies; fable, if any matter neerly resembling a mi- and finally, that a great part of his Army forfook him in his last necessity. For It is easie to believe, that these two so those Kings and Princes that call all the gallant Armies, containing well neer all the carefull indeavours of their Vassals, only strength of Alexanders whole Empire, per- duty and debt; and are more apt to puformed a notable fight, being led by fuch nish the least offences, than to reward the worthy Commanders, and whom the iffue greatest services: shall find themselves upthereof did highly concern. Yet are few of on the first change of fortune, (feeing it the particulars recorded: an easie loss in re- is love only that stayes by adversity) not gard of the much variety, wherewith every only the most friendless, but even the story aboundeth in this kind. The most me- most contemptible, and despised of all morable things in the battel, were these: other. This Antigonus found true in part, Demetrius with his best force of horse, while he lived; in part he left it to be ve-after his overthrow, was reconciled to Seleucus and Ptolomy, beginning a new fortune, and shortly entring into quarrels.

OR Demetrius, at his return from the troops to re-inforce the Army which science idle purfuit of young Antiochus, finding led, who took hold of a part of Affa the lefs. all quite loft, was glad to fave himself, with and all syria, being no otherwise dyided four thousand horse, and five thousand foot, from his own Territory, than by the River by a speedy retrait unto Ephesius, whence he of Euphrates, For there had not any order made great haste unto athers, as to the been taken by the Confederates for the diplace, that for his fake would fuffer any ex- vilion of all those Lands: because the tremity. But whilest he was in the midst of not expect so prosperous an illus of that his course thither, the Athenian Embasia- War, which they made only in their own dours met him with a decree of the people, common defence. It was therefore lawful which was, that none of the Kings should for selencus, to make the best benefit thathe be admitted into their City. These were could of the Victory, at which nevertheles Embassadours, not Theori, or Consulters others did repine; and though they neither with the Oracle. It was a shameless ingra-could nor durst accuse him of ill dealing for titude in the Athenians, to reward their the present, yet seeing the over-grangs of Benefactor, in his mifery, with such a decree: Seleneus brought no less danger to the rest neither did any part of his calamity more of the new Kings, than that of Anticonus afflict the unfortunate Prince, than to see his had done, they consulted upon the same reaadverfity despised by those whom he had son of State as before, how to oppose it in thought his furest friends. Yet was he fain time, Neither was selencus ignorant of what to give good words. For he had left many they had determined; for he read it in the of his ships in their Haven, of which he now Law universal of Kingdoms and States, needflood in great need; and therefore was fain ing no other intelligence. Hereupon they to speak them fair, that sometimes had grof. forget friendships on all sides, and one ly flattered him. But he shall live to teach themselves of all unprostable passion: the them their old language, and speak unto hatred of each to other, and their lows them in another tune. When he had goting laid on the one side, against their profits ted his ships, he sailed to the Islamus, where on the other, were found to far too light, as he found nothing but matter of discomfort. Selencus, who had to day flain Antigonus the His Garrisons were every where broken up; Father, and driven Demetrius the son out of the Souldiers having betaken themselves to Asia, sought to morrow how to match him his enemies pay. So that he was King only lelf with Stratonica, Demetrius his Daugh of a finall Army and Fleet, without mony or ter; and fo by Demetrius to ferve his means wherewith to fustain him and his fol- turn against Lysmachus. lowers any long time. All the reft, or the The flory of this Stratonica, with whom greatest part of his Fathers large Dominion, young Antigonus, the Son of Selences fell lo was now in dividing among the Conque- passionately in love, and so diftempered, as rors, and those few places which as yet held Selenew his Father, to fave his Sonsillegave for him (having not perchance heard the her (though the were his Wife) unto him; worst of what had happened) he no way and how his passion was discovered by his knew how to relieve: for to put himfelf in-pulle, is generally noted by all Writers But to the field on that fide of the Sea, he had neither did this alliance between selences no power; and to inclose himself in any of and Demetrius; between Ptolomy and Lyfthem, how firong foever, were but to impri- machin; between Demetrius and Coffander; fon his fortune, and his hopes, or therein in- between Demetrius and Ptolomy, though deed to bury himself and his chate: He for the present it brought him again into therefore creeping thorow those bushes that the rank of Kings; otherwise tye any of had fewest bryers, fell upon a corner of Ly-them to each other, than the marriage be simaehus his Kingdom, whereof he gave all tween Christian Kings have done in latter the fooil that was gotten, to his Souldiers, times, namely between the Austrians, the his own loss having been too great to be Aragonians, the French, and other Princes, repayed again by small prizes.

ces had wherewithall to busie themselves, in the partition of those Provinces, of which How Demetrius, forfaken by the Athenians their late victory had made them Lords: wherein Seleucus had a notable advantage by being present, and Master of the field for neither Ptolomy nor Cassander were at the overthrow given, having only fent certain neither have the Leagues of those elder In the mean while the Confederate-Printimes been found more faithful, than those tones or compensation of Francis the First, thousand talents of his Fathers Treasure, charutte compress Naples, Dukes of Millan, that would ferve him to make sport a while, and of the Kings of Naples, Dukes of Millan. and others, the Reader may observe : beand outers, the the year of our Lord one gry terms he demanded the Cities of Tyre tween whom and five, when and sidon, to be furrendred unto him; which Charls the Eighth undertook the Conquest were the only places in Syria, that had not died; the Histories of those times tell us, that all the bonds, either by the Bed or by the Book, either by Weddings or Sacramental Oaths, had neither faithful purpose this profit by giving his Daughter to his from Plistarchus, the Brother of Cassander, who had gotten it as his share in the divifion of Antigonus his poslessions: for the Intruder was not ftrong enough to hold it by his proper forces, from him that entred upon it as a lawful heir; neither would selen- found friends out of envy to the stronger. cus lend him any help, as by the Rule of Confederacy he should have done against the common enemy. So Plistarchus with very angry complaint, as well against seleucus as Demetrius, went unto Caffander; whither Phila, their Sifter, followed him thortly, to pacifie them both, and keep all quiet; being fent for that purpose by Demetrius her Husband, that was not strong enough to deal with Caffander; and therefore glad to make use of that bond of alliance beany good, otherwise than might seem to ad-

have been contented better, that Demetrius, Father-in-law upon the neck of Lysimachus; City, both by Land and Sea. or whether he were indeed greedy of the bargain; he offered to buy of Demetrius for multitude within it, any long time: for it Hereunto Demetrius would not hearken, but command of those Islands, and places abroad, vance their own ambitious defires.

of the same latter times have been, as in the meant to keep as much Land as he could, of the name and the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and of Rories of Charls the Eighth of France, and the Eighth of France, Course the Lagrant and One thougand five lann- followed the fortune of the late great baror trape, and cight, when Henry the Second tel. Instead of giving them up, Demetrins took present order to have them better maned; and spake it stoutly, That were he overcome a thousand times, yet would he not hire Seleucus to become his Son-in-law. nor performance. Yet did Demetrius reap In this quarrel seleucus was generally reprehended, as one of a malignant disposition, enemy scleucus, that he recovered silicia that would break friendship with his Father-in-law for two Towns, from whom he had already taken more than well he knew how to govern. But the fire confumed it felf in words, which had it fastned upon arms, like it is that the weaker thould have

ø. VI.

How Demetrius wan the City of Athens, and prevailed in Greece, but lost in Asia. Of troubles in Macedon following the death of Caffander.

IN the mean while, the Athenians not knowing how to use the liberty which Demetrius had bestowed on them, were twixt them, whereof in his own prosperity, fallen by sedition, under the Tyranny of Lahe never took notice to the others good. | chares. Through which alteration their di-About the same time he took to Wife a stemperedCity was so weakned, that it seem-Daughter of Ptolomy (plurality of Wives being familiar with these Macedonians, that had learned it in their Eastern Conquests) hastened him, whom they had once called and so was he by two marriages rather freed their God and Saviour, to present himself unfrom two enemies, than strengthened with to them, in the habit of a revenging fury. He two friends; for neither of them wished him brought against them'all the force that he could well spare from other employments, which were at that time perhaps the more, seleucus and Ptolomy could both of them because his doubtful Eastern friends, were unwilling to give impediment to any busiwith help of their countenance, should feek ness, that might entangle him in Greece. His his fortune somewhat farther off, than first enterprise in Athens had ill success; a fettle his estate under their noses. Particular- great part of his Fleet perishing in a tempest. ly, seleucus thought that Cilicia lay very fit- But he foon repaired the loss; and (after ly for himself: and Ptolomy had a great ap- some Victories in Peloponness, where he wan petite (which yet he concealed a while) to divers Towns that had fallen from him) rethe Isle of Coprus. Now whether it were so, turning to the enterprise, wasted the Counthat Selencus would fain have set his new try of Attica, and cut off all relief from the

Athens was not able to feed the great ready money, his late purchase of Cilicia. stood in a barren soil, and wanted now the CHAP. VI

CHAP. VI.

739

from whence it was wont to be stored with two younger Brethren, Antipater and Alexvictuals, being also destitute of means to ander, sought for the Kingdom. In this quarkeep fuch a Navy as might bring in fupply, rel Thessalonica the Daughter of King Philip. or dare to do any thing at Sea, against that whom Cassander had married, seemed better of Demetrius. Yet was there some hope of affected to Alexander, than to her elder Son. fuccour from Ptolomy, who (trusting thereby to win the love of Greece) had loaden an barbaroully he flew his own Mother. The hundred and fifty ships with Corn, and sent odiousness of this fact gave a fair lustre to them to relieve the hungry City. But these Alexanders cause: drawing the generality hundred and fifty were unable to deal with of the Macedons to take his part, as in rethree hundred good fighting-ships, which venge of the Queens death, upon that wick-Demetrius had rather they feared to be- ed parricide Antipater. But Antipaterwas conie a prey to him, and therefore hasted so strongly backed by Lysimachus, whose them away betimes, as having done enough, Daughter he had married; that Alexander in adventuring to come so near that they could not hope to make his party good with might be described. This brake the heart out some forein aid. For which cause he of the people, among whom the famine was called in both Pyrrhus and Demetrius; who 6 extreme, that a Father and his Son did how they dealt with him, it will soon appear fight for a dead Mouse, which dropped in the following Tragedy, of him and his down between them from the house top. Brother. Their Father Cassander had been Wherefore they fent Embaffadours to yield one that shifted well for himself, at such time up the Town, and crave pardon, having fo as every man fought how to get somewhat. far offended, that out of desperation, they in the ill-ordered division of the EmpireHe made it a capital offence to propose any mo- was cunning in practice, and a good Soultion of peace. Yet were they fain to abo- dier : one of more open dealing than were lish this Decree, rather because they knew his Companions, but withall more impudent. not what elfe to do than because they hoped rudely killing those, whom others would to be forgiven.

the Victory, did net only forbear to take knocked his head against a wall, upon some away the lives of these unthankful men, opinion of contempt. With Olympias he had which they had submitted unto his mercy; an hereditary quarrel, derived from his Fabut out of his liberality gave them food, and ther, whom the could not abide. Her femiplaced in Office amongst them such as were nine malice did so exasperate him, by cruelmost acceptable to the people. Nevertheless ty that she used against his friends, both live he was grown wifer than to trust them so far and dead; as it made him adventure upon as he had done in times past. And there-shedding the Royal blood: wherewith, fore, when (among other flattering accla- when once he had flained his hands, hedid mations) they bade him take their Havens, not care how far he proceeded in that course and dispose of them at his pleasure; he was of murder. His carefulness to destroy those ready to lay hold upon the word, and leave women and children, whose lives hindred a fure Garrison within their Walls, to keep his purpose, argues him to have been rather them honest perforce. After this he went skilful in matters of Arms, than a valiant into Peloponnesus, vanquished the Lacedamo- man: such cruelty being a true mark of conians in two Battels, and was in very fair wardize, which fears a far off the dangers, possibility to take their City: when the that may quietly pass away: and seeks to dangerous news of Lysmachus and Ptolomy, avoid them by base and wicked means, as that prevailed faster upon him essewhere, never thinking it self safe enough, until there than himself did upon his enemies in Greece, be nothing left, that carries likelihood of called him in all hafte. Lysimachus had won danger. Of Olympias and Roxane it may be many Towns in Asia; Ptolomy had gotten all said, that they had well-deserved the bloody the Isle of Cyprus, except the City of Sala- end which over-took them; yet ill-beseemed mis, wherein Demetrius had left his Chil- it Cassander to do the Office of a Hang-man. drenand Mother, that were strainly besieg- But Alexanders children had by no Law of ed. Whilft he was bethinking himself which men, deserved to dye for the tyranny of their way to turn his face, a notable piece of bu- Father, Wherefore, though Cassander died in finels offered it felf, which thrust all other his bed, yet the divine Justice brought caresout of his head.

more wifely have made away. He deeply Demetrius, contented with the bronour of hated the memory of Alexander, that had fwords upon his wife and children, that well Caffunder was lately dead in Macedon, and revenged the cruelty of this bloody man, by foon after him, Philip his eldeft Son, whose deftroying his whole house as he had done his Masters.

ø. V I I.

of Macedon with Lyfimachus.

covered the Kingdom of Epirus, and was on it was throughly fettled. fettled in it, then fell out that business beboth him and Demetrius into Macedon.

forced the Brethren to composition: but their composition would not satisfie Demetrius. of Pyrrhus and his doings in Macedon. The who took the matter hainoully, that he was death of Cassanders Children. Demetrius sent for, and made a fool, to come so far gets the Kingdom of Macedon; prevails in with an Army, and find no work for it. This Was a grinft the Greeks : lofeth reputation in was a frivolous complaint; whereby it aphis War against Pyrrhus, and in his Civil peared, that Demetrius had a purpose to Government, and prepares to win Asia. How do as Pyrrbus had done; and so much more, all confire against Demetrius. Pyrrhus by how much he was stronger. Hereupon and Lyfimachus invade him, his Army it seemed to Alexander a wise course, to regields to Pyrrhus, who shares the Kingdom move this over-diligent friend, by murdering him upon some advantage. Thus Demetrius reported the flory, and it might be Prince Eacides, which perished in War the wisest, believed it not. But the issue against Cassander, was hardly preserved, be- was, that Alexander himself was feasted and ing a fuckling Infant, from the fury of his Fa- flain by Demetrius; who took his part of thersenemies. When his Fosterers had conthe Kingdom, as a reward of the murders veyed him to Glaucias King of Illyria; the excusing the fact fo well, by telling his own deadly hatred of Cassander would have danger, and what a naughty man Cassander bought his life with the price of two hun- had been, that all the Macedonians grew dred Talents. But no man can kill him that glad enough to acknowledge him their shall be his heir. Glancias was so far from King. It fell out happily, that about the betraying Pyrrhus, that he restored him by same time Lysimachus was busied in War force to his Fathers Kingdom, when he was with a King of the wild Thracians: for therebut twelve years of age. Within the com- by he was compelled to feek peace of Demepals offix years, either the indifcretions of his trius, which to obtain, he caused the reyouth, or the rebellious temper of his Sub- mainder of Macedon to be given up; that is, jects, drave him out of his Kingdom, and the part belonging to sutipater, his Son-inleft him to try the world anew. Then went law. At this ill bargain Antipater grievously he to Demetrius (who married his Sifter) sformed, though he knew not how to amend became his Page, followed him a while in it : yet still he stormed; until his Fatherhis Wars, was with him in the great Battel in-law, to fave the labour of making many of Ipfus, whence he fled with him to Ephofus; excuses, took away his troublesome life. and was content to be hostage for him, in Thus in haste, with a kind of neglect, and as his reconciliation with Ptolomy. In Egypt he it were to avoid molestation, were flain the so behaved himself, that he got the favour of Children of Cassander: of Cassander that had Berenice, Ptolomies principal Wife; fo that flain his own Masters Children, in a wife he married her Daughter, and was there- course of policy, with careful meditation upon some home, with mony and men, into (so much the more wicked as the more Epirm; more beholding now to Ptolomy, long) studying how to erect his own house, than to Demetrius. When he had fully re- that fell down upon his grave, ere the earth

It might be thought, that fuch an access of tween the Children of Cassander, which drew Dominion, added much to the greatness of Demetrius. But indeed it shewed his infirmi-Antipater, the elder of Cassanders Sons, ty; and thereby made him neglected by mawas so far too weak for Pyrrhus, that he had ny, and at length hated by all. For he had no defire to attend the coming of Demetrius, no Art of Civil Government : but thought but made an hasty agreement, and divided (or shewed by his actions that he thought) the Kingdom with his younger Brother Alex- the use and fruit of a Kingdom, to be none ander; who likewise felt the aid of Pyrrhus other, than to do what a King listed. He fo troublesome, that he was more willing to gave himself over to Women and Wine, fend him away, than to call in such another laughing openly at those which offered to helper. For Pyrrhus had the audacity to trouble him with supplications, and the terequest, or take as granted, by strong dious discourse of doing Justice. He had hand, Ambracia, Acarnania, and much more more skill in getting a Kingdom, than in ruof the Country, as the reward of his pains: ling it: War being his recreation, and leaving the two Brethren to agree as well as Luxury his nature. By long rest (as fix years they could about the rest. Necessity en-reign is long to him, that knows not how to reign one year) he discovered so much of his profitable Journey into Epirus (for he had worst conditions, as made the people both wasted much of the Country, and brought weary of his idleness; and the Souldiers of home his Army in good case) as of his Infohis vanity. He was freed from care of matters in Asia, by hearing that all was lost: though more especially, by hearing that the Macedons, not only too sumptuous and Ptolomy had with great honour, entertained new-fangled, but very unmanly; and ferand difmiffed his Mother and Children. This ving chiefly to be a daily witness, how afforded him the better leifure of making much he contemned them and their good War in Greece: where he vanquished the Thebans, and won their City twice in short space, but used his Victory with mercy. Against Lysimachus he would fain have done somewhat (the peace between them notwithftanding) at fuch time as he was taken by the Thracians; but Lysimachus was freely little he esteemed it or them) having by a dismissed, and in good case to make resistance ere Demetrius came; fo as this Journey purchased nothing but enmity. Another expedition he took in hand against Pyrrhus, with no better, or rather with worse event. Pyrrbus held fomewhat belonging to Macedon, which he had indeed as honefully gotten, as Demetrius the whole Kingdom; he had also made excursions into Thessaly. But there ous, that Pyrrhus gathered audacity, and inneeded not any handsome pretence of quarrel, seeing Demetrius thought himself strong little relistance. Demetrius lay then sek in enough to over-run his enemies Country, with two great Armies. It is a common the field, had fuch great odds of ftrength, fault in men, to despise the vertue of those, whom they have known raw Novices in and be gone. that faculty, wherein themselves are noted as extraordinary. Pyrrhus was a Captain, of the general hate; which to redres, he whom latter ages, and particularly the did not (for he could not) alter his own great Hannibal, placed higher in the rank of conditions; but purposed to altertheridle Generals, than either Demetrius or any of discourses of him, by setting them on work Alexanders followers. At this time, he mif- in fuch an action, wherein his best qualities fed that part of the Army, which Demetrius might appear, that is, in a great War. His led, and fell upon the other half: which he intent was to invade Asia with a Royal Aroverthrew, not with more commendations my: wherein the fortune of one Battel of his good conduct, than of his private valour, shewed in fingle combate against Pantauchus, Demetrius his Lieutenant; who be- he first made peace with Pyrrhus; that so ing a ftrong man of body, challenged this he might leave all safe and quiet at home young Prince to fight hand to hand, and Then did he compose a mighty Army, of was utterly beaten. The loss of this Battel almost a hundred thousand foot, and twelve did not fo much offend the Macedonians, as thousand horses with a Navy of fivehunthe gallant behaviour of Pyrrhus delighted dred fail, wherein were many thips, far exthem. For in him they feemed to behold ceeding the greatness of any that had been the lively figure of Alexander in his best feen before; yet so swift and useful withall, quality. Other Kings did imitate, in a counthat the greatness was least part of their terfeit manner, some of Alexanders graces, commendation. and had good ikill in wearing Princely vestures: but (said they) none, save Pyrrhus, is like him in deed, in performing the office

by the vertue of the Epirot, than by diffike dangerous to them all, than ever was his of their one. of their own King; whom they began to difesteem, not so much in regard of his un metrins once prevailed in Asia, there could be metrins once prevailed in Asia, there could be lence, that grew daily more and more intolerable. His apparel feemed, in the eyes of opinions. Of his Souldiers lives he was retch. les: and suffered unwifely this un-princely fentence to escape out of his mouth; That the more of them died, the fewer he was to pay, He made a mockery of Justice; and (as it were, to publish unto all his Subjects, how fnew of popularity invited Petitioners, and with a gracious countenance entertained their Supplications, he led the poor Suters after him in great hope, till coming to a Bridge, he threw all their Writings into a River; pleafing himfelf, in that he could fo eafily and fo boldly delude the cares of other men. By these courses he grew soodivading Macedon, had almost won it all with his bed: who recovering health, and taking as made Pyrrhus glad to for fake his winnings

At length he began to have some feeling might give him as much, as the fortune of another had taken from him. To this end,

The terrible fame of these preparations, made Seleucus and Ptolomy suspect their own forces, and labour hard with Lysimachus and Pyrrhus, to joyn against this ambitious Son of Antigonus, that was like to prove more league notes refolved to begin with him his friends; or whether his behaviour de-Therefore they have that quarter of prived him of fuch friends, as would dare to betimes, and each to invade that quarter of prived him of fuch friends, as would dare to bettines, and tack next his own Kingdom. let him hear the unpleafant found of neces-Lysimachus came first, and against him went fary truth. Demetrius with a great part of his Army: great: were it not, that minds prepared with long discontent, are ready to lay hold upon fmall occasions of dislike. All the Camp was in uproar: some wept, others raged, few or none did forbear to utter feditious words, and many defired leave of Demetrius, to go to their own houses, meaning indeed to have gone to Lysimachus. When Demetrius perceived the bad affection of his Army, he thought it the wifest way, to lead the Macedonians further off from Lysimachus their own Country-man, against Pyrrhus that was a stranger: hoping by victory against the Epirot, to recover the love of his followers, in fuch fort that he might afterwards at leifure deal with the other. But herein his wisdom beguiled him. For the fouldiers were as hasty as he, to meet with Pyrrhus; not intending to hurt him, but they daily heard the honourable fame. Some to fet eye on him. His face was not fo well Caria. known as his Helmet; therefore he was ad-

no fecurity for his friends in Europe, what this calamity: whether it were so, that he no tecurity for most refer of old concluded. would not hearken to the good counsel of league foever were of old concluded.

Whilft Pyrrhus was making this triumbut whill the was yet on the way, news were phant entry into the Kingdom of Macedon; but while the brought into his Camp, that Pyrrhus had Lysimachus came upon him very unseasonawon Berrhea. The matter was not over-bly, and would needs have half: faying, that he had done as much as Pyrrhus in the War; and therefore had reason to challenge his part of the gain. The bargain was quickly made, and the division agreed upon: each of them being rather defirous to take his part quietly, than to fight for the whole; as hoping each of them, to work his fellow quite out of all, upon better opportunity.

ø. VIII.

How Demetrius gathering forces, enterprifed many things with ill success, in Greece and Afia. How he was driven upon Seleucus, and compelled to yield himself. His impri-Sonment and death.

THE: Athenians were as unthankful 1 to Demetrius in this his adversity, as longing to see that noble Prince, of whom they had been in former times. For they presently forsook his friendship, and called tpake of his valour; some enquired, others Pyrrhus out of Macedon to be their Patron. answered, of his person, his armour, and Demetrius, when he went against Lysimaother tokens whereby he might be known; chus, had left a great part of his forces in as particularly, by a pair of Goats-horns, Greece, under his Son Antigonus. Therethat he wore on his crest. It was not like- fore it is like, that he had soon gotten an ly, that these men should hurt him. Di- Army, though Phila his Wife (who is vers of them fole away, and ran over in- highly commended for a wife and vertuous to Pyrrhus his Camp: where the news that Lady) did poison her felf, upon desperate they brought, were better welcome than grief for his misfortune. The first, upon their persons. For they said, and it was whom he attempted to shew his anger, true, that if the Macedonians might once were the Athenians that had well deserved get fight of Pyrrhus, they would all falute it. He began to lay fiege to their Town: him King. To try this, Pyrkus rode forth, but was pacified by Crates the Philosopher, and presented himself bare-headed in view whom they had made their spokes-man; of the Camp, whither some were sent be- and taking fair words instead of satisfaction, fore to prepare his welcome. The news of passed over into Asia, with eleven thousand his arrival found a general applause, and Souldiers, meaning to try his fortune against every one began to look out, with desire Lysimachus, for the Provinces of Lydia and

At his first coming into those parts, formouished to put it on: which done, all came tune seemed to smile upon him. For many about him, and proffered their fervice; good Towns, willingly, or by compulsion, neither were there any, that spake for De- yielded to his obedience. There were also metrius; only some (and they the most some Captains that fell from Lysimachus to moderate of tongue) bade him be gone him, with their companies and treasures. betimes, and shift for himself. So Demetri- But it was not long ere Agathocles the Son us threw afide his Malkers habit, and at- of Lysmachus, came upon him with an Artyring himself poorly, did fearfully steal my so strong, that it was not for Demetrius away out of his own Camp, deferving well his good, to hazard his last stock against it.

where the resolved to past through the Pro-gia and Armenia, into Media, and the Pro-gia and the Pro gra and armenia, into areas, and in a demy-Island, wherein vinces of the higher Asia; trusting to find a under fure guard in a demy-Island, wherein were goodly Walks, Orchards, and Parks Kingdom tomewhere in those remote quarters. The execution of this counfel was for hunting. He had all that he afked grievously impeached by Agathoeles: who royally, and friends allowed to visit him, active and their pleasure. Only this counter was allowed to visit him, grievourly impeacined by a safety at his, and their pleasure. Only his liberty pursued him close, and cut off all his propuritied initiation, and take which wayeshe was referved unto the coming of young vinons, arrying min to take a mineraled Antiochus and Etratonica, out of the high courle. In many skirmishes Demetrius vanquished this troublesome enemy: nevertheless, he could not be shaken off, but continued afflicting the poor titulary King, with extream famine. At length, in paffing the riverLycus, so many of Demetrius his men were loft, that the rest could no longer make refiftance: but were driven to travel with Hisafhes were honourably buried in Cofuch fpeed as might well be called a plain rinth; his qualities have appeared in his flight. So that with famine, pestilent diseases following famine, and other accidents of shew it felf hereafter, in times and places war, eight thouland of them were consumed: the rest with their Captain, escaped into Cilicia. Seleucus had gotten poslession of Cilicia, whilest Demetrius was occupied in Greece: yet was it no part of Demetrius his errand, to lay claim to the Country; but with vehement and humble letters he befought his Son-in-law to call to mind their alliance, and to pitty him in his great mifery. These letters, at the first wrought well with scleucus, and he condescended to the request: yet considering further how and (which in those times was a rarecom-Demetrius had carried himself, when he recovered strength after the battel at Ipsus, he changed his purpole, and went against him many children, out of whom he selected with an Army.

of which none took effect, through the jea- years before he died, that so he might conlouse of selencus. Therefore meer despe- firm him in the inheritance of the Kingdom ration enforced Demetrius to fight like a At this, Ptolomy Ceraunus (for all of that mad man, and his turies got him some victo- house assumed the name of Ptolomy) was give ries, though of fmall importance. At length voully incenfed. But no man cared for his fickness took and held him forty days, in anger. Therefore he went to Selenen, who which time, a great number of his few men gave him loving entertainment. There were ranto the enemy. This notwithstanding he now only two of Alexanders Captains left, ftill held out, and once had like to have Selencus and Lysimachus. These two needs taken seleucus in hisbed, had not his com- would fight for it, who fhould be the long ing been discovered by fugitives, that gave eft liver of that brave Company. The true alarm. Finally, when all his Army had ground of their quarrel, was their neer forfaken him, and left him with a few of equality or ftrength, and want of one to part his friends to thift for himfelf, he was com-them. The pretence was the murders which pelled by the latt of those adherents (for Lysimachus had committed upon many of even fome of those few forsook him to his Nobles, together with his poysoning the yield unto seleucus.

Seleucus hearing this, was exceeding glad, dren fled unto Seleucus for aid. But the approbation of his own humanity having frent their first heat of admiration, and fent him very comfortable meflages. by his followers, was fuch, as renewed his began to hearken fo well to Lysimachus, their jealous thoughts; and hindred him from natural Countrey-man, that they forlook admitting Demetrius to his prefence, though Pyrrhus, upon none other ground than

Wherefore he resolved to pass through Phry- otherwise he used him with as much favour. countreys. In this fort he spent three years. now merrily all the while (as one that livingenjoyed the happiness, which with so much travel and blood-flied, he had fought in vain) and then dyed, leaving to his fon Antigonus, the same which his father had left unto himself; that is, friends and hope, actions, and the fortune of his House will convenient.

ø. IX.

The death of Ptolomy, of Lysimachus, and of Seleucus, that was the last of Alexanders Captains: with other occurrences.

Bout the same time that Demetrius died died also Ptolomy King of Egypt, a vertuous Prince, war-like, gentle, bountiful, mendation) regardful of his word. He had, by many Wives and Concubines, Ptolomy Philadelphus, and caused him to Many treaties were held between them; reign together with himself, two or three thocles his eldest son: whose wife and chil-

The Macedons, after seven moneths pause,

CHAP. VII.

Macedon, to take possession of Europe, where | first purchased.

because he was an Alien. This they had there was none to withstand him. But because ne was an him but they did known well enough before: but they did known well enough in edition lightly from known went chough in taking lightly from moneths followed Lylimachus, and others him no great wrong him. Lyfimachus of his fellows, by a bloody death, being him, that they right by years alone, when treacheroully flain by Ptolomy Cerannus, nad regued about by him, and whose friend and Patron he had been. Sethe City of Symmen falling by an earth-called after his name falling by an earthquake, appeared by events, to have forefought with Lylimachus, and Lylimachus was quare, appeared the fall of his house. His own jea- seventy and four. With them ended the lougie, and the inftigation of a mother-in- generation of old Captains, that had feen law, caused him to poyson his son Agatho- the dayes as it were of another World uncles; which drew upon him that War, der the Persian: yet was there left one equal wherein (after the loss of all his to any of them in the Art of War: even fifteen children that were taken away Pyrrhus the Epirot, of whom we spake beby divers accidents) he perished him fore; that is now ready to enter into war with the Romans, a more warlike people seleucus was encountred by Lysimachus than Alexander himself did ever encounteron Asia side, where one battel concluded Of which war, and of which people, it is the war, with Lystmachus his death. It plea- needful that we here make mention, as of fed selencus more than the victory, that he a ftory more important, than any likely was the last of all the great Heroes that fol- to ensue in Greece, or in the great Kinglowed Alexander. For now he seemed to doms that were held by Alexanders Successions himself as Lord and Heir of all the con- fors, with less (and still decreasing) verquered World. So he passed over into tue, than was that, by which they were

CHAP. VII.

The growth of Rome, and settling of the Eastern Kingdoms.

٧. I.

How the Romans enlarged their Dominions in Italy, from the death of Tullus Hostilius, unto such time as they were assailed by Pyrrhus.

ter more important.

Ow Rome was founded by Ro- \ After the death of Tullus Hoftilius (who mulus; settled in good order when he had reigned two and thirty years, by Numa Pompilius; and by was burnt together with his house by lightmany (though small) victories, | ning) Ancus Martius, Grand-child to Numa gathered strength, unto such Pompilius by his daughter, and not much time as it became the head of Latium, by the unlike him in disposition, succeeded in the conquest of Alba, in the reign of Tullus Kingdom of Rome. He walled the City Hostilius: it hath been already noted, in due about; enlarged it with the Hill Aventine, order of time. But whereas now the Roman which he enclosed; built a bridge over Tygreatness beginneth to encounter the pow- bris, and the City of Oftia upon the Sea, fixer of Greece; and extending it felf out of teen miles diftant from Rome. Finally, Italy, to overwhelm the Dominions of other having reigned 24 years, he died, and by his States and Princes: I hold it convenient (as last Will he lest his children in charge in like cases I have done) briefly to set with one Lucumon, the son of Damaratus, a down the growth of this mighty City, in a Corinthian, who avoiding Cypfelus King of compendious relation of those many acti- Corinth his tyranny, had fled into Hetruria, ons, which could not have been delivered & dwelt in Tarquinii, by the name of which in the ages, wherein they were feverally Town he was afterward called Tarquinius. performed, without much interruption of From that City in Hetruria coming to Rome, the History, that was then occupied in mat- and encouraged by fome ominous occurrents, together with his wife Tanaquils prophelie, CHAP. VII.

744

phefic, he grew a favorite of Ancus Martius; Tarquinius Superbus King; returning home by his Grecian wit humouring the factions enforced her Coachman to drive his Chariof the Roman Court, infomuch, that after of over her fathers corps: whereupon the his decease he became not only Potector to street had the denomination of Wickedthe children, but Governour to the City. street. This Tarquine, exercising cruelty the confident, but Governour to the day without justice, and tyranny without mercy, enlarged the Centurions of Horsemen: nei- upon the people and Senators; having tired ther was he less eminent in war, than in himself and them at home, used the same peace: for he prevailed often against the rage of treachery upon his borders. He took Tuscans, and from his victories, the chiefest Oriculum, Suessa, Pometia, and the Gabii. The ornaments of triumph took their original. iffue of befieging Ardea, a town eighteen When this Lucius Tarquinius had reigned mile distant from Rome, was of bad success. 38. years, he was flain by the fons of An- In the heat of which war, his fon Sextus cus Martius, to whom he had been left Tarquinius violently ravished that chash-Guardian. But Tanaquil his wife, perceiving Lady Lucretia, his kiniman Collatines wife: what was done, informed the people, from who in way of expiation for so unchaste a out of an high Turret, that her Husband deed, thought good to walh out those spots was wounded, and fick, but not dangerouf- of infamy with her own blood; so (having ly. And withal fignified unto them, that in first bequeathed the revenge unto her fathe interim of his fickness, one servius Tul- ther Sp. Lucretius Tricipitinus, her husband lius, whom from his birth fhe alwayes pro- | Collatine and Junius Brutus) fhe kill'd her phefied to be born to great hopes (the fon felf:whereupon chiefly by Junius Brutus his of P. Corniculanus, and Ocrifia a well descen- resolution) Tarquinius Superbus, with his ded, but captive woman) brought up in her wife and children, was deposed and banishhouse, and husband unto her daughter, ed; and fled to Porsenna King of Hetruria for should supply her husbands place, in go- succour, in the five and twentieth year of verning the State, until his recovery: which his reign, and the two hundred forty and government, being thus at first obtained by fourth from the building of their City: in cunning, he afterwards usurped as his right. Which space Rome had scarce gotten pollessi-He first ordained Ratements, Subsidies and on of fifteen miles round about her. Valuations of the peoples wealth; among whom, at that time, four fcore thou fand were having expelled Tarquine, and freed his mustered, of which number consisted their Country from that heavy yoke of bondage, whole corporation; & by distinction of Dig- inforced the people by solemn oath, never nities, Ages, Trades, and Offices, he manag- to admit any government by Kingsamongt ed the Kingdom in as good fort, as if it had them: whereupon they ranfacked their Kings been a private houshold. At length, have- goods, consecrated their fields to Mars, and ing two daughters of different natures, the conferred the government of the Stateupon one mild and gentle, the other fierce and Brutus and Collatine. But because the name outragious: and finding also that the two of King was odious in their ears, they changfons of Tarquinius Priscus, Sextus and Aruns, ed the manner of their government, from which had been committed unto his tuition, perpetual to annual, and from a fingle gowere of different dispositions, proportiona- vernment to a double; lest perpetual or sole bly answering to his daughters; he (willing dominion might be some motive to usurto add water, not oyl, to fire) gave the pation; and instead of Kings they called mild daughter to sextus the hot-headed them Confuls, fignifying, as it may be interion, and the violent, to Aruns the gentle preted, Providers: that their titles might in marriage. But whether by intended cour- remember them of their place, which was fes, or by accident, it hapned; the two to be alwayes mindful of their Citizens welmild ones being made away, the furious na- fare. And yet was it so hard fettling of tures were readily joyned in marriage: troubled waters, that the people, afterthis who foon concurring, and calling the Senate innovation of State, fcarce daring to affine together, began to lay claim to the King-themselves of their own security, enforced dom. Upon this tumult, Servius Tullius Tarquinius Collatine to resign up his authohaftening to the Senate, (where he thought rity, fearing that tyranny would be heredi by authority to have bridled infolency) tary, and fuppoling that the very name and was thrown down the stairs, and going home affinity with the house of Tarquine, savoured fore bruised, was slain by the way, when he already of their condition. In his room was had reigned 44. years. Then Tullia his substitute Valerius Publicola, who that he daughter, first proclaiming her Husband might (as his name importeth) be gracious

Junius Brutus by the help of Collatine,

tion, caused his own house to be pulled down, because it was built in a place defenitching after innovations, hoping to reftore villus. the banished Kings; he caused them, pub-block. blemilhed integrity of Brutus, well appeafed Mamilius Tusculanus, stomaching a-fresh at to obtain the rest.

him again in his Kingdom.

in the peoples eyes, gave liberty, in matters yet the edge of Tarquinius his fpleen was not of controversie to appeal from the Confuls quite abated, though Aruns his son, and of control and that he might as well in to the people, and that he might as well in Brutus, his enemy, in fingle combat, had to me perfon, avoid occasion of susping sain person, avoid occasion o their Ladies, whose Champion he was, for down, because a Cittadel. Neither their chaftity, not for beauty, mourned the fible, as if it had been a Cittadel. Neither was Bratus any wayes deficient in matter of lofs of him one whole year. Into this place, greater moment; which concerned as well for the refidue of his year, was fubrogated greated monacty, as their favour: for ha- sp. Lucretius Tricipitinus, father to Lucrethe people, state; that fome greener tia: and in his room (deceasing naturalwing got maching inturatively and in the first rank his own sons, were ly before the year expired) Horatius Pul-

Tarquin, upon his overthrow, feeling the lickly in the Market-place, to be whipt, and lates disaftrous, thought it no boot to strive then to be brought all unpartially to the against the stream, but spent the residue of his time, which was about fourteen years, Hitherto the Romans, having by the un- privately at Tusculum. Yet his Son-in-law all inbred quarrels at home, now hereafter those old repulses, because Porsenna had imployed their military defignments against | made peace with the Romans, and denied Forrainers: first, for their liberty; second- further succour unto the Tarquines, mustered ly, for inlarging of their possessions; and up his Latins, and gave battel to the Rolaftly, for defending their confederate Pro- mans, at the Lake Regillum; where the convinces, and extending their Empire. For flict was fierce, and the issue uncertain, untill Rome, fituated as it were in the mid-way Aulus Posthumus, the Roman Dictator, (for between Latium and the Tuscans, having as they had created this Magistracy greater yet but narrow bounds, being in her mino- than Confuls, purposely for this war, when rity, could not but give occasion of offence | first it was expected) to exasperate his Soulto her neighbours; untill by main opposi- diers courage, threw their own Ensignes tion, having prevailed against her border- amidst the Enemies; and Cossus, or Spurius ers, the used them as instruments, whereby | cassius, (Master of the Horse-men, an affistant Officer to the Dictator) commanded to Their first war, in the first year of Con- take off their bridles, that they might run fuls, was against Porsenna King of Hetruria: with free violence, to recover again their who being over-perswaded by Tarquins la- Ensigns. This fight was so well performed, mentation, came to Rome, together with the | that a report went of Caffor and Pollux, two banished King, and with great forces, to feat | gods, who came on milk-white Steeds, to be eye-witnesses of their valour, and fellow-In the first conflict, Horatius Cocles, having helpers of their Victory; for the General long time born the main brunt of his ene- confecrated a Temple to them, as a stipend mies on the bridge over Tibris, at length, for their pairs. After this the Romans fierce feeling himself too faint to stand against so spirits, having no object of valour abroad, many, caused the bridge behind him to be reflected upon themselves at home; and the broken down, and with his armour, leaping fixteenth year after the Kings expulsion, upinto the River, like a hunted Stagg, refresh-on instigation of some desperate banckrouts, ed his hot spirits, and returned safe to his thinking themselves wrongfully oppressed fellows, with the like resolution to sustain a by the Senate and Consuls, they made an new charge. Porfenna, although by this he uproar in the holy Mount; untill by Menehad well-nigh won the hill Janiculus, which nius Agrippa, his discreet allusion, of the inis the very entrance into the City, and found convenience in the Head and Belly's discord, the Victory, in a manner, assured whis own: to that present occasion, they were reconyet admiring their valour, and terrified by ciled to the Senate: with condition, that the constant resolution of Matins Secuola they might have some new Magistrates (who having by errour flain Porsenna his Se-created, to whom they might appeal in cacretary, in ftead of the King himself, did in less of variance, and make them Solicitors in fcorn of torments threatned, burn off his all their controversies, the Consuls authoown hand) he thought it not any whit prejudicial either to his fafety, or credit, to enter league with them at the worst hand. And people, After this attonement among themselves themselves, they had continual War with dispersed his enemies, and freed his Count the Latines, concerning their bounds and try in the space of fixteen dayes. In the conlimits, and with other neighbouring States. tinuance of this Volscian war, it was that Ab-Among these, the Volsei and Aqui held them pius Claudius, one of the ten men, whom they longelt; who made War of themselves upon had two years before chosen Governours of the Romans: whereby they lost the best the State, and Inactors of Solons laws City in their whole jurisdiction, Corioli.

746

In this conquest, T. Martins got the sur- gating in the mean while the Consuls, and name of Coriolanus: a name honourable all other Magistrates) would have ravished then, as drawn from a great Victory; al- Virginia, the daughter of T. Virginius, Capthough, by reason of the poverty of the tain of a company, and lying then in a camp Town, a Roman General, in after times, at Algidum. Hereupon the people in an would have been ashamed of that title. But uproar took the Hill Aventine, and after ver these graces had been no occasion of dis- much variance, enforced the ten men to paragement, had he not afterwards in a great refign up their authority again to new time of dearth, advised to fell corn, which | Consuls. they procured from Sicil, at too high a rate, to the people, whereupon Decius Mus, their to revenge old losses, drew the Romani into Tribune, in their behalf, accused him, and a new war against the Veienter and their after judgement banished him. Coriolanus adherents, upon whom, having tried their flying to the Volsci, whom lately before he forces with diversity of Captains, and variehad vanquished, incenfed them to renue ty of event, they vanquished the Falilei, and their forces again; which being committed the Fidenates, and utterly subdued the Veiunto him, and to Attius Tullus, he prevailed entes. In conquering the Falifei, Furius in field, fo far forth, that he was come within | Camillus shewed no less integrity than fortifour or five miles of the City. Incamping tude. For when a Schoolmaster, by trainthere, he made so sharp war, and was at such ling forth into the Roman camp, many childefiance with his Country, that he would dren of the principal Citizens, thought to not relent by any supplication of Embassa- betray the Town, yielding them allupas dours, untill his mother Veturia, and Volum- hostages: Camillus delivered this Traitor mia his wife, with a pittiful tune of depreca- bound unto his Souldiers, willing themto tion, thewing themselves better Subjects to whip him back into the City; which forththeir Country than friends to their Son and with yielded unto him in reverence of his Husband, were more available to Rome than justice. The fiege of Veii was ten years, and was any force of Arms. Hereupon Coriolanus fo troublesome, that the Romans were there difmissing his Army, was after put to death first inforced to winter abroad under bealts among the Volfer, as a Traitor, for neglecting | fkins (to which they were the more easily such opportunity: or (as others furmise) induced, because then first they received living with them untill old age, he died na- pay) and to make vows never to return mrally.

Not long after this the Veii in Hetruria, provoked the Romans; against whom the they got so large spoils, that they consecrated Fabii, three hundred and fix in number, all their tenths to Apollo Pythius: and the whole of one Family, intreated and obtained, that people in general were called to the ranthey only might be employed, as it had been lacking of the City. But yet they were no in a private quarrel. These Fabii, after less unthankful to Camillus for his service, fome good services, lying incamped at Cre- than before they had been to Coriolanni; mera, were circumvented, and all flain: one for they banished him the City, upon some only of that whole house had been left, by occasion of inequality in dividing the spoils: reason of infancy, at home; from whom yet he requited their unkindness with a new afterward sprang Fabius Maximus, who piece of service against the fury of the vanquished Hannibal.

troubled with the Volsei, at the hill of Algi- times now) lived so long, that the sons, destidum, two miles from Rome; where Lucius tute of means, were enforced to roave Minutius their Conful, with his whole army, abroad, feeking some place where to let up had been discomfited, had not L. Quintius their rest: and withall being a Nation valte Cincinatus chosen Dictator, and taken from in body, rude by nature, and barbarous in the plough to the highest honour in Rome, conditions, wandred as Rovers over many with fuccess answerable to his expedition, Countries. Some of them lighting on Half, amongst them, procured from Athens (abro-

After this, either new quarrels, or defire without Victory.

At length winning the City by a Mine, Gauls; who being a populous Country, In process of time, the Romans were also and very healthful, the fathers (as somefet upon Clufium a Town in Hetruria: whereof Rome having information (and being careful of her Confederate Towns) fent Embafpeople, not regard by the Roman Embassadours, converted their forces from Chustum towards Rome; and giving a great overthrow unto the Romans, by the River Allia, upon the fixteenth day before the Calends of August (which day was after branded for unlucky, and called Allienfis in the Roman Kalendar)they hastned towards the City. Then was Rome the true map of milery and defolation. For some leaving the City; some creeping into holes; Priests hiding their reliques; and every one shifting for himself ere the enemy came, Rome was a bandoned as indefensible. The Vestal Virgins, in this tumult, were fafely conveyed away; the Ancients of the City, gathering boldness out of desperate fear, did put on their Robes, and taking their leave of the world, did fet themselves in Thrones, in their several houses, hourly expecting the messengers of death, and meaning to dye, as they had lived, in State. The younger fort, with M. Manlius good the Capitol.

who seeing all quiet, at first suspected some | beian. This was after the building of the ambuth; afterward finding all fecure, they | City 365 years. And now Rome, by suppress fell to the spoil, committing all to the fire | sion of her neighbour Countries, creeping Gaules, with open infolency, made their eft City then in all Italy. weights too heavy: Brennus their Captain, . The families of the Papyrii and Fabii were with their blood, forcing them to restore the spoils with advantage, and forbear the gold, in accepting which they had lately ful of her connectine to defiff from fuch heen fo nice. Further, having rid the City of fadours, warning them to defiff from fuch injurious enterprifes. But the barbarous them, he fo hotly purfued them thorowa minimus the mediage, upon great part of Haly, that the remainder of very fmall. Other Armies of the Gaules, which followed this first, had the like ill succefs. They were often beaten by the Romans; especialy the victories of M. Torquatus, and of M. Valerius Corvinus (each of which in fingle fight flew a feveral Champion of the Gaules) abated their prefumption, and reflored courage to the Romans. Camillus, for his notable fervice, was afterwards accounted a fecond Romnlus.

The people, after this destruction of their City, were earneftly bent to go to the Veii to inhabit; but Camillus diffivaded them.

About the same time, somewhat before the fiege of Veii they changed their government from Confuls to military Tribunes. The government of these also, after some years, was by civil diffention interrupted: to that one while Confuls ruled, another while there was an Anarchy. Then the Tribunes were restored and ruled again, till, aftheir Captain, took upon them to make ter many years expired, the Confular authority was established, it being enacted, that By this the Gaules were entred the City, one of the Confuls should alwayes be a Pleand fword. As for the old Senatours, they fate | well forward out of her Minority, dares fet in their Majesty with a grave resolution; forth against the warlike Samnites, who having first reverenced them as gods, anon | dwelt almost one hundred and thirty miles they tryed whether they would dye like off: fituated between Campania and Apulia. men. When the City was throughly rifled, These did so strongly invade the Campanians they attempted the Capitol: which held their neighbours, that they forced them to them work for the space of seven months. | yield themselves subjects to Rome, and un-Once they were like to have surprised it by dergo any conditions of Tribute, or whatnight, but being descried by the gagling of | soever else to obtain protection : which the Geefe, M. Manlius did awaken, and kept Romans, although both Countries had been themfrom entrance. At length a composition their confederates, yet not willing that the was agreed upon: the Gauls being weary, greater, like fish, should devour the lefs, and the Romans hungry. The bargain was, eafily allowed of ; aiming themselves at the that the Gaules should take a thousand good situation of Campania, the abundance pound weight in gold, to defift from their of Corn and Wine, pleasant Cities and siege. Whilst the gold was in weighing, the Towns, but especially Capna it self, the fair-calting his fword into the ballance, and with most imployed in the managing of this War, a proud exprobration, laying, that the van- which endured the space of fifty years. And quished must be patient perforce. But in the in this season were the Romans often times midst of this cavilling came Furius Camillus dangerously encountred by the Samnites, with an Army from Ardea, (where he had as when T. Veturius and Sp. Posthumius lived in his banishment) and fell upon the were Consuls, and discomfitted by Pontius Gaules with fuch violence, that he dispersed at Caudium, with no small ignominy: and their troups, quenched the fire of the City when 2 Fabius Gurges lost the field with many great Victories made large amends: brought them into quiet subjection. The greatest whereof were gotten by L. Papyrius, and by Quintus Fabius Maximus.

Bbbbb

CHAP. VII.

their quarrel. But the force of the Samnites selves as mediatours between the Romans was well broken, ere the Hetrurians (the and Samnites; with a peremptory denumgreater and richer, but less warlike Nation) ciation of War, unto that party which should began to stir. So the one and the other of dare to refuse peace by them tendred. These these two Countries, became at length, tributhreats which discovered their bad affection tary to Rome. In the continuance of this long unto Rome, ended in words; but when the war it was (though in time of truce between Samnites were utterly subdued, matter the Romans and Samnites) that the Latins enough of quarrel was found to examine began to challenge equal freedom in the their ability of performance. Corporation of Rome, and right in bear- The Romans complained that certain files ing office, so that they required to have one of theirs were robbed, and sent Embass. of the Confuls yearly chosen out of them. dours unto Tarentum, to require amends.

reasonable. For the Romans themselves were dours, was laid the foundation of that War. a Latin Colony; besides all which, they wherein the Lucans, Messapians, Brutians. made offer to change their name, and to be and Apulians, joyning with the Tarentines. all called Romans. But the Romans were too procured the Samnites, and other Subiels. proud to admit any fuch capitulation. So a of Rome to rebell and take their part. But great battel was fought between them : fome experience of the Roman strength, the vertue of the Confuls.

were then Confuls, whom the Soothlayers as the Tarentines also were) great hopewas advertised, that the fide should be victorious conceived, that the Dominion of Rome which loft the General in fight. Hereupon should be confined unto more narrow Decius the Conful exposed his life to the ene- bounds than all Italy, which already in a my, and purchased victory (as was believed) manner it did over-spread. by his death. In which kind of devoting himself for his Army, the son of this Decins being after Consul, did imitate his father in the Hetrurian war. But (as Tully well notes) How Pyrrhus warred upon the Romans, and it was rather the desperate resolution of these Decii, that purchased victory, by rushing into the midft of the enemies, wherein their Souldiers followed them, than any great commendation of fuch a religion, as compelled a while to live in reft: which he required the lives of fo worthy Citizens, to abhorred no less then a wifer Prince would be facrificed for their Country. The difei- have defired. He had a frong Army, and a pline of Manlius was no less resolute, than good Fleet, which in that unsettled estate of the valour of Decius. He forbade any one things, was enough to purchase a Kingdom: to forfake his place, and fight fingle with an but the fall of Demetrius had so increased enemy. For breach of which order he caufthe power of Lysimachus, that it was no point ed his own fon to be put to death, who had of wildom to make an offensive war upon flain a Captain of the Latins, being chalhim, without far greater forces: Antigonus, lenged in fingle fight.

nici, Campani, Samnites, and Herrurians, mainder of his Fathers Army and traducts, with fome other people, were brought un- left in his hand. Upon him it is like that der obedience; it was a vain labour for any Pyrrhus might have won; but it was better mans. fortune, and found it bad. For Curius Denta-Yet the Sabines adventured to try their tus, the Roman Conful, wasting all their dours came very fitly to Pyrrhus: and they Country with fire and fword, from the Ri- came with brave offers, as needing no other three thousand men. But for those losses, ver Nar and Velia, to the Adriatique Sea.

The last of the Italians that madetrial of the Roman arms, were the Tarentines and The Samnites drew the Hetrurians into their adherents. These had interposed them.

This demand of the Latins was not un- Upon fome wrong done to these Emballs. wherein the fortune of Rome prevailed, by taught all these people to know their own weakness. Wherefore they agreed to fend Manlius Torquatus and the elder Decius, for Fyrrhus, by whose aid (being a Greian,

ø. I I.

vanquished them in two battels.

Trrbus, forfaken by the Macedonians, and unable to deal with Lysimachus, was the fon of Demetrius, held Corinth at the same When the Latins, the Equi, Volsci, Her- time, and some other Towns, with the repeople of Haly to contend against the Ro- to let him alone, that he might serve to give some hindrance to Lysimachus.

In this want of imployment, and covetous feveral Nations, as much as could be defired. with hopes of goodly conquests; that he might enlarge his Empire to the West, as far asking what he meant to do after every of ed. the victories which he hoped to get : that of all Italy; that, after Italy he would win Carthage, with all the rest of the Councontented with his own.

he prepared his Army, of almost thirty thou- nor feared him their enemy. fand men, well forted, and well trained ly behooving to their estate.

derate with the Tarentines in this War.

their valour was little: all of these had been Camp. accustomed to shrink for fear of the Roman aid than his good conduct, which to obtain, that Pyrrhus relied more upon his own forand train its got themselves under his prothey would can take in their company fome of fes. He was now driven either to fet forward tection. They man the sammites, Lucanians, Mellapians, and with those that himself had brought into the sammes, the sammes, the sammes, the sammes that the sammes wherein little was to be reposed; or else to Reverance and the couraged Pyrrhus, and filled him weaken the reputation of his own fufficiency, which by all means he was careful to uphold. In good time a great part of his formigni curary had gotten Eastward; and ces, that had been scattered by soul weather as Alexander had gotten Eastward; as Auctanate has gotten the gate unto ano- at Sea, were fafely come to him: with ther. To which effect it is faid, that once which he refolved to affay the valour of ther. To what his chief Counsellour, Romans, against whom he proudly march-

747

Lavinus the Conful was not affrighted having won Rome, he would foon be Master with the terrible name of a great King; but came on confidently to meet him, and give quickly get the Ille of sicil; that, out of himbattel ere all his adherents should be sicil, he would pass over into Affrick, and ready to joyn with him. This boldness of the Roman, and the flackness of the Messatrey;and being strengthened with the force | pians, Lucanians, Samnites, and others, whom of all these Provinces, he would be too hard the danger most concerned, caused Pyrrhus. for any of those that were now so proud to offer a treaty of peace; requiring to have and troublesome. But Cyneas enquired yet the quarrel between the Romans and his further, what they should do, when they Italian friends, referred to his arbitrement, were Lords of all. Whereunto Pyrrhus | Whether he did this to win time, that the (finding his drift) answered pleasantly, that | Samnites and their fellows might arrive at they would live merrily; a thing (as Cyne- his Camp; or whether, confidering better as then told him) that they prefently might at neer distance, the weight of the business do, without any trouble, if he could be which he had taken in hand, he were defirous to quit it with his honour; the short Nevertheless, this Italian expedition answer that was returned to his proposition, feemed unto Pyrrhus a matter of fuch confe- gave him no means of either the one or the quence, as was not to be omitted, in regard other: for the Romans fent him this word, of any scholastical disputation. Wherefore that they had neither chosen him their Judge,

Hereupon both Armies hastned their fouldiers: part of which he fent over before march unto the River of Siris: Levinus inhim under Cyness, with the rest he followed | tending to fight before the arrival of the in person. At his coming, he found the Ta- | Samnites; Pyrrhus, to hinder him from pasrentines, very prompt of tongue, but in mat- fing that River, until his own Army were ter of execution, utterly careles to provide full Upon the first view of the Roman Camp, for the war. Wherefore he was fain to it was readily conceived by Pyrrhus, that he thut up their Theater, and other places of had not now to do with barbarous people, pleasure and resort, enforcing them to take but with men well trained in a brave disciarms, and making such a strict muster, as pline of War: which caused him to set a was to them very unpleasing, though great- strong Corps de garde upon the passage of the river, that he might not be compelled to Whilst he was occupied with these cares, fight, until he saw his best advantage. But Lavinus the Roman Conful drew neer, and he quickly found, that this new enemy was began to waste Lucania, a Province confe- not only skilful in the Art of War, but couragious in execution. For the Roman Army The Lucanians were not ready to defend entred the Foord, in face of his Corps de their own Countrey; the sammites were garde; and their horse, at the same time becareless of the harm, that fell not (as yet) gan to pass the River in sundry places: which upon themselves; the Tarentines were better caused the Greeks to forsake the defence of prepared than they would have been, but their bank, and speedily retire unto their

This audacity forced Pyrrbus to battel; fortitude; and therefore it fell out happily, wherewith he thought it best to present them. Bbbbb 2

them, ere the whole Army had recovered than he could many fuch victories. Therefirm footing, and were in order. So dire- fore he thought it good to compound Ging his Captains how to marshal his bat- with them whilest with his honour he tels; himself with the horse, charged upon might; and to that purpose he sent unto the Romans: who floutly received him as them Cyneas his Embaffadour, demanding men well exercifed in fiftaining furious imprefilions. In this fight, neither did his coultive at reft, and himfelf accepted as their premions. In this night, included that the rage transport him beyond the duty of a especial friend. This did Cyness, with all careful General, nor his providence in discussing, and with liberal gifts labour to recting others, hinder the manifestation of effect: but neither man nor woman could be his personal valour. It behooved him indeed found in Rome, that would take any bribe to do his best; for he never met with better of him; neither did their desire of recoveoppofers. Once, and shortly after the fight ring their captives, or their danger, by the began, his horse was slain under him : after- rising of many States in Italy against them, wards, he changed armour with a friend; fo incline them to peace, as the vehement but that friend paid his life for the use of exhortation of Appins Claudius, anold and his Kings armour, which was torn from his blind Senator, did ftir them up to make back. This accident had almost lost him good their honour by war. So they rethe battel; but he perceiving it, discovered turned answer, that whilest Pyrrhus abode his face, and thereby restored courage to in Italy, they would come to no agreement his men, and took from the Romans their with him. vain joy. The fight was obstinate, and Such was the report that Cyneas made at with the greater loss (at least of more emiliars return, of the Roman puillance and vernent men) on Pyrrhus his fide, as long as tue, as kindled in Pyrrhus a great define of only spear and sword were used. But when confederacy with that gallant City. Herethe Elephants were brought into the wings, upon many kind Offices paffed between whose unusual form and terrible aspect, the them: but still when he urged his mohorses of the Romans (unaccustomed to tion of peace, the answer was; He must first the like) were not able to fustain; then depart out of Italy, and then treat of peace, was the victory quickly gotten. For the In the mean feafon, each part made pro-Roman battels, perceiving their horse put vision for war; the Romans levying amore to the rout, and driven out of the field; mighty army than the former; and Pyrhun finding also themselves both charged in being strengthened with access unto his flank, and over-born, by the force and forces of all the East parts of Italy. So and huge bulk of those strange beasts; they came to the trial of a second battel, gave way to necessity, and saved themselves, wherein (though after long and cruel fight) as well as they could, by hafty flight: in the boifterous violence of the Elephants which consternation, they were so forgetful gave to Pyrrhus a second victory. But this of their discipline, that they tarried not to was not altogether so joyful as the somer defend their Camp, but ran quite beyond it, had been : rather it gave him cause to say, leaving both it, and the honour of the day, that fuch another victory would be hisutter entirely to Pyrrhus.

over Italy; and the reputation was no less drave the Romans into their Camp, yet than the fame. For it was a matter very rare he could not force them out of it, nor to be heard, that a Roman Conful, with a fe- faw any likelihood of prevailing against lect Army, should lose in plain battel, not on- them, that were like to be relieved with ly the Field, but the Camp it felf, being daily supplies, whilest he should be driven fo notably fortified as they alwayes were. to fpend upon his old stock. Neither And this honour was the more bravely won could he expect that his Elephants should by Pyrrhus, for that he had with him none of alwayes stand him in stead. A little knowhis Italian friends, fave the unwarlike Taren- ledge of their manner in fight would foon tines. Neither could he well diffemble his teach the Romans, that were apt Schollers content that he took, in having the glory in such learning, how to make them unof this action peculiarly his own, at fuch serviceable. Wherefore he defired nothing time as he blamed the Lucans and Samnites, more, than how to carry his honour for coming (as we say) a day after the Fair. safe out of Italy: which to do (seeing Nevertheless he wifely confidered the the Romans would not help him, by offer ftrength of the Romans, which was such, ring or accepting any fair conditions of as would better endure many such losses, peace, or of truce) he took a sleight orange undoing. For he had loft the flower of his The fame of this victory was foon spread Army in this battel: and though he on, presented by fortune, that followeth to be related.

CHAP VII

ø. HI.

where he is beaten by the Romans, and so goes back to his own Kingdom.

all the Dominions of Lysimachus in Europe, as exile. if they had been the due reward unto him, tion enough to advance himself against Cethe fon of Seleucus, he was far off, and might be questioned about some part of Alia, ere he should be able to bring an Army neer unto Europe. Yet he made great shew of meaning to revenge his Fathers death: but being stronger in money than in arms, he was content, after a while, to take fair words, and make peace with the murtherer. While these three strove about the Kingdom, Pyrrhus, who thought his claim as good as any of theirs, made use of their diffention: threatning war, or promiting his affiltance to every one of them. By these means he strengthened himself, and greatly advantaged his Itatrouble, and quietly enjoy his Kingdom,

Thus Ptolomy grew mighty on the fudden; and the power that by wicked means he had gotten, by means as wicked he encreafed.

All Macedon and Thrace being his, the The great troubles in Macedon and Sicil. How Strong City of Cassandria was held by Arsinoe Prirhus, being invited into Sicil, forfook his fifter, the widow of Lysimachus, who lav traly; wan the most of the Isle; and lost it therein with her young children. Her he in hort space. Pyrrhus returns into Italy, circumvented by making love to her; and (according to the fashion of those times, wherein Princes regarded no degree of confanguinity) taking her to wife, with pro-Then Fiolomy Cerannus had traited mile to adopt her children: a promife that roully murdered his Benefactor and he meant not to perform; for it was not Patron scleucus, he prefently seized upon long, ere he slew them, and drave her into

In the pride of this good fuccess, which that had flain the Conqueror. The houses his villany found, vengeance came upon of Cassander and Lysimachus were then fal- him from a far, by the fury of a Nation that len to the ground: neither was there in he never heard of. Belgius a Captain of the Macedon any man of strength and reputa- Gaules, having forced his passage through many Countreys, unto the confines of Marannus. The friends of Lysimachus were rather cedon, sent a proud message to Cerannus, pleased to have him their King, that had as commanding him to buy peace with money, he professed) revenged their Lords death; or otherwise, to look for all the miseries of than any way offended with the odiouf- war. These Gaules were the race of those, nels of his fact, by which they were freed that iffued out of their Countrey, to feek from subjection, to one, against whom they new seats in that great expedition, wherein had flood in opposition. Many there were, Brennus took and burnt the City of Rome. that upon remembrance of his fathers great | They had divided themselves, at their setvertue, gathered hope of finding the like ting forth, into two companies; of which in Cerainus: perswading themselves that the one fell upon Italy; the other, passing his reign might prove good though his en- through the Countreys that lye on the Nortrance had been wicked. These affections of thern side of the Adriatick Sea, made long the Macedonians did serve to defeat Antigo- abode in Pannoma, & the Regions adjoyning, nus the fon of Demetrius, that made an at- where they forced all the neighbour Princes tempt upon the Kingdom. As for Antigonus to redeem peace with tribute, as now they would have compelled Ceraunus to do: unto whose borders they came about an hundred and eight years after such time as their fellows had taken Rome.

When their Embaffadors came to Ptolomy, alking what he would give : his answer was, that he would be contented to give them peace, but it must be with condition, that they should put into his hands their Princes as hoftages, and yield up their arms 5 otherwise he would neither pardon their boldness, nor give any credit to their words: At this answer, when it was returned, the Gaules did laugh; faying, That they would lian voyage, which he had then in hand: re- foon confute with deeds, the vanity of questing money of Antiochin, ships of Antigo- such proud words. It may seem strange, nus, and fouldiers of Ptolony, who gave him that he, who had given away part of his his daughter in marriage, and lent him a Army unto Pyrrhus, for very fear; should be ftrong power of Macedonian Souldiers, and so confident in undertaking more mighty of Elephants (covenanting to have them re- enemies. The King of the Dardanians offered flored at two years end) more for fear than to lend him twenty thousand men against for love: that so he might free himself from the Gaules; but he scorned the offer; laying, That he had the children of those, which un-

CHAP. VII.

all the East. Thus he issued forth against all thage. To him therefore the Syracusans, Leonthe barbarous people with his famous Ma- times, and Agragentines, principal Estates of cedonians, as if the Victory must needs have the Isle, fent Embassadours, earnessly defifollowed the reputation of a great Name. ring him to take them into his protection. But he foon found his great errour when it was too late. For the Enemies were not on- fuch notable occasions of enlarging his Do. ly equal in strength of body, and fierceness minions, should fall out so unluckily, both at of courage, but so far superiour to the Ma- one time. Yet whether he thought the bucedonians in number, that few or none esca- lines of sicil more important, or more full ped their fury. Ptolomy himself grievously of likelihood; or whether perhaps he be wounded, fell into their hands, whilft the lieved (as came after to pass) that his adbattel continued; and they prefently strook vantage upon Macedon would not so hashily off his head, which they fliewed to his men pass away, but that he might find some oc. on the top of a Lance, to their utter aftonish- casion to lay hold on it at better kissie;

all Macedon with fuch desperation, that the yet not leaving them free as he found them, people fled into walled Towns, and aban but with a Garrison in their Town to hold doned the whole Country as lost. Only so-them in subjection. fthenes, a valiant Captain, animating as many as he could, gathered a small Army, with grounded on head-long passion, than mature which he many times got the upper-hand, advice; so were his actions following, until and hindred Belgius from using the Victory his return into Epirus, rather many and at his whole pleasure. In regard of this his tumultuous, than well-ordered, or notevertue, the Souldiers would have made him worthy. The Army which he carried into King; which title he refused, and was conten- that Isle, consisted of thirty thousand foot, ted with the name of a General. But (as and two thousand five hundred horse: with mischiefs do seldom come alone) the good which, soon after his descent into sicil, he fuccels of Belgins drew into Macedon, Bren- forc't the Carthaginians out of all, in effect, nus, another Captain of the Gaules, with an that they had therein. He also won the hundred and fifty thouland foot, and fifteen | firong City of Eryx; and having beaten the thousand horse; against which mighty Army, Mamerlines in battel, he began to change when softhenes with his weak troops made condition, and turn Tyrant. For he drave eppolition, he was eafily beaten, and the Ma- Softrains (to whom his cruelty was sulpedredonians again compelled to hide them- ed) out of the Island, and put Thenon of Siselves within their walls, leaving all their racing to death, being jealous of his great-Country to the spoil of the Barbarians.

they had not heard of in less than fifty years his fortunes declined to fast, as he ferved after the death of Alexander, who fought to himself, and salved the dif-reputation of his discover and subdue unknown Countries, as leaving Sicil, by an Embassage sent himston if all Greece, and the Empire of Persia had the Tarentines, and Samnites, imploring his been too little for a King of Macedon.

ried to Fyrrhus in Italy, who fought a fair them of all that they had. pretext of relinquishing his War with the diffracted him, and carried him away in pur-fuit of nearer hopes. For after the death of affailed in Haly it felf, by eighteen hundred Romans; had not other tydings out of sicil Agathocles, who reigned over the whole Mamertines, that attended him in the fraits Illand, the Carthaginians sent an Army to of the Country. Lastly, after he had recoconquer Sicil, out of which, by him, they had vered Tarentum, he fought a third battel been expelled. This Army did to faft prevail, that the Silicians had no other hope to victorious over him, and forc't him out of avoid flavery, than in submitting themselves Italy into his own Epirus. cian, and a noble Prince, they thought it constant; and had he been but a General of an more for their good to obey, than to live Army for some other great King or State, and had der the conduct of Alexander had hibdued under the well-known heavy yoak of car.

CHAP. VII.

It grieved Pyrrhus exceedingly, that two over into sicil he transported his Army, The report of this great overthrow filled leaving the Tarentines to shift for themselves

As his departure out of Italy was rather ness; which two persons had faithfully ser-Thus were the Macedonians destitute of ved him, and delivered the great and rich a King, and trodden down by a Nation that City of Syracufe into his hands. Afterthis, present help against the Romans, who fince Very feasonably had these news been car- his leaving Halt, had well-neer disposest

Taking this fair occasion, he imbarked for Italy; but was first beaten by the Cartha-

A Prince he was far more valiant than one Country or Kingdom, it is to be thought, Army. that he would have purchased no less howhereof not long after he died in Argos.

ø. IV.

from Antigonus.

selves from the impotent rule of his Father woods adjoyning, where he lay close, Demetrius. His coming into the Country with an Army, Navy, and Treasure beseem- were not hasty to pursue him, but fell to ing a King, did rather breed good hope in ransacking the empty Cabbins of the Soulthe people, than fill them with much confi- diers; in hope of finding all that was either dence : for he was driven to use against the lost or hidden. At length, when they had Barbarians, only those forces which he searched every place in vain, angry at their brought with him, having none other than loft labour, they marched with all speed togood wishes of the Macedons to take his wards the Sea-side; that they might fall upbut thought to get somewhat for themselves, on the shore, and in such ships as lay on in the ablence of their fellows: and there- ground. ved. He thought hereby to make them un- to the service of Antigonus. derstand how great a Prince he was, and The fame of this Victory caused all the

had been directed to have conquered any how able if need required, to wage a mighty

To which end, he likewife did thew unto nour than any man of War, either preceding them his Campand Navy, but especially his or fucceeding him; for a greater Captain, or | Elephants. But all this bravery ferved only a valianter man, hath been no where found, to kindle their greedy appetites; who fee-But he never flayed upon any enterprise; ing his ships heavy loaden, his Camp full of which was, indeed, the difease he had, wealth, and ill fortified, himself (as it feemed) secure, and his men, both in strength and courage, inferiour unto the Gaules, thought all time loft wherein they fuffered the prefent possessions to spend the riches which How Antigonus, the son of Demetrius, deli- they accounted affuredly their own. They vered Macedon from the Gaules. How returned therefore to their companions with Pyrrhus mon the Kingdom of Macedon none other news in their mouths, than of spoil and purchase: which tale carried the Gaules head-long to Antigonus his Camp, HE vertue of softhenes being too where they expected a greater booty, than weak to defend the Kingdom of Mace- the victory over Ceraunus had given to Beldon; and the fortune which had accompa- gius. Their coming was terrible and fudden; nied him against Belgius, failing him in his yet not so sudden, but that Antigonus had noattempts against Brennus: the Macedonians tice of it, who distrusting the courage of his were no less glad to submit themselves un- own men, dislodged somewhat before cheir to the government of Antigonus, than they arrival, and conveyed himself, with his had been formerly desirous to free them- whole Army and carriage, into certain

The Gaules, finding his Camp forfaken, part. Brennus with the main strength of his on him, whilst he was busie in getting his men Army, was gone to spoil the Temple of Apol- and carriages a ship-board. But the success lo at Delphos, having left no more hehind was no way answerable to their expectation. him, than he thought necessary to guard the For being proud of the terrour which they borders of Macedon and Pannonia; which had brought upon Antigonus, they were so were about fifteen thousand foot, and three careless of the Sea-men, that without all orthousand horse. These could not be idle, der, they fell to the spoil of what they found fore sent unto Antigonus, offering to sell him Part of the Army had left Antigonus, peace, if he would pay well for it; which by where he lay in covert; and had faved it felf the example of Ceraunus, he had learnt (as by getting aboard the Fleet: in which numthey thought) not to refuse. Antigonus was ber were some well-experienced men of unwilling to weaken his reputation by con- War: who discovering the much advantage descending to their proud demands: yet he offered unto them, by the desperate prejudged it unfit to exasperate their furious sumption of their enemies, took courage, and choler, by uncourteous words or usage, as encouraged others to lay manly hold upon Ceraums had over-fondly done. Wherefore the opportunity. So the whole number, both he entertained their Embassadours in very of Souldiers and Mariners, landing togeloving and fumptuous manner, with a royal ther, with great refolution, gave so brave a feast: wherein he exposed to their view such charge upon the disordered Gaules, that abundance of maffie gold & filver, that they their contemptuous boldness was thereby were not so much delighted with the meat, as changed into sudden fear, and they, after a with fight of the veffels, wherein it was fer-great flaughter, driven to cast themselves in-

barbarous

CHAP. VII.

barbarous Nations in those quarters to re- Gaules and the Elephants, which were nations in their ancient belief of the Mace- thought the best of his strength; a manifest donian valour: by which the terrible and proof that he was in retrait. The Gaules veaoman valour: by which the terrible and properly fulfained Pyrrhus his impreflion; refiftles oppreflors of fo many Countries ry bravely fulfained Pyrrhus his impreflion; were overthrown.

To speak more of the Gaules in this place, and to shew how, about these times, three Tribes of them passed over into Asia the less, with their wars and conquests there; I hold it needless: the victorious Armies of courage by deceiving their expectation. The the Romans taming them hereafter in the Countries which now they wan, shall give after; who finding themselves exposed to better occasion to rehearse these matters the same violence that had confumed some briefly.

people; yet his own Souldiers, that without discomfort; which emboldened Pyrrhus to his leading had won this Victory, could not charge them where they lay in their thereupon be perfoaded to think him a strength. Where the Phalanx could be chargood man of war: knowing that he had no ged only in a front, it was matter of extreme interest in the honour of the service, wherein his conduct was no better than creeping the Macedonians had feen fo much that they into a wood.

ly helpful unto Pyrrbus : though as yet he adventured to draw near in person, and exknew not fo much. For Pyrrhus, when his af- hort them to yield. Neither the common fairs in Italy stood upon hard terms, had Souldier, nor any Leader refused to become fent unto Antigonus for help: not without his follower. All forfook Antigonus, a few threats, in case it were denied. So was he horse-men excepted, that sled along with fure to get either a fupply, wherewith to him to Theffalonica; where he had some small continue his War against the Romans; or forces left, and mony enough to entertain a fome feeming honourable pretence, to for- greater power, had he known wheretokfake Haly, under colour of making his word vy it. But whill he was thinking how to algood, in feeking revenge. The threats lure a sufficient number of the Gaules into which he had used in bravery, meer necessitive his service; whereby he might repair his loss forced him at his return into Epirus, to put Ptolomy, the Son of Pyrrhus, came upon him, in practice.

He brought home with him eight thoutoo little to be employed, by his reftless na- which he had formenly lurked, before sech ture, in any action of importance; yet greatime as he looked abroad into the world, ter than he had means to keep in pay. There- and made himfelf a King. fore he fell upon Macedon; intending to take what spoil he could get, and make Antigonus compound with him, to be freed of his late mil fortunes in the Roman War: from trouble. At his first entrance into this fo that he sent for his Son Helenus (whom he business, two thousand of Antigonus his fouldiers revolted unto Pyrrhus; and many Ci-rentum) willing him to come over into ties, either willingly or perforce, received Greece, where was more matter of conquelt, him. Such fair beginnings eafly perfivaded and let the Italians shift for themselves the courage of this daring Prince to fet upon Antigonus himself, and to hazard his fortune, in trial of a Battel, for the whole Kingdom of Macedon.

It appears, that Antigonus had no defire to fight with this hot warriour; but thought it the wifest way, by protracting of time, to overtook him in a freight patiage, and charged him in the rear; wherein were the vanquished the Gaules, and beaten suit and yet were broken at length (when most of them were flain) after a sharp fight: whereinit feems that Antigonus keeping his Macedo. nian Phalanx within the streight, and not advancing to their fuccour, took away their Captains of the Elephants were taken foon ny of the Gaules, yielded themselves and Howloever the good fucces of Antigonus the beasts. All this was done in full view of got him reputation among the barbarous Antigonus and his Macedonians, to their great This (as prefently will appear) was great- discovered so well their affections, that he and eatily defeating his weak forces, drave him to flie from the parts about Macedon, fand foot, and five hundred horse: an Army to those Towns afar off in Peloponnelis, in

This good success revived the spirits of the Epirot, and caused him to forget all forrow had left with a Garrison, in the Castle of Ta-

How Pyrrhus affailed Sparta without success. His enterprise upon Argos, and his death.

Darrhus had now conceived a great hope that nothing should be able to withunto Sparta; but contrariwise professed, had no desire to spend histime. that it was his intent, to have two of his own of the Lacedamonians, to deal in like fort his hands. with others, whom, in the time of their affurance of prevailing.

time, otherwise than with armed Citizens: part, if they so defired. foon after this (it being built upon uneven ground, and, for the most part, hard to approach) the lower and more accessible plating the strength of them should keep the Chickens from his eafie. Three dayes together it was affailed by and gave hoftages to affure his word: for

and won the Kingdom of Macedon. There Pyrrhus exceeding fiercely; and no lefs and won the tangeton, nor, indeed, in all stoutly defended. The desperate courage of the Lands that Alexander had won, any the Citizens preserved the Town the first the Lands that I can ame and worth, as defer- day; whereinto the violence of Pyrrhus had red to be fet up against him: which filled forced entrance the second day, but that his him with the opinion that he might do wounded horse threw him to the ground, what he pleased. He raised therefore an which made his Souldiers more mindful of Army, confifting of five and twenty thou- faving the perfon of their King, than of Army, two thousand horse, and four breaking into the City, though already they and twenty Elephants; pretending War had torn in funder the Barricadoes. Preagainst Antigonus, and the giving liberty lently after this, one of Antigonus his Capto those Towns in Peloponness, which the tains got into Sparta, with a good strength fame Antigonus held in Subjection; though of men; and Areus the King returned out itwas eafily discovered, that such great pre- out of Crete (where he had been helping his parations were made, for accomplishment friends in War) with two thousand men, little of fome design more important than War knowing the danger, in which his own against a Prince already vanquished, and Country stood, until he was almost at home. almost utterly dejected. Especially the La- These succours did not more animate the cedemonians feared this expedition, as made | Spartans, than kindle in Pyrrhus a defire to against their State. For Cleonymus, one of prevail against all impediments. But the their Kings, being expelled out of his Coun-third dayes work shewed how great his ertry, had betaken himself to Pyrrhus: who your had been, in forbearing to assault the readily entertained him, and promifed to Town at his first coming. For he was so reftore him to his Kingdom. This promife manfully repelled, that he faw no likeliwas made in secret; neither would Pyrrhus hood of getting the place, otherwise than make shew of any displeasure that he bare by a long siege in which tedious course he

Antigonus had now raised an Army, younger Sons trained up in that City, as in though not ftrong enough to meet the Enea place of noble discipline. With such co- my in plain field, yet able to hinder all his lours he deluded men, even till he entred purposes. This made Pyrrhus doubtful upon Laconia; where presently he demean- what way to take; being diversly affected, ed himself as an open enemy; excusing him- by the difficulty of his enterprise in hand, felf and his former diffembling words with and the shame of taking a repulse in his first a jest; That he followed herein the Laceda: attempt. Whilst he was thus perplexed, monian cultome, of concealing what was truly letters came from Argos, inviting him thi-purposed. It had been, indeed, the manner ther; with promise to deliver that City into

Civil Diffention raging then hotly in Argreatness, they fought to oppress: but now |gos, caused the heads of several factions to they complained of that, as falshood, in call in Pyrrhus and Antigonus; but the com-Pyrrhus, which they alwayes practifed in ing of these two Princes taught the Citizens wildom, till it made them distrusted, for- wit, and made them desirous to rid their faken, and almost contemptible. Neverthe- | hands of such powerful affistants, as each of less, they were not wanting to themselves in the two Kings pretended himself to be. Anthis dangerous extremity. For the old men tigonus told the Argives, that he came to and women laboured in fortifying the fave them from the tyranny of Pyrrhus: and Town; caufing fuch as could bear arms to that he would be gone, if they needed not reserve themselves fresh against the assault . his help. On the other side, Pyrrhus would which Pyrrhus had unwifely deferred, upon needs perfwade them, that he had none other errand, than to make them fafe from Sparta was never fortified, before this Antigonus; offering in like manner, to de-ces, were fenced with walls, at the present on- enemy: and therefore prayed them both ly trenches were cast, and barricadoes made to divert their powers some other way. with Carts, where the entrance feemed most Hereunto Antigonus readily condescended, good will. But Pyrrhus thought it enough led to mind an Oracle, which threatned good will. But 1717000 thought of the promife: Holtages he would give none him with death, when he should behold a to promue: riouages he would give to his inferiours, especially meaning deceit. Bull fighting with a Wolf: and that here-This made them suspect his purpose to be upon he made retrait. fuch, as indeed it was. Yet he less regarded Indeed, the coming of Antigonus to the their opinions than to hold them worthy of refeue, the diforder and confusion of his their opinions, than to hold their worth, or affurance, by giving fuch a bond, as he intended to break ere the next morning.

fhould be opened by night unto Pyrrbus, by been away. The tumult was fuch, that no his Complices within Argos: which was directions could be heard; but as some gave accordingly performed. So his Army with- back, fo did others thrust forward, and out any tumult entred the City: till the the Argives preffing hard upon him, forced out any tumuit entred the City. In the Elephants, with Towers on their back, cloyed the way, being too high to pass the Gate. The taking off, and fetting on again of those The taking off, and fetting on again of those covered with Women, that food looking on the covered with Towers, with the trouble thereto belong- the fight. Among these was one, that saw ing, did both give alarm to the City, and her own Son in dangerous cafe, fighting with fome leilure to take order for defence, before Pyrrhus. Wherefore she took a tile-stone, fo many were entred, as could fully mafter or flate, and threw it so violently down on it. Argos was full of dirches, which greatly the head of Pyrrhus, that he fell to the hindred the Gaules (that had the Vant- ground aftonished with the blow; and lyguard) being ignorant of the wayes in the ingin that cafe, had his head cut off, dark night. The Citizens, on the other fide, had much advantage, by their know Pyrrhus, together with his life: and thus ledge of every by-paffage: and fetting up- returned the Kingdom of Macedon to Antion the enemics on all fides, did put them to gonus; who forthwith possessed the Army, great loss and more trouble.

confused noise, and unequal shoutings of his and was given by Antigonus unto Helenus his own men, that they were in diffrefs entred Son; which young Prince he gracioully the City in person, to take order for their sent home into his Fathers Kingdom of Epirelief, and affurance of the place. But the rus. From this time forwards, the race of darkness, the throng, and many other im- Antigonus held the Kingdom of Macedon; pediments, kept him from doing any thing the posterity of Seleucus reigned over Ala of moment, until break of day. Then be and syria; and the house of Ptolomy had gan he to make his paflage by force, and fo quiet possession of Egpt: until such times far prevailed, that he got into the Market- the City of Rome, swallowing all up, digeplace. It is faid, that feeing in that place | fted these, among other Countries, into the the Image of a Wolf and a Bull, in such po-

he was the weaker, and food in need of fiture as if they had been combatant, hecal-reasonable cause to have retired out of the City, though the Wolf and Bull had the body, and the children of his Enemy, the body of Pyrrhus therefore understanding by the The body of Pyrrhus had honourable burial, Finis Libri quarti.

CHAP. I.

THE RST PART OF THE TOR OF THE

Intreating of the Times from the settled Rule of ALEXANDERS Successors in the East, until the Ro-MANS, prevailing over all, made Conquest of Asia and MACEDON.

THE FIFTH BOOK.

Снар. 1.

Of the First Punick War.

A Discussion of that Probleme of Livie; Whether the Romans could have refisted the Great Alexander. That neither the Macedonian nor the Roman Souldier, was of equal valour to pute; which (as it feems to me) the argu- ment, coming upon them before their Doments on both fides do not so well explain, minion was half so well settled? It is easie to as doth the experience that Pyrrhus hath fay, that Alexander had no more than thirty given of the Roman power in his dayes. For thousand foot, and four thousand horse (as if he, a Commander (in Hannibals judge- indeed, at his first passage into Asia, he carment) inferiour to Alexander, though to ried over not many more) & that the rest of

HAT Question handled and little store of mony, or of other needful by Livie, Whether the helps in War, vanquish them in two Bat-Great Alexander could tels, and endanger their Estate, when it was have prevailed against the well settled and held the best part of Italy, Romans, if after his Ea | under a confirmed obedience: what would flern Conquest, he had bent Alexander have done, that was abundantly all his Forces against them, provided of all which is needful to a Conhath been, and is the subject of much dis- querour, wanting only matter of employnoneelle, could with a smal strength of men, his followers were no better than base effe-

Gcccc 2

CHAR.

Armies of Perdiccas, Antipater, Crate- them not, at some time, both before and Arms of results. Antigons and Lyfinachts, with the actions by them performed, every one of which (to omit others) commanded only fome fragment of this would have made refiftance. How they dead Empereurs power, shall easily find, could have sped well, in undertaking such a that such a reckoning is far short of the match; it is uneasie to find in discourse of Horses, Elephants, Engines of Battery, and cowardly fools, and the unfortunate: for the like: of all which the Macedonian whosoever contends with one too might had abundance; the Roman having nought, for him, either must excel in these, as much fame men and arms. As for Sea-forces; as his enemy goes beyond him in power; he that shall consider after what fort the or else must look both to be overcome, and Romans, in their first Punick War, were to be cast down so much the lower, byhow trained in the rudiments of Navigation; much the opinion of his fortune and verfitting upon the shoar, and beating the fand tue renders him suspected, as likely to make with poles, to practife the stroke of the head another time against the vanquisher. Oar, as not daring to lanch their ill-built Whether the Roman or the Macedonian vessels into the Sea; will casily conceive were in those dayes the better Souldier, I how far too weak they would have proved will not take upon me to determine: though in fuch fervices.

why all Greece and Macedon, being abso- followed not only Philip and Alexander, but lutely commanded by Alexander, might also Alexanders Princes after him, in the not well deserve to be laid in ballance greatest dangers of all sorts of War, beagainst those parts of Haly, which the foreany, that Rome either had, or in long Romans held in ill-assured subjection. To time after did send forth. Concerning for omit therefore all benefit that the Eastern tune, who can give a rule that shall al-World, more wealthy, indeed, than va- wayes hold? Alexander was victorious in liant, could have afforded unto the Mace- every Battel that he fought: and the Rodonian: let us only conjecture, how the States of Sicil and Carthage, nearest neighbours to such a quarrel (had it happened) worthy of consideration; I think it a great would have stood affected. The sicilians part of Romes good fortune, that Alexander were for the most part Grecians; neither came not into Italy: where in three years is it to be doubted, that they would readi- after his death, the two Roman Confuls, to ly have submitted themselves unto him, gether with all the powers of that State, that ruled all Greece befides them. In what were fuprized by the Samnites, and enforced terms they commonly flood, and how ill to yield up their arms. We may therefore they were able to defend themselves , it | permit Livie to admire his own Romaniand shall appear anon. Sure it is, that Alex- to compare with Alexander those Captains anders coming into those parts, would have of theirs, which were honoured sufficient brought excessive joy to them that were | ly, in being thought equal to his followers: fain to get the help of Pyrrhus, by offering that the same conceit should blind our to become his subjects. As for the carthaginians, if Agathocles the Tyrant of Syracuse, vanity. hated of his people, and ill able to defend his own besieged City, could by adventuring to me-thinks it were not amis, for an Employee fail into Africk, put their Dominion, yea, man, to give such a sentence between the and Carthage it felf, in extreme hazard; Macedonians and Romans, as the Romans fhall we think that they would have been once did (being chosen Arbitrators) beable to withfrand Alexander? But why tween the Ardeates and Ariami, that from do I question their ability, seeing that they about a piece of Land; saying, that it be fent Embafiadours, with their fubmiffion, as longed unto neither of them, but unto the far as Babylon, ere the War drew near them? | Romans themselves. must, without other succour, than perhaps Macedonian, or the Roman were the best forme other form Tables and Macedonian, or the Roman were the best forme other form Tables and Macedonian, or the Roman were the best former other former than the best former other for of some other few Italian friends (of Warriour? I will answer, The English nate Afratiques. But he that confiders the which yet there were none that forfook humane reason. It is true, that vertue It were needless to speak of Treasure, and fortune work wonders; but it is against I might without partiality, deliver mine Now for helpers in War; I do not fee own opinion, and preferr that Army, which mans in the issue of every War. But forasmuch as Livie hath judged this a matter judgment, we cannot permit without much

Now in deciding fuch a Controversie,

If therefore it be demanded, whether the

shall examine the noble acts of our Nation | cedonians. in war, that they were performed by no advantage of weapon; against no savage War.

In what fort Fhilip wan his Dominion in Greece; what manner of men the Persians and Indians were, whom Alexander vanquished; as likewise of what force the Macedonian Phalanx was, and how well appointed, against such arms as it commonly fufficiently understand. Yet was this Phaagainst the Roman armies; which were emat once.

as it were in wager, upon the heads of three Champions: and having thereby made her by long war, in many ages, extend her Do-man. For it will foon appear to any that tech them against the Carthaginians and Ma-

I shall not need to speak of her other conquests: it was easie to get more when she or unmanly people; the enemy being far had gotten all this. It is not my purpose to furctiour unto us in number, and all need-difgrace the Roman valour (which was very ful provisions, yea as well trained as we, noble) or to blemish the reputation of so or commonly better, in the exercise of many famous victories: I am not so idle. This I fay; That among all their wars, I find not any, wherein their valour hath appeared comparable to the English. If my judgement feem over-partial, our wars in France may help to make it good.

First therefore it is well known, that Rome (or perhaps all the world befides) had never encountred: any man, that hath taken pains any fo brave a Commander in war as Julius to read the foregoing story of them, doth | Cafar: and that no Koman Army was comparable unto that which ferved under the lanx never, or very feldom, able to frand fame Cafar. Likewife, it is apparent, that this gallant Army, which had given fair proof of battelled in so excellent a form, as I know the Roman courage, in good performance of not whether any Nation besides them have the Helvetian war, when it first entred into used, either before or fince. The Roman Gaule; was nevertheless utterly disheartned, weapons likewise, both offensive and defen- when Casar led it against the Germans. So five, were of greater use than those with that we may justly impute all that was exwhich any other Nation hath served, before | traordinary in the valour of Cafars men, to the fiery instruments of Gun-powder were their long exercise, under so good a Leader, known. As for the enemies with which in fo great a War. Now let us in general Rome had to do, we find, that they which | compare with the deeds done by these best did over-match her in numbers, were as far of Roman Souldiers, in their principal ferover-matched by her in weapons; and that vice; the things performed in the same they, of whom the had little advantage in Country, by our common English Souldiers, arms, had as little advantage of her in mul- levied in hafte, from following the Cart, or titude. This also (as Plutareb well obser- fitting on the shop-stall: so shall we see the veth) was a part of her happines; that the difference. Herein will we deal fairly, and was never over-laid with two great Wars believe Cafar in relating the acts of the Romans: but will call the French Historians Hereby it came to pass, that having at to witness, what actions were performed by first increased her strength by accession of the English. In Cafars time France was inthe Sabines; having won the State of Alba, habited by the Gaules, a front people, but against which she adventured her own felf. inferiour to the French, by whom they were fubdued; even when the Romans gave them affiftance. The Country of Gaule was rent felf Princes of Latium, the did afterwards in funder (as Casar witnesseth) into many Lordships: some of which were governed by minion over all Italy. The Carthaginians petty Kings, others by the multitude, none had well-near oppressed her: but her Soul- ordered in such sort as might make it applidiers were Mercenary; fo that for want of able to the nearest Neighbour. The factions proper firength, they were easily beaten at were many, and violent: not only in general their own doors. The Ætolians, and, with through the whole Country, but between them, all, or the most of Greece, affisted her the petty States, yea in every City, and alagainst Fhilip the Macedonian : he being most in every house. What greater advanbeaten, did lend her his help to beat the same | tage could a Conquerour desire? Yet there Atolians. The wars against Antiochus, and was a greater. Ariovifius, with his Germans, other Assatiques, were such as gave to Rome had over-run the Country, and held much small cause of boast, though much of joy: part of it in subjection, little different from for those opposites were as base of courage, meer flavery: yea, so often had the Germans as the lands which they held were abun- prevailed in war upon the Gaules that the dant of riches. Sicil, Spain, and all Greece, Gaules, (who had sometimes been the better fell into her hands, by using her aid to pro- Souldiers) did hold themselves no way equal to those daily Invaders. Had France Let us hear what a French writer faith of the equal to those daily invaders. Flate trans-been so prepared unto our English Kings, home it felf by this time, and long ere this English, when their King John was ready to Jean Rome it felf by this time, and long eternibus give the on-fet upon the Black Prime, at when King time, would have been ours. But when King the hattel of Poitiers. John had all adapts, I was upon the hattel of Poitiers. Edward the third began his war upon trace, he found the whole Country fettled trages over Edward, both of number, force, EDd. France, he tound the whole Country a King hew, Country, and conceit (the which is come walk) in obedience to one mighty King; a King hew, Country, and confideration of no healt imbantance. in obedience to one mighty king a monly a confideration of no small importance using whose reputation abroad, was no less than monly a confideration of no small importance using the state of the confideration of the state of t whole reputation abroad, was no rest that his pullfance at home; under whole enligh, in worldly affairs); and withall, the choice fibrate the King of Bohemia did ferve in person; at all his horsenen (esseemed then the best in pulla). the King of Bosemia and let ve in printing the King of whole call the Genowayes, and other spaces of his whole Realm. And what could be mount bour States, were ready to take arms; final- of his whole Realm. And what could be mount bour States, were ready to take arms; final-(a) The ly, a King unto whom one (a) Prince gave more? ty, a Anng union, for love; (b) another I think it would trouble a Koman Anti-maps away nis Dominion, for love, the state of the like example in their His author fold away a goodly City and Territory for quary to find the like example in their His author fold away a goodly City and Territory for mony. The Country lying so open to the fronties; the example I say, of a King, brought is not mony. The Country lying so open to the fronties; the example I say, of a King, brought is not remaind and the same and being so well fenced against the prisoner to Rome, by an army of eight thouse the same and Englib; it is note-worthy, not who prevailed most therein (for it were meer vanity to thousand, better appointed, and no less exceptions). match the English purchases with the Roman pert Warriours. This I am fure of that meter conquest) but whether of the two gave the neither syphax the Numidian, followed by a data in greater proof of military vertue. Cefar him-rabble of half Scullions, as Livie rightly figure. telf doth witness, that the Ganles complained terms them, nor those cowardly Kings, Parof their own ignorance in the Art of war, few and Gentius, are worthy patterns. All and that their own hardiness was overmathat have read of Gress and Agincount, will ftered by the skill of their enemies. Poor bear me witness, that I do not alledge the men, they admired the Roman Towers, and battel of Poitiers, for lack of other, as good Engines of battery, railed and planted examples of the English Virtue: the proof against their walls, as more then humane whereof hath left many a hundred better works. What greater wonder is it, that marks in all quarters of France, then ever fuch a people was beaten by the Romans; did the valour of the Romans. If any man than that the Caribes, a naked people, but impute these Victories of ours to the long valiant, as any under the tky, are commonly bow, as carrying further, piercing more put to the worse by small numbers of Spani- strongly, and quicker of dischargethan the ards? Besides all this, we are to have regard French Cross-bow: my answer is ready; of the great difficulty that was found, in That in all these respects, it is allo (being drawing all the Gaules, or any great part of drawn with a ftrong arm) superiour to the them, to one head, that with joynt forces Musket; yet is the Musket a weapon of they mignit oppole their assalialiants: as also more use. The Gun and the Cross bow are the much more difficulty of holding them of like force, when discharged by a Boyor long together. For hereby it came to pals, Woman, as when by a ftrong Man; weakthat they were never able to make use of ness or lickness, or a fore finger make the opportunity: but fometimes compelled to long Bow unferviceable. More particularly, ftay for their fellows ; and fometimes driven I fay, that it was the cufrom of our Anceto give or take battel upon extream difad- ftors to fhoot, for the most part, point blank vantages, for fear left their companies should and so shall he perceive, that will note the fall afunder: as indeed, upon any little circumstances of almost any one battle. disafter, they were ready to break, and re- This takes away all objection: for when turn every one to the defence of his own. two Armies are within the distance of a All this, and (which was little less then all Butts length, one flight of arrows, or two at this) great odds in weapon gave to the the most can be delivered before they dole. Romans the honour of many gallant Victo- Neither is it in general true, that the long ries. What such help? or what other world- Bow reacheth farther, or that it pierceth ly help, than the golden mettle of their more strongly than the Cross-bow: but this Souldiers, had our English Kings against the is the rare effect of an extraordinary arm; French? Were not the French as well ex- whereupon can be grounded no common perienced in feats of War? Yea, did they rule. If any man shall ask, How then came not think themselves therein our superi- it to pals, that the English wan so many great ours? Were they not in arms, in horfe, and battels, having no advantage to help him? in all provisions, exceedingly beyond us? I may, with best commendation of modelly, with a configured to gain every where without any flay: could make upon France, transporting our he forceth our guard placed upon the Bridge to Forces over Sea. keep the passage. Or I may cite another place of the same Author, where he tells, how the Britons, being invaded by Charls the eighth, King of France, thought it good policy to and Paulus Æmilius, report wonders of our Nation:) the proposition which first I undertook to maintain; That the military vertue of the English, prevailing against all mauner of difficulties, cught to be preferred before that of the Romans, which was affifted with all advantages that could be defired. If it be demanded, Why then did not our Kings finish Kings were like to the Race of Eacida, of They were more war-like than politick. Who- nick War. fo notes their proceedings, may find, that none of them went to work like a Conquerour, fave only King Henry the fifth; the course of whose victories it pleased God to The estate of Carthage before it entred into interrupt by his death. But this question is the more eafily answered, if another be first made. Why did not the Romans attempt | THE City of Carthage had flood above for prefervation of their own fafety. ly and strongly allied to our enemies the pounds differ not) fourteen hundred and

CHAP. I.

700

referr him to the French Historian: who French, and in that regard enemy to us. So relating the victory of our men at Crevant; that our danger lay both before and behind where they passed a Bridge in face of the us: and the greater danger at our backs; where commonly we felt, alwayes we fearwith a conquering bravery, as he that was ac-ed, a stronger Invasion by Land, than we

It is usual with men, that have pleased themselves in admiring the matters which they find in ancient Histories; to hold it a great injury done to their judgment, if any apparel a thousand and five hundred of their take upon him, by way of comparison to exown men in English Cassocks; hoping that tol the things of latter ages. But I am well the very fight of the English Red Cross, perswaded, that as the divided vertue of would be enough to terrifie the French. But this our Island, hath given more noble proof I will not stand to borrow of the French of it self, than under so worthy a Leader. Historians (all which, excepting De Serres, that Roman Army could do, which afterwards could win Rome, and all her Empire, making Cafar a Monarch; so hereafter, by Gods bleffing, who hath converted our greatest hinderance, into our greatest help, the enemy that shall dare to try our forces, will find cause to wish, that avoiding us, he had rather encountred as great a puillance as was that of the Roman Empire. But it is the Conquest, as Casar had done? my answer now high time, that, laying aside compamay be (I hope without offence) that our risons, we return to the rehearfal of deeds done; wherein we shall find, how Rome whom the old Poet Ennius gave this note; began, after Pyrrhus had left Italy, to ftrive Bellipotentes sunt magis quam sapientifotentes; with Carthage for Dominion, in the first Fu-

6. II.

War with Rome.

the Conquest of Gaule before the time of I fix hundred years, when first it be-Cafar? Why not after the Macedonian gan to contend with Rome for the maftery War? Why not after the third Punick, or of Sicil. It fore-went Rome one hundred, and after the Numantian? At all these times lifty years in antiquity of foundation: but they had good leifure: and then especially in the honour of great atchievements, it had they both leifure and fit opportunity, excelled far beyond this advantage of time. when under the conduct of Marino, they had | For Carthage had extended her Domininewly vanquished the Cimbri, and Tentones, on in Africa it self, from the West of Cyby whom the Country of Gaule had been rene, to the streights of Hercules, about pitiously wasted. Surely the words of Tully ore thousand and five hundred miles in were true; That with other Nations the Ro- length, wherein stood three hundred Cimans fought for Dominion, with the Gaules ties. It had subjected all spain, even to the Pyrenaan Mountains, together with all the Therefore they attempted not the Con- Itlands in the Mediterranean Sea, to the quest of Gaule, until they were Lords of all | West of sicil; and of sicil the better part. It other Countries, to them known. We on flourished about feven hundred and thirty the other fide, held only the one half of our vears, before the destruction thereof by own Island; the other half being inhabited Scipio: who, besides other spoils, and all by a Nation (unless perhaps in wealth and that the Souldiers reserved, carried thence numbers of men fomewhat inferiour) every four hundred and feventy thousand weight way equal to our felves; a Nation ancient- of filver, which make of our mony (if our CHAP.

ten thousand pound sterling. So as this glo- people in latter times usurped too great aurious City ran the same fortune, which thority in their Councils. This consustant many other great ones have done, both be- Government, together with the trust that fore and fince. The ruine of the goodlieft they reposed in hired Souldiers, were helppieces of the world fore-thews the diffolution of the whole. as it was cast down, the Senate of Rome (a) Their avarice was shewed both in exact. caused it to be re-built: and by Gracebus ing from their Vassals (besides ordinary) it was called Junonia: it was again and tributes) the one (b) half of the fruits of again abandoned and re-peopled, taken the carth; and in conferring of great offiagain abandoned and re-people and re-people and necessary search and nec by Bellifarius under Justinian, by the Per- fons, but upon those who could best tyran one by Gans, by the Egyptians, and by the Maho- nize over the people, to augment their manametans. It is now nothing. The feat treasures. Their cruelty appeared, in put- that he thereof was exceeding strong: and while ting them to death without mercy, that had been to the Carthaginians commanded the Sea, invincible. For the Sea compassed it about, these rendred them edious to their Vallals, when faving that it was tyed to the Main by a whom it made ready upon all eccasions, to boile. neck of Land; which pallage had two miles revolt from them: the other did break of the and more of breadth (Appian faith, three the spirits of their Generals, by presenting the miles and one furlong) by which we may in the heat of their actions abroad, the fear first be induced to believe the common report, that the City it felf was above twen- to pass, that many good Commanders of them of ty miles in compass; if not that of Strabo, affirming the circuit to have been twice as los received, have desperately cast them within the City; and between each of those, three or four Streets, with Vaults under ground, quickly, or to ruine all together; and sew likely of thirty foot deep, in which they had of them have dared to manage their own found place for three hundred Elephants, and all best projects, after that good form, where the first their food: over these they had stables for four thousand horse, and Granaries for the manner of their proceeding should be with their provender. They had also lodgings mis-interpreted: It being the Carthaginian forces for four theuland horfe-men, and twenty Captain, but even him, whose bad council health thouland foot-men, which (according to the difeipline used now by these of China) never peffered the City. It had towards by Roman Hiltorians, I find to be the following in the mean that the control of the South part, the Castle of Byrsa; to cruelty, avarice, crast, unfaithfulnes, and business which Servius gives two and twenty furpering, available, craft, untainfulnes, and seem longs in compare the major translation. Whether the Romans themselves will be longs in compare the major translation of the second services and the second services and the second services are services as a second service services and the second services are services as a second service as a second services are services as a second service are service longs in compals, that make two miles and were free from the fame crimes, let the tryal stages. a half. This was the same piece of ground be referred unto their actions. The first set of which Dido obtained of the Lybians, when league between Carthage and Rome, was ve- all the the got leave to buy only fo much Land of ry ancient: having been made the year folthem, as the could compais with an Oxe lowing the expulsion of Tarquine. In that sages hide. On the West-side it had also the Salt- league the Carthaginians had the superiori- for distances Sea, but in the nature of a standing pool; for ty, as imposing upon the Romans the more the block who a certain arm of Land, faltened to the strict conditions. For it was agreed, that down ground, on which the City flood, firetched the Romans should not so much as have have have it felf towards the West-continent, and left but feventy foot open for the Sea to enter. Pounded. And it is the free-man, and not the flowe, this history over this franching-Sea was built a most rage and the fense of shame deserved by constitute. How free this bled that of Sparta; for they had titulary bring of Mannors, the Court Barron, and the Court Lets, the Free Mannors, the Court Barron, and the Court Lets, the Free Mannors and the Court Lets, the Tennash The form of their Common-weal refem-Kings, and the Ariflocratical Power of Semators. But (as Regius well observeth) the and (perchance) as little love.

762

ing causes of their destruction in the end.

Two other more forcible causes of their man About one hundred years after fuch time ine, were their avarice and their crucky. (a) [1] offended through ignorance: the one of they as the Carthaginian Forces, after some great thinks felves, with all that remained under their inglish It had three Walls without the Wall of charge, into the throat of destruction; hold winds fumptuous Arfenall, having their Ships and Gallies riding under it.

The form of their Computer week of the form of the form of their computer week of the form fervile. For fince the executive bravery and vain experted our ford hath taught them to raife their Rents, fince by Incloues, and district the prince of Managery the Court Perus. lities of the Gentry of England, have been diffolied, the Tennishal payed unto their Lords their rack Rent, owe them now no ferrical the other fide, no Haven in Italy was forbid-needful, against the Epirots. den to the Carthaginians. A fecond league was made long after, which (howsoever it hath pleased Livy to say, that the Romans

Africa, or in the Island of Sardinia. XM. Grue, in Sicil. For that mighty army of three hun- Pyrrhus found leifure to make a step into Si-Carthaginians prevailed at one time, the Si- as when they first began. cilians, either by their own valour, or by being a fubtle Nation, eafily fore-faw, that the rest. the same busie disposition which had trade in some part of Africk, nor suffer any friends in this war with Pyrrbin; and that trace in base pass beyond the headland, the people of Carthage were very willing to or cape, then called the fair Promontory, un- affift the ftate of Rome, by fending an Army less it were by force of tempest: whereas on into Italy; if their help were thought

It was indeed the main defire of the Car. thaginians, to hold Pyrrhus fo hardly to his: work in Italy, that they might, at good leigranted it, at the Carthaginians intreaty) fure, pursue their buliness in Sicil: which was more strict than the former: prohibiting caused them to make such a goodly offer. the Romans to have trade in any part of But the Romans were too high-minded; and refuled to accept any fuch aid of their By these two treaties it may appear, that friends, lest it should blemish their reputathe Carthaginians had an intent not only to tion, and make them feem unable to fland keep the Romans (as perhaps they did other by their own ftrength. Yet the message was people) from getting any knowledge taken lovingly, as it ought; and the former of the state of Africk; but to counte- league between Rome and Carthage renued; nance and uphold them, in their troubling with covenants added, concerning the preall Italy, whereby they themselves might sent business; That if either of the two Cihave the better means to occupy all sicil, ties made peace with Fyrrhus, it should be whileft that Island should be destitute of with reservation of liberty, to affist the Italian succours. Hereupon we find good other, in case that Pyrrhus should invade eicause of the joy that was in Carthage, ther of their Dominions. All this notwithand of the Crown of gold, weighing twen- | standing, and not with standing that the same ty and five pound, sent from thence to Rome, Mago went and treated with Pyrrhus, using when the Samnites were overthrown. But all means to found his intentions (a matter the little state of Rome prevailed faster in very difficult, where one upon every new Italy, than the great power of Carthage did occasion, changeth his own purposes) yet dred thousand men, which Hannibal condu- | cil: where though in fine he was neither cted out of Africk into Sicil, wan only two getter nor faver, yet he clean defeated the Cities therein: many great fleets were de- purposes of Carthage, leaving them, at his voured by tempests; and howsoever the departure from thence, as far from any end,

So many disafters in an enterprise, that the affiftance of their good friends out of from the first undertaking had been so Greece, did at some other time repair their | strongly pursued, through the length of maown losses, and take revenge upon those ny generations, might well have induced Invaders. But never were the people of the Carthaginians to believe, that an higher Carthage in better hope of getting all Sicil, | providence refisted their intendment. But than when the death of Agathocles the Ty- their defire of winning that fruitful Island, rant, had left the whole Island in combu- was so inveterate, that with unwearied paflion; the estate of Greece being such, at the tience, they still continued in hope of so fame time, that it feemed impossible for any much the greater an harvest, by how much fuccour to be fent from thence. But whileft their coft and pain therein buried had been the Carthaginians were busic in making their the more. Wherefore they re-continued advantage of this good opportunity; Pyr- their former courses; and by force or prarhus, invited by the Tarentines and their clice, recovered in few years all their old fellows, came into Italy, where he made possessions: making peace with Syracuse, the tharp war upon the Romans. These news chief City of the Island, that so they might were unpleasing to the Carthaginians, who, the better enable themselves to deal with

Somewhat before this time, a troop of brought this Prince out of Greece into Italy, Campanian Souldiers, that had ferved under would as eafily transport him over into sicil, Agathocles, being entertained within Mefas foon as he could finith his Roman war. To | Jana as friends, and finding themselves too prevent this danger, they sent Mago Embas frong for the Citizens, took advantage of sadour to Rome; who declared in their name, the power that they had to do wrong; and that they were forry to hear what milad- with perfidious cruelty, flue those that had venture had befallen the Romans their good trusted them; which done, they occupied whom they had murdered. These Merce- home, and levying an Army of his own C. naries called themselves Mamertines. Good tizens, well trained and obedient, he hasted Souldiers they were: and like enough it again towards Meffana, and was by the Mais, that meer desperation of finding any that mertines (grown proud by their former would approve their barbarous treache- victory over the Mutiners) incountredin ry, added rage unto their froutness. Have- the plains of Myleum, where he obtained a ing therefore not any other colour of their most fignal victory; and leading with him proceedings, than the law of the ftronger, their Commander captive into syracy, himthey over-ran all the Country round about felf by common confent was elected & fallthem.

Liv, Dec. 1.

that they did not only defend Messaua resolved to give themselves to the Carthagiagainst the Cities of sicil Confederate, to nians, others to crave affistance of the Rowit, against the Syracusians, and others, but they rather wan upon them; yea, and upon the Carthaginians, exacting tribute from purpole. many Neighbour places. But it was not long, ere fortune turning her back to these Mamertines, the Syracustans wan fast upon them; and finally, confining them within whereof, they that had fent for him gave the walls of Messana, they also with a powerful army befieged the City. It hapned ill, that about the fame time a contention beganbetween the Syracustan Souldiers, then good agreement, that this Captain, either lying at Megara, and the Citizens of Syracuse, and Governours of the Commonwealth; which proceeded fo far, that the Army elected two Governours among themselves, to wit, Artemidorus and Hieron, that was afterward King. Hieron, being for his years excellently adorned with many vertues, although it was contrary to the policy of Town that rebelled, having once been that State, to approve any election made by theirs. Hieron the new-made King of synathe Souldiers; yet for the great elemency used at his first entrance, he was by general the smart of injuries lately received added consent established and make Governour. his forces to the Carthaginians, with whom This office he rather used as a Scale, thereby he entred into a league, for exterminating to climb to some higher degree, than rested the Mamertines out of Sieil. So the Mamercontent with his present preserment.

In brief, there was somewhat wanting, whereby to strengthen himself within the Sea, and with an Army on the one side of the City; and somewhat without it, that gave Town whilest Hieron with his Syraculans, impediment to his obtaining, and fafe lay before it on the other fide. keeping of the place he fought, to wit, a powerful party within the Town, and certain mutinous troops of Soldiers without, often and eafily moved to fedition and tumult. For the first, whereby to strengthen the Town, and sending Messengers to the himself, he took to Wife the daughter of Carthaginians, and to Hieron, required them Leptines, a man of the greatest estimation to depart; signifying unto them that the and authority among the syracustans. For Mamortines were now become confederate the second, leading out the Army to besiege with the people of Rome, and that there Messana, he quartered all those companies, which he held suspected, on the one fide of even by force of War, if reason would not the City, and leading the rest of his Horse prevail. have affaulted it in two leveral parts, he fo began the War between Rome and Carbonic Advanced to the War between marched away under the covert of the thage; wherein it will then be time to thew Townwalls; and left the Mutiners to be cut on which part was the justice of the quar-

the City, Lands, Goods, and Wives of those in pieces by the affieged: So returning ted King, Hereupon the Mamertines, finding In this course, at first, they sped so well, themselves utterly enseebled, some of them mans: to each of whom the feveral faction dispatched Embassadors for the very same

The Carthaginians were foon ready to lav hold upon the good offer : fo that a Captain of theirs got into the Castle of Mellana. him possession. But within a little while, they that were more inclinable to the Romans, had brought their Companions to fo by force, or by cunning, was turned out of doors, and the Town reserved for other

Masters. These news did much offend the people of Carthage; who crucified their Captain, as both a Traitor and Coward; and fent a Fleet and Army to besiege Messana, as a cuse (to gratifie his people incensed with tines on all fides were closed up within Mef-Sana: the Carthaginians lying with a Navy at

In this their great danger came Appins Claudius the Roman Conful, with an Armyto the streights of sicil: which passing by night with notable audacity, he put himfelf into fore he was come to give them protection,

This message was utterly neglected; And

CHAP. I. dered.

ø. III.

The beginning of the first Punickwar. That it was unjustly undertaken by the Romans.

When Pyrrhus began his wars in Italy, the City of Rhegium, being well affested to Rome, and not only fearing to be taken by the Epirot, but much more di- low-theeves. strusting the Carthaginians, as likely to seize upon it in that buffe time, fought aid from whether the way of honefty or of profit the Romans, and obtained from them a Legion, confifting of four thousand fouldiers, under the conduct of Decius Campanus, in the other. They confidered, how cona Roman Prefect; by whom they were defended and affured for the prefent. But after a while, this Roman Garrison, considering ons: seeing for the same offences they had at good leisure, the fact of the Mamertines, committed in Messara (a City in Sicil, fitu-their own Souldiers, and restored the opate almost opposite to Rhegium, and no pressed to their liberty. Yet when they beotherwise divided than by a narrow Sea, held the description of the Carthaginian Dowhich severeth it from Haly) and rather minion, and that they were already Lords weighing the greatness of the booty, than of the best part of Africa, of the Mediterran the odiousness of the villany, by which it Islands, of a great part of Spain, and some was gotten; refolved finally, to make the like purchase, by taking the like wick- that Syracuse therein seated (a City in beaufelves with an obstinate resolution: yet in the sure. end the affailants forced them; and those red to their former liberty and estates.

performed, and the fame thereof founding troubled with his arrival; and less mo-

rell, when some actions of the Romans honourably through all quarters of Haly or ren, water lately foregoing this, have been first consiliately foregoing this foregoing the foregoing this foregoing the foregoing the foregoing this foregoing the raculians, that were in a readiness to inflict the like punishment upon the Mamertines, for the like offence. A very impudent request it was, which they made : who having both given example of that villany to the Roman Souldiers, and holpen them with joynt forces to make it good, do intreat the Judges to give them that affiftance, which they were wont to receive from their fel-

The Romans could not fuddenly refolve, tended the one, but they many times walked lately put to torment, and to the fword, part of sicilit felf, whilest also they feared, ed course. Confederating therefore them- ty and riches, little at that time inferiour to felves with the Mamertines , they Carthage, and far superiour to Rome it self) entertained their Hosts of Rhegium, af- might become theirs; the safety of their own ter the same manner; dividing the spoil, estate spake for these Mamertines: who, if and all which that State had, among them- they (driven to despair by the Romans) should deliver up Mossana, with those other When complaint was made to the Senate holds that they had, into the hands of the and people of Rome, of this outrage; they Carthaginians, then would nothing stand befinding their honour thereby greatly stain- tween Carthage, and the Lordship of Sicil: for ed) for no Nation in the world made a | Spracufe it self could not, for want of succor, more severe profession of justice, than they any long time subsist, if once the Carthaginidid during all the time of their growing ans that were Masters of the Sea, did fasten greatness, resolved, after a while, to take upon that passage from the main Land. It revenge upon the offenders. And this they was further confidered; that the opportuniperformed thortly after, when they had ty of Messana was such, as would not only quenched the fires, kindled in Italy by Pyr | debarr all fuccours out of the continent, rhus. For not with standing that those Romans from arrival in Sicil; but would serve as a in Rhegium (as men for the foulness of their bridge, whereby the Carthaginians might fact, hopeless of pardon) defended them- have entrance into Italy, at their own plea-

These considerations of profit at hand, and which escaped the present fury, were of preventing danger, that threatned from brought bound to Rome, where, after the a-far, did fo prevail above all regard of usual torments by whipping inflicted, accor- honesty, that the Mamertines were admitding to the custome of the country, they had ted into Confederacy with the Romans, and their heads stricken from their shoulders, Ap. Claudus the Consul, presently dispatcht and the people of Regium were again refto- away for Meffana: into which he entred, and undertook the protection of it, as is This execution of Justice being newly shewed before. The besiegers were little

Ddddd2

ved. with his requiring them to defift from Country open to the Romans; who having their attempt. For they did far exceed him spoilled all round, without refiltance, in in number of men; the whole Island was reatended to lay siege unto the great City of dy to relieve them in their wants; and they Syracuse. were ftrong enough at Sea, to hinder any Supply from getting into the Town. All this they animated the Romans, and filled them Appins himself well understood: and against with hopes of attaining to greater matters. all this he thought the stiff mettal of his than at the first they had expected. Yetdid Roman Souldiers a fufficient remedy. There- they not imprint any form of terrour in the fore he resolved to iffue out into the City of Carthage, that had well enough refield, and to let the enemies know, that paired greater losses than this; in which no his coming was to fend them away from more was loft than what had been prepared the Town; not to be besieged by them against the Mamertines alone, without any

In executing this determination, it was very beneficial to him, that the enemy lay confider of those grounds, whereupon the encamped in fuch fort, as one quarter was Romans entred into this war; not how pronot well able to relieve another in diffress. fitable they were, nor how agreeable torules Hieron was now exposed to the same dan- of honesty (for questionless the enterprise ger, whereinto he had wilfully cast his own was much to their benefit, though as much mutinous followers not long before: only to their shame) but how allowable in strict he was strong enough (or thought so) to | terms of lawfulnes; whereupon they built make good his own quarter, without help all their allegations in maintenance thereof others. Against him Ap. Claudius issued of. That the Mamertines did yield themforth, and (not attempting, by unexpected | felves, and all that they had, into the Romans fally, to furprise his trenches) arranged hands (as the Campanes, distressed by the his men in order of battel, wherewith he | Samnites, had done) I cannot find: neipresented him. The syracusian wanted not ther can I find how the messengers of those courage to fight; but furely he wanted good folk, whereof one part had already adadvice: else would be not have hazzarded mitted the Carthaginians, could be enabled all his power against an enemy of whom he to make any such surrendry in the publick had made no trial; when it had been eafie, name of all. and as much as was requifite, to defend his own Camp. It may be, that he thought to full furrendry of themselves and their posget honour, wherewith to adorn the begin- | fessions, were become subject unto Rome, by ning of his reign. But he was well beaten, what better title could the Romans affilt and driven to fave himself within his tren- the Mamertines, against their most ancient ches: by which loss, he learned a point of friends the Carthaginians, than they might wisdom, that stood him and his Kingdom in have aided the Campanes against the Samgood stead all the dayes of his life. It was nites, without the same condition? which a foolish desire of revenge, that had made was (as they themselves confessed) by none the syracusians so busie, in helping those of at all. But let it be supposed, that some Carthage, against the Mamertines.

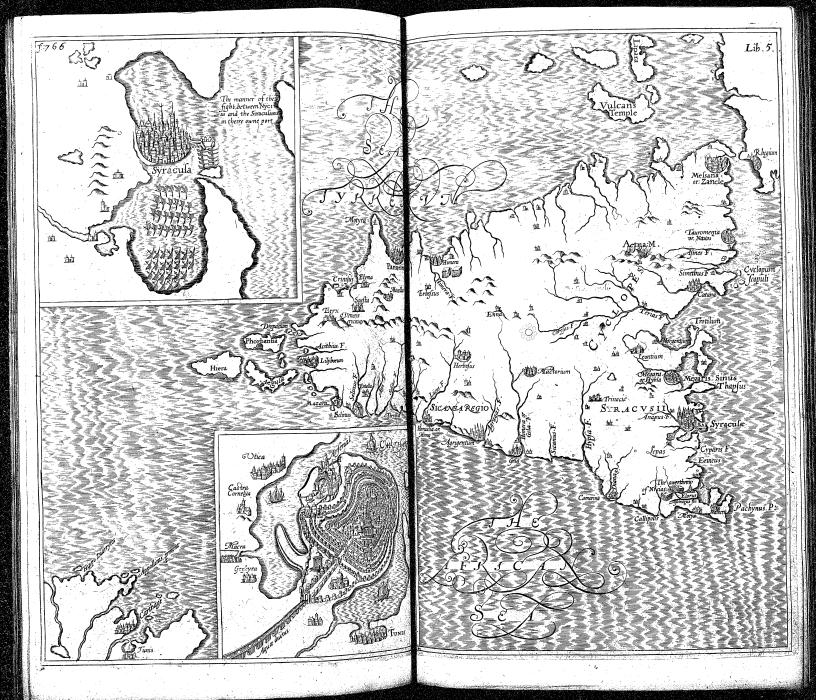

Had Meffana been taken by the Carthagi- all Histories. Doubtless it is, that no comnians, syracuse it self must have sought help | pany of Pyrates, Thieves, Out-laws, Murdefrom Rome, against those friends which it rers, or such other Malefactors, can by any now so diligently assisted. Hieron had (in good success of their villany, obtain the prirespect of those two mighty Cities) but a viledge of civil societies, to make league or fmall frock, which it behooved him to go- truce; yea, or to require fair war: but are vern well: fuch another loss would have by all means, as most pernicious vermine, to made him almost bankrupt. Therefore he be rooted out of the world. I will not take quietly brake up his Camp: and retired upon me to maintain that opinion of some home: intending to let them stand to their Civilians, that a Prince is not bound to hold adventures, that had hope to be gainers by his faith with one of these; it were a Postthe bargain. The next day, Claudius perceiv- tion of ill consequence: This I hold; that ing the Sicilian Army gone, did with great no one Prince or State can give protestion to courage, and with much alacrity of his Soul- fuch as these, as long as any other is using the diers, give charge upon the Carthaginians: sword of vengeance against them, without wherein he fped to well, that the enemy for- becoming accessary to their crimes. Where-

CHAP

These prosperous beginnings, howsoever fuspicion of War from Rome.

Now in this place I hold it seasonable, to

If therefore the Mamertines, by no lawpoint serving to clear this doubt, is lost in fook both field and camp, leaving all the fore we may esteem this action of the perswaded herein; that he did put to sword present War. periwaded neterns, and people in Sogdiana) and all the Branchiadae (a people in Sogdiana) and penier Isle, adjoyning to Italy, as a part of their City, notwithstanding that they of justice, in this quarrel, than had the opened the Sicilian streights, as Hercilles did Gothes, Hunnes, Vandals, and other Na those of Gibralter. tions, of the Wars that they made upon the They which value the Islands of the midground.

> ø. IV. Of the Island of Sicil.

The quality of the Island: and the first inhabitants thereof.

possession of Messana, being now no not so much for that the was from hence

ROMANS for from being justifiable, by any longer fince the first victories of Appins retence of confederacy made with them 3 Claudius, the objects of the Roman hopes; as that contrariwife, by admitting this neft but the Dominion of all sicil being the of Murderers and Theeves into their prote- prize, for which Rome and Carthage are ction, they justly described to be warred upon themselves, by the people of sieil; yea, although Messana had been taken, and the observed, to make a brief collection of Mamertines all slain, ere any news of the things concerning that noble Island, which Confederacy had been brought unto the hath been the stage of many great acts, perbefregers. The great Alexander was fo far formed as well before and after, as in this

joyfully entertained him as their Lord and Brutium in Calabria, near unto Rhegium, and King; because they were descended from a afterward by violence of tempest severed company of Milestans, who to gratifie King from the same: it is a general opinion of all Kerxes, had robbed a Temple, and were by antiquity. But at what certain time this him rewarded with the Town and Country, division happened, there is no memorial rewhich these of their posterity enjoyed. Ne- maining in any ancient writer. Strabo, Pling, Plinkage vertheless, in course of humane justice, long and Dionysius affirm, that it was caused by 91. Silling. and peaceable possession gives jus acquisi- an earth-quake; Silius and Calsiodorus do tum, a kind of right by prescription unto think it to have been done by the rage and that which was first obtained by wicked violence of the tide, and surges of the Sea. means: and doth tree the descendants from Either of these opinions may be true; for so theorime of their Ancestors, whose villanies was Eubaa severed from Baotia; Atalante they do not exercise. But that the same and Macris from Eubwa; Sillie here in Enggeneration of Thieves, which by a detefta- land, from the Cape of Cornwall; and Britble fact hath purchased a rich Town, should tain it self (as may seem by Verstigans argube acknowledged a lawful company of Ci- ments) from the opposite continent of Gaule: tizens, there is no shew of right. For even But for sicil, they which lend their ears to the Conqueror that by open War obtaineth fables, do attribute the cause of it to Neptune a Kingdom, doth not confirm his title, by (as Eustathius witnesseth) who with his those victories which gave him first posses, three-forked Mace, in favour of Jocastus, the fion: but length of time is requifite to fon of #Bolus, divided it from the main land, establish him, unless by some alliance with and so made it an Island, which before was the ancient inheritors, he can better the but a Demie-Isle; that by that means he violence of his claim, as did our King Henry | might the more fafely inhabit, and possess the the first, by his marriage with Mande, that same. Diodorus Siculus, moved by the auwas daughter of Malcolme, King of the Scots, thority of Hesiodus, ascribeth the labour of orion.1.4. by Margaret, the Neece of Edmund Ironside. fundring it from Italy, to Orion: who that Diad 16. Wherefore I conclude, that the Romans he might be compared to Hercules (cutting ovid de had no better ground (if they had so good) through the rocks and mountains) first Fast. 4.

Roman Empire, wherein Rome her felf, in land Sea, according to their quantity and the time of her vilitation, was burnt to the content, do make this the greatest, as En-Stathius and Strabo, who affirm this, not only to excell the rest for bigness, but also for goodness of soil. As concerning the form of this Island, Pomponius Mela faith, it is like that Capital letter of the Greek, which they call Delta, namely, that it hath the figure of a triangle; which is generally known to be true. That the whole Island was consecrated to Ceres and Proferpina, all old writers with one consent affirm. To Ceres it was dedicated, because it first taught the rules of "He defence of the Mamertines, or the fetting and fowing of Corn: to Proserpina, violently taken by Pluto, as because (which biting that part of Latium, whereon Rome Plutarch and Diodorus do report for truth) was afterward built, were driven by the Pe that Fluto, as soon as she, uncovering her self, lasgi from their own seats, and finding no first shewed her felf to be seen of him, gave place upon the Continent, which they were her the Dominion thereof.

Of the fertility and riches of this Country, there is a famous testimony written by Cicero, in his fecond Oration against Verres, where he faith, that Marcus Cato did call it These siculi gave the name of sicilia, to the the Granary and Store-house of the Common- Island; and making war upon the sicani. wealth, and the Nurse of the vulgar fort. The fame Cicero doth add in that place; that it thereof, into the West and South. At their was not only the Store-house of the people landing; they first built the City Zancle. of Rome: but also that it was a well-furnished treasure. For without any cost or Catana, Leontine, and Syracuse it self, beating charge of ours (faith he) it hath usually from thence the Ætolians, who long before clothed, maintained, and furnished our had set up a Town in that place. As for the greatest Armies with leather, apparrel and name of Syracuse, it was not known, till such strates of corints (long after) won thing of it. Whatsoever sicilie doth yield that part of the Island from the sicili: (faith solinus) whether by the sun, and temperature of the air, or by the industry and dispossels the Ætolians thereof, but some labour of man, it is accounted next unto hundred years after their descent, and after those things that are of best estimation: such time as they had founded the Cities were it not that such things as the earth first before named with Nea, Hybla, Trinaria. puttern forth, are extreamly over-grown and diversothers. with faffron. Diodorus Siculus faith, that in the fields near unto Leontium, and in divers out of Italy, called Morgetes; who were other places of this Island, wheat doth grow thence driven by the Oenotrians. Thele lat of it felf without any labour or looking to down in that part of sicil, where they afterof the husbandman. Martianus sheweth, ward raised the Cities of Morganium, and that there were in it fix Colonies, and fixty good Authors. the people of this Ifland, as well in peace as Iflionable fincerity, reports of Minos, that he War, there be many other things which made conquest of many Islands : and some have made it very renowned, as the birth of such business, perhaps, drew him into sicil. Ceres; the ravishing of Proserpina; the Gi- But the common report is, that he camethiant Enceladus; the mount Etna; Scylla and ther in pursuit of Dædalus. The tale goes Charybdis, with other antiquities and rari- thus: Dædalus fleeing the revenge of Minos, ties; besides those learned men, the noble came into Sicil, to Cocalus, King of the Sice-Mathematician, Archimedes; the famous mi, and, during his abode there, he built a Geometrician, Euclides; the painful Histori- place of great strength, near unto Megara, an Diodorus; and Empedocles, the deep Phi- for Cocalus to lay up his treasure in; toge-

That sicil was at first possessed and inhabited by Giants, Lastrigones, and Cyclopes, barbarous people, and uncivil; all histories and fables do jointly with one confent averr. Yet Thucydides faith, that these savage people dwelt only in one part of the Island. Afterward the sicani, a people of spain, possessed it. That these Sicani were not bred in the Isle (although some so think) Thucydides and Diodorus do very constantly. avouch.

Of these it was named Sicania. These Sicani were invaded by the Siculi; who, inha- nos by treason, and perswades the Cretaria, able to master and inhabit, passed overing this Island, three hundred years before the Greeks fent any Colonies thither: and (faith Philistus)eighty years before the fall of Trop, drave them from the East and Northern part afterward called Messana; and after that, Neither did the Siculi at their first arrival

After these Siculi came another Nation Leontium. For at this time the Siculi were Cities: there are that reckon more, where- divided, and by a civil war greatly infeeof the names are found scatteringly in many bled. Among these ancient stories, we find the last voyage, and the death of Minos, King Now besides many famous acts, done by of Crete. Thucydides, an Historian of unquether with many notable works for which he was greatly admired and honoured. Among the rest, he cast a Ram in gold, that was let up in the Temple of Venus Erycina; which he did with fo great Art, as those that beheld it, thought it rather to be living, than counterfeit.

Now Minos, hearing that Cocalus had entertained Dædalus, prepares to invade the Territory of Cocalus; but when he was arrived, Cocalus doubting his own strength, promiseth to deliver Dedalus. This he performs not, but in the mean while, kills Mithis lite octains the Siculi. Hereunto the himself against the Siculi. Hereunto the himself against the Siculi. hmueit against the being dead) gave their had Giants for their first inhabitants; so this confent, and builded for themselves the City of Minoa after the name of the King Minos. After, they likewise built the Town of Engium, now called Gange: and these were the Greeks at the fiege thereof.

made away, they gather and landing near Plutarch, and many other Authors, have Good, Die unto Camicus, they befieged the same five confirmed the opinion: Yea, Vesputius, in his lib. 15. Et unto camen, the notes and (being forced fecond Navigation into America, hath re quest in years, but in vain. In the end (being forced fecond Navigation into America, hath reyears, but in vain. In the characteristic points were rackt on the coast of Halp, and having no means to repair their ships, nor the home means to repair their ships. The ships are also ships the ships of the ships nour they had loft, they made good the any one; as touching their simplicity of life, they cap a. place whereon they fell, and built Hyria, or their mean fare, their feeding on Acorns and ges and Messapii.

Egesta and Elyma.

himself the founder.

their descents, they built the goodly City of from cruelty and oppression. Panormus, now called Palerma.

gan to straggle in those parts.

Lybia and Greece, had Hercules, Orestes, Anta- hundred; from water, to wine and drun-

Minos his followers, to inhabit a part of SiMinos his followers, t Minos histoliowers, tember to strengthen starchaterus, remembred by Saxo Gramma prefathis, cil; the better (as it seems) to strengthen the struct of Sathis Postantia Saxo Gramma prefathis. Ifle of Sicil had her Leftrigones and Cyclopes. This discourse I could also reject for fained and fabulous, did not Moses make us know, that the Zamzummims, Emims, Anakims, and gnm, now contained by the Greeks in Sicil, about og of Basan, with others, which sometime two ages before the war of Troy; for the inhabited the Mountains and Defarts of grand-children of Minos ferved with the Moab, Ammon, and Mount Seir, were men of But after such time as the Cretans under-races of Giants: and were it not, that Tertulflood, that their King had by treason been lian, St. Augustine, Nicephorus, Procopius, Tenul de 1100d, that then that a great Ifdore, Pliny, Diodore, Herodoius, Solims; Refairmade away; they gathered together a great Plutageh, and many other Application and Angell de

Horium, between the two famous Ports of roots, their poor cottages, the covering of Brundusum and Tarentum. Of these Cretans their bodies with the skins of beasts, their came those Nations, afterward called Iapp. hunting, their arms, and weapons, and their warfare, their first passages over great Ri-After the taking of Troy, Egeftus and Ely- vers and Arms of the Sea, upon rafts of trees mu, brought with them certain troups into | tied together; and afterwards their making sicil, and feated themselves among the boats first of twigs and leather, then of Sicani; where they built the Cities of wood; first with Oars, and then with Sails; that they effected as gods, the first finders It is faid, that Aneas visited these places out of Arts; as of Husbandry, of Laws, and in his passage into Italy: and that some of of Policy: it is a matter, that makes me neithe Trojans, his followers, were left behind ther to wonder at, nor to doubt of it. For him, in these Towns of sicil: whereof there they all lived in the same newness of time, want not good Authors, that make Eneas which we call Old time, and had all the fame want of his inftruction, which (after the About the same time, the Phanicians seiz- Creator of all things) hath by degrees edupon the Promontories of Pachinus, and taught all Mankinde; For other teaching Lilybaum, and upon certain small Isles ad- had they none, that were removed far off joyning to the main Island: which they for- from the Hebrews; (who inherited the knowtified, to secure the trades that they had with ledge of the first Patriarchs) than that from the Sicilians; like as the Portugals have done variable effects they began, by time and in the East-India, at Goa, Ormus, Mosambique, degrees, to find out the causes: from whence and other places. But the Phanicians stayed came Philosophy Natural; as the Moral did not there; for after they had once assured from disorder and consusion; and the Law

But it is certain, that the Age of Time hath These we find, were the Nations that brought forth stranger and more incredible inhabited the Isle of sicil, before the war of things, than the Infancy. For we have now Troy, and ere the Greeks in any numbers be- greater Giants for vice and injuffice, than the World had in those dayes, for bodily It may perchance feem strange to the Rea-strength; for cottages, and houses of clay der, that in all ancient stories, he finds one and timber, we have raised Palaces of stones; and the same beginning of Nations, after the we carve them, we paint them, and adorn floud; and that the first planters of all parts them with gold, insomuch as men are rather of the World were faid to be mighty and known by their houses, than their houses by Giant-like men; and that, as Phanicia, Agypt, them; we are fallen from two dishes, to two

kenness:

CHAP

CHAP. I.

kennels from the covering of our bodies Siculi, drave them up into the Country and with the fkins of beafts, not only to filk and after a few years, their multitude increasing, gold, but to the very skins of men. But to they added unto the City of the Illand, that conclude this digression, Time will also take of Acradina, Tyca, and Neapolis. So as well revenge of the excess, which it hath brought by the commodity of the double Port, caforth; Quam longa dies peperit, longiorque pable of as many thips, as any Havenofthat auxit, longillima lubruet: Long time brought part of Europe, as by the fertility of the soil forth, longer time increased it, and a time, Syracuse grew up in great haste, to be one longer than the rest. shall overthrow it.

t. II.

The Plantation of the Greeks in Sicil.

17 Hen the first Inhabitants had contended long enough about the Dominion of all Sicil: it happened, that one success of the Corinthians, did assail, and oh-Theocles, a Greek, being driven upon that tain the City of Leontium, built and policit Coast by an Easternly wind, and finding by the Siculi. In brief, the Greeks win true the commendations thereof, which had from the siculi, and their Affociates, the been thought fabulous, being delivered only by Poets, gave information to the Athenians of this his discovery, and proposed called Megara. unto them the benefit of this eafie Conquest offering to become their guide. But Theo- had taken Syracufe; Antiphemus, and Enticles was as little regarded by the Athenians, mus, the one from Rhodes, the other from as Columbus, in our Grand-fathers times, was | Crete, brought an Army into Sicil, and built by the English. Wherefore he took the fame | Gela, whose Citizens, one hundred and eight course that Columbus afterwards did. He years after, did erect that magnificent and over-laboured not himself in perswading renowned City of Agrigentum, governed acthe Noble Athenians (who thought them- cording to the Laws of the Dorians. felves to be well enough already) to their own profit; but went to the Chalcidians, that | year after their Plantation, did fet up the were needy and industrious, by whom his City of Acra, in the Mountains; and in the project was gladly entertained. By these ninetieth year Casmena, in the Plainsadwas built the City of Naxus, and a Colony joyning; and again in the hundred and thirplanted of Eubwans.

as ciees our Western Princes of Europe: for they in the very Center of the Island. So didthe relates, was had no Pope, that should forbid them to Cumani about the same time, recover from the greater, and occupy the void places of the World. Δr the Esculi the City of Zancle, which they moftgood chias of Corinth followed the Eubwans, and had founded in the straight between sicil by City et landed in Sicil, near unto that City, called and Italy. They of Zancle had been the the Greeks afterward * Syracuse: of which, that part founders of Himera. pollett. For only was then compassed with a wall, tionis both which the Atolians called Homothermon; monian built Heraclia; which the Phenicift.ong, and the Greeks, Nasos; the Latines, Insula. He ans, and Carthaginians, fearing the neighor an ex-cellent with his Corinthians having overcome the bourhood of the Spartans, foon after inva-

from every entrance, by Land, or Sea. The Port was (for the most part) environed with beautiful buildings: and that part which was withou the City, was on both fides bankt up, and fustained with beautiful walls of Marble. The City it fe I was one of the greatest of the World : for it had in compais (as Strabo reporteth) without the treble wall thereof. a transfer and a company tas a transfer per company tasks a transfer per company tasks a transfer per company tasks and a compounded of four Cirics (Strabs faith, of twe) to wite, Insula, Actadina, Tycha, and Neapolis; of which greaters the traines and tomedations of the walls do yet witness. After such rime as the Doves of Pelopsanefus had driven out the S. ciliant, this goodly City for a long time greatest Cities in this Island. became the feat of Tyrants. The first whereof was Gelo: The second Hiero the elder: The third, Thrafybulus: The fourth and fifth, Dyonfius the elder, and younger : The fixth, Dian : The feventh, Agaitheeles: The eighth, Fyrthus: The ninth, Hiero the younger: The tenth and laft, Rieronymus ; who being flain at Leontium, at length the Romans conquered it under the conduct of Marcellus.

of the goodliest Towns of the world. In thort time the Greeks did possess the better part of all the Sea-coast; forcing the Sicilians to withdraw themtelves into the falls and mountainous parts of the Island, makeing their Royal relidence in Trinacria,

Some feven years after the arrival of Archias, the Chalcidians, encouraged by the Cities of Catana and Hybla, which in honour of the Megarians that forc't it, they

About five and forty years after Archias

The Syraculians also, in the seventieth tieth year of their dwelling in Syracuse, they But the rest of the Greeks were wifer than built Camerina: and soon after that, Enna,

> Not long after this, Doriaus the Lacedaded and ruined though the fame were again ere long re-edified.

Selimus also was built by a Colony of Megara: and Zancle was taken by the Meffenians; who having loft their own Country, gave the name thereof unto this their new purchase. Such were the beginnings of the †. III.

of the Government and Affairs of Sicil before Dionyfius his Tyranny.

THE most part of the Cities in Sicil. were governed by the rule of the people, till fuch time as Phalaris began to ercife all manner of Tyranny therein.

This was that Phalaris, to whom Perillus, the cunning Artificer of a deteftable Engine, gave an hollow Bull of Brass, wherein of Agrigentum. to inclose men, and scorch them to death: praising the device with this commendation; three Brethren; Hiero, Polyzelus, and Thra-That the noise of one tormented therein, Sphulus: to the first of which he gave up the fome matter of conspiracy.

Common-weal: at which time also Panatius made himself Lord of Leantium; and Cleander of Gela: but Cleander having ruled feven years, was flain by one of the Citizens. Cleander being dead, his Brother Hippocrates succeeded in his room, and greatly afvers others of the ancient Inhabitants, he Sicil. forced to acknowledge him their Lord. He against the Siculi, before Hybla.

At this time did the Syracufians change together with the Cretans, had long before, Nation. among other of the Greeks, feated themselves the occasion and advantage of a contention in Syracuse, between the Magistrates and the People. For coming with a ftrong Army to the fuccour of the Governours, driven out by the multitude, they elected him their Prince, being the first, and (indeed) the most famous, that ever governed the Eyracusians. This change happened in Paulites usurp the state of Agrigentum, and to ex- the second year of the threescore and twelfth Olympiad; wherein the better to establish himself, he took to wife the Daughter of Thero, who had also usurped the state should be like unto the bellowing of a Bull. City of Gela, when he had obtained the The Tyrant gave a due reward to the In- Principality of syracuse. For after that time. venter; by causing the first tryal to be all his thoughts travelled in the strengthenmade upon himself. He reigned one and ing, beautifying, and amplifying of syracuse. thirty years, faith Eusebius; others give He defaced Camerina, that a little before him but fixteen: Howfoever it were, one was fallen from the obedience of the stracu-Telemachus in the end, fell upon him with sians who built it, and brought the Citizens the whole multitude of Agrigentum, and to Syracuse. The Megarians that had mofloned him to death; being thereto anima- ved a War against him, he overcame; the ted by Zeno, even whilst the Tyrant was tor- richer fort he brought unto Syracuse; and menting the same Zeno, to make him confess the people he fold for slaves. In like manner dealt he with other places upon the like oc-After the death of Phalaris, the Citizens casion. Not long after this, There a Prince recovered their liberty, and enjoyed it long, of the Agrigentines, having disposses Teriltill There usurped the Government of the lus of his City Himera; the Carthaginians were drawn into the quarrel by Anaxilus; Lord of Messena, Father-in-law to Terillus: and Gelon was also solicited by his Fatherin-law, Thero. Gelon was content, and in fine, after divers conflicts, the Carthaginians, and other Africans, led by Amilcar, were fflicted the people of Naxos, of Zancle, of overthrown by Gelon: and an hundred and Hered. & Messena, and of Leontium; whom with di- lifty thousand of them left their bodies in Dio.

Now this Gelon, the Son of Dinomenes, had

This Gelon it was, to whom the Athenians also made war with the Syracusians, and, in and Lacedamonians sent for succour, when the end, got from them by composition, the | Xerxes with his huge Army past the Helle-City of Camerina. But when he had reign- font. He, for their relief having armed thired seven years, he was slain in a Battel ty thousand Souldiers, and two hundred ships refused nevertheless to send them into Greece, because they refused him the comtheir form of Government, from Popular mand of one of their Armies, either by to Ariftecratical; a preparation towards a Sea, or Land. So he used to their Embassa-Principality, whereinto it was foon after dours only this Saying, That their spring was changed. After the death of Hippocrates, withered; accounting the Army, by him pre-Gelm (defeended from the Rhodians, which pared, to be the very flower of the Greek

The Carthaginians, after this great Ioss in Sicil) that had commanded the forces of received, fearing the invation of their own Hippocrates, in the former War, with notable Country, fent to Gelon by their Embassasuccels, became Lord of Gela. He, after his dours, to desire peace, who grants it them Masters death, breaking the trust commit- on these conditions: That from thenceforth ted unto him by Hippocrates over his chil- they should not facrifise their children to dren, and being in possession of Gela, took Saturn; That they should pay him twee with two armed ships, in sign of amity. These and added it to that of his own, or exalted conditions the Carthaginians, not only wil- himself from being a private man to the Imply accepted, but with the two thousand dignity of a Prince, it behoveth the Succession talents, and the flips for war, they fent unto four to maintain it by the fame way and art. Demarata, Gelons wife, a Crown, valued at | by which it was gotten. an liundred talents of gold, with other pre- To conclude, Stracufe (though not withfents. Whereby we fee, that some Nations, out blows, ere that she could cleanse her and fome Natures, are much the better for felf of the creatures and lovers of Gdon) being well beaten. The wars ended, and sicil was now again become Miltres of her in peace, Gelon beautified the Temples of felf, and held her felf free, well-mar the gods, and erected others in honour of threescore years, to the time of Dionifius. them. So being exceedingly beloved and though the were in the mean while greatly honoured of his Subjects, he left the world, endangered by a Citizen of her own, called and left for his successor his Brother Hiero. Tindario. Philiftus and Pliny report, That when his body was burnt, according to the cuftom of among them, for the future, they devied a that Age, a Dog of his, which alwayes wait- kind of banishment of such among them, as ed on him, ran into the fire, and suffered were suspected; taking pattern from the himself to be burnt with him.

1.111.

CHAP,

man rude, cruel, covetous, and fo fuspicious wherein every one wrote upon an Oliveof his Brethren Polyzelus, and Thraffbulus, as leaf (as at Athens they wrote upon fhells) the he fought by all means to deftroy them. name of him, whom he would have expelled Notwithstanding all this, by the conversati- the City. He that had most suffrages against on which he had with Simonides, he became him, was banished for five years. Herebyin of better condition, and greatly delighted a flort time, it came to pass that those of with the study of good Arts Divers quarrels | judgment, and best able to governthe Comhe had, as well with Theron of Agrigentum, as mon-weal, were, by the worst able, either with other Cities: all which he shortly af- supprest, or thrust out of the City. Yes, ter compounded, and gave a notable over- fuch as feared this Law, though they had throw to the Carthaginians, whom Xerxes not yet felt it, withdrew themselves as sehad incited to invade sicil, fearing the fuc- cretly as they could, feeking some place of cours which Gelon had prepared, to aid the more security, wherein to maintain them-Grecians against him. He also overthrew in selves. And good reason they had so to do; battel Thrasidaus, the Son of Theron, and seeing that there is nothing so terrible in thereby restored the Agrigentines to their any State, as a powerful and authorizedigformer liberty. But in the end, he loft norance. But this Law lasted not very long. the love of the Syracufians; and after he For their necessity taught them to abolishit, had reigned eleven years, he left the King- and reftore again the wifer fort unto the dom to his Brother Thrasybulus, who became Government; from which, the Nobility a most unjust and bloody Tyrant. Thrasi- having practised to banish one another, the bulus injoyed his Principality no longer than State became altogether Popular. But aften months. For, notwithstanding the terawhile, being invaded by Ducetius, King force of mercenary Souldiers; which he of the Sicilians, that inhabited the inner entertained for his guards, he was beaten part of the Island (who had already taken out of syracuse by the Citizens; to whom, Enna, and some other of the Grecian Cities, being belieged in Acradina, he reftored and overthrown the Army of the Agraginthe Government , and was banished the tines) the Syracustans sent forces against Island. From whence he failed into Greece, him, commanded by an unworthy Citizen where he died a private man, among the of theirs, called Bolcon. This their Captain again their former liberty, as all the rest of did to see from the Army he led, as soon as the Cities did; after which they had never Ducetius presented him battel. So for want fought; had the Successors of Gelon inherited of conduct, the greatest number of the Syrahis vertue, as they did the Principality of custans perithed. Syracufe. For in all changes of Estates, the But making better choice among those prefervation ought to answer the acquisi- whom they had banished, they key other When a liberal, valiant, and advised troops: by whom, in conclusion, Duction

shouland talents of filver, and present him Prince, hath obtained any new Signiory

Now, to prevent the greatness of anyone Athenian Oftracisme. They called this their To Gelon, Hiero his Brother succeeded; a new devised judgment of exile, Petalifinus. made nothing fo much hafte to find out Du-And now had the Syracustans recovered cetius, against whom he was imployed as he built the City Collatina on the Sea-fide.

eria excepted; which also by force of Arms, in the fourierre and fifth Olympiad, they brought to reason.

But they do not long enjoy this their Superintendency. For the Citizens of Leontime, being opprest by them, seek aid from ter, than the terrible report of same had the Athenians, about the fixth year of the made it. reloponnessan War. In this suit they prevailed by the eloquence of Gorgias their Ora- engaged all her power; as regarding not ontor; and got an hundred Athenian Gallies ly the greatness of the enterprise, but the ches, and Charwodes. To this Fleet, the Leon- time. For the Lacedamonians (as hath altines, and their Partners, added one hundred ready been shewed in due place) stood at Eurymedon, and other Athenian Captains, War. Wherefore it was thought necessary, finis, and their Partifans; wann and lost di- or altogether to forbear it: which was likeout the advice of the Athenians, came to honour. an accord with the Syracustans, and were Of this business, mention hath been altheir expectation, by the good agreement of confequence, doth in this place require a knew not how to amend; but (according to | a great conversion. the custom of popular Estates) by taking after this, followed the most memorable the chief Commanders therein-War, that ever was made by the Greeks in Si-

being heaten, fubmitteth himself, and is end, than that which they pretended, namebeing nearen, and the fill and for a time. Yet ly, to help a people of their own Tribe, that it was not long ere he returned again, and craved their fuccour, being in diffres. The Ductius being dead; all the Greek Cities their preparations were fo great as discoverdid in a fert acknowledge Spracuse, Trina- ed their intent to be none other, than the Conquest of the whole Island. Yet they which had called them in, were fo blinded with their own passions, that they would not believe their own eyes; which prefented unto them a Fleet and Army, far grea-

In this expedition, the City of Athens had to faccour them, under the leading of La- necessity of finishing it in a short space of more; with which forces, and with some that time in such broken terms of peace fupplies brought by sophocles, Pythodorus, with Athens, as differed not much from open they invaded the Territories of the Syraen- either to spare cost in this great Expedition, vers places; took Meffana; and, in the fe- ly to be hindred by Wars at home, if their venth year of the Peloponnesian War, lost it proceedings were tlack abroad. And furely, again. They also at the same time attempted had not the desire of the Athenians been Hymo.1, but in vain. The fire of this quar-lover-passionate, the arguments of Nicions had rel took hold upon many Cities, which did caused them to abstain from so chargeable a invade each others Territory with great business, and to reserve their forces for a violence. But when they had wearied more needful use. But young counsels prethemselves on all hands, and yet could see vailed against the authority of ancient men, none iffue of the War, the Leontines, with- that were more regardful of fafety than of admitted into their fociety, with equal free- ready made, in that which we have written dome. So the Athenians, who hoped to of the Peloponnesian War. But what was there have greatned themselves in sicil, by the di-delivered in general terms, as not concernvition and civil War, were disappointed of ing the affairs of Greece, otherwise than by the sicilians, and fain to be gone with the more perfect relation, as a matter, wherein broken remainder of their Fleet. This they the whole State of sicil was like to have felt

Though Alcibiades had prevailed against revenge upon their own Commanders. So Nicias, in exhorting the people to this great they banished Pythodorus, and Sophocles, and voyage; yet Nicias, together with Alcibiades laid an heavy fine upon Eurymedon. Shortly and Lamachus, was appointed to be one of These had commission and direction, as cil: which was that of the Athenians, against well to succour the Segestans, and to rethe Sclinuntines and Syracusians, in favour establish the Leontines, cast out of their plaof the Cities of Egefta, Leontium, and Catana. ces by the Syracufians; as also by force of They of selims had opprest the Egestans; Arms, to subject the syracustans, and all their and they of Syracuse the Leontines, and the adherents in Sicil, and compel them by tri-Catanians: which was the ground of the bute to acknowledge the Athenians for their War. For the Athenians undertook the fupreme Lords. To effect which, the foreprotection of their old friends: and, in ha- named Captains were fent off, with an huntred of the Athenians, aid from Lacede- dred and thirty Gallies, and five thousand mon was fent to the Syracusians. The Laceda- one hundred Souldiers, besides the thirty monians dealt plainly, having none other ships of burden, which transported their Eeeee a victuals, engines, and other munitions for fight, and the syracustans had the loss; but the War: and these were Athenians, Manti-the Athenians, wanting horse, could not purneans Rhodians, and Candians: there were, fue their victory to any great effect. They besides these, six thousand Megarians light- then retire themselves, with a resolution to armed, with thirty horsemen.

CHAP. L

at Rhegium, where the Rhegians refuse to upon Messana, hoping to have taken it by an give them entry; but fell them victuals for intelligence, but in vain. For Alcibiader had their money. From thence they fent to the discovered such as were Traitors within the Egefrans, to know what treasure they would City to the Messansa. This he now did in contribute rowards the war, seeing for their despight of his own Citizens, the Athenian: fakes they had entred thereinto. But they because they had recalled him from his comfound by their answers, that these Egestans mand, with a purpose either to have put were poor, and that they had abused the him to death, or to have banished him: Athenian Embassadours with fasse shews of whereof being assured by his friends, he gold, having in all but 30 talents. The Athenitook his way towards the Lacedamonian, ans further were discouraged, when they and to them he gave mischievous counsel found that the Rhegians, their ancient against his Country. While this winter vet friends, and allied unto the Leontines, re- lafted, the Syracufians fend Embaffadorsto fused to trust them within their Walls. Lacedamon, and Corinth, for aid : as likewife Hereupon Nicias adviseth to depart towards the Atherian Captains in Sicil, send to Ather the Selinuntines, and to force them, or per- for supplies. Which both the one and the swade them to an agreement with the Ege- other obtained. frans; as likewife to fee what disbursements the Egefrans could make; and for return again beginning of the eighteenth year of the Education of the Egefrans could make; and for return again beginning of the eighteenth year of the Education of t into Greece, & not to waste Athens in a need-ponnessan war) the Athensans in Sicil salless war. Alcibiades, on the other side, would from the Port of Catana to Megara, totaken folicite the Cities of sicil to confederacy of the Inhabitants; from whence, foraging against the syracustans and selimintines, the Country, they obtain some small vice whereby to force them unto restitution of ries over the straigling syracusans: and at the straight of all that they had taken from the Leontines, their return to Catana, they receive a supply Lamachus, he perswades them to asiail Syra-of two hundred men at arms, but without cuse it self, before it were prepared against horse, which they hoped to surais in the them. But in the end (being excluded out of Island from the Segoft ans, and other their divers Cities) they surprise Catana: and there adherents: they were also strengthned with they take new counsel how to proceed, a company of Archers, and with three hun-Thence they imployed Nicias to those of dred talents in mony. Egelfa, who received from them thirty ta- Hereupon they take courage, and incamp lents towards his charges; and one hundred near Syracuse, upon the banks of the great and twenty talents more there were of the Port, repelling the Syraenfians, that fallyed spoils they had gotten in the Island. Thus the to impeach their intrenchments. They allo Summer being spent in idle consultations, received from their Confederates sourhunand vain attempts, the Athenians prepare to dred horse-men, with two hundred other assail Syracuse. But Alcibiades having been horse, to mount their men at arms. Syrause accused at home, in his absence, was sent for was now in effect blockt up, so as hardly any back by the Athenians to make his answer: succours could enter, but such as were able and the Army was left to the conduct of Ni- to force their pallage : yet the Albenian ciss and Lamachus. These Commanders obtain a landing place very near unto Syracuse, not the least, that Lamachus, one of their by this device.

They imploy to Syracuse an inhabitant of Catana, whom they trust; and instruct him, with the Lacedamonian & Corinthian forces, to promife unto the syracufans, that he arrive, and take land at Hymera. The Citiwould deliver into their hands all the Albe- zens of Hymera, and of Gela, together with nians within Catana. Hereupon the Syracuft. the Selimintines, joyn with themso that with ans draw thitherward with their best forces. these and his own troups, Gylippus adven-But in the mean while, the Athenians, fetting tured to march over-land toward sprange. fail from Catana, arrive at Syracufe, where The Syracufans fend a part of their forces to they land at fair eafe, and fortifie themselves meet him and conduct him. The Atlantain against the Town against the Town. Shortly after this, they prepare to encounter them, expeding his refresh their Army at Catana, for the winter. With these troups and fleets they arrive season. From thence they made an attempt best Commanders, was slain.

In the mean while, Gylippus and Python, don and Demosthenes, to joyn with Nicias: the Spring following.

to succour Nicias, the other Gylippus. The loss substitting by being at large, the other by between them was in effect equal; and nei- close imbattailing. ther fo broken, but that each of them profeupon the arrival of a new supply into, the der also those Athenian Gallies, which came arrival near unto the City upon a place of Town, the Athenians had all confented to arrival and an entire they had depart, and to lodge at Catana: had not an advantage. At the first encounter they had depart, the better of their enemies, by reason that Eclipse of the Moon, boding (as was thought) the Syracuffan horse-men could not come to ill success caused them to deferr their defight in those straights: but soon after, 69- parture. But this superstition cost them dearfight in those straights: but soon artes, or highest charging them again, brake them, and for the Syracusans, Lacedemonians, and constrained Nicios to fortise himself within constrained Nicios to fortise himself within Corinthians, with threescore and seventeen his Camp. Whereupon Nicias made the fail of Gallies, entred the great Port of $7flate of his affairs known, by his letters to racuse, wherein the Athenians kept their the Athenians; thewing, that without great | fleet, and whereon they had fortified themfupplies by Sea and Land, the enterprife felves. The Athenians in the fame Port enwould be loft, together with the small Army countred them with four core and fix Galremaining. These letters received, the Athe- lies, commanded by Eurymedon: in which nians appoint two other Generals, Euryme the Athenian fleet was beaten, by the leffer number, and Eurymedon flain. Now, though it the one they dispatch presently with some were so, that the Syracusans received the supplies; the other they send after him in more loss by land(for the fight was general) yet when the Athenians were beaten by fea, In the mean while, Gylippus at Syracuse, in which kind they thought themselves infights with the Athenians both by Sea and vincible, they were wonderfully cast down. Land, sometimes with ill, and at other times For it was well said of Gylippus, to the Strawith good success: but in conclusion, he custans; When any people do find themselves took from their Fort, near unto Syracuse, the vanquished in that manner of fight, and with Promontory called Plymmyrium; wherein those weapons, in which they perswade themthe Athenians lost their treasure, and a great Selves that they exceed all others, they not only part of all their provisions. Notwithstand- lose their reputation, but their courage. The ing which loss and that the Athenians them- Athenians, befides the Gallies funk and selves, in Greece, were (in effect) belieged | wrackt, had seventeen taken, and possest by within Athens, by the Lacedemonians; yet the enemy : and with great labour and loss were they most obstinate in prosecuting the they defended the rest from being fired, War in Sicil, and dispatched away Demo- having drawn them within a Palisado, in one fthenes with new fuccours. Demosthenes, in corner of the port, unadvisedly : for it is as his way towards sicil, encountred with Po- | contrary to a Sea-war, to thrust ships into a lyanthes the Corinthian, with his fleet: both straight room and corner, as it is to scatter the Captains being bound for sicil, the one foot in a plain field against horse; the one

The Syraculians, having now weakned the cuted the enterprise they had in hand. But Athenian fleet, resolve to imprison them before the fuccours arrived to either, Gylip- within the Port. And to that purpose they pus and Ariston had affailed the Athenians in range all their Gallies in the mouth of the the great Port of Syracuse, and in a Sea fight Haven, being about a mile over, and there put them to the worst, to the great discouthey came to Anchor; filling the out-let ragement of the Athenians. On the neck of with all manner of Vessels; which they man this, Demosthenes arrived with threescore most strongly, because the Athenians, being and thirteen Gallies, charged with footmen; now made desperate, should not with douand (blaming the floath of Nicias) he invad- | ble ranks of Gallies break through the Syraed the Syracustans the same day that he arri- custan fleet; which lay but single, because ved. But he made more haste then he had they were forc't to range themselves over all good speed, being shamefully beaten, and the Out-let of the Port. They therefore, repulled with great loss. Hereupon Demo- not only mored themselves strongly by their fthenes and Eurymedon determine to rife up Anchors, but chained the fides of their Galfrom before syracuse, and return to the lies together, and laid behind them again fuccour of Athens: but Nicias disputed to certain ships, which served in the former war the contrary, pretending that he had good for victuallers: to the end, that if any of intelligence within syracuse, whereby he their Gallies were funk; or the chain, which learned, that the Town could not long hold | joyned them to their fellows, broken; the Athenians might yet find themselves a se-Whatfoever Nicias his intelligence was ; cond time, intangled and arrefted. To difor-

on in form of a wedge, to break through, the Port, to return to Athens. This was no and force a passage, the syracusians had left | ill counsel. For, as we have heard of many within these Gallies and Ships, inchained to- great Captains (yea, the greatest number of gether, a certain number of loofe ones, to all that have been victorious) that have frop their course and sury. For where the neglected the speedy prosecution of a beaten way of any vessel, using oar or fails, is broken, enemy; so might we produce many exam. and their speed foreslowed, they cannot ples of those, who, having slept securely in force with any weight and violence, the the bolome of good fuccefs, have beenfudrefiftance oppoling. On the other fide, the Athenians knew of a broken Army, and have thereby loft that they were utterly loft, except with an again all the honour and advantage former invincible resolution they could make their ly gotten. But Nicias opposeth the advice way, and break down this great bridge of of Demosthenes: Others lay, that the Sea. boats; or (at leaft) force a paffage through men were against it. Whereupon abandon. them in some part or other: which they re- ing their Gallies, they all resolve to march folve to hazard, with all their shipping (to over land to the Cities of their Confede the number of one hundred and ten of all rates, till some more favourable fortune forts) and with all the ftrength of their should call them thence. On the other side, Land-army, in them imbarqued. But the Gylippus, and other the Lacedamonian and Gallies, which were within the bridge of Corinthian Captains, with Hermocrates, exboats, did so disorder the Atherian fleet, ere hort the Syracustans to put themselves prethey came to force the bridge, as albeit some sently into the field, and to stop all thepas few of them had broken through the chains, lages, leading to those Cities of their eneyet being flopt with the ships without, and mies, to which the Athenians might make affailed by other loofe Gallies of the Syracu- retrait. But many were weary, and many fians, which were purposely left at large in were wounded, and many of them thought the fea, they were either taken or funk. that they had done enough for the prefent. Three great disadvantages the Athenians Which humour in some of our Commanders had: the first, that fighting within a Haven, at Cadez, lost us both the Indian fleet, and and (as it were) in a straight, they had no the spoils of many other neighbour places. roomto turn themselves, nor to free them- Hermocrates, the Syracufian, finding it a lost felves one from another, being intangled; labour, to perswade his Countrimen to any the fecond, that having overpettered their hafty profecution, devifed this good first Gallies with Souldiers, who used offensive gem, whereby to gain time; not doubting, arms of darts and flings, they had not place but that after a day or two, he should draw upon the decks to stretch their arms; the them willingly out. He fent two or three third was, the discomfortable end for which horse-men out of syracuse by night, willing they fought, namely, to force a passage, by them to find Nicias, and (after they had which they might fave themselves by runing affired him, that they were of the Athenian away. To be short, the fight was no less faction) to give him advice not to march terrible than the confusion: the slaughter away over-hastily from the place, wherein great on all fides; and the noise, and the he was fortified; alledging that the 874 cryes, fo lowd and lamentable, as that no cnstans had lodged their Army, which could direction could be heard. But in the end, not long stay there, upon the passages and the Athenians, as many as survived, were places of advantage, leading towards the beaten back to the Land, with loss of three- Cities of their Allies. These tidings Wiciss fcore of their Gallies, broken, funk, or aban-eafily believed, and put off his journey to doned. The Syracustans did also lose twenty the third day. For men newly beaten, are of theirs, with Python, Commander of the (for the most part) more fearful than wile; Corinthians. The rest of the Atherian Gallies, and to them, every thisse in the field ap running themselves into the bottom of the pears, by night, a man at arms. Port, faved themselves by the help and countenance of the Land-army there forti- and all their baggage) they remove; being fied. In this desperate estate, the Athenian pierced and pursued with the lamentable Commanders go to counfel. Demosthenes out-cries of those that were sick and burt: perfivades them to furnish with fresh Soul- whom they abandon to the cure of their diers those few Gallies which remained; enemies swords. The restmarch away to the and while the Syracustans were triumphing, number of forty thousand; and make their and made fecure by their prefent victory, to first passage by force, over the River of their fet upon them, and forcing their way out of pw, notwithstanding the opposition of their

denly awaked, by the re-allied Companies

The third day (leaving all their Gallies, marenes, and by the grand provision of nionin sicil, yet confidering the prosperity pearen in nom weak and heartless. The of the Syracustans, and their late victories food, they grow weak and heartless. syrangians also possess the Mountain Lepus, over the Albenians, they stayed a while to by which they were to pass towards Came dispute of the matter, whether they should by which they force them to fall back refuse or accept the offer made unto them: rina, and towards the Sea-coast, and to take for the Selinuntines were straightly allied to again towards what way they could: being unable to the Straculians, as may appear by what is proceed in their journey intended. Many past. In the end the senators of Carthage rehard thifts they made, in difficult paflages, lolve upon the enterprife; and (by a trick of and blind marches by night; which they their Punick wit) to separate the Syracustans were fain to endure, as having none other from the Selinuntines, they fend Embaflameans to escape from the enemy that purdors to syracuse: praying that City, as in fired them, and held them waking with confided them, and held them waking with confided them. tinual skirmishing. To keep all in order, linuntines to take reason, and to rest content Nicias undertook the leading of the Vaunt with fo much of the lands in question, as ers to be starved in loathsome prisons; and buried them therethe rest, fold for flaves. This was the fuc-Olympiad.

the Egyfrans (for whose defence against the condemned to exile for his meer vertue, whom they offered themselves, and their Ci-ster fort within Syracuse were forry for their

mies But being every day charged in their ty, as their vassals, The Carthaginians, though mies, and by the Syracustan horse-men, ambitious enough of enlarging their Domiguards and Demosthenes conducted the Rear. they of Syracuse should think meet to allow At the River Erinens, Nicias takes the start them. The Syracusans approved the motiof a whole nights march; leaving Demost- on; for it tended to their own honour. But kenes to make the retreat: who being incompassed, and overpress with numbers, in the pointment: rather they took it ill, that the end renders himfelf. The conditions he ob- Syracuftans, with whom they had run one tained, were farr better than he could have course of fortune, in the Athenian war, should hoped for; and the faith of his enemies offer to trouble them, by interpoling as Arfarrworse than he suspected. For he was bitrators, in a business that themselves could afterward, with Nicias murdered in prison. end by force. This was right as the Carthagi-The Army of Demosthenes being dissolved, nians would have it. For now could they of they purfued Nicias with the greater cou- selinus with an ill grace crave aid of Syrarage: who being utterly broken upon the pat cufe; and the Syracufians as ill grant it unto fage of the River Affinarus, rendred himself those, that had resuled to stand to the Arto Gylippus, upon honest conditions. Gylippus | bitrament, which the Carthaginians would fought to preferve him, and to have had have put into their hands. Hereupon, an the honour to have brought these two to Army of three hundred thousand men is set Sparta; Nicias, as a noble Enemy to the out from Carthage, under the conduct of Lacedemonians, and who, at the overthrow | Hannibal, Nephew to that Amilear, who (as which they received at Pylus by the Athe- you have heard before) was overthrown nians, had faved the lives of the vanquish- with the great Carthaginian Army at Himera ed; Demosthenes, as one that had done to by Gelon. Hannibal was exceeding greedy of Lacedamon the greatest hurt. Hermocrates this imployment, that he might take revenge alfosthe Commander of the Syracustan Army as well of his Uncles, as of his Fathers death; the one of them having been slain by the *Hi*from using any barbarous violence, after so merans, the other by those of Selinus. Both noble a victory. But the cruell and cow-the Cities, Hamibal, in, this war, won by force ardly fort, (cowardife and cruelty be- of arms, fackt them, and burnt them; and ing inteparable pattions) prevailed, and having taken three thousand of the Himecansed these brave Captains to be misera- rans prisoners, he caused them to be led unbly murdered; one part of their Souldi- to the place, where Amilcar was flain, and

After this followed some trouble at Syracels of the sicilian war: which took end at cufe, occasioned by the banishment of Hermothe River Allinarus, the four and twentieth crates, who had lately been General of the day of May, in the fourfcore and eleventh Spracufian forces, against the Athenians. The malice of his enemies had so far prevailed The Athenians being beaten out of sicil; with the ingrateful multitude, that he was Schimitines, this late war had been taken at such time as he was aiding the Lacedain hand) fearing the victorious Syracusans, monians, in their war against Atbens 5 fought help from the Carthaginians; to wherein he did great service. All the honeinjury done unto him, and fought to have ans, grew from his acculation of the princihim repealed. Hermocrates himself, return-pal men. It is the delight of base people to ing into Sicil, gathered an Army of fix reign over their betters: wherefore gladly thousand; with which he began to repair did he help them to break down, as letters Selinus; and by many noble actions labou- imprisoning their liberty, the bars that held red to win the love of his Citizens. But it under fate cultody. Long it was not, ere the faction that opposed him was the stron- the chief Citizens had found whereat he ger. Wherefore he was advised to seize aimed. But what they saw, the people would upon a Gate of Syracuse, with some strength not see: and some that were needy, and knew of men; whereby his friends within the not how to get Offices without his help, were Town, might have the better means to willing to help him, though they knew his rife against the adverse party. This he purposes to be such, as would make all the did: but presently the multitude fell to City to smart. He began early to huntaf. arms, and let upon him; in which con- ter the tyranny; being but five and twenty flict he was flain. But his Son-in-law, Dionyfius, shall make them wish Hermocrates alive again.

778

†. IV.

Of Dionysius the Tyrant: and others, following him, in Syracuse.

He Syracustans had enjoyed their liberty about threescore years, from the death of Thrafybulus, to the death of Hermocrates: at which time Dionysius was raif- fome neighbour-towns, bound unto him. ed up by God, to take revenge, as well of their cruelty toward strangers, as of their ingratitude towards their own best Citizens. For before the time of Dionysius, they had made it their pastime, to reward the vertue of their worthiest Commanders with death, or disgrace: which custome they must now be taught to amend.

Dionysus obtained the principality of syracuse, by the same degrees, that many others, before him, had made themselves the other, Aristomache, the daughter of Hipmasters of other Cities, and of syracuse it self. parinus, and tister to Dion, honourable men For, being made Prator, and commanding in Syracuse; which bare unto him many chiltheir Armies against the Carthaginians, and dren, that served to fortific him with new other their enemies, he behaved himself so alliances. well, that he got a general love among the people, and men of war. Then began he to racusans (envying his prosperity)incited the follow the example of Piliftratus, that made multitude, and took arms against him, even himself Lord of Athens; obtaining a band in the novelty of his Rule. But their enof fix hundred men, to defend his person: terprise was more passionately, than wisely under pretence, that his private enemies, be- governed. He had shamefully been beaten ing traiteroully affected to the State of sy- by the Carthaginians at Gela: which, as it racuse, had laid plots how to murder him, vexed the Sicilian men at arms, making because of his good services. He doubled the them suspect that it was his purpose to let pay of his Souldiers; alledging, that it would the Carthaginians waste all that hemight incourage them to fight manfully: but in- afterwards take possession of the delolate tending thereby to affure them to him-places; so it inflamed them with a desire to felf. He perswaded the Citizens, to free themselves from his tyranny. They decall home, out of exile, those that had parted therefore from him, and marchedhabeen banified, which were the best men of stily to spracys, where they found friends Syracyle; and these were afterwards at his to help them: there they forced his Place, tlevotion as obliged unto him by fo great a ranfacked his treasures, and fo financially benefit. His first favour, among the spracus- labused his wife, that for the greif thereoffile years of age when he obtained it : belike it was his defire to reign long. His first work. of making himself absolute Lord in Syracuse, was, the possession of the Citadel, wherein was much good provision, and under it the Gallies were mored. This he obtained by allowance of the people, and having obtain. ed this he cared for no more, but declared himself without all shame or fear. The Army; the chief Citizens restored by him from banishment; all the needy fort within Syracuse, that could not thrive by honest courses and either for his help in war, or for establishing the faction, reigning at that prefent; were wholly affected to his affiftance. Having therefore gotten the Cittadel into his hands, he needed no more, fave to affure what he had already. He strengthened himfelf by divers marriages; taking first to wife the daughter of Hermocrates; and after her, two at once; the one a Locrian , Doris, by whom he had Dionysius, his Successor;

Yet it was not long, ere some of the Sy-fures, and his Guards.

free Cities of Sicil: but while he lay before fending Mago with the other by Sea: he fent Herbesse, an in-land Town, the Syracustians Leptimes, his brother to encounter Mago. the Campanians, who forced their passage lost. It is very strange, and hardly credithrough the City, with one thousand and ble, which yet good Authors tell us; That two hundred horse, he again recovered the one City should be able to surnish five hunthen goes to the field with fourfcore thouwan Motya by affault, and put all therein Hereupon, finding their own fuccess pro-

